

A photograph of two men in 18th-century military uniforms standing in a grassy field. They are wearing blue coats with red cuffs and lapels, and white lace at the waist. One man is wearing a black tricorn hat with yellow plumes, and the other is wearing a white bicorne hat. They are holding long rifles. In the foreground, there is a replica of a wooden cannon on a tripod stand. The background is a line of green trees.
