Introduction

The 1876 Texas Constitution, the fifth since statehood, had 289 sections organized into 17 articles. The original version of this 1876 constitution is viewable online on The University of Texas School of Law Tarlton Law Library website at <https://tarlton.law.utexas.edu/c.php?g=813324>. Over the years, 223 new sections have been added, while 66 of the original sections and 52 of the added sections have been removed, so that the Texas Constitution today has 394 sections. For most of that time, the constitution has been updated at least biennially through amendments proposed by the legislature and approved by the Texas electorate. No legislative rules or other restrictions limit the number of amendment proposals, provided each receives the required two-thirds vote in both the senate and the house.

Since 1876, the legislature has proposed 690 constitutional amendments, and 687 have gone before Texas voters. Of the amendments submitted to the voters so far, 507 have been approved by the electorate, 180 have been defeated, and three amendments never made it to the ballot.

No publication fully documents the process of actual and attempted constitutional change, but several authors have addressed the history and rationale behind many of the provisions, including Walton C. Rowland (1948), George D. Braden (1977), and Janice C. May (1996). Harold J. Marburger (1956) itemized results of proposed amendments during the first 80 years of the constitution's history. Until recently, his list continued in simplified format as a table of votes on proposed constitutional amendments that was regularly appended to the final volume of each set of session laws of the Texas Legislature.

This publication attempts to fill a gap in the body of research detailing Texas constitutional history. It charts the basics of all original sections and amendatory proposals and includes information on subject content, the dates and outcomes of constitutional amendment elections, and links to the joint resolutions containing the text of amendments. The Texas Constitution does not state when an adopted constitutional amendment takes effect, but Texas courts consistently have held that the effective date is the date of the official canvass of returns showing adoption of the amendment, unless another date is clearly specified. This publication does not provide the canvass dates of constitutional amendments; however, the Texas Secretary of State provides an online list of constitutional amendment election dates and corresponding canvass dates for adopted amendments from the 1972 election onward at <http://www.sos.texas.gov/elections/historical/canvasdt.shtml>. Information relating to pre-1972 canvass dates is available at the Texas State Archives.

* Total reflects two or more amendments that were included in one joint resolution.

** Seven joint resolutions containing eight ballot proposals were approved by the legislature, but only six of the eight went before voters. See, in the amendments table, the 1913 entries for 3:52.

*** Two joint resolutions were approved by the legislature, but only one proposal was actually submitted on the ballot. See, in the amendments table, the 1923 entry for 8:9a.

† Total excludes a joint resolution that was repealed and replaced. See, in the amendments table, the 1967 entry for 16:62.

†† Total reflects eight amendments that would have provided for an entire new Texas Constitution.

††† Total reflects two identical joint resolutions that were presented to voters in a single proposition. See, in the amendments table, the 2013 entries for 9:7.

Explanation of Table

General Comments

The table is ordered numerically by constitutional article and section. Shaded areas of the compilation denote repealed sections, failed amendments, and expired provisions. Unshaded areas include provisions approved by the voters that have not been expressly repealed or extinguished and that may include language that has been changed through subsequent amendments. The table omits temporary provisions that were designed to smooth the transition from older to newer constitutional language.

In 1975, the Texas Legislature, having convened as a constitutional convention the previous year, proposed a full revision of the Texas Constitution to be submitted to the voters through the normal amendment process. This constitutional revision attempt is treated differently in the table because its anticipated effect extended to virtually every section. The revision attempt took the form of eight ballot propositions, all of which were defeated by Texas voters. In this publication, 1975 amendment proposals appear at the end of a particular article rather than among the individually listed sections of the article. See the bibliography for the citation to an informational booklet from the 64th Texas Legislature, which contains more detail on the nature of the proposed 1975 revisions.

PDF and Excel Versions of This Publication

This publication is available in two electronic formats: a static PDF version (available at <http://www.tlc.texas.gov/docs/amendments/constamend1876.pdf>) suitable for printing and easy reference by Article and Section number and an Excel version (available at <http://www.tlc.texas.gov/docs/amendments/constamend1876.xlsx>). The Excel version allows each column to be sorted or filtered. This functionality is useful for a variety of purposes, such as finding all the affected sections of a particular amendment (filter by “Legislature” or “Election Date” and “Joint Resolution Number”) or re-creating the ballot of a particular election (filter by “Election Date” and sort by “Prop”). To sort or filter a column, click on the filter button on the column heading and select the desired criteria.

Columns One (“Article”) and Two (“Section”)

Column one indicates the article number and column two indicates the section number. Within the document, sections are referred to by both their article and section number. Article VIII, Section 2, for example, is referred to as 8:2. When a specific amendment of a section is referred to, the election year is also provided, such as 8:2 (1978), to differentiate between a section’s various amendments; in cases of multiple amendments to the same section in the same election year, the resolution number is also provided. For sections currently in the constitution, the section number is linked to the constitutional provision.

Also for sections currently in the constitution, the numbers in these columns, along with the text in column three (“Topic”), are in boldface print to denote the original establishment of a section under a particular section number.

Column Three (“Topic”)

Column three describes the topic of a section. For sections that currently are part of the Texas Constitution, the description reflects their present content. For sections that have been deleted or otherwise removed, the description reflects the content at the time of deletion or removal. For proposed sections that never became a part of the Texas Constitution, the description reflects the proposed language. For sections currently in the constitution, the text in this column, along with the numbers in columns one (“Article”) and two (“Section”), are in boldface print to denote the original establishment of a section under a particular section number.

Column Four (“Action”)

Column four indicates the general nature of an amendment by one of four symbols:

- (=) indicates inclusion in the original 1876 Texas Constitution
- (+) indicates a section added or proposed to be added
- (-) indicates a section removed or proposed to be removed
- (Δ) indicates the amendment or proposed amendment of an existing section

Column Five (“Election Date”)

Column five provides an amendment’s election date.

Column Six (“Joint Resolution Number”)

Column six provides the joint resolution number of an amendment, linked to a PDF copy of the resolution.

Column Seven (“Legislature”)

Column seven provides the legislature that proposed an amendment.

Column Eight (“Prop”)

Column eight provides the proposition number, if known, of the amendment for the election. If unknown or unclear, a dash (“-”) is used. The proposition numbers were researched from a variety of sources, including newspaper sample ballots and editorials and secretary of state election information, and should not be considered a comprehensive listing of proposition numbers for all of the state’s constitutional amendments.

Column Nine (“Result”)

Column nine indicates the adoption or failure of an amendment.

Column Ten (“Percentage”)

Column ten provides the percentage of the voters who cast votes in favor of an amendment. The percentages are based on vote totals from a number of sources, including the Texas Secretary of State’s website, secretary of state hard-copy reports cited in this publication’s bibliography, the Marburger document also cited in the bibliography, secretary of state election registers on which the Marburger vote totals are based, the Legislative Reference Library website, the biennial Texas session laws volumes, the Texas Almanac, and an unpublished Texas Secretary of State election canvass document in the state archives.

Column Eleven (“Comments”)

Column eleven contains explanatory and informational comments that assist with tracking the evolution of a section. The column cites other constitutional sections affected by the same amendment.
