It was in Covington that she met and married, on September 11, 1832, Col. William S. Calhoun, the son of Jane Daniel and Adam Calhoun III, of Tipton County, Tennessee. Widowed in June, 1841, she had four children to raise: Samuel Daniel, born in 1834; William Turner, born in 1837; John Richard, born in 1839; and daughter Lizzie, born in 1841.

Elizabeth came to Texas in 1842, shortly after Mexican troops seized San Antonio. Settlers throughout the Guadalupe River Valley fled their homes, including the family of James Norman Smith. Moving to Mill Creek, he received word that his daughter and her children were in Houston.

Smith's son-in-law, Francis S. Latham, editor of the Memphis "Eagle," organized a group of Tennessee volunteers to help defend the young republic. Elizabeth and her family made the long, hard trip with this well-armed, rough and ready crew, which included her brother, James Brown Smith, a young businessman from New Orleans.

Teachers in Texas were scarce, and soon, Elizabeth joined her father, teaching in his school. In November, 1845, the Smith family returned to their land on the Guadalupe, and soon Elizabeth had a school of her own on Deer Creek.

When DeWitt County was officially created by the Legislature in 1846, James Norman Smith was elected county clerk and hired to survey its boundaries. Elizabeth's son, young Sam Calhoun helped his grandfather surveying by carrying chains, and by cutting and hauling clapboards to build the first county clerk's office.

Elizabeth soon opened the first school in Clinton. She built a large, frame building where she lived and taught. In 1848 she married John D. Barnhill, a widow with no children who farmed near Concrete. They had three daughters: Martha, Sallie and Lydia.

For the Calhouns, the years before the Civil War were spent working the family farm near Heard's bridge. In a letter to James Brown Smith, dated March 5, 1859, Sam Calhoun paints a clear picture of the DeWitt County agricultural scene and available real estate. Then, Elizabeth finished the last page of the letter with news of a more personal nature. She reported recent weddings in the county and marriage prospects for her two sons. It seems, that John was ready, but Sam was not.

In 1861, while visiting relatives in Tennessee, the war broke out and Texas seceded from the Union. Though separated by many miles, the Calhoun brothers corresponded by mail, and decided to enlist, rather than be drafted into the Confederacy. They formulated a plan of identification for themselves. Each wore a star on his cap made from a quarter, with the letters T-E-X-A-S on the points and his initials in the center.

John enlisted in Tennessee. Sam joined Terry's Texas Rangers and also wound up in Tennessee. Both Calhoun brothers fought at the Battle of Shiloh, and when General Albert Sydney Johnson was wounded, John helped take the dying commander off the field.

At the Battle of Murfreesboro, Sam Calhoun discovered a wounded friend from Victoria, fellow ranger, John M. Brownson. Sam carried him to safety, then returned to the Battlefield in search of his brother. He found John's hat with the Texas star, and soon learned that John had also been injured and was in a field hospital. Sam never found him. He was captured and held in a union prison in Indiana for seventeen months. John recovered and was reassigned as a courier at the Battle of Chickamauga under General's Polk and Bragg, and was wounded a second time.

When the war was over, Sam was released in a prisoner exchange. He walked all the way from Virginia to Hallettsville, where the tired soldier was given a horse for the final stretch of the journey. Cared for by people all along the way, he arrived in DeWitt County with the same three nickels that he had in his pocket when he left Richmond.

Upon reaching home, the Calhoun brothers learned of their mother's death in February, 1864. They went right to work improving the family farm. John, unable to settle in to farming, went "up the trail' with a herd of horses and mules under Captain Harvey Cunningham. Longtime friends and army pals John M. Brownson and Dave Dromgoole also made the drive. The owner of the stock, Judge David Murphree was killed by northern radicals on the trip. Awaiting instructions from the administrators of the estate, the animals were boarded at the stables of John C. Rennolds in Higsbee, Missouri. While there, John fell in love with the stable owner's daughter, Annie Quisenberry Rennolds. One year later, in July, 1867, John returned to Randolf County with the same three friends from home. In the yard of her parent's home they were married.

Annie came to Texas with John down the Mississippi and across the gulf. Honeymooning in New Orleans she contracted yellow fever and was quarantined at Indianola for several weeks. She was one of the lucky few who survived that outbreak of the dreaded disease.

John Richard and Annie Calhoun had ten children: 1) John William, 2) Samuel Norman, 3) Imogene Latham, 4) Alvin Burton, 5) Charles Rennolds, 6) George David, 7) James Lindsey, 8) Annie Elizabeth, 9) Joseph Henry, and 10) Ben Smith, who died in infancy.

On January 6, 1869, in the home where she was born on Deer Creek, Nancy Elizabeth (Bettie) Sumners, daughter of Mary Cox and Abraham Sumners, married Samuel Daniel Calhoun. Nine children were born to this union: 1) James Clayton, 2) William Richard, 3) Lemuel Smith, 4) Joseph Robert, who died at age three, 5) Samuel De Vilbiss, 6) Gertrude, who died in infancy, 7) Annie Eliza, 8) Charles White, and 9) Thomas Clarence.

The Calhoun brothers and their wives all passed away in Cuero, and are buried at Hillside Cemetery.

CALLAWAY, WILLIAM T. FAMILY

William T. Callaway, ca. 1870, Winfield, Kansas.

Returning from the Kansas railhead after a cattle drive from DeWitt County, young "Bill" Callaway stopped in southeast Kansas and had his photograph made in his "Sunday best" in 1870. One hundred and six years later this photo appeared on the cover of the Callaway Family Association Journal. "A real Texas Cowboy."

Bill was born 12 December 1848 in Houston County, Texas to James Wilson and Caroline Elizabeth Dillard Callaway. There were seven other children: David L., James D., Traluca Jane, John Arnold, Mary F., George D. — born in Houston County; Lou Emily born in Gonzales County and Clara A. born in DeWitt County.

James W. Callaway was born in Franklin County, Georgia 29 May 1816 to David and Judith Tillery Callaway. There was one other son and six girls. One of his girls married into the Willis family in south Georgia; their descendants still live there.

James', father - DAVID was born in North Carolina ca 1779 to Isaac and Elizabeth Arnold Callaway. Isaac was a grandson of the immigrant Peter Callaway who appears in Maryland Province in 1664 from Yorkshire, England. As a young man of 21, David joined his four uncles - all Revolutionary War veterans, in Wilkes County, Georgia. He married Judith Tillery, daughter of A Revolutionary War soldier, on Christmas Eve, 1800 in Oglethorpe County. David and Judy lived and owned property in twelve Georgia counties before the family moved to Madison County, Territory of Florida. Two of the girls married Townsend men — the same family that furnished five men at the Battle of San Jacinto. Beginning in 1839 the family started moving to Texas with James leading the way in September 1839 with his sister Eliza and her husband, Stapleton Townsend. By the Summer of 1844 David and all of his children, except Charlotte Willis, had arrived in Colorado County, Texas. David arrived with seventeen slaves and bought 1000 acres to farm. David died August 31, 1844.

Jerusha Emily married H.H.H. Baldridge shortly after her father died. With her mother and sisters Bennetta and Susan, the Baldridge family moved to Gonzales and remained there the remainder of their lives. Eliza and her family remained in LaVaca County until they died. Elizabeth Ann married William Barry, and they settled in Rusk County until 1854 when they left for Missouri.

James was captured by invading Mexican forces in 1842 and apparently released in late 1843 or 1844. He had been awarded land in Rusk County in 1839 and in Harrison County in 1844. He moved to Houston County in 1845 and married Caroline Elizabeth Dillard in 1846. William Theodore was their eldest child. There were seven other children. James settled his deceased father's estate from 1860-1867; he moved to Gonzales County in 1862. He moved to DeWitt County in 1865. James died in 1874 and his wife Caroline moved back to Gonzales in 1878 with all of the children except her married son Bill. Bill married Mary Elizabeth Miller, eldest child of the late Jacob A. Miller and Amanda Jane Davis Miller on September 23, 1871.

The newlyweds were given two 100 acre farms - one from the Millers and one from the Callaway family. Bill Callaway was one of the early cattle drovers - cowboys, from DeWitt County. From 1866 to 1886, Bill made the trip "up the trail" each year. He became a "trail boss" in the early 1870's. When not driving cattle, he served as a deputy sheriff and farmed. Because of his superior knowledge of cabinet making, steam engines and wind mills, it has been assumed James was his teacher. Bill and "Molly" were members of the Presbyterian Church in Yorktown. In 1886 Bill moved his family to the Marcelina community in Wilson County and then completed his last trip "up the trail." Bill and Molly had 12 children eight born in DeWitt and four in Wilson County. Children: Mary Lou 1871-1895 never married; Willie A. 1873-1877; Jacob W. 1875-1878; Cora I. 1876-1958 married John Chapman; Agnes B. 1878-1958 married A.S. West; Alice C. 1881-1932 never married; James H. 1883-1916 married Alice Peters; Willis T. 1886-1902; Amanda J. 1888-1954 married Charles Batchelor; John N. 1891-1931 married Connie Reese; Clara E. 1894-1969 married J.R. Newman; Ruth L. 1896-1987 married Jim McBee.

Bill and Molly Callaway purchased two farms in Wilson County in 1886. With cotton farming going "great guns" in Wilson County, Bill Callaway joined his son-in-law John Chapman in building and operating a cotton and grist mill on Bills' property in 1890 and became moderately "well to do." Bill sold his one farm and kept the one which in time was the location of "down-town" Marcelina. With infestation of the cotton crop with Boll Weevils in 1906, the Gin "played out" before 1910.

Although deprived of an education because of the Civil War, Bill Callaway took an active part in his local school. Mary Lou attended Texas Norman (now SWTSU). It was his initiative in 1887 that made the Marcelina School a model for other communities in Wilson County. Between 1888 and 1912, Bill Callaway was a member of the board of trustees of his school, for over twenty years.

When Bill and Molly Callaway came to Wilson County, they "transferred their letter" to the Marcelina Baptist Church. Both became pillars of the Marcelina Baptist community. Part of the church furniture still used in the church was made by Bill Callaway. The second church building of the little church was built under the supervision of Bill Callaway.

His ability as a house builder, carpenter, cabinet maker, and wind mill mechanic was known throughout Wilson County. With the advent of World War I, he was called from retirement and operated the Southerland Springs Cotton Gin for four years. For more than ten years he was active as chairman of the Wilson County Democratic Party. When Bill Callaway died on January 27, 1929, the county paper devoted a quarter page to his obituary. It ended by stating:

"The people of Wilson County will sorely miss this great and good man." Molly died May Miss Jill Elizabeth Newman, age 13, of the Strack Intermediate School, Spring Texas, certainly displayed some of the intelligence and courage of her great great grandfather when she placed second in the state-wide contest "Texas Future Problem Solving Program" in April, 1989. First prize went to a high school student from Bell County.

CALLIHAM FAMILY

Walter Beasley Calliham, son of David Beasley and Margaret Rankin Calliham (1847-1921), was born on April 18, 1870, in San Patricio County, Texas.

After his father's death, Walter, only a few months of age, and his mother moved to Burns Station in DeWitt County to live with her family, the Moses Rankin family. When Walter was about 7 or 8 years old, his mother married Mr. John P. Wright, a widower with three sons and four daughters. They lived in Thomaston, where Walter's half-sisters, Norma and Eula, were born.

Walter and Minnie Mae Eatman were married on January 25, 1904, in Cuero, by the Rev. C.C. Green, Baptist minister. Minnie was the daughter of Augustus Washington and Elizabeth Vann Williams (Pridgen) Eatman.

To this union were born five children. (1) John Edward, who died in infancy. (2) Maggie Mae (the late Mrs. Phillip Braden), housewife and former teacher, five children: daughters Patricia (the late Mrs. Bobby McMahan) - son and daughter, Jeffery and Linda, each married with one child; Frances (Mrs. Dan Wilson) three children; Cecelia Mae Logue - one son; and twin sons Jimmy (wife, Claudette) - a son and daughter; Jerry, married, no children. (3) Mary Elizabeth (Mrs. Charles Murphree), housewife and teacher, one son, William Frederick (wife, "Jerrie" Mathis), one daughter, Sherry Elizabeth (Mrs. Steve Johnson). (4) Lucille (Mrs. Sidney Dedear), housewife and former store operator, four children, daughters Margaret Ruth (Mrs. Irvin Hotz), one son, Michael; Sidney Lou (Mrs. C.M. Duffield), children, Jayne (Mrs. Brian McGinley), Jeffrey (wife, Lisa Bluhm and daughter Heather), and Jennifer (Mrs. Eddie Kremling); Norma Elizabeth (Mrs. Jack Zielonka), sons Larry and Steve and daughters Dana and Elizabeth, with eleven grandchildren; and son, Walter Edward (wife, Rose Zuber) — sons, Jeremy and Jason, daughters, Rebecca and Suzanne. (5) David (wife, Rosina Dedear) store operator, postmaster and DuPont operator, two daughters Kathryn Scheffler, three daughters Karen (Mrs. Mark White), Kimberly (Mrs. Larry Crain), and Kristi Scheffler, and son Keith Scheffler; Linda (Mrs. Gary Kolar), a daughter Michelle and son Brian; and one son, David Anthony (wife, Jeanine Bishop), daughters, Stephanie and Amy and son, David Alan.

For a while Walter and Minnie with daughter Maggie Mae lived in Markham, Texas. After a severe hurricane they moved back to Thomaston, where they continued to live for the remainder of their lives.

Walter was a hard worker — a farmer and carpenter. He was noted for the huge bales of cotton which he took to the gin in his wagon. He raised watermelons and peanuts as well as other crops. For many years he served as a school trustee and was Justice of the Peace for a while.

Minnie was a homemaker — a good cook and seamstress. She was the telephone operator when a switchboard was installed in their home around 1912.

The family members were of the Methodist faith and attended the Thomaston Methodist Church; however, they also attended worship services in the Baptist and the Presbyterian Churches in the little town of Thomaston.

Margaret, Walter's mother, donated land to be used as a cemetery in Thomaston, as had the first Mrs. John P. Wright. Her descendants are active in the Cemetery Association and were instrumental in securing a Texas Historical Marker for the cemetery in 1987.

Minnie passed away on May 8, 1949, and Walter died on September 6, 1955. Their oldest daughter, Maggie Mae died on October 5, 1981. All are buried in the Thomaston Cemetery.

Crockett Cardwell, born January 20, 1812 near McAfee in Mercer County, Kentucky; came to Texas in 1833 when he was 21 years of age and joined Green DeWitt's Colony. He married Ann Eliza White in Gonzales on April 16, 1846. They had two children; John William who died at eight years of age and Mary Evelyn who was born December 23, 1855 and later married Arthur Burns. Crockett's father, Major Jack Cardwell who was of English stock and a Kentucky pioneer. He fought the British under Andrew Jackson at New Orleans in 1812

On July 13, 1846 Crockett Cardwell was elected to serve as one of the first DeWitt County commissioners. Cardwell owned and operated several general merchandise stores and is known as one of the earliest merchants in Texas. The locations of these stores were old Indianola, Port Lavaca, Halletsville, and the home store which was four miles north of Cuero. Cardwell purchased the home store property from Captain Daniel Boone Friar on September 28, 1849. This location maintained the Cardwell home, store, the first post office for the territory, a tavern, and the stage coach stop between Indianola and San Antonio.

The ownership and operation of the store chain covered a long and interesting period in the life of Crockett Cardwell. He made regular trips to New York, Cincinnati and other eastern markets to buy goods. Cardwell saw a definite need for meat in the north and was fully aware of the abundance of cattle in South Texas. This supply/demand situation sparked a keen interest for Cardwell and he began his pursuit for a man who could help fulfill his entrepreneurial spirit. This man was Thornton Chisholm. On April 1, 1866, Chisholm and thirty men drove Cardwell's 1800 head of cattle north; thus the Chisholm Trail.

CARTER - FAIRES FAMILY

Joseph Carter was born Dec. 13, 1859 in LaGrange, Fayette Co. Texas, to Thomas and Mary (Arnold) Carter. Thomas came to Texas in 1852 from Hugglescote, Leicestershire, England, where he was born April 27, 1822 to Thomas and Jane (Jacques) Carter. Thomas located in Fayette Co. on a farm near LaGrange, and was a farmer and carpenter. He married Mary Arnold July 14, 1857. Mary was born in Great Crosby, Lancashire, England, January 12, 1838, and came to Texas in 1852, along with her parents, John and Elizabeth (Rothwell) Arnold. They settled in Fayette Co. Thomas bought 4,000 acres of land in Gonzales and DeWitt Counties in 1887. After the death of his wife, Mary, in 1889, he moved to Cheapside with his several children and became a farmer, stockraiser and money lender, until his death in 1902. The Carter homestead at Cheapside is presently owned and occupied by Edna Clark, a granddaughter.

Emily Ann (Faires) Carter was born Sept. 5, 1866 on a farm near Flattnia, Texas, to John Wesley and Hannah (Hattie Moore) Faires. Her grandparents, William Alexander Faires and Ada (McClure) Faires, born in South Carolina and Kentucky, respectively, came to Texas from Tennessee in 1834 with the settlers of Austin's colony. They settled in what is now Fayette Co. where William patented his league of land of 4,000 acres. He and Ada's brothers took an active part in fight for independence for Texas. The land for the townsite of Flatonia was purchased from Emma's grandfather, William, by the railroad in 1873. Emily Ann taught school in Yoakum a few years before she married. She married Joseph Carter in Yoakum Feb. 20, 1889. Joseph had attended Texas A&M in its early days, and he and his brother, Arthur Carter, operated a general merchandise store in Cheapside for about 14 years. Joseph and Emily Ann made their home first in Cheapside, where their six sons were born, (five of whom are in the picture above), namely, Joseph Guy, Seth Thomas, Arthur Lord, Charles Faires, and Roy Alton. A sixth son died at about 6 months of age.

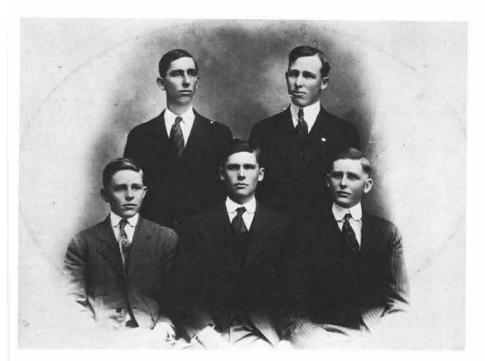

About 1904, Joseph moved his family to Westhoff where he had a mercantile business known as Carter Bros., along with brother Arthur, a druggist. They were members of the Baptist Church. Joseph died Oct. 25, 1923 in Westhoff, and Emily Ann died Sept. 23, 1950 in Cuero. Their sons, Joseph Guy and Charles Faires, were corporals in the 141st Infantry in France during WW I, and both served as sergeant. Guy joined the army July 30, 1917 in Gonzales, Texas, and was discharged July 4, 1919 at Camp Travis.

Joseph Guy (3 Feb. 1890) married Melinia Krueger (26 July 1898), the daughter of John M. and Ida (Franke) Krueger of Shiner, on Jan. 3, 1928 in Hallettsville. He was proprietor of Texaco Service Station, Yoakum, and raised cattle, until his death Feb. 18, 1961. Melinia (Milly) died June 30, 1977. They had 3 daughters: JoAnn, unmarried; Vivian Aldine married to Richard Brown Burt Sept. 5, 1963 in Cuero, with 2 sons, Richard Neal (19 Oct. 1964) and David Lee (18 March 1966); Pauline married Kenneth Earl Phillips of Orwigsburg, Penn., with three children, Sandra Lynn (20 Nov. 1960), Marvin Anthony (1 Jan. 1962), and Kendra Allison (27 July 1965).

Seth Thomas (29 Aug. 1892) never married. He died in Cuero Aug. 30, 1977.

Charles Faires (17 July 1894) married Alma Ruth Lord Sept., 1919, worked in shipyards in Orange, Texas during WW II and sold cemetery monuments. He had one daughter, Byrta Ruth who married Marion C. Weber July 20, 1940, with two sons, Garlan Faires of Yoakum, and Harold Hutton. Garlan married Jeanne Hermes Aug. 12, 1970 and has one son, Morgan Faires Weber.

Roy Alton (27 Oct. 1896) married Nickol Pearce May 1, 1918 and had a hatchery in

Sons of Joseph and Emily Ann (Faires), 1915 – Back: Joseph Guy Carter, and Seth Thomas Carter. Front: Arthur Lord Carter, Charles Faires Carter and Roy Alton Carter.

Westhoff, then moved to Nixon and operated feed and grain store. They had two daughters: Eileen, married to Claude A. Rix March 1, 1947, with one daughter and Deborah Eileen, who is married to Allen Coleman and has daughters, Stephanie and Jessica. Douglas married Leslie Brandes Aug. 10, 1946, and they have two sons, Richard Pearce and Russell Wade.

Arthur (7 Sept. 1899) married Elizabeth Cavitt of Gonzales in 1924; had 3 children, Arthur Lord, Jr., Joe Ed and Betty Lou; died Feb. 5, 1946.

T.K. Chaddock.

Temple Kaye Chaddock "T.K.", the middle son of Mary Klokau and Temple Henry Chaddock, was born February 28, 1928. He was born at his Grandfather Klokau's house, just south of Cuero. This place extended from the city limits to the Guadalupe River. Dr. Charles Tubbs bought most of it from Mr. Klokau in later years.

The first eleven years of T.K.'s life, his family lived on another place of Mr. Klokau's across the river near Clinton. T.K. and his older sister, Evelyn and brother, Clarence, rode horseback to Clinton School. At this time, when you left Cuero to go to Clinton, the road was gravel all the way to Goliad. When you left Cuero, the road went between the big Lentz home and the river, across an old river bridge. On the hill on the left, Mr. Haak had a blacksmith shop and mill. People could take their plow points to be sharpened and leave their corn to be ground into cornmeal at the same time. Around the curve on the right, Mr. Tom Hensley had a store and down the road on the left, Bob Dubose had a syrup mill, the old kind where the mules go around in a circle to press the juice from the cane. He also had an outdoor cooker. The school was on the right and Mrs. Jessie Dodds was his first school teacher.

One thing he could never forget was when in 1934, in the depression, when the government came around and bought excess cattle. They took the old cows and old bulls and thin cattle and baby calves, put them in a pen, and men with rifles sat on the fence and shot them. Then they had them drug off and burned. The fat young cattle were driven into Cuero to the shipping pens and loaded on railroad cars and sent to canning companies to be canned and given to people on relief.

In 1936, after the flood, that got all the crops and most of the family's livestock, Temple Chaddock told his father-in-law he was not living on the river any longer; so Mr. Klokau sold the place to Lawrence Keesling, and the Chaddocks moved to the Carl Schorre place at Five Mile. The next year, T.K., his younger brother, Kyle and his younger sister, Hazel, the White boys, Cecil, Odell and Billy, and Elywin Schorre, rode to school with Arlene Schorre (a teacher at Ratcliffe School). The following year Miss Schorre taught at Arneckeville School, so all this bunch transferred to Arneckeville. When T.K. got to high school he rode the Meyersville bus. After graduation in 1945, he worked at the Livestock Commission Company and for Cage and Hansen Feed Store and the Carnation Creamery. He attended the first livestock auction sale ever held in Cuero at the age of ten. Through his school days he worked cattle and doctored screw worm cases for people's cattle. He went in the Air Force in April of 1946 and was discharged in 1947. Then, at this time he worked at the Cuero Livestock Commission Company and for Elmer Krueger and Raleigh Blackwell at the sale in Hallettsville, Texas. He also traded cattle. While in FFA in school, he received a Lone Star Farmer Degree.

In 1950, T.K. Chaddock married Julia Lemore Martin from Comstock, Texas. She has three sisters, Ann, Mary and Barbara, one brother, Parma. T.K. and Julia have three children: 1) Rebecca Lynn, who married Roger Leick. He is an engineer for Exxon Corporation. He is a Sunday School teacher and Deacon in the Baptist Church. They have two sons, John Temple and Zachary Martin; 2) Raleigh Mark Chaddock married Myra Warner. They have one daughter, Amy Elizabeth. Mark is a cattle buyer; and 3) Ruth Anne Chaddock is a clown with Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus.

In the early 1950's the cattle market broke and the trading got bad, so T.K. went to work for Owen Packing Company in Brownsville, Texas, buying cattle, so the family moved to Brownsville. After about five years in Brownsville, Dick Owens, Raleigh Blackwell and T.K. leased the Three Rivers Livestock Commission Company in Three Rivers. The Chaddocks moved to Three Rivers and ran it for about two years, then they moved back to Brownsville. After about five more years, after Armour bought Owens Packing Company, they moved to Yoakum for about a year. Then they moved back to Cuero where T.K. is an order buyer and rancher. He is a Deacon in the Baptist Church and a Sunday School teacher. Julia is a school teacher in Cuero High School. She works with the youth in the Church and is also a Sunday School teacher.

CHADDOCK, TEMPLE HENRY FAMILY

F146

Mr. and Mrs. Temple Henry Chaddock have lived in and around Cuero all their lives, except for a period from 1945 until 1962 when Mr. Chaddock was employed by Amerada Petroleum Corporation.

Mr. and Mrs. Temple Henry Chaddock.

Mr. Chaddock was born in Valley View on March 17, 1897 and went to school at Valley View School near Cheapside. He entered the Army on September 13, 1918 and served in Company A, 2nd Developing Battalion, 155th Depot Brigade at Camp Lee in Virginia.

Mrs. Chaddock, formally Mary Klokau, was born September 27, 1902 in Inez, Texas. She grew up and went to school in Clinton, Texas.

They were married on December 21, 1920 in Clinton and lived on a farm near Yorktown. During this time their two eldest children were born. After four years, they moved to the old Klokau farm. Eventually Mrs. Chaddock gave birth to two other children on this farm. Temple Kaye was the only child born away from the farm. He was born at the Klokau house on the outskirts of Cuero.

The five children of Temple Henry and Mary were: 1) Evelyn Grace, who married Kirksey Bennett of Cuero and now lives in Beeville. Their children are, Mary Temple, Suellen and Pamela Grace; 2) Clarence Alden, who married Willene Sutton of Aransas Pass and now lives in La Porte. Their children are, Sharon Amelia, Don Rodney, and Holly Ann; 3) Temple Kaye, who married Julia Martin of Comstock and lives in Cuero. They have three children: Rebecca Lynn, Raleigh Mark, and Ruth Anne: 4) Kyle Afton, who married Lillian Whitehurst of Beeville and lives in Richmond. They have three children: Michael Albert, Mary Margaret, and Mitzi Dawn; 5) Hazel Marie, who married Clarence Eugene Buck of Bay Minnette, Alabama and lives in Houston, Texas. They have three children: Clarence Eugene, Jr., David Wesley, and Kenneth Paul.

After the flood in 1936, the family, and livestock saved from the flood, began a new life near Ratcliff (Five Mile). They lived here until 1944 when Mr. Chaddock went to work with Amerada and Mrs. Chaddock moved to Cuero with the three younger children (Temple K., Kyle, and Hazel). In 1945 she began traveling with Mr. Chaddock and the two youngest children. After his retirement twenty years later, they moved back to Cuero where they live now.

CHISHOLM, RICHARD H. AND FAMILY

The two Chisholm brothers, Richard H. and Richard A., along with their sister Lourena, migrated from Scotland to Virginia and then to Green DeWitt's Colony in Texas in 1828.

Richard A. Chisholm never married according to descendants of his brother's family and no further record was kept on him.

Lourena Chisholm married James H. Hallmullen in DeWitt County on March 15, 1849. Lourena (Chisholm) Hallmullen mysteriously disappeared one day while going from the ranch to Goliad for supplies. Members of the family found her horse and rig by the Guadalupe River crossing, but they could find no trace of Lourena.

Richard H. Chisholm married Hardina Taylor. Hardina Taylor was the daughter of Josiah and Hepzibeth (Smith) Taylor. Hardina had one sister, Johanna, and six brothers – William Riley, Creed, Josiah, Pitkin, Rufus, and James. Richard H. Chisholm started "Chisholm's Ferry" across the Guadalupe River in 1838. The ferry was located near the point where Chisholm Creek met the Guadalupe River. Richard H. Chisholm donated 640 acres of land for the townsite of the county seat for DeWitt County. He was unsuccessful at first, but the county seat was eventually established at the townsite of Clinton, Texas, near Chisholm's Ferry.

Richard H. Chisholm and Hardina (Taylor) Chisholm had two sons – Bradford A. and Glenn Thornton Chisholm and a daughter – Mary Ann Chisholm. Richard H. Chisholm died April 8, 1855.

Bradford A. Chisholm married Harriett Courtney and they had four children – Ida, Olie, Emma, and Richard T. Chisholm. Richard T. "Dick" Chisholm and his second cousin, William P. "Buck" Taylor were shot and killed by Bill Sutton and his friends on Christmas Eve, 1868, in Clinton, Texas. There was a disagreement between the Taylor and Sutton factions about the reason for the killings, but there was no question about who did the killing. "Dick" Chisholm was about 20 years old when the shooting took place.

Glenn Thornton Chisholm married Jane P. Fore on May 27, 1852, in DeWitt County. They had six children - George Lankford, Jessie, Effie, Cora, Annie, and Daniel Fore Chisholm. Glenn Thornton Chisholm was the retail boss for Crockett Cardwell when he put his first herd of cattle together and drove them from DeWitt County, up the "Chisholm Trail" to St. Joseph, Missouri, in 1866. The Chisholms of DeWitt County claimed that the "Chisholm Trail" was named for Glenn Thornton Chisholm because he set the path on the first trail drive. Glenn Thornton Chisholm was accidentally killed by a freight wagon that rolled over him when a breast chain broke while he was going up a steep hill. He was buried by the wagon trail near Burnet, Texas, in March.

Mary Ann "Annie" Chisholm married John Roebuck Kelso in DeWitt County on August 14, 1856. John Roebuck Kelso was the son of James Kelso and Rhoda Roebuck, daughter of John Roebuck – American Revolutionary soldier. John Roebuck Kelso's father was a brother of Alfred Kelso, Sr., who fought in the Battle of San Jacinto. Mary Ann (Chisholm) Kelso and her husband, John, had seven children – Winchester, Frank Hubert, Hardina, Rhoda, Fannie, Jessie, and John Clyde Kelso. Mary Ann (Chisholm) Kelso died about 1878. There is a possibility that John Clyde Kelso was the son of John Roebuck Kelso's second wife, Jane P. "Jennie" (Fore) Chisholm Kelso, Glenn Thornton Chisholm's widow and John Roebuck Kelso's sister-in-law.

CILFONE, CHARLES AND LOIS ALVARADO FAMILY

Charles Jacob Cilfone, Maclovia (Uresti) Alvarado and Barbara Jean (Iverson) Cilfone, 1987.

Lois Josephine Alvarado Cilfone was born in Cuero, Texas on August 5, 1927. Her parents are Jacob Alvarado and Maclovia Uresti whose story is written separately. Lois attended St. Michael's School and later graduated with honors from Cuero High School in May 1945. She studied piano with Miss Julia Fey, the organist at St. Michael's Church, and played at recitals for several years. Lois graduated from Draughon's Business College in San Antonio, Texas on June 19, 1946. She also took night courses at St. Mary's University for four years.

Lois became a legal secretary to San Antonio's former district attorney, John R. Shook. When the Korean War broke out in 1950, she became a civil service stenographer at Fort Sam Houston and later a medical secretary. Lois married Lieutenant Charles Joseph Cilfone on August 28, 1954, at St. Mary's Church in San Antonio.

Charles and Lois went to his next assignment at Tokyo International Airport. He made captain in 1955. They lived at United Nations Command Headquarters, Far East in downtown Tokyo near Emperior Hirohito's Imperial Palace, and drove past this beautiful setting daily on their way to work. Charles was commander of the postal squadron handling all mail coming into and out of the Far East and Lois was secretary to the Staff Judge Advocate. After three years, he was transferred to Washington, D.C.

They lived in Scottsdale, Arizona where their son, Charles Jacob was born on August 4, 1958. They moved to San Antonio and Catherine Marie was born in September 15, 1959; Patricia Lucia on May 16, 1962; and Lois Annette on August 28, 1963. Charles was promoted to Major in the U.S. Air Force Reserves in 1962.

In the 1960s Lois worked at the Lackland Air Force Hospital, Kelly Air Force Base and was secretary to the president of Our Lady of the Lake College. In the 1970s Lois served as secretary and president of the Catholic Committee on Girl Scouting for the Archdiocese of San Antonio. On May 31, 1978, Lois was commissioned a Yellow Rose of Texas by Governor Dolph Briscoe.

Charles Joseph Cilfone was born in Chicago, Illinois on January 6, 1920. His parents are Nicole Cilfone of Campobasso and Lucia Savastio of San Marco la Catola, both mountain villages near the city of Foggia near the Adriatic coast of Italy. Charles graduated from McKinley High School in Chicago in May 1937. His three brothers and 4 sisters also graduated from this school. He attended Loyola University in Chicago, St. Mary's University in San Antonio and St. Sofia University in Tokyo.

Charles was drafted for World War II in 1942, became a cadet and later a navigator-bombardier. While stationed near London, he participated in missions over Holland, France and Belgium. He was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal, Presidential Citation, Purple Heart and several oak leaf clusters.

While in his 20s, Charlie travelled throughout the United States selling chemicals and cleaning compounds to the institutional trade. In 1958, he became a self-employed real estate broker and an official of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) in 1964 until his retirement in January 1980. He was awarded an Honorary Doctor of Law at the University of Texas at San Antonio, the year of its creation in 1969.

Their son, Charles Jacob graduated from the University of Texas in Austin in May 1981, is a petroleum engineer, a licensed private pilot and a May 1989 graduate of St. Mary's University School of Law. He is now an associate in the law firm of Adams and Graham in Harlingen. He married Barbara Jean Iverson of Fargo, North Dakota on May 2, 1987, at St. Mary's Church in San Antonio, Texas. "B.J." received her degree in Interior Design from the University of North Dakota and works for an oil and gas company.

Their daughter, Catherine Marie received her business degree in Finance and Marketing from St. Mary's University graduating Cum Laude in May 1983. She is now Director of Student Activities and Special Events at Incarnate College where her husband, Gerald Thomas McCarthy, is vice-president at the college. Gerald, of New York, received his bachelor and masters degrees from Michigan State University. They were married on October 1, 1983 at the St. Mary's University Chapel.

Patricia Lucia graduated Cum Laude from Texas Tech University in May 1985 with a degree in History. She is now a second year law student at the University of Texas in Austin on a full academic scholarship.

Lois Annette (Sita) graduated from the School of Business at the University of Texas in Austin also in May 1985. She manages a 200 unit apartment complex in Austin, Texas.

Charles and Lois Cilfone have travelled in the United States, Mexico, the Orient and Europe, and have lived at 134 Postwood Drive in northwest San Antonio, Texas for 30 years.

CKODRE (DORECK) FAMILY

Early County Settlers

Joseph Lawrence Ckodre and his wife Malinda Ann Tolbert Ckodre were representative of the hardy stock of people who populated DeWitt County. A look at them and their forebears can tell us why. Joseph was born February 5, 1877 most probably in Galveston. At a very early age he already had a reputation for working with horses. At the age of fourteen he was out looking for work to support himself. He travelled to the Butler Ranch in Karnes County to ask for work, whereupon the patriarch of that infamous family told him to get off his property, as he was only a child and not man enough to do ranch work. He went on to the Davy area of DeWitt County where he went to work for the Weldon Ranch. By about age twenty he was the foreman of the Weldon and Lackey ranches!

Joseph L. Ckodre's father was Charles L. Doreck, who emigrated from Germany after his first wife died. Doreck left behind one daughter who was a Catholic nun there, and brought with him the four sons, Lawrence, Frank, Emil, and Herbert Doreck. Not much is known of these children. However, Charles L. married Minnie Hoffman when she was eighteen years old. She too had come from a town in Germany with her aunt and uncle, the Gerdes family, coming into this country through Indianola. To their union here in Texas, seven children were born: Dr. Mary Wilson (a pediatrician), Ed Doreck, Joseph Doreck-Ckodre, Lottie Bowman (a teacher), Josephine, married to a Captain McKee, Annie Machlovsky (sp), and Gertrude LaVander. Some years after the last child was born in the Galveston area, Mrs. Doreck made the decision to leave her husband, probably for self-preservation. Giving the children their choice of parent and name to remain with, she had her name officially changed to Ckodre, a rearrangement of the letters in Doreck. It was said she had a lawyer do this in Matagorda County, but no actual court record is shown there. Perhaps it was done somehow in Galveston County. Two children also had their name changed -Joseph and little Gertrude. Minnie (now Minnie Hoffman Ckodre) had no intention of being found by Charles. She divorced and left the area. She eventually came to what is known as the Victoria Prairie to put more distance between herself and Charles. Later when her son was working on the Weldon Ranch, she moved there and opened a little store.

This family was among the thousands hit by the terrible hurricane of 1900 at Galveston. The former Lottie Doreck (sister of J.L. Ckodre) and her child plus the two children of Dr. Mary Wilson and her husband were all drowned.

J.L. Ckodre began buying his own land in an area west of Yorktown and moved there in his early thirties, his mother coming with him and opening another store on this property. About a year later he married Malinda Tolbert at the Weldon Ranch. She was the daughter of Henry Steward Tolbert and Martha Ann Ryan Tolbert, being born in Fayette County on April 7, 1887. The children of Henry and Martha Tolbert in probable order were Eugene, J.T. "Tom" (a twin), Ida Doreck, E.V. "Ed," Lola Shows, Mary Jane Tolbert (unmarried), Malinda Ckodre, and Wesley plus three who died in infancy, including the other twin. Martha Ann was the daughter of Joe and Louise Ryan about whom nothing more is known at this time. Henry Steward Tolbert was the son of Levi Tolbert and wife who came from Tennessee. Levi and Henry were early freighters in Texas and later farmers. Henry was also a cattle drover on the Chisholm Trail. The family also had a cotton gin near Yoakum.

After this background, let's go back to the focal point of this bit of history - Joseph and Malinda Ckodre who married on January 18,1910 on the Weldon Ranch. Since the other child who received the Ckodre name was a girl and had no children, all the Ckodres in the world are descended from this couple. Joseph felt tremendous pressures from land purchases and illness in the family, becoming ill himself. After only ten years of marriage he died tragically. Malinda carried on in true pioneer fashion by herself through real hardships. Her mother-in-law, Minnie H. Ckodre, had already moved to Houston and opened yet another store. With the children, especially the oldest ones, working very hard too, the family managed to cling together and came through with fine character.

Joseph's and Malinda's children are Minnie (first married to Stayton Johnson and after his death to Emmitt Wishert), Joseph Edward "Ed" (married to Frances Pawlik), Emil (married to Mozelle "Pat" Clifton Patterson), Weldon "Doc" (married to Viola Sickenius), twins Ruth (married to Ben Dupnick) and Rubie (married to Emil Krauskopk). Ed settled very near the home place where some of his family still lives. He and Doc are deceased. Doc and his family lived in Karnes County. Emil and his wife still live on part of the original land. Minnie, widowed, lives in Runge; Ruby, also widowed lives in Beeville; and Ruth and Ben Dupnick and their family live in San Antonio. All the grandchildren and even most of the couple's great-grandchildren remain in Texas, so this is another one of those "only in Texas" stories. The grandchildren are Calvin Johnson and Travis Johnson (both deceased), David Wishert, Lawrence Ckodre, Kathleen Parks, Robert Ckodre, Gary Ckodre, Jo-An Weddle, Donald Ckodre, Joyce Ann Janssen, Erwin Ckodre, Ronnie Ckodre (deceased), Patricia Wood, Rebecca Turnage, and Marilyn League.

CLAYTON, JOHN H. AND MARY ANN (CRAWFORD)

F150

John H. Clayton was born January 5, 1811, in Tennessee. His wife, Mary Ann "Polly" Crawford, was born July 19, 1817, in Lincoln County, Tennessee. They were married in 1835 and came to Texas from Lebanon, Tennessee, in 1847, with four children: Nancy Elizabeth "Lizzie," Mary Jane, Margarete A., and Joseph M. They settled on Cuero Creek, 2½ miles from Edgar. Children born in Texas were Sarah Ann, Robert Daniel, John Henry, and Alice Mathilda.

John H. Clayton died August 9, 1884, aged 73, and was buried in the Clayton Cemetery between Concrete and Edgar. Mary Ann died June 1, 1891, aged 73, and was also buried in the Clayton Cemetery.

Mary Jane (1840-1864) married William P. Priestly August 15, 1861. William was the son of James and Eliza Ann (Ragsdale) Priestly. He served as a Private in the Confederate Forces, enlisting in DeWitt County. They had a daughter Mary Lee born June 9, 1862. Mary Jane died in 1864. On June 18, 1865, Nancy Elizabeth "Lizzie" Clayton (1836-1902) married her brother-in-law, William Priestly, after the death of her sister Mary Jane. She became "Ma" to Mary Lee. They lost two babies in infancy. On May 23, 1873, Bonnie Ada was born in Concrete. "Ma" Lizzie Priestly lost her husband, William, in 1873 before Bonnie Ada was born. She then raised the girls with the help of the Clayton family. Mary Lee married Thomas Jackson Kennedy. Their story is given separately. Bonnie Ada married Cyrus Warren Richmond. Their story is given separately. Lizzie Clayton Priestly died February 5, 1902, in Yoakum.

Margarete A. (1842-?) married Tom E. Bailey. Joseph M. (1843-1871) had one son Joe Ferrell Clayton who married Inez Woolsey. They both died in 1931. They had one daughter, Mildred, who married William Saye. They had no children. In 1873, Sarah Ann (1849-1929) married William "Billy" Pincham (1849-1933). They had no children. Robert Daniel (1850-1927) married May Gross. They had two sons Robert and Oscar. In 1880, John Henry (1853-1927) married Emma Hill. They had two children, Henry and Mary. Alice Mathilda (1855-?) married William M. Davis. They had two sons and one daughter. Olin D. "Bud" Davis was born in 1881 and died in 1971. Their daughter, Maude (1887-1975), married William Hatcher. They had no children.

The John H. Clayton family and later the sons Robert and John were farmer/ranchers in the Edgar area. Most of the family eventually moved into Yoakum.

John bought land tracts east of the Guadalupe River and on the Cuero Creek in 1848 and 1850. There he lived until his death August 9, 1884. Polly died June 1, 1891. They are buried in Clayton Cemetery near Concrete.

Polly was born July 19, 1817 in Lincoln County, Tennessee to Elizabeth Norris and John Crawford. Elizabeth was born June 9, 1788 in Lincoln County. He was a large land owner and one of the first to settle in that area. John Crawford was born in Augusta County, Virginia on March 27, 1775 to Rachel Sawyers and William Crawford. During the Revolutionary War, William manufactured and supplied arms to Continental soldiers. John married his first wife, Margaret Buchanan, August 9, 1798 in Davidson County Tennessee. They had nine children. Margaret died March 24, 1816 and is buried in Crawford Cemetery near Howell, Tennessee. John had moved to Lincoln County before 1814 and about six months after his wife died, he married Elizabeth Norris on October 10, 1816. To this union were born nine children as follows: Mary Ann (Polly) b. July 19, 1817, d. June 1, 1891, m. John H. Clayton 1835; John b. November 9, 1818, d. 1856, m. Allen Parker February 19, 1850; Jane Columbus b. December 10, 1829, d. August 1, 1840; Martha Lucinda b. January 17, 1833, d. 1912, m. Elijah Parker August 23, 1851.

John Crawford died September 17, 1847 and is buried in Crawford Cemetery by his home on Clayton Road near Howell, Tennessee. His home is still standing and being used. After his death, Elizabeth went to Texas where some of her children had previously moved. She died August 15, 1862 in DeWitt County, Texas and is buried in Clayton Cemetery between Edgar and Concrete. There are still Crawfords living in DeWitt County and many more rest in the Hochheim Cemetery. All these Crawfords descent from the William who raised his family in Augusta County, Virginia.

COHN, JAKE FAMILY

Mollie (Tudzin) and Jake Cohn

Jake Cohn was born in Racionz, Poland, near Warsaw, September 15, 1896. His parents were Mendel and Rebecca Kane. There were three sons, Solomon, Jake and Sam, and two daughters Mania Romianek and Bella Pshigoda.

During the early 1900's stories of the United States told of a land of freedom and opportunity; immigration was encouraged and Jake dreamed of owning his own business and land, something that could never happen in Poland. Jake and a friend, Max Newman, made plans to immigrate to the United States. For $50.00 they could secure passage to Galveston and then proceed to a town where a sponsor could be found. They came to the U.S. on the steamer Chemnitz, after 30 days at sea, entering through the port of Galveston in August 1913. In Galveston, Jake and his friend were separated and Jake was sent to San Antonio. He was a young man of 18, unable to speak English, with no family or friends in a new country. At the port of entry at Galveston, authorities translated his name as Jake Cohn - from Jacob Kane - and so it stayed.

In San Antonio he found a job working in a clothing store. He could speak Polish, German and Yiddish and learned Spanish early, but English was very difficult. He was aggressive, saved his money, and soon decided to go into business for himself. He bought his own horse and buggy and peddled fruits and vegetables, gradually adding more wares and expanding his territory.

In San Antonio Jake met Mollie Tudzin and they were married June 18, 1916 in San Antonio. To this union three daughters were born; Annie born March 17, 1917 in San Antonio; Sarah Feb. 29, 1920, and Bernice Sept. 14, 1930, both in Cuero, Texas.

Mollie Tudzin was born in Russia November 17, 1898. Her parents were Nisan and Esther Tudzin. They had three daughters, Nehama, Dora and Mollie and three sons, Leon, Max and Ben. Mollie came to the U.S. with her two brothers, Leon and Ben, coming through the Port of Galveston in 1914. They went to San Antonio because they had a sister and brotherin-law, Nehama and Ansel Sachnowitz, living there. Mollie kept house for her two brothers, worked as a seamstress by day and went to school at night. Education was very important to Mollie as it was not available to girls in Russia. Through the guidance, encouragement and tutoring of a wonderful teacher, Mollie learned quickly and finished eight grades of school in one year.

In 1918 Jake and Mollie and their infant daughter Annie moved to Cuero. Jake went into business with his brother-in-law Ben Tudzin; however, they dissolved their partnership and each went into business for himself. Jake opened a family clothing and shoe store on West Main Street in the Louis Gohment building. At that time the main San Antonio highway ran through West Main St. and the train station was nearby. Ben opened a dry goods store on East Main. Mollie worked in the store with her husband and the children grew along with the store. During the early years, store hours were very long, from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m., and during cotton season, usually longer. In 1934 Jake moved his business "Uptown" to its present location at 101 W. Main and changed the name of the business to "The Fair". Maurice and Sarah Cohn Aronstein joined The Fair in Nov. 1946. They had two children, Marian born Oct. 5, 1946 in Houston, and Robert born Jan. 12, 1950 in Cuero. Harry and Annie Cohn Jacobs joined the business in Sept., 1951 with their daughter Josephine born May 12, 1942, in Houston. Bernice Cohn married Larry Mazer in San Antonio in 1952. They have three children, Suzanne, Jun 25, 1956, Marc L., Nov. 23, 1953 and Sally, Jan. 18, 1967. Bernice and Larry live in San Antonio.

In later yearss Cohn became interested in land and bought his first acreage in 1940. He also later built rent property. He raised cattle which he enjoyed more as a hobby than a business. He was deeply involved in the community. Cohn was selected Soil Conservation Businessman-Farmer of the year in 1960. He received various plaques from such organizations as The Future Farmers, 4-H Clubs, Veterans of Foreign Wars and The American Legion. In 1977 he established the Jake Cohn Scholarship Fund at Cuero High School for Ag students who demonstrated an interest in farming. He was a member of the Cuero Masonic Lodge and Alzafar Shrine Temple of San Antonio.

Jake Cohn died September 6, 1981 in Cuero, Texas after a short and sudden illness. He is buried in Agudas Achim Cemetery in San Antonio. He was a kind and gentle man, well liked by his customers and friends. He was proud of his good name.

COLLINS, JAMES P.

Eliza G. Ainsworth Collins

The family of James P. Collins and his first wife, Eliza G. Ainsworth Collins, arrived in De Witt County in 1851. As a resident of De Witt County, James P. Collins was a farmer, slave owner, Mason, sheriff and justice of the peace. The family remained in De Witt County about ten years.

Born in 1816 in Wayne County, Mississippi, James P. Collins was a son of Christopher Collins and Rachel Hendricks. About 1837 he married Eliza G. Ainsworth who was born 11 February 1809 in Mississippi Territory probably in the area which later became Washington County, Alabama. It is not known who her parents were.

On 24 October 1838 James P. Collins arrived in the Republic of Texas in the company of Asbury Sebastian Ainsworth and Jeptha Patterson Ainsworth who are believed to have been his brothers-in-law. The Collins and Ainsworth families settled in Liberty County where James P. Collins and the Ainsworths were each granted 640 acres on the west bank of the Trinity River. This area became a part of Polk County when it was established in 1846 and is presently located in San Jacinto County which was created from Polk County in 1870. The family resided in or near the town of Swartwout.

James P. Collins was elected justice of the peace in Polk County and was among the first group of men to hold office as such as his name appears on page one of the Polk County Commissioner's Court Records dated 7 September 1846. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge at Cold Spring (now Coldspring, San Jacinto County). In 1851 Mr. Collins resigned his position of justice of the peace and moved his family to De Witt County.

The following year James P. Collins was elected to the position of Sheriff of De Witt County and held that office from 1852 to 1854. He later served as a justice of the peace in De Witt County. Collins owned lands on the Five Mile Coletto Creek, the Twelve Mile Coletto Creek and in the towns of Yorktown and Clinton. While a resident of De Witt County, James P. Collins was a member of the Coletto Masonic Lodge (No. 124) in Yorktown. The 1860 Slave Schedule of De Witt County indicates that he owned ten slaves.

The Asbury Sebastian Ainsworth and Jeptha Patterson Ainsworth families also migrated to De Witt County from Polk County, Texas. Asbury later moved to Ellis County, Texas. Asbury's wife was Rachel Collins, relation to James P. Collins not known. Jeptha's wife was Louisa Collins, relation to James P. Collins not known. Rachel and Louisa were probably cousins of James P. Collins.

In about 1861 the Collins family moved to Gonzales County and settled in the Leesburg (now Leesville) area. Eliza G. Ainsworth Collins, wife of James P. Collins, died on 3 June 1863. She was buried in Antioch Cemetery near Leesville.

On 1 October 1863 James P. Collins married his second wife, Mrs. Mary H. Talley Campbell in Gonzales County.

James P. Collins was a resident of Gonzales County for about eighteen years. He was elected justice of the peace in Gonzales County. James P. Collins died on 23 December 1879. The location of his grave is unknown. It is believed that he died in Goliad County while visiting his daughter, Carrie Eliza Collins Porter.

Five known children were born to James P. Collins by his first wife, Eliza G. Ainsworth. They were (1) Eli L. Collins born 31 December 1839 in Liberty County, Republic of Texas, married (1st) Anastatia (Annie) Brown in 1859 and (2nd) Elizabeth A. Brooks on 8 November 1885 in De Witt County, died 18 November 1915 in Garza County, Texas; (2) Asbury Sebastian Collins born circa 1840 in Liberty County, married Allene —, died 15 August 1908 in Mills County, Texas; (3) William Greenberry (or Greenhill) Collins born circa 1843 in Liberty County, married (1st) name not known (2nd)

Emily Josephine Ables, died 4 September 1908 in Sweetwater, Nolan County, Texas; (4) John Franklin (Frank) Collins, born 11 December 1845 in Liberty County, married Marietta Burris on 30 October 1879 in Goliad County, Texas, died 28 June 1918 at Louise, Wharton County, Texas; (5) Carrie Eliza Collins, born 3 August 1849 in Polk County, Texas, married William S. Porter, son of Dr. Starks P. Porter and Martha A.R. Griffin, on 17 December 1874 in Gonzales County, Texas, died 28 March 1914 in San Antonio, Texas, buried in Oakwood Cemetery, Austin, Texas.

Known children of James P. Collins by his second wife, Mary H. Talley Campbell were (1) Dugall Collins born circa 1864 in Gonzales County, accidentally killed by his half brother William Campbell who was playing with a gun; (2) Lanny D. Collins born circa 1867 in Gonzales County, no further information; (3) Lucinda (Lou) D. Collins born August 1867 (probably a twin of Lanny D.), married John N. McCamey in 1883 in Gonzales County; (4) Clements (or Clemons) Eugene Collins, born 28 August 1870 in Gonzales County, married Nancy (Nannie) Teressa Wright 13 August 1891 in Gonzales County, died 8 December 1939 in Frio County, Texas, buried in Dilley Cemetery, Dilley, Texas; (5) Amza Mae Collins born circa 1876 in Gonzales County, married McGuffin.

Mary H. Talley Campbell Collins, widow of James P. Collins married (3rd) Amos H. Maddox on 24 November 1886 in Gonzales County.

The Collins family exemplifies the pioneer American family of the nineteenth century. Migrating west to seek a better life, they found a rich land full of many opportunities, adventures, hardships and blessings. These people built a rich heritage that today provides us with a quality of life unexcelled in history.

COLLUMS, G. B., SR. FAMILY

Martha Ann (Mattie) Ford was born March 30, 1886, in Houlka, Mississippi. Her parents were J.J. Ford and Martha Jane Wade Ford. She had three brothers and five sisters. As a young lady she taught school at Pitts, Mississippi, and it was there that she met the young man who was to become her husband and father of her eight children. He was Green Berry (G.B.) Collums, born October 16, 1882 at Pitts, Mississippi to Kurg Collums and Josie Knox Collums, their only son. He had three sisters. Their mother died when he was a small child and he and his sisters grew up in the homes of relatives. After teaching for one year, Mattie and Berry were married April 5, 1907. Their first child, Jocie Lee, was born at Pittsboro, Mississippi, March 20, 1908, and their first son, Jim Kurg (J.K.) was born August 9, 1909.

In 1910 Berry and Mattie bade farewell to their loved ones and with their two small children moved to Texas. They settled in Runge in Karnes County and lived and worked on the Leckie farm. Another girl, Ruth, was born January 30, 1911, soon after their arrival in Texas, and another son, Woodrow Wilson (Woodie) was born October 31, 1912. Another daughter, Martha Elizabeth, was born April 6, 1914

In 1915 Berry and Mattie Collums, with their five small children, moved from Runge to the Cabeza Community in Dewitt County. They farmed rented land owned by the Weatherlys, and later moved to the farm owned by the Manz family, about one hundred acres. Here they planted and harvested cotton and grain and watermelons. They furnished their own stock and farm implements. They raised lots of turkeys which they sold at the market; raised chickens and hogs for their own use. At hog killing time they processed their own meat and kept the smokehouse well stocked with hams and sausage and the like. Vegetables from their garden were always in good supply when in season.

Another daughter, Lois, was born August 10, 1916, and another boy, G.B., Jr. was born April 4, 1919. After a brief illness he died on October 25, 1919 at age six months. Another son, Roy, was born November 28, 1920. He was to be the last child born to this union. As the children became of age they went to school at Cabeza, walking the distance of about two miles. Cabeza school only went through the eighth grade, and when they finished there Jocie Lee and Jim Kurg went by horse and buggy to Nordheim High School, accompanied by Joe Butler, the son of old time settlers in Cabeza, John C. and Mary Jane Butler. Theirs was the only home with a telephone for miles around. Years spent in the Cabeza Community were happy times. We had a windmill that pumped cool fresh water and a rainwater cistern, but no inside plumbing in our small five-room home with a front porch.

Berry Collums served as a trustee on the School Board and they took pride in getting good teachers for our school. Mattie and the other mothers organized and participated in the PTA and did their part to see that their children had good schooling. Our school participated in the annual County Meets and won honors in some of the events. We had basketball teams that competed with schools in adjoining counties. When the school bell rang we lined up in front of our three-room schoolhouse and pledged allegiance to the flag of the United States of America before marching in to our respective schoolrooms. School plays and programs put on by the teachers and students were very special events.

Summer was a happy time too when school was out. After chopping cotton time was over and before the cotton was ready to be picked, we had our vacation. Community and family barbecues and picnics were favorite summer events, and so were homemade ice cream gatherings. Summer revivals were held at the two-story churchhouse and when it was over the converts were baptized in Butler Creek, a favorite swimming hole for the community.

We bought a brand new Ford automobile in 1918, one of the first in Cabeza, a thrilling experience never to be forgotten. But those happy times were soon ended when in the spring of 1924 Berry Collums was stricken and died of measles and pneumonia May 7, 1924, at age 41. He was buried beside his infant son, G.B., Jr., in the Runge cemetery. Eventually Mattie Collums and her children moved from the Cabeza community, going first to Runge where Jocie Lee and Jim Kurg graduated from high school. From there the family moved to Kenedy, and finally to San Antonio in 1928 where the rest of the children finished their schooling.

Jocie Lee became a school teacher and taught for several years. Later she married

Clinton H. Baermann and they had three children, two girls and a boy. Jocie Lee died July 17, 1985. Jim Kurg served in the U.S. Army and had attained the rank of Lieutenant Colonel when he retired. He married Helen Billings of Arkansas City, Kansas, and they had one child, a daughter. Jim Kurg died November 16, 1981, after being stricken with Alzheimer disease, and his daughter preceded him in death. Ruth did secretarial work. She married Franklin Stewart but that marriage ended in divorce, and she later married Boyd C. Crocker who died March 28, 1980. They had no children. Woodrow whose main occupation was in the laundry business, married Glennie Meyer of Leming and they had three children, two girls and a boy. While returning from Houston in 1936 Woodrow lost his left arm when a truck sideswiped him on the highway near Edna. Martha Elizabeth did secretarial work. She married Edgar H. Trick but that marriage ended in divorce. She then married Johny Wherry, a serviceman in the U.S. Marines who was killed during the invasion of Iwo Jima in WW II. She later married Earl R. Andersen, a Marine Captain, and they had three children, two girls and a boy. Elizabeth died June 23, 1988, and her husband preceded her in death. Lois married James G. Walker, of Greenville and they had one son. Her husband died August 24, 1985, and was preceded in death by their son, Dr. Ken Walker of Dallas. Roy was stricken with encephalitis at an early age and he died October 13, 1951, at age 31.

On October 26, 1939, Mattie Collums married John C. Butler, a family friend of the Cabeza community, who had five grown living children, William, Irene, Nona Lee, Joe, and Sylvester. Mattie Butler died December 21, 1972. Her husband preceded her in death July 30, 1950, and none of his children are living at the time of this writing.

COMNAS FAMILY

Sotirios Comnas was born in Spetsai, Greece, a truly beautiful island off the eastern coast of the Argolis penisular in the Peliponnese, in 1847. He emigrated to Pensacola, Florida, where he was engaged in fishing, in 1898. In 1908 Sotirios sent for his younger brother, Basilios Comnas, to join him. The two brothers worked as fishermen along the many fishing centers in the Gulf of Mexico from Biloxi, Mississippi, to Gulfport, New Orleans, Galveston, Port Lavaca, Seadrift, Palacious, Aransas Pass, and Rockport. They finally went inland to Cuero to start up two restaurants and a candy kitchen in 1911.

Sotirios, being the older brother, sent to Greece for a bride and Aspasia Matthews came over from Spetsai and the marriage was performed in Galveston, with a Greek Orthodox ceremony.

Sotirios and Aspasia Comnas had two children, George and Peter, both born in Cuero in 1913 and 1914 respectively.

They owned and operated the Cuero Restaurant and Candy Kitchen at 102 West Main Street, which was the busiest part of Cuero in those years. Breeden Bros, Sciba's Bakery, Bohne's Meat Market, Nami's General Store were all next door neighbors.

The ice cream and candies, all made from natural ingredients (before the advent of the large creameries into the food business and the subsequent artificializing of these delightful food items), were of such high quality that folks would drive their surreys from miles around to indulge in this European custom of great candies and soda fountain delicacies.

The younger brother, Basilios (nicknamed Billy), born in 1878, started a small restaurant near the packing house and cold storage plant close to the Southern Pacific Depot.

Constantine (Gus) Booth also came to Cuero from Sparta, Greece, and entered into a partnership with Sotirios and Basilios Comnas. His relative, Jo Ann Booth of Houston and Corpus, later married George Comnas.

Charalambos (Harry) Intgis and Speros Economides also came to Cuero in the 1920's and started the Elite Cafe on Esplanade street (later to be sold to the Burts and Ben Farmer and renamed the American Cafe).

Peter Stoilis and Harry Batmanis of Smyna, Anatole, Turkey also joined this group and prospered in Cuero. Peter raised a large family after marrying Anatasia Papapavlos Marians of Vancouver, B.C., Canada.

Michael Papapavlos (shortened to Pappas) also came to Cuero in 1916 from Kiparissi, Malaous, Greece, a small and delightful village on the eastern Peloponnesian coast just above Monovasia.

Monovasia is a small walled city on an island which was never conquered by the Turks during the Ottoman occupation of Greece from 1453 to 1821. In fact, the walled village of Monovasia has some rather ancient ruins in prehistoric caves dating back 35,000 years.

Michael Papapavlos's sister, Aspasia, had married Demetrios Antoniou in 1911 in Vancouver, B.C., Canada and gave birth to two boys, George and Peter, born in 1913 and 1914 respectively, in Vancouver, B.D.

During the catastrophic epidemic of viral influenza that swept the known world in 1918 with reportedly more than 50 million deaths, Demetrios Antoniou and his cousin, Speros Antoniou both succumbed to this flu and were buried within 48 hours of each other in Vancouver.

In January, 1922, the widow, Aspasia (Papapavlos) Antoniou and her two sons came to Eagle Pass and a marriage ceremony was performed, joining her to Basilios Comnas, brother of Sotirios, of Cuero, Texas.

The two young boys were advised after the marriage ceremony that their new name was to be Comnas and the next day they were taken to the John C. French grammar school on Broadway, in Cuero and enrolled.

Some of their early teachers, Mrs. Marion Bass, Miss Singler (later became Mrs. Ruess), Ms. Sutherland and that famous of all teachers and principals, Ms. Nora Fudge made an enormous impression on the young boys who came to Cuero with a decidedly English and Scottish accent acquired in the Canadian schools.

Shortly after the young Canadians came to Cuero, the family of Sotirios and Aspasia Comnas decided to return to Greece and they left in 1924. The natural result was that a large number of Cuero residents confused the two sets of Comnas boys, both named George and Peter, both born in 1913 and 1914, both of whom had mothers with the same Christian name of Aspasia, and regarded them as one and the same.

In the mid-1920's, after the major depression of agricultural and commercial economies, all of the Greek families left Cuero, Texas and moved to Houston, to Victoria, and to Corpus Christi, with the exception of Basilios and Aspasia Comnas and their two boys, George and Peter.

George and Peter both graduated from the Cuero school systems and went to Texas A.&M. University, classes 1935 and 1939 respectively; George as a Chemical Engineer and Peter in Business Administration majoring in Accounting.

Both George and Peter Comnas worked for Humble Oil and Refining Co. in Baytown, Texas until the advent of World War II. George served with the ASPPA after a stint in Venezuela and Peter was in the Artillery attached to the 1st Cavalry in the Southwest Pacific Theater. After the war, he served in the Army of Occupation in Japan and in the Korean War, before being reassigned to the War College, and to Cornell University as Commandant.

George married Jo Ann Booth after World War II in Corpus Christi and moved to New York City, where he continued to be employed with the Standard Oil Co. (in J.J.), later known as Exxon Corp. until his retirement. They have three children, Basilios (Basil), Demetrie, and Aspasia — all married with four grandchildren.

Peter Comnas married Margaret Elkins of El Paso, Texas and remained in the regular Army after World War II until his untimely demise in 1964 from a protracted bout with Cancer.

Basilios and Aspasia Comnas passed on in 1961 and 1966 and are interred in Baytown, Texas.

CONRAD, JAMES A. AND MARGARET S.

Jim and Margaret Conrad moved to Cuero in April of 1961. They made their first home with Margaret's mother on River Road, then rented the Atkinson house at the end of Stockdale Street and in 1965 moved into their new home at 1204 Moss Lane where they presently live.

Jim and Margaret (Sager) Conrad

Craig, Richard and Pat Conrad

Susan, Zachary and Michael Conrad

Melissa, Ryan and John Greenfield

They joined St. Mark's Lutheran Church shortly after moving to Cuero and still attend services there.

James August Conrad was born in Houston, Texas, July 14, 1928, the third child of Frank and Minnie Prinzel Conrad. Shortly thereafter the family moved to Bryan, Texas. Both the Prinzel family and the Conrad family lived in the Bryan and Kurten area. Jim's early social development was influenced by a family with a great love for music, dancing, fun and laughter. Due to his father's death when Jim was only eleven, he spent a great deal of time with his cousins in the nearby community of Kurten. He attended public schools in Bryan and after graduating from high school he attended Allen Academy, served in the Merchant Marines and graduated from Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College, as it was known then. He held the usual after school and summertime jobs, including everything from service station attendant to ladies' shoe salesman. It was during this time he severed the fingers from his left hand while working for a lumber yard in San Angelo, Texas. Upon completion of college Jim went to work for American General Insurance Company in Houston, Texas, in the Production Department.

Margaret Estell Conrad was born at the family home in DeWitt County, Texas, the fifth child of John C. and Estella Hans Sager. Social activities for the Sagers included Saturday night get-togethers with friends, Sunday afternoons on the river and family dinners. Margaret attended grammar school at Green DeWitt School and completed Cuero High School in 1951. She then attended Texas College of Arts and Industries in Kingsville for two semesters but elected to become self-supporting rather than complete her education. At that time she was employed by American General Insurance Company in Victoria, Texas in the Claim Department.

In 1953 Jim was transferred by American General to their Victoria office. Thus Jim and Margaret met, fell in love and were married on September 18, 1954, at Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville, Texas. During their early marriage Margaret continued working, first for American General and then for Wells, Eppright Claim Service until the birth of their first child, James Craig, March 29, 1956. Their second child, Michael Keith, was born August 18, 1957. During this time Jim was active in the Victoria Jaycees, Victoria Rosebud Booster Club and refereed high school football and basketball. Margaret's time was filled with caring for their two young sons, Jaycee-Ettes, Primrose Garden Club and serving as "executive secretary" during Jim's Jaycee Presidency.

The Conrads remained in Victoria until the latter part of 1959 when Jim was transferred to Houston. Not being happy with city life and wanting to fulfill a dream, they began looking for an agency to purchase. In April of 1961 they became the proud but broke owners of the Woodworth & Dent Insurance Agency in Cuero. Along with a new business and a new community came a new child, Melissa Ann, born July 1, 1961.

A growing family and a growing business kept both of them busy; however, for Jim there was still time for Chamber of Commerce, Lion's Club, Little League and School Carnivals. Jim was instrumental in starting the tradition of Powder Puff Football in Cuero. Probably his biggest community effort was serving as cochairman of the 1972 Cuero Centennial. Margaret spent her extra time with the Cub Scouts, Brownies, Garden Club and supporting the children's school activities. Being a flower arranger by avocation, Margaret has done flowers and decorations for many parties and weddings in Cuero.

All three children are now married. Craig married Patricia Hogue August 22, 1981, and they have one son, Richard Craig, born September 20, 1982. Michael married Susan Eberspacher August 23, 1986. They have one son, Zachary Cole, born September 19, 1988. Melissa married John Andre' Greenfield July 1, 1982 and they also have one son, Ryan Andre', born October 30, 1987.

Jim and Margaret share the hobby of fishing and spend as much time as possible at their Port O'Connor waterfront home. Jim's other hobbies include hunting, playing dominoes and watching all sports, while Margaret enjoys flowers, antiques and anything to do with Christmas.

It should be noted that although Jim's legal name is James, he is known to friends and business associates only as Jim. Margaret is known as Maggie to her childhood friends and acquaintances — a name given to her when she was born by her two-year-old sister who could not pronounce Margaret.

COOPER, SYLVESTER AND HARRIET

Sylvester Cooper, 1830-1883

Prior to the War Between the States, Sylvester Cooper and Amy Harriet Marshall married, had six children, and farmed cotton on their land in Chickasaw County, Mississippi.

On February 24, 1863, Sylvester Cooper enlisted in the Seventeenth Infantry Regiment, Mississippi Volunteers, Confederate

Cooper Family: Sylvester "Curley," Amy, Effie, Addie, Lee, Earl, Marshall, and Harriet, about 1910.

Harriet (Marshall) Cooper, 1835-1934

States of America. In General Robert E. Lee's Army of Northern Virginia, the Seventeenth Mississippi was commended for valor in the midst of the most important battles of the Civil War. Sylvester fought with the Seventeenth in the battles of Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Chickamauga, The Wilderness, Spotsylvania, Cold Harbor, Petersburg, and Cedar Creek (Belle Grove). On October 19, 1864 at Cedar Creek, he was wounded and captured, probably the result of Union General George E. Custer's cavalry charge. Sylvester's right leg was then amputated on the battlefield. Hospitalized and imprisoned in Baltimore, Maryland, he was restored to health by a Spanish speaking nurse and released June 12, 1865.

Traveling mule back in the care of a black friend, Sylvester returned to his home and family in Mississippi. Overcoming the younger children's initial fear (they hid under the bed) of this peg-legged "stranger," Sylvester and Harriet restored the close family ties that remain today a strong tradition among their many descendants.

Soon thereafter (1865) Sylvester, Harriet, and their children, Molly, Cornelius, Billy, Hellen, Roxanne, and Texanne, loaded their ox-drawn wagon. Abandoning their land in war ravaged Mississippi, they set out for Texas. When they reached the Mississippi River, logs were tied alongside the wagon and the swimming oxen provided the river crossing power. Midway, one ox became entangled and was about to drown, when Cornelius dove into the river and used his knife to cut the ox free. Migrating with them were other families who stopped and settled at different points in Texas.

This Scots-Irish family settled in DeWitt County, Texas, where they homesteaded land and joined Hebron Baptist Church. Their seventh and last child, Marshall, was born in 1872. Sylvester supplemented their corn and cotton crop income by hauling farm products until his death in 1883. Over fifty years later, when Harriet died at age 98, she had had exactly 200 descendants: 7 children, 38 grand-children, 109 great-grandchildren, and 46 great-great-grandchildren. Sylvester and Harriet are buried in Hebron Cemetery.

The ancestors of Sylvester and Harriet Cooper were of Scots-Irish origin. With only one exception, their parents were born in North Carolina. Sylvester and Harriet were born in Alabama, their children were born in Missispip, and their grandchildren were born in Texas. This movement fits closely the historical agrarian migration across the South during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries.

Sylvester Cooper was born September 2, 1830, Jefferson County, Alabama and died May 15, 1883, DeWitt County, Texas. He was the son of Cader and Sarah Cooper. Cader Cooper died September 22, 1842 in the "forty sixth year of his life," and Sarah was born April 9, 1799 and died October 18, 1864.

Amy Harriet Marshall was born December 27, 1835 in Birmingham, Alabama and died November 1, 1934 at Houston, Texas. She was the daughter of William and Nancy Marshall. The 1850 United States Census for Chickasaw County, Mississippi shows Harriet (age 14), her parents: William (42) and Nancy (44), her siblings: John (19), Joseph F. (16), Elizabeth (12), Frances (8), and William S. (6). This census records North Carolina as the birthplace of Harriet, her parents and her older brothers and Alabama as the birthplace of her younger siblings. However, Harriet's birthplace is shown as Alabama in the 1880 census for DeWitt County and in her obituary. Molly Cooper was born November 1, 1853 in Chickasaw County, Mississippi and died February 27, 1870 in DeWitt County during childbirth. She was married to Josh Bishop.

Roxanne Cooper was born in 1861 in Chickasaw County, Mississippi and died January 4, 1870, DeWitt County, Texas.

COPPEDGE, DR. OLIVER DEWITT

F165

Dr. Oliver DeWitt and Mary Stevens Coppedge

Dr. Oliver DeWitt Coppedge (1835-1906) was born in a rural community of North Carolina called Cedar Rock. It was near Raleigh. He was the eldest of six children born to William D. Coppedge (1805-1890), known locally as Squire Coppedge, and Henrietta Drake Coppedge (1812-1890).

The original American Coppedges came from southern England in colonial times. They dispersed very early throughout the southern states and, by now, are probably nationwide. The maternal grandfather, William Drake, was a Virginian and a soldier in the Revolutionary War.

Dr. O.D. Coppedge was educated in Wake Forest College, and in 1854 began the study of medicine, being graduated two years later from the University of Pennsylvania. He returned to North Carolina and began his practice but after about six months, he decided to move to Texas. He settled in the community of Concrete, about ten miles from the present town of Cuero.

In 1859 he married Miss Mary Stevens (1842-1902), the daughter of Joseph Stevens (1810-1861) and Sarah Ann Steen Stevens (1820-1860), and the granddaughter of Elisha Stevens (1776-1851). All of them, in company with a number of Steen kin, had migrated from Rankin County, Miss. to DeWitt County in Texas in 1846.

In 1861 Dr. Coppedge went to Gonzales and joined Smith's Company, Wall's Legion, C.S.A. Before the force could leave the state, he was taken seriously ill and had to leave the service. He sent a substitute — a Negro — in his place. Upon his recovery about a year later, he joined the state troops, where he served as Lieutenant till the war was over.

After that, Dr. Coppedge practiced his profession very little. He tended minor wounds and pulled a few teeth. His few medical ministrations were usually for the needy.

He became very interested in farming and stock breeding. To quote from The Record of the Southwest 1894, "His estate comprised about one thousand acres of which 350 are under cultivation, and he has devoted much attention to raising a good grade stock, being one of the first to introduce graded Jersey cattle in this section and it has raised many fine animals."

In addition to crops and cattle, he was interested in fruits. He always had an orchard. His daughter, in a scrapbook, commented on his love of nature, especially trees. There is a family story that once he ordered a hillside of oak trees cleared, and, upon observing the erosion thereafter, he sent his Negroes, who worked on the place, with buckets of acorns to the hillside to replant it.

Oliver and Mary Stevens Coppedge bore four children: They were:

I. William Elisha Coppedge (1869-1946) m. Callie Nelms (1880-1952). Their children were:

1. Mitchie Earl Coppedge (1892-) 2. Daisy Coppedge (1899-1978) m. Joe Cunningham (1899-1965) 3. Olive J. Coppedge (1903-1984) m. Martin Bailey (1900-1930) m. Jack O'Neill (dec.) 4. Mary Will Coppedge (1907-) m. Claudie Lee Steen (dec.) 5. James Finley Coppedge (1908-) m. Ruby Lee Crawford (dec. 1963) 6. William Arthur Coppedge (1911 d. age one) 7. Woodrow W. Coppedge (1912-) m. Bessie Lanik (dec. 1952) 8. Joy Coppedge (1915-) m. Arthur Boothe Steen (1910-1969).

II. Mitchie Coppedge (1871-1951) m. Claude North Blackwell (1870-1905) Their children were: 1. Mary Will Blackwell (1891-1977) m. Arthur Charles Fischer (1887-1956) 2. John Luther Blackwell (1892-1982) 3. Claude North Blackwell, Jr. (1894-1931) 4. Oliver Coppedge Blackwell (Sept. – Dec. 1896) 5. Sally Blackwell (1898-1900) 6. Ettie Coppedge Blackwell (1900-) m. Mary Meurer (1906-1980) 8. Raleigh White Blackwell (1905-) m. Velma Norvell (1908-1948) m. Audrey Barfield Kleinecke (1913-1985).

III. Ettie Coppedge (1873-1968) m. Dr. Finley Blackwell (1874-1934). Their children were: 1. Merle Blackwell (1900-) m. Earl Davis (dec.) 2. Finley Blackwell (1914-) m. Courine Barnet (1914-1982) 3. Claude North Blackwell (1914-) m. Dorothy Frels (1917-).

IV. John Lawrence Coppedge (1882-1951) m. Myrtle Stubbs (1895-1980). Their children were: 1. Finley Lawrence Coppedge (1913-) m. Mary Lou Dromgoole (1910-1983) m. Angeline Ummelman Kleinecke (1915-). 2. Raleigh (Coot) Coppedge (1917-) m. Olive Cherry (1918-) 3. Ralph (Dick) Coppedge (1917-) m. Lillian Kennedy (1919-) 4. Mitchie Ann Coppedge (1919-) m. Stanley Wallace (1918-1981) 5. John Oliver Coppedge (1927-) m. May Lou Cobb (1929-).

CRAIN, JAMES KERR F166

Distinguished Texan

James Kerr Crain, son of William Henry and Angeline Genevieve Mitchell Crain, was born on a plantation near Hallettsville, Lavaca County, Texas, the second of fraternal twins, on August 28, 1879. He died on July 29, 1972. The almost 93 years between were filled with adventure, achievements and honors.

Childhood years were spent in Cuero, Texas and Washington, where his father was a member of the U.S. House of Representatives. He attended Professor Nash's School in Cuero and St. Edward's College in Austin. In February

Major General James Kerr Crain, ca. 1945.

1896 when he was sixteen years old his father died in Washington, and he graduated that June from St. Edward's as a Master of Accounts.

For the next three years he clerked in the law firm of Kleberg and Grimes, whose senior partner his father had been at the time of his death, and subsequently with the Proctor brothers in Victoria, until he received an appointment to the U.S. Military Academy in 1900.

Upon graduating in 1904 he was commissioned a 2nd Lieutenant in the Coast Artillery Corps; there followed tours of duty at Fort Moultrie, Fort Monroe, Corregidor Island in Manila Bay and Fort Monroe again in 1910. There he met Catharine Mary Nicholls, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Andrew B.C. Nicholls of Tuscaloosa, Alabama, whom he married in 1912.

Shortly after he arrived at Fort Barrancas at the entrance to Pensacola Bay, he was ordered to flood relief west of the Mississippi, which in flood had broken the levee on its western side. His headquarters was a Louisiana State Fish and Game cabin cruiser, lent to the Army. He was fascinated by the insular life of the Cajuns whom he worked with and rescued, and found them likeable and admirable.

In 1914, he and his wife were at Fort Screven off the coast of Savannah, Georgia, where their daughter, Mary Genevieve was born on March 22. In June 1915 he graduated with honors from the Coast Artillery School at Fort Monroe and remained there until 1917, when he was assigned to the office of the Chief of Coast Artillery in Washington. There he ran into Douglas MacArthur, who was organizing the 42d Division, and not wishing to sit out the war in the States, he asked his old friend for help. MacArthur selected him to be Division Ordnance Officer. He sailed for France with the advance part in September. He took part in the great battles in 1918 that turned the tide for the Allies: the Second Battle of the Marne (Champagne-Marne Defensive), Aisne-Marne Offensive, St. Mihiel Offensive and Meuse-Argonne Offensive. He was successively Chief Ordnance Officer of the First Army Corps and the Second Army during this period, necessarily improvising procedures for the supply and maintenance of arms for the troops. For this he was awarded a Distinguished Service Medal, cited for "exceptional ability" in a "work of great magnitude" showing "initiative, sound judgment, resourcefulness and devotion to

After the Armistice he was named Ordnance Officer of the Third Army and proceeded to Coblenz on the Rhine River in May 1919; when the Third Army was demobilized he was named Ordnance Officer, American Forces in Germany. Here he was joined by his wife and daughter, and in 1921 they returned to the States, where a second daughter, Catharine Barry, was born on April 11, 1922.

For three years he was Chief of the Ammunition Division of the Ordnance Department and in 1925 entered the Army War College, graduating in 1926. He was appointed commanding officer of Picatinny Arsenal and rebuilt the plant, which had been almost totally destroyed shortly before his expected arrival by a massive explosion in the adjoining Navy depot.

In 1930 he went to the office of the Assistant Secretary of War to oversee the procurement practices of the War Department Bureaus and attempt to improve their efficiency. In 1934 he was ordered to Fort Sam Houston, Texas, as 8th Corps Area Ordnance Officer.

In 1939, with war clouds gathering in Europe, he was ordered back to Washington and became Chief of Field Service, Ordnance Department. He devoted his energies to planning and carrying out the structure for the supply and maintenance of arms in the light of his experiences in World War I. For this "material contribution... to the Army of the United States" he was awarded a Legion of Merit.

In 1942 he took command of the San Antonio Arsenal, planning to retire there at the end of war. This plan was aborted ten days after his arrival there by a request from General Brehon Somervell, Chief of Services of Supply of the Army, to accept assignment in London, as Assistant Military Attache and American Executive of the London Munitions Assignment Board, representing the Joint U.S. Chiefs of Staff. He remained there until the war was ending in 1945.

For his "meritorious and distinguished service in the discharge of great responsibilities" he was given a second Distinguished Service Medal by the American Government. The British conferred on him knighthood in the Order of Companion of the Bath, citing his "astuteness, judgment, personality and integrity" in rendering "outstanding services to the Allied Cause."

After retiring from the Army as a Major General in 1945, he was again called on to serve, in 1946 and 1947, as Acting Chairman of the Arms Policy Committee of the Department of State. The Secretary of State, Dean Acheson, remarked in this connection, "General Crain is a wise old bird."

His last years were spent in Montgomery County, Maryland, just outside Washington, with his wife and daughter, Mary Genevieve, a retired Foreign Service Officer and Consul. He studied the habits of wild birds, grew beautiful roses, and enjoyed the company of his daughter, Catharine Barry, her husband Colonel George Edward Glober, an Air Force bomber pilot, and their four wonderful children: George Edward, Jr., Catharine Barry, Mary Louise and James Kerr Crain Glober.

He is buried at the National Cemetery at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, with his wife.

He was one of the six children of Congressman William Henry Crain and Angeline Genevieve Mitchell Crain. He married Beryl Rathbone, one of the three children of Dr. William Robert Rathbone and Jessie Wofford Rathbone on July 9, 1913, in the Rathbone home which still stands (1989) at the corner of Reuss Boulevard and North Terrell Street in Cuero. Dr. Rathbone was a dentist that came to Cuero from Tennessee and practiced dentistry with Dr. Louis J. Kleinecke. Jessie Wofford Rathbone was the oldest of twelve children of John T. and Josephine Wofford, an old pioneer family of DeWitt County, Texas.

Beryl Rathbone Crain was born in Cuero August 20, 1893, and died there October 9, 1978. She attended The University of Texas. She had one sister, Lucy Rathbone, who never married but became an esteemed professor and head of the Home Economics School at The University of Texas. She co-authored "Fabrics and Dress", a textbook widely used in Texas high schools for many years. She had a brother, Wofford Robert Rathbone, who was in the insurance business and a Major in the United States Army in World War II. Beryl Rathbone Crain was active in many organizations in Cuero including the Music Lovers Club and garden clubs, and was co-chairman during World War II of the Red Cross organization that folded and shipped surgical dressings as a part of the county war effort.

To the marriage of Newton Mitchell Crain and Beryl Rathbone Crain were born three children, Newton Mitchell Crain, Jr., William Rathbone Crain and James Kerr Crain, II.

Newton Mitchell Crain, Jr. wed Rose Cyrene Paulus of Yoakum and they had four children, Newton Mitchell Crain, III, Paula Cyrene Crain, Henry Paulus Crain and Larry Wayne Crain. He practiced law in Houston for many years, dying January 23, 1983, at 69 years of age. He had eleven grandchildren, Newton Mitchell Crain, IV, and Katherine Crain, children of Newton, III; James Clark, III, Corey Clark, Andrew Clark, Kimberly Clark and Ashley Clark, children of Paula Cyrene Crain Clark: Austin Crain and Autumn Crain, children of Henry Paulus Crain; Lee Crain and Liz Crain, children of Larry Wayne Crain.

William Rathbone Crain wed Mary Louise Fischer, the daughter of Werner Fischer and Ettie Blackwell Fischer of Cuero. They had six children, William Rathbone Crain, Jr., Robert Mitchell Crain, David Crain, Marietta Crain Nicholas, Stephen Kerr Crain and Jonathan Blackwell Crain. He served as a bombadier in the United States Air Force during World War II and as a petroleum landman in Houston until his death October 16, 1983, at age of sixty

James Kerr Crain, II, married Shirley Ruth Stanchos of Yorktown. They had three children, James Kerr Crain, III, Patrick George Crain and Christopher Mitchell Crain. He was named for his uncle, Major General James Kerr Crain who has been named for Major James Kerr. Major Kerr was the great, great grandfather of James Kerry Crain, II, and the surveyor with the Green DeWitt colony that settled the DeWitt and Gonzales County areas in about 1825-30. Major Kerr laid out the plan for the original townsite of Gonzales. Kerr County and the City of Kerrville are named for him. James Kerr Crain, II, has practiced law in Cuero since 1953, originally in the firm of Crain and Crain with his father and later with Frank B. Sheppard in the firm of Crain and Sheppard.

Newton Mitchell Crain lived his early childhood in Washington, D.C., while his father served as Representative in Congress from the Southern District of Texas. At age of twelve years when his father died of pneumonia he returned to Cuero with his mother and younger sister Mary. Older brothers, Frank Harrington Crain, twins William Henry Crain, Jr. and James Kerr Crain, and sister Angeline Genevieve (Viva) Crain, though all not yet adults, had remained in Cuero in homes of friends and relatives during later years of Congressman Crain's terms in Washington due to the considerable expense of maintaining a family there on congressman's salary. Frank Harrington Crain was mayor of Cuero at about the age of 21 years and a lawyer for many years in Victoria. He was the father of District Judge Frank H. Crain, Jr. William Henry Crain, Jr. was a lawyer and rancher in Victoria, having married Margaret McFaddin. Angeline Genevieve Crain married Fletcher Schleicher, a lawyer in Cuero for many years.

Newton Mitchell Crain finished high school in Cuero and after teaching himself typing and shorthand became employed as a stenographer in the law office of Stockdale and Proctor in Cuero in order to earn enough money to go to college. He attended The University of Texas and studied law there. He practiced law in DeWitt County from about 1909 until his death. His office was in the building formerly known as the H. Runge and Company building at the corner of Main and Gonzales Streets in Cuero. Crain later became owner of this corner building in 1939, receiving it as a fee for having worked as attorney for about five years in settling the affairs of the H. Runge and Company Bank that was forced to close during the depression years of the 1930's. Crain served as president of Rotary Club, Grand Knight of the Cuero Council of Knights of Columbus during its first year of existence, County Attorney of DeWitt County during World War I, and in many other offices. For many years his law practice was in partnership with August C. Hartman, under the name of Crain and Hartman; later with son James K. Crain under name of Crain and Crain; then with Frank B. Sheppard under name of Crain, Crain and Sheppard.

CRAIN, NEWTON MITCHELL, JR.

In Cuero, Texas on April 10, 1914, Newton was born to Beryl Rathbone Crain and Newton Mitchell Crain. He was their first born son. He spent a happy, normal childhood growing up on Courthouse Street with his parents and two younger brothers.

Newton graduated from Cuero High School at the young age of fifteen. Upon graduation, he entered Saint Edward's University in Austin, Texas. During his summers at home, he worked for Runge Company. This company was a cotton company. Before graduating on May 6, 1932, he met Rose Cyrene Paulus from Yoakum, Texas. After graduation from Saint Edward's, Newton entered the University of Texas Law School where he received his Bachelor of Law Degree. He worked in his father's law firm, Crain and Sheppard, in Cuero, Texas for one month.

On July 26, 1937, Newton moved to Houston, Texas. He had received an appointment to the United States Attorney's Office for the Southern District of Texas. At that time, he was the youngest man ever appointed to this office. For many years, he tried cases in Brownsville, Galveston, Laredo and Victoria, Texas. During his second year, he tried the first marijuana case ever tried in the United States.

After many years of courtship, Newton married Rose Cyrene Paulus on July 31, 1937 in Houston, Texas. On April 4, 1940, they were blessed with the birth of their firstborn child. He was a son whom they named Newton Mitchell Crain III. They were blessed again on November 17, 1942 with the birth of their only daughter whom they named Paula Cyrene Crain.

In July of 1943, with World War II going on, Newton applied for Officer's Candidate School in the United States Navy. He became an Ensign and was ordered to report on January 3, 1944 to Quonset Point, Rhode Island. During his training, he became a Naval Combat Intelligence Officer. After six months, he was ordered to Norfolk, Virginia to await further orders. His orders from Norfolk took him to the island of Bermuda where he was attached to an Air Combat Squadron. After nine months in Bermuda, he returned to Norfolk and worked with other squadrons. In June of 1945, Newton was ordered to San Diego, California. In San Diego, he taught at Air Combat Intelligence School. At the end of November, his orders came to report to Guam. These orders were then cancelled by the United States Government because they felt he was needed more in the United States Attorney's Office in Houston, Texas. The family of four arrived home in December for Christmas.

In 1949, Newton joined the law firm of Blades, Kennerly, Fisher and Whitworth. On March 27, 1950 this happy couple were blessed with the arrival of their second son, Henry Paulus Crain. On March 21, 1951 another blessed event came with the arrival of Larry Wayne Crain. They now had four fine children.

In 1957, the law firm became known as Blades, Crain, Slator and Winters. The firm became known as Crain and Winters in 1963 and later in 1976 became known as Crain, Caton, James and Womble.

In 1962, a farm was purchased by Rose Cyrene and Newton. It is located between Fayetteville, Texas and Warrenton, Texas. In 1971, they built a beautiful home overlooking their lake to replace the old farm house. Many happy weekends and wonderful times were spent there.

Newton Mitchell Crain III married Kendella Joe Baker on June 12, 1965. Their daughter, Katherine Kendella Crain, was born on April 6, 1969. Their son, Newton Mitchell Crain IV. was born on January 12, 1971.

Paula Cyrene Crain married James David Clark II on August 22, 1964. They have five children. James David Clark III, known as Trey, was born on July 27, 1966. Andrew Mitchell Clark was born on April 16, 1968. They were blessed with the arrival of their third son, Corey Crain Clark, on July 23, 1971. On December 22, 1979, Kimberly Cyrene Clark arrived and Ashley Ann Clark arrived on October 22, 1981 much to the delight of this family.

Henry Paulus Crain married Jennifer Lee Cates on November 20, 1971. Their daughter, Autumn Michelle Crain, was born on August 28, 1976. Their son, Austin Paulus Crain, was born March 11, 1980.

Larry Wayne Crain married Vivien Lea Muckley on July 29, 1972. Larry Wayne Crain Jr., known as Lee, was born on September 29, 1979. Elizabeth Ann Crain was born on July 26, 1981.

At the end of 1980, Newton Mitchell Crain Jr. decided to retire after a very long and successful career. His law firm gave him a wonderful party and presented him with a very special plaque and a new truck to enjoy at the farm.

Newton was a member of the Houston Bar Association, the American Bar Association, the Texas State Bar Association and the Texas Association of Defense Council.

Newton Mitchell Crain Jr. died on January 23, 1983, of cancer. He was a well known, successful and admired attorney but even more so, he was beloved by all as a very special man. One of his most appreciated attributes that was treasured by all that knew him was his great dry humor and wit. He held honesty, integrity and courage as life's highest values and this was his greatest bequest to all whom he loved so dearly. This outstanding husband, father and friend will live forever in the hearts of all who knew and loved him so very much.

William Henry Crain, Jr., along with his fraternal twin brother, was born in Hallettsville, Lavaca County, Texas on August 28, 1879. His parents were William Henry and Angeline Mitchell Crain. William Henry and his twin brother had two brothers and sisters. Their father was the first native-born Texan to be elected to serve as the U.S. Representative of the Congressional District from 1884 to 1896.

William Henry Crain, Jr., attended the University of Texas and was admitted to the bar in 1903. He worked in several law firms and was a partner in Crain and Linebaugh. On November 23, 1909, L.T. Linebaugh introduced William Henry at the opening of the U.S. Court where he made a formal application to be admitted to practice in the District and Circuit Courts of the U.S. for the Southern District of Texas. William Henry was granted a license in both courts.

William Henry Crain married Margaret James McFaddin on November 12, 1907. They had five children; Alada, Margaret Virginia, Eileen, William Henry and Emily.

In 1910, William Henry was elected to the first Victoria County School Board and served as president. Crain Intermediate School was named in his honor and that of his brother, Frank H. Crain. He was a Four-Minute Manduring the Liberty Bond drives for World War I

William Henry retired from law in 1917 and went to work for his brother-in-law, A.M. McFaddin as the assistant manager of the J.A. McFaddin Estate business. He was on the board of directors of the Victoria National Bank, now the First Victoria National Bank, from 1917 through 1919. He also served on the board of directors of the McFaddin Mercantile Company. Al McFaddin retired in 1925, selling his cattle to William Henry and his nephew, Claude K. McCan. At this time, W.H. and C.K. became co-managers of the J.A. McFaddin Estate.

William Henry became a Texas native grass specialist. He strove to maintain natural grasses for the benefits of the land as well as the cattle. He and C.K. McCan helped to form the Calhoun-Victoria Soil Conservation District. William Henry also assisted C.K. McCan in starting the Victoria breed of cattle. He was the one to deal with oil and gas companies for leases on the ranch. His format for such leases were used by many other lawyers. It was through his efforts that Highway 77 was mapped out and established.

William Henry was known affectionately as "Uncle Henry" by many in the family as well as outsiders. He gave money and gifts to anyone he knew needed them and never asked for anything in return or any money back. His wife preceded him in death on September 8, 1929. He died on November 1, 1962 in Victoria, Texas.

CRAIN, WILLIAM HENRY AND ANGELINE GENEVIEVE MITCHELL

William Henry Crain

The first of the Craines to arrive in the American Colonies was Jasper Crane, one of the original settlers of the New Haven Colony, June 4, 1639. Jasper was a surveyor, a merchant, and a leader in the settlement. He was chosen and appointed a magistrate in 1658 and held the office until 1663. When the New Haven Colony was united with the Connecticut Colony, Jasper became dissatisfied and he, his sons and their families moved to Newark where he help responsible positions of public trust including the offices of magistrate and deputy or burgess for the General Assembly of New Jersey.

Nearly two hundred years later in 1834, Phebe Nicholson Crain, the widow of William Crain, and two of her children, Susan Moore Crain and William Davis Crain, immigrated to Texas and joined the Power and Hewitson Colony in Refugio. (William Crain had changed the spelling of his name from Crane because of a dispute with his father.) Phebe's reasons for joining the Power and Hewitson Colony have been lost but it is probable that she joined the colony in order to claim lands under the colonization law of the State of Coahuila and Texas and it is possible that she taught school in the colony. She was given a one acre lot in the town of Refugio on August 26, 1834, Susan was given a one acre lot on August 30, 1834, and Phebe, as the head of family, was granted a league of land on Aransas Creek on November 29, 1834. William Davis did not receive any land as he was only 15 years old. He was born on April 10, 1819 in Trenton, New Jersey.

William Davis Crain and Emily Matilda Blake were married in Matagorda on August 21, 1844. Emily Blake had also been brought to Texas by her widowed mother, Mary Ann Blake, in 1838 when she was 13 years old. She was born in New York City on January 10, 1825.

William Davis and Emily Crain moved to Galveston and their son William Henry Crain was born there on November 25, 1848. William Davis died in 1854 and was buried in Lot 38, Range 3, Ave. 4 Old City Cemetery in Galveston. William Henry was only six years old and his brother, Charles Davis, was two.

The following year William Henry was sent to New York to be reared by an uncle of his mother's, Peter Francis Harrington. He received his secondary education at the Christian Brothers school and was graduated valedictorian of his class at St. Francis Xavier's College. William Henry returned to Texas and after working on a cattle ranch for a short time he taught school and began reading law in the offices of Stockdale and Proctor in Indianola. He was admitted to the bar in 1871 and at the age of 26 years he was elected District Attorney of the Twenty-third Judicial District of Texas which then comprised the southern part of Texas. He held this office from 1872 to 1876.

It was in Indianola that he met Angeline Genevieve Mitchell, the daughter of Captain Isaac Newton Mitchell and Mary Margaret Kerr, and granddaughter of Major James Kerr. Angeline Mitchell was born at Oakland Plantation near Hallettsville on January 3rd, 1845. She was five years old when her Grandfather Kerr died December 23, 1850 and only eight years old when her father died March 19, 1853. Isaac Newton Mitchell was born in Abbeville District, SC February 11, 1809. He was only 44 years old when he died but he had been a successful planter and rancher since his arrival in Texas in 1838 and his children were tutored at home during their early year. Later Angeline was sent to a convent in Galveston and then to the Ursuline Convent in New Orleans where all of her studies were in French. She was in the convent in New Orleans when the Civil War broke out and was unable to return home. It was not until February 1864 that Archbishop John Mary Odin of New Orleans, who had been a frequent guest at the Mitchell home on Point Comfort when he was Bishop of Texas, was able to arrange safe transportation for her trip back to Texas.

William Henry Crain and Angeline Genevieve Mitchell were married in Indianola on July 9, 1873. It was in Indianola that their first son, Francis Harrington, was born on August 16, 1874. The first great hurricane which devastated Indianola on September 16, 1875 destroyed the Crains' home and the family escaped with only the clothes on their backs. They moved to Victoria and on September 15, 1786 their daughter, Angeline Genevieve, was born. Her father gave her the nickname "Viva" because she was such a lively child, a sobriquet which she used all her life.

In 1876 William Henry Crain was elected to the State Senate to represent the seventh district. Before his term had expired the family moved to Oakland Plantation near Hallettsville and since he no longer lived in the district from which he had been elected he resigned his seat. Oakland Plantation was the first property which Isaac Newton Mitchell had purchased when he came to Texas and Mrs. Crain had received this property as her share of her father's estate. It was here that the Crain's twins, William Henry and James Kerr, were twins, William Henry and James Kerr, were born on August 28, 1879. Mr. Crain formed a partnership with Col. S.C. Patton in Hallettsville which lasted some four years until the family moved to their new home in Cuero in 1880.

In Cuero Mr. Crain formed a law partnership with Mr. Rudolph Kleberg which lasted until his death. It was in the family's home in Cuero that their fourth son, Newton Mitchell Crain, was born on December 26, 1883.

In 1884 Mr. Crain was elected to the House of Representatives of the National Congress from the Seventh Congressional District of Texas and was reelected five times. He was the first native born Texan to occupy a seat in the Congress of the United States. His family lived in Washington, DC during the first two of his terms and it was here that their daughter, Mary Matilda, was born on January 19, 1887.

William Henry Crain died in Washington, DC on February 10, 1896, at forty seven years of age. The burial services in Cuero were presided over by Bishop Forrest of San Antonio. Mrs. Crain lived for more than twenty-eight years after her husband's death. She died in Victoria at the home of her eldest son, Frank, November 12, 1924 and was buried in the Hillside Cemetery in Cuero beside her husband.

DEATS & MILLIGAN,

CRAWFORD, CHARLES L. AND MARY M.

Ca. 1951, Charles Crawford

Charles Lemuel Crawford and wife Mary M. "Mollie" Kuykendall, both were born and raised in DeWitt County though on different sides of the Guadalupe River. Charles, known as Charlie was born April 10, 1884 near Hochheim. He died November 5, 1968. Mollie was born August 30, 1886 near Hillside, and died November 8, 1937. They were married August 20, 1905 in Cuero. They had the following three children: 1) Ada N. Crawford Allert, born April 1, 1907 and died March 30, 1956. She was a school teacher and worked in Gonzales County school superintendent's office. 2) Henry Edward Crawford, who lives near Hochheim on part of the James A. Crawford estate and has four children: Henry Edward Jr., James Jacob, Elviria M. Crawford Shimek and Charles Lawrence, who died in an accident in 1972. 3) Loraine Crawford Wingo who lives in Abilene, Texas and has two children: Patricia R. Wingo Nail and Michael J. Wingo II.

Charlie was a farmer and rancher in DeWitt and Gonzales Counties until his death. Charlie was probably one of the first to raise paint horses in the area, having shipped in a black and white paint stallion with a carload of mules, when he owned a mule farm in Shiner in the 1920's.

Ada, Loraine and Henry Edward rode paint horses and carried the U.S.A. and Texas Flags in parades in the local area at various times when they were growing up. Charlie always kept good saddle horses. He loaned B. Neighbors, a boyhood friend, one of his saddle horses to ride when he was campaigning and elected Sheriff of Gonzales County. Charlie, served as constable in the southeastern part of Gonzales County, where he and Mollie lived for many years. There were not many fences in the area when he was growing up. He and his brother, Hodge Crawford, trapped and caught some of the last wild mustangs in the area and Charlie kept the mustang blood line as long as he raised horses. Charlie served as school trustee for Steen School for ten years when G.E. Bradley was Gonzales County school superintendent. He built the first Negro school in the area on his land. There all the elementary grades were taught to about fifteen pupils.

Mollie and Charlie were active members of the Hochheim Presbyterian Church, where Mollie taught Sunday School as long as her health permitted. They are both buried in the Hochheim Cemetery, land given by Charlie's grandmother, Rachel S. Crawford. Charlie attended school in Hochheim, in the same building now used by the Hochheim Masonic Lodge. He was the seventh child of Thomas Edward and Mary Jane Skaggs Crawford (see T.E. Crawford).

Mollie was the oldest child of Henry M. and Caroline "Callie" Davis Kuykendall and the gr. granddaughter of George W. and Caroline Pease Davis (see G.W. Davis). She was born and raised on her great, great grandfather, Daniel Davis's, sito or league of land, granted to him under the Colonization Law of Coahuila and Texas. She lived on the west side of the Guadalupe River near what was known as "fiddler's bend", where the Davis family had community gathering, camp revivals, fish fries and "fiddle playing". Her paternal grandfather, William M. Kuykendall, was killed in the War between the States in 1863.

Charlie and Mollie were devout Christians, hard working, good neighbors, loyal and respected citizens and kind and devoted parents.

CRAWFORD, JAMES A. AND RACHEL S.

James A. and Rachel S. Crawford monument, Hochheim Cemetery.

James A. and Rachel S. Crawford were early pioneer settlers in DeWitt County, Texas. James A. born November 17, 1800, Augusta County, VA, fourth child of Alexander and Rachel Lessley Crawford; died October 17, 1861, Mount Petrea, DeWitt Co., TX. Rachel S. Crawford born April 18, 1806, Davidson County, Tenn., fifth child of John and Margaret Buchanan Crawford; died August 10, 1879, Hochheim, DeWitt Co., TX. They were married in Lincoln Co., Tenn. in 1827 and had the following ten children: 1. John Alexander (1829-1916) m. Eliza Permelia Lockhart; 2. Archabold W. (1831) m. Amanda A. Burrous; 3. William Hay (1832-prior 1916) m. Permelia A.

Stayton; 4. James Leslie (1834-1912) m. Deliah T. Weeks, 2nd. Eliza. Elders; 5. Pleasant A. (1837-1921) m. Anna Singleton 2nd. Laura J. Granberry Carson; 6. Margaret M. (1839) m. John M.J. Helm; 7. Rachel Emma (1842-1931) m. John W. Moore 2nd. John Humphrey; 8. Isaac C. (1844-1918) m. Mrs. V. Volly Clayton; 9. Nancy J. (1846) m. Wm. A. Cook; 10. Thomas Edward (1849-1939) m. Mary Jane Skaggs 2nd. Annie Laurie Smith.

James A. was a devoted son, but being young and ambitious, in 1825, took his inheritance, which was according to his father, Alexander Crawford's will (proved in the May Court, 1830 of Augusta Co., VA) quote "To son, James, I have given property and money $3030.00 which is his full share. He has got slaves, Bob, Rachel, Scipio, Chapman, Grace and Sampson."

James A. went to Davidson-Lincoln County, Tenn. He bought land and prospered according to the 1830 and 1840 census records of that state. He married Rachel S. Crawford, a cousin, and they had a happy home and a devoted marriage in spite of the many hardships and separations during their early marriage.

James was well educated and adventurous. He came to Texas before 1832 as a surveyor for Stephen F. Austin's Coastal, No. 4, Colony, which was to establish a water route on the Colorado River to the Gulf of Mexico. He received his Coahuila-Texas Land Grant on November 13, 1832 in Williamson County, TX. He returned to Tenn. and did not bring his family to Texas to live until 1849. However, he made another trip to Texas in July, 1836 and served with Col. E. Burleson in the Ranging Corps for four months. He was issued a labor of land in the County of Bastrop, TX, January 24, 1838, signed by S.B. Patton and Josiah Wilbarger. James, Rachel and family spent some time in Arkansas enroute from Tenn. to Texas. However, they arrived at the Capitol in Austin. TX in the fall of 1849.

James purchased land from the Samuel McCoy's survey in DeWitt County, TX. James, Rachel and their ten children are listed in the DeWitt County, 1850 census records. Rachel and the younger children stayed in Gonzales and operated a rooming house until a house was built on their land, which is still lived in by a family descendant, Mrs. Ruth Howard Granberry.

James A. established a small town site or settlement on the Guadalupe River, which was named Mount Petrea (Sept. 1851-1868), where he and his sons owned and operated a saw mill, grist mill, molasses mill, etc. James bought more land and owned over sixteen hundred acres at the time of his death. The town of Hochheim founded August 17, 1870 and located between the Valentine Hoch "Stagecoach Relay" stop and the Mount Petrea town site.

The five oldest sons, John Alex., William H., Archabold W., James L. and Pleasant A. fought in various Regiments, Ranger's Corp and Cavalry Companies in the War Between the States (Civil War) 1861-1865. However, Rachel and the younger children with the help of their faithful negroes were able to keep the farm and their properties working successfully during the Civil War and all sons returned home.

Rachel S. was a devoted wife and mother, well educated and very knowledgeable for a woman of her time. She and her family were devout Cumberland Presbyterians and active and generous with their time and monies in the Hochheim Community. James A.'s untimely death on October 17, 1861 and burial in the Concrete Cemetery was deeply mourned.

James was a good husband, father and provider. Each child inherited two hundred acres of land or monies equivalent of the land value. Four of the sons, John Alex., James Leslie, Pleasant A. and Thomas Edward lived and raised their families on their land in DeWitt County, near Hochheim. Rachel S. and John Alex. gave land for the Hochheim Cemetery and School. (See Hochheim Cem. & School) Henry Edward Crawford, great grandson of James and Rachel, lives on part of this land today.

He had forty-three grandchildren, ninety-seven great grandchildren. He, both wives and eight children are buried in the Hochheim Cemetery, with his parents. (See James A. Crawford)

Thomas Edward, known by family and friends as Ed., grew up in the Mount Petrea settlement on the Guadalupe River with a great love and knowledge of cattle and horses. He received his education at Concrete Boys school, where he had room and board during the school term. However, after his father, James A.'s death in 1861 and his older brothers leaving for the War Between the States (Civil War), he returned home to help with the family chores. He and Sam (Sampson) a faithful Negro, would take a wagon load of cotton to the port of Indianola to sell. They would bore holes in the axle shaft of the wagon and hide the twenty dollar gold pieces there, as they had to travel through the Victoria Prairie (badland) where outlaws and renegades lived, who robbed and sometimes killed people passing through. Although Edward and Sam were stopped and searched several times, they were never harmed nor were their gold pieces found.

Edward made several cattle drives up the Chisholm Trail to Abilene, Kansas and the railroad. The last cattle drive he made, he got his leg broken when his horse stepped in a gopher hole, fell and broke his neck in a stampede. Ed. lay under his horse until the next morning when they found him. They set his broken leg using an apple crate for the splints. This trail drive was plagued by storms, flooded rivers and stampedes. When he finally got home, Mary Jane was not in the house but in the smokehouse curing meat. She did not recognize him with long hair, whiskers, thin and dirty, and almost shot him with the gun she carried, before he could convince her he was her husband. He always laughed and said that was the nearest he ever came to getting shot. Mary Jane was a courageous pioneer wife and mother.

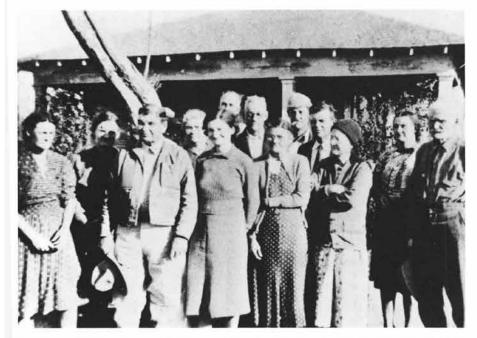

Ed always had a good horse to ride and enjoyed checking his cattle and pecan trees on his land on the Guadalupe River. He raised a big garden, had fruit trees, cattle, horses, sheep, cotton and pecans on his farm. He read the Yoakum Herald newspaper and kept up with the news. He would sit on his front porch and watch the airplanes flying over and remark "very few men have lived to see all the changes in transportation and the progress I have witnessed in my lifetime." He was a kind, devoted husband, father and grandfather, a staunch and devout Presbyterian, early pioneer, a good neighbor and an honorable and law abiding citizen. I am a granddaughter who spent many happy hours visiting with him. Henry Edward Crawford, a grandson, lives on the homeplace north of Hochheim.

CREATH, SARAH McSHERRY - HIBBINS - STINNETT - HOWARD F174

Sarah Creath, an oft-widowed pioneer woman, married her first husband, John McSherry, in Illinois in 1829. This beautiful young blond and her husband came to Texas, probably the following year. John built a log cabin facing Little Carlisle Creek, two hundred yards from a spring on Green DeWitt's League in southern DeWitt County. Miss Nellie Murphree locates their cabin on the west side of the Guadalupe and southeast of the Arthur Burns League.

Their son, James Lewis McSherry was born January 7, 1833. Later that year, John rose from the spring with a bucket of water, heard the Comanche yell, and was immediately killed and scalped. Inside the cabin, Sarah saw what happened, and barred the door and seized a gun, determined to save her son and herself, or die. The Indians finally left without attacking the cabin. That night, John McCrabb, stopped at the cabin to spend the night; but instead put Sarah and her baby on his horse and led them through by starlight upriver to the Andrew Lockhart's. Sarah lived with them until she married John Hibbins, an established colonist from the Concrete area. In 1835 she had another son, and late that year she took her two sons to Illinois to visit.

In January, 1836, Sarah and sons, and her unmarried brother, George Creath, came back by boat from New Orleans to Columbia-on-the-Brazos, where John Hibbins met them with an ox-cart. They were within ten miles of home and at their last camp when thirteen Comanches killed the two men and captured the mother and her two sons. The attack took place in an isolated area, so then Indians proceeded at a leisurely pace through the Peach Creek wooded area. At their second camp the Hibbins baby began crying with pain, and one warrior seized him and dashed his head against a tree.

That night a cold Norther came up at their camp in the Austin area. When the Indians were asleep in their buffalo robes, and knowing another day would take her too far from the settlements for help, Sarah tucked the buffalo robe around her son and escaped alone on foot.

The Revolutionary government had just commissioned the first Ranger company, and they were gathering at Hornsby's Station about ten miles below present Austin; and when Sarah came in, tattered and bleeding, they immediately pursued, and rescued little Joseph McSherry and routed the Indians. With the Hornsbys, Sarah and James were in the Runaway Scrape after the fall of the Alamo; and on the return trip after the victory at San Jacinto, while in Washington County with another sympathetic family, Sarah met a former neighbor, Claiborne Stinnett, who was issued one of the first four land titles in the DeWitt Colony in 1831. They were married in June, 1836, and returned to the Gonzales area to live. In the summer of 1838, Stinnett went to Linnville for supplies; and returning with a laden packhorse and with $700 in his pocket, he took a short cut across the prairie above Victoria. That evening he saw a campfire, and thinking it was hunters, he approached. It was two runaway Negroes on their way to Mexico; and they killed him and took his belongings. No one knew for five years what had happened, until Col. Andrew Neill, a prisoner in Mexico, met one of the Negroes who described the place so accurately that Stinnett's remains were found in 1842.

In the meantime, after two years, Sarah married Col. Philip Howard, also from the Guadalupe. In 1840 they moved to San Juan Mission below San Antonio. Seven young neighbors accompanied them to help with and protect the stock: Byrd Lockhart, Jr., a McGary boy, Jonah Powers and his brother, a young Grimes boy, and two others. They reached the Mission about noon, hobbled their horses and left seven-year-old James McSherry to watch them. Shortly Indians charged in among the horses, captured some, and Joseph barely escaped back to camp. After helping a few days, the young men started back to Gonzales.

After a heavy shower that wet their firearms had passed, they cleaned their guns and fired some shots. A party of about seventy Comanches, saying they were friendly Tonkawas, encircled them. The six men were killed and scalped and the thirteen-year-old Powers boy was taken captive. Two nights later he was able to slip quietly off his horse and escape.

The Howards were living in lower Goliad County on the San Antonio River in the spring of 1842 when their neighbors, the Gillilands were murdered by marauding Indians who stole horses, killed stock, and carried off William and Rebecca Gilliland as captives. A volunteer rescue party was able to recapture the children.

Soon the Howards moved to the Hallettsville area, and Sarah's life at last became peaceful. In 1848 her husband was county judge there. In 1876 Sarah died in Bosque County; and there Philip continued to live until past the age of eighty.

CROSSEN, GEORGE W.

And Wife

About 1850 George W. Crossen came down the Arkansas River, the Mississippi River, and landed at Indianola. He came by oxcart to a settlement where members of the J.M. Alexander family made their home, on the Abednego Biddy Survey.

In the year 1858, George Crossen established a store which served the area until after the Civil War. The community was named for him, Crossenville. There was a log cabin school that was replaced about 1880 with a frame building. In 1925 the school was consolidated with the Stratton school.

He thought it was such a wonderful place he sent for his sister, Mrs. Mary Jeffery, a widow with two children, a daughter, Mary Clay Jeffery (Parker) and a son, Marion. They are all buried in Alexander Cemetery.

Mr. Crossen was a great uncle to Mary Ann Benbow.

DAHME FAMILY

Of DeWitt County

At one time, there was a village in Germany called, Dahme. Although I've never been there, it is well recorded that the townspeople of Dahme were of pure, German stock. I assume some of my ancestors must have given the town its name, and it must have been quite small for there are few Dahmes, indeed. The book, "Indianola, The Mother of Western Texas", by B. Malsch, and the novel, "Texas", by Jas. Michener, document that the Dahmes who arrived in Texas via old Indianola are the parents of my father, August F. Dahme, and thus constitute the original and only Dahme Family of DeWitt County. I am proud of the name — the heritage of these stalwart forebearers and early Texans.

Fred Dahme

August, my father, was the son of Fred and Ida Dahme, who landed in Indianola when he was about 2 years old. They had two other children, Willie and Minnie, all now deceased. The 2nd and worst Indianola hurricane came in 1886, wiping out the Dahme business they had established after landing there. Thankful to be spared with their lives, Fred (my grandfather) and his family moved to Yorktown soon after that horrible storm and went into the lumber business with Willie Westhoff. My father was reared in Yorktown and graduated from high school in 1900. He then went to A&M College in College Station, Texas, where he received a degree in civil engineering in 1904. Afterwards, he took a position with the Illinois Central Railroad and moved to Chicago where he lived for some years in the Palmer House. As a chief civil engineer, he headed up a number of major projects for the ICRR, particularly the building of bridges, a number of which are still in use.

My mother, Freda Agnes (Nau) Dahme, was the granddaughter of August Burrow, who came from Germany to Yorktown via the East Coast. He purchased 2500 acres SE of Yorktown and settled down to ranching and raising a family of six daughters, one of whom was Agnes Frederica, my grandmother, and the oldest child of the family. She met one Moritz Nau, also of Yorktown, and they were married there. Later, they moved to Halletsville where my mother, Freda, and her brother, Oscar Car Bruno Nau, were born. (Through inheritance, I still own an interest in the old Burrow Ranch.)

Having a common origin, Germany, and being socially inclined, the Dahmes and the Naus were frequently together at community functions and gatherings. Obviously my father and mother met during some occasion when he came home from Chicago to be with his family and friends. Being 10 years older than Freda, tall, handsome and well known as a chief engineer for a leading railroad company, he was no doubt rather attractive to the young ladies in the community, but particularly to my young, beautiful mother, Fred Agnes Nau. The appeal was mutual and they were soon engaged, later married in Freda's home in Halletsville. Shortly thereafter, August left the railroad and moved with Freda to Yorktown, his old hometown, where he opened a Willys-Overland Automobile Agency. To this union, my sister and I were born, I on May 6, 1919, and Doris Lee on Feb. 6, 1921.

Things went well for my parents and the automobile business until the days of the Great Depression began, forcing August to close his agency. Due to his professional training, he was ideal for the job of DeWitt County Surveyor, a position he held throughout those lean and mean years. My father possessed a remarkable memory, almost photographic, and during his years as county surveyor, he seemed to almost memorize the metes and bounds description of every tract of land he surveyed or had reason to study. In time, such a blessed talent would serve him well. Soon after the depression, he opened an Oil & Gas Properties Brokerage company in town and set about buying and selling oil and gas leases, nonparticipating royalties and assembling large blocks of leases for major oil companies interested in exploring the oil prospects of DeWitt and adjoining counties.

By this time, my sister and I had graduated from Yorktown high school and were attending college - A&I in Kingsville. Although my father's business prospered, he was severely handicapped when he lost his vision due to a rare eye disease. He was about 50 then. My mother became my father's eyes, and I worked in their office after finishing college. It was then the the indelible memory of August Dahme paid off. Though totally blind, he was able to organize and supervise the assemblage of large blocks of leases and do "title work" for the oil companies' legal departments. He was recognized as a perfectionist and was inscrutably honest with all with whom he dealt. I considered him to be remarkable, as did many of his peers.

About that same time, something rather remarkable was happening in Yorktown. A young man from Cuero opened a self-serve food store and market near my father's office. His name was Tell J. McLarty. One of my routine duties was to go to the post office every morning and every afternoon, a route that took me right in front of McLarty's Grocery and its handsome proprietor. A nodding and speaking acquaintance soon turned into one with long chats and finally a date. Upon learning that Tell was commuting from Cuero each day, I urged him to take a room in the home of the Walter Dunns, my aunt and uncle, who lived on Fifth Avenue, directly in front of my parent's home! It was an extremely tactful maneuver on my part and officially made Tell a citizen of Yorktown, as well as my husband. We married on June 7, 1939, in the Lutheran Church in Yorktown. We took the first garage apartment built in Yorktown and moved in after our honeymoon in a new Ford convertible given to us as a wedding gift by Tell's parents. It had a rumble seat and cost $925.00! We couldn't have been happier. Tell showed unusual merchandising talent and his store became an instant hit, offering for the first time in Yorktown, dressed chickens, bottled milk, baby food and beer. His Saturday sales, featuring contests, music and dancing brought customers from far and near. I was quickly indoctrinated into the business, candling eggs and taking inventory, among other things. But the success of McLarty's Grocery was less interesting than the opportunity of being in the oil business with my father, who urged Tell to come with him. So, we sold the store to Alfred Kerlick in 1942 and joined forces with my mother and father. By this time, we had our first son, Tell Jefferies (Jeff) McLarty, Jr., born in 1940 at the Allen Hospital. Though qualified for deferment from service by being a father, Tell wanted to get into the Army Air Force and began preparations for entering World War II, then its third year. Shortly before he reported to Ft. Sam Houston to begin his basic training, my father died. He was then 62. The Dahme family was now reduced to one - my mother, Freda Dahme. My sister, Doris Lee, had married a Navy pilot whom she met while working in Corpus Christi; he was Jack Haskell from Akron, Ohio. After about two years in Guam, Tell came home an honorably discharged member of the 20th Air Force. Jack and Doris moved to Chicago where Jack became a lead singer with Doris Day for Les Brown and his Band of Renown. He later became a part of the Jack Parr show and moved to New York. Doris and Jack had one son, Tom Haskell. Doris died at the age of 57. Jack, Tom and wife Lisa and Tom's daughter Christina, all live in or near Darien, CT. We see them frequently and although far from DeWitt County, the Haskells still feel a part of the Dahmes of DeWitt County.

Tell, Jeff and I moved to Cuero about 1946 and purchased the Red & White Grocery store then owned by his father, W.T. We added to it, the Bak-O-Max, a quaint barbecue and bar. The Tucker automobile enticed us into the automobile business. We sold the grocery and bar to Charlie Koenig and opened McLarty Motor Company, which, after failure of the Tucker, became a Buick dealership, dualed with the Jeep. In Nov. 1946, our second son, James Patrick McLarty, was born at the Bohman Hospital, Cuero. We purchased the Tom Morman home on the old Yoakum Rd. about that same time. Although we paid only $5,000. for it and the 67 acres of land it sat on, it seemed like a lot of money at that time. I'm sure Don Stiles, whom we later sold it to, would value it considerably more than that at this writing.

My mother lived part time with us in Cuero and part time with the Haskells in Darien, CT. She died there in August 1972. The last of the Dahmes of DeWitt County were gone — but not their offsprings. Tell, our two sons and I remained in Cuero until 1954 when we sold the Buick agency to Bob Pratt; we invested all in a Rocky Mt. oil play. It was a rocky venture to say the least, although very exciting. The Overland Oil Co., our company, made a wildcat discovery well just at the city limits of Denver and near the Coors Brewery. But, alas, it went dry in about a year — and the ensuing three deep wells drilled after that were dry also.

The McLarty-Dahme blood is a rich blend, I think, and not one to trickly idly to a stop. We moved from Denver to Chicago and Tell took a marking position with a wire rope equipment company. He traveled the USA, Mexico and Canada for four years learning and finally, leading a new business to great success. In 1961, his opportunity came in California and we moved again, this time from the Windy City to Seal Beach, CA., where we live to this date.

On arriving in California, I acquired a real estate license and now, with over 28 years experience in that business, own with two other ladies, WestWays Realtors Inc. Los Alamitos, CA.

Tell and Patrick run our family owned business, Rhino, Inc. in the Los Angeles harbor. Patrick married Maura Elizabeth Cumming of CT. in 1981. They have two children who have a common birthdate. Meghan Elizabeth Grace McLarty was born Sept. 18, 1984. James Patrick (Jimmy) McLarty, Jr. was born Sept. 18, 1986. Their combined birthday parties make life a little easier for all concerned.

Jeff, now 49 and still unmarried, lives with us and has a ministry in his church, Crossroads, Westminister, CA.

We all live within a few blocks of one another and our lives are intertwined, as always. We still brag of our beginning in DeWitt County and try to return there as often as possible. Our hearts are deep in the heart of Texas, in DeWitt County!

DARDEN FAMILY

In Memory of Carrie Mae Darden Robinson

The Dardens came to America from England. George Darden, I, was born 1705-06 in Prince George Co., VA. He was the first true link to our lineage. A three hundred acre land grant in 1726 shows he settled in the northern part of Brunswick Co., VA, located on the northeast side and fronting on Wagua Creek. Across the creek lived John Burch. This is where George lived until he died sometime around 1748. He married Anne. Two children were listed in this family, George Darden, II, born 1734 in Brunswick Co., VA and David Darden born 1740 in St. Andrews Parish, Brunswick Co., VA.

George Darden, II, married Martha Burch April 25, 1759, daughter of John Burch and Elizabeth Lanier. George died 1806-07 in Livingston Co., KY. George II and Martha migrated to Halifax Co., VA. They next appeared in the records at Elberta Co., GA around 1771. (Elberta Co. is now Wilkes Co.) George II served in the Revolutionary War 1779-81, which took him through Georgia and South Carolina. Somehow there was time for twelve children to be added to this union.

1. George Darden, III, b. 21 Jan. 1762, Brunswick Co., VA, m. Elizabeth Stogier 20 July 1783, Elberta Co., GA. He died 20 May 1844 in Tuscaloosa, Alabama.

2. John Darden, b. 1764, Brunswick Co., VA, m. Elizabeth Harper, 1796, Elberta Co., VA. John died March 1811 in Greensboro, GA.

3. Elizabeth (Betsy) Darden, b. October 1765-6 in Halifax Co., VA. Married Stephen Heard. Elizabeth died June 5, 1848 in Elberta County, Georgia.

4. Mary Jane (Polly) Darden born January 6, 1769 Halifax County, Virginia, married first to John Williams and second to George Wynn. She died after 1827.

 Samuel Darden born Halifax County, Virginia — no data available.

6. David Darden born 1770 Halifax County, VA, married first to Elenor Spain in Jefferson County, MS, and second to Elizabeth Truly in Jefferson County, MS. David died February 8, 1820, Jefferson County, MS.

7. Buckner Darden, born 1772, Elberta County, Georgia, married April 17, 1800 in Jefferson County, Mississippi. He died June 30, 1830, Jefferson County, Mississippi.

8. James Darden, born 1774, Elberta County, GA, married Susanah Heard around 1794 in Elberta County, GA. James died 1802, Elberta County, Georgia.

9. Richard Darden, born 1777, Elberta County, Georgia, unmarried. He died October, 1822 in Jefferson County, Mississippi.

10. Washington Lee Darden, born 1791 in Elberta County, Georgia, married Ann Sharkey October 10, 1805 Jefferson County, Mississippi. He died March 15, 1830 in Madison, Mississippi.

11. Martha (Patsy) Darden, born October 22, 1784 in Elberta County, Georgia, married Hardin D. Runnels, Jefferson County, Mississippi. Martha died 1860 in Bowie County, Texas. Martha was the mother of Richard Runnels, Governor of Texas 1857-1859.

12. Ann Lanier (Nancy) Darden, born 1789 in Wilkes County, Georgia, married first to James Heard, second to Hiram Baldwin. She died June 2, 1844 in Lafayette County, Mississippi.

9. Elizabeth Mary Jane, b. 1827, Jefferson Co., m. George J. Hulmer 1843, d. 1849.

George Patrick Darden was the son of Washington Lee and Ann Sharkey Darden. He was born in Jefferson Co., MS. In 1855 he married Elizabeth Jane Dickinson of DeWitt Co. He died in 1879. George Patrick's father died when he was only five years old and his mother when he was nine. He was an heir to a large estate. Patrick Sharkey, Ann's brother was named as guardian. Between Patrick and an older brother, Steve Darden, George was assured a fair education. After he married Elizabeth he lived in Gonzales, TX. He was a farmer and a clergyman at Union Baptist Church of Gonzales, TX. They moved around 1870 to DeWitt Co., TX and bought a farm near Hope Community.

Elizabeth Jane Dickinson, b. 6 Sept 1841 in Austin Co., TX, d. 8 Jan 1906, DeWitt Co., TX. Buried in County Line Cemetery. Daughter of Dr. Samuel Burlin Dickinson, MD., and Caroline Elizabeth Kinnison. Elizabeth, when she married George Patrick became an instant mother to two step-children. Milton Caleb, born 1848 in MS and A. Walton born 1851 in TX to George Patrick and Mary Pawe. Eight children born of the union of Elizabeth and George Patrick. They were:

1. Adeline Edna, b. 20 Jan 1859, Gonzales, TX, m. John James Burwell, d. 8 Jan 1906, DeWitt Co., TX. Buried in County Line Cemetery.

2. Carrie Mae, b. 10 May 1861, Gonzales, TX, m. John Hugh Robinson 15 Nov. 1882, Gonzales, TX. Died 27 Nov. 1936, Tom Green Co., TX. (See: Robinson, John Hugh)

3. Cayloma Ann, b. 8 Sept. 1862, Gonzales, TX, m. Joseph Franklin Riggs 15 Dec. 1881, DeWitt Co., d. 17 May 1941, Lavaca, TX. Buried in Pilot Grove Cemetery.

4. George Washington, b. 10 Mar. 1865, Gonzales, TX. Unmarried. Died 22 Feb. 1929, DeWitt Co., and buried in County Line Ceme-

5. Allen Stephen, b. 1869. Unmarried.

6. Samuel Heard, b. 7 Dec. 1872, DeWitt Co., and d. 24 Oct. 1933, buried in County Line Cemetery. Unmarried.

7. Mary E. b. 1875, DeWitt Co., TX. Married Rackley.

8. Josephine (Josie) Virginia, b. 1878, DeWitt Co., TX, d. 16 Feb. 1930, Upshur Co., TX Unmarried.

The men of this family did not marry. Therefore, the Darden name ended for this branch of Dardens. However, the blood line does go on.

DAULE, PROFESSOR EUGENE A.

In the 1890's three fresh young men just graduated from the University of Baton Rouge, La. were looking for school work in Texas. They were G.W. James, C.H. Griggs, and E.A. Daule. C.H. Griggs was chosen to become the principal of the colored school located behind the Methodist Church on South Indianola Street in Cuero, Texas.

The next move was to Cuero Colored High School which had been erected on Toussiant L'Overture Street. Griggs was assisted by E.A. Daule. Later Professor Griggs departed for better school facilities. After his departure, Professor Daule became principal serving about forty-five years or more until his retirement in 1931.

Mrs. Katie Daule, wife of Professor Daule was a housewife, however, in her earlier years, she taught kindergarten in her home.

She and Professor Daule reared his niece, Mrs. Nora Lee Dupry who was a graduate of Cuero Colored High School. Mrs. Dupry returned to Cuero from her home in Louisiana when her uncle's health began failing, to care for him.

Professor Daule touched and inspired many students and today many of those persons owe the shaping of their lives to this great man. He was scholarly; a highly respected citizen and considered among the best and most learned educators of the Southwest. Many principals and teachers often came to him for advice and enlightenment on various subjects.

After Professor Daule's retirement in 1931, the P.T.A. in 1937 with the approval of the school board honored him by changing the name of the school from Cuero Colored High to Daule High School.

A timely program was rendered honoring this great educator with former students and many educators from over the state attending this grand affair.

Mrs. Daule preceded her husband in death with services being held from St. Michael's Catholic Church in Cuero.

Professor Eugene A. Daule died July 15, 1943. His services were held from St. Michael's Catholic Church in Cuero. The Daule's are both buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

DAVIDSON, LT. GOVERNOR ASHBURY BASCOM

F180

A.B. Davidson was born in Lincoln County, Tennessee, November 18, 1885. His parents were William and Catherine Davidson. He came to Texas with the family of his father in the year 1870 settling in Travis County but shortly afterwards moving to Williamson County which the family always considered as their old home and where the father of A.B. Davidson attained considerable prominence and wealth.

Davidson was educated in the schools in

Lt. Gov. Ashbury Bascom Davidson

Georgetown and when he had chosen the law as a profession he went to Gonzales and read law in his cousin W.L. Davidson's office. After passing the bar he became associated with the firm of Fly and Davidson, composed of W.L. Davidson and G.W.L. Fly who had attained statewide honor and reputation as an able and distinguished jurists.

About 1880, he moved to Cuero as a member of the law firm of Davidson and Jones. His partner married Miss Lillie Sutton of Cuero; later he moved to Waco where he died shortly afterward. Davidson's next associates were with the firm of Davidson, Pleasants, and George J. Schleicher, which was looked upon as one of the most able of South Texas. For twenty years he was associated with State Senator John H. Baily. The firm of Davidson and Baily ranked as among the foremost. The first public office held by Davidson was that of district attorney of the Twenty-fourth Judicial District, succeeding Judge Sterling F. Grimes. In those days it required moral and physical courage to enforce laws and prosecute organized crime. A.B. Davidson was fearless in the discharge of his duties and established a record during his tenure of office that had never been

Later, in 1906, he was elected to the State Senate of the Twenty-sixth, Twenty-seventh and Twenty-eighth Legislature where he again served with distinction. His record there led his friends to induce him to make the race for Lt. Governor. He was elected to the office. He served for six years in that capacity with the T.M. Campbell administration and four years with the O.B. Colquitt administration. At the expiration of his third term, Governor Davidson did not run for re-election; he retired from public life. He accepted the appointment by Governor Ferguson as a member of the Board of Regents of Texas A&M College at College Station.

Ashbury Bascom Davidson married Minnie McClanahan in Victoria in 1889. They lived at 306 Terrell St. in Cuero. Lt. Governor Davidson died February 4, 1920. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Gaynor Bank of Grace Episcopal Church and the Masonic Lodge.

DAVIS, GEORGE WASHINGTON

Dedication of the George Washington Davis Historical Marker. Descendants: Alta Cleveland and Lottie Thorn.

George Washington Davis described himself as he was in 1831 at the age of 33 when he arrived in Texas: "I was alone, unknown, and unfriended – unaccustomed and unfit for hard labor – knew nothing about it, had neither skill nor strength for it – was no hunter, incapable from nearsightedness of ever becoming one. I could, to be sure, make shoes and boots but what use for a boot maker among people who had no leather . . . and who were well content to wear moccasins."

On February 12, 1831, the Davis family landed at Cox's Point, across the bay from present day Port Lavaca. There was Davis, his wife Rebecca, stepdaughter, Sidna Gaston, stepson John Gaston, and his two-year-old son Eugene Davis, Davis was encouraged to remain on the coast and claim land between the Lavaca and Navidad Rivers, but he was determined to come to the Guadalupe. In Kentucky he had heard of "its rich soil, its fine climate, its beautiful scenery" but felt the hardships too great for the family. When Rebecca's enthusiasm had been excited "and her sense led her to see the great advantages that would most probably result from the enterprise," the family made the trip.

Davis met a man who was coming to Gonzales and wanted company. With his rifle on his shoulder, a half dollar, and a letter of recommendation, dated October 21, 1830 from the State of Kentucky, signed by Samuel Brink, att. at Law, Samuel G. Cook att. and Justice of Peace, Wm. B. Allen Att. and Justice of Peace, and James Allen, Justice of Peace, General of the Militia and Senator in the Kentucky State Legislator, in his pocket, he left his family in the camp he had built for them with poles and palmetto leaves, and set out on foot to find them a home. His son George Washington Jr. was born at that camp on March 12, 1831. In a letter dated March 12, Davis told his wife he had selected a league of land in the DeWitt Colony. He described the land as first rate, very rich, well timbered, good water, being healthy, and free from mosquitoes. He said it was the richest, most beautiful country he had ever beheld. He received title to the land September 6, 1831.

Descendants are uncertain if Davis lived immediately on the land he claimed on the Guadalupe. He was well-known and active in the life of Gonzales, some 25 miles from the land. He was known to have owned land in Gonzales, when the Mexicans demanded the return of the cannon given them for protection against Indian attacks, Davis was Secretary to the Committee for Safety of Gonzales. He wrote a letter on September 25, 1835, that was carried by runner to Nina and J.H. Moore on the Colorado River asking for help. The cannon was buried in Davis' peach orchard (on block 12 of the town of Gonzales). When reinforcement from nearby towns arrived, the cannon was dug up, a flag declaring "Come and Take It" was raised, and on October 2, 1835, the first shot for Texas' independence from Mexico was fired. The event is commemorated annually by Gonzales' Come and Take It Day celebration. In 1936, the school children of Gonzales erected a monument to that shot. Davis is one of the men whose likenesses are carved on the monu-

The war escalated, though he was not in the battle of the Alamo, his stepdaughter's husband, John Kellogg, and his stepson, John Gaston, both responded to William B. Travis' plea for reinforcements and lost their lives on March 6 when the Alamo fell. Davis's own sons were too young to serve in the Texas army.

Rebecca Davis died in 1846 and George in 1853. Davis' will, on file at the Cuero courthouse, provided for the erection of grave markers and a five foot stone wall around the burial site. The markers remain, but the wall has since fallen down.

The Watson family, fourth and fifth generation descendants, have built a pipe fence around the site to protect the graves from livestock. In 1962, the State of Texas placed a Texas Historical Marker at the grave site, and in 1986, descendants of Davis paid for the placement of a roadside Historical Marker, which stands seven miles north of Cuero on Highway 183 adjacent to the land on which the graves are located.

Fifth and sixth generation descendants presently living in DeWitt County include the Joe C. Watson family, the Tommy Watson family and the Tommy (Lynette Watson) Schlenker family. These events are part of the oral and written history passed down through the family, with parts substantiated by historical documents and history books. Lottie Thorn, great granddaughter who lives in Gonzales, has the original papers of Davis' appointments and the letter he wrote to Rebecca about the land he had claimed. Words in quotations were taken from "an account of your ancestors and relations or from whence you are" that Davis wrote to his sons.

There apparently was more than one George Washington Davis in Texas. This history is about the George who was born in 1797 near Philadelphia, Pa., son of Thomas and Ruth Burk Davis. He grew up near there and learned the shoemaking trade, and studied medicine at his father's insistence. Though he never practiced, he later wrote that no time and money had been better spent for its value in treating his family and others.

In Cincinnati, he met and married Rebecca Warfield Gaston, a widow with three children. They moved to Kentucky and lived there ten years. He worked at shoemaking and studied law, as was always his choice to do. She, "with her natural untiring industry... spared no exertion to make money by enterprise and industry." Later they kept a tavern. By the time of the family's departure for Texas, the oldest stepdaughter had married, she remained in Kentucky and Eugene had been born.

DAVIS, GEORGE WASHINGTON

Gravestone of George W. Davis

George Washington Davis, was the youngest child of Daniel and Elizabeth Davidson Davis. He was born August 1, 1817 in Bedford County, Tenn. on his father's farm, near the Duck River. Later, he moved with his family to Hardeman Co., Tenn., thence to Texas with his parents, brother Zachariah and sister, Elizabeth Davis Guthrie and their families. One brother John was already in Texas. Daniel and his family came through Mississippi enroute to Texas and are listed in the 1830 census of that state. They arrived in Gonzales, the townsite of Green DeWitt's Colony, on Feb. 20, 1831. Daniel received his sito or league of land, allotted by the Colonization Law of Coahuila and Texas, which is now located in DeWitt and in Gonzales Counties. George W., being about 14 years old, was too young to apply, but his two older brothers did. Zachariah's land grant dated July 19, 1831 and John's dated October 28, 1831, both are located in Lavaca County.

Daniel purchased four lots in Gonzales townsite and built a nice home for his family. Daniel was a horseman and brought with him from Tennessee many good saddle horses, probably what is known as a "Tennessee Walker" today. The blood line of these "Davis Horses" still existed in DeWitt and Gonzales Counties in the 1920's. George W. grew up helping his father with the horses and other livestock. The Indians, who loved good horses, always manage to steal some of Daniel's horses in their raids on Gonzales.

There were two George W. Davis, adult men, in Gonzales during Texas struggle for independence, which caused confusion and many history books write them up as one man. Later, with sons and nephews named George W.

Davis, there were five or more in Gonzales.

George W. served in Capt. Albert Martin Company with Col. J.H. Moore's Regiment from Feb. 1835 to May 25, 1835 and participated in the Battle of Concepcion. George W. served under Capt. Albert Martin in the Gonzales skirmish, later known as the "Battle of Gonzales" on October 2, 1835, fought on the Ezekiel Williams farm on the Guadalupe River. (statement by P.C. McCoy.)

After the fall of the Alamo, George W. and Daniel helped set fire to the town of Gonzales. All the Davis family, except John, who history records as having died at the Alamo, were in the "Runaway Scrape"; George and Daniel participated in the Battle of San Jacinto, April 21, 1836. They returned to Gonzales and rebuilt their home and helped rebuild the town. Daniel Davis died Oct. 25, 1849, buried in the Gonzales City Cemetery beside his wife, Elizabeth, who had preceded him in death. George was named executor of his father's will. George also acquired a large portion of Daniel's sito of land, where he moved his family to live.

George W. married Caroline (Kelly) Pease in Gonzales on May 27, 1840. She was the widow of Lyman Pease and had three children, as follows: 1. Mary Caroline m. William Harper, 2. Samuel Kelly m. Mary Ann Downs 2nd. Susan Laster, 3. Mary Ann m. Wm. R. Light 2nd. W.D.W. Peck. George and Caroline lived in Gonzales until the Indian raids had subsided before moving their family to the ranch land. They had the following children: 1. George W. Jr. b. 1841 d. ca. 1860, 2. Daniel b. 1843 d. 1878 m. Amanda Harper, 3. Zachariah b. 1845 d. 1925 was deaf and unmarried, 4. William b. 1846 d. 1901 m. Eliza Jane Gates, 5. Benjamin b. 1847 m. Susie Sparks, 6. Ann Eliza, b. 1848 d. 1881 m. William McCullough, 7. James Rhodes b. 1849 d. 1914 m. Mary Jane Vick. Caroline possibly died in Gonzales ca. 1850 and buried in the City Cemetery as no record of her death or grave has been found. George married 2nd. wife Elizabeth McCullough, Sept. 14, 1854, DeWitt Co., Texas. No children were born to this marriage, she already had two sons, William and David.

The Davis family and heirs had many Community gatherings, such as Brush Arbor Revivals, Camp Meetings, fish fries and "fiddle" playing, which sometimes lasted for a week, on this land in the bend of the Guadalupe River. My mother, Mary M. (Mollie) Kuykendall Crawford was a great granddaughter of George W. and Caroline Pease Davis.

The State of Texas erected a monument on his grave in the Davis Cemetery, with the State of Texas Seal and the following inscription: "G.W. Davis Aug. 1, 1817 – Nov. 15, 1880 – George W. Davis, Citizen soldier who served Texas in its struggle for independence 1835-1836 — erected by State of Texas 1962".

DELONY, LEWIS HENRY

Lewis Henry Delony was born in Sumpter County, Alabama on September 24, 1824. When he was about eighteen years old, he joined a company of volunteers to fight the Mexicans. They landed at Galveston, Texas and shipped their horses and accoutrements to Richmond. From Richmond, they rode horses back to San Antonio. They arrived too late to get into the first army of invasion which was at that time in camp at Brownsville. The Indians were on the warpath and had gone into camp above San Antonio about where Kerrville is now.

Lewis Delony joined Jack Hays' Texas Rangers and left San Antonio at once to fight the Indians. After scouting and chasing the Indians for several months, Lewis returned to San Antonio where Jack Hays was raising a company to join the United States Army to enter Mexico.

Lewis enlisted and afterward fought in every battle in that war. After the battle of Monterey, Mexico, he was transferred to General Scott's army at Vera Cruz and marched to the City of Mexico.

He was a member of Emmitt Lynch Camp, Cuero, Texas when he died on September 25, 1902 in Cuero, DeWitt County, Texas. He had surveyed and helped to establish the county lines of DeWitt County and served for several years as county assessor of taxes. He was also a Mason and belonged to Live Oak Lodge, Cuero, Texas. He was an elder in the Southern Presbyterian Church for many years. He married Mrs. Sarah Ann Murphree, the widow of John Murphree on November 20, 1856. She was the daughter of James Norman Smith of DeWitt County.

DELONY, LEWIS S.

Lewis S. Delony was born October 21, 1857 at Clinton, DeWitt County, Texas. His parents were Lewis Henry Delony and Sarah (Smith) Delony. Lewis S. went to school in Clinton to a Mr. Cocke, a son-in-law of Judge Henry Clay Pleasants, the district judge. After that he went to school at Major Carruths school.

In Dec. 24, 1868, Lewis and a friend, Tobe Kelley, were on their way to the school closing exercises at the courthouse in Clinton when they witnessed the shooting of Dick Chisholm and Buck Taylor.

In 1868, Lewis made his first trip to San Antonio with his father and his cousins, Sam D. and John R. Calhoun, who ran a wagon train from Indianola to San Antonio. After unloading the freight, they would load the wagons with cotton and hides for Indianola. Lewis drove a wagon with four horses on this trip to San Antonio. He had to curry the horses and harness them to the wagon every morning.

In January 1870, Lewis's mother died and his father broke up housekeeping and rented the family home to Judge Henry Clay Pleasants. Lewis stayed with his father and brother. William W. Delony, but his youngest brother, John M. Delony, went to live with Annie E. Murphree. Annie was actually a half-sister to Lewis but she was teaching and living in Victoria. Lewis' sister, Betty Delony was sent to Bloomington, Illinois to school and lived with one of her aunts, Mrs. Robert E. Williams. Lewis and William Delony stayed with their father and were taught by him. Lewis H., the father, was by then boarding with the Putnam family in Gonzales County and teaching school. The family then left Texas for a while.

In 1875, Lewis came back to Clinton, Texas and accepted a job with Sam Webb, who kept a general dry goods and grocery store in Clinton. One month later Lewis S. Delony was appointed a deputy sheriff of DeWitt County by Captain William Weisiger, sheriff of said county. He was involved in many of the "scrapes" of the lawlessness of the "Old West" times. He later (1937) wrote a story about his escapades. Lewis S. was also a Texas Ranger with Captain McNally, Lieutenant Lee Hall, Red Rudd, Spencer A. Adams and Kirk Lynch.

Lewis S. later went to work for Mr. Bill Hasson in Clinton in his carpenter shop. He helped to build houses in Burns Station, Meyersville and other places.

In 1879 Lewis S. made his last trip to Kansas with cattle. The cattle were owned by Tom Word of Goliad and Jim Summers was the foreman of the drive. When Lewis returned to DeWitt County, he went out to see his girl friend, Miss Jessie Wofford. While he was there, Mr. Wofford talked to him about moving the family Wofford home from Deer Creek to Cuero. The house was a large three-story house. Lewis S. Delony, Bill Hasson, Jim Hasson, John Calhoun and a Mr. Byres took the house down and hauled it to Cuero where they reconstructed the house.

Lewis S. Delony left DeWitt County and started a detective business in Austin. Texas. He remained in some phase of law enforcement until his death.

DeMOSS FAMILY

Lewis DeMoss was born in Missouri in 1802 and died in DeWitt County in 1856. He is buried in the McCrabb cemetery near Cuero. Lewis was the son of Charles and Martha DeMoss who brought their nine children to Texas prior to April 20, 1824. Lewis married Catherine Tumlinson, the daughter of John Jackson Tumlinson and Elizabeth Plemmons. Catherine was born in 1809 and died in 1854. She is also buried in McCrabb Cemetery.

Lewis and Catherine had nine children: 1) Elizabeth was born February 5, 1829 and died November 20, 1849. She married June 1, 1844 Perry Davis. They had two daughters, Adaline and Laura. 2) Mary Ann was born December 1, 1830 and died February 5, 1871. She is buried in the Concrete Cemetery. She was married to Columbus Burns on June 20, 1850. 3) James DeMoss was born November 21, 1832 and died March 15, 1906. He married Mary E. White on July 20, 1857. Their children were: James C., Mary Elizabeth, Mabel Blanche, Annie Belle, John Henry, Jennie Turner, and Evelyn Cardwell. 4) Catherine DeMoss was born September 31, 1834 and married William Carmon Tumlinson on September 12, 1853. 4) Martha Olivia was born on March 2, 1837 and died January 24, 1838. 6) Laura Amanda was born December 12, 1838 and died July 10, 1927. She married Wyatt Hanks on February 25, 1857, and married two more times. 7) Eliza Jane was born May 10, 1846 and died August 6, 1927. She married James Chamberlin on April 12, 1864. She later married Mr. Frank M. Robinson. 8) Joseph DeMoss was born July 3, 1849 and died September 11, 1876. He married on November 18, 1874 to Alice E. Thomas. They had one child, Josie DeMoss (9) Isabella De-Moss was born January 4, 1853. She married Bluford Hunter on March 29, 1870.

After the death of their parents, Eliza, Joseph and Isabella lived with the Columbus Burns family.

Lewis DeMoss served at Goliad under Col. James W. Fannin, but was not captured. The DeMoss family lived in Matagorda County before coming to DeWitt County.

DIDIER FAMILY

Conrad and Catherine (Goly) Didierlaurent, c. 1890, Meyersville area.

In 1793, in Haut Rhin, France, an area of Alsace-Lorraine, Jean Didierlaurent, was born in the village of Ranspach, and Marie Anne Simon was born in the village of Mollau. They married, and in 1832, Conrad Didierlaurent was born in village of Mollau. His father was a textile factory weaver.

In 1829, in the village of Felleringen, Walbourg Bruetsch was born; her father was Jean Bruetsch, a carpenter, and her mother was Walbourg Brogli.

In 1856, Conrad and Walbourg were married in the Catholic Church at Felleringen. They were both fabric workers in the textile factory.

Twin boys, Joseph and Aloise, were born in 1856 at Felleringen, another son, Jean Baptiste, was born in 1858, and in February 1860 Charles was born. Conrad, his wife, Walbourg, and their four sons, left their home in the village of Felleringen for the port of Le Havre. near Paris. They boarded an American vessel, "Ship SS Pequot"; the Master's name was Davis. They sailed on Oct. 6, 1860 and landed in the port of New Orleans on Dec. 13, 1860. Most trips to the Gulf of Mexico took about 70 days. Most Alsatian emigrates took smaller ships to the Texas coastline of Galveston, Port Lavaca, and Indianola. From there, most traveled in oxen-drawn wagons. Conrad and his family came up along the Guadalupe River and settled in an area called "Twelve Mile Colletto," close to Meyersville. Now in this country Conrad was a farmer, who first rented and lived on the Powers Place. For Alsatians who had no slaves, times of Civil War were hard. Conrad served in the Home Guards of Coleto, under the command of Capt. John Jacob Schiwitz from 1861 to 1865.

During this time, Julius Ulysses was born in 1863, and a first daughter, Mary T. was born in 1866. Next Conrad rented the Weaver Place on 12 Mile Coleto, known as "Bitterly Home," there Rosa was born in 1867. Rosa was only 7 mos. old when her mother, Walbourg Bruetsch died. She was buried Oct. 1, 1867 in St. Peter and Paul Catholic Cemetery in Meyersville. Her grave was marked by a wooden cross and is one of the oldest in the cemetery. St. Peter & Paul, built in 1859, was first Catholic Church to be built in DeWitt County.

Without a wife and mother for his family, times became even more of a struggle, so in 1869, Conrad married a young girl of seventeen, Catherine Goly, who lived on the adjoining farm. Her father was Antoine Goly and her mother was Genevive Jacob Winkler. They were married by the priest, Rev. Kraus, at the Catholic Church in Meyersville. In 1871, after being in this country for 11 years, Conrad made his oath of declaration and filed his citizenship papers. The filing fee was $2.50.

The first few years were sad, for Conrad and Catherine's first children, Lazardus in 1869 and Edward in 1871, died at birth. Cecilia, their first daughter, was born in 1872; then Caroline, in 1874, who died when she was 6 months old. Edward, the next son was born in 1876. In 1876, two older brothers of the first family, Jean Baptiste and Charles were handling firearms, and Charles was accidentally killed. He is buried in Meyersville Cemetery beside his mother, Walbourg Bruetsch.

After their next child, Clara, was born in 1878, Conrad and Catherine moved to Mission Valley, where he purchased land west of the Guadalupe River and made this their new home. There, William was born in 1881, Robert in 1884, and Conrad in 1886. In 1887, the older son, Jean Baptiste died from typhoid fever and in 1888 another child, Catherine, was born and died at birth. Alfredus was born in 1890 and died a year later. In 1884 they sold part of their land and kept only 6 acres where their home was. During these years, Conrad had carried mail to the railroad at Thomaston, and returned bags to Mission Valley. He also hauled freight to Victoria for Col. Reeves, owner of General Mercantile Store in Mission Valley. In 1892, Frederich was born, and in 1894, Lorena, who is still living, completed their family.

In 1910 Conrad died and was buried in the Catholic Cemetery with his wife Walbourg Bruetsch and children. Catherine Goly continued living in Mission Valley until her death in 1929. She is buried in Mission Valley, where several of her children and families have been buried through the years.

DIEBEL, HEINRICH CHRISTOPH ANDREAS AND KATERINE (SCHIWETZ)

F189

Heinrich Christoph Andreas Diebel (June 23, 1823 – July 8, 1892) known as Christoph and his brother Andreas Christian Friedrich (Oct. 6, 1831 – Sept. 10, 1905) known as Friedrich landed at Galveston on Nov. 30, 1850. They sailed from Bremen, Germany, on the vessel Solon with Captain Bulleer as master of the ship. The brothers came to Texas from Buehne, Prussia. Two generations of ancestors of Christoph and Friedrich have been traced to their grandfather, a Prussian carpenter also named Christoph, born in 1766. Records of arrivals of passengers at Galveston list the brothers as Christoph aged twenty seven and Christian aged nineteen. These two brothers settled in DeWitt County where they married and founded large families. Sometime between 1860 and 1870 Freidrich moved to Victoria County where he is buried in Evergreen Cemetery with a Confederate memorial marker. Christoph stayed in DeWitt County, married Katerina Schiwetz (Aug. 11, 1838 - May 21, 1909) and settled on the Twelve-Mile Coleto Creek near Meyersville. Christoph and Friedrich bought a hundred acres of land from Katerina's father Christoph Schiwetz on April 3, 1854, for seven hundred and forty dollars. This land eventually became the Christoph Diebel family farm. A sister, Sophie Dorthea Lucie Diebel, who married George Heinrich Andreas Buehrig in Buehne, Prussia, also immigrated to Texas. The exact time of arrival of the Buehrigs is unknown but they also settled in DeWitt County and raised a large family. Efforts to visit Buehne have been futile because the village is now in the restricted border zone on the eastern side of the boundary between East and West Germany. Christoph and Katerina had twelve children, one of whom died in infancy. The others married and for the most part also raised large families. They married as follows: Friedrich Wilhelm married Pauline Bertha Haun and settled in the Golly area (See Wilhelm Diebel family); Jacob Friedrich married Elizabeth Wendel and settled in Meyersville (See Jacob Friedrich Diebel family); Carolina married Albert Duderstadt and settled in Meyersville; Edward married Emelia Dobsky and settled near Weesatche in Goliad County; Henry married Emma Pieper and settled in Berclair; August married Minna Pieper and settled in Ander; Friederika married George Reinhardt and settled in East Bernard; Catherine married Robert Gerhart and settled near Yorktown; Annie married Moritz Jacob and settled in Yorktown; Sophie married Mac Arnold and lived in Berclair; Bertha died as an infant; Albert married Eliza Post and settled in the Meyersville area. This was a substantial pioneer family of the new German settlement of Meyersville. Christoph was active in community affairs. He helped build St. John Evangelical Lutheran Church established in 1850, served on the church council, and signed the 1859 constitution of the church. He became a naturalized citizen of the United States on July 25, 1858. However, he swore allegiance to the Confederacy on June 30, 1862, and became a second lieutenant in the Confederate Home Guard during the Civil War. Christoph and Katerine and members of five generations of descendants are buried in the Meyersville Lutheran cemetery. The inscription on Christoph's tombstone reflects the faith which strengthened these early settlers: "Das stille Grab erschrect den Frommen nicht, er hafft auf Gott und furchtet kein Gericht." i.e.

"The silent grave does not scare the believer, he hoped in God and fears no judgement."

DIEBEL, JACOB FRIEDRICH AND ELIZABETH (WENDEL)

Jacob Friedrich Diebel was born June 22, 1858, in Meyersville, Texas, to Christoph Andreas Diebel and Katherina Schiwetz. Their story is elsewhere in this book. Friedrich was baptized by Rev. John Jacob Schaeg and confirmed by Rev. M. Oehler in St. John Evangelical Lutheran Church in Meyersville. Elizabeth Wendel was born May 5, 1859, in Altmarchen Amt. Spangelburg, Kreis-Malsunger Kurseen, Germany. At the age of six months she came to America with her parents John Wendel (1819-10/3/98) and Elizabeth Reimenschneider (1821-4/12/64); her three brothers Oswald; George (9/14/42-6/28/24); Henry; and one sister Maria (1850). They left Bremen, Germany, on Oct. 14, 1859, and seven weeks later on Dec. 26, 1859, arrived in Galveston, Texas. On Jan. 1, 1860, they reached Powderhorn (Indianola) and on Jan. 3 they came to Meyersville where they made their home. On April 12, 1864, Mother Elizabeth Wendel passed away. The five-year old Elizabeth began to spend much of her time with her sister Maria in Raisen. Maria had married Valentin Steadtler in 1866 at the age of 16. Elizabeth was baptized in St. John Evangelcial Lutheran Church and confirmed by Pastor Wm. Oehler March 24, 1872. Friedrich Diebel traveled by horseback from Meyersville to Raisen to court Elizabeth and on Dec. 9, 1880, they were married by Pastor Kropf. Fred and Elizabeth made their home on the Fifteen-Mile Coleto in Victoria County on what is now Noll Road off FM 237 between Meyersville and Mission Valley. This union was blessed with nine children, eight girls and one boy: Emma Friedericke Hildegarde (5/3/82-7/7/46), Mrs. George Junker: Marie Sophie (7/27/84-11/17/67), Mrs. Eugene Hausmann: Katherine Bertha (9/13/186-9/12/72), Mrs. Oscar Schaefer: Frieda Hulda Marie (7/31/89-12/22/40), Mrs. Edgar Hartman: Helene Auguste Elizabeth (11/6/91-1/5/83), Mrs. Edwin Hartman: Emilie Marie Caroline (1/12/94-6/28/14), died at the age of twenty of typhoid fever: Richard William Valentin (3/9/96-4/1/87), married Bertha Hartman: Linda Anne Emilie (1/21/98-12/23/87), Mrs. R.H. Gohmert: and Elizabeth Albertine Emilie (8/27/1900), Mrs. Henry Angerstein. Fred and Elizabeth made their living from the soil, growing mostly cotton and fruit trees and raising cattle and their own vegetables. They also made mustang grape wine. The girls sewed their own wardrobes. They were highly respected members of the community. Fred was a leader in St. John Lutheran Church. Fred also was one of the builders of the Noll School in 1893. The Diebel children attended this one-room school. In 1919 the building was removed from the site and in 1977 the Noll school site and the adjoining cemetery received an official Texas historical marker. It is located on FM 237 about 4.5 miles west of Mission Valley. There were many young men who came calling on the beautiful Diebel girls, squiring them to the local parties and dances which were held at the school, at Upper Meyersville Hall, and in their homes. The Diebel family was also known for their love of music. In 1930 "Opa" Fred and "Oma" Elizabeth moved to their new home in Meyersville and celebrated their 50th anniversary that same year. Their grandson Leroy Angerstein and his wife Lolly now live in the Diebel home. Oma passed away July 5, 1932, and Opa on Jan. 25, 1945. Opa's obituary reads: 'his childlike faith and christian life, like a thread of silver, was manifested throughout his entire earthly career - an ideal example to all who knew him - not primarily concerned about self, but about the youth of today and the church of tomorrow." -

DIEBEL, WILLIAM FAMILY

Friedrich Wilhelm Diebel (Oct. 14, 1855 – April 4, 1922) and Pauline Bertha Haun (Oct. 18, 1857 – Nov. 4, 1953), both of whom were first generation children of pioneer immigrants from Germany, were married on August 1, 1878. Wilhelm's father Christoph came to Texas from Buehne, Prussia. The place of origin of Bertha's father Adolph Haun is uncertain. Wilhelm and Bertha were married by Pastor Oehler in the Meyersville St. John's Lutheran Church. The two fathers, who served as witnesses to the marriage, had helped to found the church in 1850.

Wilhelm and Bertha began their married life on a farm in the Golly community of DeWitt County. Of the eleven children born to them, nine grew to adulthood. The family farm was near the one-room Golly school where the Diebel children obtained their education. This farm is still in the family, and a granddaughter, Mrs. Edmund Sager, resides there. The Diebel family attended church at St. John's in Meyersville where the children were baptized and confirmed and where most of them were married.

All of Wilhelm and Bertha's children settled in the area of DeWitt and Goliad Counties. The first son William Friedrich Adolph Diebel (Jan. 23, 1879 – Mar. 6, 1968) and his wife Alma F. Schorlemmer raised their family in Meyersville. Their son Erwin William Henry Diebel (Nov. 16, 1902 – Oct. 25, 1933) married Erna Marie Ideus; their daughter Melina Karolina Diebel (Nov. 15, 1903 – July 13, 1983) married Erna's brother Edmund John Ideus.

Next Bertha gave birth to twins. A girl Ida (Feb. 23, 1880) died as an infant; her brother Edward Friedrich Adolph Diebel (Feb. 23, 1880 – July 17, 1963) married Emelie Sauermilch and settled in the Weesache area. Their children were Meta (Sept. 13, 1909-) who married Norman Karnie; Gilbert Adolph Diebel (Jan. 10, 1911-) who married Hilda Fromme; and Roland Joseph Diebel (Feb. 3, 1918-) who married Adlen Ideus.

Another child, Wilhelm Otto Diebel (born July 2, 1882) died as an infant. Then Wilhelm and Bertha had another daughter. Emilie Martha Sophia Diebel (Oct. 2, 1883 – Mar. 30, 1957) married Herman Jutz. They established their home in the Golly area and had three daughters. Lily Jutz (May 24, 1902 – May 3, 1948) married Erwin Rath; Flora Jutz (Aug. 21, 1906-) married Chilton Purcell; Malinda Jutz (July 31, 1912-) married Elder Henry Jacob.

Next the Diebels welcomed Amalia Katherine Diebel (April 15, 1886 – May 3, 1973) to their growing family. She married Fred Herman Wendel and settled in the Meyersville area where their offspring consists of Halley William Wendel (May 18, 1910 – May 22, 1966) who married Ester Dreier; Victor George Wendel (Sept. 15, 1911 – Dec. 30, 1967) who married Regina Sophie Kornfuehrer; and Edwina Wendell (Aug. 26, 1914-) who married Elmo Hoff.

Another son Alfred Friedrich Diebel (April 12, 1887 – June 18, 1966) and his wife Hulda Behrens lived in Weesache and had two sons: Edgar Diebel (June 18, 1913-) married Eleanor Migura; Harold Diebel (June 19, 1920 – Mar. 16, 1958) married Dorothy Milton.

Wilhelm and Bertha had one more son Adolph C. Diebel (Oct. 8, 1890 – May 15, 1946) who married Melanie Behrens and resided in the Golly area. Their children were Dorothy Diebel (Oct. 4, 1919-) who did not marry; Delmar James Diebel (Oct. 19, 1921 – April 4, 1972) who married Dorothy Faye Bade.

The Wilhelm Diebel family was completed with the addition of three more daughters. O'Tillie Diebel (June 13, 1892 – Sept. 8, 1978) married Irven LeSage and lived in Cuero. Their children were Lois LeSage who was married to Garland Gus Schultz; Irven Louis LeSage, Jr. married to Ann Pieper; and Chester Rayburn LeSage (Sept. 3, 1918-) married to Evelyn Sager.

Bertha Diebel (May 2, 1895 – May 3, 1977) did not marry and lived in Cuero.

The last of the children of Wilhelm and Bertha was Martha Diebel (Mar. 28, 1899 – May 23, 1988) who with her husband Berthold Ludwig Dreier lived in the Golly area. Their children were Lorene Vernell Dreier (April 27, 1921-) married to Edmund G. Sager; and Robbie Nell Dreier (July 30, 1925 – July 1, 1968) married to Curtis E. Brown.

Martha was the last surviving child of Wilhelm and Bertha Diebel. After her husband's death at age thirty-four, she lived in Cuero for many years, but with her death the last source of first-hand information about the Wilhelm Diebel family was lost.

DIEBEL, WILLIAM FRIEDRICH ADOLPH AND ALMA AMALIA FENNY (SCHORLEMMER) F192

William Friedrich Adolph Diebel (known as Willie) was born 1/23/1879 in DeWitt County, in the Golly community, to Friedrich Wilhelm Diebel (10/15/1855 - 4/4/1922) and Pauline Bertha (Haun) Diebel (10/18/1857 - 11/4/1953), their first born. His grandfather,

Heinrich Christoph Andreas Diebel arrived in this country 11/29/1850 from Buehne, Prussia in Germany. Willie grew up in a large family with 3 brothers and 5 sisters.

Alma Amalia Fenny (Schorlemmer) Diebel was born 5/13/1877 to Heinrich Carl Schorlemmer (12/24/1850 – 8/12/1939) and Emmalina (Franke) Schorlemmer (6/20/1846 – 12/28/1914) and grew up on the family farm situated on the DeWitt-Victoria County line, on what is now known as Dentler Road. The family lost 3 young sons, Rudolph, Heine and Gustav. Alma had one sister, Bertha, who married William Ruschhaupt and a brother, Oscar, who married Meta (Jacob). Alma's grandfather, Wilhelm Heinrich Schorlemmer immigrated to the Five Mile Community of Texas from Darmstadt, Germany, in 1848.

Willie and Alma married in the old stone Church of Meyersville on 10/30/1901. The tin box that was put in the cornerstone of the Church was made by Alma's grandfather, Wilhelm Schorlemmer, who was a tinner.

In the 1890's Willie had purchased 99.75 acres, at a cost of $1,097.25, situated approximately 2 miles southeast of Upper Meyersville, from Herman and Johanna Duderstaadt and his is where he and his bride set up housekeeping. Side by side they strove to make a living from the land.

This union was blessed with 2 children, Erwin William Henry, born 11/16/1902 and Melina Karoline born 11/15/1903.

In 1906 Willie purchased 29 acres adjacent to his land, from his uncle and aunt, Albert and Elise Diebel, in 1912 he purchased 131 acres in the Mumford House League from Oscar Franke, Alma's uncle, and in 1919 an additional 135 acres, adjacent to his home place, from Katie Scheffler and her children. The fact the family could purchase a piece of land every few years attests to their hard work and frugal nature. German was the language spoken in the home.

On 11/18/1923 Melina married Edmund John Ideus and they moved into the old family home Edmund had purchased from Melina's family in September of 1923. Their story is elsewhere in this book.

On 11/28/1923 Erwin married Erna Marie (Ideus) and settled on what the family referred to as the Sheffler place. The two couples were very close as brother and sister had married sister and brother, married only 10 days apart, and lived side by side. In 1926 the first offspring of these two families were born only 34 days apart.

After selling the home place to Edmund and the Scheffler land to Erwin, on 10/1/1923 Willie and Alma purchased 40 acres on the 12 Mile Coletto Creek, across from St. John's Lutheran Church, from Emil and Martha Wendel. On 1/2/1941 they purchased an additional adjacent 27 acres from A.L. Semmler. This land is on the southwest side of the 12 Mile Coletto Creek.

With both children married, Willie and Alma started over on a smaller scale. They built a new home under the towering oaks, across the road from the Meyersville Public School, with William Fuchs being the carpenter who assisted. They worked a large garden and orchard, always having hundreds of strawberry plants. The grandchildren fondly remember wonderful strawberry pies and beautiful strawberry wine. During the holiday season the house would smell of fruit and anise, the original oak Christmas tree being covered with all shapes of highly decorated anise cookies, apples, and chains of popcorn. On Christmas Eve, after Church, there would be an exchange of gifts and then good snacks of fruitcake, dried sausage, and a punch of hot wine and cinnamon. But first, Grandpa Schorlemmer, Alma's father, would read the Christmas story, in German, out of the Bible. The children very impatiently sat through this, as they could hardly wait for the gifts and food.

Willie and Alma's great sorrow was the tragic loss of their only son, Erwin, at the age of 30. They were a close knit family, taking great pride in their children and grandchildren whom they taught "To walk with the Lord". The Church played a major role in their lives and they were both active in its mission.

Alma died 5/28/1949 and Willie died 3/6/1968. Their graves can be found in St. John's Lutheran Cemetery in Meyersville.

DIERINGER, ISADOR AND ANNA MARIE WILD

Isador Dieringer was born in 1840 in Hechingen in the province of Hohenzollern, in the extreme Southwest corner of Germany. He was the son of Johan and Mary Anna Dieringer. It is not known if he had any brothers or sisters. He married Anna Marie Wild in 1862 and resided in several villages including Hechingen and Rannendingen where the Swiss Alps could be seen in the distance.

Anna Marie Wild was born in 1838 the daughter of Jacob and Anna Marie (Haug) Wild.

Isador was the village weaver in Hechengen. Every family in the village grew their own flax. It was cut and the bundles of stems put into a public tub where they were left to soften and rot away the softer parts of the stems. The stems were cleaned and dried and brought to the weaver for weaving. The loom in the Dieringer home was in the attic, "auf den beden". The children were taught to wind the bobbins and bring them up to their father at the loom.

The children went to school and played on schedule. Girls and boys had reading and writing, some music and arithmetic. Boys were taught some skill, as masons, carpenters, blacksmiths, and gardening. Girls had sewing, knitting, crocheting, and caring for children.

Isador died at a very young age in 1880, and is buried in Hechengen, Germany. Anna Marie sent the older children to America with the help of her family, the Wilds, who were already here. She brought the younger ones with her in 1885 and settled in Lavaca Co. near Hallett-sville.

Isador and Anna Marie Wild Dieringer had seven children, 3 boys and 4 girls, all were born in Germany. Mary Anna Dieringer Herman (Jan. 16, 1864), Joseph Dieringer (Apr. 6, 1865), Francisca Dieringer Kahlich (Aug. 19, 1867), John Dieringer (1868), Anna Marie Dieringer Blaschke (Dec. 26, 1869), Katrina Dieringer Leister (Jan. 30, 1874), and Severin A. Dieringer (Feb. 28, 1876), and forty grandchildren.

Mother, Anna Marie died at the age of 50 in 1888 and is buried in Smothers Cemetery in Hallettsville. The younger children lived with relatives until they became of age. All married and most raised their families in the Lindenau and Nordheim areas.

1885 to come to America. His father, Isador had previously died and is buried in Germany. Severin married Emilia Fuessel on January 28, 1902 in Lindenau.

Emilia Fuessel was born on November 29, 1882 in Austria to Franz and Annie Blaschke Fuessel.

Severin and Emilia had five children while living in the Lindenau area; Meta Marie Dieringer Sturm (Oct. 28, 1902), Hugo John Dieringer (Mar. 17, 1906), a set of twins, Emil Henry Dieringer and Emilie Frances Dieringer Meyer (Nov. 18, 1908), and William Edmund Dieringer (May 30, 1911). In 1907 they moved to the Lost Creek area and in 1913 they purchased 450 acres in the Ratcliffe area on the Chisholm Creek. On the farm four more children were born; Edwin Joseph Dieringer (Feb. 20, 1914), Rosie Hermine Dieringer (Nov. 8, 1916), Melanie Johanna Dieringer Buenger (Feb. 8, 1918) and Roland Rudolph Dieringer (Mar. 4, 1921).

They cultivated the land and also raised hogs, turkeys, and chickens. Being sick for nearly 2 years, on October 28, 1922 Severin Dieringer passed away. With the help of the older children, Hugo in particular, Emilia managed to run the farm. She also let workers stay on the place to help tend the animals and help during harvest. Losing their father at such a young age was very difficult for the children, but they coped with the fact that they had to help their mother.

As the older children moved away, the younger ones would step in and accept their responsibility. With their help Emilia lived 52 years without her beloved husband. In the late 30's she began having vision trouble, and for the last 35 years of her life she was without sight. She died on September 10, 1974 in Cuero at the age of almost 92. She is buried next to her husband in Hillside Cemetery.

August 12, 1905 in Des Moines, Iowa, the youngest child of Mable and Frank McKibben. He had a sister one year older, Meryle. The family owned and operated a small farm. Byron worked as a barber and a musician in order to earn enough money to begin his medical education. He entered the Army Medical Corp., served in World War II and continued with a twenty-five year career. In 1959 the family moved to Temple, Texas, and Byron took a position with Scott and White Clinic, in the ENT department. Lillan was born November 27, 1911, the only child of Francis and Mary Jane Sharlow, in Watertown, New York. She was a talented pianist and R.N. Anesthetist. She and Byron married July 8, 1941. She died in Temple, Texas, on November 10, 1982, and is buried at Bellwood Memorial Park. Byron married again on July 9, 1983 to Lillian Herbalin. They reside in Temple, Texas.

Errol John and Shirley were married on September 5, 1964. The following year, after she received her B.S.N. from Incarante Word College and he received his B.B.A. and L.L.B. from Saint Mary's University, they moved from San Antonio to Cuero, Texas. Errol John has been practicing law in Cuero since that time. He has been very active in many local, county and state organizations. He has served as president of the Chamber of Commerce, DeWitt County Pecan Growers, Texas Pecan Growers and DeWitt County Bar Association. Shirley practiced nursing briefly at the Burns Hospital and the High Davis Clinic in 1965 and 1966. She retired from nursing shortly before their first child Kimberly Ann was born, June 18, 1966. Their second child Johnny (Errol John Dietze, Jr.) was born April 11, 1969. Shirley has been active on the board of directors and as an officer of Hospice of Victoria. Both children attended St. Michael's School. The family was a member of St. Michael's parish. Other interests and businesses include horseback riding, hunting, fishing, pecan culture, cattle and rental properties.

While in high school, Kim was active in Theaspians, Trotters and tennis. Johnny was active on the Gobbler football team, 4-H, F.F.A., N.H.S., and the student council. Both were listed in Who's Who.

Kimberly, a graduate of the University of Texas and South Texas School of Law, paralegal division, is currently residing in Houston. Johnny is a junior at Texas A&M University studying ag economics and considering post graduate work in law.

DIETZE, LAWRENCE EDWARD AND VIOLET ISABEL SEMMLER

Lawrence Edward (Tootie) Dietze, September 12, 1910 – September 12, 1982, was the youngest child of Pauline Kunitz Dietze and Edward B. Dietze. He was raised on the Dietze

Mitzi Dietze, Violet Semmler and Lorita Wolf at Bridal Shower, for Violet. Girls dresses are pink crepe paper.

Lawrence Edward and Violet Isabel (Semmler) Dietze

Alfred Lewis Semmler and Marguerite "Maggie" (Schlein) Semmler 1910

Dairy located about a mile outside of the south edge of town, close to the Guadalupe River. He took part in all the daily chores, although, many times he missed milking because he would not miss football practice. When it came time for college, he decided to try Shiner Institute in Kerrville, but after a very short while, he realized college wasn't for him. All his needs and desires could and would be fulfilled right on the dairy. His mind was made up to follow in his father's footsteps.

Violet Isabel Semmler was the only child of Alfred Lewis Semmler and Marguerite (Maggie) Schlein Semmler. She was born on February 6, 1914 in Arneckeville, Texas. When she was three weeks old, Alfred and Maggie moved to Meyersville, Texas. Alfred bought the large two-story wood house there. It still remains today. Violet lived there with her parents until she was twenty-one. Alfred purchased the grocery store and later bought and enlarged the saloon. By the time Violet was seven, she was a big part of the business. It was her responsibility to keep everything swept and dusted. When the store and saloon were running smoothly, Alfred decided to get into ranching as well. In the 1960's oil and gas were discovered on his properties.

Violet and Tootie were married at St. Peter and Paul Catholic Church on April 29, 1936. In six weeks they moved into a new little house on the dairy. On February 29, 1940, they were blessed with a son, Errol John Dietze. In 1949, when his father became ill, Tootie took over the business and ran the dairy until 1967. After the dairy closed, Tootie continued in the ranching and pecan business. Their daughter, Majie (Mary Margaret) was born on August 9, 1945. Both children attended St. Michael's School and Cuero High School.

Tootie was active in civic affairs which he enjoyed a great deal. He was on the Cuero High School Board of Directors for seventeen years and a DeWitt County Coop director for twentyone years. Errol John was active in Boy Scouts, Student Council and the Gobbler Football Team. Majie was active in Student Council, Future Homemakers of America, and Annual Staff. Both children had many other interests. Both children completed college, Majie at Incarnate Word College in San Antonio and Errol John at St. Mary's University in San Antonio. Majie married Stephen Peter Takas, Jr. on September 3, 1965 and Errol John married Shirley Ann McKibben on September 5, 1964.

Violet still resides in the old family home on the place. Errol and Shirley's story is written separately. Majie and Steve have two daughters, Tricia and Stephanie. The family has been in San Antonio for twenty-four years.

DIETZE, NORVAN GEORGE "BUZZY"

Buzzy Dietze was born October 13, 1934 to Norvan Gillette "Cutter" and Charlice Dietze. He attended school in Cuero and graduated from Cuero High School in 1953. Buzzy then attended Victoria Junior College where he played football. In 1955 he attended the University of Texas where he was a member of Phi Kappa Psi Fraternity.

On January 28, 1956, Buzzy married Marilynn Mood. She was born in Austin on July 9, 1937. Marilynn came to Cuero in the Spring of 1947 with her parents, Francis Asbury "Penny" and Mary Lee "McCrabb" Mood. Marilyn graduated from Cuero High School in 1955. She attended the University of Texas in Austin. She was a member of Alpha Gamma Delta Sorority.

Buzzy and Marilynn lived in Cuero where he commuted to work at Dupont. Two children were born to the Dietzes. John Frederick (Jeff) Dietze was born on September 20, 1958. Jeff was named for his great uncle J.F. McCrabb. Jeff attended grades 1-8 in Cuero. His ninth year in school was spent in Carrizo Springs. His family then moved to Rockport where he attended Rockport-Fulton High School and graduated Valedictorian in 1977. He then attended the University of Texas where he was a member of the Longhorn football team for two years; member of Delta Tau Delta Fraternity and member of the Texas Cowboys. He graduated from college in 1981.

It was at the University of Texas that Jeff met Elizabeth Jane "Beth" Waggoner. They were married August 15, 1981 at St. Luke's Episcopal Church on the lake in Austin. They moved to San Antonio where Jeff attended St. Mary's Law School. Elizabeth Jane "Beth" Waggoner was born April 18, 1959 in Bryan, Texas. She is the daughter of James Mayo Waggoner and Shirley Jane Johnson Buvens. Most of her childhood years were spent in Tomball, Texas where she attended grades 1,4-12. She graduated from high school in 1977. She attended the University of Texas from 1977-1981 where she was a member of Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority. Beth's paternal great, great, great, great grandfather, Johann Jacob Wagner, Jr. was born in 1754. This was about five years after his father Jacob, Sr., immigrated to America from Germany. Johann Jacob was a great friend of Daniel Boone who lived in Davidson County, North Carolina about 12 miles from Johann Jacobs home. Johann Jacobs home was three miles west of Lexington, North Carolina on Swearing Creek on a farm. Johann Jacob also served in the Revolutionary War.

Jeff and Beth moved to Cuero after Jeff completed law school. He worked for a while in Victoria, then decided to start his own practice in Cuero. In 1985 he completed the renovation of a building he purchased which houses his existing law practice.

Jeff and Beth have three children: John Frederick "Dos" who was born October 31, 1983; Weldon Waggoner who was born October 8, 1985 and Caroline ElizaBeth who was born July 13, 1985.

William Kyle Dietze, the second of the Buzzy Dietze children, was born September 20, 1962. He attended Cuero School from grades 1-4. He then moved to Carrizo Springs and then to Rockport where Kyle graduated from Rockport-Fulton High School in January 1981. He attended the University of Texas for two years and was a member of Delta Tau Delta Fraternity.

Kyle married Claire Marie McCarter in Houston on February 15, 1986. They lived in Houston where Kyle was an insurance agent with John Hancock Financial Services and owned a small real estate company, Land Tech Realty. In June 1986, Kyle went to work for McCarter Energy doing all of their land leasing and purchasing. Claire worked as a land secretary for McCarter Energy. On August 5, 1988 their first child, Alexis Estelle was born. Then in January 1989, Kyle and Claire moved to Cuero where Kyle went to work for his brother doing paralegal work. In 1989 their second child was born on December 23. Her name is Christin Nicole Dietze.

Buzzy Dietze died of a heart attack in 1970 at the age of thirty six. Marilynn later married Linwood Lee Bland in 1973. In 1981 Linwood and Marilynn divorced and she moved to Austin and became a house mother for Beta Sigma Phi Fraternity. After a while Marilynn decided to sell real estate in Austin where she continued to live for the next several years.

Marilynn moved back to Cuero and is presently working for her son Jeff, in his law practice.

DLUGOSCH, FILIP AND KONSTANTINA WARZECHA

Filip (Philip) Dlugosch was born on May 1, 1844, in Upper Silesia, Poland, the son of Frank Dlugosch. The Frank Dlugosch family immigrated to America in 1855, when Filip was 11 years old. Filip's family settled in Meyersville, Texas.

Konstantina (Constance) Warzecha was born on May 20, 1856, in Panna Maria, Texas, the third child of Jan Warzecha and Malgorzata Kuczka Warzecha. Her parents had immigrated by boat from Upper Silesia, Poland, only five months earlier in October to December, 1855, with two sons, Josef, age 5, and Julius, age 2 years. Her mother was pregnant with Konstantina when the family was traveling to America. During the long, hard trip, Konstantina's brother, Julius, died at sea. The family lived in Panna Maria first, where Konstantina and her siblings, August and Maria Warzecha, were born. Konstantina's father served in the Civil War as a Confederate soldier. Then the family moved to Yorktown, Texas, where they settled permanently, and where brother, Stanick Warzecha, was born.

Filip Dlugosch and Konstantina Warzecha were married on November 19, 1872, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Yorktown, Texas. The priest, Rev. Adolph Snigurski, presided at their wedding. At the time of her wedding, Konstantina was using the nickname, Tena, as shown on her marriage license.

Filip and Konstantina were farmers living on a 200 acre farm near Yorktown and near the Ratcliffe Community in the area known at that time as the Five Mile Community. They were neighbors with Tena's brother and his wife, Josef Warzecha and Mary Jendrzey Warzecha.

A large family of eleven children were born to Filip and Tena Dlugosch, including: Thomas, born December 29, 1873; Albina, born November 16, 1877; Bertha, born September 19, 1882, Josephine, born September 25, 1886; Lucy, born December 25, 1888; Caroline, born June 24, 1892; twins Peter and Nick, born September 8, 1894, and also August, Mary, and Julia Dlugosch. Sadness came often to this family. Mary and Julia Dlugosch died as infants, and August died at about age 10 or 12 years. Nick Dlugosch, a twin, died on January 12, 1914, at the age of 19 years, and Josephine Dlugosch, who remained single, died of kidney trouble on July 5, 1917, at the age of 30 years.

There were also happy times for Filip and Konstantina, as many of their children married and gave them grandchildren.

Albina Dlugosch married Pius John Muschalek on April 25, 1899, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Yorktown, Texas. They settled in Yorktown, and were blessed with eight children: Sophie (Danysh), Lucy (Machost), Pete, Ben, John, and Nick Muschalek, and Annie (Migura), and Martha (Danysh).

Bertha Frances Dlugosch married Bob Spinks on December 4, 1908, at the Baptist Church in Harwood, Texas (near Gonzales). They made their home in Harwood, and had three sons: Earl, Leroy, and Bob Spinks.

Lucy Jane Dlugosch married Steve Drapalla on November 16, 1910, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Yorktown, Texas. They made their home in the Lindenau Community, and raised five children: Alvina (Danysh), Frank, Carrie, Regina, and Stanley Drapalla.

Carolina (Carrie) Dlugosch married Peter Danysh, but they had no children.

Peter Paul Dlugosch married Vera Migura and lived in the Five Mile Community near Ratcliffe, Texas. They were blessed with three children: Ben, Constance (Mueller), and Phillip Dlugosch.

Thomas F. Dlugosch remained single.

The summer of 1913 was the time when both Filip and Konstantina contracted pneumonia, and were literally coughing themselves to death. Filip Dlugosch died on July 17, 1913, at age 69 years, and Konstantina Warzecha Dlugosch died only five weeks later on August 26, 1913, at age 57 years. They were buried at St. Mary's Catholic Cemetery in Yorktown, Texas.

Note: In September, 1916, St. Mary's Catholic Church and Cemetery were renamed as Holy Cross Catholic Church and Cemetery in Yorktown. Texas.

DOBBS FAMILY

It was in the early months of 1919 when the Dobbs family moved to Cuero and DeWitt County. The family consisted of James Cole Dobbs M.D., his wife, EBA Horton Dobbs and one young daughter, Elizabeth Horton. Dr. Dobbs had just been discharged from the Army Medical Corp after serving two years as a doctor for the U.S. Army during World War I. He was invited to come to Cuero to again begin practice by Dr. Joe Reuss. He and Dr. Reuss were associate doctors in the Reuss Hospital on Reuss Blvd. until Dr. Reuss's death. Several years after the Reuss Hospital was sold, Dr. Dobbs became an associate in the Burns Hospital specializing in pediatrics and obstetrics. He practiced medicine in Cuero and DeWitt County for thirty four years and his office for all that time was upstairs in the Buchel Building on the northwest corner of Main St. and Esplanade.

During the years that Dr. Dobbs lived in Cuero he was very active in civic affairs and contributed to the growth and prosperity of the community. He was a member of the American Medical Association and the Texas Medical Association through the DeWitt Medical Society and served as president of the latter. He was past president of the Cuero Rotary Club, the Cuero Chamber of Commerce, and the Cuero Independent School District. He was also an active member of the American Legion and the Masonic Lodge. He was a faithful member of the First Presbyterian Church of Cuero and served as a Deacon of the church for many years. At the time of his death, on Aug. 8, 1952, he was acting in the capacity of City Health Officer.

EBA Horton Dobbs was an enthusiastic member of several civic organizations. She served as president of the Hawthorne Club and was an active member of the DeWitt County Federation of Women's Clubs, the Civic Club of Cuero, and the Garden Club of Cuero. She worked on committees for the beautification of the DeWitt County highways and of Cuero. She gave many hours of her time and work to the landscaping of the Cuero Park by planting trees and shrubbery and then taking care of them through the hot summers. The annual Flower Show was one of her special interests and she worked tirelessly for its success each

Mrs. Dobbs was a devout member of the First Presbyterian Church of Cuero. Her special interest was in the youth of the church. She taught Sunday School and was the leader of the Sunday afternoon youth group called the Christian Endeavor. She touched and inspired many young lives. She also worked with the Women's Auxiliary of the church and led several groups of Bible study. She was often called upon for some special church or community service and always accepted cheerfully. She was never too busy to visit the aged and the sick and usually took something to cheer them up. Mrs. Dobbs was chosen Cuero Woman of the Year and Good Neighbor of the Week in the 1940's.

Both Dr. and Mrs. J.C. Dobbs offered their time and energy willing and enthusiastically to the betterment and improvement of the community in which they lived.

EBA Horton Dobbs moved to Denver, Colorado in November of 1960 to live near her daughter, son-in-law, and granddaughter. She died February 4, 1974 at the age of 89 and is buried next to her husband in the Edna, Texas Cemetery.

DOMANN, WILLIAM HENRY FAMILY

William Henry and Helena (Janssen) Domann

William Henry Domann was born August 9, 1851 in Isingher, Kreis Peiretz (Pomerern) Germany. He came to America in 1885, coming into the Texas, Port of Indianola and settling near Cuero, DeWitt County, Texas in the Five Mile Community.

William Domann met and married Maria (Springer) Domann born October 19, 1857 in Salore Island, Texas. To this union three children were born, Henry, Bertha and Augusta. Maria (Springer) Domann died May 7, 1894, and is buried in Hillside Cemetery, Cuero, Texas

William Henry Domann and other German Lutherans of Cuero, Texas and surrounding neighborhoods with the help of visiting ministers organized on July 18, 1886 a new congregation calling it "Evangelical Lutheran St. Marks." William Henry Domann was a Charter Member of this new Lutheran Congrega-

William Henry Domann then met Helena Janssen. She was born in Oldenburg, Germany on May 15, 1862. She arrived at Lindenau, DeWitt County, Texas about 1893.

William Henry Domann and Helena Janssen were married on November 12, 1895. To this union were born six children: Louise Wilhelmina, Otto John, Anna Maria, Sophie Helena, Paul Dietrich and Emma Johanna Pauline. Their home was in the Five Mile Community where the family all worked together. They raised cotton and corn, did some truck gardening, and had some beef and milk cattle. One of the crops raised was onions which they sold for .03 cents a pound.

Helena (Janssen) Domann died March 11, 1917. Paul Dietrich was 11 and Emma Johnna Pauline was 9 years old. The eldest child, Louise Wilhelmina, now took charge of the Domann household until her marriage.

William Henry Domann died January 21, 1919. William and Helena (Janssen) Domann are both buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero, Texas.

DORNBLUTH FAMILY

The Dornbluth family of DeWitt County trace their ancestry to the village of Tangermunde an der Elbe, Germany, where in 1707 one Friederich Dornbluth married Katherina Elizabeth Meyer. The vocation of Friederich is not known but a son, Friederich Christopher, born 1709, was a student of divinity in Halle in 1731. In 1739 he married Christina Elizabeth Richter, probably a widow since her maiden name was said to be Scholpin.

On the Dornbluth family tree Christian Ludwig Dornbluth, born 4 May 1753, is described as the ancestor of the Schnackenburg lineage. A trader and boatman, he married Anna Ilsabe Weise, widow of John Dietrich Fischer, in 1783. A son of this couple, August Wilhelm, also a trader, married Friederisle Charlotte Sophie Ilsabe Schulz in 1811. Their youngest son, Karl Ludwig Dornbluth, a trader of Schnackenburg, was the father of Paul Dornbluth of Cuero and DeWitt County. Karl Ludwig, born 8 April 1833, married Margarette Kathrinka Magdelene Friederisle Blumenthal in 1860. Carl Edward Paul was born 7 August 1864. He was their third child.

As a young man, Paul, as he was known, studied at Luneberg College in Germany. When he was eighteen he left Germany to come to Texas. He lived in Cuero in DeWitt County for the rest of his life. For some fifty years Mr. Dornbluth was associated with H. Runge & Company Bank. He also served as president and member of the Board of Director of Cuero Federal Savings and Loan. In 1933 he formed the Dornbluth Insurance Agency. He remained active in the business until his death in 1952.

In 1896 Paul Dornbluth married Elizabeth Reiffert, the eldest child of Henry and Theodore Blumenthal Reiffert. They had five chil-

1. Dorothy Katherine, born 31 March 1897, married Charles Hackenjos, died in Cuero 2 February 1970. No children.

Carl Henry, born 29 December 1899, married Verna Coppert. Children: Verna Karen married Clyde Bargsley, 3 children; and Nella Carol, married Dr. Don Howe, 1 child. He died in 1987.

3. Herbert Julius, born 1 September 1902, married 1) Lorene Rhodes and 2) Laverne Bennet Beakley. No children.

4. Elizabeth Pauline (Lisa), born 5 October 1905, married James Milton McLean. Children: 1) James, born 20 August 1928, married Juanita Lee, 3 children; 2) William, born 2

Herbert and Paul Dornbluth 1935 Insurance Office, Cuero.

December 1931, married Marilyn Preise, 4 children.

5. Paul, born 2 December 1910, married Florence Bishop, 2 child, Carole. He died in Herbert Dornbluth, third child of Paul and Elizabeth, joined his father in the insurance agency when it was first organized. He continued to conduct the business after his father's death in 1952. Like his father, Herbert was a prominent business and community leader. He was a veteran of World War II and a long time member of the American Legion Post No. 3. A devout Episcopalian, he served on the vestry of Grace Episcopal Church for many years. He also was a member of the Cuero Rotary Club and served as president and was a member of the Masonic Lodge. DOWLEARN, JOSHUA MARTIN, SR. F203

Joshua Martin Dowlearn, Sr. was born in approximately 1831 to Hepzibeth Looker Tavlor Dowlearn and Patrick Dowlearn who were married on July 25, 1830. Josh had nine older half brothers and sisters whose surname was Taylor.

Joshua's mother died when he was about eight years old and his father married Nancy Harvey. They had one son, John, who was killed in Arkansas during the Civil War.

On October 20, 1850 Joshua married Jane Lowe and is listed in the census of that year as living in the same household as his step-mother who was now married to his brother-in-law, B.F. Lowe, Joshua and Jane became the parents of ten children her before her death in

They were, in order of birth, Mary E., Patrick H., Josephine, William, Rufus, Alfred, Jeff, Susan L., Dora, and Sophronia. Joshua then married Rebecca Harkins and fathered five children. They were Joshua Martin, Jr., Alice, Annie Hepzibeth, Walter Hollis, and Cyrus.

Joshua died in 1891 and is buried in Burn's Station Cemetery south of Cuero beside his first wife, Jane Lowe. Joshua served in the Civil War and was a Brand Inspector in DeWitt county at one time. He and his large family lived on Chicolete Prairie and it is said that he kept count of how many of the boys were home by counting the saddles hanging on the porch. At least one and perhaps other of his children were involved in the Sutton-Taylor Fued after the Civil War.

Next to Joshua and Jane at Burn's Station Cemetery is Rufus Dowlearn, Sr. who was this writer's great-grandfather. Rufus married Annie Meeks in 1881 and had one known child, Rufus Tony Dowlearn, Jr. Rufus, Sr. died of pneumonia in the fall of 1887 when his son was 4 months old.

Annie Meeks Dowlearn then married Ben F. Alexander and they had at least four children whose names were Ben, Buck, Si, and Nell.

Rufus Tony Dowlearn, Jr. married Rosa Hoffer in 1906 and they had seven children, four of whom lived to maturity. They were Anita, John and James, twins, and Joseph.

John was this writer's father. He married

Hazel Thomas on November 16, 1938 and they had five children, Dwayne, Thomas, Gary, Anthony and Star.

DOWLEARN, PATRICK F204

In Texas (1824 — 1849)

The first mention of Patrick Dowlearn is in the document appointing the Baron De Bastrop to represent the colonists in the Colony on the Colorado and Brazos in 1824, in the convention for the state of Cohilla and Texas. Dowlearn was one the the signers of this document.

Patrick Dowlearn was registered on May 31, 1827, at "Old Town" in DeWitt's Colony. This was before people were forced by the Mexican government to abandon this site and move inland to their grants in DeWitt's Colony proper. This entry in the register stated that Patrick Dowlearn was born 1799, in Missouri and arrived in DeWitt's Colony from Louisiana.

The next mention of Dowlearn is in his application for 1/4 league of land from the Mexican government in DeWitt's Colony, June 24th, 1827, single, and swore allegiance to Mexico.

The Land Grant was officially finalized on July 25, 1831. This piece of land is located on the Guadalupe River near Cuero, Texas, next to the Josiah Taylor league.

The first few years of Dowlearn's time in Texas are hard to follow, but after 1830 everything found appears to be the same man, Patrick Dowlearn, who married Hepzibeth Luker Taylor, widow of Josiah Taylor, July 25, 1830. Josiah Taylor's league was awarded posthumously, to his widow, in July, 1831. Family stories say Patrick was a widower, but this has not been proven.

Patrick and Hepzibeth had one son, Joshua Dowlearn, who married Jane Lowe. Hepzibeth also had nine children from her marriage to Josiah Taylor.

Hepzibeth died, circa. 1840, and Patrick then married Nancy Harvey in October, 1841. This marriage produced one son, John who never married and was supposedly killed in the Battle of Pea Ridge, Arkansas, during the Civil War.

In 1845 a series of land transactions were begun by Patrick involving himself, and other nearby settlers. These transactions involved a considerable amount of property and the reason for them occuring was finally determined to be Patrick's wish to free his estate from that of his step-children, the Taylor's, who were entitled to inherit the Josiah Taylor League. These transactions were concluded in 1846.

Patrick is known to have served in the Texas Army with William Riley Taylor after the war. While it is almost certain Patrick served during the revolution, no proof has been found to substantiate this.

In 1838, Patrick Dowlearn served on the fist jury to ever hang a man in the Republic of Texas. This occured in Victoria.

Patrick died in 1849 and a deed of trust was executed by his wife, Nancy Harvey Dowlearn shortly thereafter.

DREIER, ALFRED AND AMALIA (HARTMAN)

Alfred and Amalia (Hartman) Dreier

1910 Amalia Dreier with Nora and Alfred with Esther Dreier

Alfred Dreier was born January 9, 1881, the son of William and Matilda (Boldt) Dreier. On August 9, 1905, he married Amalia Hartman who was born August 10, 1885, the daughter of Christian and Amalia (Schaefer) Hartman. In 1919 Alfred inherited the 200 acres that William acquired title to in 1877. Alfred and Amalia lived there and raised cattle and farm products all of their life.

Alfred donated the land for a one room school to the community and was a trustee for many years. The school was named New County Line School. Alfred also helped build a new church, St. John Lutheran Church of Meyersville, built in 1921.

Alfred and Amalia had six children: 1) Nora who died at an early age; 2) Esther married Halley Wendel; 3) Louis married Irene Kahlich; 4) Elvira married Bryant Sholars; 5) Margaret married Allen Wendel; and 6) Luella married Alfred Maurer.

Alfred Dreier died on June 4, 1965 and is buried at St. John Lutheran Cemetery in Meyersville. Amalia Dreier died on September 10, 1960 and is also buried at St. John Lutheran Cemetery.

DREIER, SIMON HEINRICH AND ANNA LUISE FRIEDERICKE BLOMBERG

Simon Heinrich Dreier, before his immigration to Texas, was a weaver in Bosingfeld bei Extertal, Principality of Lippe, Germany. He was born in Bosingfeld on 22 September 1787. He was baptized in the Reformed Church at Bosingfeld on 28 September 1787 and given the baptismal name Simon Henrich. Baptismal sponsors were Simon Heinrich Sutmar, Herman Kruger, Theophilus Gronewald, and Christoph Schake. The parents of Simon Heinrich Dreier were Johann Henrich Drier/Drever (b. 9 May 1763 at Bosingfeld; d. 23 March 1818 Bosingfeld; m. 29 October 1786 Bosingfeld) and Sophie Dorothea Louise Dreier, nee Kruse (b. 1764 Stumpenhagen, Bega bei Dorentrup, Principality of Lippe; d. 30 December 1835 Bosingfeld). Simon Heinrich Dreier died on 24 July 1869 in Meyersville, DeWitt County, Texas, and was buried in St. John Lutheran Cemetery in Meyersville.

On 9 August 1817 in Bosingfeld, Simon Heirich Dreier married Anna Luise Friedricke Blomberg, daughter of Hans Simon Henrich Blomberg (b. May, 1742 Lassbruch bei Extertal, Silixen Reformed Church Parish, Principality of Lippe; d. 25 January 1807 Steinige bei Extertal, Bosingfeld Reformed Church Parish; m. 8 May 1774 Bosingfeld) and Anna Catherina Elisabetha Blomberg, nee Schweppe (b. 20 August 1754 Hagendonop bei Extertal, Principality of Lippe; d. 25 February 1818 Linderhoffe bei Extertal, Bosingfeld Parish; m. #1: 27 September 1772 Bosingfeld to Berend Henrich Korf). Anna Luise Friedricke Dreier, nee Blomberg, was born on 24 January 1796 in Linderhoffe; she died on 13 March 1885 in Arneckeville, DeWitt County, and was buried in Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville.

According to church records in Germany, the marriage of Simon Heinrich Dreier and Anna Luise Friedricke Dreier, nee Blomberg, produced ten children, all of whom were born in Bosingfeld: Simon Heinrich Christian Dreier (b. 9 April 1818; d. 25 April 1818 Bosingfeld); Heinrich Conrad Dreier (b. 11 March 1819; d. 10 May 1830 Bosingfeld); Sophie Louise Charlotte Dreier (b. 11 June 1821; d. 25 May 1822 Bosingfeld); Charlotte Dreier, baptized Dorothea Wilhelmine Charlotte (b. 2 April 1823; d. 10 September 1888 Texas; m. Friedrich "Fritz" Hausmann); Friedrich "Fred" Dreier, baptized Christian Friedrich Conrad (b. 8 February 1826; d. 25 October 1898 DeWitt County; bur.

St. John Lutheran Cemetery, Meyersville; m. Louisa Siekert); Dorothea Louise Dreier (b. 2 February 1829; d. 21 June 1829 Bosingfeld), Dorothea Louise Wilhelmine Dreier (b. 30 June 1830); Justine Sophie Dreier, baptized Sophie Justine (b. 2 June 1833; d. 16 December 1916 Arneckeville; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville; m. 1 July 1853 Meyersville to Christoph Adam Sager); Caroline F. Dreier, baptized Friederike Caroline (b. 4 August 1837; d. 18 April 1902 Texas; bur. Kilgore Community Cemetery, Goliad County, Texas; m. 1857 Meyersville to Heinrich W. Hausmann); Ludwig Hans Dreier, baptized Heinrich Ludwig (b. 25 March 1841; d. 27 October 1922 Goliad County; bur. Kilgore Community Cemetery, Goliad County; m. 21 October 1860 Meyersville to Auguste Meisenhelder).

The following can be found in Verdenhalven, Die Auswanderer Aus Dem Furstentum Lippe, Detmold (1980), p. 231 (translated): "Dreier from Bosingfeld #135, citizen of a country town, emigrated in July 1847, with his wife and . . . children." The Dreier family, consisting of Simon Heinrich, Anna Luise Friedricke, Friedrich, Justine Sophie, Caroline, and Ludwig, sailed from Bremen on 23 September 1847 aboard the Johann Dethardt and landed at Galveston on 2 January 1848. Also listed on the immigration list was a Dor. Dreier age 34, and a Louise Dreier, age 24; it is not clear exactly how these two women were related to the rest of the Dreier family. It is documented, however, that the Dreier family traveled on the same ship with the Gottlieb Hausmann family, also from Bosingfeld. Immigration records denoted that the Gottlieb Hausmann family consisted of Gottlieb Hausmann, age 50, Louise Hausmann, age 50, Gottlieb Hausmann, age 22, Caro. Hausmann, age 17, Heinrich Hausmann, age 14, Wilh. Hausmann, age 9.

The Dreier and Hausmann families evidently followed Friedrich "Fritz" Hausmann, son of Gottlieb Hausmann, and the former's wife, Charlotte Hausmann, nee Dreier, daughter of Simon Heinrich Dreier. The Friedrich Hausmanns were among 122 immigrants who sailed from Bremen on board the Creole on 13 November 1845 and who landed at Galveston on 23 April 1846. The Friedrich Hausmann family and the Adolf Meyer family were the first settlers in Meyersville.

After arriving in Galveston, the Simon Heinrich Dreier and Gottlieb Hausmann families succeeded in securing a wagon, on which their belongings were placed. The immigrants walked the distance from Galveston to Meyersville, where Simon Heinrich Dreier lived the rest of his days. After his death, his widow reportedly moved to Arneckeville.

Excerpts from the reminiscences of Judge William Dreier, grandson of Simon Heinrich Dreier, were printed in A History of DeWitt County by Nellie Murphree (1962). The following information is based on that account.

There was no wood to burn back in Lippe, and peat and turf were used as fuel; consequently, one of the serious handicaps which the German immigrants encountered was their inability to handle an axe. In their new land, the settlers had to learn to cut large trees, to split the logs to build houses, and to split rails for fencing the fields. After a house was built, in order to nail up the cracks with split weather-boards, a large axe was used to hew the logs somewhat straight on the inside.

Many earlier colonists in the northeastern states had traded glass beads for their land; however, the German immigrants to DeWitt County brought some money with them and paid for their land. From Mr. Pettus, Judge Dreier's father, Friedrich "Fred" Dreier, had bought one hundred acres on the 12-Mile Coleto for one dollar an acre, and he built his house on that land. Later Friedrich "Fred" Dreier and his brother-in-law, Fritz Hausmann, who lived together, fired some bricks and sold enough of them so that they could each buy fifty acres individually.

All the settlers built their houses a few yards from the Coleto Creek because they did not know how to dig a water well. The first farmers of the infant Meyersville community had to break the ground for planting with a spade and grubbing hoe. The next year, Simon Heinrich Dreier, who had brought along an ironshare or plow point from Germany, made himself a wooden plow. Ropes were made by hand from hair because there were no grass ropes for sale.

When provisions ran short, the early settlers went to Victoria to obtain needed supplies. The journey was made by foot, and the pioneers brought back only those provisions which they could carry. Later Friedrich "Fred" Dreier bought some teams and began a freight-hauling business from San Antonio, Bexar County, Texas, which he continued until the war broke out. He then hauled cotton to Mexico.

Simon Heinrich Dreier braved unknown seas and unfamiliar lands and customs in order to forge a civilization from virgin soil; and in so doing, he provided his children and grandchildren greater opportunities for freedom, fulfillment, and prosperity. To this immigrant, whose father in Germany had been a peasant houseowner without real property, we owe a tremendous debt of gratitude.

DREIER, WILLIAM AND MATILDA BOLDT

William and Matilda (Boldt) Dreier

William Dreier was born in America. He was the son of Fredrick and a grandson of Henry Dreier, all born in Germany. Henry and family moved to Texas in 1847 and settled about a mile south of Meyersville, Texas. Henry bought a tract of land in 1848, which he later sold to his son Fredrick. During the Civil War, Fredrick went off to fight, leaving his family behind. In a letter written during the Depression William recalled life as it was then: "The people of today are complaining about hard times. If they had seen the times we experienced during the Civil War, they would not complain. We had no shoes and little clothing, and we couldn't buy any because we had no money. We had no coffee, sugar or flour. It couldn't be bought. Parched corn served as coffee, and corn meal was ground by hand. We had plenty of meat, plenty of sweet potatoes and turnips sliced and salted in a barrel instead of sour kraut. Our father, Fredrick, made trips to Brownsville and Mexico with cotton and brought provisions home. A trip would require 7 to 9 weeks and he had to take plenty of corn along to feed his horses because there was nothing to get along the road. Water was scarce and on some ranches he had to buy water for his team.

"When the war broke out my father, Fredrick, was pressed with his team to haul goods for the government without pay. In 1864 he had to go to the war as a soldier, and then the times got still harder. My mother and oldest sister had to spin wool and cotton day and night to make clothing and socks for the family and the lights we had were made by the tinner, (a little fat cup with a wick, the cup being filled with grease).

When my father returned, he brought with him a single shot pistol which has been handed down from generation to generation. Once again, he became a farmer. In 1876 he bought another tract of land, 100 acres four miles south of Meyersville, but this was sold off in 1919."

William Dreier acquired title to another 200 acres in 1877 on which he raised cotton, corn, hay, and cattle. He married Matilda Boldt and had four children: Alfred, Willie, Louise, and Natalie. In 1892, a tornado struck, destroying part of the Dreier home, and in 1898, another razed the entire structure. Luckily, no one was home at the time. The barn was not touched either time, so it was moved about 400 yards and a new home was built. The old barn is still standing (1989).

DREYER, BASIEL AND EMILIE

Basiel Dreyer and Emilie Zengerle were married in the Meyersville Catholic Church on Nov. 10, 1909.

Basiel was the middle son of Gideon and Josephine (Winkler) Dreyer. His brothers were Fred, Xavier, Saverin, Ben, Albert and Edward. His sisters were Mary Lau, Caroline Dreyer and Katie Dreyer.

Emilie was the only daughter of Eduard and Elizabeth (Weiss) Zengerle. Her brothers were Eddie, Albert, Berthold, Hugo, Oswald, Ben, Joseph and Herbert. Of interest is the fact that Emilie being the second child of this family was the last to die.

Basiel was a butcher with his brother Ben in the Arneckeville-Meyersville area. They would butcher cattle and peddle the meat on wagons to families in the area. Basiel would tell how they would butcher in the late evenings, let the meat cool and get up at mid-night to cut up the meat, load it on wagons between heavy sheets and start on delivery about 5 a.m. so that they could finish before the day got too hot. The meat was cut up in large chunks and the liver, heart, kidneys and tongue was given away.

When Basiel and Emilie married they lived in the Arneckeville area where their first child was born, Leonard, born on Aug. 3, 1912. In 1913 they moved to the Green-DeWitt area. In 1916 they bought the Weser Cotton gin and store with Albert Zengerle. The Post Office was in the store and Basiel became the postmaster. The cotton gin was also used to grind corn once a month.

In Weser the Dreyers became parents of three daughters, Helen born Jan. 4, 1918; Mildred, born Nov. 29, 1919, and Alice, born Sept. 20, 1922. The Dreyer's home was the gathering place for many young people and Emilie would cut the young girl's hair. Even today (1989) friends tell the family of the good times they enjoyed and the good bread Emilie would bake. Some of the teachers were boarders in their home.

In 1923 the store and cotton gin were sold and the family moved to the Ander community. In 1926 their 5th child, Victor was born on April 8, 1926. The family moved to the Cabeza community in DeWitt County about 1929.

The move to Cabeza was difficult because all the corn and feed had to be moved by wagon. Basiel would leave very early in the morning and arrive as the sun was setting the same day, a distance of about 35 miles. At the time of their move there was only one family living at Cabeza that the Dreyers knew; (Chas. and Martha Loest Schneider).

The Dreyer's were soon involved in the community and school. Basiel was a trustee for many years. He would tell about the teachers placing applications with the trustees always seemed to come on a day when he was plowing, really dirty from working in the fields. He told of one teacher approaching him while he was plowing and he being unaware of her presence, followed him to the end of long furrow. School was important to the Dreyers and the children were not allowed to miss school except for illness.

Soon after Basiel and Emilie moved to Cabeza they befriended a distant relative of Basiel's. Fridolin Sefferlin who had worked for the Osterloh-Neutzler bank as a handy man, delivery man; came to live with them and remained with them until his death on May 23, 1930.

The Dreyers sold their farm in 1945 after their son, Victor, had gone to the service and was serving in the Philippines during World War II. They moved into Nordheim and enjoyed their home and friends. Basiel died in 1955 at age 79. Emilie continued to live in Nordheim until her health failed at age 89. She then enjoyed her last years at the Yorktown Nursing Home and she died at age 91.

Basiel and Emilie's children are:

1) Leonard who married Carrie Kozielski and they have one daughter, Kathy, who married Peter P. Snoga and their grandchildren are Mark, Matthew and Michael. Leonard retired from the Staffels Feed Company after many years of service with them. His wife, Carrie worked for the J.C. Penney Company and they reside in San Antonio.

2) Helen Dreyer married Newfry Woytasczyk and they have one son, Garland Ray, who is married to the former Linda Foote. They have 2 grandchildren, Suzanne and Steven Woytasczyk. Helen was employed by the Handy Andy Food Stores and Newfry worked for The Lone Star Brewery. They also called San Antonio their home.

3) Mildred Dreyer married Claude Arnold, and they have 4 children. Doris Ann who is married to Clem Waskow. Clem and Doris have 3 daughters, Valerie, and twins, Grace and Gayle. Ray Arnold married Karen Bruns and their children are Kim and Todd. Claudia Arnold married Jerry Deborah and they have one son, Michael. Barbara Arnold married Douglas Audilet and their children are Cassie and Blaze. Mildred and Claude were in the ranching business and Mildred assisted with the many responsibilities that go with ranching. Mildred still lives in Meyersville, the place they called home all during their married life.

4) Alice Dreyer married Milton Onken and they have 2 children, Diana Onken is married to James Carpenter and their children are Jeffrey, Brian and James Christopher. David Onken married Judy Slayman and they have 2 sons, Price and Reed. Alice Dreyer worked for Dr. William Stanton until his death and then worked for Dr. Walter Walthall until her retirement. Milton Onken was with the Fire Department for the City of San Antonio, and they still reside in San Antonio.

5) Victor Dreyer is married to Mary Moy and they have 3 children. James Dreyer married Susan Nelson and they have a daughter Meagan and a son Eric. Caroline Dreyer married John White and they have a son Sean. Phyllis is married to Jerry Ward and their sons are Matthew and Kevin. Victor Dreyer was employed with the Mobil Oil Company for 40 years the later years was with the company in Dallas. His wife, Mary worked for the Plano School District, and Plano is where they call home.

The Dreyers are good and loving parents and grandparents. This article is submitted in loving memory of them by their sons and daughters.

Benoit Dreyer was born in Geishausen, Alsace, France in 1813. Geishause is half way up a mountain that overlooks the beautiful Thur Valley of Alsace. Benoit married Marie Anne Hans on June 5, 1837 in Kruth, Alsace. His occupation is listed as a weaver. Marie Anne was ten years his senior and is listed as a cultivator. They came to America in 1856, landing in New Orleans. They had three children with them. Egdieous (later changed to Gideon), born in 1838, Anna Marie born in 1841, and Joseph born in 1846. Their birth place is listed as Kruth and St. Amarin in the Thur Valley.

Anna Marie married Conrad Semmler and Joseph married Ursula Mueller.

Gideon Dreyer married Josephine Winkler. When they got their marriage license in Clinton in DeWitt on November 6, 1860, Josephine's uncle, Peter Bluntzer was a witness. Josephine's parents, Jacques and Genieveve Jacob Winkler had come with Castro's colonists from the Thur Valley and were on their way to Castroville. Josephine was two years old. Her mother, Genieveve, was a sister to Theresa Bluntzer. Jacques Winkler died before 1850. Josephine had a sister, Theresa, their mother. Geneiveve married Anton Golly in Clinton in 1850. They had a daughter Catherine, who married Conrad DeDear. Josephine's sister, Theresa, married Anton Arnold.

Gideon and Josephine settled in the area behind the Arneckeville School. They had the following children: Fred who married Laura Gisler; Seferine who married Matilda Meisenhelder; Annie who died in 1884; Xavier who married Lena Fetters; Caroline who never married; Mary Theresa who married William Lau; Basil who married Amelia Zengerle; Benjamin who married Elenora Bitterly; Albert who married Margaret McDonald, Katie who never married; and Eddie who married —.

Gideon Dreyer was on the Muster Roll of Capt. Robert Kleberg's Company of Coleto Guards, 24 Brigade, in June of 1861.

Gideon Dreyer is buried in Meyersville in St. Peter and Paul's Cemetery. Josephine moved to Cuero with her two unmarried daughters. When she died in 1936 the Guadalupe River was in the highest flood stage in its history and there were no roads open to Meyersville. It was decided to bury her in Hillside Cemetery because they would have had to wait at least 5 days before they could get to Meyersville.

DROMGOOLE, HUBERT ESTEL

Neon sign designed by Hubert Dromgoole

The Charles William Dromgoole family moved to Cuero in 1918, having lived in Belton and Gillette. They brought their three sons, Hubert, Charles Lawson, P.G. and daughter, Mary Lou.

Hubert was 15 years of age and had already developed skills to help support the family. He worked at various jobs, including railroading and cotton mill work briefly. He went to work in the summer of 1918 at the Coca Cola Bottling Company, owned by Mr. W.E. Beaugarde.

Since most families did not have need of ice through winter months, and there were no electric refrigerators, the Coca Cola Bottling Company only operated about eight months of the year. In these off months Hubert would return to the cotton mill or wherever he could find work. In 1920, the Coca Cola plant was sold to Mr. Robert Randow of Yorktown. Hubert was placed in charge of the bottling operation in Cuero, since Mr. Randow already had the responsibility of his Yorktown bottling plant. In 1925, Mr. E.T. Summers, Sr. bought the Coca Cola plant from Mr. Randow. Hubert remained with Mr. Summers, helping take care of the bottling plant, making signs and painting Coca Cola signs on the walls of large buildings.

Hubert was married to Lera Holdridge of Houston in 1928. To this union were born two daughters, Lela Cathryn and Mary Odessa. After World War II, he made the decision to go into the sign business, doing business as Dromgoole Sign Company, Cuero, Texas, located at 308 West Courthouse. Through his initiative and his bent for sign designing, he learned to sketch, draft and produce lighted neon signs of metal and porcelain, to do the sheet-metal, electrical, painting and erecting of all kinds of signs, as well as bill board painting. At the time he installed the neon glass plant in his shop, he had the only such plant between San Antonio and Rosenburg. He erected the first neon sign to be installed in Victoria at a drive-in on Rio Grade operated by a Mr. Leisner.

One outstanding sign done in Victoria was for the Jet Drive-in Restaurant on the Houston Highway. A metal jet plane 20 ft. long was mounted about 12 ft. above the top of the building on a steel post, around which was neon moving in circles, up and down continuously. Neon outlined the plane which was animated to shoot "sparks" or "flashes" from the rear of the fuselage. The building was lighted externally with neon, plus detailed lettering. Enclosed in a black and white picture of this work of art.

In addition to his own design and manufacture, Hubert did contract work for Swift and Company, Purina Feed Company, Borden's Ice Cream, Valley Gold Ice Cream, and the Flying Red Horse, revolving signs for Magnolia Oil Company. He also lettered the trucks for Gulf Coast Wood Products of Cuero.

The first neon sign he erected in Cuero was the O.K. Courts on West Broadway. As the years passed and plastic signs became popular it was necessary for him to learn that part of the sign trade.

Many of Hubert's signs are still in operation. The Fair Store is the oldest of these, still operating after 48 years. Other signs to be seen still in Cuero are The Doll House Restaurant, Buchel Bank, The Sands Motel, Kainer's Drive-in, the arches over the entrance to the cemetery and although not lighted currently, the Coca Cola sign standing in front of the down town Coca Cola building recently closed. He retired from his sign shop in 1983.

Hubert's wife, Lera, died in 1956, and in 1960, he married Carmen Braselton Markley, a teacher in the Corpus Christi schools. Carmen, along with her two sons, Philip Finley Markley, III, and Steve Judson Markley, moved to Cuero that year, where she continued teaching fourth grade at Hunt Elementary. Later she taught ten years in Junior High and spent the last six years of her tenure in Cuero schools in administration. The last four years of her career in education were spent as principal of John C. French, from which she retired in 1981.

The Dromgooles recently received a plaque designating their home at 308 West Courthouse as one of the historic buildings listed in the National Register of Historical Places in the United States.

DUBOSE, JOSEPH LAWRENCE

Joseph Lawrence DuBose was born in DeWitt County, Texas on November 5, 1868, a son of Joseph Lawrence DuBose, Sr., of Gonzales County and Minerva (Hardy) DuBose. The DuBose family came to the United States from Bordeaux, France, in 1830 and settled in South Carolina and in 1840 John DuBose, grandfather of the subject of this sketch, emigrated to Texas and established a ranch ten miles south of Gonzales, Texas.

Joseph L. DuBose grew up in DeWitt County and at the age of twelve secured his first job, working for four dollars a month. He later worked on his uncle's cattle ranch and by the time he was twenty-one had saved sufficient money to purchase a small farm of his own on Deer Creek five miles from Cuero, where he and his wife continued to live for two years after they were married. He then began to extend his cattle activities and in 1899 leased the noted Francis Cochran Ranch near Nopal in DeWitt County and later bought the Kit Taylor Ranch on Sanders Creek, containing more than two thousand acres of land. By the time he died he had acquired seven thousand acres of land and many hundreds of head of fine cattle.

On November 24, 1897, Mr. DuBose was married in Gonzales to Miss Belle Planck, a daughter of Lewis H. and Nancy Walker (Stephens) Planck, former natives of Kentucky and Mississippi. Mrs. DuBose served as a member of the first Texas Centennial Commission and was a member of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Mr. DuBose was a director of the First State Bank and Trust Company of Cuero and the First State Bank at Westhoff. He was also widely known for his Fourth of July barbecues, which he gave for former World War I Soldiers and Confederate Veterans, each year. This barbecue for many years was an outstanding event in this section of the state. Such notable figures in Texas political life as Senator Tom Connally and former governors, Dan Moody and Ross Sterling were among the personages who at various times accepted invitations to deliver addresses for the annual barbecue.

Joseph Lawrence DuBose died July 8, 1933.

ria. He was a farmer, and they moved to Bay City, Texas where he could raise rice.

To this union three children were born — Suda Belle, Farris and Mary Ann. During the flu epidemic in 1918, during World War I, Sam DuBose died. He is buried in Bay City, Texas.

A year later Dicy Ann DuBose married a Church of Christ minister, Almer Jennings. They had a son, Edwin Parker Jennings, who resides in Florida. Edwin married Annalisa Erikson in 1944 while stationed in New York. To this union a daughter, Victoria Ann, and a son, Edwin Parker, Jr., were born. Annalisa died in 1959, and Edwin later married Lorraine. They lived in Florida. Both of his children are now deceased.

Dicy was a member of the Primitive Baptist church. She moved back to the Stratton community where she could look after her aged parents, W.J. and Mary Clay Parker. Dicy Jennings was born January 19, 1886 and died in 1955. She lacked four months and one day of reaching the age of 100 years. She is buried in the Alexander Cemetery.

Suda Belle DuBose married Bill Hollub. He died after they had been married only 13 months. She later married Alvin McJunkin, and to this union a daughter, Alva Sue, was born. Suda later married Alfred Farmer of Gonzales. He is also deceased. Alva Sue married Sam Bridge, and they have one son, John, who lives in Louisville, Kentucky. Suda Farmer, 1906-1981, is buried in Alexander cemetery at Stratton.

Farris DuBose was born November 3, 1908. He is in the Retama West Nursing Home.

Mary Ann DuBose married Lee Benbow. See Lee Benbow history.

Sam DuBose was a great outdoorsman; hunting and fishing, as the picture indicates, were his hobbies. The picture was taken of a two-night hunt.

DUDERESTADT, HERMAN FAMILY

Herman Duderstadt, the fourth son of Friedrich and Friederike Brandes Duderstadt, was born December 16, 1855, their first child to be born in Texas. He was baptized April 21, 1862, and later also confirmed in St. John Lutheran Church at Meyersville. Like his brothers, he helped take care of his father's large farming enterprises including running the gin, grist mill and the sugar cane and caster bean presses. His help was needed especially when his father was away on a long teamster assignment.

On June 22, 1882, in the St. John Lutheran Church, Herman was united in marriage with Johanna Atzenhofer, born June 16, 1864, a daughter of the Antonio Atzenhofers. Eight sons were born to this union; seven of them grew up to be adults.

Several years after his father's death in 1883, Herman purchased a part of the estate and built a small home near the old family home. His mother, Friedrike, lived alone in her home until her death in 1892. Some years later, to accommodate his growing family, Herman built a large home. He used some of the rocks from the vacant old family home for the foundations of the new home, and for lining a dug water well on this place. Around 1908 the family moved to the former Burg place several miles west of Meversville.

Herman was a farmer and raised the usual cattle, hogs, chickens and turkeys in addition to the corn, cotton and feed crops. In addition to doing her household chores, Johanna also worked in the fields with her husband and sons. The sons eventually became farmers and established their own families. Hard work and thrift were characteristics of the life of these pioneers.

Johanna died June 8, 1930 and Herman died June 22, 1934. They are buried in the Hillside Cemetery at Cuero, Texas. Their children were:

1) Herman Anton, born 31 July, 1883, died 11 October, 1940, married November, 1905 to Josephine Moy, born 22 December, 1885, died 20 February, 1957.

2) Arthur Frederick, born 21 January, 1885, died 19 August, 1970 married 20 November, 1911 to Rosie Lilly Luder, born 13 February, 1886; died 18 May, 1978.

3) Reinhold Otto, born 26 October, 1886, died 21 June, 1950, married 24 July, 1909 to Mary Moeller, born 2 December, 1891, died 26 August, 1979.

4) Hugo Ferdinand, born 29 January, 1889, died 4 February 1954, married 23 November, 1916 to Edna Mary Luder, born 12 May, 1896.

5) Edwin Erwin Anton, born 6 January, 1891, died 23 July, 1962, married 15 February, 1915 to Blanche Krueger, born 3 June, 1893; died 27 March, 1954.

6) Benjamin Wilhelm, born 22 October, 1892, died 5 October, 1968, married 1st 23 November, 1915 to Maggie Harter, married 2nd 6 September, 1955 to Tessie Jewel Yeamans, born 29 May, 1905.

 Paul Johann, born 7 June, 1895, died 2 September, 1895.

8) Philip George, born 23 August, 1896, died 21 June, 1970, married 10 April, 1917 to Louise Harter, born 23 October, 1893, died 12 April 1960.

DUDERSTADT, ALBERT FAMILY

Albert Heinrich and Caroline (Diebel) Duderstadt

On February 8, 1857 at Meyersville, Texas, a fifth son, Albert Heinrich, was born to Friedrich and Friederika Brandes Duderstadt. He was baptized, confirmed and married in St. John Lutheran Church. On December 26, 1880 he married Caroline Diebel, born 27 March 1860, a daughter of Christoph and Katherine Schiwetz Diebel. Seven children were born to this union.

Albert and Caroline built a 2-room home near Upper Meyersville. As the family grew they added more rooms to the house so that it had seven rooms, a bath and three porches on the first floor and three bedrooms upstairs. In 1884, after his father's death, Albert purchased a part of the Friedrich Duderstadt land. In addition to raising sheep, cattle and the usual farm crops, Albert also raised horses, trained and sold them. For additional income, he did some butchering and maintained a sugar cane mill and press where molasses was cooked for his family and for selling to others.

Caroline, or Lena as she was called, busied herself equally as much as Albert with her "Kirche, Kinder und Kueche" (Church, children and Kitchen). With meals to prepare for her seven growing children and for many "farm hands" she had much cooking, canning and churning to do. Many an old red rooster found himself in a "stew" in her kitchen. Often she sat and rocked the cradle with one foot and at the same time, with her hands pumped the wooden ladle up and down in the wooden churn to get the butter made. With a baby in her arms, she often walked far into the pasture to bring the turkevs home.

Among the teachers influencing the Duderstadt children in the Meyersville School were Misses Carrie Kilgore, Sophie Schorlemmer, Sophie Riedesel, and Messrs. Zollinger, Konarksy and Adolph Schack. The children were confirmed in St. John Lutheran Church, and at different times, all sang in the church choir. Daughter, Mathilda, an accomplished music teacher, was organist at the church over 26 years, beginning on her 14th birthday. When Albert and Lena observed their Golden Wedding Anniversary on December 26, 1930, there was the usual group singing with reed organ accompaniment.

In later years Lena enthralled her grandchildren by telling them about post-Civil War incidents that happened at the home of her parents. Once when the Union soldiers came to search her parents' home, Lena and the other children were scared and hid. After ransacking the place and thoroughly searching through the storage trunk, the plunderers left. The family was surprised and relieved to find that the soldiers had not found the money which Mother Diebel had carefully sewn into a pillow in the trunk! Once she saw the soldiers coming in the distance, and perceiving their plundering intentions, she quashed their plan by hiding her husband's new hat and other belongings in a large peach tree in the corn patch nearby. At another time the Diebel family dog barked at the mounted soldiers approaching the house. Without dismounting, one of the soldiers dispatched the dog with one blow of his long saber.

Albert died 8 December 1945 and Caroline died on 10 June 1947. Both are buried in St. John Lutheran Cemetery. Their children were:

1) Gustav Henry, born 3 July, 1881; died 1 March 1910.

2) August Fred, born 23 January, 1883; died 18 September, 1980; married 1 January, 1906 to Frances Franke, born 7 November, 1880; died 23 February, 1961.

DUDERSTADT, ANDREAS FAMILY

The paternal genealogy of Andreas Duderstadt goes back to his grandfather, Johann Heinrich Matthias Duderstadt, born May 1, 1741; and to his father, Herman Christian Andreas, born 5 July 1775, whose wife was Anna Sophia Mumbrauer all from Luettgenrode, Prussia. Andreas was born there on 21 June 1815, three years before his brother, Friedrich, who came to Meyersville in 1854.

On May 4, 1845 in the St. Stephani church in Luettgenrode, Andreas married Sophie Friederike Johanna Dickehuth, b 18 June 1819, a daughter of Andreas and Henriette Barner Dickehuth. By 1851 three children were born to them. When brother, Friedrich, immigrated to Texas in 1854, Andreas came too, on the Ammerland, and worked for George Tennille near Nopal. Having found an ideal spot to rear his family here, Andreas returned to Germany in 1857 and brought Sophie and the children to Texas. Daughter, Johanna, age 12, and John, 9, and Fred, 6, later told stories about the stormy 14-week voyage to Indianola. There some friends, the Christopher Albrechts, and Andreas purchased oxen and a wagon to move to Nopal. After loading their belongings and families on the wagon, there was no room for Christopher and Andreas. They walked the entire trip.

A deed filed on February 27, 1858, shows that Andreas and Sophie purchased 326 acres of land from George Tennille for $407.50. Here, Andreas, a stone mason, built a rock home for his family, a few miles northeast of present Nopal. He also built rock houses and chimneys for others and charged two cows and two calves for the latter. He helped build the courthouses at Gonzales and New Braunfels.

Another son, was born in 1859 but died in 1861. Having left Prussia because of its militaristic and oppressive government, Andreas was eager to become a United States of America citizen. DeWitt County records show that he made his first Declaration of Intention in April 1857 and again in March 1859. It was granted in 1867. The Duderstadts were charter members of St. Paul Lutheran Church in Yorktown. He is No. 67 in the list of signers of the church's first constitution adopted April 21, 1872.

Andreas made several trips into Mexico by ox wagon to bring back timbers and other building materials. On one of these trips he outwitted some bandits. While traveling through a desolate part of the country, he saw riders following him on a distant hillside. Thinking they were bandits, he realized that he must do something to hide his gold pieces. With his auger he bored holes into the thick wagon bed, placed the gold pieces in the holes and put pegs in to make it solid. To hide the spot he rubbed wagon grease across it and rubbed dirt into the greasy area. When the riders caught up with him the next day, they were, indeed, Mexican bandits and demanded his money. In his broken English and German he tried to tell them that he had no money and that they could search him and his wagon. They went through his clothes and ransacked the wagon. Finding nothing they rode away and left him alone. Andreas' cleverness and quick thinking saved his money. He delighted in telling this adventure to his grandchildren. At another time, when Andreas and other freighters, returning from San Antonio, were camping in the brush, they were aroused by sounds of robbers or Indians approaching. He quickly grabbed his bag of money and flung it into the cold ashes of the campfire. Again his presence of mind saved the money and kept the men from harm.

When Sophie fell off a wagon loaded with logs and the wagon wheel went over her arm, the doctor insisted that he amputate the arm, but she would not give in. She said she would rather die with her arm than have it taken off. They brought her to Yorktown to an elderly couple through whose care the arm was saved. For retirement in 1871, the Duderstadts purchased 4 acres of land from A.P. Jordan on the east side of the East Fork of the Main Coleto Creek in Yorktown. Here Andreas built a 4room rock home for them. Sophie died here 2 March 1900, and Andreas, 5 January 1901, at the home of his daughter. Their tombstone is inscribed: "Die Gerechten Seelen sind in Gottes Hand in des Friedens ewigen Vaterland." (The souls of the righteous are in God's hand in the eternal Fatherland of Peace.)

DUDERSTADT, AUGUST FAMILY

August and Frances (Franke) Duderstadt 1906

August Fred Duderstadt, born 23 January 1883, at Meyersville, was the second son of Albert and Carolina Diebel Duderstadt. He was baptized, confirmed, and married in the St. John Lutheran Church. As a child, with his brothers and sisters, he rode to the Meyersville School in a gig. His teachers are listed in the Albert Duderstadt story. He helped deliver meat to the neighborhood, selling choice roasts at 6-8¢ per pound.

On January 1, 1906, August married Frances Franke, born 7 November 1880, a daughter of Emil and Henrietta Bluhm Franke. Before her marriage she worked as a housekeeper and seamstress for the Dr. Wilhelm Scheimer family and others at Meyersville. Three days after the wedding, with the help of relatives, the young couple moved by wagon and buggy, a full day's journey, to their new three-room home at Radford in Karnes County. Crops in this virgin soil were very good, but after five years, the couple wished to be nearer the folks back home. In 1911 they moved to the former John Arnold place in the Weser community. Here their children, A.J., Frances, Alonso, and a stillborn son were born.

In 1912 August participated in the first Cuero Turkey Trot by helping drive 8,115 turkeys from Meyersville to the Guadalupe River where other handlers met them. Another outstanding event was the purchasing of the first family car, a 1915 Model T coupe with a brass radiator and brass rim on the lights. It came from the Cook and Day Motor Co. in Cuero and cost about $600.

A.J. and little Frances (Frankie) attended the Weser, one-room, one-teacher school, three miles from their home. First they rode together on a shetland pony and later A.J. rode a sorrel horse, Sikes. Their teachers were Marguerite Coats, Leona Wagner and Hilda Jablonski. A.J. became very adept at handling his shetland pony and when he was barely big enough to reach the stirrups of his child's saddle, he helped Papa drive cattle to dipping vats, deliver them to a buyer, or take them to a different pasture.

One day Alonso, age 4 or 5, gathered eggs and put them in a small flour sack which he tied to the handlebar of his tricycle. When Mama saw him come riding, she asked if he wasn't afraid of breaking the eggs. He replied, "No, the eggs are in a soft sack!" Once Mr. A. Dahme from Yorktown wanted to find Papa who was working in a field. When he asked Frankie how to get there, she opened the gate for him and said, "Take that road there by the 'Poodah coop'." He gave her a nickel and took the road as directed, by the turkey coop!

having purchased the Fritz Gruetzmacher place in Yorktown, the family moved there on December 28, 1928. Here the children were confirmed in St. Paul Lutheran Church and all graduated from high school. A.J. acquired business expertise at Draughon's Business College in San Antonio and served in the USAF as a Staff Sgt. from 1942-1946 in the European area. After working for businesses in Seguin and Beeville, he established his present Dudes Feed and Seed Store in Raymondville in 1946. On April 9, 1950, A.J., born 12 November 1915, married Dorothy Jean Bilby, born 2 April 1927, a daughter of Cornelius John and Viola Hill Bilby. She retired in 1989 from having been the school nurse at the Raymondville Public Schools for 39 years.

Alonso, born 12 January 1922, attended Texas Lutheran College, served as a Tech. Sgt. in the USA Signal Corps from 1943-1946 in the New Guinea area, and earned an Electrical Engineering degree from U.T. He worked for several oil companies and is now an independent oil operator living in Boling, Texas.

Daughter, Frances sketch is found elsewhere in the Kurt Hartmann story.

With many relatives and friends in attendance, August and Frances observed their silver wedding anniversary in 1931, but the golden anniversary in 1956 was a quiet tour with A.J. and Dorothy to the old Radford home. Frances died 23 February 1961 and August died 18 September 1980. They are buried in St. Paul Lutheran Cemetery at Yorktown, Texas.

DUDERSTADT, EMIL FAMILY

A sixth son, Emilius (Emil) was born to Friedrich and Friederike Brandes Duderstadt at Meyersville on January 23, 1859. He was baptized and confirmed in the St. John Lutheran Church at Meyersville and later married by the Lutheran pastor, G. Stricker. Alvina Bluntzer, born April 23, 1866, the daughter of Urban S. and Amalia Gerhardt Bluntzer, became Emil's bride on December 29, 1885. The couple built a small frame home on 393 acres of land which Emil purchased in 1884 from his father's estate. It was situated bordering the southeast side of his brother, Albert's property. Presently it is the Liebert Schulze place.

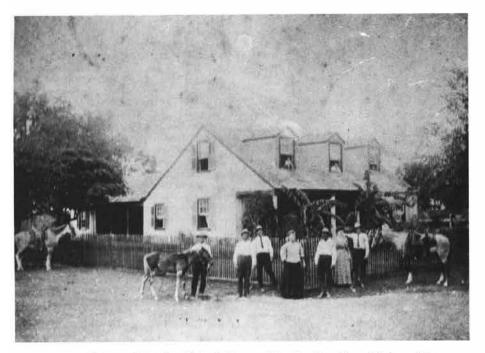

Emil was a farmer and rancher. He also raised many hogs which thrived on the abundant acorns that grew on his land. One day Emil and his brother, Albert, on horseback, were herding some hogs. While chasing after a few strays, Emil's horse galloped so close to a tree that the rider was thrown against the tree and seriously injured. Albert hurriedly summoned a neighbor, Mr. Eibe Adickes, who brought Emil to Albert's house in his spring wagon. A doctor also ministered to Emil, but he died that same day, November 25, 1866. He was buried in Meyersville. Five days after Emil's death, Alvina gave birth to a daughter, Emilie Mary.

The relatives were all very helpful in assisting Alvina through several lonely years. Eventually, she remarried. She and her second husband, Richard Gregorcyk, residing on the Emil Duderstadt place, reared a large family. Alvina died September 4, 1922 at the age of 56 and is buried in St. Joseph's Cemetery at Gussitville in Live Oak County.

Since Emilie was only six years old when her grandmother, Friederike Duderstadt died in July 1892 and left an estate to be divided, Albert Duderstadt became her guardian. Emilie spent a considerable part of her teenage years with the Albert Duderstadt family. When she became twenty-one she received $230 which was her share of the inheritance. Emilie found employment in Dallas where she met and on May 20, 1913 married Joseph Frank Hirscy who was born May 21, 1885 in Jennersdorf, Austria, a son of Andrew and Theresia Deutsch Hirscy. Joseph died 22 February 1944 and Emilie on 5 March 1955, both at Muenster. Their descendants include:

Josephine Emilie Hirscy b 18 May 1916 Dallas; m 11 January 1947, Dallas, to Joseph Francis Gehring (son of Louis and Josephine M. Lindemann Gehring), b 17 June 1914 Modesto, California. Their son is Louis Joseph Gehring b 7 October 1948, Dallas.

DUDERSTADT, FERDINAND FAMILY

Ferdinand and Elizabeth (Atzenhofer) Duderstadt

The first child of Friedrich and Friederike Brandes Duderstadt, Andreas Christoph Ferdinand, was born 5 August 1848 at Luettgenrode, Germany. With his parents and younger brother, Fritz, he came to Meyersville, Texas in 1854. Being the oldest of ten children, he learned to shoulder adult responsibilities at an early age. He learned the art of freighting by accompanying his father on trips to Laredo and other places during the Civil War. Later he was a teamster on a route between San Antonio and Indianola. This round trip often took several months to complete. To avoid Indian attacks the teamsters took turns standing guard around their teams and wagons. In an letter to relatives in Germany, Ferdinand said that Texas could be called the "Promised Land" if the rains came regularly!

On March 23, 1880, at Meyersville, Ferdinand married Elizabeth Atzenhofer, born September 28, 1859, at Meyersville, a daughter of the Antonio Atzenhofers who also had come from Germany. The Duderstadts established their home southeast of Meyersville near the Victoria County line. The land later belonged to Gus Kornfuehrer. Here Ferdinand did extensive farming and ranching. In 20 years, 11 children joined the family at Meyersville and one, the youngest, at Skidmore.

Ferdinand maintained a molasses press for preparing molasses for his own family and for others. The customers brought their cane to the mill. Some of the older boys fed the cut stalks of cane into the press by dashing to the press with their handful of cane just as the horse pulling the tongue of the press had passed a given point. The rotating perpendicular wooden rollers extracted the juice which flowed through vats where it was cooked and skimmed. Customers brought their own barrels or buckets to cart the molasses home.

Around 1900 the family moved to Skidmore and later to Woodsboro. Here, son, Berthold, a soldier in WW I, became ill and died. Early in the 20's, seeking a more healthful climate, Ferdinand and Elizabeth moved to Knippa and engaged in limited farming and ranching.

Ferdinand died here 7 February, 1928. Elizabeth sold the ranch at Knippa and moved to George West and later lived with her son, Johnny, and family at Woodsboro where she died 25 December, 1943. She and Ferdinand are buried in Woodsboro. Their children were:

1) Robert, born 26 January, 1881, Meyersville, died 17 July, 1881.

2) Charlie (Karl) Otto, born 2 May 1882; died 25 July, 1962, married 2 Nov., 1908 to Sophia Caroline Spiekermann, born 17 April, 1884.

3) Anna Bertha, born 9 Aug., 1883; married 17 Dec., 1907 to John Henry Spiekermann, born 9 July, 1882.

 Unnamed twin sister to Anna Bertha, died at birth 9 Aug., 1883.

 Elizabeth Marie Johanna, born 20 Oct., 1885; died early age (no record)

Johanna Bertha Lina, no birth record available, died 1888.

8) Amalie Anna, born 15 Sept., 1889; died 31 Aug., 1957; 1st married 6 June, 1911 to Fritz Bues, born 8 Sept., 1880; died 9 June 1939, 2nd marriage 23 Dec., 1944 to Ben Pieper, born 12 Nov., 1881.

 Berthold Friedrich, born 1 Aug., 1890; died 25 July, 1919 (World War I soldier).

10) Baby Boy Duderstadt (No record available).

11) Elsie Emilie Friedericke, born 17 Feb., 1894; 1st married 14 Nov., 1918 to Emil Kloesel, born 15 Jan., 1885; died 22 Feb. 1947, 2nd marriage 11 Oct, 1951 to Joe Seidenberger, born 27 Feb., 1890.

12) John, born 4 Dec., 1904; married 20 Nov., 1925 to Nola Buchanan, born 1 Sept., 1904.

DUDERSTADT, FRIEDRICH (FRITZ) FAMILY

Millstone at the former Friedrich Duderstadt home

The second son of Friedrich and Friederike Brandes Duderstadt, Friedrich (Fritz) Andreas, was born 13 March 1850 at Luettgenrode, Germany. In 1854 at the age of four, he came with his parents to Meyersville, Texas. Growing up on the farm near Meyersville, he helped run the cotton gin, the caster bean oil press and the grain mill, and during the Civil War, helped his father haul cotton by wagon to Laredo and other places.

DeWitt County Marriage Records, signed by Amos Rooke, show that on 20 December 1873, Fritz married Catherina Badinger, b 19 December 1858, a daughter of the Johann Badingers. This family came to Texas from France in February 1854 and settled in the Arneckeville area. In the course of 20 years, nine children were born to Fritz and Katy (as Catherina was called). Katy's only sister, Elizabeth, married Charles Braun of Meyersville.

Fritz and Katy lived near Meyersville for a few years, moved to Middletown (Weesatche) in 1879, and out to Miguel in Frio County in 1889. Fritz was a successful farmer, rancher and well-driller. He had large flocks of sheep. When the family moved from Weesatche to Miguel, some 125 miles, Fritz, his sons, a Mr. Flowers and others drove the sheep alongside the covered wagon carrying the family and household goods. It took two weeks to reach their destination. When Fritz sold his ranch at Miguel, he moved his family to Lytle. Only occasionally would the family load the covered wagon with food, clothing, bedding, etc. and make the long trip to Meyersville to visit relatives and friends.

In choosing their vocations, Fritz's sons followed in their father's footsteps; Alfred was a well-driller; Fred worked on a ranch and helped drill wells while his wife, Med, taught school; Ervin was a farmer and rancher and Edward was a contractor specializing in building foundations for large structures.

Fritz died at Lytle December 29, 1923, at the age of 73. Catharina died April 15, 1934, at the age of 75. They are buried in the Lytle Masonic Cemetery.

The children of Fritz and Catharina Badinger Duderstadt were:

1) Alfred Ferdinand Herman, b 14 December 1875; d 8 November 1969; m 10 June 1898 to Minnieola Thurber, b 15 June 1881; d 17 November 1967.

2) Sophia Friedericke Elisabeth (Sophie), b 13 March 1877; d ca 1901.

3) Emma Amalie, b 22 October 1880; d 22 February 1927; m to James Wiley Patterson, b 3 August 1871; d 5 March 1953.

4) Edward Emil, b 8 October 1880; d 5 June 1955; m 28 November 1906 to Allie Myrtle Landrum; b 3 August 1893.

5) Fred Albert, b 29 September 1882; d 17 January 1917; m 1st 5 December 1905 to Emma Lee; d 24 November 1906; m 2nd 16 June 1909 to Meddie Lancaster; b 26 March 1882.

6) John Erwin Otto, b 24 September 1884; d 4 November 1962; m 1st 9 June 1905 to Rezzie May Landrum; b 27 December 1891; d September 1905; m 2nd, 6 May 1912 to Mary Annie Cowley, b 25 April 1893; d 10 September 1967.

7) Katherine Emilie, b 22 October 1886; d 1966; m to Will Trafton; d 1956.

8) Elina (Lena) Louise, b 31 July 1890; m Robert Garnand.

9) Mina (Minnie) Lula, b 9 February 1895; m Ernest Wanjura.

DUDERSTADT, FRIEDRICH FAMILY

Christian Heinrich Friedrich Duderstadt, his wife, Friederike, and two small sons, came to Meyersville, Texas in 1854. Friedrich was the son of Herman Christian Andreas Duderstadt, (born July 5, 1775) and the grandson of Johann Heinrich Matthias Duderstadt (b. May 1, 1741) all from Luettgenrode, Prussia, Ger-

Friederike's father was Johann Konrad Jonas Brandes (b. 4 Oct. 1796); her paternal grandfather was Johann Christoph Brandes (b 1765); and her paternal great grandfather was Heinrich Andreas Brandes (b 24 Aug. 1730) all from Rhoden, only five miles from Luettgenrode. In the St. Viet Church in Rhoden on April 5, 1847, Friedrich Duderstadt, b July 19, 1818, married Friederike Magdalene Brandes, b 12 January 1827. Encouraged by letters from relatives in Texas to join them, and because of the unrest in Prussia, the Duderstadts, with their sons, Ferdinand, 6; Fritz, 4; and Carl 2, sailed on the Ammerland from Bremen, Germany, and reached Galveston after a stormy voyage. Since no records are available on Carl, it is believed that he died at sea. After landing at Galveston on Dec. 10 and at Indianola, TX on 20 Dec. 1854, the family, with others, loaded their belongings on a four-horse-drawn wagon for the 60-mile trek on foot to Meyersville. No fires were allowed lest the smoke alert Indians. The group was relieved to reach the homes of relatives at Meyersville.

On 10 January 1855, Friedrich purchased 258 acres of land for $500 from his maternal half-first cousins, Heinrich, Frederick and Augusta Mumbrauer. On this property, three miles south of Lower Meyersville, Friedrich, a stone mason, built a two-story, combination rock and wood home with a basement. Crumbled rocks showing the 24'x34' foundation and 18"-thick walls still exist at the site of the former home, now in the present Wm. Friedrich Estate.

By 1860 three more sons were born to Friedrich and Friederike. Aware of his responsibility to his growing family, he applied for citizenship in the Confederate States on 20 September 1859. This was granted in the 1861 April Term of the District Court of DeWitt County. On January 22, 1868, this same court granted him United States Citizenship status. After the outbreak of the Civil War on April 12, 1861, Friedrich joined Captain Robert Kleberg's Coleto Guards, Reserve Co., DeWitt Co., 24th Brigade, Texas Militia which was organized to repel invasion and had muskets, rifles and revolvers. In August 1861, Friedrich also enlisted in Captain John Jacob Schewitz's 65-member Home Guard, Goliad and DeWitt Counties, 29th Brig., TX Militia. To help with the construction of the St. John Lutheran Church, in 1866, he hauled eight sled loads of rock. While farming was Friedrich's chief occupation, he also built his own wagon for teamstering. Wagons carrying cotton bales were checked at various places by special agents to see that only the legal 10 bales were in each load. Friedrich also built a caster bean press, a grist mill and one of the first cotton gins and presses in the area. With four more children being born to the Duderstadts, Friederike was very busy with the growing household.

Friedrich died 5 February 1883 and Friederike on July 22, 1892. They are buried in the St. John Lutheran Church Cemetery at Meyersville.

The children of Friedrich and Friederike Brandes Duderstadt were:

Ferdinand, b 5 August 1848, Luettengenrode, Prussia; d 7 February 1928.

DUDERSTADT, JOHN FAMILY

John Duderstadt, first son of Andreas and Sophie Dickehuth Duderstadt was born 6 February 1848 at Luettgenrode, Prussia. There at his baptism in St. Stephani Church, he was named Christian Christoph Johann (John). His parentage and voyage to Texas are recorded in the Andreas Duderstadt story. On June 16, 1869, John married Jane Davis at her parents' home at Rancho (Nixon), Texas. For a short time the couple lived there while Andreas finished building their rock home in the southeast corner of Gonzales County, near the Rocky Community, a mile from his own home.

House built for John and Jane (Davis) Duderstadt by Andreas Duderstadt in 1869. Near Nopal, TX

While John became a naturalized American citizen only two years before his marriage, the Davis family had come to America in the days of colonization. Jane was born 12 January 1854, near old Rancho, to George Washington and Amanda Jones Davis, born 12 May 1834 in Tennessee. George, born 14 February 1826, in Tennessee, was the son of Zachariah and Rosanna Chenault Davis, who came to Texas as members of the original DeWitt Colony in 1831. In 1836, Jane's father, at age 10, fled with his parents and other Gonzales County families before the Mexican Army in the "Run Away Scrape." Later he joined Col. Baker's Texas Troops at San Jacinto, registered as a baker, cook, or dishwasher, and fought with John Duderstadt raised and traded cattle, became a herd boss at 24, and made several trips up the Old Chisholm Trail to get his cattle to better markets in Kansas before Jane persuaded him to quit the trail drives. One night while John was away at court in Gonzales, some robbers, knowing he had cattle trail money in his home, tried to scare Jane out of the house. When she and her two small children heard weird sounds from outside, the children were so frightened that they hid under the feather bed and covered themselves with pillows. Jane took a pistol, which she handled well at age 20, went into the yard and shot to either side of the smokehouse, shouting, "I'd hit you if I could see you!" The sounds stopped, but when she returned to the house, the shrieks started again. To keep the money safe, she put the gold and silver coins into a bucket, got a small shovel, carried this heavy load out of the house through a door opposite the smokehouse to a patch of tall weeds where she buried the bucket. Her consoling thought was that even if she didn't live to tell where it was, the area would be plowed some day and the money found. The noises continued until early morning, but the money remained safe until John returned and shared it with the others who had earned it.

John loved the land, and in his lifetime acquired enough acreage to be able to give a farm or ranch to each of his adult children. After his death on 24 May 1910, Jane had another rock home built for herself in Yorktown where she died 11 December 1940. John and Jane are buried in the Billings Cemetery in Gonzales County. Although their children were born at Rocky, Gonzales County, many of their descendants now live in DeWitt County. Their children were:

DUDERSTADT, OTTO FAMILY

Otto and Cresencia (Preiss) Duderstadt

On July 2, 1863 an eighth son, Otto Andreas, was born to Friedrich and Friedericke Duderstadt at Meyersville, Texas. Otto was baptized in St. John Lutheran Church on 12 March, 1865 and later confirmed in the same church by Rev. G. Stricker. Being a member of a large family, Otto learned to help with the farm work at an early age and later worked for others as a "farm hand". On 13 December 1884, Otto paid $750 for a part of his deceased father's land, a part of the Patrick Quinn grant.

Otto married Cresencia Preiss on 12 November, 1885. She was born in Victoria, Texas, February 16, 1864, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Preiss. She, too, had been baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran Church at Meyersville. The young couple settled near Germantown (Schroeder, Victoria County) and by 1891 they were able to build their own home there. All of their eight children were born at Schroeder.

Otto Duderstadt home Nordheim, TX.

Otto liked to farm and was adept at handling and judging horses and cattle. He purchased more land so that his ranch consisted of some 1300 acres. The Duderstadts were charter members of the Lutheran Church at Schroeder and helped build the new St. Lukes Church which was dedicated in May, 1905. Otto used to help receive the offering in church by passing the "klingelbeutel," a black velvet bag (with a little bell and tassel on the bottom) attached to a long handle.

For recreation, Cresencia busied herself with her garden and flowers while Otto, a lover of music, enjoyed the young folks' "play parties". With their oldest daughter, Minnie, playing the family organ, the rest of the family often joined in singing hymns and folk songs for hours at a time.

In 1910 the family moved to Nordheim and in 1914 purchased a two-story home there. Otto continued his farming and owned several businesses in Nordheim. His son, Louis, was overseer for the farm in the Eckhardt Community between Nordheim and Runge, which was struck by a tornado on May 6, 1930. Louis' home there was only slightly damaged, but his three daughters, Mina 15, Hazel, 13 and Marian, 5, at home alone at the time, were thoroughly frightened. The large L-shaped rent house some 100 yards away was completely demolished and nine of the ten members of the Zaragosa Garcia family living there, were killed. A 2x4 beam was found wedged through the 30" trunk of a live oak tree with a few feet of the beam protruding on each side of the trunk.

Otto and Cresencia observed their golden wedding anniversary on 11 November, 1935, having in attendance their seven children and their families including 15 grandchildren, four great-grandchildren and many other relatives and friends. Otto remained active in the church, the Gruenauer Lodge, ODHS of Nordheim for many years . . . always contributing time and talent to the good of the community. He died on July 19, 1941 and Cresencia died 6 February, 1948. They are buried in St. Paul Lutheran Cemetery in Nordheim.

Minnie Friederike born 23 Oct., 1886;
 married 26 Dec., 1907 to Robert Riedel born 24

Aug., 1886; died 4 October, 1968.

2) Clara Caroline Therese born 1 Sept., 1888; died 29 June, 1963; married 30 Oct., 1907 to Emanuel Victor Krause born 21 Oct., 1886; died 5 Feb., 1966.

 Wilhelm Ferdinand born 15 Sept., 1890; died 7 March, 1910.

4) Louis G. born 25 Dec., 1892; died 14 April, 1982; married 10 Nov., 1913 to Myrtle Brown born 23 Feb., 1894; died 25 August, 1978.

 Rosie born 23 March, 1896; died 12 Dec., 1976; married 7 Jan., 1913 to Fred Riedel born 12 May, 1887; died 16 March 1932.

 Elsie born 16 Sept., 1898; died 31 July, 1957.

7) Lilly born 16 Aug., 1901; died 26 April, 1976; married 20 Dec., 1920 to Max Paul Schorre born 17 Nov., 1895; died 9 Feb., 1972.

8) Thelma born 13 Jan., 1904; died 8 June, 1971; married 20 Sept., 1928 to Robert Foster Estill born 3 Aug., 1897.

DUDERSTADT, RICHARD FAMILY

1923 Frieda, Ruth and Richard Duderstadt

Richard William Duderstadt, third son of Albert and Caroline Diebel Duderstadt, was born October 9, 1886 at Upper Meyersville on the family farm. As a boy he helped with farming and cattle roundups. Richard worked for Isaac Egg & Sons store for approximately eight years prior to 1914. He helped drive over 8,000 turkeys on foot to Cuero for their first Turkey Trot in 1912. In 1915, he became the owner of his first Model T car. During WW I, from June 1918 through May 1919, he was in the Armed Forces of our country. First he was stationed at Fort Sam Houston; then in the Motor Transport Corps at Fort Ringgold on the Rio Grande, a country of cactus, donkeys and rattlespakes.

On December 28, 1920 Richard married Frieda Justine Sophie Hartman in St. John Lutheran Church in Meyersville. She was born in Meyersville January 8, 1899, eldest daughter of Friederich Heinrich Hartman and Justine Louise Barbara Hartman, nee Sager. Richard, with the help of a carpenter, Anton Albrecht, built a frame four room bungalow with bath, a front porch and a beautiful large Lshaped porch on the southwest side. This house is near the Albert Duderstadt residence. Richard "Dick" and Frieda attended the Meyersville Public School and are lifelong members of St. John Lutheran Church in Meyersville.

On December 31, 1923 their marriage was blessed with a daughter, Ruth Justine. She helped with the chores at home, enjoying horseback riding, cattle roundups, playing volleyball, taking music lessons and listening to grandma Duderstadt's stories of her childhood days. Ruth's history appears elsewhere.

Diversified farming and ranching, consisted of raising chickens, turkeys, hogs and cattle. Horses and mules were kept to work the fields of corn, cotton, hegari, and sorghum hay, and to round up the cattle. Their 6D cattle brand has been used by the family for over 100 years.

Their land was in the James Duff League along the 12 Mile Coleto Creek. A garden supplied vegetables, peaches and pecans. Extra milk, cream, cheese and eggs were sold to supplement the family income. For good tasting homemade cottage cheese, they would let milk turn into clabber, pour the clabber into a flour sack and hang it up until all the water dripped out. Cream added to the residue enhanced the flavor. If this cheese was left a few more days, it was sufficiently fermented to make the basis for "Koch Kaese". This went well with homemade bread or corn bread and sausage. In the winter hogs were butchered to fill the smokehouse with sausage, ham and bacon.

During the 30's Richard operated a barber shop next to the Christian Hartman Dry Goods Store in Meyersville. The shop was open on Friday and Saturday at which time Frieda and Ruth made homemade ice cream which was sold under the big live oak trees for 5 cents per cup. For winter income Richard hunted raccoons and opossums and shaped, seasoned and cured their pelts which were sold.

In 1939 the REA supplied the area with electricity. The use of electrical appliances revolutionized country living.

Richard and Frieda participated in church activities, including Luther League and Choir. Frieda played the organ for approximately 25 years, taught Sunday School for 25 years and was active in The Women of the Church, Ladies Aid, Sermon Tape Ministry, and visiting the sick and shutins. These activities brought great joy into her life. She also enjoyed canning, sewing, quilting, baking coffee cake, pies and homemade bread.

For relaxation and fun, the family, relatives and friends enjoyed singing and playing instruments. Richard played the violin and bass violin, his sister, Mathilda Egg, the organ, and Ruth the guitar. Volley ball, baseball, dominoes and pitching horseshoes and silver dollars were entertainment for them. Richard enjoyed fishing at Magnolia Beach and Old Indianola where the family enjoyed yearly one week vacations.

Richard died on January 2, 1943. Frieda is presently 90 years old and in fair health. She enjoys visiting, having company, going to church, and spending time with her grandchildren and great grandchildren. The Lord has been the family guide and protection.

DUNN, MARY KATHERINE RIEBSCHLAEGER

Mary Katherine "Kaye" Riebschlaeger was born in Cuero on September 28, 1939 and lived with her mother and father, Evelyn and Charles "Rip" Riebschlaeger and her older sister, Bette Jo, at the home at 609 East Broadway until the purchase of the home of Dr. Robert Wagner at 402 Second Street, which is still the family home. In 1945, Kaye began school at St. Michael's parochial school taught by the Sisters of the Incarnate Word and Kaye Riebschlaeger representing Cuero in Corpus Christi celebration.

Blessed Sacrament from Victoria. Just as her sister had done, Kay began the study of piano under Mrs. Ruth Eberhart. At age 6, she was Junior Representative for Cuero at the Yoakum Tom Tom celebration.

In high school, she played flute and piccolo in the marching and stage bands, and the string bass in the stage band. She was also a majorette and Drum Major of the marching and concert bands from 1955 to 1957. At graduation, she received the Drama Award for her role in the one-act play The Glass Menagerie in which she played Amanda. She also received the American Legion Citizenship Award and the John Philip Sousa Award as Outstanding Band Student.

In the fall of 1957, Kaye enrolled at Texas A&I University in Kingsville, rooming with her good friend, Jo Ann Barth (MacDonald). There she majored in Music Education and played flute and piccolo in the Javelina Band, serving as Drum Major from 1957 to 1960. She also played flute for the Madrigal Group, and in that capacity would have traveled the next year to Russia on tour, had she not decided to marry Bob Dunn of Freeport. While at Texas A&I, Kaye was listed in the Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities (1958), elected "Miss Marine" by the U.S. Marines and the Naval Air Station in Corpus Christi (1959). was a Lantana Lady in the Lantana Court, represented Cuero in the Buccaneer Days in Corpus Christi, and was selected "Aggie Sweetheart" by the agricultural students (1959).

On January 30, 1960, Kaye married William Robert (Bob) Dunn in St. Michael's Church in Cuero before Reverend William Jansen, Pastor. Mr. and Mrs. Dunn made their home initially in Austin, Texas, and on November 10 of 1960, welcomed their first daughter, Mary Elizabeth. While living in Austin, Kaye attended the University of Texas, changing her major to Elementary Education. She and Bob soon had three other children: Robert Kevin, Anne Marie, and Christopher Charles.

The young family moved to the Caribbean, where Bob was employed with Litwin International, an international industrial construction company, working on construction of oil refinery and storage projects throughout the area. For about six months, they live in Ponce, Puerto Rico, where the girls attended the Liceo Ponce for girls and the boys the American School. Soon, they moved to the island of St. Croix in the United States Virgin Islands, where Bob was appointed construction supervisor for all the insulation work on the construction of the Hess Oil Refinery there. It would become one of the largest oil refineries in the world, being built to process Venezuelan crude oil, primarily.

While living in St. Croix, Kaye and Bob and their children had the opportunity to associate with persons from an international community of workers, including Englishmen and exiled Cuban professionals, as well as persons from Holland and fourth-generation Danish descendants living on the island. They also worked with several of these families to develop Good Hope School, a private school of excellent academic rating and with a highly respected swim team, the Good Hope Dolphins, of which all their children were members. In this capacity, the children, often accompanied by their parents, had the opportunity to participate in many swim meets throughout Central America, South America, and the Caribbean Islands, including Havana, Cuba. The Pan American Games were a regular meet in which they frequently swam.

While based in St. Croix, Kaye attended Texas A&I University in the summer, completing her degree in Elementary Education, after which she taught Language Arts on the junior high level in Good Hope. Their four children all graduated from Good Hope High School. Kaye also played flute and piccolo with the Island Symphony. Among their concerts was an anual benefit event for which the pianist-comedian Victor Borge, who makes his home on St. Croix, played as soloist. On St. Croix, the Dunns were members of St. Ann's Catholic Church and often participated in regional conferences with Catholics from other Caribbean islands, such as Trinidad and Grenada. Upon their return to the states, the Dunns settled in Austin, where Kaye now teaches at Deepwood Elementary School in the Round Rock Independent School District. Their four children continue with their adult lives: Mary Elizabeth graduated from Texas A&M University with a degree in Environmental Sciences and from Texas University in Austin with a degree in Civil Engineering. She now lives in Austin and is employed by a civil engineering firm there. As a member of that firm stationed in San Antonio, she helped to design the renovation of the streets, etc., around the area of the Alamo.

Robert Kevin now lives in Austin and is employed as manager of two apartment complexes and also attends Austin Community College, studying advanced computer drafting. Anne Marie graduated with honors from Incarnate World College in San Antonio, where she was recipient of the Amy Freeman Lee award for outstanding leadership, and of the Future Teacher's Award. She also served as Chief Resident Assistant while at Incarnate Word during her senior year. She is teaching at John Jay High School in San Antonio. Christopher Charles continues his education full time at Austin Community College and also works in Austin. At the time of this writing, Kaye and Bob have just purchased a new home outside Austin, near Dripping Springs.

the two years following her marriage to Steve Dunn in 1910. In 1912 the Dunns returned to Cuero where they resided until their deaths.

Stephen James Dunn, Jr. (1884 – Nov. 1926) was born in Yoakum, Texas to Stephen and Annie Heffernan Dunn. Stephen Dunn, Sr., one of the three sons of John Stephen and Elizabeth May Dunn, was reared in the home of his maternal grandparents, the John Mays. John Stephen Dunn, an Irish immigrant to Texas, settled as a large land owner in the Refugio area. Following his untimely death, his widow and three small sons moved to the May homestead in Yoakum, Texas. The John May Family gave much of the land for the

Pat and Myrtie Dunn

Yoakum townsite.

Steve Dunn, Jr., a stockman, began a small dairy business with his wife. Following his death in November, 1926, Annie expanded the dairy and began delivery service twice daily. The dairy prospered until World War II when Pat, Annie's and Steve's son, enlisted in the Coast Guard.

Annie Dunn was a member of the First United Methodist Church for many years.

Annie and Steve Dunn were the parents of two sons: James Alexander and Pat. James, born November 24, 1914, married Virgie Faye Crocker of Cuero. James, an automobile accident victim, died in May, 1959. His widow remarried to John Ballard of Menard, Texas. Virgie, born March 23, 1919, died in Menard, September 9, 1967. Virgie left no issue.

Pat Dunn, born June 12, 1917, married Myrtie Joyce Jackson, daughter of Jesse W. and Adele Lloyd Jackson, June 15, 1942. To this marriage three sons and a daughter were born. Their eldest son (1) Stephen Lloyd, was born April 29, 1944, and resides in Bacliff, Texas. There he and his wife, Carmen Amezaga, are IMB programmers at Houston's Johnson Space Center. Carmen has one daughter, Kartina Jane Amin. (2) Benjamin Blake, born March 1, 1947, married Kathryn Ann Egg, daughter of Ralph and Helen Mae Hartman Egg, September 19, 1970. Blake, Kathy, and daughter, Summer Kathryn, reside in Meyersville, Texas. Blake owns and operates "Dunn Services" and Kathy works as supervisor for Texas Department of Human Resources. (3) Patrick Miles, born January 12, 1959, married Karen Ann Grunder, daughter of Louis and Elorine Schlinke Grunder, June 27, 1981. To this union were born Wesley Myles, born August 29, 1984, and Amanda Kristen, born May 4, 1988. Miles, who resides in Victoria, Texas, works for Victoria C.P.L. (4) Laurie Ann, born January 22, 1960, married John Jeffery Allen on September 22, 1989. They reside in Minneapolis, Minnesota where each is a doctoral candidate of psychology at the University of Minnesota.

Pat became a surveyor after World War II and continued in this business until retirement in 1982. Myrtie was an elementary school teacher in Cuero Independent School District for twenty-six years, until her retirement in 1988.

Pat and Myrtie are members of the First Presbyterian Church of Cuero.

Annie Alexander Dunn married William Thomas Murphree November 9, 1938. Tom's two children by a previous marriage were Eunice Murphree Reiffert, wife of Ralph Reiffert, and Joe Murphree. Eunice and Ralph Reiffert were the parents of Sandra Lynn Reiffert Smythe, who now resides in San Antonio. Joe and his wife, Sally Hill, were parents of Donnie Dale Murphree Good. Following Joe's death, Sallie now lives with her daughter's family in Oklahoma.

William Thomas Murphree, a dedicated member of the Presbyterian Church, died September 3, 1959.

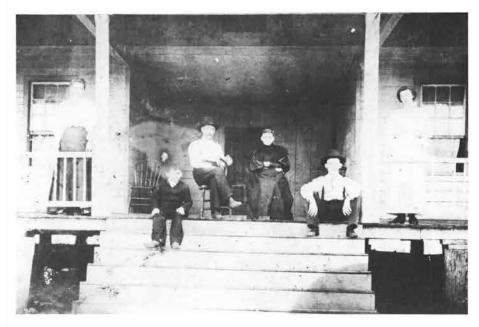

On June 27, 1972 Annie Margaret Alexander Dunn Murphree died and was laid to rest in Cuero's Hillside Cemetery.

EATMAN, A.W. AND ELIZABETH VANN WILLIAMS (PRIDGEN)

Augustus Washington Eatman, son of Henry and Maurine Pridgen Eatman, was born on September 18, 1852, in Eutau Springs, Alabama. In 1873 he and his mother came to live in the Thomaston area.

In 1874 Gus, as he was called, married Elizabeth Vann Williams Pridgen, widow of Wiley Washington Pridgen, Jr. Wiley and Gus were cousins. Elizabeth "Betty" Williams (1842-1916) was the daughter of Oscar Fitzgerald Williams and Harriet Williams, who came to Texas from Tennessee in 1844. Gus helped his wife operate the farm and ranch and to take care of her children, Wiley Winburne (1865-1914), Mary "Mamie" (1867-1895), and John Taylor (1869-1934). Two daughters and two sons were born to the Eatmans: (1) Minnie Mae (Mrs. Walter B. Calliham) (1875-1949), housewife, whose story is included in the Walter Calliham History; (2) Maggie Lee (1878-1920) and her husband, Dr. John A. "Ben" Maness had four daughters. Esther Lee (the late Mrs. Oscar Baker), Laura Eunice "Billie" (Mrs. Ben Caldwell), and Ruth Elizabeth "Bessie" (the late Mrs. Bill Cudd), whose children are John A. Cudd, Leatrice (Mrs. Barkley Yarborough - three sons), and Willie Ben (Mrs. Jack Newman - daughter Melody), and Willie Ben Maness (deceased). (3) William Walter (1881-1936) and wife, Joanna Farrar (1878(4) Thomas Ochiltree, who died of diphtheria at the age of six months.

House built in 1849 by Mrs. Mary Pridgen. Made from Florida lumber brought from Indianola by oxdrawn. L-R: Minnie Eatman, John T. Pridgen, A.W. Eatman, Mrs. A.W. (Betty) Eatman, Walter W. Eatman, and Maggie Lee Eatman.

Maggie Eatman Maness, with her two youngest daughters, Eunice and Willie Ben, came to live with her parents during her mother's last illness. After Betty's death in 1916, Maggie and her daughters lived with her father and her half-brother, John, until she married John Beard in 1917.

In 1924 Minnie and Walter Calliham and their four children moved from the townsite of Thomaston to the farm. Walter farmed and helped take care of the place. In the early 1977) had two sons, Joseph Walter and Arthur William - wife Genevieve - son Arthur Lynn. W.W. was the editor of newspapers at Thomaston and at Westhoff and worked for a time on the Cuero Star. Later he and his family moved to San Antonio and then to Austin where he and his wife were in the real estate business.

1930's Gus moved to Austin, where he lived with his son and family until his death in 1935.

The Eatman home was built by Wiley Washington Pridgen, Sr., and Mary Baker Pridgen in 1849. It stood about one mile north of where Thomaston is now located. The house, built of Florida lumber, was east of present (1989) Highway 87 and faced west. The land was separated into three parts by the highway and by the Southern Pacific Railroad after the 1870's. The home was completely destroyed by fire on a windy Easter Sunday, April 5, 1928. Another house was built on the same spot. Mr. Eatman, John Pridgen, and the Calliham family moved into the new home in the summer of 1928.

Before his death Mr. Eatman divided his land into three parts, deeding a part to each of his children or their survivors. The home place, the center area, was deeded to his daughter, Minnie. Her grandson, David Anthony Calliham, with his wife, Jeanine, and their two daughters and one son, live in the home (1989). They have remodeled the house adding more rooms, and making many other changes. The land across the highway and across the railroad, is owned by Leroy Gloor (1989). The northern section was deeded to Maggie's survivors. Eunice and Ben Caldwell lived there for a time and did ranching. The place has been sold and is now (1989) owned by J.C. Martin, Jr. The southern section was deeded to W.W. Eatman. His widow built a home there where she and her son, Joe, lived for the remainder of their lives. At present (1989) her son, Arthur "Willie" and his wife, Genevieve, live there part time and part time in Austin.

Gus Eatman, a member of the Knights of Pythias and of the Woodmen of the World for many years, served as a DeWitt County Commissioner, Precinct 1, from 1896 to 1908. He was an intelligent man, well-read, though he had little formal education. While commissioner he used the monies wisely as he did his personal finances.

An article in the Illustrated Edition of the Cuero Star, 1906, stated as follows: "Mr. Eatman was quick to respond to all of the improvements needed in the county roads by the commercial interests of Cuero and by his constituents in general. Whenever the means were available, repairs and betterments were promptly and thoroughly made. He introduced in this precinct a distinct road gang, equipped with a number of teams of fine mules, wagons, plows, scrapers, road grader and roller, in addition to his part of the time of the regular county-convict gang, which is similarly equipped."

EATMAN, MOURNING (PRIDGEN)

Mourning (Pridgen) Eatman was born in North Carolina (1812-1897) and was the decendant of Hardy Pridgen. Mourning was the widow of Henry Eatman (1809-1859), a decendant of John Eatman. She has 12 children, but only 3 survived to adulthood.

While still in Eutaw, Greene County, Alabama, Mourning's youngest son, Thomas Henry Eatman (1858-1927) organized a group of families to travel together to Texas. This group included Joseph and Martha Phillips and their children.

The families travelled by train to New Orleans and then boarded a steamship (Morgan Boat Lines) which landed at Indianola, Texas. From there the Eatman and Phillips families then moved to Cuero and Thomaston in Dewitt County. In Thomaston Mourning and Thomas were reunited with Mourning's older son Augustus Washington Eatman.

Mourning was listed as a planteress in the 1860 Census Records for Greene County, Alabama, and she and Thomas continued to farm in their new life in Dewitt County, Texas.

Thomas Eatman married Jessie Hatchet Phillips, daughter of Joseph and Martha (see Phillips history) in 1889 in Cuero and eventually moved to Smith Creek Gonzales, Texas.

Mourning lived with Thomas and Jessie until her death on May 18, 1897 (obituary in Cuero Star). Thomas and Jessie then moved to Liberty Hill, Burnet County, Texas, where they raised on daughter, Mary Thelma Eatman.

EBERHARDT, CHARLES THEOPHILUS

Charles T. Eberhardt was born in the Duchy of Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany on November 27, 1827. This information was in a handwritten, partly burned document dated July 28, 1856, in which he renounced allegiance to "reigning" Duke Ludwig III and made his declarations of intent to become a United States citizen. The town of his birth was not given.

He probably crossed the Atlantic on a sailing ship and debarked in June 1848 at Indianola, Texas, a port later obliterated by hurricanes. Records of his departure from Germany and arrival in the United States of North America have not been found.

We know he owned a large farm near Hochheim, Texas. He definitely owned land by 1849. The farm was near the Guadalupe River. A stockman and farmer, he lived on the main road between Victoria and Gonzales.

He married Carolina Reinhardt on July 31, 1851, a union that produced a son, Theophilus Charles, on May 3, 1852. They also had a daughter, Mary. Carolina lived until 1873.

On January 6, 1875, Charles T. married Cora Allen. Their two daughters were Meta and Sedonia. The marriage ended in six years with the death of Charles T. in 1881. His will shared all his property between Theophilus Charles and Mary, naming T. Charles as guardian of the estate and Mary, if Mary was still a minor.

In 1887, T. Charles partitioned 257 ¾ acres of the land to Mary's husband, Charles Schwab. That year, he also sold 259 acres to Jacob Loeble for $817.

Although Meta and Sedonia's properties were not part of the estate, DeWitt County courthouse records show that Meta sold 106 acres in 1899 to Mary Norton. Two other records show that Sedonia conveyed her interest in 41 ½ acres to Price Allen in 1899, and gave a deed for 80 acres to Eilert Schumacher in 1902.

Grave sites for Charles T., his two wives and three daughters, are unknown. His son, T. Charles, is buried at Fort Valley, Georgia.

T. Charles continued the Eberhardt lineage through his marriage to F. Elizabeth Hartmann. Their marriage produced eleven children. Mary married Charles Schwab, Meta never married and Sedonia married the Reverend Jacob Summers Kennison. Mary had six children and Sedonia had two children.

by Edward L. Eberhardt

EBERHARDT, THEOPHILUS CHARLES

Theophilus Charles Eberhardt, "T.C." was born on May 3, 1852 at Concrete, Texas. He attended Concrete College and taught school for a while in his early years. He was County Clerk of DeWitt County for a number of years; then editor of a Cuero newspaper.

In May of 1874, T.C. married Elizabeth Hartman, at the Meyersville Lutheran Church, by the Rev. John Schaeg. In about 1894, they moved to Anniston, Alabama, then to Prattville. In Anniston he was a stockholder in the Barbour Machine Works. He invented and patented a cotton gin press; also a cotton gin feeder and condenser, which was manufactured and sold by the Continental Gin Co., Prattville, Alabama.

Elizabeth Hartman was the daughter of Christian and Marie (Schroeder) Hartman. She was born on the 26 February 1853 and was a twin to Ferdinand Hartman. ECKHARDT FAMILY

William Eckhardt

In 1843 Charles Eckhardt was in business in Indianola, Texas. Later Charles Eckhardt and Capt. John York were the founders of Yorktown, Texas. In May 1848, Charles Eckhardt contracted with Peter Metz and John Frank to build the first house in Yorktown. This was a log house, twelve by twenty feet, with back room and chimney, and was afterwards occupied by Caesar Eckhardt, a brother to Charles. Charles was a Mexican War veteran and in 1852 he went to Central America and died on his return trip and was buried in New Orleans.

In December, 1849, Caesar Eckhardt, settled in Yorktown with his family. They brought with them a number of German families who have since settled in Yorktown. Caesar was born on August 5, 1806, in Laasphe, Germany. He received a liberal education, was a Lieutenant of artillery in the Prussian army for three years, and afterwards entered the civil service of the government and occupied a position as magistrate when he emigrated to Texas. He married Miss Louise Fisher, in 1833, in Laasphe, Germany. They had eight children: 1) Robert, 2) William, 3) Louise, 4) Emilie, 5) Johanna, 6) Marie, 7) Herman, and 8) Mathilde who was the only one born in Texas.

Caesar died on the 28th of February, 1868 after devoting his life to community service and helping his fellow man. He started the business of C. Eckhardt & Sons in Yorktown.

After his death his widow, Mrs. Louise Eckhardt, continued the mercantile business in partnership with her sons, Robert and William. She died at the age of eighty-four years.

Robert C. Eckhardt was the oldest child of Caesar and Louise Eckhardt and was born March 17, 1836. At the age of twenty-four he married Miss Caroline Kleberg, daughter of Judge Robert Kelberg. He joined Wood's regiment of Texas Cavalry and served with distinction. He was the first Mayor of Yorktown. He was the father of eleven children. He died on February 28, 1887.

William Eckhardt, son of Caesar and Louise Eckhardt, was born January 24, 1838. He developed an early talent for mechanics and applied it in many useful ways on his father's farm and at the store, by stocking plows, making all kinds of furniture, building houses and constructing many other useful contrivances. William joined the first company of volunteers raised in DeWitt County for Confederate service, a company commanded by Capt. W.R. Friend, of Clinton. He was captured and held prisoner at Camp Butler, near Springfield, Illinois where he remained for three months. He was exchanged at City Point. Virginia in May, 1863. He returned to military duty and was finally discharged from service at Cedar Town, Georgia as an invalid and it was three or four years after the war before he regained his health.

William Eckhardt became the sole owner of the C. Eckhardt & Sons, store after the death of his parents and brother. He has been very successful in all his business undertakings.

In 1865 he married Miss Mary Gohmert who has bore him eight children.

Marcellus G. Eckhardt was born in Yorktown, Texas on June 14, 1873. His parents were Robert C. Eckhardt, a native of Westphalia, Germany, and Caroline (Kleberg) Eckhardt, a native Texan. Marcellus was educated in the local schools and also attended Southwestern University at Georgetown, Texas and Sewanee University in Tennessee. He was married on the sixth of June 1900, to Miss Agnes Gohmert, a daughter of F.G. Gohmert, a pioneer resident and one of the first post masters of Yorktown.

Marcellus and Agnes Eckhardt have two sons, Marcellus, Jr. and Kleberg Eckhardt. Marcellus, Jr. graduated from Vanderbilt and was an attorney in Corpus Christi. Dr. Kleberg Eckhardt graduated from the Texas University Medical School at Galveston and is practicing medicine in Corpus Christi.

Marcellus G. Eckhardt was a farmer and rancher. He raised Hereford cattle and feeder cattle. He also was a breeder of fine horses and raised Poland China hogs, sheep, goats and a large number of turkeys. Cotton was the principal cash crop grown on his farms with feed for the livestock making up the remainder of his agricultural activities.

Marcellus was a director of the First National Bank of Yorktown and the Yorktown Cotton Oil and Manufacturing Company. He was active in civic affairs and was a member of the Masonic Order and an elder in the Yorktown Presbyterian Church.

Marcellus G. Eckhardt died April 15, 1942 and Agnes G. Eckhardt died January 21, 1974. They are both buried in the Kleberg-Eckhardt Cemetery near Yorktown, Texas.

EDGAR, JAMES

F236

James Edgar was born September 10, 1790. He married Selah Witherington and they had nine sons and one daughter. The children were all born in Tennessee. Their first born was Joseph Smith Edgar, who was the first of the family to come to Texas at the age of nineteen. He was in the Battle of San Jacinto but died before he had located his colonization land grant of a third of a league of land. He died in 1836. James and Selah's second son, John Edgar who was born in 1920, came to Texas about 1850 to clear his brothers grant, which was located in northeastern DeWitt County. John was married three times. His first wife was Molly Brown, second was the widow Knox, and the third was the widow Ellen DeLooch. The widow Knox was a Culpepper by birth. She had a son, Thad, that John Edgar raised. John Edgar died on September 12, 1906 and is buried in the Edgar family cemetery. His first wife, Molly, is also buried in the family cemetery

3) Henry B. Edgar was born in December of 1821. He married Alice Morton and they had two daughters, Jane and Bammy. Henry B., then married the widow Jane (Brown) Davis. Their children were: Henry B., Eliza, Sarah, Kate, Kitty and John L. Edgar. Henry B. Edgar died July 22, 1908 and is buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

4) Hyman Edgar was a veteran of the Civil War having served with Captain M.G. Jacobs in the Concrete Home Guard. He married Amanda Thorpe and they had six children: Paul, Perry, Thalia, Annretta, Kate, and Bertie Edgar.

5) Arthur "Art" Edgar was the fifth child of James and Selah Edgar. He married Harriett Brown and their children were Perry and Lee Edgar.

6) William Edgar was born 1824 and died in 1882. He had one son, William E. Edgar. William Edgar is buried in the Edgar family cemetery.

7) James D. Edgar was born in 1826 and died in 1912. He married Martha Jane Hadley who was born in 1834 and died in 1910. They had two sons, Joseph Smith Edgar and Christopher "Kit" Edgar. James and Martha are buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

8) Benjamin Franklin W. Edgar was born in 1835 and died in 1909. He had one child, B.F.W. Edgar II, who was born in 1901. Benjamin Franklin W. Edgar was a member of Company H., Texas State Troops, during the Civil War.

9) Joshua Edgar married Martha Washington Woodward and they had two children: Joshua and Caledonia. Joshua and Martha are buried in the Edgar family cemetery but have no dates on their tombstones.

Palina, the only daughter of James and Selah Edgar married Robert P. Carr, Civil War veteran under Captain M.G. Jacobs of the Concrete Home Guard. Palina and Robert had a son named Wesley Carr, and another son and daughter.

James Edgar died April 29, 1869 and Selah Edgar died April 23, 1873. They are both buried in the Edgar family cemetery on property that is still in the Edgar family in 1990. There was also, a small community between Cuero and Yoakum, Texas which was named Edgar for the family.

EDWARDS - DuBOSE -HOEFLING FAMILY

Edward Morgan Edwards was born in Pontypridd, Wales in 1821. He married Elizabeth Hael in Pontypridd, the exact date is not known. Edward and Elizabeth left Wales in the middle 1800's. The reason for their leaving Wales is not known nor how they decided to settle in this area. Perhaps, like so many other immigrants, they received land grants and they wanted to come to the land of opportunity. Thomas Hael (named changed to Hall in the United States), a relative of Elizabeth Hael, settled in New York City. Thomas died in 1867. He had received a land grant from the Dutch government which was 62 acres in lower Manhattan in the heart of New York City. Since 1950 the Edwards' families have been trying to obtain their inheritance from Thomas' estate. This property is part of Wall Street. It has been a long battle and to date has not been resolved and probably never will.

Edward and Elizabeth had six children: Edward, Walter, Mary (DuBose), Rachel (McFarland), Alice (DuBose), and Margaret. Edward died in 1867 and Elizabeth in 1884. Edward, Elizabeth, Edward Jr., Rachel McFarland, and Walter are all buried in the Edwards' Cemetery which is located on property now owned by Mrs. Werner Sinast in Yorktown. Family history has it that Edward Sr. and one of his sons died on a cattle drive on the Bell place which was a ranch next to the Edwards' ranch. It is believed that one of the Bell's sonin-law was a descendant of Captain York who was the founder of Yorktown.

Mary Edwards was born near Yorktown on June 17, 1861. She often told stories of her horseback rides to and from school. She married Amos DuBose (born June 30, 1878. Mary, Amos and Mary's sister Alice, who also married a DuBose, decided to move to Mason County. Seven children were born to Mary and Amos: Lester, Harmon, Mae (Garrett), Gertrude (Schlein), Harriet (Malone), Violet (Neely), and Emma (Hoefling).

Emma DuBose was born February 20, 1889 in Mason County. She was very proud of her heritage. She often spoke of her grandparents being from Wales. She told many stories of her family traveling in a covered wagon. On one such occasion, on a trip to Arizona, one of her brothers died and was buried along the way. Emma claimed French, English, German, and Welsh descent. Emma's parents, Mary and Amos, eventually came back to this area, first to Charco and then to the Weesatche area. Mary died in 1927 and Amos in 1938.

Emma DuBose married Charlie M. Hoefling on December 16, 1915 in DeWitt County. They were married at the City Hall in Yorktown by a Mr. Hausmann. Charlie was born August 19, 1886. Charlie's family came from Germany originally. His mother died when Charlie and his two brothers were quite young. There were also three sisters who left and went to Houston and never returned. Charlie's father, Charlie Henry, allowed the three boys to be reared by other families. Charlie was reared by the Bud Murray family around Meyersville. Felix was reared by the Ferdinand Boldt family and Andrew was reared by the John Gruenwald family. Felix had two children, David and Elma (DuBose). Ambrose had two children, Anita (Glisner) and George.

Emma and Charlie lived in the Yorktown-Meyersville area all of their married life. They had five children: Carl, born September 25, 1916 (near Meyersville); Mattie, born March 14, 1919 (near Yorktown); Delbert, born July 18, 1921; and Dalton and Dorothy, born May 15, 1924. The last three children were born in Yorktown. Charlie was a farmer and rancher most of his life. He did work as a night watchman for the oil mill in his later years. The children all attended school in Yorktown. They remember teachers Hubert Menn and Bertha Gras. These same teachers taught Carl, Mattie, and Dalton's children. They are still residing in Yorktown.

Carl Hoefling married Otha Bingham on February 18, 1939. They had seven children: Roy, Carlyn, Norman (deceased), Linda, Carlton, Jo Ann, and Phillip. Roy married Marian Wehe. They have two children, Bryan and Sheila. Carlyn married Leo Semper. They have two children, Christie and Paul. Christie is married to Ken Kahlich and they have one daughter, Loren. Paul is married to the former Lisa Adams. Linda is married to Ray Tampke. They have three children: Deborah (who is married to John Ruschhaupt), Cynthia, and Glen. Carlton married the former Sydney Calk. They have three children: Brent, Shawna, and Heath. Brent and his wife Susan have four children: Jeffrey, Blaine, A.J., and Steven. Shawna is married to Joey Hranicky and they have one son, Kyle. Jo Ann is married to Talbert Wendel. She has one daughter, Lisa Bruns and Talbert has three children: Gordon, Jason, and Molly. Phillip is married to the former Mary Ohrt. They have three sons: Shane, Ashley, and Casey.

Mattie Hoefling married Newton Borgfeld on October 12, 1941. Their home is in Yorktown. They have four children: Carolyn (married to Walter Bare, has one son, Greg), Wanda (married to Douglas Franke and has three children: Darren, Cynthia, and Denise, married to Perry Hiebner, has one son, Matthew), Peggy (married to Paul Pugh, has one son, Cody), and Edwin (deceased).

Delbert Hoefling married Jody Hoffman from Palestine. They have two sons, Jerry and Gary. Jerry and his wife Linda have three children: Nickie, Chris, and Cory. Gary and his wife Norma have two children, Devin and Justin.

Dalton Hoefling married Lucille Howard on September 5, 1948. They reside in Yorktown. They have two children, Joan and Kenneth. Joan is married to James Urban and has two sons, Justin and Jared. Kenneth is married to the former Suelyn Crisp and they have four children: Chris, Wendy, Dane, and Kendall.

Dorothy Hoefling married Ernst Dueser on December 26, 1944. They live in Norman, Arkansas. They have two daughters, Myrtle and Diane. Myrtle is married to Walter Farmer and they have two children, Joey and Tammy. Diane is married to Shane Stovall.

Emma and Charlie's home was full of love and their sixteen grandchildren grew up spending a lot of time at their Granny and Gompy's home. Gompy taught the boys to whittle and Granny taught the girls to cook and sew. Granny's sugar cookies were everyone's favorite. Emma (Granny) wrote this poem:

"Thee I love and will forever, You may change, but I will never, If separation be our lot, Dearest ones, forget me not."

EGG, EDWIN, JR. AND CORA GEORGIA (WENDEL)

F238

Edwin Egg was born July 18, 1899 at Meyersville, Texas to Edwin Egg, Sr. and Bertha (Schaefer). Edwin, Jr. started working at the Isaac Egg Store in Meyersville when he was thirteen years old. He hauled cotton bales, turkeys and freight to Cuero and San Antonio. Edwin, Jr. was in on the first turkey drive to Cuero for the Turkey Trot in 1912. The drive from Meyersville to Cuero took a day and a half. When he was sixteen, he attended Peacock Academy in San Antonio. His Grandfather and Mrs. Peacock were brother and sister. When he returned to Meyersville he again went to work at the Isaac Egg Store. He worked from four in the morning until ten at night.

In 1919 on Christmas Day, Edwin Egg, Jr. married Cora Georgia Wendel. In 1918 Edwin had bought ¼ interest in the Isaac Egg store in Meyersville and in Arneckeville. In 1922 Edwin and Cora moved to Arneckeville to run the store.

Cora Georgia Wendel was born April 14, 1900. She was the daughter of Emil and Martha (Ruschhaupt) Wendel. She was born in Rasin, Texas and very soon after her birth the family moved to Meyersville.

Edwin and Cora bought 107 acres of land for fifty dollars an acre in 1924 from Otto Junker at Golly Hollow. They planted corn and cotton but the land had been farmed poorly for so long that the crops were poor. The Eggs started their dairy in 1924 with five cows. In 1925 Edwin had a mail route and a cream route. When the creamery opened in July 1926, they started milking ten cows and later built their herd up to seventeen or eighteen cows. They got their first electric milking machine in 1939. Electricity came to Golly Hollow in 1939. They then milked thirty cows until about 1955. when they quit the business. Later they raised hogs and sold as many as one thousand hogs a year. In 1975 they sold the hogs and retired because of Edwin's poor health.

Edwin Egg, Jr. and Cora Egg had six children: 1) Ruth Martha who married William Burton Poage and after divorcing him, married Charles Ott Moore. 2) Ralph Edwin who married Helen Mae Hartman. 3) Mary Ellen who died of spinal meningitis on Christmas Day in 1932. 4) Joan Vernell who married Charles F. Gohmert. 5) James Arthur who married Dorothy Lee Noack, then married two more times. 6) Alice Jane who married John Tony Moring.

Edwin Otto Egg died in 1988 and Cora (Wendel) Egg died in 1990.

EGG, ISAAC AND HELENE ELSTNER

Isaac Egg was born on December 17, 1834 in Flaach, Canton Zurich, Switzerland. That was also the birthplace of his parents, Jacob and Anna Giesler Egg, and of their eight children: Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Johanna, Gideon, Ernestine, Emilie and Selma Egg. They lived on a farm in a bend of the Rhine River, within hearing distance of the famous Rhine Falls. The Eggs had a brick factory, a vineyard, and they operated a ferry across the Rhine. Because of frequent flooding of their farm, and other economic conditions, they left their homeland for America, as so many of their fellow citizens did at this time. In 1854, they and 8000 other Swiss emigrated to this "Land of Opportunity". It was a serious decision, and Isaac did not favor the move. A ten week voyage brought them, by way of Basel, Strassburg and Paris, then across the ocean in the sailship "Cosburg". They went via New Orleans and Galveston to Indianola, then inland. They had planned to join a Swiss colony in Dallas, but after a short stay with Jacob Schwetz, they settled in Goliad, where some of Mrs. Egg's family lived. However, Isaac and his brother, Abraham, went up the Mississippi to Indiana, Illinois and Iowa working there. When the Civil War broke out, Abraham joined the army, but Isaac chose to "Free-haul" freight for the Confederate Army.

Helene Elstner was born in Neustadt, Bohemia on August 18, 1844. Her father was Joseph Elstner, a master mason and a farmer. Her mother, Helene Buckhart Elstner died when Helene was four years old. Her father married again, and in 1853, came to America with his family on the ship "Friedrich der Grosse (the Great)". Since they were not permitted to land in Galveston because of yellow fever, they landed at Harrisburg, TX and went inland by ox-cart, settling in Lavaca Co. Later Helene met Isaac Egg there in Halletsville, where he worked at hauling freight.

On January 27, 1864, Isaac Egg and Helene Elstner were married in Halletsville, TX. They lived there six months, then went to Goliad. On October 31, 1868, they moved to Meyersville, TX, where Isaac established his business. This story is given separately. They lived in a frame house near his business. Seven children blessed this home: Nellie (died at the age of twelve), Ottilie (Egg) Kiel, Edwin, Alfred, Rudolph, Oscar and Erna (Egg). Ottilie and Erna are buried in Virginia, and Nellie and her four brothers all are buried in the Lutheran Cemetery in Meyersville, TX.

Besides his business, Isaac was also active in community affairs. He was postmaster in Meyersville from 1879 to 1909. He was Justice of the Peace many years, and served as secretary and treasurer of the school board for many years. He was a staunch supporter of the school. Although he spoke only German when he came to Texas, he soon spoke English fluently, and also was able to communicate in Spanish with his many Mexican customers. He conversed easily with all persons and was respected as a leader in the community. He was generous, and, in his business dealings, accurate and fair. As a child, he was taught the doctrines of Zwingli, the leader of the Protestant Reformation in Switzerland. He was openminded in his religious views and believed in freedom and equality for all.

Helene Egg was brought up in the Catholic faith. She died in her home on February 18, 1907. A kind and loving lady, she was all that a good and faithful wife and mother should be. Many friends mourned her passing. She is buried in the Meyersville Lutheran Cemetery. Isaac Egg suffered ill health the last ten or more years of his life, yet he operated his business until shortly before his death on July 20, 1909. He, too, is buried in Meyersville Lutheran Cemetery.

EGG, ISAAC EDWIN

Isaac Edwin Egg and his twin brother, Henry Edwin Egg, were born in Meyersville, TX on June 24, 1905 in the home of their parents, Rudolph and Melanie (Jacob) Egg. They were baptized and confirmed in St. John Lutheran Church in Meyersville. After finishing grade school in Meyersville, they attended and graduated from Baldwin Business College in Yoakum, TX. As often is the case with identical twins, their interests and activities during their childhood and adolescent years were very much the same. This was also evident throughout their entire lives.

As soon as they were old enough to help, Isaac and Henry worked in the store, Isaac Egg's Sons, which, at this time, was owned and operated by sons of the founder of the business, Isaac Egg. Isaac worked mostly as a clerk and postal assistant, as the post office was located in the store and his father, Rudolph, was the postmaster. Henry was a tinner, working in the tin shop, which was also a part of the store. In the 1920's, Isaac and Henry bought the other family members' shares of the business, and from that time until their deaths, they owned and operated the business as partners. Their relationship was always very close. Isaac died on June 1, 1985, and Henry died on November 10, 1986.

When Rudolph Egg died in 1934, Isaac succeeded his father as postmaster, a position which he held for 41 years until his retirement in 1975. On February 13, 1942, Isaac Egg was inducted into the U.S. Army. He received his training in El Paso, TX and in California, after which he was stationed in New Guinea, working as a postal clerk in his unit. After 19 months of action in the jungles, he returned to the States in December, 1944. While he was on furlough, he married Ruth Sager in Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville, TX. After this Isaac was stationed for a short while in Missouri, where he received his honorable discharge from the Army on July 13, 1945. He returned to Meyersville to establish his home and to resume his duties as hardware merchant and postmaster. During his time in the army, Isaac's brother, Henry, served as postmaster.

Ruth Sager was born in Arneckeville, TX on March 23, 1915 in the home of her parents, C.A.H. and Mary (Schorlemmer) Sager. She was baptized and confirmed in Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville. She attended school in Arneckeville, and received her high school diploma from Texas Lutheran Academy, forerunner of Texas Lutheran College, Seguin, Texas. In 1935, she began her teaching career, and in 1942 she received her degree from S.W.T.S.U. in San Marcos, TX, after seven years of teaching and attending summer classes.

After Isaac's return to civilian life he and Ruth lived with his mother in the house in which he was born. In 1965, they moved into their new home, which they had built next to that of his mother. Four sons were born to Isaac and Ruth Egg: Isaac Henry Egg, Richard Paul Egg, Robert Charles Egg and Daniel Louis Egg.

Isaac Henry Egg, born on May 31, 1946, graduated from Meyersville Elementary School and Cuero High School, then attended Victoria Junior College. He served in the U.S. Army two years, one of them in Korea. After his return from the army, he has worked as a farm hand. He lives in the Rudolph Egg home, where he grew up.

Richard Paul Egg, born on March 15, 1948, graduated from Meyersville Elementary School and Cuero High School, then went on to graduate from Texas A&M University. On January 24, 1970 he married Lou Bramlette of Cuero, born January 26, 1948. Richard served several years in the U.S. Navy and graduated from the Naval Academy and then was stationed in Puerto Rico from 1973 until June, 1976, when he received his honorable discharge. He returned to Texas A&M University to earn his Master's degree in Agricultural Engineering. He is now employed by the University as a Research Engineer. Richard and Lou Egg have two daughters: Mary Elizabeth Egg, born in Cuero, TX on October 1, 1972, and Laura Mitchell Egg, born in Ceiba, Puerto Rico on January 31, 1974. They live in College Station. TX.

Robert Charles Egg, born on February 14, 1951, graduated from Meyersville Elementary School and Cuero High School. He earned his degree in engineering, after which he went to Alaska where he was employed as a construction engineer on the Alaskan Pipeline. After the completion of the pipeline, he spent a year in Antarctica with an international team on a scientific research expedition. He returned to Alaska, where he was employed as a camp manager at an oil field in Prudhoe Bay. At the present time, he is employed by the Williams Brothers Engineering Co. in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Daniel Louis Egg, born on January 23, 1956, graduated from Meyersville Elementary School and from Cuero High School. In 1976, he received his degree in Engineering from Texas A&M University. On September 6, 1975, he married Karen Wells of Cuero, born on August 24, 1956. After his graduation he was employed as a Petroleum Services Engineer by Haliburton Company. He worked for them in College Station, Palestine, Jacksboro, and now in Dallas, TX. Daniel and Karen have two children: Stacy Le Anne Egg, born on April 15, 1981, and Jordan Isaac Egg, born on July 8, 1983.

Isaac Edwin Egg retired from the office of Postmaster on June 30, 1975, however, he continued in the hardware business until shortly before his death. Ruth Egg also retired in 1975. Isaac died in Victoria, TX on June 1, 1985. He was buried in St. John Lutheran Cemetery in Meyersville, TX. Ruth Egg lives in their home in Meyersville.

EGG, RALPH EDWIN AND HELEN MAE (HARTMAN)

Ralph Edwin Egg was born on August 21, 1924 to Edwin and Cora Wendel Egg in the Golly Community in DeWitt County 4 miles east of Meyersville. He has one brother Jimmy, and three sisters Ruth, Joan, and Alice Jane. They made their living from a dairy. Ralph was baptized by Rev. H.C. Poehlman and confirmed by Rev. M. Heinrich in St. John Lutheran Church in Meyersville. Ralph went to Golly School for 6 years and graduated from Cuero High School in 1941. In May 1944 he was drafted into the Navy where he served in Japan, Okinawa, Philippine Islands and Iwo Jima, during World War II.

Helen Mae Hartman Egg was born on November 1, 1927 to Edwin and Helen (Diebel) Hartman (their story is in this book) in Meyersville, DeWitt County, Texas. Helen Mae was baptized by Rev. H.C. Poehlman and confirmed by Rev. E.L. Arhelger. She has one sister Edrie and three brothers Hilmer, Fred Ray (deceased) and Harold. They were farmers and ranchers. Helen Mae went to school in Meyersville and graduated from Cuero High School in 1944. When her three brothers served in World War II, she helped her father on the farm.

Ralph and Helen Mae were married on June 30, 1946 by Rev. E.L. Arhelger in St. John Ev. Lutheran Church. They made their home on three of their aunts' and uncles' farms for seven years. In 1953 they purchased 100 acres of land from Helen Mae's parents (one mile from Meyersville) and moved into the same home where she was born. Ralph always loved cattle and dreamed of owning lots of land and cattle. He would buy one or two cows at the Cuero Auction on Friday where they both were employed. They cleared their land and planted grazing for the cattle. In 1954 they built a dairy which they still operate. This land received the Family Land Heritage Award in 1975 for having been in the Hartman family 100 years.

Ralph and Helen Mae were blessed with three children. Laurie Kay was born October 21, 1949 and married John G. Pokluda on May 31, 1975. There are four children. Elizabeth (Lisa) Marie Pokluda (June 17, 1969) and David Scott Pokluda (Jan. 12, 1972) by John's previous marriage to Kay Floyd. Amy Rebecca Stiles (March 2, 1973) by Laurie's previous marriage to Clint Stiles and Jonathon Bob Pokluda born on Nov. 9, 1980. John is a certified land surveyor in Cuero and Laurie teaches fifth grade at St. Michael's Catholic School in Cuero. They also rent John's parents farm land and raise cattle. They live near Cuero.

Kathryn Ann was born March 3, 1951 and married B. Blake Dunn on Sept. 19, 1970. They have one daughter Summer Kathryn born July 29, 1974. Blake has an oil field services company in Meyersville and also raises cattle. Kathryn is employed by the Dept. of Human Services as a supervisor for Children's Protective Services in Cuero. They live in the former Edgar and Freida (Diebel) Hartman home, ¼ mile from her parents.

Joel Ray was born Nov. 28, 1955 and married Cynthia Jane Fischer on Jan. 3, 1976. They have two daughters. Tara Lorna was born Dec. 30, 1981 and Dana Paige on Sept. 25, 1985. Joel is in partnership with his father. He is especially interested in the Registered Beefmaster cattle and keeps all the records on them. Cynthia taught school in Cuero but now enjoys being at home with the family. They live in the house that Helen Mae's grandparents, Fred and Justine Hartman lived in which is located across the road from Joel's parents.

Ralph and Helen Mae are blessed that they and the children all attend the same Lutheran Church in Meyersville. Many Sundays find all fifteen gathered together for a Sunday noon meal at their home.

EGG, RUDOLPH FAMILY

Rudolph Egg was born in Meyersville, TX on Dec. 25, 1977, the fifth of seven children. His parents were Isaac and Helene Elstner Egg. Their story is given separately. Rudolph grew up in his parents' home, near his father's business, Isaac Egg & Sons, mercantile and tinshop. The story is given separately. He started working in the store at an early age and learned the trade from his father. He dedicated his life to the business, which he and his brother, Edwin, operated after their father's death in 1909. After Edwin's death in 1912, Rudolph managed the business and the office of postmaster, which his father and then his brother had held. Rudolph was postmaster at Meyersville until his death. He also taught all of his children the trade. Most of their early years were spent in the store when they were not in school.

Rudolph Egg married Melanie Jacob in 1901. She was born in Ander, TX on Sept. 12, 1879. Her parents were Henry and Carolina Schiffe Jacob. Henry Jacob came to Texas from Alsace Lorraine at the age of 17 in 1861 to avoid serving in the Prussian Army. Carolina Schiffe came from Germany when she was one year old. She learned to walk on board ship. Soon after they landed, her father died. Her mother married Moritz Riedel, owner of the first drug store in Yorktown. Henry and Carolina Jacob are both buried in the Lutheran Cemetery in Meyersville. Melanie had eleven brothers and sisters. All worked hard on their cattle and goat ranch in Goliad County. Melanie remembered going to the creek with a bucket to carry water to the house, and also taking their clothes to wash in the water of the creek. It also provided them with fish to eat.

Rudolph and Melanie established their home in Meyersville just in back of the store. Large live oaks, which still stand today, shaded their yard. Melanie loved growing things, and she always had a garden full of fresh vegetables in season, as well as lovely flowers blooming in her yard, especially roses, which were her favorite. A grandson lives in the home now.

Four children were born to Rudolph and Melanie Egg: Lillian Helen Egg, born Sept. 10, 1902; twin sons, Henry Edwin Egg and Isaac Edwin Egg, born June 24, 1905; and Walter Oscar Egg, born Dec. 19, 1912. All were born in Meyersville.

Lillian Egg married Berthold C. Doehrman in 1922. They worked in the store and later moved to a farm where they owned and operated a dairy until Berthold's death in 1974. Lillian still lives on the farm. They had one daughter, Joyce Ann Doehrmann (married Lawrence Schrade), two granddaughters and two great-grandchildren. Berthold Doehrman is buried in the Lutheran Cemetery in Meyersville, TX.

Henry Edwin Egg married Margaret Bluntzer. They lived in Meyersville, and he helped manage the store and was assistant postmaster his father's death. Margaret died in March, 1979, and Henry died Nov. 10, 1986. Both are buried in the Meyersville Catholic Cemetery.

Isaac Edwin Egg married Ruth Sager in 1945. They lived in Meyersville in the Rudolph Egg home until 1965, when they built a home nearby. With his twin brother, Isaac operated the family business and served as postmaster from 1934 until 1975. Isaac and Ruth had four sons: Isaac Henry Egg, Richard Paul Egg (married Lou Bramlette), Robert Charles Egg, and Daniel Louis Egg (married Karen Wells), and four grandchildren. Isaac Edwin Egg died June 1, 1985. He is buried in the Lutheran Cemetery in Meyersville.

Walter Oscar Egg married Elvie Schrade in 1935. They live in Meyersville, where Walter worked as a mechanic, a truck driver and since 1985, he has served as postmaster in Meyersville. They have four children: Jeanette Egg (married Charles Paudue, he died in 1986), Barbara Elaine Egg (married Arlen Mueller), Rubert Lloyd Egg (married Billie Fay Bauer), Arlen Charles Egg (married Susan Morriss), fourteen grandchildren and seventeen greatgrandchildren.

Rudolph Egg died Feb. 4, 1934. His wife Melanie Jacob Egg died October 21, 1968. Both are buried in the Lutheran Cemetery in Meyersville, TX.

EGG, VANCE FAMILY

Vance Egg family: Kayla, Cindy, Vance and Jordan.

Vance and Cindy Egg live in Meyersville, Texas. They have two children, Jordan was born September 16, 1983, and Kayla was born September 13, 1986.

Vance is Field Supervisor for a construction company in Cuero, and Cindy is the City of Cuero Public Librarian.

Vance was born December 14, 1959. He was raised in Meyersville, the second of three children born to Rubert and Billie Bauer Egg. His great-great grandparents Isaac and Helene Elnstner Egg homesteaded in Meyersville, Texas around 1865 coming from Flaach, Switzerland. They established a business which grew into one of the largest and best rural stores of hardware and groceries. Isaac's son, Rudolph Egg, one of seven children, also helped establish the store. He was married to Melanie Jacob, March 26, 1901. Also he became postmaster when his father died in 1901.

Cindy, born March 30, 1961, at Burns Hospital in Cuero, is the middle of three children. Her ancestors homesteaded in Meyersville, Texas, and are now mostly in the same general vicinity. Her parents are Marvin Hausman of Victoria, and Lornett Hausman of Cuero. She has had training courses in San Antonio, Texas and Corpus Christi, Texas dealing with Library Science and hopes to pursue her career further.

Here is a story below that Vance and Cindy would like to share written by E.A. Lichtenstein, son of Selina Egg Lichtenstein, who was a sister to Isaac Egg, son of Jacob Egg who came to America from Switzerland in 1854. (Which might be more legend than authentic history.) "In olden times the Egg family originated in Italy, where they were known as the Counts of Eggio.

"Now the Counts of Eggio were bold and enterprising men, and it was their custom to patrol the roads in their vicinity, and to relieve the travelers of their burdens. And they grew quite wealthy at this kind of business, until one day they saw coming down the road in their direction, a large armed party. Not knowing the intentions of the armed party, they departed from that locality followed by the armed party at increasing speed. But the Counts of Eggio continued on their way at ever increasing speed, remaining well in advance of the large armed party, until they arrived at the borderline between Italy and Switzerland, when they crossed over the border and settled down among the Swiss.

"Now the Swiss were an independent and an outspoken people, and they refused to recognize the title of nobility of our ancestors. The Swiss said that they were not counts, in fact they told them that they were "nocounts." And so the Counts of Eggio had to drop their titles of nobility and became plain "Egg."

EGG, WALTER OSCAR

Walter and Elvie Egg

Walter Oscar Egg was born on December 19, 1912, the fourth child born to Rudolph Egg and Melanie Jacob Egg in Meyersville, Texas. His father was a son of Isaac Egg who established the Isaac Eggs Sons general store.

Walter had an older sister and twin brothers. He went to school to the seventh grade at the Meyersville School. He then attended Cuero High School's business courses until 1932. He was employed by Isaac Eggs Sons serving as a trucker hauling turkeys and cotton, and doing other jobs as well.

On February 12, 1935 Walter married Elvie

Otillia Schrade, daughter of Berthold F. Schrade and Meta Goebel Schrade. They lived in the house behind the store until they moved to Yorktown in the early part of 1937, when Walter got a job with Cudahy Packing Company. But due to bad business and layoffs, Walter and his family moved back to Meyersville and lived with his widowed mother until Feb. 6, 1939. They then moved to their current residence in Meyersville. During this time, Walter worked whenever he could. He also ground feed for farmers in the area. Around 1941, Walter and Elvie bought an independent milk route from Edwin Egg, and he trucked until 1968. He also worked at the Crescent Valley Creamery in Victoria when he finished his route. In Oct. 1968, Walter became very ill and was required to quit his job trucking and at the creamery. After regaining his health, he then started working for Reuben and Lewis Wendel on their dairy milking cows in the early 1970's. In 1974 he started working for the US Postal Service at the Meyersville Post Office and still works there today.

Walter had also worked as a mechanic with Reuben Wendel in the Schaefer Garage Building in Meyersville. He played the saxophone in a band and was a catcher for the Meyersville baseball team. He was nicknamed "Colonel."

Walter and Elvie were blessed with four children: Jeanette Lucille Egg Pardue, Barbara Elaine Egg Mueller, Rubert Lloyd Egg and Arlen Charles Egg. There are currently 14 grendchildren and 13 great-grandchildren in their family.

EICHHOLZ, WILLIAM T. AND LOUISE (DREIER)

William Theodore Eichholz was born October 1, 1841, in Waldenburg, Schlesian, Prussia. He came to America in October 1860, landing at Galveston, Texas. Just one year later he enlisted in the Confederate Army field artillery under Capt. Herman Wilke. He served as company clerk and remained in the service until the close of the war in 1865.

In Meyersville, on April 18, 1868, he married Freidericka Louise Dreier, born November 23, 1848. She was the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Dreier, longtime citizens of that community. The Dreiers were active members of the Meyersville Lutheran Church, and Louise was the first child christened near the site of the original church building. This ceremony was performed under one of the large oak trees which are still standing. To this union nine children were born. Two died in infancy. The other seven were three sons, Arthur, Hugo and Ferdinand; four daughters, Melanie, Matilda, Hertha and Paula, all of whom lived full and productive lives.

In September of 1865, William began his career as a teacher in DeWitt County at York-town. Over the period of the next ten years, he was school principal at Clinton, Victoria, Indianola and Colettoville. In 1878, he returned to Yorktown and taught there for ten years. In 1888, he established the German-English Independent School at Meyersville, and conducted that school until 1891. As a teacher he was among the earliest to encourage a taste for good music. He played the violin in his classes in order to further their interest. So much emphasis was placed on penmanship that in after years his students could be recognized by their handwriting. He was very influential in having the German language taught in state institutions of learning.

In 1891 when the home on Courthouse Street was completed, he moved his family to Cuero. On July 3, 1891, he founded the Duetsche Rundschau (German Newspaper). He edited and published this paper for twenty years, retiring in September 1913 due to ill health.

William T. Eichholz, affectionately known as Professor Eichholz, was liberal with his time and resources. He supported and contributed to the first brick school building in Cuero. He was a clear and forceful writer, and was firm as to his position on any question he chose to discuss. Nothing pleased him more than being invited to address the public on practically any subject. He gave freely of his time toward securing insurance coverage for members of the newspaper profession.

Professor Eichholz died February 13, 1916, and his wife, Louise, died April 21, 1931. Memorial services were held for each at their home on Courthouse Street, Cuero, Texas. They are interred in the Hillside Cemetery.

ELLARD, MARY ABBIGAIL (ABBY)

Abby Ellard's parents were John Andrew Ellard and Rosetta Woodhall. Born February 2, 1898 in Lehrton Sunflower County, Mississippi. Died November 10, 1974 in Corpus Christi, Texas Nueces County. Buried in Aransas

William Spinks

Pass, San Patricio County, TX. She married March 12, 1916 in Runge, Karnes County, TX (Cabeza), by Rev. Lynn, Methodist minister, to Grover Cleveland Spinks. He was born September 25, 1884 on the Little Colete Creek on the Rooks Place, later known as the George Joneschkies, Sr. land out near Ratcliff. He died March 15, 1936 in Ratcliff Community at home. He was buried in Clinton Cemetery at Clinton, DeWitt County, TX. There were seven children of this union: Marguriete Louise, James Fletcher, Raymond Floyd, William Henry, Prentice Cleveland, Robert Edward (Jack), and Alice Marie.

Two of the boys Raymond and William served their country in the European conflict. Raymond was a Sergeant and William was a Bosnmate 2nd Class in more than one battle. Prentice served for awhile on Okinawa before they sent him home with nervous stomach and a medical discharge. He lived one year longer and died at the age of 19 years. Fletcher was classed as 4F because of his heart. This made him feel bad. He was merchant seaman and traveled to other countries. He held a fireman's ticket. So he signed up in a New Jersey port to take fuel across to our boys in conflict. As so many of our ships were being blown up by the enemy, his future wife stopped him. So he did not do what he wanted to do. There was a fight on the ship and he ended up in a hospital with a bad knee. Robert (Jack) was also a merchant seaman and travelled to other countries and later became a shrimper and bought a home in Port Isabell. He is divorced and now lives alone in a trailer park. He helps out at the park and helps haul mail three times a week. He has also had several heart attacks. Alice Marie is married to Floyd Helwig. She is a housewife and lives at Flour Bluff, Corpus Christi, TX.

EMANUEL FAMILY F247

Ben Emanuel opened his dry goods and clothing store in Nordheim on September 1, 1913. Mr. Emanuel at the time was 49 years old, a native of St. Louis, Missouri, and he had been engaged in merchandising since he graduated from commercial college at the age of 16. Mr. Emanuel's ancestors came from Worms on the Rhine in the 1850s.

The store opened under the name of Bennett's with Mr. Emanuel the managing partner. On January 1, 1918, he bought out Gus Grosse and became the sole proprietor of Emanuel's.

He thought to handle a wider variety of merchandise than his competitors including women's millinery and coats and men's readymade suits. He also sold his merchandise at the lowest marginal profit. In 1918 when the price of cotton goods rose because of the war, a competitor suggested that the three remaining dry goods stores increase the price of overalls from $1.50 to $2.00. Mr. Emanuel replied, "Willie, you run your store and I run mine."

He was a 32nd degree Mason, a member of the Sons of Hermann and the Royal Woodmen and an enthusiastic skat and domino player. For several years he was a trustee on the Nordheim schoolboard. He organized the Nordheim orchestra and for several years was leader and played the first violin.

From birth he had been a member of the Hebrew faith, and even if the high holidays of Rosh-ha-shonah and Yom Kippur fell on Saturdays during the busy fall season he closed his doors. Since there was no Hebrew temple in DeWitt County, he would take his family to San Antonio for services.

His wife, Tillie, helped him in the store. They had two children, Evalyn who was six when the family moved to Nordheim and Victor who was seven. Mrs. Emanuel was better educated and had a wider English vocabulary than most Nordheim women, so her services were widely sought for club work. As long as their children were in school she was president of the Home and School Club. She also was president of the "Royal Neighbors" and treasurer of the Sisters of Hermann. She also was renowned for her angel food cakes. Mrs. Emanuel was born Mathilde Schwarzkopf in Gishuebel, which was then in Austria but is now Czechoslovakia. She came to the United States with her mother in 1889 and married Mr. Emanuel in St. Louis, Missouri, in 1905.

Victor graduated from the 10th grade high school May 17, 1919, one day after he had turned 13, with a record of straight 100s. He attended the University of Texas, was Sports Editor of the Galveston News and the Houston Post and News Director of Houston radio station KXYZ. After 26 1/2 years as one of Harris County Clerk Anita Rodeheaver's supervisors, he retired on May 31, 1989.

Victor married Marian Williams in 1937. They have two children, Marilyn Starr and Victor Lloyd Emanuel. Marilyn Starr has three children, Steve Myers of Austin, Texas, Sherry Holmes of Corvallis, Oregon, and Kathrine Starr of Houston, Texas, as well as three grandchildren, Helen Holmes, Kelton Victor Holmes and Brookman Holmes, Victor Lloyd Emanuel founded Victor Emanuel Nature Tours in Austin, Texas, and offers birding and nature tours of the highest quality. In 15 years his operation has expanded to include tours to most parts of the world. Steve Myers conducts a swimming club.

Evalyn graduated in 1923, one year ahead of her class. She attended Southwest Teachers College and graduated with honors in the top ten of her class. She taught school in Orangefield, Robstown and San Antonio, specializing in Spanish. She is Mrs. Paul Pond, is retired and lives in San Antonio, Texas. Evalyn has two children, Benton Ginsburg and Esther Eden. Benton married Barbara Roe of San Antonio and lives in San Diego, California. They have two sons, Brian Ginsburg and Bradley Ginsburg. Brian attends UCLA and Bradley attends El Cayon High School. Esther majored in Art at University of Houston and now lives in Los Angeles, California, with her husband.

After Mr. Emanuel's death in 1934, Mrs. Emanuel continued the store until 1937 at which time she closed it and moved to San Antonio. She died in 1947.

EVERT, MATTHIAS BOEHL AND MARIA FAMILY

Matthias Boehl, who was a tenant farmer before his emigration to Texas, was born on 13 April 1818 in Gross Gottschau bei Rosenhagen. Potsdam Administrative District, Westprignitz District, now Perleberg District, Province of Brandenburg, Prussian-German Federal States, Germany. His parents, who married on 12 November 1817 in Gross Gottschau, were Joachim Bohl, a farmer and a resident of Wittmoor bei Rosenhagen, Potsdam Administrative District, and Anna Maria Bohl, nee Reimer(s), who was born on 27 November 1778 in Gross Gottschau. According to oral history, the Matthias Boehl family sailed from Bremerhafen (the port of Bremen, Germany) with Christian Wolfe and his wife, Sophie Wolfe, nee Lange. These families landed at Galveston on or about 15 November 1873 and journeyed to DeWitt County, Texas. Although it cannot be determined exactly when the Boehl family joined Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville, DeWitt County, it is documented that Matthias Boehl became a member prior to 1875. Matthias Boehl died on 30 October 1878 in DeWitt County, Texas, and was buried in Zion Lutheran Cemetery in Arneckeville.

On 7 May 1850 in Viesecke bei Kletzke, Potsdam Administrative District, Matthias Boehl married Maria Evert, daughter of a tenant farmer (smallholder), Joachim Evert (b. 19 September 1795 Viesecke; d. 15 July 1856 Viesecke; m. 9 November 1821 Viesecke) and Maria Elisabeth Evert, nee Meier-Meyer (b. 20 February 1799 Viesecke). Maria Boehl, nee Evert, was born on 18 April 1828 in Viesecke; she died on 20 June 1893 in DeWitt County and was buried in Zion Lutheran Cemetery in Arneckeville.

Matthias Boehl and Maria Boehl begat seven children, all of whom were born in Viesecke; Joachim Boehl (b. 17 October 1853; d. 27 October 1853 Viesecke); Friedrick "Fritz" Boehl (b. 2 October 1854; d. 3 August 1911 Texas; bur. St. Andrews Lutheran Cemetery, Weesatche, Goliad County, Texas, m. 24 February 1881 Weser, Texas, to Karoline "Lena" Albrecht); Anna Dorothea "Dora" Boehl (b. 16 October 1858; d. 2 August 1899 DeWitt County; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville; m. John Poehler); girl, born dead on 7 August 1861; Johann "John" August Boehl (b. 31 August 1861; m. 5 October 1884 Arneckeville to Martha Thieme); boy, born dead on 12 October 1866; William Frederick Boehl, baptized Joachim Friedrich Wilhelm (b. 12 April 1869: d. 4 March 1933 Cuero, DeWitt County; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville; m. 19 November 1891 Arneckeville to Johanna

To leave all that was familiar - family, friends, possessions - and to begin a new life in a new land required faith and courage beyond what most of us can imagine or conceive. We offer our gratitude for the lives and accomplishments of our ancestors. To Matthias and Maria Boehl we say, "Thank you for having been." (Emily Dickinson)

FASSETT, FRANKLIN F250

Franklin Fassett

Franklin Fassett was born at Granville, Licking County, Ohio, November 29, 1821, the son of Joseph and Mercy Boardman Fassett. He was a grandson of Captain John Fassett, Jr., who served in Warner's campaign against Montreal in the fall and winter of 1775, and a great grandson of Captain John Fassett, Sr., one of the original settlers who founded the town of Bennington, Vermont, in 1761. Franklin Fassett married Jane McConnell (born Madison County, New York, April 16, 1829), the daughter of James and Sarah Smith McConnell, at Springfield, Illinois, on October 7, 1852. They had three children: Sarah Eliza (born at Springfield, November 20, 1853, married Charles Terrell, 1874, died at Cuero, December 3, 1905); Franklin, Jr. (born at Springfield, March 13, 1858, died at Springfield April, 1864, aged 6 years); and Jane, born Springfield, April 15, 1869.

In 1877 Fassett moved to Texas with his wife and young daughter, Jane. In a series of land purchases he acquired the Fassett Ranch near Nopal and Davy in the western part of DeWitt County. He drove large flocks of sheep overland from Illinois to western DeWitt County but later converted to a cattle operation. Because of his wife's ill health, he made his family home at the Muti Hotel cottages in Cuero. where Mrs. Fassett died in 1883. After her death Fassett moved with his daughter Jane to the ranch where she kept house for him until her marriage in 1892 to Captain J.L. Sheppard. Fassett moved with his daughter and son-in-law to Cuero, where he made his home with them until his death on April 24, 1901.

FAWCETT - READER

Lee and Nettie (Reader) Fawcett

John Fawcett and Mary Slater Fawcett came to America from London, England in 1818. They landed at Baltimore, Maryland and later went to Wheeling, West Virginia where John built a flat boat and with his family floated down the Ohio River. They arrived at Cincinnati, Ohio on December 25, 1818. Their children Thomas, John, Mary and Sarah were born in London, England. A fifth child, William, was born in Cincinnati, Ohio in 1822. John followed the trade of cabinet maker until his death in 1833. His wife, Mary, lived until 1860.

Two of their sons, John and William, came to Texas. John came in 1836. After he acquired a large plantation on the Colorado River in Bastrop County, he sent for his younger brother William. William arrived in 1850 to become his overseer.

William was already married to his bride from Cincinnati. She was Elizabeth Morgan, the daughter of a music teacher.

This Yankee ancestress of ours hated Texas and frontier life. As the Civil War started, William tried to take her back to Ohio. Due to lack of roads, they were delayed and on August 12, 1867, my grandfather Lee was born in Kaufman County. It was then they turned around and returned to Bastrop County. William became a medic for the Confederacy.

William and Elizabeth later had three other children: Ida, Sadie and Mary Theresia.

My grandmother, Jeanette (Nettie) Reader was the daughter of Thomas Jefferson Reader and Nancy Jane Lee. Thomas served in the Confederacy at the age of fourteen. After the war he returned to Audalusia, Alabama where he married his childhood sweetheart. The pressures of the reconstruction period were so great, that they turned westward to Texas and Bastrop County. They had nine children: Ida (Kelley), Nettie (Fawcett), Tempie (Mahler), Zilpha (Barth), Florence (Duncan), Pearl (Merritt), Robert E. Lee (who later became a state representative), William and Arthur.

Both the Fawcett and Reader families helped to settle Bastrop County. It was in a large country school, Pea Ridge, near what is now Smithville, that Lee Fawcett met and fell in love with the beautiful Nettie Reader. Nettie and lee married in 1892. They had ten children. Five of these children were born in Bastrop County. They were Howard, John, Nettie, William and Milton, who died in infancy.

The family moved to DeWitt County at about the turn of the century. They rented a riverland farm from Mr. Koerth, who owned a drug store on Grand Avenue in Yoakum.

Their first child born in DeWitt was James Lee (1903). Dick was born in 1905, Myrtle in 1908, Conrad in 1912 and Lewis Burns in 1913. Lewis died at the age of seventeen months.

Lee and Nettie lived on the riverland farm for several years before buying their own farm several miles outside Yoakum.

Their child William died in a hunting accident at the age of twelve. Their second son, John, died of spinal meningitis off the coast of France during World War I. He was the first soldier from DeWitt County to be brought home for burial.

Most of the Fawcett children married and had families of their own. Howard married Hattie Day. They had three children: Hattie Mae, John and Lester, Nettie married Ira Mayfield and had two children: Fawcett and Lucille. James Lee married Olga Kaspar and had one child, Judith Elaine. Dick married Edith Morgan and had three children: Jeanette, Robert and Carolyn. Myrtle married Jim Bentley and had one child, Nancy. Conrad married Theresia Filipp. They had no children. related to Judy Fawcett Soehnge by her aunt, Myrtle Fawcett Bentley.

FAWCETT, J. LEE AND JEANETTE "NETTIE" (READER)

F253

James Lee Fawcett was born in DeWitt County, Texas on January 14, 1903. His parents were Lee and Jeanette (Nettie) Reader Fawcett. They were farmers in the Yoakum area. They had nine other children.

My father started working for Woodring Meyer Lumber Company when he was twelve. At first he just swept and picked up glass in the driveway. His older brother John worked there also. When John died during World War I, my dad took over his job. He was a salesman, accountant and draftsman. Since his formal schooling stopped in the seventh grade, much of his knowledge came from common sense and correspondence courses.

My mother, Olga Kaspar Fawcett, was born July 20, 1906 in Shiner, Texas. Her parents were Emma Stindt and August Kaspar. Her father was the founder of Kaspar Wire Works in Shiner. This began as a small business in his back yard. He decided it was wasteful to discard the slick wire that was taken up when barbed wire fences were put in. He fashioned this slick wire into horse muzzles and corn shuck baskets. My grandfather Kaspar was an inventor. Since he was left-handed, he fashioned a wire crimping tool for left-handed people. He also connected my grandmother's manual washing machine to his wire cutting machine, thus she had a gas powered washer. Of course, there was a catch, she could only wash when he was cutting wire.

My mother and father met at a dance in Shiner. They married on May 6, 1927 in Shiner, Texas. When they first married, they lived in an apartment in downtown Yoakum. Due to Yoakum being in two counties, their kitchen was in DeWitt county and the living room was in Lavaca County.

My parents had only one child, Judith Elaine. I was born in Yoakum on December 14, 1938. My father became a successful businessman in Yoakum. He began his own lumber company, J. Lee Fawcett Lumber Co., in 1947. Many of the homes in the Yoakum area were designed by him.

My father died in Yoakum on February 5, 1968. My mother still lives in Yoakum.

FECHNER, HENRY AND MARIE FREDERICKE (DAHNE)

F254

Heinrich Ludwig Wilhelm (H.W.) Fechner was born 28 February 1798 in Kmastkrag, Germany. He died in Yorktown 1 December 1881 and is buried in the Westside Cemetery in Yorktown. He married Marie Fredericke Dahne about 1825 in Germany, and they had eleven children. She evidently did not come to Texas. Mr. Fechner and several children came to Yorktown, from Coburg, Germany, around 1852 or 1853. According to a Passenger List, a Wilhelm Fechner and six people came to America aboard the ship, JUNO. Since his family did not all come to Texas at the same time, this could be he. All but one child did come to Texas and most of the family settled in the Yorktown area. The 1870 DeWitt County Census, Precinct 3, Clinton, shows Edward Fechner, 32, a blacksmith, living with his father, Henry Fechner, 73, and sisters, Alvina, 22, and Anna, 20. Henry and Marie Fechner's children were Frederika, Wilhelm, Hermann, Albert, Auguste, Emilie, Edward, Louise, Alvina, Anna, and Marie.

1) Friederika Fechner was born 9 March 1826 in Germany. She was married to Christian Thuem in Germany in 1853. With their family they came to Yorktown in December 1871. Mrs. Thuem died in Ottine, Gonzales County, Texas, 24 March 1916, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Berthold Zedler. She was 90 years and fifteen days of age. She and her husband are buried in Westside Cemetery. Their children are William, Gustav, Mary, Louis, Henry and Emma.

2) Hermann Fischer was born in Germany about 1828. He first married Lena Mertz Schultz, widow of Dr. Bernard Schultz. Their children were Heinrich, Wilhelm, Lena, Minna and Lonnie. Lena Mertz Fechner died in 1898 and Herman Fechner married Alvina Zedler Lenz, the widow of August Ludwig (Louis) Lenz.

3) William Fechner was born about 1830. The 1860 DeWitt County Census shows a W. Fechner, 30, Marie, 29, Emma 3 and Auguste, 9 months.

4) Albert Fechner was born 25 January 1832 and died 24 May 1920. He married Marie Dietrich. They lived in Missouri for a time but moved to Goliad where they are buried. Their children were Wilhelm, Albert H., Julius, Amanda and Alvina.

5) Auguste Fechner was born 28 October 1834 and died in Yorktown 13 July 1918. She came to Texas from Coburg, Germany in 1852 or 1853. She married Henry Bremer in Seguin, Guadalupe County, Texas. They lived in various places in Texas and then lived in Kansas and Missouri before returning to Yorktown around 1902. After Mr. Bremer's death in 1912, she lived with her sister, Alvina Mollenhauer until her death 13 July 1918.

6) Emilie Fechner remained in Germany. She married Frederick Wilhelm Mueller in 1861. He came to Yorktown and died there in 1912. She died in Magdeburg, Germany in 1916. They had 11 children – four died in infancy. Three of their children came to Texas – Frederick W., Jr., Emma and Annie. Frederick married Fredericka Wuensch, Emma married Charles Lenz and Annie married Hermann Fritch.

7) Edward Fechner was born 13 January 1838. He immigrated in 1857 and gave his occupation as blacksmith. He first went to New Braunfels and then spent three years in Mexico. He went to Yorktown in 1866. On 6 June 1867 he married Jane Caroline Eckhardt. daughter of Caesar and Louise Fischer Eckhardt. They had one child, Caesar William. Mrs. Eckhardt died 28 March 1868. Edward married Hermine Wagenschein 29 July 1871. She was the daughter of Carl and Caroline Gottschalt Wagenschein. She died in Yorktown 9 May 1945 and her husband died 23 May 1932. They are buried in Westside Cemetery. They had four children: Robert, Johanna, Hermine and Richard.

8) Louise Fechner was born in 1840 and died 24 October 1939 in Luling, Caldwell County, Texas. She married Frederick C. Zedler 22 Feb. 1863 in Yorktown. He was the son of Gustav and Marie Pauline Kluge Zedler. He died 15 Sept. 1932 in Luling. They first lived in Mexico where their first two children were born. Ida was born and died there. Berthold was also born there. The couple moved to Yorktown where Marie, Helen and Louise were born. Herman, Charles, Paul and Pauline were born in Zedler's Mill, Gonzales County, and Frances was born in Luling.

9) Alvina Fechner was born 12 June 1846. She came to Yorktown in 1869 and married Henry Mollenhauer 29 July 1871 in Yorktown. She died 7 July 1945, the last surviving of the 11 children of Henry and Marie Fechner. See separate story.

10) Anna Fechner was born 20 June 1850 and also came to Yorktown in 1869. She married Otto Gips 11 August 1872, and they lived in Yorktown. (See separate story.)

11) Marie Fechner was born in Germany and died in Cuero, Texas 26 February 1923. She married Gustav Heinrich, and they had three sons – Max, Albert and Gus. They are buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero, Texas.

FERGUSON - PIERCE

Augusta and William Ferguson, Sr. 1924

William Lynk (his mother's maiden name) Ferguson was an only child. His father, one of five children, was the only one to survive the influenza epidemic in the late 1860's. Of Scotch descent, he married Augusta Moeller of Rock

Island, Illinois, whose family migrated from Germany in the mid 19th century. After their marriage in 1907, they moved to Victoria, Texas, where he opened up "the finest racket store in Texas." (according to the May 18, 1907 Victoria Advocate). Their only child, a son, was born in Victoria in 1912. Deciding to try their fortunes in North Carolina, they moved there, were disappointed, and soon returned to Texas - to Cuero this time. Bill grew up and graduated from Cuero High School, and a few years later, received a BBA degree from the University of Texas at Austin. He returned to Cuero to enter business with his father. While at the University, he met Carolyn Pierce, direct descendant of Thomas Pierce who arrived in Massachusetts in 1607, of Marked Tree, Arkansas. They were married in Marked Tress in April, 1937. Emily Ann was born in 1942 and Carolyn Elizabeth (Betty), in 1947. Betty Ferguson, a graduate of the University of Texas at Austin taught physical education for two years then climaxed a long time interest in golf by qualifying for the Ladies Professional Golf Tour and spent two years traveling with that group. In time she returned to San Antonio, Texas, where she entrepreneured her own business, "Athletes Only." After this venture she went to work as Business Manager of Ancira Leasing Co. and has recently has been manager of the accounting department of the Ancira-Winton Motor Co.

In 1960 Emily Ann married Jack Curtis Calk, direct descendant of Obediah Stevens who arrived, with his wife and five children, at Old Indianola in 1845, and to this union was born Elizabeth Ann, February 2, 1961; Mary Katherine (Kaye), June 6, 1962; William Craig, January 31, 1965; and John Curtis, September 3, 1966. After living in Houston for several years, the Calks moved back to Cuero in 1967. and Emily Ann began to work on her college degree. She acquired her BS degree from Southwest Texas University at San Marcos in 1971. and a Masters degree in 1976 from the University of Houston at Victoria. She teaches 9th grade English and Speech at Cuero High School.

Elizabeth Ann Calk married Mel Hilbrich of Westhoff on September 22, 1979. On January 6, 1984, Justin Pierce Hilbrich was born to this union. Tragedy struck this family when the young couple on September 22, 1985, on their way home from a wedding, were run off the road by a drunken driver – both were killed. Justin is being raised by his uncle Kent Hilbrich and his wife Cindy Gawlik Hilbrich with their son, Brandon Edward. They live in Westhoff, Texas.

Another tragedy it the family in August, 1988, When Craig Calk fell through and from an 8th floor window of a Dallas Hotel and died shortly thereafter. Craig had been an outstanding track athlete at A&M university, setting a Southwest Conference record in the 400 meter intermediate hurdles in 1987. Two weeks before his death, he had been a participant at the Olympic Trials in Indianapolis, Indiana. He received his BA degree from Texas A&M University, posthumously, in August, 1988.

Mary Katherine Calk married Joe Juarez in Grace Episcopal Church in August, 1988. Joe has a stained glass business in San Antonio, and Kaye teaches second grade in the Antonio Independent School District.

Curtis is presently completing his Junior year at Texas A&M University. He is a business major.

William Lynk Ferguson, Jr. went into renal failure in mid-1972, and it became necessary to go on the dialysis machine to stay alive. He was able to continued his brokerage business until his death on December 26, 1974.

Carolyn Ferguson continues to live at 208 W. Sarah in Cuero, which has been her home for 50 years.

FERTSCH FAMILY

of Nordheim

Herman Charles and Hedwig (Hattie) Eva (nee Wolle) Fertsch called Nordheim, Texas, their home from 1930 to 1973. They moved to Nordheim from Runge, Texas, after their oldest child, Alice, married Johnnie Neumann and the younger couple settled in Nordheim near Johnnie's family. Herman and Hattie Fertsch were married in 1909 in Hallettsville, Texas, and lived on the old Fertsch homestead in Old Kinkler until 1922 when they moved to Runge.

Born in 1888 in Old Kinkler, Lavaca County, Texas, Herman Fertsch was the youngest child of Otto and Sophie (nee Boenicke) Fertsch. Otto Fertsch, born in 1848 in New Ulm, Texas, was the son of Ferdinand Friedrich and Johanna (Anna) (nee Frels) Fertsch. Ferdinand Fertsch emigrated from Frankfurt, Germany, in the early to mid-1840's and settled in the Industry area, buying and selling several pieces of land before dying in 1853, leaving his wife with three small sons: Otto, Charles, and Theodore. Johanna (nee Frels) Fertsch, born in the Oldenburg, Germany, area, was related to Captain William Frels who fought at the Battle of San Jacinto. She married Ferdinand Fertsch in 1847 in Austin County, Texas, and after his death, married Christian Schroeder by whom she had several more children. Johanna Frels Fertsch Schroeder is buried in the Pilgrim's Rest Cemetery in Industry, Texas.

Herman Fertsch's mother, Sophie (nee Boenicke) Fertsch, was the daughter of Gottfried and Johanna (nee Lindemann) Boenicke. Sophie Fertsch was born around 1850 in Germany. Gottfried Boenicke, born in 1807 in Germany, died in 1883 in New Ulm, Texas. Johanna (nee Lindemann) Boenicke was born in 1821 in Koslitz, Germany, and died in 1908 in Hallettsville, Texas. Hattie Fertsch was one of four daughters born to Carl and Catherine (nee Heller) Wolle. Hattie was born in 1887 in Breslau, Texas. Her father, Carl Wolle, was born in the Biegel Settlement, Fayette County, Texas, in 1859. He died in 1897 in Lavaca County, Texas, leaving his wife, Catherine (nee Heller) Wolle with four young daughters, Hattie being the second oldest. Catherine (nee Heller) Wolle then married Otto Spies and had several more children with him. She died in 1941 in Lavaca County, Texas. Carl Wolle's father, Carl W. Wolle, was born in 1823 in Wolkenstein, Sachsen, Germany, and died in 1870 in Texas. Carl W. Wolle was married to Christiana Bertha (Agnes) Plietzsch in 1846. She was born in 1827 in Wolkenstein, Sachsen, Germany, and died in Texas in 1906.

Hattie (nee Wolle) Fertsch's mother, Catherine (nee Heller) Wolle, was the daughter of Placide (Plaza) and Eva (nee Braden) Heller.

Placide Heller was born in Marmoutier, Alsace, France, in 1840 and came to the U.S. as a young boy with his parents, Placide and Marie Madelaine (nee Cromer) Heller. The Heller family lived in the Biegel Settlement in Fayette County. Eva (nee Braden) Heller, born in 1841 in Budesheim, Germany was the daughter of Andreas and Catherine (nee Schmitt) Braden who emigrated from Budesheim in 1848 and settled in Colorado County, Upon coming to Nordheim in 1930, Herman and Hattie Fertsch rented the John Pace place east of Nordheim on the road to Yorktown. There they farmed, growing cotton and corn, and had a small dairy with six to eight cows. The house was a big one set up on blocks high off the ground, allowing their youngest daughter, Pearl, to have a playhouse under the house. In the mid-1940's, the wind from a hurricane blew the house off its blocks, and the Fertsches moved to another rented place, the Richter place (between the roads leading to the cemetery), for a couple of years. When Hattie received her inheritance from her mother and stepfather, Hattie and Herman Fertsch purchased a home in Nordheim a few blocks to the east of downtown. There they had about onehalf of a city block and raised chickens, pigeons, and often a cow or a few sheep. Hattie had a beautiful flower garden in the front and side yards with a vegetable and berry patch in the far back of the property.

Herman Fertsch, through the years, had a variety of jobs in the area. He worked on a roustabout gang at the oil field east of Nordheim called Tick City. He was also at one time the night watchman at the oil plant on the Gips Ranch east of Nordheim. When the oil plant closed, he became the night watchman for the downtown area of Nordheim until the mid to late-1950's.

Hattie Fertsch worked at the school cafeteria at one time, and for a brief period, was the cook at the Amos and Andy Cafe in Nordheim. She also often sewed clothing for people in the area. The role outside of the home that she enjoyed the most, however, was her work helping to deliver babies in the area. Over the years, she assisted in the births of ninety-nine babies, often accompanying Dr. Bohman for the births. She then frequently stayed at the home for up to two weeks to help with the child care, house work, and food preparation. She sometimes traveled as far as San Antonio and Houston to assist families who had moved away from Nordheim. In her later years, she would often see a name mentioned in the Dewitt County View and note that the person was one of "her" babies.

Herman Fertsch was a longtime member of the ODHS Hermanson's Lodge, having begun his membership in Lavaca County around the time of his marriage in 1909. He also belonged to the Nordheim Shooting Club. Hattie Fertsch belonged to the Garden Club, the Lutheran Ladies' Aid Society and the Royal Neighbor Lodge. They were members of the St. Paul Lutheran Church in Nordheim. They celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary surrounded by family and friends in 1959 in the Recreation Hall in Nordheim.

Herman and Hattie's oldest daughter, Alice, farmed in Nordheim with her husband, Johnnie Neumann, and their four children from 1930 until they moved to Victoria, Texas, during a drought in 1956. Alice and Johnnie Neumann still live in Victoria.

Herman and Hattie's only son that lived beyond infancy is Wolles Herbert Fertsch. He was born in 1918 in Old Kinkler, Texas, and married Mildred Madeline Bode (whose family was a neighbor at the old Pace place) in 1941. He worked for the Heldt Brothers trucking firm for many years. Wolles and Mildred Fertsch have three children. Both Wolles and Mildred live in Alice, Texas.

Herman and Hattie's youngest child, Pearl Katherine, graduated from Nordheim High School in 1941 and went to San Antonio for nurse's training. After she became a registered nurse, she married Paul Ellis Watson in San Antonio in 1946. They have two daughters and still live in San Antonio.

Herman Fertsch died in 1972 and Hattie Fertsch died in 1973. They are both buried in the Nordheim Cemetery. The Fertsch family reunion is held annually on the first Sunday in April at the Nordheim Park Lounge.

FETTERS, MARVIN

Marvin and Virginia Fetters have deep roots in DeWitt County. Their ancestors began arriving as early as 1840. His parents were Ervin Fetters and Lillie Wendel. The Fetters were from the Austria-Hungary area. The Wendel's were from the area around Kassel Germany. Marvin was born in Victoria County, December 27, 1927. He married Virginia Dreyer on October 2, 1947.

Virginia was born in the Burns Hospital in Cuero on September 6, 1929. Dr. John Bruns was the attendant. Her parents were Dave Dreyer and Irene Bluntzer. Her ancestors were from the Thur Valley in Alsace, France.

Marvin went to school in Lindenau and New County Line, and Cuero in DeWitt County. He joined the Merchant Marines during World War II because he was too young for the armed forces. Virginia went to school at Meyersville and Green DeWitt before she graduated from Cuero High.

Marvin followed in his fathers footsteps and became a carpenter. His first job was with Nathan Post, an independent contractor, in Cuero. He also worked for A.& A. Construction Co. This company had contracts for the Cuero Community Hospital, Cuero Jr. High School, Band Hall, Cuero Jail and Reuss Shopping Center. Virginia's first job was at J.C. Penney Co. in Cuero.

The Fetters had 8 children. They all attended St. Michael's School and graduated from Cuero High School. Veronica Diane, the oldest married Richard Zimmerman, the son of Willie Zimmerman and Elenora Arndt. Evelyn Ruth married James Hahn, the son of Herman Hahn and Idell Mueller. Rock Richard married Debbie Mueller, the daughter of Charles and Margaret Mueller. Kurt Karl married Robbie Paris, the daughter of Bob Paris and Jeanie Lowrie. Mary Silvia Fetters Lapp has one daughter, Natalie. Her father is Kieth Lapp, the son of Harold Lapp and Phyllis Rogge. Franklin James and Christopher Michael Fetters are not married. The youngest child Amy Theresa, married Tim Rubac, the son of Joe Rubac and Georgia Janka. The Fetters have 9 grandchildren and one great-grand child.

Marvin's parents moved to Cuero in 1936 and Virginia's in 1940. Marvin and Virginia have been at home in Clinton since 1952 when they bought some land on the Guadalupe River. Their home is in the townsite of Clinton. They are always willing to talk about the history of this ghost town.

Marvin had four brothers: Allen, Marion, Virgil, and Jimmy. Jimmy died from diphtheria when he was 9 years old. He is buried in Hillside Cemetery next to his parents. Marvin's two sisters were Lillian, who married Hans Fitting, and Myrtle who married Jack Whiteaker. Virginia had one brother Harold Drever.

Marvin and Virginia have complete histories on their families. Virginia has visited in Germany, Austria, and France. The Hausmann family, Marvin's great-grandmother, was from Wurtemburg. Virginia's great-great-grandfather Adam Meisenhelder, was also from Wurtemberg. Virginia spent a week in Alsace visiting relatives. A special service was held in the church that the Bluntzers; Luttenbachers, Fuchs, Halletts and other relatives attended before they came to Texas from Alsace.

FEY, JULIA

Miss Julia Fey

Julia Fey, third child and first daughter welcomed by brothers Walter, Edwin, and Alfred, was born February 4, 1882 to Pius and Ottilie Schrade Fey at Cuero, Texas. In the Centennial History, 1875-1975 of St. Michael's Catholic Church, "Miss" Julia was honored for serving as organist from 1905 until 1942. She received her musical training from the Sisters of St. Michael's School and from Pastor Utesch of the Lutheran Church in Cuero, Miss Julia had no car and therefore walked from her residence on Terrell Street to the Church for choir practices and church services. Upon her retirement, the church presented her with a complete silver service. She died February 26, 1957 and is buried along side her parents in

Hillside Cemetery in Cuero, Texas.

But these statistics of birth and death, do not capture the ambience surrounding the Feys. As a child, along with my mother, Lena, and many times with my mother, her sisters, and cousins, I visited with my Fey cousins. Their narrow, story-and-a-half green-shuttered white clapboard house surrounded by a wooden picket fence was replete with charm. A board walk beginning at the front gate, followed the shape of the house to the side screened porch almost jungle-thick with Boston ferns anchored on wooden pedestals with their fronds swaying in the southeast breeze. From the porch door, the walk continued on the sandpacked ground, always swept smooth with an old straw broom, to a primitive dug-out greenhouse filled with Cousin Julia's fragile angelwing begonias, maiden hair ferns, and dainty purple violets.

Cousin Julia's kitchen smelled of prunes stewing, apricots boiling, sweet spices, and aromatic herbs. When we would sit down for a lunch - not noon, but mid-afternoon at the tea hour - it would be at a large round oak dining table crowded with two glassed-in china cabinets with antiques from "Germany." For me, as a child, it was awe-inspiring but also dreaded with my mother's warning, "Ada, don't stumble into the antiques" ringing in my ears as I sidled around the table to sit down. While the grown-ups talked after lunch, I could run up the short low steps to the garrett attic bedroom with a bed always made up with a white cotton bedspread and large white ruffled pillowcases ironed stiff with starch and smelling of homemade lye soap. I often pitied Cousin Alfred, who slept up here, because I knew he could never, ever sleep on one of those crush-me-not pillows. Coming down stairs, tiptoeing past Cousin Julia's bedroom, if it were my lucky day the parlor door, never opened except for giving piano lessons or hav-ing company as "Cousin Edna' from Tivoli, would be ajar and I could slip in. I never minded that it was hot and stuffy. Sun light, which would fade the crimson-flowered rug barely filtered in and only a little moistureladen breeze, which could harm the piano, blew in. Three stiff-backed varnished oak rockers circled a round table covered with an ecru crocheted cloth. A music cabinet stood near the upright piano polished to a shine and tuned to a perfect pitch.

Cousin Julia, within the environs of her house and yard, was a memorable character and when she stepped out to walk to town or church, she was unforgettable. The hems of her dresses almost touched the edges of her lacedup narrow black leather high-top shoes. She always carried an umbrella - in the winter as a wind brace and rain protection and in the summer as a parasol for the hot sun. Whether winter or summer, she wore large wide-brimmed hats. Her hair, brown as her eyes, was long, luxuriant and put up in knots and figure eights with long hairpins and unusual tortoiseshell combs. Not in the least ostentatious manner, she wore an embossed filigree gold brooch at her throat, a lavaliere of amethysts and seed pearls, a cameo ring on her little finger and opal and ruby rings on her other thin, long bony fingers because they were from "Mama", or Aunt Sophie, or Aunt Lena Mernitz, or Cousin Althea. Before she died, she entrusted her cameo, opal and ruby rings to her "dear" Cousin Lena, my mother. My mother, in turn, entrusted them to me - gems of little tangible value, but, in that they emanate the aura of Cousin Julia to me, they are pricel-

FEY, PIUS FAMILY

Pius Fey, founder of Fey's Studio, was the pioneer photographer of this area. Little could he have dreamed that his photographs would be in mint condition nearly one hundred years later — with no distortions or fading — exemplifying his superb craftsmanship. In the Centennial History, 1875-1975, of St. Michael's

Pius and Ottilie Schrade Fey

Catholic Church of Cuero honorable mention was given to the first six families who began a movement to establish a Catholic Church. The name, Pius Fey, was included. Pius Fey was born in Fuldus, Germany January 27, 1854, and came to this country with his brothers. He moved to Cuero in the early days as a roving photographer. It has been stated that there were only four houses in the town when he arrived. He was associated with H.J. Braunig, Halletsville, and later opened Fey Studio on Main Street. In the Historical Record Commemorating the 100th Anniversary of the Founding of Cuero, 1872-1972, Pius Fey is honored on page 29. He is pictured on the porch of his photography studio on West Main and on another picture of a "Fey & Braunig Photography Tent" which is captioned: "Photographers Fey and Braunig pitched this tent several times a year in order to take photographs." Pius married Ottilie Schrade and they had four children - Walter, Edwin, Alfred, and Julia.

Walter attended Cuero schools; graduated from Tyler Commercial College; and moved to Seguin where he became a very successful banker. He began work at the First National Bank on March 17, 1909 as a bookkeeper. He retired on March 17, 1977 after fifty eight years of service as Executive Vice President. He was, also, an outstanding citizen of Seguin where he was Past President of the Rotary Club and American Red Cross. He was also active in the Chamber of Commerce and served on the Board of Directors of the Guadalupe Valley Hospital. He married Ada Steinmeyer April 12, 1916. Ada was very active in the Delphian Club (Past President and Founder) and in the Ladies Golf Association. She was also one of the Founders of Friends of the Library. After many years of waiting, a son, William, was born to Walter and Ada on March 3, 1934. Walter died November 2, 1975 at the age of 85. Ada was an avid bridge player and continued to play bridge after Walter's death until a year before her death August 31, 1987 at the age of 95.

William attended Seguin schools, graduating from high school in 1952. On January 30, 1957, he received a Degree in Business Administration from the University of Texas. After a six-months' stay in the army, and two years working at the Dallas Mercantile National Bank, he moved to Houston to pursue a career in the insurance business. He has been eminently successful - a self-employed agent representing several major companies. In addition, he has been a civic leader serving in the Lions and Toastmasters Clubs; Houston Association of Life Underwriters, Texas Leaders Round Table, and as YMCA Sports Coach. He and his family belong to St. Francis De Sales Catholic Church where he has served for several years on the parish council. William and his two children are the only living descendants of Pius Fey. A contemporary of Pius Fey was Joseph Flick a member of a prominent Cuero family. Joseph Flick's granddaughter, Jo Ann Studdert, met Pius Fey's grandson, William Fey, and on December 28, 1963 they were married. Both were, of course, amazed at the coincidence of having roots in the same

Jo Ann received a Degree in Physical Education from the University of Texas. She has taught at Corpus Christi, Houston, and currently is serving as Office Clerk at T.H. Rogers Middle School in Houston — unusual in that the students are both deaf and high achievers. She has been on the Selection Committee for the Superintendent of the Texas School for the Deaf in Austin, Texas. She also has been very active in Beta Theta Pi Sorority (President and Girl of the Year), and for many years was president of an organization called H.A.P.H.I. (Houston Area Parents of Hearing Impaired).

On December 5, 1964, a son, Charles Edward, was born. As a result of the German Measles epidemic in 1964, Charles was born deaf. Despite this handicap, Charles achieved much. He attended the Texas School for the Deaf in Austin and graduated from high school there in 1984. While there, he was a member of the football and track teams; served as class and Student Council officers; and became active in the National Association of the Deaf. He then attended Rochester Institute of Technology at Rochester, New York. While there, he was active in Phi Kappa Theta, Intramural Sports, and many organizations for the deaf. He finished in June 1958 with an Associate Degree in Optical Finishing Technology. Currently, he works at Duffens Optical Company in the Houston Laboratory making eye glasses, and in his spare time plays football.

On October 15, 1971, a daughter, Melissa Ann, was born. Currently, she is a senior and honor student at Sharpstown High School, being active in Student Council, National Honor Society, Key and Anchor Clubs, listed in Who's Who in High School Students, and serving as Teenage Representative on the St. Francis De Sales Parish Council.

Pius Fey, whose name and works will live on as long as people turn to old family photographs, would be proud to have his name and fame, but in different fields from his, carried on in his son, grandson, and great grandchildren.

FISCHER, AGNES JUENGER

Agnes T. Juenger was born in Schulenburg, Texas March 22, 1890 the second child of Charles E. and Theresa Buchhorn Juenger. As a young child the Juengers moved to Lindenau, Texas and later to Cuero. Agnes attended Cuero Schools to the 8th grade and then attended business school in Tyler, Texas returning to Cuero to accept a job as a clerk for Koehler Dry Goods Co. Later she became deputy County Clerk and then worked for W.R. Garrett Abstract Co.

On February 6, 1916 she married J.J. Fischer Sr. in Comfort, Texas. They made Cuero their home. There were four children, J.J. Jr., Dorothy, Charles, and Agnes. In addition to being a homemaker and mother she assisted her husband in all business operations as office manager and bookkeeper. She was active in numerous civic and church organizations. Upon the death of Mr. Fischer she assumed management of the family insurance and real estate business and later sold the business, about June of 1963, to the eldest son J.J. Fischer, Jr.

Upon her death February 23, 1972 she was a member of St. Michael's Catholic Church.

FISCHER, ARTHUR CHARLES

Arthur Fischer (1887-1956) was born in Cuero, Texas and went to school here. He was the first son and second child of Charles and Matilda Gohmert Fischer.

Even as a boy, he went to work at Buchel Milling Company in which his father was a coowner and manager. It is not known what his job comprised then but, under his father's tutelage and through experience, he had become a master machinist by the time he reached maturity. He worked for many years there in the machine shop.

He was frequently called upon to do difficult and dangerous work outside the shop. He was working on a boiler at Crescent Valley Creamery when the explosion occurred that killed Floyd Felix. He himself was burned on the face and hands, but not seriously. On another occasion he was called on to repair the old stand-pipe that used to stand in the downtown city park.

During the war years, his skill as a machinist earned him a job teaching machine work to young people in a National Youth Administration program to train workers for war plants. The shop was set up in the large N.Y.A. Building at the Municipal Park where the city now stores its vehicles. The smaller building next to it housed the office, dormitory, and mess hall.

Arthur Fischer was an artisan in other ways. He worked with wood and made beautiful bows (some of them tipped with horn) and arrows with cedar footings spliced in. He feathered the arrows. He plaited the strings for the bows. Some of his arrows had steel arrowheads for hunting.

He was a great hobbyist and liked to work with his hands. In his spare time he often worked with metal and made different objects. He tied cord for round throw-nets for fishing. He raised pheasants for a while and released them with the hope of establishing them in the wild. He loved hunting and fishing. He was an expert marksman.

In the 30's he became city secretary (salary $25.00) and served in that position for many years.

He was a member of the Fire Department and enjoyed its fellowship long past his ability to be an active member. He was a devoted member of the Masonic Lodge and past Grand Master.

In 1909 he was married to Mary Will Blackwell (1891-1977). They lived most of their married lives at 608 Clinton St. The house that stood there was purchased by Mrs. Claude North Blackwell from Cora McCrabb. Arthur and Mary Will were living there with her in 1913 when the house burned. Mrs. Blackwell and Mary Will had gone to town. Bob, the oldest child, was playing across the street at the Edgars. Fay, the baby, was in the house as were two of Mrs. Blackwell's sons. One of the brothers got the other one, who was ill, out safely and Mrs. Joe Edgar carried Fay out.

Mrs. Blackwell rebuilt the house with much the same plan. Later she sold it to Arthur and Mary Will. All of their children except the oldest were born there. It is the present home of the Glen Portis family.

married Esther Hahn (1918-). Esther was born in Cuero. Her father, Andrew Hahn (1892-1967) was pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church at the time. Her mother was Wilhelmina Reinhard. Both of her parents were from central Illinois. Andrew Hahn was called back to St. Mark's in 1938 and served as its pastor for fifteen years. It was during this time that the present church was built. Bob and Esther Hahn Fischer had four sons: 1) David Fischer (1941-) married Kathleen Gandolfo (1945-). Their children are Sarah Esther Fischer (1972-) and Arthur David Fischer (1975-). Residence: New Orleans, La. 2) Arthur Charles Fischer III (1942-) married Penelope Boggs (1947-). Their children are Abigail Carlyn (1971-) and Nancy Hahn Fischer (1975-). Present residence: France. 3) Daniel Hahn Fischer (1946-) married Kathryn Kauffman (1948-). Their children are Emily Corinne (1974-) and Melissa Ann Fischer (1976-). Their residence: Bellevue, Wa. 4) James Andrew Fischer (1948-) married Leslie Hulett (1952-). Their children are Kate Eileen (1979-) and Andrew Scott Fischer (1981-). Their residence: Sacramento, Calif.

Bob and Esther Fischer lived first at Concrete, then on the Keseling place, and at present reside on the Cheapside road where the Wayne Dairy once was and which Bob had managed. They reared their family here. Esther worked in the office of Mr. W.F. Hancock, the County Superintendent of Schools for almost two years.

II. Faye Fischer (1913-) married Clifton Weber (1904-). (See "Clifton and Agatha Weber" entry.)

III. Merle Rose Fischer (1916-) married J.D. Bramlette, Jr. (1916-1979). (See "J.D. Bramlette, Jr." entry.)

IV. John Blackwell Fischer (1922-1988) married Barbara Bangs (1919-1988). John was in the clothing business of Hutchins Bros. in San Antonio and Austin. After that he worked in the hotel business and was manager or sales representative of various hotels in McAllen. For a while he worked for the McAllen Chamber of Commerce. Barbara Fischer was a commercial artist and was still working in that capacity at Jones and Jones in McAllen when illness forced her to retire. John and Barbara moved back to Cuero in 1987. Their residence was at 208 W. Clayton. She died in August of 1988 and John died in December of the same year. They had one daughter, Meredith Fischer (1954-). She lives in Norwalk, Conn.

FISCHER, CHARLES

Charles Fischer (1859-1924) was born in Victoria, Texas and had his schooling there. The first mention of him in DeWitt County that his family knows of was made by the late Mr. Elisha Stevens of Cuero, who said that the first time he saw Charles Fischer, he was with an older man and they were selling lightning rods. He was probably sixteen at the time. His mother had died in his sixteenth year. His father had been killed by lightning the previous year.

According to the Cuero Star of 1895, he came to Cuero in 1875. He obtained employment as a day laborer in the mill of the Buchel brothers. After a time he became foreman of the mill and then in 1886 he became a managing partner in the business which was called Buchel Milling Company.

On the thirty-first of August 1887, the entire plant was destroyed by fire but was quickly rebuilt on a larger scale and fitted with new and improved machinery. The complex included a large cotton gin, the biggest corn mill in the city, an office and scales, seed house, a platform for the baled cotton and machine shop. It was located in the second block of west South Railroad Street where Allied Feeds, Inc. now stands.

In 1885 Charles Fischer was married to Matilda Gohmert. She was the daughter of Julius Gohmert (1828-1914) who is believed to have come with two brothers, Gus and William, from Gurkow, Germany. Matilda Gohmert's mother was Louisa Hinze (1844-1896). The Gohmerts lived in Clinton, Texas. Matilda later told the children and grandchildren of a log house they lived in. She also recalled the years of the Sutton-Taylor Feud and how. when the Suttons and Taylors were in town, they blew out all the candles. Later when Cuero grew and was made the county seat, Julius Gohmert moved to Cuero. He owned considerable property on Main Street. Many old pictures of Cuero show the Gohmert building on the northwest corner of Main and Gonzales Streets. This building housed the Gohmert Saloon. After his wife, Louisa (Hinze) Gohmert, died and Julius Gohmert himself became elderly, he came to live with his daughter and her husband, Charles Fischer.

Little is known of Charles Fischer's community life except that he was widely respected. He was affiliated with the American Legion of Honor for many years. There used to be an old picture of a young mustached Charles Fischer posing with a band, all holding their instrument.

In later years he served as a member of the school board but did not wish his sons to know it for fear they would see it as an advantage and misbehave. This was told by his youngest daughter years later.

Charles Fischer was a good business man and prosperous. He was an early owner of an automobile. At some time he acquired the property in the 700 block of Terrell Street on the west side and all the property behind the block to the railroad track. Their residence was on Terrell Street. In 1911, Charles and Matilda Fischer built a two-storied house on the corner of the 700 block. After Matilda Fischer's death in 1946, the house was sold to Dr. A.J. Bohman and his wife, Bernice. It is still her home today.

Charles and Matilda Fischer had six children who were: 1) Louise Ida Fischer (1885-1955). She married Frank Topliffe (1887-1959); 2) Arthur Charles Fischer (1887-1956). He married Mary Will Blackwell (1891-1977). 3) Edward Fischer (1890-1897). 4) Werner H. Fischer (1895-1968). He married Ettie Blackwell (1900-). They live in Cuero and had two daughters: a) Mary Louise Fischer (1922-) married William Rathbone Crain (1923-1983). They had five sons and one daughter: aa) William R. Crain, Jr. (1944-), married Suzy Terrell (1945-), divorced, two children, William Caleb, 1960 and Abigail Lilly, 1971, residence Massachusetts. bb) Robert Mitchell Crain (1948) married Jo Ann Snapp (1947-) and have three children, Kelly Elizabeth, 1973, Courtney Erin, 1977, and Mary Josephine, 1986, residence - Houston. cc) David Fischer Crain (1952) residence - Austin. dd) Marietta Crain (1953) married Nich D. Nicholas, divorced, two children: David Michael, 1980 and Sarah Allyson (1983, residence - Houston. ee) Steven Kerr Crain (1958) residence - Houston. ff) Jonathan Blackwell Crain, 1961, residence -Austin.

b) Carol Ann Fischer (1931-) married Harold Curtis (1931-). They live in Greenville, Texas and have two daughters: Sara Allyson (1955-1966) and Leah Ann Curtis (1961), residence San Antonio, Texas.

5) Carlyn Fischer (1898-deceased) married Emil Fuess (deceased) and they lived in Dallas, Texas. They had one son, Raymond Lee Feuss who lives in California and has two daughters.

6) Norman Fischer (1903-deceased) married Bertha Dunlap (deceased) and lived in Houston. They had no children.

Charles and Matilda Gohmert Fischer have twelve descendants still living in DeWitt County in 1990.

FISCHER, FRANK S. AND RUTH (GOHMERT) F263

Frank Seay Fischer was born Nov. 26, 1919 in Staples, Texas. He was the youngest of four children born to Robert and Clara Seiler Fischer.

Ruth Myrtle Gohmert was born Aug. 11, 1922, in Victoria County, Texas, about 7 miles from Meyersville. She was the oldest of four children born to Reinhold H. and Linda Diebel Gohmert.

Frank joined the U.S. Air Force on March 1941 and was serving his country in World War II at Foster Field in Victoria, Texas. There he met Ruth Gohmert, who was employed at the Sub-Dept Supply at Foster Field. They were married on Nov. 8, 1942 at St. John Evangelical Lutheran Church in Meyersville, Texas. During the time that Frank was in the Air Force, two children were born: Jerry Lee, born Feb. 25, 1944, and Linda Clare, born June 20, 1945.

After Frank was discharged from the Air Force on Oct. 8, 1945, he and Ruth and their two children moved to San Antonio where they lived on Theo St. for two years. Then in 1947 they returned to Cuero and purchased 18 acres with a four room house in the Buchel Community. Frank worked at several different jobs and then he started working for The DeWitt County Electric Cooperative. For several years Ruth remained at home to raise their children and then in 1952 she was employed at Cuero City Hall.

On FEb. 5, 1959, at the age of 39 years, Frank S. Fischer died of a heart attack at their home. He is buried in the Lutheran Cemetery in Meyersville. Ruth and her children remained at their homestead until 1961 when she purchased a home on Reuss Blvd. in Cuero where they lived until 1966 when she married Elroy H. Peters (Story is given separately)

Jerry Lee Fischer graduated from Cuero High School in 1964 and went to Victoria Junior College from which he graduated in 1966. He served his country during the Vietnam Conflict from Aug. 1966 to April 1970 in the United States Navy. He saw 1½ yrs. of action in Vietnam. After his discharge from the Navy he returned to Rockport for some time. Then he entered A&M College in Sept. 1970 and graduated in May, 1973. He is now employed by the San Antonio Zoo where he works with reptiles.

Linda Clare graduated from Cuero High School in 1966. She lived in Rockport and later married James Baros. They have two sons: James Weldon Baros, Jr. born July 29, 1971 and Charles Frank Baros born Aug. 6, 1972.

FISCHER, J.J., JR. F26

J.J. Fischer Sr. was born March 27, 1882 on a farm in Twin Sisters, Comal County, near New Braunfels, Texas son of Fritz and Caroline Klinger Fischer. After grade school he entered high school in Blanco, Texas but never finished. After attending Alamo Business College in San Antonio, he took a job as a grocery clerk in New Braunfels. He was not satisfied and moved to Cuero in 1906 and opened a livery business, eventually owning 3 livery stables and employing about 20 people. Business went well and when the automobile showed up he purchased 2 rental cars from Flick Motor Co. Rough roads and repair costs soon ended that and then back to the horses.

On February 6, 1916 he married Miss Agnes T. Juenger in Comfort, Texas. There were four children, J.J. Jr., Dorothy, Charles and Agnes. Some time around 1920 he was a distributor for Aneuser-Busch products. He then became wholesale commission agent for Magnolia Petroleum Co. building the 1st drive-in filling station in Cuero located at the corner of Esplanade and E. Courthouse Street. At this time his younger brother, Albert, joined him. About the year 1926 he sold the Magnolia Agency to Edu Muegge. After leaving Magnolias he opened an insurance and real estate office in the Buchel Building and remained in this business for the rest of his life. He was responsible for developing several subdivisions including Northfields, Fairview Park and Southern Young in addition to several others. During this time he was one of the original founders of the Cuero Building and Loan and later Cuero Federal Savings & Loan Association, serving as a director and vice-president.

During World War II he was in charge of the 7th War Loan Drive, which according to reports was over subscribed.

He served as Mayor of Cuero from 1947 to 1949 and prior to that served as City Councilman for nine years. He was a member of the Cuero Chamber of Commerce, Knights of Pythias, Sons of Hermann and Cuero Fire Department. He was also a member of the Cuero Turkey Trot Band under the direction of Albert Lienhard Sr. Upon his death November 27, 1962 he was a member of St. Michael's Catholic Church.

FITZGERALD, JACK COLLIER AND LORITA MAE WOLF

Jack Collier, born July 4, 1932 in Robert B. Green Hospital in San Antonio, is the 8th child of Stanford Collier and Virginia Frances Hay Fitzgerald. The other children were Ruth, Johnnie, Ray Eugene, Mildred, Lucille, Dorothy, and another boy who died as a baby. Stanford Collier's father was William Henry Fitzgerald (1854-1937) who was a graduate of Concrete College in DeWitt County, his mother was Mary America Cobb (1856-1926). Virginia Frances' father was Frank Hay of Bandera and her mother was Della Gibbons born in Fort Davis, Texas. Jack was raised in the San Antonio area, but spent four summers with Uncle Walter and Aunt Mattie Fitzgerald Boothe on their ranch near Sweetwater where he was known as "Sonny" and "Horsefly". He moved to Cuero during his senior year of high school to help his sister Ruth and her husband Oscar Mathias with a dairy on the Ed Thigpen property. While living there, he met Lorita Mae Wolf at a domino party being held at her parents house (Werner and Lorene Semmler Wolf). After graduating from Cuero High School, Jack moved to Fort Davis, Texas where his older brother Johnnie lived. He became foreman of the 64 section Powell ranch owned by Mr. Joe Espy. He returned to Cuero and married Lorita Mae Wolf, June 1, 1952 at Zion Lutheran Church of Arneckeville. They moved to Heights Section of Houston where he was employed as a switchman for Southern Pacific Railroad. Then came the letter calling him to serve his country in January, 1953. They returned to Cuero so Rita could live with her parents while he went into basic training at Fort Bliss in El Paso. He then was sent to Fort Ord, California where Rita joined him. They lived in Templeton, California while Jack's company closed Camp Roberts. From there, they moved to King City, as Jack was stationed at Hunter Liggett Military Reservation at Jolon, California. Then they moved to Paso Robles where Jack enrolled in San Luis Obispo Jr. College with his major in accounting. Three months later he completed his tour of duty and they moved to Los Angeles so Jack could enroll in U.C.L.A. night school. He went to work for UPS and after six months he was put in charge of designing and overseeing the construction of the new office building built on Olympic Boulevard. While in charge of this construction job, Jack had to deal with Jimmy Hoffa and Clarence Beck, notorious union leaders. When the job was completed Jack was promoted to executive vice president. However, during this time Patricia Karen was born (July 7, 1958) and both parents wanted to raise her in the country or in a small town, so they moved to Victoria, Texas in June of 1961. Jack was hired by Bumgardner, Morrison and Company. After Mr. Bumgardner retired in 1975, Jack became managing partner and still maintains that position today. The 2nd daughter, Jacquelyn Kay, was born May 15, 1946 in Victoria. In

The Henry Flessners moved to DeWitt County when Leslie was three years of age. He attended school at Garfield, Buesing, Yorktown and Southwest Texas State University. He taught school in Goliad County eight years and DeWitt County 29 years. He retired from teaching in 1977. He also served in the Yorktown City Government as Council member eight years and as mayor for two years.

Genell was born July 7, 1923 to Christian and Hilda Urban Hartman at Meyersville. She attended school there and graduated from Cuero High School in 1941.

Christian G. Hartman was a son of pioneers Fred and Bertha Dreier Hartman of Meyersville. Hilda too was born in that area being the daughter of Philip and Mary Gerhardt Urban. Her mother was born near Yorktown in a log cabin.

Christian G. Hartman, a veteran of World War I, spent months in France defending our country. He was a charter member of the American Legion in Cuero; later transferring to Yorktown.

They owned a Dry Goods Store in Meyersville from 1924-1937. They purchased a farm where they lived for five years. They moved to Yorktown in 1943.

Leslie and Genell Flessner have made Yorktown their home since 1952. Their daughter, Jeanne, was born Dec. 10, 1945 while they lived in Weesatche, Texas. She graduated from Yorktown High School in 1964. She attended Southwest Texas State University. Jeanne Flessner and Weldon G. Blaschke were married June 27, 1965 in St. Paul's Lutheran church in Yorktown. They have three children, Chris, Melissa and Cori. They all live in Yorktown.

FLOWERS, FAMILY

Wilson H. Flowers was married to Sarah Ann Peacock in Smith County Mississippi sometime prior to September 1846. Sarah was born in Louisiana. Wilson and Sarah had two children in Mississippi: 1) Emily Flowers who was born circa. 1846 and 2) Amelia Flowers who was born circa 1848. The family came to Texas about 1854.

On February 26, 1859 Massie Wilkerson conveyed to Wilson Flowers 1,342 1/2 acres located in the E. Moss survey of DeWitt County, Texas. Wilson Flowers obviously did not live very long thereafter because the 1860 Mortality Schedule includes the following in the list of persons who died in the year ending in June, 1860, DeWitt County: "Willis Flowers, 35, free white male-married-born Mississippifarmer. Shot by a mob in March." The family story passed down through the years says that Wilson was killed by vigilantes.

In the 1860 Census the Flowers family is shown living in Meyersville, Texas. Members include: Sarah Flowers, age 30; Emily Flowers, age 16; Galton Flowers, age 5; and Richard Flowers, age 3.

On January 29, 1861 Sarah Ann Flowers married Joseph Howard. On June 24, 1864 Emily Flowers married Jordan Howard. This mother and daughter lived next door to each other when the 1870 Census was taken in the county seat of Clinton. Shown in house 63, family 63: Joseph Howard, age 35; Sarah Howard, age 33 (she misstated her age!); Galton Flowers, age 13; Richard Flowers, age 11; and Susannah Howard, no age given. In house 62, family 62: Jordan Howard, age 33 and Emily Howard, age 24.

In the 1880 Census, Richard Flowers was listd as a cattle driver. The family story is told that Richard drove cattle on the Chisholm Trail. Also, Jordan and Emily Howard had six children by the 1880 Census.

On November 23, 1887 Sarah Ann and Emily A. Howard conveyed to Richard w. Flowers 228 1/2 acres out of the E. Moss Survey as part of his father's estate.

Richard W. Flowers was married in 1884 to Eliza Flowers and on January 18, 1888 they sold this land to Joseph Zielonka.

In the 1900 Census we find the following information: Living in Yoakum, Lavaca County, Texas on June 11, 1900: Richard Wilson Flowers-carpenter-age 41; Eliza Flowers, age 41; Galatin, age 15, Erwin, age 13, Irine, age 12; Beryl, age 10; and Richard, age 10 months. Living in DeWitt County, Precinct 1: Emily Howard, age 53; Clairborne, age 35; Annie, age 29; Wilson, age 27; Sarah Ann, age 25; Maud, age 22; Albert G., age 19; Edwin, age 16 and a grandson, Early J., age 3.

On August 21, 1903, when she was 75 years old, Sarah Ann Flowers wrote her will. Her estate was composed of 230 acres in the E. Moss League, Lot 1, Block 27 in Berclair, Goliad County and cattle and horses. She bequeathed the cattle and the Berclair property to her grandson A.G. Flowers and the balance of her property to her granddaughter Sarah Ann Howard.

On June 7, 1905 Sarah Ann Flowers died about four miles north of Cuero. On November 14, 1905 Sarah Ann Flowers, deceased, acting through W.H. Graham, Executor, conveyed to Sarah Ann Howard, a legatee, 228 acres of land adjacent to Emily A. Howard's 228 acres. This was a part of the tract on the west side of the Guadalupe River conveyed to W.H. Flowers by Massey Wilkerson.

It is believed that Sarah Ann Flowers is buried on her land in DeWitt County.

FLY, W. LAMAR AND MELBA M.

William Lamar, Melba (Morgan) Fly, Walter Lamar Fly and Susan D'Ette (Fly) Cowan, 1988.

Walter Lamar Fly, son of Frank Merriman Fly and Stella Miller Fly, was born in Gonzales, Texas, on September 1, 1913. He graduated from Gonzales High School in 1930 and from North Texas State University in 1933. For the next three years he taught at Gonzales High School and Seguin High School.

In 1936 he was employed by the Frost National Bank in San Antonio and two years later, in 1938, was appointed to the National Bank Examiners Force of the U.S. Treasury Department.

Melba Morgan Fly was born on the Morgan Ranch in DeWitt County on January 1, 1918, the second daughter of Kos Morgan and Inez Preston Morgan. She attended the Valley View School and graduated from Cuero High School in 1934. After two years of study at Our Lady of the Lake College in San Antonio, she taught from 1936 to 1938 in the Valley View School and attended one summer at the University of California in Los Angeles.

On July 16, 1938, Melba and Lamar were married in the First Presbyterian Church of Cuero. Upon the arrival of their first child, William Lamar, in 1941, they left the transient life of a bank examiner to establish their first home in Paris, Texas, where Lamar was an officer in the First National Bank. In 1943 he was one of the organizers of the Heights State Bank in Houston, where their second child, Susan D'Ette, was born in the same year. In 1945 the family moved to College Station, old, Sarah Ann Flowers wrote her will. Her estate was composed of 230 acres in the E. Moss League, Lot 1, Block 27 in Berclair, Goliad County and cattle and horses. She bequeathed the cattle and the Berclair property to her grandson A.G. Flowers and the balance of her property to her granddaughter Sarah Ann Howard.

On June 7, 1905 Sarah Ann Flowers died about four miles north of Cuero. On November 14, 1905 Sarah Ann Flowers, deceased, acting through W.H. Graham, Executor, conveyed to Sarah Ann Howard, a legatee, 228 acres of land adjacent to Emily A. Howard's 228 acres. This was a part of the tract on the west side of the Guadalupe River conveyed to W.H. Flowers by Massey Wilkerson.

It is believed that Sarah Ann Flowers is buried on her land in DeWitt County.

FLY, W. LAMAR AND MELBA M.

William Lamar, Melba (Morgan) Fly, Walter Lamar Fly and Susan D'Ette (Fly) Cowan, 1988.

Walter Lamar Fly, son of Frank Merriman Fly and Stella Miller Fly, was born in Gonzales, Texas, on September 1, 1913. He graduated from Gonzales High School in 1930 and from North Texas State University in 1933. For the next three years he taught at Gonzales High School and Seguin High School.

In 1936 he was employed by the Frost National Bank in San Antonio and two years later, in 1938, was appointed to the National Bank Examiners Force of the U.S. Treasury Department.

Melba Morgan Fly was born on the Morgan Ranch in DeWitt County on January 1, 1918, the second daughter of Kos Morgan and Inez Preston Morgan. She attended the Valley View School and graduated from Cuero High School in 1934. After two years of study at Our Lady of the Lake College in San Antonio, she taught from 1936 to 1938 in the Valley View School and attended one summer at the University of California in Los Angeles.

On July 16, 1938, Melba and Lamar were married in the First Presbyterian Church of Cuero. Upon the arrival of their first child, William Lamar, in 1941, they left the transient life of a bank examiner to establish their first home in Paris, Texas, where Lamar was an officer in the First National Bank. In 1943 he was one of the organizers of the Heights State Bank in Houston, where their second child, Susan D'Ette, was born in the same year. In 1945 the family moved to College Station, Texas, where Lamar was one of the organizers of another new bank, the College Station State Bank.

In 1948 they built a rock house on the Morgan Ranch, where they lived until the great drought of the 1950's caused them to return to teaching. Melba again taught in the Valley View School in 1948, and in 1954 she was a fifth-grade teacher in the Cuero school system while Lamar was a teacher and Assistant Principal at Cuero High School. In 1957 Melba received the Bachelor of Science degree from Southwest Texas State University. In 1958 they moved to Victoria, where Melba taught in the Shields and Crain schools while Lamar occupied the position of Director of Student Activities at the Victoria College.

In 1960 Lamar received a Kellogg Foundation Fellowship for additional graduate study and was awarded the Doctor of Philosophy degree from the University of Texas in 1962. In that year he became the founding president of Hill College in Hillsboro, Texas, serving until 1967, when he accepted the founding presidency of another public community college, Kishwaukee College located in DeKalb County, Illinois. He retired in 1979 and moved back to Cuero, where he and Melba presently reside.

Both Melba and Lamar are ruling elders of the Presbyterian Church. Melba is a past president of the Women of the Church, and Lamar is a past treasurer of the church. Melba is also past president of the Rochelle (Illinois) Woman's Club and a current member of the Cuero Hawthorne Club, the P.E.O. sisterhood, and the DeWitt County Farm Bureau.

Lamar has served as president of the Chambers of Commerce of College Station and Cuero and is a past president of three Rotary Clubs, in Hillsboro, Texas; Rochelle, Illinois; and Cuero. He is a past chairman of Curriculum and Instruction of the Illinois Council of Community College Presidents and past chairman of the Illinois Community College Administrators. He is a current member of Phi Delta Kappa, Delta Pi Epsilon, the Masonic Blue Lodge and Shrine, the DeWitt County Historical Commission, and the University of Houston-Victoria's President's Advisory Council. In 1986 he was chairman of Cuero's Sesquicentennial Committee.

The Freedoms Foundation of Valley Forge, Pennsylvania presented awards for his public addresses in 1959, 1973, and 1986, and the Hillsboro Junior Chamber of Commerce recognized him for Distinguished Service in 1963. In 1964 he was named Hill County Man of the Year and was inducted into the Hill College Hall of Fame in 1970. In 1965 he was presented a Distinguished Service Award from the Civil War Commission of Texas. In 1971 he was named Outstanding Newsmaker for the DeKalb (Illinois) Daily Chronicle, and in 1978 received the Humanitarian Award for Service to Higher Education from the Northern Illinois University Foundation.

His published articles include "Vigorous Victoria" in the Texas Parade in 1959; "Selling Victoria, a series of ten feature articles in the Victoria Advocate in 1960, and various short stories and other newspaper articles.

FOXELL, HELEN MANNING AND W.A.

Helen (Manning) Foxell and W.A. Foxell

I was born in Brownwood, Texas on November 15, 1926, to James Brown and Myrtle Helen Richardson Manning. After the death of my mother in September, 1929, I lived in Houston, Texas, with my father, brother and sister. Then in 1931 we moved to Terryville, Texas, DeWitt County.

I attended Tonqua school and Yoakum High School. I went to work for Southwestern Bell Telephone Company in April 1946. I am now retired.

I married W.A. Foxell on September 11, 1948. W.A. was born in DeWitt County on November 27, 1922, to Will and Mary Geneva Garrett Foxell. W.A. was a welder in the ship yards at the beginning of WWII. He enlisted in the army in Jan. 1943. He took his basic training at Fort Knox, KY. He then went overseas and served in North Africa, Italy and France. He was wounded on his birthday in 1944. He was then sent to the veterans hospital in Longview, Texas. He remained there until his discharge in July, 1945. He then returned to Yoakum and worked in road construction until he retired.

I am a member of the First Baptist Church in Yoakum, and a member of the Lydia Sunday School Class. I have seven brothers and three sisters.

My great grandfather was James Brown, one of the first Tax Collector/Assessor of DeWitt County.

FRANKE, EMIL AND HENRIETTA BLUHM FAMILY

Emil and Henrietta (Bluhm) Franke

Emil Franke, second son of Ludwig and Maria Moeller Franke, was born Wednesday, April 3, 1844, in Rudolstadt, Saxony, Germany. The family came to Meyersville, Texas, via Indianport (Indianola) in the winter of 1846. Emil and his sister, Emalina, were confirmed in St. John Lutheran Church on Palm Sunday in 1859.

On March 20, 1870, Emil married Henrietta Bluhm, daughter of Wilhelm Bluhm, Sr., and his wife, nee Rosina Groschel. Henrietta was born Sunday, December 24, 1843, in Gurkow, Friedeberg (Prussia), Germany. She was confirmed in the Lutheran faith in Germany in 1857. One of her daily duties as a maid to families in Stettin and Berlin, was to go to the poultry yard and gather the goose feathers to be made into featherbeds. Some families were so poor that often the only food for a day was boiled potatoes and clabber.

In 1869, with her sister, Augusta, and brother, Robert, and another sister, Henrietta came to America and lived with relatives in the Meyersville area. Because of stormy seas, the voyage is said to have taken three months. Robert's citizenship papers show that he came to Galveston on Dec. 4, 1869.

After Emil and Henrietta married, they settled in a small four-room home east of Meyersville where they engaged in farming and butchering. In the almost 13 years of their married life, 11 children were born to them, five of whom died in infancy. To help support his growing family, Emil became a teamster. On December 31, 1882, he was returning home from Yorktown with a load of lumber in extremely cold weather when he encountered a flooded crossing on the Fifteen Mile Creek near Dobskyville. He waited for the water to recede. The next day he was found there, sitting against a tree trunk almost frozen to death. He died of exposure a few hours later. That same day Henrietta gave birth to her eleventh child, Emelie, who died in infancy.

With the help of relatives and neighbors, Henrietta managed the farm and reared her six children in a Christian manner. They all rode in a buggy to attend school and church at Meyersville and sang in the church choir. Eventually they established their own homes. After Robert married in July of 1911, Henrietta sold her home to a Mr. Berger and moved into a small one-room house at the home of her daughter, Hedwig Hoff, in the Ander community. Traveling in her buggy, Henrietta enjoyed visiting her children. She sewed, knitted, and quilted and even crocheted a lovely bedspread for each of her nine granddaughters! She died in her home on January 5, 1929, and was buried in St. John Lutheran Cemetery in a service conducted by Pastor H.C. Poehlmann. The children of Emil and Henrietta Bluhm Franke follow:

- Alma Maria Hilda, born March 19, 1871, died 1871.
- Aurel Julius Otto Franke, born March 6, 1872, died 1874.
- 3) Maria Augusta Helene Franke, born May 28, 1873; died Jan. 27, 1932, married Otto Rebbe
- Emilius Franke, born Aug. 24, 1874; died 1874.
- Emilie Louise Franke, born Sept. 15, 1875; died 1875.
- Hugo Franke, born Feb. 11, 1877; died Sept. 12, 1956; married Mary Rabke.
- Linar Hedwig Marie Franke, born July 30, 1878; died Dec. 17, 1946, married Gottlieb Hoff.
- 8) Emil Robert Franke, born Sept. 8, 1879; died June 13, 1941; married Ida Jacob Dreier.
- Martha Wilhelmina Franciska Franke, born Nov. 7, 1880, died Feb. 23, 1961; married August Duderstadt.
- 10) Sophie Elizabeth Marie, born Dec. 9, 1881; died June 16, 1907; married Alonzo Hoff.
- 11) Emilie Franke, born Jan. 1, 1883; died in infancy.

The Frankes all learned this prayer hymn and carried it to their graves: "Christi Blut und Gerechtigkeit das ist mein Schmuck und Ehrenkleid, Damit will ich vor Gott bestehn wenn ich in Himmel wered eingehn."

(Jesus, they Blood and Righteousness my beauty are, my glorious dress; Midst flaming worlds, in these arrayed, with joy shall I lift up my head.)

FRANKE, EMIL CHRISTIAN AUGUST ANAD HENRIETTA (BLUHM) FAMILY F275

On 20 Mar. 1870 Christian Emil August Franke (b) 3 Apr. 1844 in Rudolstadt Saxony Germany; (d) 1 Jan. 1883, (bur) Meyersville Lutheran Cem.; married Henrietta Bluhm eldest daughter of Wilhelm and Catherine (Machost) Bluhm Sr. (b) 24 Dec. 1843 in Gurkow Friedeburg Prussia; (d) 5 Jan. 1929, (bur) Meyersville Lutheran Cem.

They settled in a small four room house east of Meyersville and began farming and raising a family. To help support his growing family, Emil became a teamster. On 31 Dec. 1882, he was returning home from Yorktown in extremely cold weather with a load of lumber when he encountered a flooded crossing on the Fifteen Mile Coletto Creek, near Dobskyville. Since it was too dangerous to cross, he decided to wait until the waters had receded. He was found the next day, sitting against a tree trunk, nearly frozen to death. He died of exposure a few hours later. That same day, Henrietta gave birth to their eleventh child, Emilie, who died in infancy.

Being a widow with six small children was no easy life, but with faith in God, courage, determination and the help of neighbors and relatives, Henrietta managed the farm and reared her children in a Christian manner. All the children attended school and church at Meyersville and sang in the church Choir.

Their children were:

FRANKE, LUDWIG FAMILY

Ludwig Franke, his wife, nee Maria Moeller, their sons, Julius and Emil and daughter, Emmalina, came to Meyersville, Texas, in December 1846. The sailboat, Margaretha, on which they emigrated, left Bremen, Germany, on August 21, 1846 and arrived at Galveston, Texas, on October 21, 1846.

In his application for citizenship, dated November 6, 1854 and signed by clerk W.A. Blair, "Johnson (Johann) Ludwig Franke declared under oath that he was born the 27th day of February 1817 in the Principality of Schwartsburg (Schwarzburg) Rudolstadt, Germany and arrived in Texas Nov. 5, 1846." That was probably at Indianola. A month later the family came to Meyersville and settled on a farm about 5 miles east of the town.

The Chronicles of the St. John Evangelical Lutheran Church of Meyersville indicate that the Frankes worshipped there. Beginning twice-weekly catechetical instructions in January 1856, Pastor J. Schaeg confirmed Julius and ten others on Whitsunday of that year. In 1857 Ludwig was elected to the church council. He donated wood to build a backroom to the parsonage and helped haul 600 rails to fence a garden for the pastor. Ludwig and Friedrich Dreier also dug an 181/2 ft. water well for the church at $1 per foot and lined it with stones for a total cost of $28.15 for materials and labor.

In 1859 Ludwig was back on the council and later was chairman of the congregation. With his newly-confirmed son, Emil, he signed the congregation's 1859 constitution. Although Emmalina was only 113, she was confirmed with her brother, Emil, on Palm Sunday 1859. Aurel Franke, third son, and first Texas-born child of Ludwig and Maria, was confirmed in 1863 and his Texas-born sister, Augusta Bertha, was confirmed May 8, 1864. The Frankes' other two Texas-born sons, Gustav and Oscar, were accepted as adult members of the congregation on January 2, 1887 and on April 4, 1880, respectively.

After the congregation voted on June 3, 1866 to build a new church, Ludwig was on the building committee, gave $100, and hauled 16 loads of stones. At the outbreak of the Civil War, he joined Capt. Robert Kleberg's Coleto Guards, Reserve Co., DeWitt Co., 24th Brig. TX Militia, organized 17 June 1861.

A land deed dated February 19, 1870, signed by Willis Fawcett, clerk, (CC of DWC) shows that "Leudwick" (sp) Franke paid $200 for 100 acres of land purchased from John Y., James K., Sarah J., and Julia A. Bell. This property was part of the Thomas H. Bell League and Labor and bordered on land owned by Emil Franke, Ludwig's son. Another Warranty Deed dated November 23, 1887, shows that Ludwig Franke sold this same tract to his son-in-law, Henry Schorlemmer for $400.

Nothing is known of Ludwig Franke's parents. Maria Moeller, his wife, was born in the Rudolstadt area, June 20, 1818. She died April 2, 1884 and he died July 15, 1886. They are buried in the St. John Lutheran Church Cemetery at Meyersville. Their children were:

FRAZIER, JOHN NEWTON AND ISABELLA WOODS

John Newton Frazier and his twin, Andrew Jackson Frazier, were born Nov. 4, 1836. Their parents, Martin Gaines Frazier and Martha Mayfield Frazier, lived on a small 123 acre farm in Washington County, Tennessee. John and Andrew also had two older brothers, Thomas and William, and a sister, Naomi Elizabeth.

Shortly after the twins were born, Martin moved his family west as far as Sabine County, Texas where Martha soon became ill and died. His wife gone, Martin grew restive. He heard about a new frontier out west where prosperity and a better life waited for pioneers who would go there and stake a claim.

Doctor and Mrs. McGuire were close friends of the Fraziers and agreed to keep the twins for Martin while he went to California to prepare the way for them. One morning, John noticed his father and brother, William, leaving on horseback and ran after them, crying. Martin carried him back to the house then turned and rode off. John, at the age of four, saw his father ride away for the last time on that day, for he never returned.

In time, the McGuire family, with the twins, moved to DeWitt County where John met Isabella Woods. Born December 3, 1842, she was the daughter of Montraville Woods and Isabella Gonzales Woods. John and young Isabella were married July 7, 1860 in Victoria with Isabella's uncle, Gonzolva Woods, standing as witness. The newlyweds initially made their home in DeWitt County.

There came a call for volunteers to defend the country against invaders. John enlisted and served in the Confederate Army under Captain H.G. Woods, Company K, 24th Regular Texas Cavalry and attained the rank of corporal. At Yorktown in October, 1862, he contracted a serious case of measles and was incapacitated for some time. John's company continued on without him and was later captured. After eventually recovering from his illness, John returned home for a short time. Then he went to Fort Clark and joined the Texas Rangers.

Years later, in 1884, John bought land in Llano County near Flag Creek, Baby Head, Texas where he built a house, moved his family, and lived for the next thirty years. John and Isabella had fourteen children, six of whom did not live beyond the age of three. The surviving eight are as follows: 1) John Napoleon who married Bethany Green; 2) Montraville who left home at sixteen; 3) Andrew Jackson, who married Fannie Rutherford; 4) Sylvaneous (Vene), who married Eddie McCoy; 5) Thomas who married Doll McCoy; 6) Bernettie (Nettie), who married John Caviness; 7) Sidney, who married Bell Kuykendoll; and 8) Virgil Amos, who married Linnie Estep.

Around 1914, John and Isabella sold the farm at Baby Head and moved to Wilbarger County. July 15, 1918, Isabella died of a long illness at the age of 76. In 1924, John went back to Llano County to visit family and friends. He then moved to Parker County to live with his son, Jack, until his death, July 20, 1926, at the age of 89.

FREY, CARL AND HENRIETTE HEISSIG

Carl Johann Frey was born on June 20, 1810, in Prussia. His first wife, Albertine Oberlander Frey, died on September 8, 1836, shortly after the birth of their first child on August 26, 1836. To help with the care of the young son, Carl Frey married Henriette Heissig on December 9, 1836 in her home at Landsberg an der Warthe. Henriette's birth date was May 22, 1813, so she was sufficiently mature to care for a young baby. Unfortunately, medical care in those times was not the best, and the baby died on December 30, 1836.

The following year in November the young couple welcomed another son into their lives, but their joy was shortlived as the baby died two years later. Heinrich Frey was born on May 28, 1841 and unfortunately died less than a year later on May 24, 1842. Henriette and Carl recorded the birth of their third child together, Albert, on August 29, 1842, in the family Gesangbuch with heartfelt thanks to God for his protection for this only surviving son.

When Albert was eight years old, the three Frey family members had their portraits painted. Albert was depicted with his precious tin drum — a charming child's portrait. Carl's portrait was the stereotyped unsmiling father image, but Henriette was painted in a dark dress with an ecru lace collar, colorful blue ribbon at the throat, and a lace cap covering her dark hair. Her profile shows the strength of her character and her unswerving belief in the justice of God's will.

In 1851 the Carl Frey family joined many of their friends and relatives who had already fled Prussia on a lengthy journey aboard ship to America. They landed expectantly at Indianola with trunks filled with household goods. Freighters hauled the baggage the hundred miles inland to Yorktown, but the emigrants walked. They subsisted on cold meals for the six days of their journey because the proximity of Indians made the building of fires too dangerous.

When they finally reached their destination. no houses had been built to welcome them. They lived in tents for months while the men, professional people unaccustomed to farm labor or construction tasks, learned how to use axes, fell trees, and build houses. When their house was finally complete, Henriette hung the three portraits on the wall and placed her Gesangbuch carefully on the table built by Carl. Life seemed filled with promise in the new land, and the family participated in reading groups, little theater, music groups, and the formation of a school. Albert grew to manhood. In 1862 he enlisted in the Union Army, believing as so many families at that time did, that their destinies lay with the United States of America to whom they had pledged their allegiance. Several letters from Albert to his parents during the war describe the various camps at which he was stationed and the long marches they made as well as his abiding love and concern for the parents he had left behind. Near the end of the war, he was taken prisoner and was interned at Andersonville, Georgia, where he died. Henriette poignantly notes his passing on June 24, 1864, with a plea: "Ruhe sanft, mein einziges tiefliebender Sohn."

The residue of the terrible hurricane which almost decimated Indianola in 1866 hit inland at Yorktown. High winds tore the three Frey portraits from the walls, depositing them in the rain and mud outside. When the storm subsided, Henriette retrieved the portraits, wiped them off, and hung them in their accustomed spots on the wall.

Carl Frey passed away on November 3, 1897 and is interred at Westside Cemetery in Yorktown. Henriette continued to reside in Yorktown near her niece, Anna Meyer Stark, until August 16, 1908, when she died at the age of 95. Her final request was that all three portraits be buried with her, but Anna Stark begged to keep the portrait of her beloved aunt. Thus, this one tangible reminder of frontier courage and endurance has always found a loving home with one of Henriette's descendants. Ruhe sanft, Tante Frey!

Alfred Friar and Anna (Nagel) Friar, 1970.

Alfred and Anna married August 23, 1912, and lived many years on the Friar Ranch, which in 1980 received the distinction of being "A Texas Century Ranch."

Alfred spent his entire life ranching. He loved the land and the cattle he owned. He worked hard, was successful and added acreage to the ranch he inherited from his father. Ranching was his business and his pleasure. For a brief period he served as Director for First State Bank.

Anna attended Toby's Business College in Waco, Texas. As a young woman she worked as secretary for Nagel Hardware. She was a real lover of flowers — growing them and arranging them. For years she arranged the flowers at the Presbyterian church every Sunday. She had a kind generous heart and extended a helping hand to many a person.

Alfred and Anna Friar were Presbyterians. They had one daughter, Anne, who married J.

Carter Thomas.

For a period of time there were five generations of the Friar family living. The oldest was Anna (Nagel) Friar. Next was Anne (Friar) Thomas, then Margaret (Thomas) Sturges and Debra (Voelkel) Benge. The youngest were Candice Lee Benge and Kathleen Paige Benge. From April 25, 1984 when Candice Benge was born until November 15, 1986 when Anna Friar died there were five generations. Now in 1990 there are four generations.

Daniel Boone Friar, often called Captain D.B. Friar, was born April 4, 1800. He came to Texas from Carolina with Robertson's Colony, Stephen F. Austin's second colony. Friar was a Mason and a Democrat of Protestant faith. He was an educated man, a real leader of men and played a prominent part in the military history of Texas in 1835-36. D.B. Friar was in command of Rangers between the Brazos and Colorado Rivers in 1835; he was a Scout at the Battle of San Jacinto and was also Captain of one of the volunteer companies. He was active in defending against Indians. In March of 1840 Dan Friar fought in the last battle of the Great

Indian Wars, the Battle of Plum Creek, near Lockhart, Texas. He was also a member of the historic Mier Expedition which was formed to retaliate against the capture of Texans during the Santa Fe Expedition. Friar was probably saved from death because he followed Sam Houston's order to turn back at the banks of the Rio Grande River.

After military duties were over, Friar managed a mercantile establishment in Washington County under the name of Daniel B. Friar and Company. His business thrived during the years 1837-8. On September 21, 1839 Friar bought 1261 acres of land of the Sam Lockhart Survey, then Gonzales County, later DeWitt County, for $2500. On the La Grange-La Bahia Road which crossed his land, Friar erected a two-story house. For more than a quarter century it was used as a home, store, stage-stop, post office, public hall, tavern and general community center. May 22, 1846 DeWitt County's first U.S. Post Office was established there and he served as the first Postmaster. When the county's first railroad came through Cuero, four miles south of the Friar Stage-stop, the post office was moved to Cuero.

Friar had a helpful part in the early organization and progress of the area. He taught school on Cuero Creek for two years (1840-42). In 1842-46 he was appointed Commissioner to select a site for the county seat of DeWitt County. He tried to give one hundred acres from the Sam Lockhart Survey for town site lots. It was not accepted after much bickering. In 1850 the county seat was moved to Clinton, west of the Guadalupe River.

Business developed in Concrete and Clinton, causing a decline at Friar's store. In September 1849 he sold 661 acres to Crockett Cardwell. Dan'l remained active as a stockman in this area. Some time later he moved to Yorktown, Texas, continued ranching and established another stage-stop.

Daniel Boone Friar's wife was Anne Friar. There are conflicting facts as to her name, birth date and place. One appears on her obituary. It follows: "A Texas Pioneer Dead, Born: March 19, 1802 at Milledgeville, Baldwin Co., Georgia. Died: March 21, 1899 at Cuero, Texas. Mrs. Ann Friar died in this city yesterday at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Aaron White, at the advanced age of 87 years. Mrs. Friar was truly an old Texan, having been a resident of the state for 71 years. She, along with her husband, Daniel B. Friar, were among the first families who came as colonists with Stephen F. Austin. She was well acquainted with all the great men of Texas of early days. Generals Robert E. Lee and Joseph E. Johnston were frequent guests at her house while they were in Texas, and it is said that General Lee was there when the news of Virginia's secession first reached him . . . Hers was, indeed, a life full of honor, and whose character might well be emulated by all."

Another theory concerning their marriage is in their Marriage Bond: "I, Bridget Lamb, widow of Bernard McGairy, deceased, do hereby give my free consent to my daughter Anne McGairy to marry with Daniel B. Friar of this parish (St Landry, Louisiana). In witness whereof I have hereunto signed at Opelousas the 8th day of October in the year 1826. Dan'l B. Friar, son of Dan'l Friar and Elizabeth Garrot, native of Columbia, South Carolina."

Still another place of birth comes from DeWitt County Census of 1850 — "Dan, birth place-Georgia Anne, birth place-South Carolina."

Conclusion: one wife bearing all names, or two wives, each named Anne.

Anne enjoyed reading Shakespeare. She was a whiz with a rifle.

In January 1858 Dan'l was ambushed and killed for his coins and gold. He was returning home to Yorktown from San Antonio where he had sold cattle. Dan B. and Anne are buried in Yorktown, Texas.

The Friars became parents of the following children: Sarahann, who married William Miskell, reared a family and passed the greater part of her life in DeWitt County. Alfred L., who was a soldier in General Sam Houston's army, later took part in the Mexican and Civil Wars, and passed the rest of his life as a farmer and stockman in DeWitt County. Stephen, who died unmarried. Fannie, who was the widow of Dr. Aaron C. White. Susan, who was the wife of William Weisiger, sheriff of DeWitt County as long as he could be induced to hold that office.

Mary, who married George Williams and spent her life in Victoria. William S., who was the father of Sidney Johnston. Friar. Jack, who spent his career as a cattleman in DeWitt County and left a family by his marriage to Dordelia Peace. Ella, who was born and died in Yorktown and married John Rutledge, one of the most prominent Texas cattleman, who died in Kenedy. Edward B. who died a minor serving on the Somervell Campaign for the Republic of Texas.

Rev. William Steal Friar, born November 19, 1837, was educated in the frontier schools of DeWitt County and began his independent career as a cattleman, a vocation which he followed before and after the Civil War. During the early '70's he drove cattle over the old Chisholm Trail. He was converted at the age of forty-six, and was ordained a minister of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. He brought about the building of the Presbyterian Church at Karnes City, Texas. He continued his ministerial labors with great zeal until his death at Dale, Texas in August, 1902.

The army service of Rev. William S. Friar began with the opening of the war between the states. He and Captain Cupples organized Company K of the Twenty-fourth Texas Cavalry at Yorktown, commanded by Col. Wilkes. Early in 1862 the regiment went to the front. They were captured at Arkansas Post January 11, 1862. In April prisoners were exchanged and they finally joined Gen. Bragg's army in Tennessee. Wm. Friar saw hard service, but never was wounded. He participated in the battles of Chickamaugua, Missionary Ridge, Lookout Mountain, and the Atlanta Campaign. After the war he and his brother Alf had a long, difficult journey home on foot.

Rev. William S. Friar married Ann Elizabeth Smith, who was the daughter of Morris D. Smith, granddaughter of Rev. James M. Smith and great-granddaughter of Gen. James Lingan of Revolutionary fame. Morris D. Smith brought his family to Texas some years before the Civil War. Mrs. Friar was born in Illinois and died at Karnes City, Texas in 1907. Their children were: Sidney Johnston; Alice, who died as Mrs. Stone at San Antonio; Anna, who married Rev. Hodgson and died in New Mexico; Evelyn (Evie), Mrs. Neal Stribling with four children: Stone, Inez, Annie Belle and Neal; John, who married Mattie Williams and died at Cuero leaving two sons: Oscar and Guenther; William S. Jr. of El Paso had one son; Mary Ethel, who married Sam Harper of Louisiana; Rev. Herbert H., a Baptist evangelist of Texas had three children: Herbert Jr., Charlotte and Mildred; Early, who died at Lockhart without family.

Sidney Johnston Friar was born at Yorktown April 6, 1862 - the day the Confederate Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston was killed at Shiloh, hence the name. He grew up in DeWitt County, where he secured a rural education and remained with his father until three months after attaining his majority, at which time he hired out as a cowboy. He was thus employed for four years, this time being chiefly spent with his uncle Alf Friar in DeWitt County, and at the end of that period he embarked in business on his own account in a modest way with a limited amount of stock. When he moved across the Guadalupe River he purchased thirty seven head of cattle, a horse and saddle; this equipment representing the accumulation of his wages of the years before. All the country was then open range, but the day after the Indianola storm of 1886 he bought his first tract of land, 320 acres, from William Thomas at $2.00 an acre. At that time he did not care to have his land fenced, but erected a headquarters cabin, 14 feet x 16 feet with a stick and dirt chimney, and there "batched" for a time. To this cabin he subsequently brought his bride. On November 5, 1887 S.J. Friar was married to Miss Annie Williams who was born January 31, 1870. She was the daughter of Oscar Fitzgerald and Phidora Bonner Williams. Sid continued to engage in cattle business until September 1913 when he sold his brand, "O on each hip," and leased his ranch. He had built a comfortable home three miles east of Cuero. Sidney was a Democrat. He was a member of the Knights of Pythias, the Knights of Maccabees and the Praetorians. At fifty-three years joined the Presbyterian Church and served as a Dea-

Mr. and Mrs. Friar had the following children: Bessie, who died at the age of twenty-two years as the wife of Robert T. Daniel and left a son Sidney, who has a son, Robert Sidney (Bob), who has a daughter Robin and a son, Curtis. Alfred, who was a farmer and cattleman of DeWitt County, married Anna Nagel and had one daughter, Annie Louise (Anne) who married J. Carter Thomas. They had one daughter, Margaret Anne. She has two daughters: Debra Anne Voelkel and Dinah Rae Voelkel. Debra married Michael R. Benge. They have three daughters: Candice Lee, Kathleen Paige and Rachel Anne. Margaret is currently married to Jeremy Sturges. Their third child was Libbie who married William Thomas Shults of Cuero and had four children: Bessie Mildred, Thomas Neal, Alice Ruth (Tudi) and Robert Stuart (Bo). Bess Shults Hodge had one son, Brick Roger, who has two sons: Nicholas Blayne and Clayton Randall and two daughters: Sarah Ann and Leslie Elizabeth. Thomas (Tommy) married Jessie Goree Thomas and they have three sons: Sidney Neal who has two sons: Steven Lee and Bryan Jeffrey; Robert Goree, who has a daughter, Yvonne Patricia and a son Bradley Thomas; and William Thomas, who has three children: Mitchell Thomas, Kenneth Stuart, Alicia Denise. Alice Ruth (Tudi) married Joe Miller and has four sons: Michael who has one son Joseph Michael Jr.; Christopher; John Mark who has two sons: John Mark R. and Adam Todd; and Dayton Thomas who has one son Dayton Thomas Jr. and one daughter Nancy. Robert Stuart (Bo) Shults married Nada Green and has one son John Tyler and one daughter Anne Elizabeth.

John Friar, younger brother of Sidney was born April 26, 1872 and married Mattie Williams born March 26, 1872 was a sister to Sidney's wife Annie. The Friars owned and operated a dairy on the Guadalupe River near Cuero. The Friars had two sons Oscar William, named for his grandfather Oscar Fitzgerald Williams, and Guenther. Oscar married Rena Mae Haile in 1927 and they had one daughter Jean Ann who married Henry Fassett Sheppard Jr. Guenther married Myrtle Meyer in 1926, had no children.

John died on April 23, 1912 leaving a widow with two young sons. His wife Mattie continued with their ranching and dairy interest. Mattie died on March 28, 1961 and her sons ranched until their deaths. Guenther died September 27, 1971 and Oscar died September 2, 1981. Jean Ann and Henry continue to ranch the Oscar Friar property. They have three children: Laurie Ann Sheppard Post, Henry III and Holly Jean Sheppard Hickey. The Sheppards have seven grandchildren: John Henry Post, Elizabeth Sheppard and Stephen Friar Post (twins), Henry Justin Sheppard, Willis Breeden Sheppard, William Fassett Hickey and Fielding Harris Hickey.

Thus we see that during the 1830's Daniel Boone Friar was helpful in Austin's Colony. Then from 1840 until his death he had an important part in the defense, organization, development and progress of the DeWitt County area. Also, that, throughout the years his descendants have been and are continuing to be useful and progressive citizens of DeWitt County and other sections.

John Randolph and Mattie (Williams) Friar. Guenther and Oscar William Friar.

Oscar William Friar, second son of John Randolph and Mattie Williams Friar, daughter of Oscar Fitzgerald Jr. and Dora Bonner Williams, was born in Cuero, Texas, December 14, 1891 and died in Cuero, September 2, 1981. He married Rena Mae Haile, April 1, 1927 in Breckenridge, Texas. Rena Mae was the daughter of Evlis LaFayette "Fate" Haile and Laura Ann Kirk Haile of Gorman, Texas. She died November 29, 1969. Both Oscar and Rena Mae are buried in Hillside Cemetery. Laura Ann's parents were Jasper Newton Kirk and Drucilla Ann Thompson Kirk. Evlis was one of seven children born to Tom and Amanda Haile of Tennessee. Oscar Williams grandparents were William S. Friar, born 1839 and Ann Elizabeth Smith Friar (Clinton, Texas) granddaughter of James Norman Smith. William S. operated a stagestop at Yorktown. He was a veteran of the Civil War and was a prisoner of the United States. He was also an ordained Presbyterian preacher who helped build the Presbyterian Church at Karnes City, Texas.

William S. was the son of Daniel Boone and Ann McGairy Friar who came with Stephen F. Austin's Little Colony (Robertson's Colony).

Oscar William and Rena Mae had one child Jean Ann who married Henry Fassett Sheppard Jr. in Cuero on January 20, 1951.

Oscar William attended the University of Arizona and the University of Texas. Rena Mae graduated from C.I.A. later known as Texas Women's University and taught school for several years in Big Springs, Texas. She also taught school in the Cuero Independent School District during World War II.

Oscar William was a life long DeWitt County rancher and cotton buyer. Oscar William had an older brother who died in infancy and a younger brother Lou Guenther. Guenther was born September 20, 1900 and died on September 23, 1971. His wife Myrtle Meyer was born April 13, 1898 in Victoria, Texas and died March 23, 1979. Guenther and Oscar operated a cotton company, Friar Brothers, in partnership for a number of years.

Oscar and Rena Mae were active members of the First United Methodist Church in Cuero, Texas.

In the May 11, 1897 issue of the Cuero Record an interesting article appeared which pertained to Mattie and J.R. Friar. The article follows:

"One of the best registered Jersey bulls in Texas has just been received by J.R. Friar & Co., of the Oakdale Jersey Farm.

This animal is sired by Dan Darling, the best bred bull in the South, whose sire was Prince of Melrose and dam Princess Corrine; test, 19 pounds and 1 ounce of butter seven days. His dam was first prize cow in Dallas in 1893, Fairy Gleneir; test, 14 pounds and 3 ounces of butter in seven days. A well-posted Jersey man describes this animal as follows: 'In my opinion he will make one of the best bulls in the country, and I believe will make a great show bull. He will be gray in color, has very short legs, tremendous vim and bred like he should be, fit to head any herd in America."

Dec. 30, 1924, Vera (Junker) Friedrichs and Albert Friedrichs.

Albert was born Feb. 4, 1887, son of Fred and Caroline Weiss Friedrichs. On Dec. 30, 1924 he married Vera Junker, born Sept. 12, 1903, daughter of George and Hildegard Diebel Junk-Albert bought 100 acres of land of the James Quinn Survey March 31, 1923. This is where they made their home after they were married. Albert raised cattle, hay crops, cotton and corn.

Vera (Junker) Friedrichs and Albert Friedrichs

He always had fruit trees — plum, peach, pear, and persimmons. The opossums would come at night and eat the green persimmons and get a good stomachache. We would get up early to see the sick opossums sitting under the trees. They were too sick to move. It taught us not to eat green persimmons. Albert also planted a lot of pecan trees. Wherever a pecan tree comes up to this day. Vera lets it grow and has someone come to bud it with a good variety of pecans. Vera is 85 years old now.

Albert raised cabbage while living with his parents. He was one of the Arneckeville Truckers who took cabbage to Cuero to sell to Moore and Sames Shippers in 1920. The cabbage was loaded on a railroad box car to be shipped to San Antonio. Albert and Vera also had a large truck garden and would sell produce to the Cuero grocery stores. With side boards on the pickup we would load it with cabbage, cauliflower, tomatoes, carrots, beets and turnips and take it to Yorktown on Saturday to sell from the truck at the city square.

Albert went to the Arneckeville school and went through the 4th grade. Vera's parents moved from farm to farm so she attended three schools and went through the 6th grade. Their parents needed their help at home for field and garden work so they couldn't finish school. They also had to help with smaller brothers and sisters. They managed their time, talent and money well and taught their children to do likewise.

Albert and Vera had three children: 1. Elorine, Nov. 8, 1925, married James Hartman (see history under James and Elorine Hartman). 2. Georgie Lee, March 6, 1926, married Harold Heyer. 3. Dalton, June 10, 1928, married Eunice Nagel.

Albert died Feb. 19, 1963 and is buried on Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville. Vera is still living on the home place.

FRIEDRICHS, FRED AND CAROLINE (WEISS)

F287

Fred Friedrichs, Jr. was born October 15, 1846 in Aurick, Kingdom of Hanover, Germany. He was the son of Fred Friedrichs, Sr. and wife, name unknown. Fred Friedrichs, Sr., with his wife and five children, landed in Indianola, Texas about May 14, 1852. The story was told that when they landed and unloaded the boat, a wheel of their wagon was missing so they waited for other boats to arrive to see if the wheel had been loaded on another boat. While waiting in Indianola they contacted a disease that may have been yellow fever. since this disease took the lives of many of the early settlers. Both parents died there. No graves have been found. The children had guardians but they abandoned the children. It is said that Pastor Christof Adam Sager sent word to bring the orphaned Freidrichs to Meyersville and families would be found to care for them. Fred Friedrichs, Jr. was listed in the 1860 DeWitt County Census roll living with Wilhelm Wilms in Meyersville. While living with the Wilms family, Fred, Jr. was bitten by a rattlesnake when he was a small boy working on the farm. The family butchered a chicken and put his hand in the warm chicken. When the chicken turned black they had a fresh chicken to put his hand in. They kept changing chickens until the chicken didn't get black anymore. He survived. Fred, Jr. had a brother, Herman (Aug. 25, 1836-April 19, 1914) and three sisters: Elisa, probably born in 1835, married Wilhelm Meyer; Meta (May 10, 1837-Feb. 1, 1896) married Adolph Meyer, founder of Meyersville; Anna (1844-Oct. 21, 1873) married John B. Olfers who was a charter member of Zion Lutheran Church,

Fred Friedrichs bought 175 acres of land in the James Quinn Survey near Arneckeville in June of 1872. On January 1, 1873 he married Caroline Weiss and they made their home on the land he had bought. They had 11 children: Emma (Oct. 24, 1873-Dec. 30, 1961) never married. 2. Caroline (Nov. 24, 1874-Dec. 28, 1958) married Theodor Behrns. 3. Rudolph (Nov. 2, 1876-June 8, 1903) married Bertha Schley Nov. 6, 1902 but died six months later. 4. Elisa (Aug. 16, 1877-Sept. 26, 1877). 5. Robert (Dec. 9, 1878-June 26, 1947) never married. He owned the swimming pool on the Old Yoakum Highway right out of Cuero. 6. Mathilde (April 11, 1880-Nov. 13, 1962) married Willie Schley. 7. Meta (May 28, 1881-1936) married Adolph Sapp. 8. Oscar (June 19, 1882-Aug. 6, 1906) never married. 9. Albert (Feb. 4, 1887-Feb. 19, 1963) married Vera Fred farmed, raised cattle and had a large vegetable garden. Fred died June 29, 1932 and Caroline died January 5, 1926. Both are buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

FRIEDRICHS, HERMAN AND CATHERINE KOEHLER

F288

Herman Friedrichs was born Aug. 25, 1836 in Aurick, Kingdom of Hanover, Germany. He was a son of Fred Friedrichs, Sr. and wife (name unknown). Herman came to America, landing at Indianola, Texas, about May 14, 1852 with his parents, brother and sisters. Both parents died about 3 weeks after they landed. Pastor Adam Sager, who was at Meyersville, probably sent word to Indianola to bring the orphaned Friedrichs children to Meversville and families would be found to care for them. Herman, who was about 15 years old, probably was a farm hand and stayed with any one who needed him. He had a brother Fred, born Oct. 15, 1846; sisters Eliesa, probably born in 1835, who married Wilhelm Meyer; Meta, born May 10, 1837, who married Adolph Meyer; and Anne, born in 1844, who married John Olfers.

On Feb. 19, 1866 Herman married Catherine Koehler. Their daughter, Bertha was born Dec. 24, 1866. However in 1868 the wife, Catherine, died leaving Herman with a baby daughter to raise. Catherine is buried at St. John's Lutheran Church cemetery in Meyersville. Bertha was then taken in and raised by her Aunt Eliesa and Wilhelm Meyer until 1874 when Eliesa died. Bertha then lived with her grandparents, the Valentine Koehlers, in Arneckeville. Zion Lutheran church records show

Herman Friedrichs

Bertha was confirmed on March 21, 1880. On April 27, 1886 she married Louis Hausman.

According to Alice Sacherer Englehardt of Lavernia, Texas, a granddaughter from Herman's second marriage, Herman carried bags of money from Cuero to San Antonio on horseback. She did not know why. He would stop over at "Twenty Mile House" so-called because it was twenty miles from San Antonio. Herman would hide the money under his saddle and use the saddle for his pillow to protect the money. The Twenty Mile House' was owned by a family named Bauer. This is where Herman met and married his second wife, Minnie Bauer, in about 1871. Herman stayed in Lavernia and raised their 8 children. He and Minnie are buried in the Friedrichs Cemetery on his original land.

Louis and Bertha (Friedrichs) Hausman

Louis and Bertha Hausman had 10 children.

1) Mathilda, married Charles Roessler, 2) Nathalie Hausman, died at age 11 years old, 3) Emilie married Fred Kann, 4) Willie Hausman, died after WWI, 5) Lena married Arthur

FROSBESE, WILLIAM SR.

William Frobese, Sr. was born February 17, 1838 in Alfelt, Hanover, Germany. He attended a German grade school and University in his youth. He landed at the Port of Galveston, Texas from Bremen in 1859 at the age of twenty one. He then took a boat to Indianola, Texas and took his first job with H. Iken. In 1861 william accepted a job with the Runge firm, then under the name of Runge and Dove.

His service was for only a few months, however, for in the latter part of the year, together with his fellow employees, Emil Reiffert and Louis Budde, he answered the call of the Confederacy in the War Between the States. His military service continued until the end of the war in 1865. Mr. Frosbese, Mr. Reiffert and Mr. Budde were all members of the Company Captained by Dr. W.M. Reuss. At the close of hostilities Mr. Frobese returned to the Runge firm's employ until the time of his death.

A few years after William came to America, his brother, Alexander came over but unfortunately died of yellow fever soon after his arrival. His brother, Ferdinand also came over and farmed in the vicinity of Clinton DeWitt County, Texas. He was drowned in the Guadalupe River in 1883 leaving six children. There were three sisters of William's that stayed in Germany. Alma married Julius Rolff; Annie married Hermann Lange; and Marie who remained single.

Mr. Frosbese was married at Indianola to Miss Charlotte Rolle on October 14, 1868. She was born on March 29, 1840 in Hildesheim, Germany. She died May 3, 1882 and is buried in Hillside Cemetery, Cuero, Texas. After her death, William Frosbese married Miss Alfreda Reuss, daughter of Dr. J. M. Reuss. She was born October 12, 1854.

William and Charlotte had five children: 1) Alma Frobese; 2) William Frobese, Jr.,; 3)
Charles Frobese, a stockman of DeWitt County; 4) Herman Frobese who died unmarried at Cuero; and 5) Henry Frobese who was with the banking firm of H. Runge and Co.

William Frobese and his second wife, Alfreda had five children: 1) Dr. Joseph Frobese of Cuero; 2) Bertha who married F.N. Schmidt of Eagle Pass, Texas; 3) Marion Frobese; 4) Alfred Frobese, a stockman of DeWitt county; and 5) Annie Frobese.

When the Gulf Western Texas and Pacific Railway was constructed to connect the port with Victoria, Mr. Frobese moved to that city to manage a branch of the business in 1871. After a few years in this capacity the Victoria business was consolidated with the branch at Cuero and Mr. Frobese joined Mr. Mugge in the management of the business in Cuero.

Mr. Frobese died August 9, 1911 and Alfreda Frobese died November 22, 1931. They are buried in Hillside Cemetery, Cuero, DeWitt County, Texas.

GAEDKE, LEONA (PETERS)

F290

Leona Peters was born on January 27, 1901 in the Garfield Community near Yorktown, daughter of George and Alwine (Sinast) Peters. She was baptized and confirmed in the St. Paul Lutheran Church of Yorktown. Leona spent her early childhood in the Garfield and Yorktown Communities, and attended the Yorktown Schools. In 1913 she moved with her family to Nordheim, where she continued her education in the Nordheim Schools.

Leona married Willie Gaedke on January 18, 1923 at the Nordheim St. Paul Lutheran Church. They made their home on the Gaedke place south or Nordheim, where Willie was engaged in farming and ranching. Leona always had a great love for music; especially, she loved playing the piano and organ. Over the years she gave piano lessons to her nieces and nephews, as well as other youths interested in playing the piano. For many years Leona played the organ for the St. Paul Lutheran Church at Nordheim, and at times led singing at Sunday School. She was very active in the Lutheran Ladies Aid and other church functions. Not having children of their own, Leona and Willie loved being around their friends' and relatives' children. Leona was an immaculate housekeeper, a devout Christian lady, a loyal friend, and a devoted wife.

Leona suffered from diabetes for many years. She passed away on June 7, 1978 in the Cuero Hospital. Preceding her in death were her parents, George and Alwine (Sinast) Peters; one brother, Waldin Peters; and one sister, Frieda Peters. Surviving her were her husband, Willie; two sisters, Malinda Peters and Mrs. Edwin C. (Caroline) Klaevemann; and several nephews and nieces.

GAREY, SEYMOUR

F29

Stephen Garey, born in England about 1650, was an early inhabitant of Charlestown, Massachusetts. Stephen's second wife was Patience and they had one son, Stephen Jr. He was born February 1691/92, one month after the death of his father. When Stephen was grown he moved to Taunton, Massachusetts and married Mary Gilbert, daughter of Eleazer and Elizabeth (Crane) Gilbert, November 9, 1711.

Ebenezer, the sixth child of Stephen and Mary, moved to Lebanon, New London County, Connecticut, at an early age. In 1754, he married Lucy Collins, daughter of Benjamin and Elizabeth Collins, who was born February 5, 1736 in Lebanon.

Ambrose, the sixth child of Ebenezer and Lucy, was born May 30, 1768. He married Mary Woodruff or Woodworth, in 1788. Their third child, Seymour, was born March 16, 1792. About 1805, Ambrose left Lebanon and moved his family to Wyoming County, Pennsylvania. The part of Wyoming County, where they lived, was changed to Luzerne County in 1842. Ambrose died March 25, 1826 and is buried in Upper Fassett Cemetery, Wyoming County, Pennsylvania.

Seymour married Sally Carney, daughter of William and Prudence (Comstock) Carney, July 21, 1814. They had four children. Sally died April 6, 1825 and is buried in Upper Fassett Cemetery. About 1827, Seymour married Anna Kingsbury, believed to be the daughter of Samuel Kingsbury. They had four children before migrating to Texas in the late 1830s. On September 19, 1839 they purchased their first Texas home. It was on the Brazos River in the town of San Felipe de Austin. On December 28, 1839, Seymour was granted a conditional headright certificate to 640 acres of land by the Republic of Texas. The land he received was in Gonzales County but incorporated into DeWitt County in 1846. They sold their Austin County property and were in their new home by the end of 1840.

Seymour and Sally's children, all born in Wyoming County, were: (1) Amanda, born ca 1816, married Truman Courtney. (2) Savanna born ca 1818, died April 27, 1821 and is buried in Upper Fassett Cemetery. (3) Elijah, born ca 1819 in Wyoming County, Pennsylvania was killed in the Dawson Massacre at Salada Creek, Bexar County, Texas on September 18, 1842. His bones are interred in a common grave, with the other men who were killed during the Dawson Massacre, at Monument Hill near LaGrange, Texas. (4) William Carney, born October 24, 1823 in Windham Twp, Wyoming Co., came to Texas with his family but went back to Pennsylvania when he was grown. He was married three times and had four children by each wife. He returned to Texas with his third wife and twelve children in the early 1880s. He ranched in Gonzales County until the late 1880s. He moved to Chemung County, New York, from Gonzales County where he lived until his death January 10, 1910.

Seymour and Anna's children were: (1) Harriet B., born ca 1829, married John Tumlinson, March 21, 1844 in Gonzales County. Harriet married her second husband, Isaac Read, on January 15, 1848. Her third was William Terry, whom she wed on March 8, 1855. Her last two marriages were in DeWitt County. (2) Benjamin W., born August 21, 1831, married Mary E. Criswell, March 15, 1860 in Fayette County. He served in the CSA cavalry during the Civil War. He died in 1903. (3) Amanda Susan Seymour, born July 15, 1835 in Wyoming Co. Pennsylvania, married Henry F.W. Hill on June 20, 1852. (4) Lafayette, died young. (5) Royal, born August 8, 1846, married Sicilia P. Neal, March 10, 1870 in DeWitt County. He married Sarah Tanksley, September 15, 1881 in Lavaca County. He lived in the Stratton area and played a fiddle for many dances in the area. He passed away August 9, 1905.

Anna died between 1850 and 1860. Her resting place is unknown. Seymour went to Luzerne County, Pennsylvania to visit relatives and died there ca 1874. His grave, in Upper Fassett Cemetery, is marked by a rock with S.G. carved on it.

GARRETT - GILL FAMILY

Adelaide and Arthur Gill

My mother, Adelaide Garrett Gill, was born in rural DeWitt County in 1902, and her family moved to Karnes County in 1906. There were five children when their mother died in early 1912 and they spent much time with their Garrett grandparents in DeWitt County, near Thomaston, when their father, Ice Garrett could not get any one to stay with them.

Mother said her Grandmother Garrett was never too busy to teach her to knit, to quilt, or other new skills. She said "Never mind long stitches. This quilt is not for showing off, but it will keep us warm." She also told Mother many stories of things she did in the old days; making all their own clothes (cutting out left-handed with right-hand scissors), from cloth she had woven, and sewing every stitch by hand until her husband bought her the first sewing machine ever seen in that country.

Mother told me that her mother taught her to read and write, and her father helped her learn the multiplication table. When she finally started to school she was ten, and began in the fourth grade, riding five miles to school on an aged pony with her brother Isham.

When Mother was ready for high school, she went to live with her Grandmother Kyle in Cuero. She said from the house you could see the courthouse a couple of blocks east, and Cuero High was three blocks northwest.

When Mother started to high school, Great-grandmother Kyle asked the principal to set up a schedule for graduation in three years instead of the usual four, eighth through eleventh grades. She was seventy three in 1915, and thought she might not live to see Mother through school. Mother told me that during her first two high school years her grandmother's encouragement and companionship were a great help to her in her studies. She treated her as a contemporary and made her see the school subjects as interesting and fun.

When Mother described her Grandmother Kyle to me, I said "How you must have loved her!" She was a fragile little person, less than five feet tall, and she died the summer of 1917. Her oldest daughter, retired teacher Miss Lizzie Kyle, told Mother the last thing she said was "Please give Adelaide her last year of high school." So Mother had her third year, but she felt her Grandmother's death deeply and missed her encouragement.

My grandfather "Ice" Garrett remarried in the fall of 1917, after Mother went to Cuero for her senior year, so she had time to get used to the idea of having a stepmother. The fall of 1918 a school was offered to "Miss Adelaide" if she could pass the exams, at Karnes City, for a certificate. Mother was hired to teach at Harmony School near Gillett in Karnes County. This was a tiny one teacher country school with only fifteen students. The superintendent offered her better pay for the next year in a two-teacher school ($65 per month!) provided she attended summer school in Corpus Christi. The superintendent kept his word and the next fall Mother taught at Live Oak School.

My father, Arthur Gill, returned from World War One in the summer of 1919 and he just happened to meet the train Mother was riding as she returned home from her teacher-training course at Corpus Christi. There my Father stood young, tall, good-looking, and my little red headed Mother got off the train. It was love at first sight and their courtship started shortly after that.

Mother resented it that her father would not allow her to date unless Uncle Isham went along. Mother and Dad rode in a buggy, and Uncle Isham, who was sixteen, rode on horseback close enough to hear every word they said, and missed no chance to embarrass her. Coming home from the 1920 New Year party, Aunt Rose rode with Uncle Isham, and she dropped her hair ribbon, making him go a long way back for it, so Dad was able to propose without witnesses.

That spring a severe Easter frost killed Dad's money crop of corn, so he worked for Grandpa Gill until he got a September job in the cotton gin, and her and Mother were married. Later my parents answered an ad for a teacher in Milam County, near Rockdale, and Dad rented a farm there. They bought a team of horses and a wagon, that Dad rigged as a covered wagon, in which they moved back to Karnes County in the fall.

They farmed for several years and during these farming years my older siblings, Arthur Jr., Elizabeth, and David were born. Then they moved to San Antonio, and Dad worked in the Southern Pacific railroad shop till he developed heart trouble and was sent to the S.P. Hospital in Houston. After nearly a year, the doctors sent him home to die, giving him about three months to live, and he was only thirty five. However, a specialist advised a high, dry climate, and my parents moved to Kerrville, where I was born. We were a close and happy family, and Dad lived to be ninety.

GARRETT, EBB

F293

Ebb Garrett was born March 1, 1889, in DeWitt County near Bear Creek to Joseph K. and Martha Ann (Collins) Garrett. In 1910, Ebb Garrett purchased his first tract of land where he farmed and did some ranching. A barn was built first, then in 1914, he built a house for his bride-to-be. The lumber for the house came from Louisiana by boat to old Indianola, then to Victoria where he purchased it from Anckor Lumber Company.

In November 1915, he married Louise Ida Morgenroth in Victoria. She was born March 23, 1894 in Victoria County near Blue Mott to Charles O. and Mary Marie (Michalek) Morgenroth. She was an immaculate housekeeper, a good cook and loved to piece quilts and work in her flower and vegetable gardens.

Ebb and Louise Garrett's honeymoon was a trip to their new home in the Fordtran community where they would raise their seven children. Life was not always easy but they made the best of everything. Louise canned vegetables and dried peas and beans from their garden. During winter, they butchered hogs for sausage and bacon and rendered the fat for lard. In the summer, they belonged to a butcher club. They raised chickens and turkeys. They always had a small herd of cattle and Ebb farmed. In the early years, he raised spanish goats to eat the underbrush so more grass could grow. They raised geese for their feathers. Twice a year they picked the down for feather beds and pillows. When the children got married each was given a feather bed and a set of feather pillows.

A kerosene lamp was used for light. Louise made lye soap and heated water in a black kettle to do the laundry which she washed on a rub-board. A wood cook stove was used to cook all the meals and to heat the bath water. During winter the family sat around the wood burning heater that warmed the house. It was a treat when there was popcorn to pop.

All the children went to Lander Country School. It was three miles away but they walked, come rain or shine. Sears Roebuck catalogs were used to order their back-to-school clothing, household items, and in December, things for the holiday season. In the summer, the favorite time of day was when all the chores were done and they could sit on the front porch and tell stories. On Sunday, aunts, uncles, and cousins would come to visit.

They hosted many country parties for the young people; everyone would come for miles. They would move all the furniture out of the room so they could square dance. A favorite place on the farm was under a bunch of liveoak and elm trees that grew on the banks of the Chicolete Creek where there were many family picnics and bar-b-ques.

They rode by horseback to Fordtran, which was five miles away, to pick up their mail. In the 1940's they finally got rural delivery of the Ebb Garrett died July 23, 1976, in a rest home in Victoria, Texas. He is buried in Hebron Cemetery along with his wife Louise who died July 22, 1956.

Ebb and Louise had seven children: 1) Lena was born October 1, 1916 and married Henry Matocha in 1946. 2) Frankie was born August 9, 1918. 3) Eva was born September 9, 1920 and married Lonnie Bullis in 1947. 4) Ruby was born December 28, 1922 and married Lester Jaroszewski in 1946. 5) James was born August 6, 1926 and married Carrie Dykes. 6) Eddie was born November 1, 1929 and married Ruby Frankhouser in 1954. 7) Arthur was born August 17, 1934.

GARRETT, ISHAM B.

Isham B. Garrett and Frances Margaret (Kyle) Garrett

My grandparents, William Mansfield Garrett and Margaret Ann (Byers) Garrett, bought the ranch on the DeWitt-Victoria County-Line Road in September 1895, and in 1896, gave one acre for a school. This was built by local families with donated lumber and labor, finished in 1899, and called Blue Mott School.

The first teacher was "Miss Fanny" — Frances Margaret Kyle of Cuero, who had previously taught in Shiner. She boarded with the Garretts in their large ranch house, and inspired the neighbors to organize the Blue Mott Sunday School.

The oldest Garrett son living at home,

Isham, called Ice, courted Miss Fanny so successfully that they were married in July 1900. His parents built them a little house on 25 acres; two rooms with a dogtrot hall between and an east porch facing the road. In March of 1902, I was born in the little house, attended by the local midwife, Granny Fudge, as I discovered when I needed a birth certificate. My brother Isham had a birth certificate, and Dad explained that he was born on a cold, dark, rainy night in March 1904, and "I couldn't ask a lady to come out in such weather, so I went to town and got Dr. Pridgen."

Then, in January 1906, Dad was plowing when Mama blew the cowhorn that hung on the porch, used mostly to signal noon, to come in for dinner. This time, he took the horses loose, ran with them to the house, hitched up to the wagon, and went racing for Grandma. I was a little short of four years old, but I still have this vivid picture of Dad standing up in the wagon, whipping the horses, and fairly flying low across the prairie. They arrived very soon, but my sister Rose was already there.

At that time, Grandpa carried the mail on horseback in leather saddlebags, on a Star Route from Thomaston to Fordtran, down the country road in front of our house. Later, as he got older, he took the mail in a buggy, as he still did in 1909, at age 78.

In the early 1900's Grandma said when a traveling preacher came through, he always preached at Blue Mott schoolhouse. When a Mormon missionary came to ask permission to use the school, the other trustees gave a thunderous No! but Grandpa said, "Any man can preach here! If you don't want to hear him, you don't have to go. If you go, you don't have to believe him. But you do have to let him preach. If you don't, I'll come down and tear off all the lumber I put on that schoolhouse and take it home!" "And they knew he would," said Grandma.

In the fall of 1906, we left DeWitt County because Aunt Connie had died leaving Dad's brother Jim with two small boys, Jim-Mac and Boyd, living in Karnes County, near Runge. Uncle Jim asked my parents to live with him so Mama could keep house for both families. We were there for a year, until Uncle Jim remarried.

GARRETT, JACK

Jack and Mattie Garrett

This is the story of Jack and Mattie Garrett and their 57 years of loving marriage.

Jack Garrett was born December 3, 1886, the son of Martha Ann Collins Garrett and Joseph Kelly Garrett, in Terryville, DeWitt County, Texas. He died on May 18, 1969, at the age of 82 and is buried at County Line Cemetery in DeWitt County. He was a Lutheran.

Mattie Garrett was born February 20, 1891, the daughter of Mary Rosa Hollan Vick and Jeff Davis Vick, in Hope, DeWitt County, Texas. Mattie's great, great grandfather, Wade Hampton Hollan, organized the Hebron Baptist Church in 1855, where Mattie was a member during her lifetime. She died March 1, 1989, at the age of 98 and is buried at County Line Cemetery in DeWitt County.

Jack and Mattie Garrett were joined in holy matrimony on August 21, 1912, in Cuero, DeWitt County, Texas. They traveled from the Terryville area by wagon over to the Justice of the Peace in Cuero to be married.

They made their home in DeWitt County. Jack was a farmer and rancher.

In 1920, Jack, Mattie and their four children moved to Kerrville, traveling by passenger train. Jack rode in the freight car with his livestock. Arriving in Kerr County, the family purchased approximately two hundred acres of land and settled in Camp Verde. Jack was a farmer, raising oats, and a rancher, raising cattle and sheep. He also cut and sold cedar posts.

In 1923, the family, now including five children, returned to DeWitt County, again traveling by train. Jack purchased the "home place" in the Fordtran community from his father, Joseph Kelly Garrett, where he farmed and ranched for the rest of his life.

From the late twenties through the forties, the family milked some fifty cows each day, separated the milk and sold the cream to earn money to pay for the land. In later years the whole milk was sold. Jack also did some truck farming to help pay the bills.

Jack and Mattie Garrett had seven sons—Charles Edward (deceased); J.D. (deceased); James Edd of San Marcos; Earl Vaden, Jake, Sylvan and A.G. of Yoakum. They had five daughters—Mary Inez Nobles of Yoakum; Bessie Lee Hart and Margaret Lucille Malina of Victoria; Martha Rose Brandenburg (deceased); and Minnie Mae Haney of Corpus Christi. As this history is written, their descendants include 35 grandchildren, 55 great grandchildren and 5 great-great grandchildren.

GARRETT, JOSEPH KELLY

Joseph Kelly Garrett and Martha Ann (Collins) Garrett wedding picture 1883

Joseph Kelly (J.K.) Garrett was born April 3, 1860 in Karnes Co. Tx. He was the second of ten children born to Margaret Ann (Byars) and William Mansfield Garrett. His parents brought his brother John Byars and him to Lavaca Co. so Margaret and the boys could live with her family while William was in the Civil War. After the war was over the Garretts bought land near Terryville and raised their family. J.K. spent most of his life in DeWitt or surrounding counties.

Joseph married Christina Harriet Frazer on May 23, 1881 in DeWitt Co. They had one son Christina Kelly (Kell) who married Julie Nickles. Christina Harriet died April 19, 1882, and was buried in Hebron Cemetery.

In 1883 Joseph married Martha Ann Collins. They had twelve children. Harry born 1884, married Violettie Wood, he died 1965. Jack born 1886, married Mattie Vick, he died 1969. Ebb born 1889, married Louise Morgenroth, he died 1976. Hillary born 1894, married Nora E. Smith, died 1975. William born 1896, married Edna Morgenroth. Almack born 1897, married Letha Munson, he died 1945. Polly born 1899, married Hilbert Stinberg. Viola (Ola) born 1901, married Pridy Smith. Ivy born 1905, married Barney Ply. Wilbie born 1908 married Gladys? he died 1987.

Joseph Kelly was blonde, blue-gray eyed, about 5'8" large frame, and he had a moustache. He was a farmer and rancher. He also worked for the McFaddin Ranch. He would ride the fence and catch mayerics. He got either 50¢ per head of cattle or 50¢ a day. His older grandchildren remember when he came to visit them he always had beef jerky and he would shave off a piece for them to chew on. Joseph died Oct. 16, 1928 in the hospital in San Antonio, Texas. He was buried at Hebron Cemetery.

Martha was born Dec. 25, 1865 in Tyler Co. Her father was M.C. Collins. Martha was a small woman with brown hair who always wore an apron and she loved to piece quilts. She died Sept. 13, 1946 in the Yoakum Hospital. She was buried at Hebron Cemetery.

Stories My Grandpa Told Me

My family moved from DeWitt County in 1906 and my brother Irven Garrett was born in my widowed Uncle Jim's house in August 1907. After the crop was in, Uncle Jim married Mae Dubose, and we moved to the adjoining Porter ranch in Karnes County near the San Antonio River, where the mosquitoes were worse than we had ever seen, and we all had malaria from early spring to the first frost.

In November 1908 my brother Ward was born, a sickly baby, weighing no more at six months than at birth, and he could not tolerate cow's milk, or any formula they tried. My parents had one last hope, that Doctor Pridgen of Thomaston could save him, so Dad took us to the home of his father, William M. Garrett, near Thomaston. Dad returned home to work the crop, taking my oldest brother Isham for company. Doctor Pridgen tried a powdered formula, and Ward survived.

During the weeks we stayed at Grandpa's I remember moonlight nights on the front porch when he rocked a lap full of grandbabies, singing "Streets of Laredo" and "Mr. Frog went a-courting" until the babies were all asleep. The older children (Uncle Bob's and ours) sat on the steps listening till bedtime.

That was a long wonderful porch, with two rocking chairs where he and Grandma sat at the end of a day, looking out across the prairie. There were still a couple of saddles hanging on the wall — Grandpa said at one time there were five, before his younger sons were married.

After we went home there was a good crop, and my parents had a good picture taken of the children. Mama made school clothes for me, but Dad said I must wait for Isham to be seven, as a little girl could not ride five miles to school alone.

Mama had so much work, and she never was very strong. Then in February 1912, we had "hog killing weather" and she worked outside all day. Next morning she was not able to raise her head, but the doctor said she had "Spanish Influenza" with pneumonia. In a few days she died, and all the children had flu. Good doctors barely saved Isham, who had pneumonia.

Mama's mother, Grandma Kyle, came from Cuero to help us; when she went home to recuperate, Grandma Garrett replaced her, and they alternated for some time. We stayed at the home on the prairie until Isham and I had to go to school. Dad had a married cousin and her family came to stay with us for awhile, and then Grandma Garrett came back. By 1915 Dad found a place with two houses, a big one and a small one, on it, and got his brother Bob and Aunt Velma to farm with him.

Meanwhile, I was staying with Grandma Kyle, going to Cuero High School, and when I came home for Christmas I broke out with measles. That was the week Grandpa Garrett died and all of the relatives gathered. I gave the measles to fifteen other children.

Aunt Molly, Dad's sister, took Grandma Garrett to her home in El Campo after Grandpa's funeral and nursed her till she died, about a year later.

Over the years we spent much time with our Garrett grandparents who told us so much about the early days in DeWitt County; how in about 1851 Grandpa came from Tennessee to be a cowboy on a big ranch. Once Indians chased him to steal his horse; the horse threw him into a clump of mesquite brush. His partner drove it back to the ranch house while Grandpa lay hidden till dark and limped in on foot

When Grandma was nine Grandpa rode up to the porch of her grandmother's house where she was playing dolls. After a long talk he told her they would be married when she grew up, and so they were in 1857 when she was thirteen and he was twice her age.

Grandpa was a Texas Ranger just before the Civil War, and again, once or twice, at later periods. Once he bought Grandma a sewing machine with twenty dollars in gold from his pay. Grandma trusted no amateurs with her machine, but would sew cutout garments all day while the lady she was sewing for did Grandma's housework. She also had a loom, so she seldom spun, for people would bring her thread dyed with roots, bark, etc., which she wove for half the yardage of cloth.

Grandpa said he was a "high private" in the Civil War. When I asked him what it meant, he said "One that had his own blankets and shootin' irons instead of being furnished by the army." While Grandpa was at war Grandma stayed with a relative whose husband had also gone. She said that there were no Indians then, but the danger was from renegades. When they lit a candle they hung quilts over the windows to avoid men shooting at the lights "just for meanness."

After the war, in the seventies, Grandpa again worked for the Texas Rangers, and he rode with McNelly who was trying to stop the murders and cattle rustling from across the border. Grandpa admired McNelly above all authority of the time for getting the job done in his own straightforward style, legal or not, with only his thirty full-time Rangers and parttime volunteers he could depend on, like Grandpa.

In the summer of 1909 when we stayed with Grandpa his eyes were aging. He would have me read the newspaper, following the battles of Pancho Villa. I think Grandpa admired that great bandit as a rebel against oppression.

Garrett

William Jackson Garrett was born Feb. 10. 1911 at Blue Mott, on the edge of Victoria Co. and DeWitt Co. but was raised at Fordtran. He was the second of eleven children born to Harry and Violettie (Wood) Garrett.

In 1937 William was living in Colorado Co. when he met Selma Annie Brownson. They were married May 17, of that year in Harris Co. They moved to Victoria Co. about 1946 and their only child was born one year later. William Dean Garrett was born Dec. 9, 1947. They lived near Victoria for thirty years. William was a commercial fisherman, trapper, and raised cattle. Selma was a homemaker who loved to garden and sew for her family.

In 1976 William, Selma, their son, William D., his wife, Geneva, and their two daughters, Charlotte and Cynthis moved to Santa Anna, a small town in West Texas. They have continued to farm and ranch. William has since retired. Selma died Jan. 29, 1985 and was buried in the Santa Anna Cemetery.

GARRETT, WILLIAM MANSFIELD AND MARGARET ANN (BYARS)

F302

William Mansfield Garrett, my grandfather, was born May 12, 1831 in Christian Co. Ky., but grew up in Smith Co. Tenn. He was the son of William and Anna (Hailey) Garrett, who were married Oct. 23, 1815 in Fauquier Co. Va. (Bondsman, David Hailey, Father). Both were born in Va. and died in Smith Co. Tenn., near the town of New Middleton, ca. 1870-1880. Information about the brothers and sisters of William Mansfield Garrett is sketchy. He had a brother Henry C., who was killed in the Civil War, and possibly others. We know of sisters: Melville (md. Massey), Hulda Ann (md. Garrett), Sidney Ann (md. Wm. House), Lucritia Ann (md. K.F. Kelly), Louzetta Ann (md. Wilson Vantrease), and Lieutitia Ann (md. Elias B. Dowell).

Wm. Mansfield Garrett and Margaret Ann

Our family understanding has always been that Grandpa Garrett left his home in Tenn. after a serious misunderstanding with his parents, and he never went back or contacted any of his family again. He made his way to Miss. and, always having been a horse-lover, found work with a Mr. Wm. Green Kelly, breeder of fine horses. When the Kelly family came to Texas, Grandpa came too. He was entrusted with the job of bringing one of Mr. Kelly's Tenn. Walking Horse stallions to Texas by boat (or barge), traveling down the Mississippi River, then along the Texas coast to Indianola, and then overland to Karnes Co. where the Kelly family settled. It was in Karnes Co. that he met Margaret Ann Byars.

Margaret Ann had one brother, Joseph Jeremiah Byars. They were born in Chickasaw Co., Miss. to John Byars and Melissa (Middlebrook) Byars. John Byars was the son of Stripling Byars, who died in Jeff. Co. Ala. Feb/Apr. 1836. The family left Ala. and moved to Chickasaw Co. Miss., where they remained until they came to Texas. Melissa Middlebrook was the daughter of Ibzan and Jane (Crawford) Middlebrook. (Jane's parents were Jesse and Hannah Crawford.) Margaret Ann, or Grandma Garrett as I knew her, told us that she came to Texas when she was quite small. Her parents died when she and her brother were very young, and they were raised by their Middlebrook grandparents, Ibzan and Jane, who had settled in Nacogdoches Co. Texas. Ibzan died about 1848 when Grandma was four years old,

1895 Parents: Ebb Garrett and Docia (Stephenson) Garrett Children: Grover Garrett, William Garrett and Winnie Lee Garrett

William Ebb Garrett was born July 14, 1866 in DeWitt County, the son of William Mansfield Garrett and Margaret Ann Byars Garrett.

W.E. Garrett and D.F. Stephenson were married the 19th day of September 1888 by J.D. Cook in DeWitt County, Texas. D.F. Stephenson, my great-grandmother, was Theodocia Frances Stephenson, born April the 13th, 1870 in DeWitt County, the daughter of Hugh John Stephenson and his wife, Martha Ann Elizabeth Hollan Stephenson.

William Ebb and Docia had seven children. 1) Annie May Garrett was born July 19, 1889 and died on May 7, 1890. She is buried in the Hollan family cemetery. 2) Grover Barnwell Garrett was born February 18, 1891. He was married October 11, 1911 to Frances Allie Squyres. He died in Liberty County November 2, 1968. 3) William Hugh Garrett was born April 30, 1893. He married Bessie Eldridge on December 29, 1916. He died March 2, 1978 in DeWitt County, Texas. 4) Winnie Lee Garrett was born August the 22nd, 1895 in Lavaca County, Texas. She was married to Claud Allen Chadwick November 24, 1914 in DeWitt County. 5) Martha Viola Garrett was born October 23, 1898 in Lavaca County. She married Herbert Magee on January 19, 1918. 6) Fannie Eulalie Garrett was born February 11, 1901 in DeWitt County, Texas. She was married to Joe Lamberson on December 23, 1923. 7) Thelma Matilda Garrett was born September 21, 1905. She married Walter Ewell O'Neill on October 3, 1923. Thelma Garrett O'Neill died May 1, 1987 in DeWitt County, Texas.

William Ebb and Docia Garrett lived their lives in DeWitt County. Docia Garrett died June 20, 1929. William Ebb Garrett died on September 3, 1932. Both are buried at County and Jane moved her family to Karnes Co. after 1850. (She later married George Ross Galloway there.) Grandma and Grandpa were married in Karnes Co. in 1857 when he was 26 and she was 13!

They lived in Karnes Co. after they married, and their first two children, John Byars and Joseph Kelly Garrett, were born there. With the coming of the Civil War, Grandpa left Grandma and the two little boys with her relatives, Isham and Aliena (Byars) Autry, in Lavaca Co. and enlisted March 6, 1862 at Hallettsville, Tex. when he was 31 years old. He was a private in Co. A, Young's Regiment, 12th Texas Infantry. An old back injury caused such disability, however, that he was discharged Nov. 21, 1862, at Camp Nelson, Ark. on Surgeon's Certificate of Disability, and returned to Hallettsville. A daughter, "Lue," my mother, was born Nov. 17, 1863 near Antioch, in Lavaca Co. After the Civil War they moved to Terryville, Tex. He bought up small tracts of land, and after the village of Terryville moved in 1881, he bought up the site of Old Terryville. They lived at Old Terryville until 1895, and the rest of their children were born there: William Elbridge, Harriett Elizabeth, James Terry and Patterson Smith (twins), Isham Beason, Mary Emma "Mollie," and Robert Thompson.

In 1895 their son John Byars Garrett bought their place at Old Terryville, and they bought 160 acres from him. This land was located south of Terryville, on the DeWitt/Victoria Co. line near Fordtran. Grandpa wanted to move there because he felt it was a better place for raising horses! They lived there the rest of their lives. In 1896 Grandpa and Grandma donated an acre of land to the DeWitt County judges to be used for a public school. As far as we know, this land was for the Blue Mott

School. Grandma's brother, Joseph Jeremiah Byars, married Georgia Melvina Sirmon in DeWitt Co. and lived at Terryville for a time. Their first child, daughter Melissa, was born there. They later moved and settled near Dripping Springs, Tex. (They are buried in the Middlebrook family cemetery on the old Seyborn Sims Middlebrook ranch. S.S. Middlebrook was a brother to Ibzan, grandfather of Grandma and Joseph Jeremiah.) An interesting story I remember is about a trip made by covered wagon in summer of 1902 when Grandma Garrett went to Dripping Springs to visit her brother and his family. Two covered wagons made the round-trip from Terryville; in one wagon were Grandma, her son Isham, his wife Fannie and little daughter Adelaide; in the other were my mother Lue Goode, my oldest brother Bill, and sisters Mattie and Eula, and myself. Since I was only five years old at the time, many details of the trip are hazy in my memory, but I remember that we took lots of watermelons with us. We camped along the way and cooked our meals over campfires. We always tried to camp at a church or school, as these buildings were not locked in those days and we could sleep inside. We stopped at farmhouses along the way to get fresh milk for the children. It was a great occasion when we arrived at Uncle Joe's, and all of his family came to visit while we were there. I am not sure how long we stayed, but I do remember that when we were packing and getting ready to leave, we found that a bird had built a nest and laid eggs in one of the wagons. I also remember that on the way home we camped and spent the night inside of Turner Hall, west of Yoakum. As far as I know, that was the last time that Grandma and her brother ever saw each other.

In later years we grandchildren liked to go out to our grandparents' house near Fordtran and stay with them. Grandpa was the mail carrier, and we enjoyed going with him in his buggy to meet the train at Thomaston to pick up the mail for the Fordtran post office.

Grandpa died Dec. 23, 1916, and Grandma died June 26, 1918. Both are buried in County Line Cemetery.

GELSSUS, GEORGE AND MARIA (KIRLICKS) FAMILY

Beverly (Kerlick) Bruns, Patsy Hand, and Liz Jank also provided research for this article, with valuable assistance from Ella Fehlis, Myrtle Schlichtin, and George Stoepler.

Maria Kirlicks, (1 Apr. 1833 - 12 Sep. 1908) was the younger daughter of Catherine Kirlicks, whose story is given separately. Little is known about George Gelssus, save that he was Maria's first husband, and father of their three daughters: Anna, Maria, and Louise. Probate records in DeWitt County show that he died 24 March 1859, leaving an estate of 260 Prussian Thalers, equivalent to $169. The persistent family story is that he had sent his wife and two daughters to America in 1857, along with her brothers, and planned to follow as soon as he could sell the property. They had bad weather, which delayed them so much that the youngest child was born on the ship (all records located so far show that she was born in Texas, but the story may still very well be true).

Eighteen months later, so the story goes, he finally sold the property, but was murdered before leaving his homeland. Nothing we have found so far gives us reason to doubt the story. As with the other immigrant Lithuanians, the spelling of the name varies — Gelssus, Gelschus, Gelszus, and Geldzus are the more popular versions; others are Gelschuss, Gelzus, Gildzus, and Geldous.

Maria's first daughter, Anna, was born 7 July 1854 in Lithuania, and died 17 June 1937 in Texas. During the period 1879-82, she lived in Houston and worked for the C.H. Bering Lumber Company. Her mother's brother, William, who died tragically in 1869 (see "Kerlick Tragedy") had married Mr. Bering's sister, Wilhelmine, shortly before his death; in 1872, the widow Kirlicks married Joseph Turner, a pressman for the Houston Post.

On 19 Feb. 1886, Anna married Henry Carl Meyer (2 Nov. 1857 - 20 Mar. 1941) at St. John's Lutheran Church in Meyersville. They soon moved to Freiheit, Comal County (near New Braunfels), where their five children were born: Rose (married Loehmann), Agnes (died at age six months), Albert F., Auguste Bertha Caroline (married Loehmann), and Ella Luise (married Fehlis). The two Loehmanns were brothers. Albert's only child still lives in the original Meyer home at Freihert. Even though they left the county long ago (or perhaps, because they left), this is the family that has preserved letters written by Maria's brothers and sister back in the 1860's, that we hope will give us new insight to DeWitt County life, as soon as we can get them translated from Lithuanian and German.

The second daughter, Maria (17 Dec. 1855 -9 July 1888), was born in Minneiken, Lithuania, almost adjacent to her mother's birthplace of Kirlicken. She was confirmed at St. John's in 1872, and on 29 Apr. 1877, she married John Lewis Goehring (15 Dec. 1844 - 10 Nov. 1931), a native of Gurkow, Prussia. They lived near Meyersville, but their three children were all baptized at St. Paul's in Yorktown. The first child, Maria Martha Heneriette, was born 22 Feb. 1878 and lived at least until the 1880 census, but we have found no later records of her. Bertha Emilie Alwine was born 8 May 1879, and married Robert A. Boldt on 8 Dec. 1898. Their first three children - Ludwig, Arthur, and Edmund — were baptized at St. Paul's; they later moved to Karnes County and had at least two more children. Maria's only son, John Frederick, was born 1 Sept. 1881, and married Mattie P. Caruthers on 2 Dec. 1903. Their children were Leslie, Ewing, and Ila. Maria Goehring died quite young and is buried at St. John's Lutheran Cemetery in Meyersville. Shortly after 1900, her husband and son followed the Stoepler family to Concho County.

The third daughter, Louise Elise (15 Oct. 1857 - 24 Sep. 1913), is said to have been born on the ship coming over, and was baptized six months later at St. John's. (The baptism record shows her birthdate as 18 Oct., but the family remembers 15 Oct., as on her headstone.) On 13 Aug. 1876, she married John Stoepler (6 Aug. 1853 - 30 Oct. 1934), a native of Lauterbach, Oberhessen (now Germany). They had ten children (eight of whom survived infancy), all baptized at St. Paul's in Yorktown; (1) John William (married Mary Dodzuweit in Goliad Co.); (2) Johanna Caroline (married Frenzel and moved to N. Dakota); (3) Maria Heneriette (married George W. Sickenius, moved to Karnes Co., and had eight children, all baptized at St. Paul's); (4) Henry Louis (moved to Concho Co., died of typhoid at 33, leaving his wife Myrtle and son Fritz); (5t) Albert Richard (moved to Concho Co.); (6) Berthold Louis; (7) Bertha Louise; (8) George August (died at 17, buried in Concho Co.); (9) (name unknown); and (10) Rudolf Emil. After more than a year of being alone, John Stoepler married Mrs. Augusta Schmutzler in San Antonio, on 2 Jan. 1915.

On 1 Jan. 1862, the widow Maria Gelssus married John Jonischkies at St. John's Meyersville. The story of their six children is given separately.

Wilhelm Gerbert and Charlotte (nee Lemm) Gerbert were married in Germany and emigrated from Eselbach Altenburg, Germany on the Margaretha to the United States in 1846. They settled in Goliad County, Tex. and were far-Wilhelm Gerbert was born Nov. 13, 1811 in Germany and died Feb. 13, 1880 at Dobskyville, Tex. Charlotte (nee Lemm) Gerbert was born in Germany and died Mar. 1882 at Dobskyville. They are buried on the Gerbert-Schulze family cemetery on the Gerbert-Schulze farm at Dobskyville.

In 1856, Charlotte Gerbert bought 196.33 acres of land from Joshua H. Davis, Goliad County at Dobskyville. Wilhelm and Charlotte settled on this land. They had a son Albert Gerbert.

Albert Gerbert married Johanna Gebbert, a daughter of Henry Gebbert and Sophie (Grothe) Gebbert. Henry Gebbert was born April 1819 in Germany and died May 1, 1904, Germantown (Schroeder, Tex.). Sophie Gebbert was born in Germany and died Jan. 11, 1925, Schroeder. They had 3 children: Johanna Gebbert Gerbert, Sophia Gebbert Kruger, and Henry William Gebbert (April 11, 1869-Jan. 24, 1942, Goliad Co.).

Johanna Gerbert died when their son, Albert Gerbert, Jr., was born, Aug. 12, 1872. Albert Gerbert, Jr. was reared by his grandparents, the Henry Gibbert family at Kilgore, Goliad Co. He married Katherine Sophie Reiland, a daughter of August Reiland and Anna Schaefer Reiland. August and Anna Reiland were married Oct. 18, 1881, Victoria Co. Katherine was born July 23, 1886 and died Aug. 3, 1859. Albert Gerber, Jr. died Oct. 8, 1930. They are buried on the Evergreen Cemetery, Victoria, Tex. Albert Gerbert, Jr. was a carpenter, worked for the railroad, and was a policeman. He changed the spelling of his last name to Gerber.

Albert Gerber, Jr. and Katherine had 2 children: Ethel Mae and Alroy Gerber. Ethel Mae was born Dec. 28, 1910, Victoria, worked for Woolworth as bookkeeper and manager. She did not marry and resides in Victoria, Tex. Alroy Gerber was born June 25, 1913, Victoria. He married Erna Margaret Berger, Oct. 5, 1935, Runge, Tex. They had no children. Second marriage, Alroy married Lona Bailey from Votaw, Tex. and had no children. Alroy worked for a funeral home and with auto parts. He died Feb. 8, 1983 in Houston, Tex. Lona Gerber is a nurse and lives in Houston, Tex.

Second marriage, Albert Gerbert, Sr. married Mary Hartman Feb. 19, 1875 in Clinton, DeWitt Co. Mary Hartman Gerbert was born Mar. 12, 1850, in Germany, a daughter of Carl Hartman. Carl Hartman was born Nov. 14, 1820 in Germany, died Feb. 7, 1895 at Yorktown, and was buried on the Lutheran Cemetery, Yorktown.

In 1877, Albert Gerbert, Sr. bought 154.6 acres of land from Wm Bluhm, Goliad, Co. Albert and Mary settled on this land and farmed it. They had 4 children: Helene Gerbert Wieland, Bertha Gerbert Wieland, Richard Gerbert and Otto Gerbert.

Helene Gerbert was born Dec. 25, 1875 at Dobskyville, died Aug. 26, 1904, and was buried on the Lutheran Cemetery, Yorktown. She married Herman Wieland Nov. 15, 1894 at Yorktown. Herman was born July 22, 1873 at Yorktown and died Jan. 15, 1942 at Lockney, Tex. Helene and Herman had 3 daughters: Ella Wieland (1895-1895), Agnes Wieland Gips (1896-1986), and Thelma Wieland Pump (1898-1989). Second marriage, Herman Wieland married Mary Atzenhofer June 20, 1905 in Victoria and they settled at Lockney, Tex. Herman was a farmer.

Bertha Gerbert was born Feb. 22, 1877 at Dobskyville and died Sept. 1, 1940 at Yorktown. Bertha married Emil Fiedrick Wieland Nov. 12, 1896 at Yorktown. Their family story is given separately.

Richard Gerbert was born Sept. 12, 1878 at Dobskyville and died Dec. 28, 1963, Yorktown. He married Annie Siever Dec. 27, 1899, Yorktown. Annie was born Oct. 21, 1879 and died Oct. 18, 1943, Yorktown. They are buried on the Lutheran Cemetery, Yorktown. Richard and Annie had 3 children: Edmund Gerbert (1901-1984), Frieda Gerbert Dentler (1904-1968), and Emma Lena Gerbert (1907-1950). Richard was a cattle buyer and a farmer.

Otto Gerbert was born Mar. 10, 1880 at Dobskyville and died May 26, 1939, Yorktown. He married Marie Sievers Nov. 9, 1905, DeWitt Co. Marie was born May 27, 1881 and died Sept. 3, 1957. They are buried on the Lutheran Cemetery, Yorktown. Otto and Marie had 4 children: Ceaser Gerbert (1906-1973), Ella Gerbert Metting (1910-), Alfred Gerbert (1914-1959), and Reinhold Gerbert (1922-1979). Otto was a farmer.

GERHOLD -REINHARDT FAMILY F308

Fred R. Gerhold was the son of Rev. Johann George Gerhold and Elise Vogal. He was born in Germany (Prussia) December 3, 1857, the oldest of four children. He came to Texas with his parents and younger sister, Sophie, when he was two and a half years old, landing in Galveston, Texas on June 26, 1860. He was confirmed at the Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church of Arneckeville, Texas on August 19, 1872. He married Johana Emma Reinhardt in the old log City Courthouse at Clinton, Tx. on December 24, 1876. Unto them were born fourteen children as follows: Alma b. October 30, 1877, d. December 18, 1882; George b. March 12, 1879, d. July 17, 1904, m. Ellie Wendel; Matilda (Tillie) b. March 17, 1880, d. 1963, m. Fritz Semmler October 13, 1898; Fred G. b. April 4, 1881, d. December 18, 1926, m. Bertha Buehrig December 12, 1908; Louis Adolph b. October 16, 1882, d. June 1962, m. Mamie Luhrsen February 16, 1910; Amilia b. April 24, 1884, d. April 30, 1959, m. Otto Junker October 15, 1903; Otto b. July 16, 1885, d. April 1, 1956, m. Etwina Thamm October 28, 1909; Lilly b. November 1, 1886, d. June 27, 1972, m. Henry Schlein June 10, 1907; Lena b. May 6, 1888, d. March 9, 1943, m. Edward Dreyer October 28, 1909; Albert b. October 30, 1889, m. Lillian Wagner June 15, 1916; Walter Emil b. September 30, 1891, d. June 1, 1971, m. Arthur Crockett Thigpen December 24, 1913; Flora (twin to Nora, died at birth).

Fritz, as he was called even though his name was Fred, was a peace officer of Arneckeville for thirteen years. He was short and stocky built, but he certainly knew how to handle his prisoners when they got rough. When a fight would occur at a dance, he would walk in a holler "Hya-up" and everything quieted down. He lived in Arneckeville at the old homestead until his death April 26, 1907. His wife died July 22, 1925. Emma was born in the "Five Mile Community" on April 30, 1860. Emma moved into town in her later years and lived on Morgan Ave. across the street from her son, Walter. Fred and Emma are buried in the cemetery beside the Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville, Texas.

GERHOLD, HERMAN WILLIAM

Herman William Gerhold was born March 11, 1893 to Emma Reinhardt and Fred Gerhold in DeWitt Co., Tx. He was next to youngest of fourteen children and they lived on a farm in Arneckeville. Herman attended school in the old schoolhouse that is still standing in Arneckeville and lived near enough to walk. His parents were members of the Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church where Herman was confirmed April 12, 1908. His first job after receiving his pharmacy license on January 16, 1917 from Pharmaceutical College in Galveston was at Reuss Drug Store. He also worked at Booten-Kunitz Pharmacy. Rev. J.L. Green, a Presbyterian minister, performed the wedding vows for Herman and Sudie Lorena Kennedy (related article) in Cuero on May 24, 1918. He left shortly after for World War I. When he returned home after the war, they moved to Kenedy, where he worked for his uncle, Louis J. Reinhardt, in his drug store. Their first child, Geraldine Lucille, was born there April 29, 1920. They later moved back to Cuero. In 1924 they moved to San Antonio where on November 19, 1926, Dorothy Fay was born. The girls attended the Alamo Heights School District where they both graduated. Geraldine (Jerry) married Clarence L. Halliday February 10, 1939. Rev. Green, who married her parents, also married them. They had one daughter, Cynthia Ann, born August 12, 1942. On June 6, 1957 Jerry married Elie J. Messarra. Cynthia married Edwin F. Harris August 20, 1971. The Messarras and Harrises both live in Houston.

After graduating in 1944 Dorothy Fay (Dottie) worked at Randolph Air Force Base in San Antonio, and when W.W. II ended, she attended Southwest Texas State University. There she met Robert Donnell Adams III and they were married July 19, 1947 by Rev.Gibbons at Alamo Heights Methodist Church where they are still members. When he finished college, they moved to San Antonio where they still reside. They have two children, Robert Donnell

IV (Keith) born July 2, 1950 and Karon Lee born February 5, 1953. Keith married March 12, 1988 to Lynda Sue McCutcheon and they are expecting their first child in October, 1989. Lynda was born September 26, 1950 and her son, Justin A. McCutcheon was born August 27, 1975. Both Keith and Karon attended Northeast Independent School District. Keith attended San Antonio College and Karon graduated from Southwest Texas State University in 1975. She married Douglas Edward Dooley January 17, 1981. They have two children, Stephanie Diane born December 3, 1983 and Stephen Douglas born April 3, 1986. Both Keith and Karon live in San Antonio.

After moving to San Antonio in 1924, Herman and Sudie spent the rest of their lives there. Herman was pharmacist at Broadway Pharmacy during those years until his death December 31, 1949. Sudie died May 14, 1981. They are buried in Fort Sam Houston National Cemetery.

GERHOLD, JOHANN GEORGE

Johann George Gerhold

Johann George Gerhold was born in Kurfurstenthum, Hessia, Germany on January 15, 1828. He was about two years old when his parents died. A Lutheran preacher and his wife raised and educated him. He did not like this preacher as he was very stern and mean to him. They sent him through a Lutheran College where he graduated and became a Lutheran preacher. He preached in Germany where he met and married Elise Vogal. Elise was born June 24, 1822 to Sophie Leunig and Fred Vogal in Weende, W. Germany. After the preacher who raised Johann died, he stopped preaching and became a carpenter. He was paid 50 cents as a carpenter in Germany and from that he saved to bring his family to America. Two children were born in Germany, a son, Fred (Fritz) b. December 3, 1857, d. April 26, 1907 and Sophia b. circa 1860, d. February 12, 1925. On June 26, 1860 they landed in Galveston via Indianola. Two more children were born in America, Mary b. March 3, 1862, d. October 3, 1919 and Louis b. January 18, 1864, d. January 3, 1940. Johann bought land eleven miles south of Cuero in Arneckeville. Since he didn't like preaching, he never preached in America, but he did help build the first Lutheran Church in Arneckeville. His occupation was cabinet making. Elise died September 30, 1873 and is buried in the cemetery beside the Zion Lutheran Church along with some of her children and grandchildren. Johann died May 27, 1903 and is buried there also. After his death, his son, Fred, moved on the homestead and farmed the land. When Fred died his son, Otto, and wife, Etwina, lived on the family land and in a home rebuilt from the same lumber of the original home which burned. Family members still reside on the

GIPS, CLIFTON E. AND GRACE LEGGETT

Clifton Elwood Gips was born October 23, 1917 in Yorktown, DeWitt County, Tx. His parents were Paul F. Gips and Antoinette Mollenhauer Gips. (See Paul F. Gips Story) Clifton married Grace L. Leggett, March 2, 1941 in Yorkton, Tx. Grace Lufborough Leggett was born July 1, 1919 in Mossy Grove, Lavaca County, Tx. Her parents were Ottis F. and Mary Jane Shaw Leggett.

Clif attended school in Yorktown and graduated from Yorktown High School in 1935. He was a member of the Yorktown High School Band for 4 years, playing a clarinet. He also played football his junior and senior years. He was and is an avid golfer and he and his brothers often go to the Yorktown Country Club at dawn and spend the day, sometimes playing 56 holes of golf. As a junior in High School he started working part-time for the U.S. Postal Service and continued after graduation on a full-time basis.

At the beginning of World War II the Gips moved to San Antonio, Tx. and Clif started working as an aircraft engine instructor at Kelly Air Force Base. He worked there for 3 years and was drafted into the Military Service at Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio, Tx. After basic training in Mineral Wells, Tx. he was sent to Fort MacArthur, San Pedro, Calif. He was in the Personnel Division of the Army where they processed military returnees who were being discharged from the service. The Gips oldest son, Clifton Ray, was born in San Antonio in 1942 and when Clif was stationed in Calif. the family joined him in San Pedro. He was discharged from the service in April of 1946. When they came back to Cuero, Clif and Ray Leggett, Grace's brother, started a business, Gips & Leggett Radio Rep. Shop (See Gips T.V. story). Clif's enthusiasm for golf has not diminished and weather is no obstacle, rain, sleet or what have you, he's always ready. The three sons have followed in their father's footsteps; all three had golf scholarships to college and continue to play in many tournaments in this area.

Grace Leggett Gips attended school in Goliad and graduated from Goliad High School in 1937. Grace was active in sports but her first love was tennis. She started playing in the 5th grade and continued through her senior year when she was runner-up in the UIL State Finals. She went to Victoria College and graduated with an Associate in Arts degree in 1939. She worked a year as a secretary for Dr. G.W. Allen and Allen Hospital in Yorktown and in Mar. of 1941, she married Clifton Gips. After marrying into the Gips family, she discovered there was another game, equally as important as tennis, golf. So, after moving to San Antonio in 1942, the lessons began and she has become as dedicated to the game as the rest of the family. At the end of World War II in 1946 the family moved to Cuero and Clif went into business. Three other children were born to the couple and Grace was busy with Little League, PTA, Boy Scouts and other activities in which the children were involved. In 1958, she went to work as the school secretary at Cuero High School. After a few years there she had an opportunity to work as a Social Worker for the Department of Public Welfare and went to work in the Children's Services Program. In 1972, Clif and Grace took over Gips TV and Grace went to work at the store on a part-time basis and also did some substitute teaching. In 1982, their son, Don, took over the business. Clif still goes down to help out and work on small airplanes.

After the hectic war years, Clif and Grace were happy to be in Cuero. They built a home in 1950 and through the years have remodeled and enlarged it to take care of the growing family. While their children were in school they were very supportive of all the activities in which they participated. They love football and have followed the Gobbler football team for many years. They are members of St. Mark's Lutheran Church and both still sing in the church choir. Their four children (3 sons and a daughter) are married. Two live in San Marcos and two in Cuero.

Clifton Ray was born in San Antonio, Tx., Dec. 13, 1942. The family moved to Cuero in 1946 and he attended the Cuero schools and graduated from Cuero High School in 1961. He played football and golf in High School and was on the golf team for 3 years. He went to Victoria College on a golf scholarship, after finishing there (2 years) he went to Lamar Univ. and South West Texas in San Marcos. He graduated from SWTC in 1967. While attending SWTC he worked parttime at the First Natl. Bank of San Marcos and after graduating he went to work on a fulltime basis and continues to work there. He is married to Charlotte Forsage and has a daughter, Sondra, and a step-son, Charles Mudd.

Donald Ross was born in Cuero, Tx., July 8, 1946. He attended school in Cuero and graduated from Cuero High School in 1964. He was a member of the Cuero High golf team for 3 years. He attended Victoria College on a golf scholarship and after two years there he enlisted in the Navy. After being in the Navy for 4 years he was discharged and he went to SWTC to finish his degree. After graduating from SWTC he went to Corpus Christi Univ. for two years of T.V. electrical training. (See Gips T.V. Story)

James Ottis was born in Cuero, Tx. Nov. 22, 1950. He attended school in Cuero and graduated from Cuero High School in 1968. He played football and golf while in High School and was on the golf team for 3 years. As a senior he qualified for State finals and was 3rd medalist. He went to Lee College on a golf scholarship for 2 years. After finishing at Lee he went to Lamar Univ. for a year. and then to Texas Univ. While attending the Univ. of Texas. he worked part-time at Tracor and after graduating he went to work there full-time. He married Lanette Mueller in 1975 and they have two sons, Jamison and Matthew. They are now living in San Marcos, Tx.

Elisabeth Ann (Beth) was born in Cuero, Tx., June 10, 1956. She went to school in Cuero and graduated from Cuero High School in 1974. She was in the band in Jr. High School and was also a cheerleader. In High School she played tennis and was active in the Future Teachers organization, in her senior year she held the State office of Recording Secretary. She was also a Cheerleader all four years in High School and Head Cheerleader her senior year. She is an ardent football fan and continues to follow the Gobbler football team. She went to SWTC in San Marcos for 2 years and then to Texas Univ. and graduated from there in 1978. She married Aubrey Feril in 1979 and they have a son, Hunter. They live in Cuero and she is employed in the Cuero Ind. School system as a 5th grade teacher.

GIPS, F. GOTTLIEB AND FREDERICKE (STUERMER)

According to the 1870 DeWitt County, Texas Census, Precinct 2, P.O. Clinton, Fredericke Stuermer Gips, 47, was living with her brother, Christian Stuermer, 50, his wife, Dorethea, 49, and their daughter, Fredericke, 15. Also living with them was their father, Johann Christian Stuermer, 81. He was born in Reuden, Anhalt Dessau, Germany in September 1790 and died in Yorktown 7 December 1871. Also living in this household were the children of Fredericke Gips — Franz, 26, Charles, 24, Herman, 23, Otto, 20, Fredericke, 17, and Mary, 8. The census report shows that all were born in Prussia.

We could find no record of F. Gottlieb Gips, husband of Fredericke Stuermer Gips, ever coming to America or to Texas. The obituary of one of their children states that she was a widow when she came to Yorktown in 1869. Fredericke Stuermer Gips was born in Reuden, Anhalt Dessau, Prussia 28 March 1824. She died in Yorktown 3 April 1892 and is buried in St. Paul Lutheran Cemetery in Yorktown,

The 1870 DeWitt County Census shows that Christian Stuermer was a wagoner, Franz and Charles Gips were trainsters, and Herman and Otto Gips were wagon makers.

The children of F. Gottlieb and Fredericke Stuermer Gips were as follows:

1) Franz Gips was born 17 December 1843 in Reuden, Anhalt Dessau, Prussia, and he died 8 March 1926 in Yorktown. He was a trainster and a farmer. On 14 July 1872 he married Anna Bauer, the daughter of Fred C. and Matilda Ehrenburg Bauer. She, with her parents and sister, Bertha, immigrated to Yorktown in 1853. Franz and Anna Bauer Gips had the following children: Bertha, Otto Frank, Paul Frederick, Frank, Louis, Mathilda and Ella. See separate story – Gips, Franz and

Anna (Bauer).

2) Carl Fredrich (Charles) Gips was also a trainster. He was born 16 Sept. 1845 in Reuden, Anhalt Dessau, Prussia and died 28 Jan. 1874. He married Auguste? She was born 20 Feb. 1844 in Reuden and died 3 Feb. 1874 in Yorktown. Their daughter, Maria Fredericke Augusta, was born 16 September 1869 and died 24 February 1874. Their son, Charles, was born 8 Dec. 1872. After the death of his parents, Charles, when he was 18 months, was adopted by Otto and Anna Fechner Gips. He married Louise Zedler and they lived in Luling, Caldwell County, Texas. He died 13 March 1939.

3) Herman Gips was born 17 October 1847 in Reuden, Anhalt Dessau, Germany and died 13 March 1918 in Yorktown. He married Friederike Stuermer 28 March 1882. She was born 20 August 1855 in Germany and was the daughter of Christian and Dorethea Stuermer. She died 15 Feb. 1928 in Yorktown. They are buried in Westside Cemetery, Yorktown. They had the following children: Matilda (Tillie) (31 March 1883 – 6 Dec. 1924) married Reinhold Gerhardt 2 Feb. 1904; Herman C., Jr. (6 Jan. 1886 – 29 July 1964) married Theresa Sinast 11 Feb. 1908; Oscar G. (20 April 1889 – 29 June 1967) did not marry; Edwin W. (30 May 1897 – 6 May 1952) married Agnes Wieland 18 Febru-

4) Otto Gips was born 2 March 1850 in Reuden, Anhalt Dessau, Germany and died 24 July 1906 in Yorktown. He married Anna Fechner 11 August 1872. Anna Fechner was born in Eichenquast, near Schweinitz, Germany 20 June 1850 to Henry and Fredericke Dehne Fechner. She died 29 July 1930 in Yorktown. Otto and Anna Fechner Gips are buried in the Lutheran Cemetery in Yorktown. They had the following children: Charles, adopted nephew, (25 April 1872 - 13 March 1939) married Louise Zedler 3 Aug. 1897 in Luling, Caldwell County, Texas, Anna Louise (15 May 1873 - 26 Dec. 1957) married Edmund L. Tietz 20 Oct. 1902. Fredericke Marie Emma (30 June 1875 - 5 Nov. 1917) married Herman Zedler 12 Jan. 1897. Alvina Anna (17 Jan. 1878 - 15 Nov. 1967) married Edward Mollenhauer 12 Jan. 1897. Hedwig Maria (15 Sept. 1879-11 Sept. 1966) married Carl Andrew Strieber 28 Dec. 1905. Mary Henriette (23 Feb. 1882 - 16 July 1965) married Louis Ludwig Carl Zedler 12 Jan. 1904. Ella (25 Feb. 1887 – 13 March 1973) married Edward F. Viereck 21 July 1909. Johanna Bertha (Jane) (10 Jan. 1890 -18 July 1967) married Berthold E. Thuem 6 Sept. 1910. Hilda (30 May 1894 - 3 Nov. 1983) married Lou Sloma 17 Jan. 1914. All the children, except Charles and his wife, Louise, are buried in the Lutheran Cemetery in York-

5) Fredericke Gips was born 4 October 1852 in Reuden. She married Franz Henze 7 Oct. 1871 and died 26 June 1872. Their son, Franz, was born 26 June 1872 and died 17 July 1873.

6) Mary Gips was born 17 Dec. 1862 in Felgentreu, Anhalt Dessau, Germany and died 19 Jan. 1937 in Yorktown. She first married Louis Schneider 28 Oct. 1881 and they had Charles. She next married Willie Schneider 15 Oct. 1891 and they had Willie and Hedwig. Mary's obituary states that two children died in infancy. She next married William Kirchner 22 June 1910.

GIPS, FRANZ AND ANNA (BAUER)

Franz Gips came to Yorktown, Texas from Germany 11 April 1869. In 1870 the DeWitt County Census, Precinct 2, P.O. Clinton, shows him living with his mother, Fredericke Stuermer Gips, and brothers and sisters. They were all living with his uncle, Christian Stuermer, his wife, Dorothea, and their daughter, Fredericke. Also living in the household was Johann Christian Stuermer, the father of Christian and Fredericke. Franz's father, F. Gottlieb Gips, evidently did not come to America or Texas.

Franz Gips was born 17 Dec. 1843 in Reuden, Anhalt Dessau, Prussia, and he died 3 March 1926 in Yorktown, Texas. He was a trainster and a farmer. On 14 July 1872 he married Anna Bauer, the daughter of Fred C. and Matilda Ehrenberg Bauer. (See separate story.) In the 1880 DeWitt County Census, Franz and Anna Gips were living in DeWitt County, Precinct 3, on the 15 Mile Coletto Creek. According to his obituary, Franz Gips took an active part in the organization of St. Paul Lutheran Church in Yorktown. His first occupation in this country was in connection with the transportation of freight from Indianola to San Antonio. After his marriage he was engaged in farming; however, for a number of years he carried U.S. mail to such points as Rancho, Helena, and Oakville, in addition to his farming. According to his obituary, he was a man who suffered great affliction, especially in his declining years when he had great physical difficulties. He retired from active work in 1906. He died at the age of 82 years, two months and 14 days. According to her obituary, Anna Bauer Gips died of pneumonia at the age of 70 years and four months. She and her husband are buried in Westside Cemetery in Yorktown. They had the following children, all born in Yorktown. 1) Bertha Gips was born 13 August 1873 and died 11 Nov. 1945. She married Fritz Schultz 26 July 1898 in Yorktown. He died 11 Dec. 1921. They are buried in Westside Cemetery. They had one daughter, Frances. She married

George W. Heiman.

2) Otto Frank Gips was born 19 Dec. 1875 and died 22 Aug. 1953. He married Margarethe (Gretchen) Zedler in Yorktown 2 March 1899. She was born 18 Feb. 1876 to Gustave and Pauline Kluge Zedler and died 27 April 1949. They had four children. Estella Gips was born 21 Oct. 1900. She married Fred Tomek. Manfred Gips was born 6 Aug. 1902 and died 5 Feb. 1935. He married Velma Franklin. Pauline Gips was born 12 Jan. 1906. She married Roland L. Harkey 28 June 1931. Florence Gips was born 16 July 1909. She married Erwin W. Thurk.

3) Paul Frederick Gips was born 6 July 1877 and died in Yorktown 24 Nov. 1955. He married Antonette "Nettie" Mollenhauer 30 July 1902. She was born 29 June 1880 at Zelder's Mill in Gonzales County, Texas to Henry and Alvina Fechner Mollenhauer and died in Cuero 3 September 1950. They are buried in the Westside Cemetery in Yorktown. They had five sons, all born in Yorktown. Alvin Rudolph Gips was born 13 November 1907. Milton Gips was born 5 January 1914 and married Virginia Harris 27 May 1955. Ray Gips was born 5 August 1916. He married Elvera "Sis" Janssen 25 February 1941. Clifton Gips was born 22 October 1917. He married Grace Leggett 2 March 1941. Paul Gips was born 18 April 1921, and he married Jewell Sockwell 24 Feb. 1950. After Jewell's death Paul married Peggy Polk.

4) Frank Gottlieb Gips was born 10 September 1879. He died in Nordheim 14 Nov. 1949. On 15 April 1908 he married Annie Menn who was born 20 Oct. 1887 to Friedrich and Johanna Meyer Menn. The Paul Gips Family, ca. 1946. Back: Ray, Clif, Paul, Milton. Front: Paul, Nettie and Al.

Paul Frederick Gips was born in Yorktown, Texas 6 July 1877, the son of Franz and Anna Bauer Gips. He was christened 23 May 1886 in St. Paul Lutheran Church in Yorktown. He attended the Yorktown public schools and on 30 July 1902 was married to Antonette "Nettie" Mollenhauer. She was born 29 June 1880 at Zedler's Mill, Gonzales County, Texas to Henry and Alvina Fechner Mollenhauer. She died in the Burns Hospital in Cuero 3 September 1950. Paul died in the Yorktown Hospital 24 November 1955. They are buried in Westside Cemetery in Yorktown. The couple lived in Yorktown. Until the advent of cars, Mr. Gips was in the saddle business, making saddles and also selling buggies. Later he sold real estate, and he also served as County Commissioner. Five sons were born to the couple.

1) Alvin Rudolph Gips was born 13 November 1907. He attended school in Yorktown and Texas A. & M. University. He served in the army during World War II. He worked for the MKT Railroad for over 40 years. After his retirement, he moved to Austin where he is now living.

2) Milton Roy Gips was born 5 January 1914. He served in the European theater during World War II. On 27 May 1955 he married Virginia Harris in Corpus Christi, Texas. She was born 23 April 1914 to Jim Robert and Edith Lovett Harris in San Angelo, Texas. Virginia taught school in several places and accompanied her husband on many jobs out of the United States. He is an accountant. They left for Kwajalein in the Marshall Islands on 14 July 1959, returning to the United States to live in Oakland, California in April 1962. They left for Afghanistan on 5 July 1972. They left there in January 1976, and after continuing on an around the world trip, returned to the United States six weeks later. They left for Vredenburg, South Africa in July 1977 and from there went to Tehran, Iran in October 1978. They returned home 5 January 1979, moving into their home at Hilltop Lakes, Texas 4 April 1979.

3) Ray Harold Gips was born 5 August 1916. He married Elvera "Sis" Janssen in St. Paul Lutheran Church in Nordheim, on 25 February 1941. She was born near Nordheim 13 Nov. 1920 to Willie and Elvia Reichert Janssen. The couple moved to Cuero where they made their home. They have two children. Julie Rae was born 11 September 1945 and William Paul was born 16 October 1948. (See: Gips, Ray and Sis.)

4) Clifton Elwood Gips was born 22 October 1917. He married Grace Lufborough Leggett 2 March 1941 in Yorktown. She was born 1 July 1919 in Hallettsville, Lavaca County to Otis L. and Mary Jane Shaw Leggett. They live in Cuero. The couple has four children — Clifton Ray, Donald Ross, James Otis, and Beth Gips Feril.

5) Paul Edward Gips was born 18 April 1921. He attended Yorktown schools, Texas Lutheran College in Seguin, Southwestern University in Georgetown, earning a Master's degree from the University of Colorado in Boulder, Colorado. He married Jewell M. Sockwell of Moulton, Texas. She was born 10 October 1925 to Prentice and Essie Pogue Sockwell. She died 14 April 1986 in League City, Texas. They both taught school in Yorktown and then moved to Victoria and then Refugio. Paul served as coach and Jewell, as a teacher. They next moved to El Campo and then to League City where Paul was Athletic Director for the Clear Creek and Clear Lake School Districts until his retirement. The couple adopted two children. James Paul (Jim) was born 7 July 1957 and Ann Marie was born 23 December 1958. Jim earned his degree at Southwest Texas State University and a Master's degree from the University of Houston. He is employed at NASA. Ann married Bradley Stewart 2 November 1985, and they have one daughter. Jenna Marie, born 12 November 1987 in Houston. After Jewell's death, Paul married Peggy Polk 30 May 1987. They live in Seabrook, accepted a job as Deputy County Clerk in Cuero, to start work on 1 March 1941. On 25 February 1941 he married Elvera "Sis" Janssen in Nordheim. They moved to Cuero where they continue to live. Their two children, Julie Rae and William Paul, were born there. Ray and three other candidates ran for the office of County Clerk in 1954. Ray won in the runoff and was unopposed in the general election in November. He began serving his first elective term 1 January 1955 and never had an opponent after the 1954 elections. He continued in this capacity until his retirement on 31 December 1981, after serving as County Clerk for 26 years and serving the county a total of 40 years and eight months. He was presented a Citation of Merit in recognition of Outstanding Public Service by the Cuero Post 3972 of Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States on February 25, 1977.

Elvera "Sis" Janssen was born near Nordheim 13 November 1920 to Willie and Elvia Reichert Janssen. (See, Janssen, Willie and Elvia.) She grew up in the Nordheim area, graduating from Nordheim High School in 1938. She attended Texas State College for Women in Denton, Texas for two years before her marriage in 1941. She was employed at the Sears Catalog Store and then at Texas Eastern Transmission Corporation during the time her husband campaigned for the office of County Clerk. After the election, she worked for the Garrett Abstract Company as a typist. In 1967 Sis became a library aide to Mrs. Frances Wood, the high school librarian. After much thought, she returned to college, graduating with honors from Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos. She then returned to the college in Denton and earned library certification. She was employed as a history teacher at the Cuero High School in September 1970. The next year she was employed as Junior High School librarian. She held this position until her retirement in May, 1986. During this time, she attended the University of Houston Victoria Center and earned her Master's degree, also teaching at the University at night for several semesters. She is a life member of Texas State Teachers Association and a former member of American Library Association and a former member of American Library Association and Texas and Cuero Classroom Teachers.

Ray and Sis Gips are members of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Cuero where Ray served on the church council for three terms. During the 1960's they sponsored the Intermediate Luther League and Sis taught in the Sunday School. At present, Ray and Sis are enjoying retirement. They have been taking bus tours around the United States and into Canada. Ray has been golfing and "piddling" in his workshop. Sis crochets afghans and is involved with genealogy and spends much of her free time at the computer, entering family histories. Together, they travel to many Texas town to visit the cemeteries, to research courthouse records and library resources, and to visit with relatives, if found. They also enjoy fishing and staying at their "shack" near Port O'Connor. Having their granddaughters near is an added pleasure.

Julie Rae Gips was born 11 September 1945. She was baptized and confirmed in St. Mark's Lutheran Church. Julie graduated from Cuero High School and attended Texas Lutheran College in Seguin, Texas. In 1965, she accompanied a niece to her home in Hawaii and stayed to attend the University of Hawaii, continuing her major in music and working for Kelly Girls, part time. After a year, she returned to Texas and to Texas Lutheran College. However, she now had "wanderlust" and spent a year in Houston working at Baylor College of Medicine and then a year in Killeen working for the government. From Killeen she went to California and worked for two years at Harbor General Hospital for a doctor, who, in April 1970, moved to Galveston as Chairman of the Department of Surgery at the University of Texas Medical Branch. Julie went to Galveston in July, 1970 and became the department's Technical Editor/Research Secretary. In 1972, Julie and her roommate took a 3-month walking tour of Europe. Her roommate returned, but Julie stayed another seven months and worked for an import company in Stockholm, Sweden. She then returned to her job in Galveston. She was married a short time in 1979. She continued to work in Galveston until November 1987 when she returned to Cuero to work at the Cuero Community Hospital as a medical transcriptionist. After her return to Cuero, she bought the Probst house in Cuero and had it moved to her acreage southwest of Cuero. After many hours of work restoring the house, it burned to the ground 7 February 1989. Also burned were the many pieces of antique furniture she had collected and many of the family heirlooms. At the present time she is in the process of moving into a home in Cuero.

William Paul Gips was born 16 October 1948. He was baptized and confirmed in St. Mark's Lutheran Church. Will graduated from Cuero High School and attended Victoria College while working for Anders Auto Supplies. On 2 June 1973 he married Lucille Fay Chumchal in Shiner, Texas. Lucille was born near Shiner 21 October 1949 to Louis and Filomena Polasek Chumchal. The couple lives near Cuero where Will has his business - Gips Machine and Welding. Twin daughters, Amber Michelle and April Meredith, were born to them 22 November 1975. They attended St. Michael's School through the sixth grade and are now in public school. Both girls are in the PEP classes, play in the junior high band, and are active in sports, especially tennis. (See: Gips, Will and Lucille.)

GLASS, WILLIAM J. FAMILY

F317

William J. Glass, b. 7 Feb. 1818 in Salt Creek Twp., Wayne Co., Ohio (Census Records list PA.), d. 5 Nov. 1905 in Hochheim, DeWitt Co., TX. His gr-parents, John and Ann (Johnston) Glass arrived in Maryland ca 1776 or 1777 from Ireland. John was of Irish descent and Ann was of English descent. They settled in Cecil Co., MD. per Oath of Fidelity signed 1778 by John Glass (Oath on file in the National Archives in Washington, D.C.). It is known that there was a brother, George Glass, who became a physician and located somewhere in the South.

John and his wife, Ann, were thought to have had 11 chn., five of whom were: John Andrew b. ca. 1776 or 1777, m. (1) Ann, (2) Mary; Hannah m. Thomas Strain, resided near Parkersburg, W. Va.; Nancy m. Thomas Hamilton, an Irishman and popular landlord in Steubenville, OH. where he died, no heirs; Rebecca m. (1) Blair, (2) Major Alexander Parker, in whose honor Parkersburg, VA. was named; and Esther m. Mr. Smith, no children. In the 1790's, the John Glass family from Ireland moved from MD to the Virginia area below Pittsburgh, PA. (now known as Brooke Co., W. VA.). The Will of John Glass in Brooke County, W. VA. was probated in 1812 and lists his wife, Esther, as an heir and some of the children named above. NOTE: A very difficult research project because of so many men named John Glass with wives named Ann.

For instance: An interesting Indian story was located involving the wife of John Glass and her son, a Negro woman and her two chn. being kidnapped. The next day they were rescued by John Glass and 10 men. A footnote on the article stated that after John Glass died, Mrs. Glass married John Brown. Their marriage was recorded in Brooke Co. on 12 Sept. 1797. Her Will indicates that before her marriage to Mr. Brown, she was Mrs. Samuel Glass (Ann Glass). At this time, the relationship has not been determined.

Son, John Andrew Glass, b. ca 1776 or 1777 (shortly after the arrival of the John Glass family in America) was a boatman on the Ohio River, running from Pittsburgh, PA. to Memphis, TN. John A. moved to Beaver Co., PA. in 1790 and married Ann Johnston in 1795. They were members of the New Salem Presbyterian Church. The lot on which the present church building stands in Ohioville Twp., Beaver Co., PA, was donated by George Foulkes and later, John Glass donated additional ground to the church, which included the Spring.

John A. and Ann were the parents of 10 chn.: (1) James W. b. 1802, d. 14 Mr. 1909, Wells Co., Ossian, IN.; m. Rebecca ?; (2) Mary Ann b. 1806, m. Andrew McGaffick of Beaver Co., PA., had 3 daus. Maggie m. Samuel Smith, Rebecca m. James Laughlin, and Mary J. m. John McMillan, gr-son of Major John McMillan, one of the first settlers of the State of PA.; (3) Sarah b. 1809, m. John Johnston, had 4 daus. Mary A. m. William Slantz; Louisa m. Thornton B. Hunter, of Jefferson Twp., Wells Co., IN., Nancy J. unmarried in 1887, and Melissa m. Silas Gailey; (4) Esther b. 1810, m. Joseph Gorrell, Esq. and moved to Wells Co., IN. and she d. 6 May 1888, bur. Ossian, IN.; (5) Rebecca b. ca. 1813 m. John Mulvanon who d. in 1860; (6) Nancy b. 1814 m. Joseph Lawrence, moved ca 1809 to Wayne Co. OH., had 2 daus: Louisa m. Scott Groscrose and Martha m. Wilson McMillan; (7) John T. b. 16 Feb. 1815, m. Margaret Hatfield 24 Dec. 1846. He and his brother, James, each purchased a half section of land in 1840 in Wells Co., IN, and settled there in 1845.

The 8 chn. of John T. and Margaret Glass were: John A. m. Isa D. Todd; James m. Ida Ryan, Andrew J. m. Florence Roberts, Maggie J. m. Nathaniel Weaver; George W. m. Capitola Gorrell; and three chn.: Martha A., Milton and William Wilson d. in infancy. (8) William J. b. 1818, d. 1905 in Hochheim, TX. (See next paragraph); (9) Lucinda b. 1823, m. James Barclay, lived in Ossian, IN and was living Buchanan Co., IN. in 1887 (now known as Buchanan, Iowa) and (10) Andrew S. b. 1824 m. Pheba Jane —. He d. 11 Oct. 1862 intestate. per documents in Beaver Co., PA. Note: All chn. were born in Beaver Co., PA., except 4 who were born in Salt Creek Twp., Wayne Co., OH: namely: John T., William J., Andrew and Lucinda. John preempted land in Ohio ca 1809, moved there, then returned to Beaver Co. in 1824. His wife, d. shortly after their return. The Will of John A. Glass of Beaver Co. PA. listed the above chn. He d. in 1855 at the age of 78. His Will named a wife, Mary?. Ref: Biographical and Historical Record of Adams and Wells (Counties, IN.) printed in 1887 – Article written by John T. Glass of Ossian, IN.

William J. Glass of Hochheim, TX. graduated in the Class of 1846 from Washington College (now known as Washington/Jefferson College), Washington Co., PA. He was a descendant of John Jay, first Chief Justice of the United States. He left home against the wishes of his father, who had educated him to become a Presbyterian Minister. He wanted law as his profession; thus his decision to leave home. He began his life teaching school in PA but decided to come to Texas, landing at "Old Indianola". His name appears on the 1850 Indianola, TX. Census. On 10 July 1850, he married Fidelia Bertha Stevens, b. 3 Oct. 1826 in Moore's Hill, Dearborn Co., Indiana (dau. of Obediah Stevens of PA. and Mary C. Carbaugh of KY) in Indianola. (See book "The Stevens Tree" by Joe M. Clark, Jr., copyrighted in 1982). In 1850, William J. became President of the College of Seguin, a position he filled with distinguished ability for 6 years, winning golden opinions as an educator and disciplinarian. He also taught in the College of Concrete, DeWitt Co. He was a prominent citizen of DeWitt Co., TX. His large estate consisted of 1400 acres, 300 of which was in cultivation. His farm was one of the most productive (crops of corn and cotton) and best kept in the community of Hochheim. The rest of the land was used to raise good grade of cattle and sheep. His estate was located 4 miles East of Hochheim, TX. He was a member of the A.F.&A.M. Lodge (a Mason).

William J. and Fidelia were parents of 9 chn: (1) Glendorah C. b. 25 Dec. 1850, d. 8 Nov. 1932, m. John Milford Hankins, both bur. Kerrville, TX.; (2) John Andrew b. 16 Jun. 1852, d. 23 Feb. 1925, m. Mary Bell Driskill 12 Dec. 1880, both bur. Zephyr, TX.; (3) William J. Glass, Jr. b. 1855, d. in OK prior to 1905, m. Sallie Wallis 1 Jan. 1881; (4) Mary F. 'Mollie' b. 1857, d. (unknown) m. Dr. W.A. Davis 27 Feb. 1878, lived in San Antonio, TX.; (5) Melville Hodge, b. 28 Feb. 1859, a Methodist Episcopal Minister, d. 26 Aug. 1930, m. Millie Kathryn "Kitty" Stevens 23 Feb. 1883, lived in McLennan Co., TX.; (6) Kathryn Clover "Kate" b. 8 Feb. 1862, d. 1 Aug. 1949, m. James Baker North 7 Dec. 1881, both bur. Yoakum, TX.; (7) Barney J. b. 1861, d. in 1890. In 1885, Barney graduated from Jefferson College, Medical Dept., Philadelphia, PA., was a successful practitioner of Cuero, TX., m. Nanny K. Sutton 9 June 1885. (Place of burial unknown); (8) Edward Thomas b. 28 Jan. 1866, d. 16 May 1903 near Childress, TX., bur. Gonzales, TX., m. Virginia Alberta "Berta" Steen; (9) Margaret Ann "Maggie" b. 12 Sept. 1871, d. 19 Dec. 1943, m. Thomas Murphree North 30 Oct.

William J. Glass d. 5 Nov. 1905 at the age of 87 years at his home in Hochheim, TX. due to ill health. His wife, Fidelia Bertha Stevens, d. 10 Oct. 1908 at the age of 82 years, both buried in Hochheim Cemetery.

Some of the habits, sayings and characteristics of William J. Glass were:

Never admit defeat until you are defeated, then take it like a man. He who can't stand defeat is not worthy of the honor he seeks.

Never make a statement unless you have grounds on which to back it up; otherwise, it is best left unsaid.

Tell the truth, the whole truth, no matter how hard it hurts.

A good listener often accomplishes more than a fluent talker.

Think twice before you speak, then there will be no regrets.

There is a time for work, a time for play, a time for prayer. Be sure you do all of these things at the right time.

NOTE: Three descendants of William J. Glass are researching the Glass genealogy. Each has furnished accumulated data to compile this article, namely: James B. North, (grson of Kathryn "Kate" Glass North of Santa Barbara, CA., Mrs. Lola Hankins Cloninger, (gr-dau. of Glendorah Glass Hankins), of Phoenix, AZ., and Pauline Glass Hochhalter (grdau. of John Andrew Glass), of Zephyr, TX. Two other known gr-daus, who furnished data: Jean Glass Neitsch (gr-dau Edward Thomas Glass) of Gonzales, TX. and Sibyl Glass Brame (gr-dau of William J. Glass, Jr.) of Raymond, WA. and Atty, Robert G. Schleier (gr-son of Melville Hodge Glass) of Kilgore, TX. 75662. Additional data and inquiries welcomed.

GLIMP, THOMAS SOWELL

Thomas Sowell Glimp was born April 8, 1826, in Tennessee. When he was about twenty, so the story goes, he went rabbit hunting one day and never went home. Instead, he went to Texas, and as far as we know, he walked all the way. He found his way to La Grange where he met Ardelia Woods, eldest daughter of Jane Boyd Wells and Norman Woods, who were early settlers of Austin's Colony. Tom and Ardelia were married in La Grange in 1852. Soon after their marriage they came to DeWitt County where Ardelia's mother and stepfather, Gonzalvo Woods, had settled on a sizable tract of land, part of which was one League and Labor in the James Kimberling Survey which Norman Woods had obtained before he was wounded and taken prisoner in the battle at Salado. (Norman and Gonzalvo's father, Zadock Woods was killed in this battle. but Gonzalvo was able to escape. Norman was imprisoned in the Perote Castle in Mexico, recovered from his wounds, but died of influenza December 16, 1843. In his letters from prison Norman asked his brother to take care of Jane and the children. After Norman's death Gonzalvo married Jane and made true his promise.)

In 1854 Tom Glimp was granted preemption rights to a 160 acre tract in DeWitt County in the Clear Creek area. During the following years he added another 2200 acres to his holdings, but in these post Civil War days he felt that DeWitt County was too rough a place to raise a family, so he sold his land and moved his wife and children to Burnet County.

Tom's great grandfather was Johan Abraham Glymphh (Glimp) born in Germany, and came to the Port of Philadelphia on the Neptune, December 13, 1754. Johan fought in the American Revolution, serving in the infantry in the Continental Army, beginning his service in 1872.

Tom's grandfather was George, first son of Johan. His father, Henry, who was the second son of George, served with Jackson at New Orleans

Tom and Aredelia had thirteen children. Sarah Jones Caroline Glimp was their third child and third daughter. She married Ernst Christian Spellmann, Sr., in Burnet County, June 30, 1878, and they immediately moved to DeWitt County on Clear Creek where they lived until 1896. Needing more land with none available adjoining them, they moved to Gonzales County where they spent the rest of their lives.

Thomas Glimp died November 14, 1907, and is buried in Bethel Cemetery near Burnet, Texas. Ardelia Woods Glimp died near Lometa, Texas, March 10, 1920, and is buried next to her husband.

GOEBEL, ALTON FAMILY

F319

Alton and Doris Goebel

Alton August Goebel, son of William (Bill) and Luella Hans Goebel, was born February 15, 1929. He was baptized in Zion Lutheran Church, Arneckeville, on May 26, 1929. His first year of school was at New County Line and "Miss Kitty" (Mrs. Bill Ruschhaupt) was his first, and most loved, teacher. His family moved to the Green DeWitt Community in 1936 and he attended that school and then Cuero High School.

Alton's first job was with Carnation Milk Company. On May 9, 1948, he married Doris Nell Wolf, daughter of Werner and Lorene Semmler Wolf. Not being able to leave the milk business, in September of '48 the Wolf & Goebel Dairy came into being. This truly was a "family" business as they lived with Doris' parents for two years until they bought, and moved, the Albert and Mary Koenig home from one mile up the road. They remodeled the house taking the top story off (at which time it rained and rained and rained!).

Alton and Doris had two children, Clifford Dean and Faye Alon (Mrs. Odell White, Jr.). After 40 years, in 1988, the Goebel Dairy, Inc. was formed with Clifford and his wife, Ella Angerstein Goebel. The dairy is located on the Guadalupe River about 8 miles southeast of Cuero on South River Road (Rt. 4, Box 23, Cuero).

GOEBEL, CLIFFORD D. FAMILY

Clifford Dean Goebel, born October 19, 1952, and baptized on December 7, 1952, at Zion Lutheran Church, Arneckeville. He is the son of Alton and Doris Wolf Goebel.

He attended Arneckeville School for four years, then Meyersville School, and Cuero High School where he graduated in 1971. He also attended Victoria College after which he came back to the farm to work with his grandfather and father in the dairy business.

He married Ella Frances Angerstein, daughter of LeRoy and Lollie Angerstein, on November 25, 1972, in St. John's Lutheran Church in Meyersville. They have one son, Casey Dean, born June 10, 1979. They live in the house that was Clifford's grandparents, Werner and Lorene Wolf, which is located next to his parents' home in the Green DeWitt Community.

GOEBEL, HAROLD W. FAMILY

F321

Harold William Goebel was born July 10, 1931 to William and Luella Hans Goebel. Harold is the youngest of three sons of William and Luella. LeRoy and Alton are older brothers. Harold's mother became ill in 1938 and was hospitalized in San Antonio for some time. Later she was able to return home for several years, but as her health worsened, she went to stay with her mother, Mary Hans, in Cuero. She passed away on February 13, 1945.

During these years, Harold started school in Green DeWitt. He finished grade school there and continued in high school in Cuero, graduating May 30, 1949. On April 20, 1948 Harold's father married Emelie Arnecke and moved to her home in Arneckeville.

On October 15, 1950 Harold married Katherine Marie Koenig, after a five year courtship. They were married at St. Michael's rectory with Father William Jansen officiating. Their wedding reception was held at the home of Katherine's parents, Walter and Mary Koenig, on S. River Road.

Katherine was born August 10, 1929 and raised in the Green DeWitt Community. She attended Green DeWitt School riding horseback most of the time, graduating from Cuero High School in 1947. While she and Harold were dating, he was elected Chapter Sweetheart for the Home Economics Club, which resulted in much teasing of Katherine.

After Harold and Katherine were married, she moved down the road, one mile, to his home which belonged to William Goebel. There they rented for a number of years. About 2 weeks after their marriage, they had just sat down to a supper, complete with hot biscuits, when suddenly car horns, cow bells, and other noises were heard. All their neighbors were outside! This was called a "chivaree." It was a cool night, so everyone had to spend the evening indoors. When electric heaters were put on to keep warm, all the lights went out! The heaters had to be left off, and people sat on chairs, an ironing board, and anything else that could be found. The company ate the biscuits, but Harold and Katherine never finished their meal. Friends brought cakes, pies, sandwiches, etc. and coffee and hot cocoa, and we had lots of memories from that enjoyable evening!

Harold was the Assistant Manager of Cudahy Feed Store at the time of his marriage. Katherine continued to help her mother manage a poultry farm and hatchery. Later they operated a dairy, starting with 12 cows, and eventually milked up to 90 cows daily. After 22 years, they sold the dairy business and began raising beef cattle.

On July 10, 1951 John Arthur Goebel was born in Cuero Hospital, on his father's birthday. John Arthur married Susan Coppedge on June 26, 1971. Kerry Wayne was born on July 10, 1975, on his Dad's, his grandfather's, and his Aunt Karen's birthday! Needless to say, there is always a big birthday party each year!

On May 7, 1954 Ruth Ann Goebel was born. She married Jerry Carr in San Antonio on March 23, 1973. They have two children, Kathleen Marie Carr, born October 10, 1977 in Houston, and Heather Clarice Carr, born September 16, 1980 in Rosenberg.

Paul Harold Goebel was born June 4, 1955 but lived only 12 hours. He is buried on the Louis Koenig lot in Hillside Cemetery.

After eleven years, Rebecca Lou Goebel was born November 3, 1966 in Cuero. She married James Doyle Koranek in St. Michael's Catholic Church on June 1, 1985 in Cuero.

On April 25, 1969 Shirley Marie Goebel was born in Cuero. The day she was baptized, Shirley started suffering with colic which lasted for a year! At this time, she is a student majoring in Business at the University of Texas in Austin.

veston. He settled in Austin County where he purchased land. In the fall of 1852, Johann registered his cattle brand. He also married Elisa (Eliza) Wied who was born February 22, 1837 in Feudingen, Germany. She was the daughter of Marie Elise Wied Wunderlich and the step-daughter of Johann Wunderlich. Johann Goebel, Johann Wunderlich, Elise Wunderlich and Elise Wied all came over on the same ship. It is believed that Johann Goebel probably worked for Johann Wunderlich to earn money to buy land. These people all remained in the Shelby, Texas area and are buried in the Shelby Cemetery.

Johann used John on a lot of his documents after he attained citizenship. He and Elisa (Wied) Goebel had six children: 1) Adolph (1853-1929); 2) Emilie (1855-1934); 3) Henrietta (1856 – unknown); 4) Gustav (1858-1938); 5) William (1860-1935); and 6) Emma (1862-1863). After Elise died, John married Catharina E. Trossman in 1865. They had three children: 1) Bertha (1866-); 2) Lina (1867-); and 3) Maria (1868-).

William Goebel married Emma Josephine Braeuer in 1882. Emma spoke very little English so they attended the German Lutheran Church. In 1888, William purchased land in Gonzales County in the community of Ruppert. (Between Hochheim and Cheapside). This property was in the vicinity of property conveyed in 1888 by R.A. Houston to Henry Kruse, August Fehner, and William Sommers, who along with William Goebel and several other neighbors established the Ruppert Cemetery and Ruppert School, by purchasing property from, W.A. Ruppert in 1892. Later the family moved to the Green DeWitt area on South River Road in DeWitt County.

William was a farmer and farmed until his death in April of 1935. He kept bees and pigeon along with all his other farm work. He built a fine home which is still in the Goebel family.

William and Emma had twelve children: 1) Ilo Johann Viktor Goebel (1884-1960) 2) Ida Minnie Theodora Goebel (1886-1960) 3) Emma Anna Rosalinda Goebel (1888-1971); 4) Edwin Adolph Reinhold Goebel (1890-1957); 5) Adele Henriette Friderike Goebel (1891-1981); 6) Carl Wilhelm Johann Goebel (1893-1932); 7) Lydia Emilie Dorathea Goebel (1895-1973); 8) Meta Bertha Amalia Catharine Goebel (1896-1977); 9) Wilhelm Heinrich Friedrich Goebel (1899-1974); 10) Elsa Matilda Josephine Goebel (1901-1970); Rudolph Robert George Goebel (1904-1970); and 12) Perry Goebel (1907-1908).

The Goebel family held their twenty fifth Goebel Reunion on the William Goebel land in 1989.

GOEBEL, WILLIAM H. FAMILY

F326

Wilhelm Heinrich Friedrich (William) (Bill) (Red) Goebel, born on Jan. 27, 1899, was the ninth child of William M. Goebel and Emma Josephine Braeuer Goebel of Gonzales County, near Ruppert Cemetery. AFter 14 years in this area, William and Emma Goebel sold their 186 acres of land for $3,355.20 and moved to the Green DeWitt area of DeWitt County.

On August 8, 1924, William H. married Sophie Marie Luella Hans who lived in Meyersville. They were married in Arneckeville Lutheran Church. Luella and Estella were twin sisters born November 30, 1898 to August and Mary Junker Hans. They were the 2nd and 3rd of seven children in the family.

William and Luella lived in different places around the Meyersville and Arneckeville areas. Around 1936, they and their three sons, LeRoy, Alton, and Harold, moved in with his mother, Emma, after his father's death and farmed the land. After Emma died, Feb. 3, 1938, the farm was divided between the eleven brothers and sisters. William inherited the small home east of the family home and moved his family there. He purchased additional acreage from the other heirs.

LeRoy was born August 4, 1925 and married Viola Rektorik on July 6, 1947. They have one daughter, Gail Marie Goebel Stevens, born on November 19, 1954, and three grandchildren.

Alton was born February 15, 1929 and married Doris Wolf on May 9, 1948. They had two children, Clifford Dean, born October 19, 1952, and Faye Alon, born January 7, 1954, and four grandchildren.

Harold was born July 10, 1931 and married Katherine Marie Koenig on October 15, 1950. They had 5 children, John Arthur, born July 10, 1951, Ruth Ann, born May 7, 1954, Paul Harold, born and died June 4, 1955, Rebecca Lou, born November 3, 1966, and Shirley Marie, born on April 25, 1969. They have three grandchildren.

Around 1938, Luella contracted tuberculosis and was in a San Antonio Hospital for some time, but was able to return home. After several years, illness forced her to leave the family home and live with her mother in Cuero until her death February 15, 1945. She is buried in the Arneckeville Lutheran Cemetery.

On April 20, 1949 William (Bill) married Emelie Arnecke in the Arneckeville Lutheran Church. They became mail-carriers for the Cuero A&M Route for many years. The route took them south from Cuero to Arneckeville, Meyersville, Ratcliffe, and back to Cuero. They continued the mail route until Bill passed away March 12, 1974 from heart failure. Emelie continued living in the home where she had been born in Arneckeville until her death March 3, 1988. The home and land were then sold.

GOHLKE, WILLIAM CARL AND JOHANNA RABKE

Legacy

William Carl Gohlke was born in Germany on July 12, 1852. He came to the United States when he was 8 years old with his mother Agusta Gohlke (born in 1836, died in 1922) and his daddy Frederich (Fritz) Gohlke (born in 1827, died in 1908). The family landed at Indianola in 1860. They made their way to Clinton, Meyersville, and settled some where between Meyersville and Yorktown, Texas, in DeWitt County. William Carl Gohlke died November 15, 1932.

William Carl Gohlke married Johanna Agnes Rabke in 1880 in DeWitt County with the Reverend A. Schurich officiating. They settled where Rabke is now.

The couple had seven children: (1) Max Michael Gohlke married Ottelia Amelia Schorlemar. They had five children - Wilburn W. Gohlke (deceased), Lloyd Leslie Gohlke, Maxine Norma Delia Gohlke Smith, Irma De Nell Gohlke Schaller, and William Carlton Gohlke; (2) Willie Wesley Gohlke married Annie Burt. They had five children - Milton Max Gohlke (deceased), Ola Gohlke Speers, Willie Lee Gohlke Mullins (deceased), Gertrude Gohlke Gregg, and Doris Gohlke Hamff; (3) Calvin C. Gohlke married Martha Rabenault. They had four children - Elwood Gohlke (deceased), Margaret Gohlke Hunt, Calvin Cornelieus Gohlke, and Nelson Nathane Gohlke; (4) Johanna Agnes Gohlke married J. Herman Thormalen. They had three children - Ceasar Thornmalen, Gladys Thornmalen, and Alton (Bobbie) Thornmalen; (5) Delia Gohlke married Max H. Mueller. They had two children - Delton Mueller and Joe William Mueller. Delia Gohlke is still living; (6) Ella Gohlke and (7) Julia Gohlke died in infancy.

The old home place is still in Rabke. Grandpa or "fatter" Gohlke as we called him owned 168% acres; part of this land was given by him to build the little Methodist Rabke Church which is known as the "little church in the wildwood." This land was later sold to David Murray who still owns it.

I can remember grandpa's house. It had two rooms separated from the rest of the house. These were used as a kitchen and a dining room. The house had a long porch that ran all across the front. We called it a dog run. The other part of the house was bedrooms. The family had a well from which they had to draw water for drinking and other purposes.

They raised their own vegetables, fruit, and meat. Grandpa's favorite fruit was watermelon. His specialty was the Black Diamond, and he raised very large ones.

GOHMERT, CHARLES AND JOAN VERNELL

(EGG)

Charles Gohmert was born September 13, 1926 to Reinhold Henrich Gohmert and Linda Anna (Diebel). He grew up in the Meyersville, Texas area where he attended St. John Evangelical Lutheran Church and the Meyersville School. He finished the tenth grade at the age of fifteen. On November 28, 1942, at the age of 16, Charles went to work at Foster Field in Victoria for $124.00 a month. He was a messenger and rode a bicycle all over the base. He stayed with Gus Stolze in Victoria and came home by bus or with the LeRoy Angersteins.

In 1945 Charles went into the Army. He took his basic training at Fort Hood near Temple. Then he was stationed at Fort Howse on the Oklahoma border until he was transferred to Camp Meade in Maryland. Later he rode a train to the West Coast to Washington. It took seven days to cross the United States by train. From Washington he went by boat to Hawaii where he was stationed on the island of Oahu at Camp Scholfield Barracks. Charles was discharged at Fort Sam Houston in Texas in August of 1946.

On October 9, 1948 Charles married Joan V.

Egg, daughter of Edwin Otto Egg and Cora Georgia (Wendel). She was born October 12, 1929 in the Meyersville area. Joan grew up on a dairy farm at Golly Hollow and attended the area schools until she went to Cuero High School. She graduated from Cuero High School in 1946.

Charles and Joan have five children (two children died at birth): 1) Karen Gohmert, b. October 13, 1951, married Gary Wayne Dueser and has two children, Cary Wayne and Wade Henry; 2) Thomas Charles was born Nov. 11, 1952, married Sandra Marie Grafe and has two children, Jennifer Ann and Stacey; 3) Susan Marie was born July 30, 1954, married Finley Charles Frels and has two children, Kimberly Ann and Kristy Nicole; 4) John Lloyd was born October 31, 1955, married first Cheryl Causey and later married Brenda Jansen. They have one child, Johnna; 5) Bruce Wayne was born Sept. 3, 1958 and married Karen Dee Goebel.

When Charles Gohmert came out of the service he worked cattle with his daddy for awhile. He worked a short time at McClarty's Feed Store in Cuero and then in 1948 he went to work for the DeWitt County Electric Co-op until his retirement in 1988. When he started at the Co-op he was making sixty cents an hour.

Joan (Egg) Gohmert worked on the dairy farm until she was twenty-one. She worked at several jobs until 1973 when she went to work for Duckett Motor Co. She continued to work for the company after it was purchased by Bob Farris.

Louis was the only brothers known to have emigrated besides Franz Albert. He located in Cuero, Franz was a butcher by trade.

Marie Martha Helbig was born October 20, 1862, to Christian Helbig and Bertha Dossow in Germany where both parents were born and died. Marie was a seamstress. Franz Albert Gohmert and Marie Martha Helbig were married on August 19, 1881, in the Lutheran Church at Gralow Kreis-Landsburg in the province of Brandenberg, Germany. On or about the first day of September 1883, Franz and Marie and their young son Max Albert (9/21/81-9/17/72) set sail on the vessel Weser for America. They had lost one child Elisie (6/2/83-6/28/83). Max celebrated his second birthday during the crossing and on or about the first of October 1883 they arrived in Galveston. They began their new life on a farm on the Sandies Creek near Westhoff. They suffered many hardships during the following years while they tried to earn a living from the land. Their family continued to grow. The following six children were born on the Sandies: Agnes (6/21/84-10/18/84), Bertha Amalie (7/15/85-1/19/71), George Willie (8/4/87-7/2/64), Leo Daniel (3/7/89-1972), twins Albert and Marie (1/21/93-6/3&5/93). The family then began a series of moves to different farms in Dewitt County near Cuero. The first was the Smith place where two more children were born: Oscar Waldemer (3/18/94-4/8/82) and Herman Julius (2/4/96-4/15/96). The next child Julia (3/30/97-6/2/97) was born on the Neger place. Their next place of residence was the Boldt place where three children were born: Albertine Hertha (4/3/98-10/1973), Reinhold Henry (6/7/1900-3/8/85), and Werner Carlos (6/15/02-3/63). Franz and Marie finally settled on the Holzapfal place in Ratcliff. There two children were born: Erna Johanna (7/24/03-1/6/72) and Marie Martha (4/7/05-5/6/44).

Franz returned to Germany in the spring of 1912 to visit his family. The passengers on board the ship heard the SOS from the sinking Titanic. It was during this visit this photo was taken. His return ticket reveals that he sailed from Bremen, Germany, on the ship Barbarossa of the North Duetcher Lloyd Shipline on September 4, 1912, third class for $180.00. On Jan. 18, 1913, at the age of 59 Franz became a naturalized citizen of the United States of America.

Max married Elaine Villababous and settled in Yorktown. George married Augusta Rabke and settled in Cuero. They had five children: Captola, Alice, Newton, Preston and Joyce. Leo married Nora Boldt and settled in San Antonio. Their children were Milton, Lillard and Norris (dec'd). Oscar married Lilly Koenig and settled in San Antonio also. Their children are Eileen, J.C. (dec'd) and Mary Ann. Albertine married A.L. Butler and had one son Allen Lee. After her divorce she married Walter Giesick. Reinhold married Linda Diebel. They had four children: Ruth, Reuben, Charles, and Elizabeth and settled in Meyersville. Their story is elsewhere in this book. Werner Carlos married Alfrieda Ruschhaupt and settled in Yorktown. Their children are Harold, Julius (dec'd), Daniel and Judith.

After "Fahta" Franz died Feb. 12, 1936, Erna and Bertha remained on the farm. They raised turkeys, chickens, sold eggs, watermelons, strawberries, hogs, flowers and took homemade butter to market. One of the turkeys raised on the farm was named Grand Champion of the dressed turkey division of the 1956 Cuero Turkey Trot. "Mutti" Marie died Jan. 14, 1946. Erna and Bertha continued to run the farm. They delighted in playing six-handed 42 and cards and setting a groaning table loaded with homemade and homegrown goodies. The Gohmert home place in Ratcliff is now owned and farmed by Franz and Marie's grandson (Albertine's son) Allen Lee Butler.

Reinhold Henry Gohmert married Linda Anne Emelie Diebel Sept. 28, 1921. They were married by Pastor B. Goglin, the first couple wed in the new St. John Evangelical Lutheran Church in Meyersville, Texas. It was also one of the first times the Delco lights were used in the church. R.H. had traveled by horse and buggy from his home in Rateliff to count Linda in Victory County near Mission Valley. R.H. was born June 7, 1900, to Franz Albert Gohmert (4/3/1854 – 2/12/36) and Marie Martha Helbig (10/20/63 - 1/14/46). See the Franz Gohmert story. R.H. was baptized April 14, 1912, in the Lutheran church in Cuero by Pastor Wilhelm Tuesck and was confirmed April 5, 1914, in St. John in Meyersville. He attended school in Ratcliff. Linda was born Jan. 21, 1898, to Jacob Friedrich Diebel (6/22/58 - 1/25/45) and Elizabeth Wendel (5/5/59 - 7/5/32) in Victoria County. See the Friedrich Diebel story. Linda was baptized June 12, 1898, in St. John in Meyersville by Pastor Wilhelm Westerhoff and was confirmed March 16, 1913, by Pastor Fr. Goertsmann. She attended the Noll School built in 1893 with the help of her father Friedrich Diebel. The school site and cemetery received a historical marker in 1977. R.H. and Linda's first home was on 83 acres in Victoria County bought from Friedrich Diebel for $1400.00. Ruth Myrtle was born there August 11, 1922. In Nov. 1923 they sold this place and bought the Gohmert homeplace in Ratcliff. Reuben Lee was born there June 26, 1924. They sold the Gohmert place and moved back to live with the Friedrich Diebels. Charles Friedrich was born there Sept. 13, 1926. In 1930 R.H. and Linda bought the Sprencil place near the twelve-mile Coleto Creek at Upper Meyersville and there Elizabeth Marie was born Nov. 6, 1935. In the winter of 1936 they sold the Sprencil place and bought the Gerhold place (built for Andreas Buehrig and his wife Sophie (Diebel) by a Mr. Rabke in 1850). Sophie was a sister of Christoph and Friedrich Diebel. See Christoph Diebel story. R.H. and Linda spent the rest of their lives here about three miles from Meyersville.

R.H. Gohmert

R.H. was a cowboy and a farmer. He worked at the Cuero Auction Ring on Thursday evenings and all day Friday from 1936 to 1977; the Victoria Auction Ring on Wednesdays from about 1950 to 1975; and the Gonzales Auction Ring on Saturdays for about 12 years. He also worked cattle for other people and bought and sold cattle. His favorite sport was 'coon hunting and favorite pastime was playing straight dominoes. Linda bought and sold furniture which she refinished; made quilts, sewed much of the family's clothes, and spent much of her time helping those in need. R.H. served on the church council at St. John and Linda sang in the choir, taught Sunday School and participated in the Ladies' Aid. In the early days of their marriage they butchered their own hogs and smoked their own sausages, made their own soap and raised poultry and vegetables. Ruth married Frank Fischer and they had two children: Jerry Lee and Linda Clare. After Frank's death Ruth married Elroy Peters. Their story is elsewhere in this book. Reuben married Virgie Reed Ideus and they had three children, Aletha Rae, Jo Beth, and Gordon Lee. They live in Meyersville. Charles married Joan Vernell Egg and settled in Meyersville also. They had five children: Karen Elgine, Thomas Charles, Susan Marie, John Lloyd, and Bruce Wayne. Elizabeth married John William Haun and they had three children, Terry Ray, Jeffery Dale and Lee Charles. They settled in Meyersville. After John's death Elizabeth married William Alfred Wendel. Their story is elsewhere in this book, "Pa" Reinhold and "Nanny" Linda lived their twilight years enjoying their children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren and many friends. They loved to sit on the porch in the evenings and entertain. When the family got together they always gathered around the piano to sing. Birthdays and holidays were always big family celebrations. For many years the entire family would gather at Nanny and Pa's house on Christmas Eve after the church program. Before the gifts were opened, the grandchildren had to stand up before everyone and recite their "parts" from the Church's Christian Day Program. We would all sing Christmas carols and snack from the many different foods Nanny would prepare. R.H. passed away March 8, 1984, and Linda Dec. 23, 1987. GOHMERT, REUBEN LEE AND VIRGIE REED (IDEUS) GOHMERT

Reuben Lee Gohmert was born 6/26/1924 in the Five Mile community, the second child of the union of Reinhold H. Gohmert (6/7/1900 – 3/8/1984) and Linda (Diebel) Gohmert (1/21/1898 – 12/23/1987), during the time they were living on the old Franz Gohmert home-place. Reinhold had returned home, with his young family, to help his folks out during some hard times. After things improved, the family moved back to Victoria County, near the DeWitt-Victoria County line, and Reuben received his first year of schooling in the New County Line School. Then the family purchased land near Upper Meyersville and he attended Meyersville Public School. When Reuben was 12, his folks purchased the Gerhold place, situated between what is know known as Gohmert Road and U.S. Highway No. 183, approximately 3 miles from Meyersville. This is where he spent his teenage years, with 2 sisters, Ruth and Elizabeth, and one brother, Charles. He graduated from Cuero High School in 1941 at the age of 16. He spent 1 year learning to weld through the NYA program in Cuero and another year at a welding school in Houston. At the age of 18 he was welding in the Houston Ship Yards. He served in the Navy during WWII from 5/13/1943 to 12/5/1945 aboard the U.S.S. Bushnell, a submarine tender. He spent the majority of his time anchored off of the Marshall Islands and Midway, welding and repairing damaged submarines.

Virgie Reed (Ideus) Gohmert, born 1/10/1926, was the first born child of Edmund Jean Ideus (1/10/1895 – 5/18/1987) and Melina (Diebel) Ideus (11/15/1903 – 7/13/1983), making her entrance into the world on the father's 31st birthday. She was born in the same house her mother was born in, the home in which Willie A. Diebel and Alma (Schorlememer) Diebel, Virgie's grandparents, had started their life together in 1901. This land is located approximately 2 miles southeast of Upper Meyersville. Virgie attended Meyersville Public School and graduated from Cuero High School in 1943. After attending Business College, she worked in Houston and San Antonio.

Reuben and Virgie were married 10/21/1945 in St. John's Lutheran Church of Meyersville by Pastor E.L. Arhelger while Reuben was still in the Navy. They drove to San Diego, California where he received his discharge. Upon returning they bought a home in Cuero, on Terrell Street. Virgie worked for the R.E.A. and Reuben was employed by Jack's Welding Works.

They both longed to get back to the country, so in 1947 they purchased an acre in Meyersville from Jack Schaefer, and built a new home there, within easy walking distance of their Church, the School and the Meyersville Store. This union was blessed with 3 children, Aletha Rae, born 4/6/1948, JoBeth "Joie" born 8/8/1951 and Gordon Lee born 10/31/1956.

In 1948 Reuben purchased a milk route and after picking up the milk at the dairies in the area, he delivered it to a Crescent Valley Creamery in Cuero and Victoria, and to a Creamery in LaGrange. Virgie stayed busy with her church work and her children, spending many hours trying to rehabilitate the muscles of Joie who had polio when she was 7 months old. After selling the milk route in 1957, Reuben joined Plumbers & Pipefitters Local 790 and began welding again. During the following 23 years he worked at most of the major industrial plants within driving distance of Meyersville, as well as farmed and ranched approximately 1000 acres. In 1963 Reuben and Virgie started a herd of purebred Beefmaster cattle. In 1978 they purchased a tract of land from Emmie Pflug in the Five Mile area. After a severe heart attack in 1980, Reuben quit welding and concentrated on ranching, taking great pride in his Beefmaster stock, which had grown to a herd of 130 mother cows by then.

On 6/4/1967 Aletha married Robert "Bob" L. Blain (2/14/1948). They have 3 children, Tammy Lee born 3/11/1967, Brandon Reed born 1/12/1972 and Britton Bob born 4/7/1977. Bob is Divisional Director for TLC Marketing Company and Aletha assists him with the office

On 2/16/1979 Joie married Harvey Lee Stiles (8/23/1948). Their children are Angela Lee born 12/5/1971, Kimberly Ann born 3/3/1975 and JoLeah born 11/25/1986. Harvey serves as the buyer for Stiles Cattle Company and Joie teaches at Cuero Junior High.

Gordon is not married and works in Dallas as a computer programmer for a financial services organization.

After the children were all gone from home, Virgie went back to work as Secretary/Bookkeeper for John G. Pokluda, Surveyor, in Cuero.

Christmas Eve is very special time in the Gohmert home. After the Sunday School program, the house is filled with family and friends gathered to celebrate the Savior's birth in song. After traditional Christmas snacks, the group gathers around the Christmas tree, Harvey takes out his guitar, and joyous song swells the air in Meyersville.

The Lord has been good to Reuben and Virgie and they've been richly blessed with a caring family. Their greatest joy is having all the children and grandchildren around them.

Richard was born August 18, 1952 in Cuero, Texas, one of six children born to Newton George Gohmert and Verna Lee Till (only child of Joe Till and Selma Boehm). He was delivered by Dr. Landry at the Burns Memorial Hospital. He attended St. Michael's Catholic School through the sixth grade and then went on to graduate from Cuero High School in 1970.

Elaine was born August 15, 1953 in Gonzales County, the eldest of three children born to Sterling Boothe Morrow and Norma Jean Koenig. She was delivered by Dr. Walter A. Sievers at the Holmes Memorial Hospital. She attended W.W. White Elementary, Otto Pfeifer Elementary, and Jeff Davis Jr. High in San Antonio. The family moved to Houston in 1968 and she graduated from Spring Woods High School in 1971.

Elaine stayed in Houston and worked before moving to Cuero in 1974. Richard worked for the Southern Pacific Railroad for several years before settling to farming, ranching, and bulldozing operations. Elaine owned and operated Merle Norman Cosmetics from 1978 to 1988 and was active in the Decor Shoppe with her mother.

Their first child, Brandy Lynn Gohmert, was born September 15, 1976. She was delivered by Dr. John C. Davis at Cuero Community Hospital. She attended the Sunshine House Day Care before entering John C. French and Hunt Elementary. She is presently in the seventh grade at Cuero Jr. High School and is a member of the 7th Grade Cheerleading Squad, Post Oak 4-H Club, and Cuero Hermann Sons Dance Class, and Cuero Jr. High School Band.

On September 14, 1983, a son, given the name Clayt Richard Gohmert, was born in DeTar Hospital in Victoria. He was delivered by Dr. Michael Burditt. Clayt started kindergarten at John C. French this year.

At present time Elaine is attending nursing school and will graduate a Registered Nurse in May 1990. They are now living in a home towards Lindenau on acreage down Wofford Lane in Precinct 1 of DeWitt County.

GOLDMAN FAMILY

James Ithamar Goldman was the son of Ogden and Elizabeth Bowen Goldman, who came to Texas from Mississippi. He was born in Goliad County in 1859. In 1893 he married Rosalie Steele and moved to the Westhoff Community in 1894. He farmed just north of Westhoff until he moved into town in the early 1920's.

James Ogden (Ott) Goldman, their son, and his wife, Maude, lived in Westhoff until they moved to Cuero, during the 1940's, where they lived until their deaths. Their daughter, Stella Ruddock, still resides in Cuero. For many years, Ott Goldman delivered ice to homes in Westhoff. Later he sold ice and distributed the San Antonio papers.

James and Rosalie Goldman also had two daughters, Katie and Emma. They married brothers, George and Ernest Weston, and made their homes in Westhoff most of their lives. Information about their families is included in the Weston Family biography.

GOLLY, ANTOINE AND CATHERINE HAUER

Antoine Golly, the first child of Thiebaud Golly and Catherine Lutenbacher, was born December 20, 1798 in the small village of Fellering, which lies a little to the south of the larger town of Oderen in the Thur River Valley in Upper Alsace France. Easily traceable as far back as the mid 1600s, the Golly or Goli name appears in the Catholic Church records of St. Blaise and in civil records of Oderen, France more and more often in the following two hundred years. During the Thirty Years War the population of the Thur Valley in France was greatly reduced by casualties of war, starvation, poverty and disease, creating a large reduction in manpower needed to operate the small farms, vineyards, mines and weaving mills. A campaign was begun to recruit families from neighboring areas who could fill the vacant jobs, single men to marry the widows of the Thur Valley and people with new talents to introduce to the area. It was during this time that families emigrated from Switzerland and settled in the Oderen-Fellering area of the Thur Valley, among them being the families of Goli, Pitterli, Haller, Jacob and others.

Antoine Golly had six brothers and sisters, one of them being Marie Anne, born in 1808. In 1816 Antoine Golly's mother died and his father, Thiebaud Golly married again. Soon there were at least three more siblings added to the family, the last being Joseph Golly, whom it is thought may have also immigrated to Texas. Antoine Golly, who gave his occupation as a weaver and at other times a farmer, was 33 years old when he married Catherine Hauer (Auer) March 2, 1831 in Oderen, France. Antoine and Catherine had at least four children, two of them living until adulthood. Antoine Golly Jr., the only son, was born November 1, 1835 and a daughter, Marie Agathe, was born April 28, 1838.

The close knit little family lived on the small farm near Fellering, surviving, but always apprehensive about the future and economy of their village, and consequently, their own wellbeing. Antoine would supplement the family income by making charcoal. This was an ageold process whereby trees were cut on the mountainsides, the logs then burned in a special manner to make charcoal which was easily hauled down the mountainside to the villages below. The forest could not last forever, the textile mills were becoming more mechanized and there was hardly enough farm land to support the growing population of the Thur

The Henri Castro Colonization project in Texas was an instant newsmaker in Alsace. Word spread quickly up the Thur River Valley from Mulhouse into the small villages of Fellering, Kruth, Oderen and others. Perhaps this promise of abundant land and prosperity was the answer that many in the Thur Valley had been seeking.

In spite of the warnings of the adverse conditions, disease and Indian problems in Texas, Antoine Golly and his brother in law. Jean Haller, Marie Anne Golly's husband, made the painful, yet exciting, decision to leave their homes in the beautiful Thur River Valley of Alsace France to immigrate to an uncivilized land called Texas.

Antoine's sister, Marie Anne, her husband

Jean Haller and their five children left France November 22, 1843, sailing on the Ship Heinrich bound for Galveston, Texas. Antoine Golly, his wife Catherine, and their two children, Antoine Jr., age 5 and Marie Agathe, age 3, followed shortly afterwards, leaving Antwerp on May 12, 1844, also bound for Galveston. By mid-August 1844 they reached San Antonio where they joined many other Castro Colonists, some their relatives and some former neighbors, who had been in San Antonio for months waiting to proceed to the land which they had been promised. Many had become disillusioned and had joined the Solms-Braunfels Colony, and some obtained work in San Antonio and were assimilated into the growing population of that city. Antoine Golly was not discouraged by this discontent. He was determined to fulfill his part of the contract he had signed with Henri Castro and was determined that Castro would fulfill his obligation to give his colonists the land he had promised them.

By September 1, 1844, Antoine Golly was among the men Henri Castro had recruited to go with him to make ready a suitable place to settle his colonists; a place now known as Castroville. As an added enticement, Castro promised an extra 40 acres of land and a town lot to the men who would accompany him on this treacherous 30 mile journey west of San Antonio, across the Medina River. By being among the men who went with Henri Castro that day in September 1844, Antoine Golly received Lot 3, Blk. 1, Range 10. On September 12, 1844, twenty-seven men ascribed their names to a document declaring that the town they had founded be called Castroville, in honor of the man who had brought them to that place on the Medina River in Bexar County, the Republic of Texas. The name Antoine Golly was among the signatures on the document signed that day.

Tragedy was to strike Antoine Golly and his children more than once in the next few years. Some time between 1844 and 1847, Antoine's wife, Catherine died. Harsh conditions in Texas were hard for a man with two young children to endure alone, and even harder for a woman, especially with children. On October 10, 1847 records at St. Louis Catholic Church in Castroville show that Father Claud DuBuis "ratified and blessed the marriage already contracted before a civil magistrate, of Anthony Golly and Anna Mary Kieny." In December of that same year Anna Mary Kieny died. On March 12, 1848, Antoine Golly married Rosina Britch at Castroville. Rosina, a widow with a son named Gottlieb, had lost her husband and two children the two previous years. In 1848, Rosina Britch died, and Antoine Golly was once again left a widower with his two small children and a stepson, Gottlieb Britch to care for. Gottlieb Britch and Antoine Golly Jr. were both 13 years old and soon would be able to care for themselves, but Marie Agathe Golly was only 10 and could hardly care for herself, much less the household. Antoine's sister, Marie Anne (Mrs. Jean Haller), helped all she could but she too had her hands full with her own family. Antoine Golly received word that an old neighbor, Joseph Winckler, from Ranspach France, had died in DeWitt County, leaving his widow, Genevieve Jacob and their two little girls to run a small farm alone. Antoine Golly and Genevieve Jacob Winckler, a sister of Mrs. Peter Bluntzer, were married on March 29, 1850 in DeWitt County. Gottlieb Britch was now 15 years old and soon would be taking over the land in Medina Co. that his parents had received as a Castro Colonists. For the next few years he made his home with a Dr. John Hofmann and his family in the Castroville area. Years later Gottlieb married Katerina Nieterhoefer and they had eight children.

Antoine Golly had fulfilled his contract with Henri Castro, had received his 40 acres of land and the town lot in Castroville and had received his Third Class Headright Certificate entitling him to locate 640 acres of land in the Castro Colony. In 1850-1854, Antoine sold his rights to the 640 acres of land to which he was entitled and began buying land in DeWitt County on the 12 Mile Coleto.

Antoine and Genevieve had a daughter on June 12, 1851 whom they named Catherine. They lived with their combined family of five children on the 12 mile Coleto until death. Records show that Antoine and Genevieve were instrumental in aiding many other families, who were to follow them from Alsace, to settle in the Meyersville-Mission Valley area, among them being Genevieve's brother, Henri Jacob and family, the Richard Haller family, the Joseph Bitterly family, and the large Joseph Grunewald family.

Antoine Golly Jr. married Rosalie Haller on the 7th of August, 1859. They had 13 children and continued to live nearby on the Haller place. Marie Agathe Golly married Pantaleon Luder, a native of Oderen France, on March 4, 1856 and had 3 children. After the death of Pentaleon Luder, Marie Agathe Golly married James Lindsay on May 25, 1875 and had two more children. Catherine Golly married Conrad Didier-Laurent, a widower with several children, on the 13th of March 1869. Josephine Winckler married Eigidius Dreyer and they had ten children. Theresa Winckler first married Andre Munsch, After his death, Theresa married Antoine Arnold and they had seven children.

On September 12, 1869, twenty five years after arriving in Texas, typhoid fever claimed the life of Antoine Golly. He is buried in the cemetery at St. Peter and Paul Catholic Church in Meyersville, DeWitt County, Texas.

GOLLY, ANTONE JR. AND ROSALIE HALLER

Antone Golly Jr. was born in Oderen, Alsace, France, on November 1, 1835, to Antoine Golly and Catherine Hauer. When he was about 8 years old he immigrated to Texas with his parents and his sister, Marie Agathe, who was 5 at the time. The Golly family had joined Henri Castro and his colonization project on land in Bexar County, Texas, now Medina County, joining many friends and relatives on a long and wary voyage from LeHavre to Galveston, Texas in 1844.

Antone learned to live with many adversities in his young life, perhaps preparing him for events to come later. Antone's mother died not long after reaching Texas, if in fact she ever reached the Castroville destination. Antone was to have three stepmothers in his lifetime. The first two died within two years of one another from either typhoid or cholera which took the lives of many in the Castro Colony. The Gollys moved to DeWitt County when Antone Golly, Jr.

Rosalie (Haller) Golly

Antone Golly Sr. married Genevieve Jacob, the widow of Joseph Winckler, who had also come to Texas from Oderen, France. Genevieve and her two small daughters, Josephine and Theresa, lived on land purchased by Joseph Winckler on the Twelve Mile Coleto in Dewitt County. Antone's father purchased more land bordering the Winckler land and this was home to Antone Golly Jr. for the next ten years, along with his sister, his two step sisters, and a half-sister, Catherine, who was born in 1851. The five children evidently got along very well as they continued to live within a short distance of one another all their lives.

In 1857, Richard Haller, his wife Agathe Wilhelm and their only child, Rosalie, emigrated from Alsace, France and settled on the Five Mile Coleto. Rosalie was 14 years old and it probably did not take Antone Golly Jr. long to discover the neighbor girl who had just moved to Texas. On August 7, 1859, Antone Golly Jr. and Rosalie Haller were married. by the priest from St. Mary's Catholic Church in Victoria when he made his routine visits to the Coleto Creek and Meyersville areas of DeWitt County. Rosalie had just turned 16 years old and Antone would soon be 24.

Antone and Rosalie continued to live with her parents on the 200 acres Richard Haller purchased in 1858. Antone soon began purchasing land nearby, eventually acquiring a sizeable estate.

The first child, Elise, was born to Antone Golly and Rosalie Haller on December 24, 1860, followed by twelve more children in the following twenty years.

Richard Haller died in 1863 and Rosalie and Antone continued to live on the Haller property with her mother. Eventually the Richard Haller homestead was called the Golly-Haller place and today the area is known as the Golly Community and marked on most Texas maps as "Golly".

The many Golly children, as well as the neighbor children, needed to attend school so a building was erected on the Golly-Haller property for this purpose. Not many particulars are known about the actual beginnings of this school, but it is known that Antone Golly served as one of the trustees. In 1884 the Golly School Building was moved to it's present location; the first location being in a low lying area west of the present site. Golly School became part of the Public School system about 1893 and classes were held there until 1946. In 1952, the former schoolhouse became a Community Center and is still in use today.

At the beginning of the Civil War Antone Golly enlisted in The Coleto Guards, 24th Brigade under Captain Robert Kleberg. Very little is known about Antone's activities in this unit or if, in fact, he ever played any major part. Tiny bits of information that have not been documented suggest that he did.

In 1869, Antone Golly's father died from typhoid fever, followed shortly by the death of Rosalie, a child of one year. Antone's wife, Rosalie Haller Golly, died on January 29, 1882. One week later, on Feb. 8, 1882, another one year old daughter, Emma Matilda, died. Antone, Golly, who had seen death come to most of his relatives and many of his friends, died June 12, 1884 when he was 51 years old. One month later, Elise Golly, Antone and Rosalie's first child, who was married to Benjamin Ar-nold, died. The unmarried Golly children continued to live at home with their grandmother, Agathe Wilhelm Haller until she could not care for them. The vast estate of Antone Golly Jr. and Rosalie Haller was divided or sold. The youngest children were separated by the court and sent to live with two older sisters, Mary Golly Koenig and Leone Golly Bitterly, and the once prominent Golly family was no more.

Elise Golly (1860-1884) married Benjamin Arnold. Maria Golly, (1862-1909) married Louis Koenig. Pauline Golly (1864-?) married William Eismann. Leone Golly (1865-1931) married William Bitterly. Eugenie Golly (1866-1945) married John Bitterly. Marie Sophie Golly (1868-1914) married — Myrick. Rosalie Golly (1869-1875) died young. Wilhelmine Golly (1871-1962) married William Harralson. Louis Albert Golly (1873-1926) married Theresa Rehm. Amelia Antonet Golly (1875-?) married #1 John Short, #2 a Mr. Baker. Anna Bertha Golly, (1876-1912) married Charles A. Thamm. Josephine Golly (1878-?) married #1 Davis, #2 Scott. Emma M. Golly, (1881-1882) died in infancy. Most of the Golly children lived and died in DeWitt County except Wilhelmina, who lived in San Antonio, and Antonet and Josephine, who both lived and died in Bisbee, Arizona.

Alfonso, son of Elvira Liendo and Manuel Gonzales, was the second of four children, born November 24, 1918 in Inez, Texas, Victoria County. He attended school in Cuero and began working at the Cuero Packing House in 1932. In October 1934 he began working at the Cuero Record (newspaper) and remained there until June, 1942. At that time he left to serve in the Army during World War II with the 442nd AAA Battalion in North Africa and with the 4.2 Mortar Battalion in Sicily and Italy under the 5th Army. He returned from the service July, 1945 as a Tech Sergeant with four battle stars and Presidential Citation and returned to work at the Cuero Record in November 1945. On February 2, 1946 he married Carmen Alcala De La Fuente, eldest of twelve children born to Emma De La Fuente and Damaso Alcala of San Miguel De Allende, Guanajuato, Mexico. To the union of Alfonso and Carmen three children were born: Carmen (Linda) born November 15, 1948; Gerard born May 17, 1954; and Yvonne born January 27, 1956. Alfonso and Carmen still reside in Cuero today. Alfonso left the Cuero Record in March of 1986 and now works with his son Gerard and daughter-in-law Debra Gonzales (owners of Standard Printing Company). Carmen worked as an LVN for 14 years and since 1972 has worked at the DeWitt County Tax Assessor's office as Deputy Tax Assessor-Collector.

GONZALES, JESUS AND MARGARET ELIZA WOODS

Jesus Gonzales was born in 1851, in Cadreyta, Republic of Mexico, and emigrated to Texas by 7 October 1870.

Margaret Eliza Woods the daughter of Montraville (son of Zadock Woods and Minerva Cottle Woods) and Isabella (Hidalgo) Valdes Gonzales , was born at Woods Fort, Fayette Co., Texas on 21 January 1849. In 1856, Montraville and his brother, Henry Gonzalvo Woods, moved their families to the Shiloh community of DeWitt Co., Texas. Unfortunately, Montraville Woods died on 15 July 1857 and Isabella donated the land designated as Woods Cemetery, Shiloh (Yorktown) DeWitt Co., Texas as his final resting place. Isabella Woods continued to care for her land with the help of her children. Later Joe Escalera and Jesus Gonzales worked for her both before and after their marriages to the Woods sisters, Ann and Margaret Eliza.

On 20 December 1883, Jesus Gonzales married Margaret Eliza Woods in Yorktown, Texas, with Justice of the Peace J.T. Kilgore officiating and witnessed by Eliza's only brother, Montraville Zadock Woods, who gave the bride's hand in marriage. Jesus Gonzales was awarded American citizenship on 19 November 1894 in Cuero, Texas. Both Margaret Eliza and Jesus Gonzales are buried in Woods Cemetery, Shiloh, DeWitt Co., Texas.

The union of Jesus and Margaret Eliza Woods Gonzales was blessed with four daughters, born at Shiloh: Lenora, born 23 October 1884; Lena Rose, born 17 November 1886; Susie Ann, born 30 April 1888 and finally Emma Ardelia, born 11 November 1890 (named for Eliza's sister, Emma Ardelia Woods Hartman).

Lenora married Felix W. Hoefling on 19 December 1908 in Cuero and their first son, Felix William, was born and died on 8 December 1909 in Yorktown. Elma Lucille was born 24 November 1911, followed by a son, Felix Wilbur, on 10 November 1915; however, he ate poisonous berries and died at age four. Their final child, David Allen, was born on 26 April 1921. Lenora died on 9 April 1939, after massive stroke, at age 53.

Lena Rose married Raymond Hanna on 26 February 1922 in Cuero and to this union were born two daughters: Gladys Madeline, born 17 February 1923 and Margarete Hermina, born and died on 25 April 1925. Lena died 30 December 1977 at her home and is buried at Westside Cemetery, Yorktown, Texas.

Susie Ann was married to William Eugene Caruthers on 22 December 1913 in Yorktown, DeWitt Co., Texas. They had a large family of eight children, all born at Yorktown: Stanley, stillborn August 1914; Jewel Lenora, born 28 October 1915, Kenneth Vinton, born 4 October 1917; Arvon Ewing, born 22 December 1919;

L-R: Margaret Eliza (Woods) Gonzales, Emma Gonzales, Lenora Gonzales, Isabella (Hidalgo) Gonzales Woods, Lena Rose Gonzales, Jesus Gonzales, Susie Gonzales

Luther Lamont, born 4 December 1921; William "Billie" Eugene, born 14 June 1924; Dorothy Nell, born 6 October 1927 and finally, Jane Allen, born 13 October 1930. Susie passed away on 20 November 1987, at age 99 years, 6 months and 20 days, in Yorktown Rest Home, with her children, Jewel, Jane, Arvon and Bill by her side.

Emma Ardelia never married. She lived with her mother after her father, Jesus Gonzales, died in the spring of 1922 in Yorktown until her mother, Margaret Eliza, died in her home in Yorktown on 5 December 1936 at the age of 87 years, 10 months and 14 days. Emma then lived with her sister, Lena, until Emma died on 6 July 1957.

GONZALES, RAFAEL AND MARTINA DeLEON M.

F341

A descendant of Don Martin DeLeon, the founder of Victoria, Texas, Martina DeLeon Morales, made her entrance into the world in 1901. Born in China Nuevo Leon, Mexico. Martina was the daughter of Rafael Morales and Zeferina DeLeon.

Her family moved to Mission, Texas when she was three years old and it was there she attended school, learning to read and write in Spanish until the third grade.

When she was nine, Martina's mother died of unknown causes. Aided by friends and constant reading of the newspaper, Martina learned English the hard way.

Another move of the family in 1919 brought them to a farm near Westhoff, Texas where they farmed and picked cotton. Martina married Rafael Cavazos Gonzales, the son of Joaquin Garza Gonzales and Belen Valdez Cavazos, in 1922. The couple lived on the Wallis Ranch near Westhoff, where they farmed and ranched. They grew cotton and hay and raised cattle, horses, hogs, chickens and turkeys.

Ten of their children were born on the Wallis Ranch and the first eight of the children attended Wallis Ranch School.

Continuing ranching and farming, the Gonzales family moved to Mustang Mott near Lindenau in 1939. The children attended Williford School and the Lindenau School for one year. Due to confrontations with the teachers and other students, the children were sent back to Wallis Ranch School. A teacher, Mrs. Houston, picked up the children and took them to school each day. Two more children, Candy and Manuel were born during this time.

In 1941, the family moved to Clinton where the children attended Clinton School except for the two oldest sons who attended Cuero High School. In 1943, the two oldest boys enlisted in the Army. The family again moved to the Crain farm with another new daughter, Margaret.

Martina and Rafael always emphasized the value of education to their children. Since there were racial problems at the time, the younger children were unable to attend John C. French School but were enrolled in St. Michaels School. The children generally walked the three and one-half miles from school. They helped with the work at home and on the farm. They helped pick cotton and bale hay.

On July 26, 1944, the Gonzales family received word that their son, Ralph had been seriously wounded while serving in France. Two days later Annie, their fourteenth child, was born. In September 1944, Louis enlisted in the Army and later was on active duty stationed in Korea. Soon after that the family moved to Cuero and resided at 519 Terry St.

Mary, their fifteenth child, was born in 1946, the same year that Tim and Ralph received their honorable discharge from the Army. Another son, Alfred, joined the Air Force in April 1946

The Gonzales family stressed participation in school, church, and community activities. Both Martina and Rafael were P.T.A. members. Martina became famous for her tamales which she generally donated to many functions. Rafael served as Truant Officer for the school from the 1950's through the 1970's. He was also a Reserve Deputy with the DeWitt County Sheriff's Department.

Martina and Rafael are proud of their family and their accomplishments. Eleven of their children graduated from Cuero High School. The four older sons received their diplomas and college degrees after their service days. They all entered different professions. Six daughters, Belen, Martha, Frances, Rose, Annie and Mary became nurses. Candy and Margaret became beauticians. The three younger sons were members of the Texas National Guard.

Martina and Rafael celebrated their 67th Wedding Anniversary on May 24, 1989. They have fifteen children, forty one grandchildren, and twenty nine great grandchildren.

GOODE, JOHN HAWKINS

F343

John Hawkins Goode was born 8 Feb 1838 in Ala., son of Joseph H. Goode and Deida Goode. When he was a few months old, members of the Goode, Byars, Cooper, and Autry families moved to Chickasaw County, Miss.

After the father Joseph H. Goode died in 1854, John Hawkins Goode loaded his widowed mother Deida, his four little brothers, James Robert, Thomas Jefferson, William Obediah, Henry Harrison Horace and a baby sister Joanna in an ox-wagon and came to Osage, Texas to join other members of the Goode family. They later lived at Columbus and Bellville, Texas.

John Hawkins Goode and his cousin George B. Goode came to Terryville, Texas in DeWitt Co. to visit their Byars relatives. They met the Goodson sisters Emiline and Nancy, daughters of Arthur Goodson and Jane (Kelly) Goodson. John Hawkins Goode and Nancy E. Goodson were married 10 Aug 1860 in DeWitt Co. Texas. Twin girls Leura and Laura were born 29 Dec 1861 while their father was gone to the Civil War.

After the Civil War John H. and Nancy E. Goode built a home on the north side of Bear Creek, in the Hebron Church Community, near Terryville, Texas. They raised a large family and lived on this home place in southeastern DeWitt County for the rest of their lives.

Children born to this couple were: (1) Leura 1861-1881 md. William C. Cooper. (2) Laura 1861-1944 md. Joseph Cook. (3) Alice T. 1865-1940 md. George Charles Goode. (4) Hattie 1867-1963 md. William G. Cooper. (5) Joseph Hawkins 1869-1938 md. Mattie Benbow. (6) Amanda Jane 1872-1948 md. Thomas Cudd. (7) David Jackson 1875-1880. (8) James Vollentine 1876-1948 md. Isabella. (9) William Henry 1878-1890. (10) Lillie Deida 1880-1964 md. John Stukes.

John Hawkins Goode, his wife Nancy E. (Goodson) Goode, seven of their children and many descendants are buried in the Hebron Baptist Church Cemetery in southeastern DeWitt County.

John H. and Nancy Goode were always known as Pappy and Mammy Goode. John Hawkins Goode was born 8 Feb 1838 in Ala., died 1 Feb 1915 in DeWitt Co. Nancy E. Goode was born 10 Mar 1840 in Miss., died 13 Jan 1920 in DeWitt Co.

John Hawkins Goode's mother Deida Goode Manor, her sons William Obediah, Henry Harrison "Horace" and daughter Joanna (Goode) Thatcher are buried in the Flatonia Cemetery.

GOODE, WILLIAM ARTHUR "BUDDY" AND LUE (GARRETT)

F344

William Arthur "Buddy" Goode and Alievan "Lue" (Garrett) Goode

My father was "Buddy" Goode, son of George B. and Emiline (Goodson) Goode. My mother was Lue (Garrett) Goode, daughter of William Mansfield and Margaret Ann (Byars) Garrett. (See other stories for more details about these families.)

Papa and Mama were married in DeWitt County October 23, 1879 when he was 21 and she was almost 16. They bought what was called the John Hargrove place near Hebron Church, and lived there all the rest of their lives. At first they lived in a little log house which was on the place when they bought it, but within a short time they built another house. The new house was built with four rooms downstairs and two large rooms upstairs, a detached kitchen, and a long porch all across the front. The log house has been long gone, but the newer house still stands on our home place, most of which still belongs to members of the family. All of us children were born and grew up there. There were nine of us: Bill, Fannie, Annie, Minnie, Mattie, Henry, myself, Eula and Guy.

We all attended Bear Creek school. All grades were in one room. We walked to school and carried our lunches in little syrup buckets. Two of our favorite teachers were Miss Katie Hunter and Miss Ruby Tracy. The things we liked best about school were recess and lunch time, and our favorite games were baseball, marbles, jump rope and dare base. Sometimes the boys would get back from recess 30 minutes late because they ran so far down the creek playing dare base! When the school was moved to a new location in 1911, Mama bought one of the old school benches for 50 cents. It still sits on the front porch of our house.

Papa always planted a large variety of crops. We bought coffee, sugar, tea and flour, but most of the rest of our food was grown at home. We had a large fruit orchard between our house and the creek. We always planted ribbon cane, and Papa had a syrup mill under two large live oaks down in front of the house. Lots of people in the community brought their cane to Papa's mill to be crushed and made into syrup. He planted lots of corn for family use, for the livestock, and to be ground into cornmeal. We also raised sweet potatoes, Irish potatoes, all kinds of beans and peas, watermelons and tomatoes. Mama had a "kitchen garden" near the house where she grew all kinds of greens, cabbage, beets, onions, asparagus, etc. in season. We had cattle, horses, hogs, chickens and turkeys all the time. A big winter project was butchering and curing all the family's meat. We had a big smokehouse in the back yard which was used during all of our growing-up years. Our "money crop" was cotton, and the women usually raised turkeys to sell.

We attended Hebron Baptist Church. Since we lived so close, usually a large group of young people would congregate at our house on Sunday afternoons, and we'd all go to church together Sunday night. Most times my sisters and I baked several cakes on Saturday, and everybody had cake and milk before going to church. Papa and Mama donated land for enlarging Hebron Cemetery and churchyard. Many of our friends and most of our family are buried in the cemetery.

One of the big events we looked forward to each year was Decoration Day at Hebron. It is held on the first Sunday of May. In older times we took wagon sheets, spread them out under the big live oaks in the churchyard, and truly had "dinner on the ground." Nowadays the Cemetery Committee has wooden tables which are put up each year for Decoration Day, but we still enjoy this opportunity to get together, visit, honor and remember our loved ones and days past.

GOODSON, ARTHUR AND JANE (KELLY)

The earliest Goodson family member who came to DeWitt County was Arthur Goodson and wife Jane Kelly Goodson. Arthur Goodson was born in 1811 in South Carolina, the son of William and Elizabeth Goodson. Jane Kelly was born 10 June 1815 in South Carolina, daughter of James and — Kelly. Both of these families moved to Mississippi, living in Copiah, Carroll and Hinds Counties. Jane Kelly was a sister of Emily Kelly who married Wade Hampton Hollan. (For more information on the Kelly family, see story Hollan, Wade Hampton and Emily (Kelly).)

Arthur Goodson and Jane Kelly were married in August 1833. They lived in Mississippi until 1846, in Caldwell Parish, Louisiana until 1853, and then came on to DeWitt County. They bought land near Old Terryville and lived there for the remainder of their lives. They were successful farmers/ranchers, and were particularly well known for breeding and raising fine horses.

Arthur Goodson died in 1862. Jane Goodson died 11 May 1893. They are buried in a small cemetery that is in a pasture south of Stratton, but it has been lost, and the exact location is not known.

Arthur and Jane Goodson had twelve children. They are listed below in order by age, with a summary of information about the marriages and children of each, as much as is known:

1. Martha Emiline Goodson – b. 15 Sept. 1834 in Miss. d. 11 Feb. 1904 in DeWitt County Texas. She is buried in Hebron Cemetery. She married George G. Goode (1831-1862) in DeWitt County 21 July 1857. Children: (1) William Arthur "Buddy" Goode (1858-1930) and (2) George Charles Goode (1860-1938).

2. Elizabeth Goodson - b. ca 1836 in Miss. No other information.

3. Susan Dizar "Dicy" Goodson – b. ca 1839 in Miss. d. 19 Sept. 1904 in Bay City, Texas. She married David Cudd in DeWitt County 19 Aug. 1853. Fourteen children: (1) A.P. (2) Josephine (3) Tom (4) Sudie (5) Amanda (6) Fannie (7) Elizabeth (8) Willie and others.

4. Nancy Elen Goodson – b. 10 March 1840 in Miss. d. 13 Jan. 1920 in DeWitt County. Married John Hawkins Goode (1838-1915) in DeWitt County 10 Aug. 1860. They are buried in Hebron Cemetery. Children: (1) Leura (2) Laura (3) Alice Toda (4) Hattie (5) Joseph Hawkins (6) Amanda Jane (7) David Jackson (8) James Vollentine (9) William Henry (10) Lillie Deida. It is believed that a little girl, Josie, buried at Hebron and possibly a little boy buried in Austin County belong to this family.

5. Emily Jane "Emma" Goodson – b. 31 Dec. 1843 in Miss. d. 10 March 1920. Married James Vollentine (1835-1922) 31 Dec. 1863 in DeWitt County. They are buried in St. Joseph Cemetery in Yoakum, Texas. Children: (1) Mary Alice (2) Arthur Henry (3) Willie Eveline (4) Geneva (5) Henry Arthur (6) Francis (7) Susie Lucile (8) James Alexander (9) Joseph E. (10) Una Mae.

6. Andrew Jackson Goodson - b. 10 Feb. 1844 in Miss. d. 12 Dec. 1914 at Stockdale, Texas. Married Susie Middlebrooks (1848-1888) in DeWitt County 19 Jan. 1865. They are buried in Pilot Grove Cemetery. No other information.

7. Eliza Frances "Fanny" Goodson - b. ca 1845 in Miss. Married (1) Strother Smith in DeWitt County 25 Dec. 1865. Children: (1) Frank b. 1865 (2) Arthur Byrd b. 1867 (3) William Isham b. 1869. Married (2) Clem Hodges. Children: (1) Elmo (2) Morris (3) Emma (4) Nina. Fanny (Goodson) Smith Hodges is buried at Smithville, Texas.

8. Amanda Goodson - b. 11 Oct. 1846 in La. d. 10 Feb. 1869. Married W. Jack Hodges (1839-1913) in DeWitt County 22 Feb. 1866. They are buried in the Terryville Cemetery next to their son who died 8 Feb. 1869. Children: (1) Mollie Walker (2) infant son.

9. Benjamin Franklin Goodson – b. ca 1849 in La. Married Josephine Stell in DeWitt County 10 Jan. 1871. Children: (1) Thomas F. b. 1871 (2) Arthur J. b. 1873 (3) John H. b. 1874 (4) William W. b. 1879 (5) Lou b. 1881 (6) Lovie b. 1883 (7) Ben b. 1886 (8) Eva Pearl b. 1888.

10. Alafair Goodson – b. 2 Aug. 1850 in La. d. 12 Feb. 1930. Married Joseph Francis Moffett (1843-1941) in DeWitt County 18 Jan. 1871. They are buried at Luling, Texas. Children: (1) Minnie (2) Arthur (3) Charles (4) Lou "Louie."

GOODSON, JAMES ELBERT FAMILY

F346

James Elbert Goodson was born in Louisiana on April 5, 1853. He was the eleventh child and youngest son of Arthur Goodson and Jane Kelly Goodson.

On November 27, 1873 in Hope, Texas, James married Annie S. McGown and Nancy Lucinda Black McGown. Annie was born in or near Navasota, Texas, on February 14, 1858.

James Elbert was a farmer, livery stable owner and inventor.

James and Annie lived for some years in Terryville, Texas near his parents. Due to the Sutton-Taylor feud, James and Annie moved their family in several stages, to Brady, Texas over a period of years where most of their children grew up.

They had nine children:

1) Walter Jackson Goodson, born December 19, 1875. He married Willie Manning. They had two sons, Elbert Manning and Walter Jackson. They lived in Oklahoma City where Walter was a cattle buyer. He died in 1930.

2) Roy L. Goodson, born June 23, 1878. Married Althea Ballard of Eden, Texas. They had four children, Albert Roy, Annie Maud, Autry and James Ballard. Roy was a land broker and painter. They lived in Texas and Long Beach, California.

GRAHAM, WILLIAM HENRY

(1844 - 1933)

William Henry Graham was born in Erie County, Pennsylvania on Oct. 16, 1844, the parents being James Graham, an Irish immigrant and his mother, a native of New York State. William Henry Graham had eleven brothers and sisters. At the age of six, his parents sent him to live with a Mr. & Mrs. S.H. Lee who had homesteaded a farm in Iowa. Mr. Graham grew up on this farm, where he worked very hard under severe conditions. He was not treated very kindly by the Lees.

In 1861, at the age of 17, Wm. Henry Graham volunteered into the Fifth Regiment Iowa Infantry of the Union Army. He remained in the army for the entire Civil War period (four years). His company engaged in numerous battles, skirmishes and seiges, including the Battle of Iuka, where half of his company were either killed or wounded; also the Seige of Vicksburg and the Battle of Missionary Ridge. At Missionary Ridge he was taken prisoner. He and 85 others were sent to Andersonville prison. Of the 85 in this group only 15 came out alive, because of the inhumane conditions in this prison. At Davenport, Iowa in July of 1865, Mr. Graham was mustered out of the army.

After the war, Graham traveled to Philadelphia where he enlisted in the Fourth U.S. Cavalry, which sent him to San Antonio, Texas. After three years of service, he was discharged. In San Antonio, he secured a job with the Overland Stage Company, who sent him to Cuero, Texas in 1873 to open a local office. Mr. Graham was also in charge of routing the mail in the Cuero area.

In 1880, Mr. Graham was elected County Tax Collector, where he served for 26 years. When he retired from office, his co-workers presented him with an engraved gold headed

For several more years Mr. Graham was actively engaged in the real estate business in the Cuero area. He was also an early stockholder and director of the Buchel National Bank.

In 1875, Mr. Graham married Marie-Louise Demonet, the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Louis Demonet, who were in the lumber business in Indianola, Texas. They were married in Indianola. Mr. & Mrs. Louis Demonet are buried at the old Indianola Cemetery. Mrs. Graham resided in Cuero her entire married life, except for a period of time spent in Mexico for health reasons.

The Grahams raised three children. The oldest was Mary Agnes Graham, who married Thornton Hamilton of Cuero. The Hamiltons raised three children, Graham Hamilton, Ann (Hamilton) Cusack, Mary Agnes (Hamilton) Carruthers. The second Graham child was James Michael Graham, who was one of the early graduates of St. Louis College of San Antonio (now St. Mary's University). James lived for many years in the Phillipine Islands. He eventually returned to Los Angeles, California, where he lived out the remainder of his life. The Graham's third child was William Henry Graham, Jr. who attended Georgtown University in Washington, D.C. where he was Captain of the Crew (a rowing team). He graduated from the University of St. Louis in St. Louis, Missouri and was ordained a Jesuit priest. Father Graham taught history, religion and philosophy at Holy Cross and Fordham Universities. He is buried at Fordham Univer-

Mr. Graham was one of the founding families of St. Michael's Parish. In 1877 he was admitted to an association known then in the Catholic Church as Bon Mors by Father V.L. Manci, who was the first pastor of St. Michael's Catholic Church. Mr. Graham's home was located across the street from the church. Mr. Graham attended church on almost a daily basis. Years later, upon a suggestion by William Leroy Cusack, Sr., to his mother and aunt, who had acquired the property through inheritance, it was suggested this property be donated to the church, since Mr. Graham was always such a close part of the Parish. This property was acquired by St. Michael's and is now the location of the Parish Hall.

Mr. Graham lived to be 89 years of age. He died in 1933 and is buried in Hillside Ceme-

GRANBERRY, AMOS AND ELIZABETH

F348

Amos Granberry was born April 15, 1798 in Warren County, Georgia. He was the son of Moses Granberry and his second wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Powell. Moses had served in the Militia for Newbern District, North Carolina as a Sergeant during the American Revolution.

Amso married Elizabeth Rogers about 1818. She was born December 27, 1794 in Georgia.

Amos Granberry was taxed in 1817 as a minor on 235 acres in Warren County, Georgia, on Rocky Comfort Creek. After 1817, he moved to Marion County, Mississippi. He is listed on the 1820 and 1830 census of Marion County. by the 1840 census, he is listed in Perry County, Mississippi.

Some time during the 1840's, the Granberrys left Perry County, Mississippi and moved to Jackson Parish, Louisiana. They were listed in Jackson Parish on the 1850 census. Listed next to Amos Granberry was his married son, Jasper, with wife, Rebecca, and son Amos. Listed next to Jasper Granberry was Adam Shows, wife, Nancy Granberry Shows, and daughter Edna.

Amos Granberry and family left Jackson Parish, Louisiana and moved to DeWitt County, Texas before 1855. He bought 800 acres of land in DeWitt County from Thomas Stern in 1857. He and his family were among the first settlers at Hebron, a church and school community. Amos Granberry and John Hargrove granted a 2-acre plot of land in 1869 on which the Hebron Baptist Church was located and on which it stands today. Near the Church is the Hebron Cemetery, with many graves. The first of these recorded is that of Amos Granberry's daughter, Nancy Granberry Shows, who died in 1867.

The children of Amos Granberry and Elizabeth Rogers were: (1) Lucretia Granberry, born about 1820. (2) Jasper Granberry, born about 1821 in Marion County, Mississippi. Jasper married first Rebecca, second Frances Jane Pierce, and third Barzilla Bissett. (3) Ransome Granberry, born about 1823. (4) Steven Granberry, born about 1825. (5) Elizabeth Granberry, born about 1827. (6) Nancy Granberry, born about 1829. (7) Amos Granberry. Jr. born about 1831. (8) Jane Granberry, born about 1833. and (9) Martha Granberry, born about 1837.

There is no record as to exactly when Amos and Elizabeth Granberry died . . . probably sometime in the 1860's when things were in a turmoil because of the war and its aftereffects. It is known that they were laid to rest in now – unmarked graves in the Hebron Cemetery.

GRANBERRY, JASPER AND BARZILLA

Barzilla (Bissett) Granberry

Jasper Granberry was born in Mississippi in 1822. He was the son of Amos Granberry and his wife Elizabeth Rogers Granberry. Few records can be found of his early life and marriage because of burned courthouses in Mississippi. There is a deed in Perry County, Mississippi in 1848 that names Rebecca as wife to Jasper. Jasper's son Amos was born of this marriage.

The Granberry family moved from Mississippi to Louisiana. Jasper's son Martin William was born there about 1852. Daughter Anamelia Josephine Granberry was born in Louisiana about 1856. By census time 1860 the Granberry family was in DeWitt County, Texas. Jasper was then married to Frances Jane Pearce and they had a son John P. Granberry, born in Texas in late 1859.

Jasper was widowed again and he married Barzilla Bissett, daughter of Lodowick and Mourning Williams Bissett. The marriage took place in Jackson County, Texas July 25, 1865. Jasper and Barzilla had two children, born in DeWitt County. Frances Jane Granberry was born December 20, 1866. She married William Allen Squyres on July 7, 1881. Jim Berry Granberry was born about 1869.

During the Civil War Jasper Granberry was a private in Company A, Mann's Regiment of the Texas Cavalry. He was listed among the prisoners of war surrendered and paroled at Victoria, Texas, prior to August 8, 1865.

In 1869 Jasper was thrown by a horse and killed. He is listed in the 1870 Mortality Census of Texas. Jasper was buried at the Hebron Cemetery which was land which had been donated to the community by his father, Amos Granberry, Sr. The 1870 census listed Barzilla Granberry and children Frances Jane, age 3, and Jim Berry, age 1, either in the household of Amos Granberry, Sr., age 73, or as their immediate neighbor.

Barzilla Bissett Granberry applied for and received a Confederate Widow's Pension from the State of Texas in 1899. She received this pension until 1921. Upon her death, W.A. Squyres, her son-in-law, applied to the state for a Mortuary Warrant which paid $50 for her casket, $10 for a hearse, and $8 for the gravesite. She was buried in Greenleaf Cemetery in Brownwood, Texas in January of 1921.

GRUN, JOHN J. AND ANNIE CAROLINE (HOUSE)

F353

John Grun and Annie Caroline (House) Grun

John J. Grun was born in the vicinity of DeWitt and Karnes County, Texas on July 18, 1859. He was one of three sons of Johann Grunn who immigrated to Texas in the 1840s from Germany. Very little is known of Johann Grun.

John J. Grun farmed and ranched in DeWitt and Karnes Counties of Texas in the 1880s and 1890s. There he met and married Annie Caroline (House) who was the third child of Fred and Sarah House, whose story is given separately in this publication.

John and Annie were married in December 1888 in DeWitt County. They had six children: Herman B., born 1889; Sarah Willimena, born 1891; Lola Agnes, born 1893; Russell, born 1897; Walter Randolph, born 1899; and Eura Jonnie, born 1901. All are believed to have been born in Karnes County, as John's farm was located outside Runge, Texas.

Annie Caroline died June 17, 1908 at the age of 48 years and 8 months. She is buried at the "House Cemetery" in Davy, Texas. After Annie's death, John bought land in San Saba County in central Texas where he farmed and ranched for eight or nine years, leaving the three younger children: Russell, Walter and Eura in the custody of their aunt Martha (House) Poetter.

John's health deteriorated rapidly in 1917, whereupon he returned to Karnes County. He died on September 17, 1917 and is buried beside his wife Annie. John and Annie were survived by their six children.

Herman B. married Lizzie Tredway and had five children: Elvy, Lois, Herman A., Johnny D., and Walter R.

Sarah married Elijah W. Little. They had six children who survived infancy: Margaret, Nora, Irvin, J.B., Ella V., and Marcus Earl.

Lola married Joe Little (a brother to Elijah) and born to them were twelve children: Annie May, Bessie Mary, Alma Lena, Edna Luetta, Wesley Bryant, Joe Jr., Dorothy Marie, Maurine Eura (Linn), A.C., Lola Faye, Dora Joy, and Alton Thomas.

Russell (House) Grun married Edna Baker, and had a large family of ten children: Ralph, Lloyd, Imogene, Elsie, Almeda J., Edward, Myrtle, Rusell M., Frederick, and Richard.

Walter R. married Alma Miller. They had two children: Oliff W. and Sue.

Eura Jonnie married Robert A. Miller (brother to Alma). They had two sons: Robert Gerald and Jonnie.

Due to space limitations, the lineage for all of John and Annie C. Grun's children cannot be offered for this entry. However a further breakdown for Lola Agnes (Grun) and Joe Little is submitted.

Annie May married Lonnie Parker and children born to them: Wanda Ruth, Doris Alene, Anna Lou, and Geraldine.

Bessie Mary married Rex A. Homeyer and had: Frances, Lorraine, Rex Jr., Patricia, and twins, Roy and Ray.

Alma Lena married O.M. Stevens and had: Doris C., Eva Sue, Betty J., Margie E., Jack W., and Joy L.

Edna married C.E. Smith and had six children: Milton, James W., Annette J., Kenneth., Nancy L., and Brenda S.

Wesley Bryant married Clara L. Pochman and had three children: Carole Camille, Janet Gail and Wesley B. Jr.

Joe Jr. married F. Anita Newman and had two daughters: Jo Ann and Peggy Loyce.

Dorothy Marie married Albert G.W. McComas and had three children. She later married Aubrey Batton and had eight children. The McComas children are: Ronald, Bonnie, and Donald. The Batton children are: Betty J., Audrey W., Aubrey H., Frederick H., Dorothy E., Johnny H., Teddy L., and Bruce E.

Maurine married Daniel L. Perkins and had: Daniel Jr., Charlotte, and Larry T.

A.C. married Eleanora M. Pelech and had one daughter: Lori Lynn.

Lola Faye married Clyde W. Sheren and had Penny Carole and Mickey Faye. Lola F. is now married to Richard (Dick) Stine.

Dora J. is married to James Batton (brother to Aubrey) and had eight children: Mary E., James H., Margaret A., Joyce F., Hollis V.,

(twins) Dale W. and Danny J., and Gary W. Alton Thomas married Clara Virginia Evans and had Debora L., Alton Timothy, and Cheryl

To bring this lineage up to date would entail at least two more generations of descendants for John and Annie Grun.

HAERTIG, ERNST FREDERICH AND MARTHA FLORA

F356

The Ernst F. and Martha Leonhardt Haertig family spent 17 productive years in the Gruenau community north of Yorktown, Texas from 1890 to 1907, before moving westward again to begin a new life on the frontier. This was typical "frontier hopping" procedure for the immigrants of the 1800's since, when the family outgrew their landholdings, they moved westward to new development areas.

Ernst F. Haertig, the eighth child for Johann and Johanna Goethe Haertig, was born 6 January 1856 in Hartmansdorf, Germany. There he was baptized in the Lutheran faith when an infant. He married Martha Flora Leonhardt, born 2 December 1858 in Lunzenau, Germany, the first child of Ottomar and Emily Abend Leonhardt on 8 May 1877 in Hartmansdorf, Germany. To this long and happy marriage were born sixteen children, five of whom died in infancy. Four children were born in Germany, namely: Marie – 2 April 1878, Arthur – 1 February 1879, Martha 3 July 1880, and Elsa – 3 July 1881.

In Hartmansdorf, Ernst was in the dye business and learned about cotton being imported from Texas. When his business failed, his dream to raise cotton caused the family to migrate to Texas in 1883. The family's first experience at growing cotton was near Schulenburg in Fayette County from 1883 to 1886. Here son, Ernst Ottomar, was born on 1 December 1885. The family next farmed in Lavaca County near Shiner, Texas from 1886 to 1890 where daughters Lydia – 3 May 1887, Annie –

25 May 1888, and Helen - 1 March 1890, were

About 1890 the Haertig family moved to the Gruenau Community north of Yorktown in DeWitt County where they owned their own farm for the first time. Here they lived for 17 years, establishing many family ties and friendships. born here were Willie - 7 April 1891, Bertha - 29 August 1892 and Frieda - 19 May 1895. Ernst was one of the first pioneers to break up the Gruenau prairies, and where highways are now, men like Ernst Haertig cut the first roads with the tracks made by wagon wheels. The well-known Gruenau May and Harvest Feasts were begun by thee pioneers. For these first feasts the Ernst Haertig family butchered the animals and made the sausage at their home for as long as they resided in Gruenau. The family was a talented musical family and all the children were taught to sing and play musical instruments, especially the zither. The family was "immer lustig" and visitors were duly entertained and coaxed into joining the fun. Ernst was an excellent wine maker and his first hospitable act when visitors arrived was to serve them a small glass of wine. Ernst directed a men's choral club, encouraged drama and took part in community plays as well as his whole family. Physical fitness was practiced in the Turner Clubs where the men and boys performed on "horses," the trapeze and mats. The Haertigs believed in the water cure and herb teas to cure most of their illnesses. A special tea was made in the spring from "Tousend Gulden Kraut" flowers and plants which were harvested from the wild and dried. This wild flower is today known as the Texas Star or Rose Pink. This writer drank the tea many times during her childhood years as a tonic. Brass bands and Rifle Clubs were established in Gruenau like in every other German community. Much of the Haertig's participation also extended into the Yorktown community. Several of the children married young people from surrounding areas. Martha Haertig married Fritz Sasse of Yorktown, Marie was wed to Ben Zuch of Yorktown, Elsa married John Pundt of Nordheim, Ernst

Jr. married Louise Sauermilch of Yorktown, Arthur married Flora Steinbach of Nordheim, Lydia was wed to Adam Kasten of Nordheim, Annie married Edward Nuinez of Yorktown and Helen wed George Morisse of Nordheim.

Ernst Haertig received his naturalization papers on December 19, 1898.

After Ernst and Martha heard that the huge Woods Ranch of Bonnie View Ranch in South Refugio County was being sub-divided into farm tracts, their pioneer spirit again prevailed. They acquired a section of virgin land, believing that the level plains of rich loam would yield greater crops. The Haertigs were by now efficient cotton farmers and loved to talk about their early misconception in Germany that the "tree-wool" was the moss that hung from the large trees in the coastal area. Indeed, they were right about the abundant harvests for they often spoke of only one crop failure due to a drouth. The Haertigs made their move to Bonnie View in 1907, traveling for two days in a covered wagon. In 1908 their large home was completed and they lived in this spacious home until their death. Martha became well known as a mid-wife in the areas where she lived and she was always ready to help anyone in need. She became affectionately known in the community as "Mutter" Haertig. All the grandchildren called them Mutter and Vater and had to speak to them in the German language.

Even though this writer grew up in Nordheim, she has many nostalgic memories of Vater and Mutter, who were her grandparents. The writer's parents were Adam and Lydia Haertig Kasten and one or two visits were made every year to Woodsboro and then to Bonnie View. First was the long trip by train and later by automobile over the prairie from Goliad to Refugio. It was fun to open the many swing gates on the ranches, but there was always the dread of getting stuck in the sand or the Overland Touring car refusing to run any further. But, somehow, to everyone's relief, you always made it. Bonnie View was located halfway between Woodsboro unforgettable. So were the visits with the many cousins, the children of Ernst and Willie, sons of Vater and Mutter Haertig who farmed on either side of their parents.

A number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren still reside in or have close ties to DeWitt County. The grandchildren are Lula B. Kasten Kolodziejczyk at Nordheim and Roberta Nuinez Parker and Joe Nuinez and their children at Yorktown.

Martha Haertig died on October 3, 1934 and Ernst died on January 21, 1941. Due to their lasting close ties to Gruenau and Yorktown, it was their wish to be buried in Westside Cemetery at Yorktown, Texas.

HALL, EMORY CALVIN AND ANNE ELIZABETH SLATER HILDERBRANDT

Emory Calvin Hall San Antonio 1900.

Anita Elizabeth "Annie" Slater San Antonio 1909.

Emory Calvin Hall, the first born son of Emory Horton Hall (son of Captain E K Hall) and his wife, Martha Jane Smith (daughter of John Lewis Smith, III and his wife, America Mack Tennell Smith of DeWitt Co, Texas), was born at the Hall ranch at Helena, Karnes Co, Texas on 13 September 1879. Emory Horton Hall made eleven trips primarily up the Chisholm Trail taking cattle and horses to market beginning in 1869 and continuing until shortly before his death on 17 July 1903. Calvin was only allowed to go with his father on one or two of the last trail drives as he was greatly needed at home to help his mother care for the mercantile, the ranch, and the younger children.

Anne Elizabeth Slater, the daughter of William Henry Richard "Dick" Slater (son of Richard Slater) and Lena Mack Couch (daughter of Doctor Franklin "Dock" Couch and Nancy Elizabeth "Lizzie" Westmoreland Couch), was born 24 November 1893 at Couch, Karnes County, Texas. Annie had three brothers: William Franklin, Jesse Richard, and Henry Clay Slater. When "Dick" Slater was killed in a mining accident in Mexico on 21 May 1900, his men smuggled his body across the border and home to Texas in a wooden tool box. He was buried in Choate Cemetery, Choate, Karnes Co, Texas. Lena formed a partnership with her father after Dick's death combining the Slater and Couch ranches and moved to Dock Couch's home at the Couch community (which Dock helped pioneer: it was named for him).

On 3 February 1915 at the Hall ranch in Helena, Calvin married Annie Slater. Dock Couch bestowed the family's blessings on this union and gave the bride's hand in marriage. Wedding receptions were held for family and friends both at the Hall ranch in Helena and at Dock's beautiful home in Couch.

Annie was most talented in art work (such as oil painting, china painting and other mediums) and piano. She taught painting and bontany in Kerrville and Houston for many years. Calvin's interests included family history, and a large collections of guns, knives, sabers and other military weapons. Calvin was a Master Mason in the Alamita Masonic Lodge of Helena for 40 years. Annie earned a lifetime membership of Helena Chapter, Order of Eastern Star and served as Worthy Matron.

At one time Emory Horton Hall owned the court house and jail at Helena as well as the E H Hall Mercantile, a saloon, the Hall Ranch (which was on the road from Helena to Runge) and other business interests. However after his father's death and burial in Helena Cemetery, Calvin was left with the responsibilities of their business affairs and family.

After the railroad bypassed Helena, Calvin opened Hall Brothers Mercantile in Karnes City and moved his mother, Mattie, and sister, Edna, to a house in Karnes City that he bought for them from his dear friend, John Tobin. Calvin and Annie lived nearby where their first child, Nell was born on 29 January 1917. Ray Slater Hall was also born in the Calvin Hall home at Karnes City on 8 February 1924.

Nell Hall graduated from Victoria College in Victoria, Texas in 1936 and had a singing career before her marriage to M L Shaw in 1948. The Shaw family moved to Houston shortly after the birth of Ronnie Lee on 15 April 1944 and Lana Rae Lee in November, 1944. Their last child, Debbie Ann was born in Houston on Columbus Day, 1954.

Calvin Hall served as a special Texas Ranger, a Constable and Deputy Sheriff for Karnes County for most of his adult life. He also served as an assistant Tax Assessor, Official Government Weather Observer and as Agricultural Extension Officer for Karnes County, Texas. Calvin died suddenly while attending to his duties in the Karnes County Agricultural Building (next to the Courthouse) in Karnes City, Texas at 3 P M on Monday 17 September 1945. The funeral services were held in Karnes City Presbyterian Church on Thursday 21 September at 4 PM with Dr. WP Dickey officiating. Burial was at Helena Cemetery (next to his mother, Mattie) with the Masonic Lodge in charge of the graveside services

Shortly after Ray Slater returned from serving as a Sgt in the Marine Corps and being wounded in the Pacific during World War II, he married Lavelle Hartman (daughter of August Blanton Hartman and Muriel Morrison Byram Hartman of Davy, DeWitt Co, Texas) on 23 June 1946. Also in June, 1946, Annie Slater Hall married Leon Bernard "Hilde" Hildebrandt and moved to Houston. Ray Slater and Lavelle moved to Houston and lived with Annie and Hilde in their home at 46 Frail Lane while Ray Slater attended University of Houston and worked for a refrigeration company. Lavelle worked in the Harris County Clerk's office and took a leave of absence to have their first child, Marianne Elizabeth on 20 August 1948 at Wright Hospital in Houston. Annie cared for Marianne after Lavelle returned to work until Ray Slater enlisted in the Army and was sent to Alaska where Lavelle and Marianne joined him. Lavelle returned to her parent's home at Davy with Marianne shortly before Laurinda Rae "Lori" was born on 18 February 1952 in Karnes City, Texas. Their only son, William Allen "Bill" was born in El Paso, Texas on 27 February 1960.

Annie stayed in Houston after Hilde died in 1964 but moved back to Kenedy in 1976 and lived in Ray Slater and Lavelle Hall's home there until she could no longer live alone, as Ray Slater and family lived in Friendswood, Texas. Annie then moved back to her farm at Creek, Houston County, Texas and lived with her daughter, Nell and her granddaughter, Lana and her family. Annie passed away in her sleep early in the morning of 13 July 1981 and was buried the following day at Creek Cemetery with graveside services being performed by the order of Eastern Star, Crockett Chapter.

HALL, HARMON

Harmon Hall, daughters Lola and Mabel

Harmon Hall was born in Gonzales County near the Hamon Community in 1867. His father, Charles Hall (b. 6-20-1804 d. 6-12-1868), a soldier in the Texas Revolutionary Army, was born in Tennessee. Charles first came to Fayette County in Texas. Here he joined Capt. Hayes' Company, April 20, 1836. He was awarded land in Fayette, Guadalupe and Gonzales Counties for his service to the Republic of Texas. Charles' first wife was Elizabeth or Betsy (b. 4-1806 d. 12-1865). Charles and Elizabeth Hall are buried at Ebenezer Cemetery near Cheapside. Charles and Elizabeth had a daughter Elvira Louisa Hall (b. 1-20-1837 d. 12-15-1869). Elvira first married William Steen August 31, 1854 and later married Louis Henry Plank of Gonzales.

Harmon Hall's mother, the second wife of Charles Hall, was Margaret Ann McCaskell (b. 10-24-1848 d. 6-4-1896). She was one of twelve children of John Chisholm McCaskell (b. 2-1819 d. 1-1-1893) and Eleanor (Crawley) (b. 8-6-1824 d. 6-26-1892). John C. McCaskell was born in Kershaw County, Scotland and Eleanor was born in Macon (or Montgomery) County, Alabama. John and Eleanor C. McCaskell were married in Alabama, December 6, 1842, before coming to Texas. He and his wife landed at Indianola and settled in Clinton, the DeWitt County seat in 1860. John C. McCaskell was a Deacon and Ruling Elder in the Live Oak Presbyterian Church at Clinton. Margaret Ann, the fourth child of the McCaskells, married Charles Hall April 9, 1866. She was eighteen; Charles Hall was sixty two. Harmon Hall was the only child born of this union.

When Charles Hall married Margaret Ann his daughter by his first marriage Elvira Louisa (Hall) Steen sued her father for her share of her mother's estate. Records indicate that Elvira Louisa received one Negro slave girl and $1000 cash. Charles Hall testified in 1866 that he gave Elvira seventeen bales of cotton netting ten cents a pound and $450 in cash. In April 1869, Elvira signed a statement that she had received land from her father Charles Hall October 1, 1867, eight horses, one-half of the stock of cattle, four bee gums, one feather bed and one safe.

Charles Hall died June 13, 1868. Margaret Ann Hall married Judge George Whitfield Key July 1, 1869 and nine children were born to the Keys. Margaret Ann (McCaskell) Hall Key is buried in Stockdale, Texas with Judge Key.

Harmon Hall was a sculptor. He carved monuments in Hillside Cemetery. He, however, met and married Rose Adalaide King (b. 7-8-1875 d. 2-6-1899) March 24, 1891 in Cuero. Rose Adelaide, born in London, was the third child of Rev. George King and Catherine Harvey King. She had sailed to Galveston on October 3, 1880, from London's East India Dock with her family. The voyage took three weeks.

After the marriage of Rose Adelaide and Harmon Hall, they lived in Cuero. Two little girls were born to the Halls. They were Lola Rosebud (b. 8-11-1892 d. 7-1-1958) and Mabel Claire (b. 8-6-1895 d. 6-6-1974). The Halls moved to Sulphur, Louisiana and opened a general merchantile store. Rose died February 6, 1899 of a fever. The Rev. George K. King went to Louisiana on the train and returned with the two little Hall girls to be reared by him and their Grandmother King.

Harmon Hall married a second wife, Juanita Florence Milam, in 1901. Mr. Hall came to Cuero and took his two little girls Lola and Mable back to Louisiana to live with him and his new wife. But alsas — Harmon Hall died June 21, 1901, six months before his third daughter, Harmon Hall II, (b. 1-8-1902 d.) was born and again the Rev. King went to Louisiana on the train and returned with Lola and Mabel. Cuero was their home. Harmon and Rose Adelaide are buried in Farquhar Cemetery, Sulphur, Louisiana.

Lola Rosebud Hall married Wellington Duette Landry (b. 5-6-1885) November 11, 1911 in Cuero. Two sons were born to the Landrys, Wellington Duette Landry II (b. 6-2-1914 d.) and Harold Hall Landry (b. 12-21-1917 d. 12-15-87).

Mabel Claire Hall married Charles Goodwin Breeden (b. 1-27-1860 d. 12-30-1925) in San Antonio, December 15, 1915. Mabel Claire (Breeden) Bell (b. 11-22-1916 d. 2-18-1983) and Rosemary Kibbe (Breeden) Kokernot (b. 8-1-1919 d.) were the children of this marriage. After the death of her first husband, Mable (Hall) Breeden married Edward Mugge (b. 12-8-1903 d. 6-22-1972) on June 6, 1929.

HALL, RAY SLATER ANND LAVELLE HARTMAN

Standing: Marianne E. Hall. Seated: Ray Slater Hall, Laurinda Rae Hall, and LaVelle (Hartman) Hall.

Ray Slater Hall, the son of Emory Calvin Hall (son of Emory Horton Hall and Martha Jane Smith Hall of Helena, Karnes Co., Texas) and Anne Elizabeth Slater Hall Hildebrandt (daughter of William Henry Richard "Dick" Slater and Lena Mack Couch Slater Bell Davis of Couch, Karnes Co., Texas), was born at the Calvin Hall home in Karnes City, Texas on 8 Feb. 1924. Calvin Hall owned and operated Hall Brothers Mercantile and the Traveler's Hotel in Karnes City which Annie managed beginning in July, 1935. Calvin served as a special Texas Ranger, a Constable and Deputy Sheriff, Assistant Tax Collector, official Government Weather Observer and Agricultural Extension officer for Karnes Co., Texas until his death on 17 Sept. 1945. Ray Slater Hall had one sister, Nell (born 29 Jan. 1917, married M.L. Shaw in 1943). Both Nell and Ray Slater were graduates of Karnes City High School. On 2 Dec. 1942, Ray Slater joined the Marine Corps. and proudly served as a Sgt in the WWII Pacific conflict, where he was wounded. He was honorably discharged on 27 Nov. 1945.

LaVelle Hartman, the daughter of August Blanton Hartman (son of William Hartman and Emma Ardelia Woods) and Muriel Morrison Byram, of Davy, DeWitt Co., Texas (daughter of Presley Randolph Byram and Lena Zenobia Morrison), was born 29 March 1928 in Yorktown, DeWitt Co., Texas. She had two brothers, Vernon Blanton "Bob" and Alton Randolph and has one sister, Jacquelyn. "Jackie" Woods married (S. Ross Rhodes). All four of the Hartman children graduated from Karnes City High School. LaVelle worked in the Karnes Co. Clerk's office prior to her marriage to Ray Slater Hall on 23 June 1948 in the Karnes City Presbyterian Church. Also in June, 1946, Annie Slater Hall married L.B. "Hilde" Hildebrandt and moved to Houston. Ray Slater and LaVelle moved to Houston and lived with Annie and Hilde while Ray Slater attended the University of Houston and worked for Arctic Refrigeration. LaVelle worked in the Harris Co. Clerk's office until the birth of their first child, Marianne Elizabeth, on 20 Aug. 1948. Annie cared for Marianne after LaVelle returned to work at Harris Co. District Clerk's office until Ray Slater enlisted in the army in 1950 and was sent to Alaska where LaVelle and Marianne joined him. LaVelle returned to her parents' ranch at Davy shortly before Laurinda Rae "Lori" was born in Karnes City on 18 Feb. 1951.

The Halls moved to Ft. Riley, Kansas where Marianne attended first grade, then to Aschaffenburg, Germany where they lived for three years. After and eventful passage across the Atlantic Ocean by ship (Lori had a severe case of measles and both girls were dreadfully seasick), they lived in Columbus, Georgia until Ray Slater was transferred to Ft. Bliss, in El Paso, Texas where the family established a permanent home. LaVelle was employed by the City of El Paso and then the District Clerk's office before the birth of their only son, William Allen "Bill" on 27 Feb. 1960. Later, she was a legal administrative secretary in El Paso for Fleming, Cotton & Calhoun and Owen Ellington & Hugh McGovern while Ray Slater was assigned to Korea and, later, to Panama. LaVelle also was a Veterinarian's Assistant at Angel Animal Hospital in Pasadena, Texas from 1973-1983.

Marianne graduated from Bel Air High School in May, 1966 in El Paso and married Ronald James Mauldin on 25 July 1966 at the August B. Hartman home in Karnes City, with Judge B.A. "Pete" Hartman officiating. Their children were Michelle Marie, born 13 Aug. 1967 in Brawley, California; Kelly LaVelle Anne, born 14 April 1970 in Corpus Christi, Texas; and Scott, born 3 March 1972 in Ijmuiden, Velsen, The Netherlands. Marianne married second on 10 March, 1979 in Houston, Texas, Robert Forsyth Little, IV. Michelle Mauldin married Glenn Roy Earl Klusendorf on 7 Oct. 1983 in Friendswood, Texas and had: Karee Anne Elizabeth, born 9 March 1985 in Friendswood, Texas; Chase Forsyth Glenn, born 9 Sept. 1986 in Houston, Texas and Joshua Alexander Glenn, born 15 April 1989 in LaMesa, California.

Lori married Robert John Thomas in El Paso, Texas on 18 May 1968 and had: Amy Cheryl, born 3 Sept. 1969, LaMarque, Texas; Robert John II, born 10 Dec. 1972, Rota, Spain; and Ashley Suzanne, born 6 Jan. 1974, Rota, Spain. On 25 Dec. 1987, Lori married second, Navy Capt. Richard Elgin in Washington, D.C. and moved to Naples, Italy after completing a nursing degree from San Jacinto College, Houston, Texas.

Marianne received an Associate degree from San Jacinto College, a Bachelor of Arts degree in Human Resource Management and History, Bachelor of Science degree in Psychology and a Master's degree in Human Resource Management and Psychology from University of Houston at Clear Lake City, Texas.

Bill graduated from Friendswood High School in May, 1978 and attended San Jacinto College. He currently is employed by Apple Tree Food Store, Friendswood, Texas.

After Ray Slater retired from the Army in July, 1968, they moved to Friendswood, Texas and he joined Lockheed at NASA, Houston, where he worked on the design, manufacturing and flight of NASA's large format camera until he retired in December 1986. Upon retirement, Ray Slater and LaVelle Hartman Hall moved to Kenedy, Karnes Co., Texas.

HALLER, RICHARD AND MARIE AGATHE WILHELM

F360

Francois Richard Haller and Marie Agathe Wilhelm were the progenitors of hundreds of decendants now living in Texas and throughout the United States, yet hardly one of them has ever heard of Richard Haller or his wife, Agathe.

Francois Richard Haller was born in Fellering, Alsace, France on Feb. 6, 1815 to Joseph Haller and Anne Marie Haller (No relation). Marie Agathe Wilhelm was born in the village of Oderen, up the Thur Valley from Fellering a mile or so, on March 26, 1817, to Bartholome Wilhelm and Marie Agathe Schmitt. Richard Haller and Marie Agathe Wilhelm were married in Oderen in 1842 and on July 4, 1843, their daughter Rosalie was born. As well as can be determined, Rosalie was their only child.

Since the Thur Valley in Alsace had many Haller families living there, at times the trail of Richard Haller grows a little dim. One thing is certain and that is that Richard Haller, age 29, his wife Marie Agathe, age 27, and daughter Rosalie, age 1 years and 3 months were on the Henri Castro Ship, Probus, that left Antwerp on October 6, 1844, bound for New Orleans. The Castro Colonists on that ship were to then board another vessel that would take them to Galveston, Texas. Ship records show that Richard Haller and family did arrive at New Orleans and this is where the mystery begins. Did Richard Haller and family ever get to Castroville, their destination, or did they stay in New Orleans only long enough to board the next ship back to France? Back to Alsace they did go. For what reason we may never know, but there is a story told by a great grandson of Richard and Agathe Haller that someone in the family, I don't remember just who it was, came over here but didn't like it so he went back home". Could this "someone" be Richard Haller and family?

In November 1857, Richard Haller, now 42 years of age, once again applied for permission to leave Alsace and immigrate to Texas. His wife, Marie Agathe Wilhelm was now 40 and the daughter, Rosalie, was 14. Richard Haller and family once again entered the United States through the port of New Orleans and from there, not wasting any time, came straight to the Meyersville area of DeWitt County. Within a very short time he purchased 200 acres of land in what is now called the Golly Community, and as soon as he could, applied for citizenship. This time he was not going back!

Many of their friends from Alsace lived in the Meyersville-Arneckeville area and Richard, who was a carpenter, or actually a cabinet maker, had no trouble keeping busy as his skill was always in demand by many who needed furniture and the like.

The family had not lived in Texas too long before the neighbor boy living near the 12 Mile Coleto came to visit the Haller family near the 5 Mile Coleto. The neighbor boy was Anthony Golly Jr. When Rosalie Haller turned 16 years old, she and Anthony Golly Jr. were married on August 7, 1859 by the Priest from St. Mary's Catholic Church in Victoria, who was making his routine visits to the Coleto and Meyersville area of DeWitt County.

Richard and Agathe could perhaps rest a little easier now that their daughter was married to a young man who was already becoming established in the community, but Richard and Agathe probably never rested again. On Christmas Eve, 1860, Richard and Agathe welcomed their first grandchild into their household. The first child, who was named Elise, was followed by 12 more children. In all, 12 girls and 1 boy. Anthony Golly and Rosalie continued to make their home with her parents and after the Gollys outnumbered the Hallers, people began referring to the Haller place as the "Golly-Haller" place.

Richard Haller lived for six short years in Texas. He died in 1863 and is buried in the Catholic Church Cemetery at Meyersville, Texas. Marie Agathe had her hands full helping her daughter Rosalie care for the ever growing household. A distant relative of Marie Agathe, a man named Michael Schneider, who was also from Oderen, France, came to live in the Golly-Haller house. Michael Schneider, whose wife was apparently dead by 1865, had emigrated from Alsace with his wife and children about the same time as some of the other Meyersville citizens.

On January 29, 1882, Rosalie Haller Golly died, leaving 10 little children for her husband, Anthony Golly Jr. to care for. With the help of the Grandmother, Agathe, and her cousin, Michael Schneider, the task of raising the children was eased somewhat. Several weeks after the death of Rosalie, another grandchild who was just one year old died. She was Emma Matilda. Two years later the death of Anthony Golly Jr. was a final blow. The Grandmother Haller was left with 7 grandchildren to raise, ranging in age from 5 to 16 years. Agathe Haller was 67 years old at the time, but took care of the little ones as long as she could. Later some of the Golly girls went to live with two of their older sisters; Mary, who had married Louis Koenig, and Leone, who had married William Bitterly.

Marie Agathe Wilhelm Haller died at 79 years of age on June 9, 1896 and is buried in the Cemetery at St. Peter and Pauls Catholic Church in Meyersville, Texas, beside her husband, Richard Haller and her pride and joy, her only child, Rosalie.

HAMILITON, THORNTON

(1878 - 1962)

Thornton Hamilton was born in Cuero, Texas, December 19, 1878, in a small frame house on Morgan Avenue. Thornton's grandfather, John Hamilton (1790-1867) had settled in the DeWitt County area around 1850. Thornton's father, Alexander Hamilton (1846-1906) was married to Annie Thornton (1855-1913) daughter of William Thornton, an early Victoria, Texas, doctor. Alexander owned a general mercantile store in Clinton, Texas, but when the railroad by-passed Clinton, it necessitated a move to the new town of Cuero in 1872. In Cuero, Alex went on to build a fine brick building on North Esplanade for his mercantile store. Also, Alex owned a ferry boat to cross the Guadalupe River near the present Hell's Gate Bridge. Alex was an early cattleman in DeWitt county with a spread of land in the Cheapside area of DeWitt County. He owned another tract of land in Live Oak County where the present town of Three Rivers is located. Many years ago a man named Tommy Tips struck a deal with the Hamiltons to subdivide their land in Live Oak County; hence came the new town of Hamiltonville, Texas. Because there was another town in Texas called Hamiltonville, the postal department requested the name be changed. The new name was Three Rivers, Texas. Alexander was also president and general manager of the Cuero Cotton Oil Mfg. Co. (Est. 1890). He was also one of the organizers and President of the First National Bank in Cuero, located just across the street from his building on Esplanade Blvd. Needless to say Alex was a dynamic businessman; however, his health began to fail at what we no consider an early age. His eldest son, Thornton, a very able energetic young man, was there to carry on. Here is an article from a copy of the Cuero Star (an early Cuero newspaper) in 1905 about Thornton: "Thornton Hamilton is a native of Cuero in his 27th year. Was graduated from Bingham's Military School (New York) and in his third year attained the rank of lieutenant and adjutant ----. He took a business course at Eastman's Commercial College, Pougkeepsie, New York. For some years he has held the position of assistant cashier and director in the First National Bank and director in the Cuero Cotton Oil & Mfg. Co.; which envinces the confidence reposed in his business capacity and fidelity by the shareholders of those strong and important institutions. From his other duties, Mr. Hamilton finds opportunity to breed registered Hereford cattle, and has made deals in these splendid animals in various parts of Texas and in Mexico for his father and himself. He is a partner in the insurance business of Woodworth & Hamilton; manages the extensive private interests of his father, Mr. Alexander Hamilton, owing to his illness. Alexander Hamilton was president of First National Bank, and Thornton, his eldest son, is most active as assistant cashier."

Thornton Hamilton

Mary Agnes (Graham) Hamilton

Alexander Hamilton died the following year 1906. A group in the First National Bank led by Edgar Joseph, a first cousin of Thornton's, (Edgar Joseph was reared by Mr. & Mrs. Alex Hamilton, having lost his own father at an early age and Alex Hamilton gave him his job in the First National Bank) wanted to squeeze the Hamiltons out of the bank. Thornton saw this coming so he cut a deal with Mr. Otto Buchel, who owned a private bank, to form a partnership. After the sale of the Hamilton stock was finalized, Thornton stood up and informed the stockholders that he had gone into partnership with Mr. Otto Buchel. This harmonious relationship lasted for over 50 years until the bank was sold. Thornton's younger brother, LeRoy Hamilton, was President of the Buchel Bank for most of these 50 some odd years.

Thornton took over as President and general manager of the Cuero Cotton Oil & Mfg. Co., a position he held until ill health forced his retirement in 1955. During this 50-year period Thornton also owned cottonseed oil mills in Yorktown and Kenedy, Texas, and for a period of time owned seven cotton gins. Thornton was also a major stockholder in the First National Bank of Yorktown, Texas.

Thornton's first love was the cattle business and the land. Whenever he wanted to relax he would go to the country to tend to his cattle operation. He was constantly expanding his cattle business by buying tracts of land and stocking it with good Hereford cattle. In later years when the Hereford cattle began having eye problems, he was one of the first ranchers to cross his Herefords with registered Brahman bulls from the Hudgins and Koontz breeders. Thornton was elected a Life Member in the South Texas Hereford Association.

Thornton had a good friend who was an early president and director of the Texas Company (now Texaco, Inc.). Because it was a well-run company, he began to acquire stock in Texaco in the 1920s & 30s and went on to become one of the largest individual stockholders.

In 1898 Thornton married Mary Agnes Graham, daughter of Civil War Veteran, William Henry Graham and Marie Louise Demonet Graham (the Demonets lived in Indianola, Texas). The Hamiltons raised three children, Graham Hamilton, Annie Louise Hamilton and Mary Agnes Hamilton. My mother Ann (Annie Louise) Hamilton married Charles E. Cusack, Sr. of Chicago, Illinois, who was the son of Thomas Cusack, one of the originators of outdoor advertising and whose company had offices in nearly every major city in the United States. The Cusacks had three children. Charles E. Cusack, Jr., Michael F. Cusack and William Leroy Cusack, Sr. (the author of this piece). My mother, Ann Hamilton Cusack was an early liberated woman. She worked as a secretary at Foster Field in Victoria and Brayton Flying Field in Cuero during World War II. After the war she began working at the Cuero Cotton Oil & Mfg. Co. where she remained for twenty-six years until she retired to take over the business management and to care for her father, Thornton, and her mother, Mary ton, son of William, was born in 1755 and married Mary Scott, daughter of John Scott of Scotland, in 1788. John Hamilton, son of Daniel Hamilton, was born in Washington County, Pennsylvania, in 1790 and died in 1867. He married first, Kitty Rule in 1815 and second, Lucy Campbell. Alexander Hamilton was the son of John and Lucy Campbell and was born in Carlisle, Kentucky, on July 29, 1846 and died in Cuero, Texas in 1906.

John Hamilton and his first wife, Kitty Rule, had thirteen children, one being Caroline (born in 1837) who married Rufus Smith (educated in New York and Connecticut) in February of 1856. Caroline and Rufus had several grand-children living in DeWitt County in the 1980's, among them: Mrs. T.O. Buchel, Mr. Edgar Smith, Miss Eleanor Smith, Mrs. Vachel Weldon and Mrs. Scott Snodgrass.

John Hamilton (so the story goes) took his son, Alexander, by his second wife, Lucy Campbell, from his home in Kentucky when he was about four years old and brought him to Texas in about 1850.

Alexander Hamilton (1846-1906) married Ann Eppes Thornton (1855-1913) on Feb. 28, 1878. Their children were:

1) Thornton Hamilton, who married Agnes Graham, and was born on December 19, 1878 and died December 9, 1962.

2) Alexander Frank Hamilton who was born May 29, 1880, married Clare Wofford on November 4, 1904 and died January 15, 1952.

 Charles Ruppert Hamilton who was born June 19, 1885 and died October 31, 1888.

 Le Röy Hamilton who was born April 2, 1889, married Dorothy Burns, and died November, 1977.

Alexander Frank Hamilton, second son born to Alex and Annie Thornton Hamilton, married Clare Wofford in Cuero on November 4, 1904 at the First Baptist Church. Children born to them were:

 Alexander Frank Hamilton, Jr., born August 25, 1905 and died February 22, 1941.

2) Frances (Eppes) Anne Hamilton born August 15, 1913, married Gale Oliver, Jr. on November 6, 1937. He was born July 13, 1907 and died October 11, 1981. Frances and Gale had four sons. They are: 1) Gale Oliver, III, born February 13, 1939 in Victoria, Texas. He married Gay Chandler on January 28, 1961. They have two children: Kathryn Kay born October 18, 1961 and Gale Hamilton Oliver born January 6, 1964.

2) William Thornton Oliver was born May 17, 1941 in Refugio, Texas. He married Coylene Mahan on August 20, 1966. They have three children: William Thornton Oliver, Jr. born May 7, 1968, Kristen Coylene Oliver born February 13, 1970, and Greyson Coyle Oliver born October 1, 1976.

3) Alexander Hamilton Oliver was born April 28, 1945 in Refugio, Texas. He married Nance Gene Anderson on October 12, 1974. They have two children: Nance Clare Oliver born August 14, 1975 and Amory Elizabeth Oliver born December 20, 1977.

 Robert Leon Oliver was born August 8, 1949 in Refugio, Texas.

Alexander Hamilton, 1846-1906, only son of John and Lucy Campbell Hamilton, came to DeWitt County as a very young boy. He grew up on the DeWitt County ranch (Deer Creek) of his father, John Hamilton. He began his business career as a merchant in Clinton and moved to Cuero "among the first" around 1872.

Before this, however, when quite young, he enlisted in the Confederate Army and served until the close of the war in 1865. In fact, he took part in the last battle of the Civil War which was fought near Brownsville some three weeks after General Lee's surrender – before it was known in that part of Texas that the war was over. He was a member of Company C, Fifth Texas Regiment.

After starting his career in Clinton, and before he moved his business into Cuero, he sold his part of his land inherited from his father, John Hamilton, to his sister and brother-in-law, Caroline (Hamilton) and Rufus Smith.

He followed merchandising until his growing interest in other lines necessitated his retiring from the mercantile field.

He organized the First National Bank of Cuero and was its first and only president. It was said that he was among the first to construct a brick building in DeWitt County. He was president of the Cuero Telephone Company, and president, manager and largest stockholder of the Cuero Cotton Oil and Manufacturing Company. (That remained in the Hamilton family until it was sold in 1965.) He built the first cattle dipping vat and was among the first to import registered Hereford cattle into the county, which, it was said, he imported from Missouri in the 1890's. He had bought land out towards, and in, the Cheapside area in the early 1880's. He was a member, at the time of his death in May of 1906, of the Jewel Lodge, Knights of Pythias.

I should mention that his first venture at stock raising was with horses, which he drove to market in Louisiana over the unfenced lands of Texas and through the marshes of Louisiana.

When they reached the Mississippi River, Hamilton made arrangements for his horses to be ferried across to New Orleans. Confusion and the noise of fog horns and boat whistles stampeded the horses and they scattered over the bottom lands. After several days of hard riding, the horses were rounded up and were successfully ferried across to New Orleans, where they were sold for a good price. The drivers with their saddle horses returned by boat to Indianola and then rode to their DeWitt County homes.

The enterprising young Hamilton, as I've written, moved his "Dry Goods and Clothing Store" from Clinton into Cuero after the county seat was moved. After a few years he sold his store to Frank Taylor, husband of Kitty Hamilton, Alex's half-sister.

In June of 1876 the ownership of "Hell's Gate Ferry" was transferred from Richard B. Hudson and sold to Alexander Hamilton for around "eight hundred dollars in American coin." The County Judge at that time was O.L. Threlkeld. It is not known how long Mr. Hamilton operated the ferry.

Alexander Hamilton met his bride-to-be, Ann Eppes Thornton, of Victoria, while she was visiting her dear friend Mrs. David Heaton (Ellen Hill, formerly from Victoria) in Cuero. At one time she had to postpone her visit on account of a fresh outbreak of the Taylor-Sutton Feud.

Ann Thornton was the oldest daughter of William Greene Thornton and Mary Walton Edmunds of Virginia, Galveston, and Victoria. Dr. Wm. Thornton was a pioneer physician in Victoria, having gone there in February of 1854. He had received a degree from the University of Louisville, Kentucky in 1847 and his degree in medicine from Tulane University, New Orleans, Louisiana in 1849.

Alexander Hamilton and Annie Thornton married at the First Presbyterian Church in Victoria, Texas on February 28, 1878, the same wedding date as her mother's and father's in 1854 in Galveston.

During Ann's youth, she received the advantage of an early and thorough education, both by attending Nazareth Academy in Victoria and by her travels with her aunt, Mrs. Alice Judith Edmunds Clark (widow). They often went by boat to Galveston, New Orleans, Virginia and New York. The travels continued after her marriage, with her husband and children, often to Chautauqua, New York where they enjoyed the climate, and the lectures and concerts.

Annie T. Hamilton was a charter member of the First Presbyterian Church of Cuero, Texas and also of the Presbyterian Ladies Aid Society. She was its first treasurer about 1880.

She was as devoted as she was to her church, to the Hawthorne Club. She went as its delegate, as its president, to the Federation of Womens' Clubs which met in Corpus just two weeks prior to her death in November of 1913.

Alexander Frank Hamilton, born in May of 1880, was the second son of Annie T. and Alexander Hamilton. He received a good, sound education from attending schools in Cuero, then in 1895 and 1896 at Cluster Springs in Black Walnut, Virginia and at Pantops Academy near Charlottsville, Virginia. Later he attended Phillips Exeter prep school at Exeter, New Hampshire.

On November 4, 1904, Hamilton and Miss Clare Wofford, daughter of John and Josephine Stevens Wofford, pioneer planters and ranchers in DeWitt County, were united in marriage at the First Baptist Church of Cuero, Texas. Two children were born to them: Alexander Hamilton, Jr. on August 25, 1905 and Frances Anne Eppes Hamilton on August 15, 1912

Clare W. Hamilton, following in the tradition of two of her sisters and her mother-inlaw, Annie T. Hamilton, was quite active in the early chartered (1895) Hawthorne Club, serving as its ninth president. At the time of her membership, the club met each week on Tuesday. When the club was first organized, the members studied the classics - much of Shakespeare. In later years the programs were more concerned with current events.

Young couples in Clare Hamilton's day enjoyed bowling and the dances held in the Mohawk Club. They were gala affairs. Clare used to recall the gay times the young folks had at informal parties held in each others homes.

Curfew for the young ladies was 10:00 p.m., however young swains would sometimes serenade them beneath their windows as late as 11:00 p.m.! "The young Romeos" would accompany the Felipe Band, "the swinging boys" at that time, to the girls homes. The Felipe Band was composed of three or four Mexicans who were quite good at "plunking" guitars and other string instruments.

Alex F. Hamilton, Jr. received his early education in Cuero Schools before attending and graduating from Phillips Exeter in New Hampshire in 1925. He entered the University of Texas at Austin that fall, where he was an honor student every semester, graduating with highest honors in 1929.

For a short period he worked in the bank in what was Goose Creek, near Houston. Then he moved to Cheapside and lived on his father's ranch until his health began to fail. Alex was an invalid for almost ten years, dying in June of 1941.

Mr. Alex F. Hamilton, Sr. was actively engaged in the ranching and cattle business up until his illness in the 1940's and he was widely known as one of the best posted livestock men of South Texas. For two years prior to the death of his father in 1906, he managed his father's ranches, which were in Live Oak, Calhoun, and DeWitt Counties. After this he continued the management for his mother and later for his brothers until the division of the land in the early 1920's. He continued to raise exceptionally fine Hereford beef cattle, which with other feeder stock, were sold largely on the Fort Worth markets. He also raised a few blooded horses for use on the ranch. He topped the market in Fort Worth frequently with the fat calves that he shipped.

His brands, which are still being used by Mrs. Gale Oliver, Jr. and her sons, are: 80-1880, being the year of his birth and 746, the 46 being the year (1846) of the birth of Alexander Hamilton, his father. This was the original Hamilton ranch brand.

He was interested in a number of other businesses - was formerly a director of the Buchel National Bank, a stock holder and director of the Cuero Cotton Oil Manufacturing Company. He was active during World War I as chairman of the Defense Council of DeWitt County.

In January of 1952, Mr. Hamilton died. His widow, Clare W. Hamilton, managed the ranch until 1966 when she became ill. She moved to Refugio, Texas to live with her daughter and son-in-law, Frances and Gale Oliver, Jr., where she resided until her death in February, 1973 when she was ninety-three years old.

Gale Oliver, Jr. took over the management of the ranch in 1966 and continued until his death on October 11, 1981. He had retired from his position as Field Office Manager, after forty years with Hewit and Dougherty Oil and Gas Company in 1973, and he and his wife Frances, had moved to Cuero where they resided in the Alex Hamilton home.

Since 1981, the ranch has been managed for the Oliver sons and their mother by Dr. William T. Oliver of Gonzales, a great grandson of the original Alexander Hamilton.

Frances H. Oliver received her early education in the Cuero public schools, graduating in 1931. That fall she entered the University of Texas in Austin, from which she graduated in 1935. She married Gale Oliver, Jr. November 6, 1937 in Cuero, Texas.

HAMILTON, GRAVES GRAHAM (BUZZY)

Graves Graham (Buzzy) Hamilton

Graves Graham Hamilton (Buzzy) was born in Cuero November 6, 1927, second child and only son of Thornton Graham Hamilton of Cuero, and Mary Sue Graves of Houston. Buzzy's great-grandfather, Alexander Hamilton, was an early entrepreneur of DeWitt County. Alexander had three sons who grew to manhood in Cuero: Thornton (1878-1962), Alexander (1880-1952), and LeRoy (1889-1977), and all were active in the further development of Cuero. Thornton, the oldest son, had three children; and Buzzy's father Thornton Graham, called Graham, was his only son. Graham was born in Cuero March 2, 1900 and died in Cuero November 5, 1977. Graham was a high school athlete in Cuero, where he broke the world's record in the javelin throw. At the University of Texas, he lettered in track all four years and was captain of the track team in 1922. He was one of the founders of the Cowboys, a service organization at the University. He served in World War I; and in World War II he was head of Civil Defense for South Texas. He and Mary Sue were married in Houston, December 22, 1922. They lived in Block 48 the Hamilton Block - on the corner of Terrell and Reuss in a Spanish-style home. Graham worked at the Cuero Cotton Seed Oil and Manufacturing Company, a Hamilton enterprise, all of his life; and after the illness of his father in 1955 he managed the business.

Buzzy's mother, Mary Sue Graves, was born in Waco. Her father, George W. Graves, was born on the Pedernales River, and served as judge of the Third Court of Civil Appeals for forty-two years. His wife, Katherine (Kate) Davidson, was also from a prominent family as her father, William L. Davidson, was for many years presiding judge of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals. Mary Sue and Graham have two children: Buzzy of this article and Susan Hamilton Wallis.

Like his father, Graham, Buzzy was a Cuero high school athlete, lettering in football, basketball, golf, track and tennis. He left the University of Texas at seventeen to enlist in World War II and was a crewman on a plane attached to the aircraft carrier, Saratoga. After the war, he re-entered the University of Texas for a time, and then went to work for the Steck Company in Austin for a year. The following year, 1951, he quit to work at the family's Cotton Seed Oil and Manufacturing Company in Kennedy. In 1952 he went back to work for the Steck Company in Austin; and in 1953 was sent to Houston to establish a branch office there for Steck.

While in Houston, in 1954, Buzzy joined four other men as stockholders in San Jacinto Engraving Company and spent the next thirty years as its treasurer, building it to a very successful company. While in Houston, he was active in the Chamber of Commerce, was a director of the Printing Industry Association, and was a director of the Independence Bank. He sold his business in Houston in 1983 and moved back to Cuero to engage in the cattle business on his part of the old Hamilton Ranch, called the Valley View Ranch. Buzzy is a dedicated sportsman, a crack shot with a rifle or shotgun, and has hunted and fished from Africa to Alaska.

In 1950 Buzzy married Jackie Powell in Cuero, and they had four sons: Thornton Graves Hamilton, born in Cuero February 28, 1952; Lloyd Michael Hamilton, born in Cuero June 27, 1953; Robert Deryl Hamilton, born in Houston April 28, 1955; and Thomas Duval Hamilton, born in Houston September 9, 1959. He and Jackie are divorced.

On August 5, 1978, Buzzy married Mary Ellen (Hoeflich) Belisch of Houston, daughter of a husband-and-wife team of doctors. She has two Houston-born children: Sigmund Bertrand Belisch, Jr., born July 26, 1962; and Werner Ben Belisch, born October 4, 1963.

Mary Ellen and Buzzy both participate in area clay target shooting contests. Buzzy is active as an officer and director of the Cuero Gun Club. Both of these Hamiltons travel to participate in shooting contests, and Mary Ellen shares Buzzy's interest in hunting, conservation of wildlife, cattle, and grasses for wildlife and cattle.

HANDER, MARGARET ELLA FARRAR SHOWS

Margaret Ella Farrar Shows Hander was born February 10, 1868 in Lavaca County, Texas. Maggie, as she was known, eventually met a tragic death at the hands of unknown assailants. She was the daughter of Candace Case Bailey and Elias Sweet Farrar, who came to Texas from Indiana with three children and other relatives about 1847. They settled first in

Victoria County and later moved near Hope in Lavaca County. They were listed in the 1850 Victoria County Census. They had nine more children in Texas. From December 1849 to February 1868 five of their twelve children died. Two boys, Lorenzo and Orange, died of measles during the Civil War. Margaret Ella, "Maggie," was their twelfth child.

Candace Case Bailey was born August 21, 1824 at Madison, Jefferson County, Indiana. She married Elias Sweet Farrar April 6, 1841 at Madison. Candace died January 21, 1869 in Lavaca County leaving five young daughters and two grown children. One, Celestine, died about three months later. It is not known where Candace and her family are buried, possibly in the Bailey Cemetery, Lavaca County.

Elias Sweet Farrar was born November 17, 1816 in Ontario County, N.Y., the son of William Farrar and a Sweet. His parents moved to Dearborn County, Indiana before 1820, when he was a small child. He and Candace had three children in Jefferson County before moving to Texas where he purchased several hundred acres of land near the Lavaca and Victoria County line. He ran a gristmill. He died at the age of 52 on September 5, 1868. "Maggie" was a little over six months old when her father died. Then on January 21, 1869 her mother died when she was a little less than a year old. An older sister, Celestine Farrar Stephenson, then took care of Maggie for about 2½ months and then she died.

Celestine was born September 17, 1843 in Jefferson County, Indiana. She married Silas Green Stephenson about 1865 in Lavaca County. He died August 15, 1868 when Celestine's young sister Maggie was only about 6 months old and about 4 months before a young son was born to Celestine. Celestine died on April 15, 1869, leaving her young sisters and two very young boys of her own. The three young sisters, Maggie aged 1, Amelia aged 7, and Minnie aged 12, were each placed in a different foster home.

A young married couple, James D. Terry and his wife Kate, who had no children, took Maggie to raise when Celestine died in 1869. Apparently the Terrys were acquainted with the Farrar family and also the Shows family as J.D. Terry, Farrar, and Shows were on the Muster Roll of Scarbrough's Davis Guard, a volunteer cavalry company from Terryville during the Civil War. In 1852 the town of Terryville had been named for James D. Terry. The 1870 Census of Victoria County lists Maggie Farrar as an orphan residing with the Terrys. Kate Terry, herself, had been reared in a foster home. Three daughters were born to the Terrys in Terryville. They were Martha Maria, born September 7, 1870; Alberta Maude born on August 25, 1875; and Kate Pearl on June 25, 1877.

On June 1, 1882, when she was fourteen years of age, Maggie ran away from the Terrys and married John Ryan Shows in DeWitt County. John Shows was born January 30, 1858 in Jackson Parish, La., the son of Adam Shows and Nancy Granberry Shows. Maggie and John Shows had five children: (1) Olive Lucretia, born June 14, 1884; (2) Mattie Ella born October 13, 1886; (3) Terry Adam on July 20, 1888; (4) Maudie Stella on February 14, 1892; and (5) Beulah Minnie in June, 1893. Three of these children, Mattie, Terry, and Maudie, were named for members of the Terry family.

John Ryan Shows, a farmer, died of cancer at the age of 44 on May 29, 1901, and was buried in the Hebron Cemetery in northeastern DeWitt County. Nancy Shows, his mother, is the first recorded person to be buried in the Hebron Cemetery. She died at age 38 on April 29, 1867. The funeral was by oxcart. She was the daughter of Amos Granberry, Sr. and Elizabeth Rogers. Nancy Shows was the wife of Adam Shows, a carpenter, who built the Hebron

Baptist Church. She was the mother of eight children. John Ryan Shows was her 6th child. With the death of her husband, John Shows, Maggie, at the age of 32, was left with five children ages 8-17.

Some months after John Shows died Maggie left the two older children with relatives, but took the three younger ones, Maudie, Terry, and Beulah, with her to Austin. It is not known just when she met and married a man named Hander. It is reported that he was the foster brother of Bethal Yearwood, who was married to Olive Lucretia, Maggie's first child. She later returned to Morales and brought the younger children with her because young Terry and Hander did not get along. She stayed for awhile in Morales with another daughter, Mattie Laughter, but then returned to Austin. Maggie and Hander separated. She rented a small two-room house at 1610 East Third Street, where she lived by herself, although she is said to have been popular and never lacked for company. In early fall of 1909 Maggie had seen a lawyer, Henry Faulk, about filing for divorce. She told Faulk that she was engaged to A.G. Magnum and would marry him as soon as the divorce was final.

On October 19, 1909, it was reported in the Austin Daily Statesman that the body of a woman had been discovered the afternoon before in the Wheeless pasture about twenty paces from Manor Road, between Pecan Springs and Walnut Creek, about five miles from the city of Austin. Judging from its condition, the body had apparently been lying there for several weeks. Much of the skin was gone from the lower extremities, and the skin of the face was sunken and shriveled. There were three deep indentations on the head, one on the forehead, and one on the jaw, and one which had broken her cheek bone, giving an indication of murder. The body was well dressed. She wore a red jersey sweater, low quarter shoes lay a short distance to one side. She had long black hair which had been torn from the scalp and was lying nearby. She was of medium height, and ear rings of curious design were in her ears.

The following day, on October 20, 1909, the Austin Daily Statesman reported that the body had been identified as that of Mrs. Maggie Hander. Identification was made by a Mrs. Annie Scrivener and a Miss Pearl Scrivener. A Mrs. Frank, who lived next door and who rented the house on East Third to Mrs. Hander, said she had seen the woman leave in a buggy with an unidentified man early in the evening on September 27, but only thought she had left town, and did not report her missing. Jewelry found on the body consisted of two oldfashioned ear rings, a stick pin apparently made from a dime with the letters "M.R." scratched on it and 1884 stamped across the face of the dime. There was a locket with the same initials engraved on it. Since the police did not know her maiden name of Maggie Farrar, the initial could easily have been mistaken for an "R" instead of an "F". The date 1884 on the dime was the year of the birth of her first child, Olive Lucretia.

The body was buried by the county on October 19 from Pattersons Funeral Home in the pauper's section of the Austin City Cemetery (Oakwood), Austin. No lot number was given and no death certificate issued. Dr. James Loving, a physician in attendance, gave cause of death as a fractured skull.

Two defendants, John I. Grubbs and Jesse Smith, alias Jesse Pemberton, were charged with the murder. A Grand Jury was called, and October 29, the Grand Jury called for the release of these two men in connection with the murder of Mrs. Maggie Hander for lack of evidence, although John I. Grubbs was detained on forgery charges. A letter of January 18, 1910 from Justice of the Peace J.D. Moore of Precinct #3 in Austin to Mrs. Mattie Laughter states:

"The identification was principally arrived at from the earrings, the scarf pin—the shawl and clothes on the body, all of which tallied with a picture of your mother obtained from her trunk . . ."

It is likely that the picture above and the one described by Justice of the Peace J.D. Moore are the same. The picture was taken in Cuero in 1893.

There are numerous descendants of Mrs. Maggie Hander living in South Texas. Three grandchildren, Ocie Fae McGinty, Ray Terry Laughter, and Willie Dee Sweeney, live in the Houston area.

HANSEN, FREDERICK LOUIS

Frederick Louis Hansen was born June 14, 1909, in McFarland, Kansas. His father, August F. Hansen, was Danish, and his mother, Caroline Kratzer Hansen, was German.

His mother died when he was twelve years old, and Fred was sent to a Lutheran Preparatory School in Concordia, Missouri. Later, he lived with his brother in Temple, Texas, and graduated from Temple High School. After working a year for the Fred Harvey Dairy in Temple, he attended Texas A.&M. College, graduating in 1934. After his graduation he was employed to teach Vocational Agriculture in the high school at Buda, Texas. In 1935 he came to Cuero, where he established a Vocational Agriculture Department in the high school while working part-time as an agricultural counsellor for the Cuero Chamber of Commerce. In 1941 he received the Master's degree in Agricultural Education from Texas

On August 7, 1937, Fred married Ellyce Morgan, a teacher, in Las Cruces, New Mexico. He continued to teach at Cuero High School until the entry of the United States in World War II, when he was employed by the State of Texas to organize canning centers in several South Texas communities. At the close of the war, he opened a feed store and began raising turkeys and cattle.

Fred Louis Hansen was a member of Cuero's Chamber of Commerce until his retirement, a charter member of the Cuero Lions Club of which he was president in 1940-41, the first president of the Cuero Men of the Church which was organized in 1958, an elder in the Cuero Presbyterian Church, and president of the Texas Turkey Federation.

The Hansens had three children. Fred Morgan Hansen was born December 29, 1940. He practices dentistry in Houston and is the father of two children: William Schuyler (b.

1968) and Katrina Elise (b. 1972). Frank Louis Hansen was born October 4, 1944. He was an orthodontist in Houston until 1980, when he died in a plane crash while on a hunting trip in the Yukon Territory, Canada. Lisa Caroline Hansen was born October 9, 1952. She graduated from Southern Methodist University and later received a degree as a Dental Hygienist from the Texas Dental School in Houston. She married Walter Grant Braly, a Houston orthopedist, in 1978. Their three children are Frank Hansen (b. 1982), Houston Lee (1984), and Morgan Fain (b. 1987).

HANYS, MAURICE ANTON AND MOLLIE (KUNETKA)

Maurice Anton Hanys, the youngest of four children, was born in Zvole, Czechoslovakia, March 26, 1882, the son of Maurice and Anna (Strouhal) Hanys. He was born four months after his father's death.

In January of 1889 Mrs. Hanys and her four children — Anna, Rudolph, Fred, and Maurice — and her two younger brothers, Anthony and John, departed their home in Moravia, Austria, to travel by train for Hamburg, Germany, enroute to America. After a three-day wait in Hamburg, their ship sailed for the United States.

They arrived in New York on February 24, 1889. The next day the sister, Anna, became ill, and the mother remained with her at the American Immigrant Hospital. Maurice, his two brothers, and his two uncles continued their journey by train to Shiner, Texas, where the mother and sister joined them a few weeks later. Their first home in Texas was on the Kokernot Ranch, between Shiner and Gonzales, whee the family farmed for two years. In the fall of 1891 they moved to a farm near Skidmore.

In 1892 the mother Anna died at the age of 40 and was buried on the Olmos Ranch near Skidmore. Shortly thereafter Maurice and his sister moved to Yoakum in DeWitt County, Texas.

Mr. Hanys started his career in cotton ginning in 1900 at the Dolejski Gin in Shiner. In 1908 he enlisted in the United States navy and served until 1912, when he was honorably discharged.

On December 15, 1915, Maurice married Mollie Kunetka in Yoakum. Mollie, a sister of Frank W. Kunetka (q.v.), was born on December 19, 1884, at Sweet Home in Lavaca County. She was one of seven children born to Frank J. Kunetka and Annie (Krizan) Kunetka. The couple made their first home in Sweet Home, where he was manager of the cotton gin. In 1921 they moved to Yoakum, and in 1929 they located in Midfield while Maurice managed cotton gins in both places.

In 1937 they moved to Cuero, where Maurice had contracted with the Green and Steen Insurance Company to remodel the Cuero Gin, located in the 500 block of West Main Street. The relationship resulted in the same year in his purchase of the gin, which he operated until 1959, when the government's agricultural policy discouraged cotton farming and the gin was closed. However, he continued in the adjoining feed business which he had initiated in 1938, until 1963, when failing health forced his retirement and the sale of his business interest to his son, Jerry.

On January 6, 1968, Mr. Hanys retired to the Trinity Lutheran Home in Shiner, where he died 38 days later, on February 13. His funeral service was held at the Freund Funeral Home in Cuero on February 16. Mrs. Hanys took residence at the same retirement center on May 30, 1968, and died at the Wagner Memorial Hospital in Shiner on August 16 of the same year. Her funeral service was held August 17 at St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Cuero. Rev. H.A. Hanson, pastor of St. Mark's, officiated at both services. They were both interred in Oak Grove Cemetery in Yoakum.

As a Cuero businessman, Maurice was active in his support of every community and civic program and contributed liberally of his time and resources. He was an ardent sports fan and a regular attendant at all semipro and high school athletic contests. During his career he constructed gins in three different South Texas counties — Lavaca, Matagorda, and Calhoun.

Maurice and Mollie Hanys had three children: Edwin, a son who died in 1925 at the age of six months; a daughter, Leona, who died in 1926 at the age of ten years; and Jerry Maurice, born August 27, 1920. Jerry M. Hanys married Tennie Valiguara in 1946 and lives in Cuero. Their son, Jerry Michael Hanys, born July 20, 1947, married Dori Hohl in June, 1987, and is the father of Daniel Jerome Hanys, born May 4, 1988.

HARDT, HENRY CHRISTIAN

F367

Heinrich Christian Hardt was born May 2, 1827, in Ernsthausen, Nassau, Germany. He was the first of ten children born to Johann Wilhelm and Justine Katharine Haibach Hardt. When he was eighteen years old, he came to the Republic of Texas with his father as a Fisher-Miller colonist for the German Emigration Company. They arrived in Galveston from Antwerp on the ship Strabo on November 20, 1845. With his name now anglicized to Henry, he and his father walked to Indianola where they worked until the beginning of the Mexican war.

In May 1846, Henry enlisted as a teamster in the 6th Division under General Winfield Scott and immediately was sent to the Mexican border. Their unit first went to Vera Cruz and from there they followed the militia to Mexico City hauling freight. After hostilities ceased, the troops lay in Mexico City for six weeks. At the close of the war, he was sent to New Orleans, Louisiana, and there he was given an honorable discharge. He joined his father again in Victoria. Here they worked together for a short time and became acquainted with Peter Metz and John Franke and their wives, who had bought a piece of land from John York, located 12 miles from Clinton, and 45 miles from Victoria. This group became some of the founding fathers of what is now known as Yorktown, Texas. On September 20, 1849, Henry and Maria (Marie Anne) Haller, the daughter of Jean and Marie Anne Haller of Castroville, Texas, were married in DeWitt County. He was 22 and she was 15. Maria and her brothers and sisters, Paul, Regina, Christianne, Josephine, and Augustin, had immigrated to Texas as Castro Colonists from Oderin, Alsace, France. They had arrived at Galveston from Strasbourg on November 22, 1843, on Castro's sixth ship Henrich. Maria's father, Jean Haller, and her mother's brother, Antoine Golly, were among the founders of Castroville.

It was about the time of Henry's marriage that he and his father spent several years building some of the pioneer homes throughout central Texas in San Antonio, Fredericksburg, and Fort Worth. Henry even became proficient as a furniture maker since some of his furniture still remains today.

Henry and Maria were the parents of thirteen children. They were: Frederick William, Elizabeth Mary, Valentine Charles, Ratchel Eliza, Anna Mary Josephine, William Paul, Henry George, Mary Matilda, Willie August, Henriette Josephine, John August, Gustave Andrus and Annie Maria. All, except Anna Mary Josephine and William Paul who died of diphtheria in childhood, lived to maturity, married, and had large families. During the War Between the States, Henry enlisted and served first in the artillery and then in Benavides' Texas Cavalry Regiment. At the end of the war, it was disbanded on the Rio Grande.

After living in the Yorktown area for some time where all their children were born, Henry and Maria decided to move to Mason, Texas. According to the records in the General Land Office in Austin, Texas, and the Menard County Clerk's office, Henry's land Grant from the German Emigration Company was located in Menard County not far from Mason. However, we do not believe that he ever occupied his grant.

Later, since several of their children had married and were living in Medina County, they purchased land near New Fountain, Texas, and spent the remaining years of their lives near their families. Henry Christian died on June 20, 1909, and Maria died on September 14, 1911, in Yancey, Texas. Both are buried in the New Fountain United Methodist Church Cemetery in New Fountain where they had lived for approximately the last twenty-five years of their lives.

HARDT, JOHN WILLIAM

Johann Wilhelm Hardt was born on March 15, 1798, in Ernsthausen, Nassau, Germany, the son of Philipp Thomas Hardt and his wife Elisabetha Margaretha, nee Mueller, who were married on September 7, 1778, in Ernsthausen. Ernsthausen is located about fifty miles northwest of Frankfurt. On December 26, 1825, Johann Wilhelm married Justine Katharine Haibach, the daughter of Johann Wilhelm Haibach and Anna Margaretha Haibach of Ernsthausen. Ten children were born to this couple in Germany although only six lived to maturity. At one time, Johann Wilhelm was considered a prosperous businessman. However. Europe was hit by an economic depression and little by little he lost his property, consisting of a farm, grocery store and blacksmith shop, until he went bankrupt. At this same time, the new Republic of Texas was luring colonists to help populate the southern and western portions of the state; so he looked toward the new nation to begin a new life.

Records in the General Land Office in Austin, Texas, show that on September 11, 1845, Wilhelm Hardt signed his contract with the German Emigration Company as a Fisher-Miller Colonist. Leaving his wife and younger children with his wife's sister, he took with him his eldest son, Heinrich Christian, a carpenter by trade, and immigrated to the new nation of Texas. They arrived at the port of Galveston from Antwerp on the ship Strabo on November 20, 1845. Johann Wilhelm, now anglicized to William, was 47 and his son Henry, was 18.

From Galveston, family tradition has it that they walked to Indianola where they worked until the beginning of the Mexican War when Henry enlisted. It is said that they built the first block house in Indianola, and when a young Dr. Reuss arrived with his bride, they let him have it and built themselves a tent.

After Henry returned from the Mexican War, he again joined his father in Victoria. Here they worked together for a short time and became acquainted with Peter Metz and John Franke and their wives, who had bought a piece of land from John York, located 12 miles from Clinton, and 45 miles from Victoria. This group became some of the founding fathers of what is now Yorktown, Texas. It was about this time that there was a demand for carpenters; so William and his son, Henry, spent several years building some of the pioneer homes throughout central Texas in San Antonio, Fredericksburg, and Fort Worth.

William had not anticipated that the Mexican War and all the other hardships they encountered in the wilderness of Texas would prevent him from sending for his family left in Germany. It was a long seven years before he had saved enough money to have them join him. Through some merchants, Fromme and Co., who did some trading with Germany, his family was brought over. A notice in the New Braunfels Zeitung shows that the "wife and children of William Hardt" left Bremen for Indianola on October 9, 1852, on the Brig Herman Theodor. These children were Karoline Elisabethe Wilhelmina, Friedrich Wilhelm, Wilhelm August, Henrietta Johnetta and Wilhelm Valentin Hardt. All of these children were married in Texas and reared families in and around the Yorktown area; including such towns, as Goliad, Weesatche, Meyersville, Cuero, and Yoakum. And all four Hardt brothers served for the Confederacy in the War Between the States.

On May 7, 1855, William Hardt was granted citizenship to the United States of America by the District Court in DeWitt County, Texas.

According to the records in the General Land Office and the Menard County Clerk's office, William's land grant from the German Emigration Company was located in Menard County which at that time was still in Indian country. We have no information that indicates he ever occupied his grant.

Both William and his wife, Justine, lived and died in the Yorktown area.

HARGROVE, HENRY JUDSON

F369

Henry Judson Hargrove, born in 1841 in Georgia, son of John Green Hargrove and Rachael Lipscomb, served in Co. B, Fourth Regiment, Texas Cavalry, Confederate States Army.

In 1865 he returned to farming and married Miss Virginia (Jenny) Nelson, the first teacher at the one-room log County Line School. She was the daughter of E.H. and Ann Nelson, who operated the Nelson Academy at Petersburg and the Alma Male and Female Institute in Hallettsville.

Both Henry Judson and Virginia Hargrove died of tuberculosis before any of their children married. Both are buried in Hebron Cemetery.

The Hargrove children were: Frances Holmes (married Sydney Sparkman), Lou (married Branch Archer), Jane (married Jess Billingsly), Samuel Martin (married Maude Norris 1901), Hardy (married Catherine McSparren), and Eugene (married Wanda Boutelle).

Samuel Martin later moved to the Rio Grande Valley, where he became the first mayor of Mission, Texas in 1910.

HARGROVE, JOHN GREEN

F370

John Green Hargrove, a man of strong missionary spirit and a prosperous planter, was born in Georgia in 1812, the son of Hiram Hardy Hargrove and Winnifred Simms.

He came to DeWitt County after living more than ten years in Jackson Parish, Louisiana where he helped his father establish Ebenezer Baptist Church in 1850.

His wife, Rachael Lipscomb, also of Georgia, died shortly before he appeared on the 1860 DeWitt County census with children Mary Elizabeth (married James Thomas Smith), Henry Judson (married Virginia Nelson 1865), Francis L. (married Preston Dickinson 1868), fraternal twins E.W. and H.B., Mariah, John L. (married Margaret McManus 1878 and had a general store in Terryville), Nancy A. (married Jim Barnes), and Rachel J. (married R.W. Brown). Daughters Sarah Jane (married Amos Granberry, Jr.) and Eudocia had already left home.

That same year, 1860, John Green Hargrove married Margaret McManus of Clinton, Texas.

In 1867 he was one of the donors of land for the Hebron Baptist Church and Cemetery, where he is buried. At that time, the Hargrove homeplace was adjoining Hebron to the south.

His earliest ancestor in America was Richard Hargrove, who arrived in Virginia on January 2, 1634. Over the centuries, the family gradually migrated south through the Carolinas, Georgia and Louisiana.

HARMON, LEONARD ROY

Leonard R. Harmon was born in Cuero, Texas, DeWitt County, on January 21, 1917 to Cornelius and Naunita Mabry (White) Harmon. He attended Daule School, a black school in Cuero. Leonard was a good student. He worked for Mrs. Marion Frobese Leonhardt during the depression.

On June 10, 1939, Leonard Roy Harmon enlisted in the United States Navy in Houston, Texas. After training at Norfolk Virginia, he reported to the USS San Francisco for duty on October 28, 1939. The USS San Francisco was a cruiser under the command of Rear Admiral Daniel J. Callaghan. Harmon advanced to Mess Attendant First Class.

The naval battle of Guadalcanal began November 12, 1942 with a Japanese aerial assault on American warships which were protecting transports unloading reinforcements for the beleagured Marines on the island. The San Francisco suffered its first losses November 12 when a crippled Japanese plane deliberately crashed in to the cruiser's radar and fire control station, killing and injuring 50 men. One of the injured was Commander Mark H. Crouter, the vessel's executive officer. Though injured, Crouter insisted on remaining aboard and the next day lost his life. On November 13, the two naval forces locked in battle. During the fighting, the San Francisco was raked by enemy gunfire which killed Admiral Callaghan and nearly every officer on the bridge, including Commander Crouter.

Harmon, disregarding his own safety, rushed to the aid of the wounded and helped evacuate them to a dressing station. He was killed while shielding a wounded shipmate from gunfire with his own body. For his valor, he was awarded the Navy Cross.

On May 21, 1943, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox announced that a war ship would be named in Harmon's honor. The U.S.S. Harmon, a destroyer escort, was launched on July 25, 1943, at Quincy, Mass. Mrs. Juanita Harmon Carroll, Harmon's mother, christened the ship, the first to bear the name of a Negro.

Harmon received three battle stars for World War II service. Many honors have been bestowed posthumously on this WWII Naval hero. One such was the naming and dedication of Harmon Hall, Bachelor enlisted quarters, July 29, 1975 at the U.S. Naval Air Station, North Island, California.

During the 1976 BiCentennial year of the American Revolution, the DeWitt County Historical Commission decided that one of their projects should be an official Texas Historical Marker honoring this native of Cuero. He was the only known DeWitt County man ever to have a ship named after him. He was honored with the marker in recognition of his valor and to keep his memory alive in DeWitt County.

HARRIS, WILL F. FAMILY

F372

William Follisbee Harris and Eliza Matilda Hunter were married Nov. 27, 1895, in Cuero. Will was born in Hempstead, Washington County, Feb. 19, 1864, and came to DeWitt Co.

Will and Matilda Harris

at the age of thirteen. He was the son of Will Tucker Harris, a Methodist minister, and Martha Elizabeth Shepard. Will had a sister who died as a chikld. His other sister, Mattie Harris Starboard, was widowed at a young age and made her home with her brother's family until her death in 1944. After Will's father died his mother married Columbus Burns, and the Harris children grew up with the Burns children at Verhelle or Burns Station. Will received his early education at Nash Academy in Cuero. He taught school for a few years then obtained a law degree from the University of Texas. He practiced law in Cuero, and was the city attorney at the time of his death, March 27, 1930.

The parents of Matilda, David Hunter and Louiza Jane Lockhart, had twelve children. Matilda was born in Yorktown, DeWitt Co., May 7, 1871 and died Dec. 27, 1943.

Will and Matilda had five children. William Sherrod Harris married Beryl Dubose, and had two sons, Walter Sherrod and David Hunter. He died in Arlington Oct. 6, 1972.

Jane Matilda Harris married Fielding Breeden and they were lifelong residents of Cuero. Jane died in 1974, and Fielding died in 1971. Their children are Fielding Breeden Jr., and Blanche Wofford "Bebe" Breeden Benson.

Hunter Harris died in 1934 at the age of 34. Elizabeth Harris married George H. "Jack" Neill from Sonora. They had two daughters, Jane Neill Cooper and Nancy Neill Law.

Bertha Harris lived with her family and taught in the Cuero schools. For a short period she lived in Bay City and worked for the Welfare Dept. She returned home to help her mother when her aunt became ill, and resumed teaching in Cuero. She lived in the family home and taught school until her death Nov. 17, 1968.

HARSDORF, FREDRICK AND CAROLINE FAMILY

On April 5, 1901, the estate of Fredrick and Caroline Harsdorf in Mason County was settled. They were the parents of Louisa Harsdorf Albrecht. This land was granted in the name of Christian Hartmann, survey numbers 21 and 22, consisting of 320 acres each, Gustavus Schleicher as assignee on June 27, 1860.

The property was totally owned by Fredrick and Caroline Harsdorf. At this time, it is not known how they came into possession of the land. It is possible they received it as an emigrant family. Fredrick died without a will and Caroline died in 1854, so the property was left one-seventh to each child. The children were: 1) Louisa who married Fredrich Albrecht; 2) Frederick who died in 1870; 3) Christopher "Chris"; 4) Caroline who married Conrad Schlein; 5) William; 6) Henrietta who married Gustav Dietze; 7) Wilhelmina who married a Mr. Davis.

On February 21, 1879, Fredrich and Louisa Albrecht purchased Christophe's interest for $50; on June 3, 1884, they purchased Caroline's interest for $150; and on June 9, 1884, they purchased Henrietta and William's interests for $247.30. There is no record of a deed when they purchased Frederick's interest. Fredrich and Louisa Albrecht now owned six-sevenths of the estate. The Wilhelmina Davis family who owned the other one-seventh could not be located.

As previously stated, there were seven children in the Harsdorf family who emigrated to Texas. Frederick married Theresa Bluntzer, who after his death, married J.R. Hubersburger; Caroline married Conrad Schlein: Henrietta married Gustaf Dietze. The Schleins and Dietzes of Victoria and DeWitt County are decendents of these marriages. Wilhelmina married a Mr. Davis; William married Mary Fuchs; Christoph married or lived with Sally "Skull," who was a two-gun packing mule trader, a cotton freighter to Mexico during the war. She was a rough and rowdy woman of the wild west. He had two previous marriages.

HARTMAN, ALFRED AND MATHILDE GROLL

Alfred and Mathilde Hartman, "butchering day" 1931.

Alfred was born Oct. 21, 1887 in Kilgore (near Goliad), Texas, son of Christian Aran and Amalia Schaefer Hartman. He was baptized and confirmed in the Kilgore Lutheran Church. Mathilde was born Aug. 22, 1882 in Germantown (now Schroeder), Texas, daughter of John and Mathilde Scheel Groll. She was baptized and confirmed in the Schroeder Lutheran Church. On Jan. 5, 1911 they were married in the Schroeder Lutheran Church by Pastor Lettermann. It was a very cold day.

They lived in Schroeder only three years on a farm which is now the site of Central Power & Light Company's coal generating plant at Fannin. Their house stood where the ash heap pile is now. They raised mostly sweet potatoes, corn, cotton and had a garden. It wasn't easy to gather the crops because they had to cross a deep creek. Each year Alfred hauled sweet potatoes to Goliad and sold them off the wagon.

Their first child, Lucille, was born Nov. 2, 1913 in Schroeder. Their two sons, Victor (March 20, 1917) and James (Dec. 21, 1919) were born in Arneckeville, Texas.

In 1913 Alfred and Mathilde were looking for a permanent home with better land than what they were living on. Because a lot of the Hartman relatives lived in DeWitt County they scouted for land here. On Dec. 9, 1913 they moved on the land they had purchased from L.F. Schorlemmer in the James Quinn Survey near Arneckeville and lived there until their deaths. For their move to Arneckeville friends and relatives loaded wagons to make the trip which took a whole day. One buggy made the trip which carried their six week old daughter, Lucille. They raised about the same crops as they did in Schroeder, namely anything that would generate income and food to support their growing family.

Alfred and Mathilde were very active in their church, Zion Lutheran, and all community affairs.

Alfred died Feb. 1, 1976 and Mathilde, July 17, 1968. Both are buried on Zion Lutheran Cemetery at Arneckeville, Texas.

HARTMAN, AUGUST CHRISTIAN, JR. AND ELSIE (LENZ)

F375

August Christian Hartman, Jr., was the fourth child of August Christian Hartmann, Sr. (1848-1917) and Josephine (Hans) Hartmann (1856-1930). He was the grandson of Christian Hartmann II (1819-1876) and Marie (Schroeder) Hartmann (1823-1906). Their stories are given separately.

August Christian Hartman, Jr., better known to his friends as Augie Hartman, was born at the home of his parents near Arneckeville, Texas, on June 23, 1882. Their home was located on a 158 acre tract of land that Augie's grandfather, Christian Hartmann II, purchased from Richard and Elizabeth Owens on July 16, 1872, for "$393.32 cash." This tract had ultimately been inherited by Augie's father, August Christian Hartmann, Sr. Augie attended public school in Arneckeville. When he was a young man still living at home with his parents he became "famous" as a baseball player. He and a group of his friends from the Arneckeville community organized a baseball team which they called the "Wind Bugs." Augie was their pitcher. On Sunday afternoons during the summer months the "Wind Bugs" played other similar teams organized in other communities of the county. The stakes were high. The losers had to buy a keg of beer for the winners! The "Wind Bugs" built up an enviable record of wins because at the time Augie was the only pitcher in the "league" who could throw a curve ball.

Later Augie enrolled in a business school in San Antonio where he studied and became proficient in stenographics. He secured employment as a stenographer in the law offices of Davidson and Bailey in Cuero and thereafter became Court Reporter for the 24th Judicial District of Texas. He served in this capacity for three years during which time he "read law" in the office of his boyhood friend, Richard Waldeck. His study in that office qualified him to take and pass the Texas Bar Examination where he made the highest grade in his class. He was admitted to the bar and licensed to practice law in the State of Texas in 1910.

Elsie (Lenz) Hartman

During his distinguished career, he served as City Attorney of Cuero; he served several terms in the Texas Legislature as State Representative from De Witt County and he served as District Attorney of the 24th Judicial District. Thereafter he formed a partnership for the practice of law in Cuero with Newton M. Crain under the firm name of Crain and Hartman. This firm became well known and highly respected throughout this section of the state. Augie remained with this firm until he retired in 1952.

In addition to the practice of law, Augie carried on his family's tradition of farming and cattle ranching on several tracts of land in De Witt and Refugio Counties which he had either purchased or inherited. One of the tracts on which he ranched was the same 158 acre tract on which he was born. On July 19, 1922, after his father's death, he purchased this tract from the other members of his family. The consideration he paid in 1922 was the sum of $7,900.00, whereas the consideration paid by his grandfather, Christian Hartman II, for the same tract in 1872 was the sum of $393.32! His cattle brand which evolved from the brands of his grandfather and father was the 2H with a quarter circle over both the 2 and the H. He was active in civic affairs and was a lifetime member and past president of Rotary Club International, Cuero Chapter.

On June 29, 1915, Augie married Elsie Lenz in Cuero, Texas. She was the daughter of Charles Ludwig Lenz (1856-1935) and Johanna Maria Adelheit Emma (Muller) Lenz (1864-1950). Their stories are given separately.

Two children were born of this marriage. Hazel Ruth Hartman was born in Cuero, Texas, on May 21, 1916. She married Oscar Talbot McAlister, Jr., on October 17, 1934. They had three sons, Dr. Wayne Hartman McAlister, Oscar Talbot McAlister, III and Richard Eric McAlister. Oscar Talbot McAlister, Jr., died on February 6, 1981. He is buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero. Hazel Ruth (Hartman) McAlister, Oscar Talbot McAlister III and Richard Eric McAlister now reside in Victoria, Texas. Dr. Wayne Hartman McAlister resides on the family ranch in De Witt County. Their stories are given separately.

Wayne Louis Hartman, the second child of the marriage, was born in Cuero, Texas, on July 4, 1918. He married Susan Emalee (Wells) Hartman on March 9, 1941. They had two daughters. Letitia Lewis Hartman married Dr. David George Lloyd, lives in San Antonio, Texas, and has two sons, David George Lloyd, Jr., and Christian Hartman Lloyd. Susan Wells Hartman married Michael Lloyd Pope, lives in Lake Jackson, Texas, and has two sons, Wayne Lloyd Pope and Lewis Wells Pope. Their stories are given separately.

Elsie (Lenz) Hartman died in San Antonio, Texas, on February 19, 1941. August Christian Hartman, Jr., died in Cuero, Texas, on August 31, 1956. They are both buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero, Texas.

HARTMAN, CHRISTIAN ARAN AND AMALIA SCHAEFER

F376

Christian Aran was born March 26, 1858, son of Christian and Marie Schroeder Hartman, in Meyersville, Tex. He lived there with his family until he met and married Amalia Schaefer born Feb. 13, 1861, daughter of Carl and Amalia Wurtz Schaefer, also born and raised in Meyersville. On Feb. 3, 1881 they were married by Pastor G. Stricker.

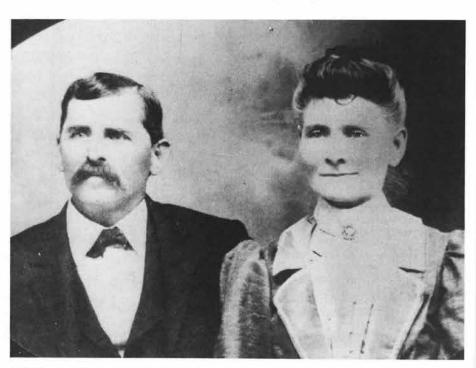

After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Hartman chose the rich farming section at Germantown (now Schroeder) where they resided on a farm for about forty years. During his farming career he was also the first Goliad County Extension Agent and one of the first in the state. He served that South Texas county for three years beginning in 1911. One of his most enduring accomplishments was forming a "Boys Corn Club," forerunner of today's state-wide 4-H organizations.

In 1920 he retired from active work to rest and enjoy the fruits of a thrifty and well directed career. He chose a home site in Cuero. As during his life in Germantown he proved himself a congenial neighbor, good friend, and useful citizen. He did the same in Cuero.

The family was active in the Kilgore Lutheran church. While serving as a delegate from the St. Mark's Lutheran Church of Cuero at the Texas Synod at Shiner, he became suddenly and critically ill and was rushed home to one of the Cuero hospitals, where an operation was performed in an effort to save his life. He died May 15, 1925.

Mary Shimer Koenig said that people would seek advice from Christian because he had such good judgment and common sense.

To the union of Christian and Amalia Hartman eleven children were born: 1. Mathilda (March 20, 1882-Nov. 14, 1963) married Edwin Jacob. 2. Hugo (Jan. 18, 1884-Dec. 27, 1966) married Emma Groll. 3. Amalia (Aug. 10, 1885-Sept. 10, 1960) married Alfred Dreier. 4. Alfred (Oct. 21, 1887-Feb. 1, 1976) married Mathilde Groll. 5. Louise (Oct. 31, 1889-Nov. 28, 1944) married Arthur Groll. 6. William (Nov. 3, 1890-April 18, 1918) married Mary Medlen. 7. Edwina (Nov. 22, 1894-July 16, 1981) married Willie Krueger. 8. Christian (Dick) (April 18, 1898-July 22, 1977) married Valeska Junker. Second marriage Ollie Blazek (deceased). Third marriage Bea Caughon. 9. Arthur (Nov. 11, 1899) married Lenora Angerstein. Second marriage Mary Garcia. 10. Erwin (April 4, 1901-Oct. 26, 1967) married Lillie Schlinder (deceased). Second marriage Billie Watson, 11. Leona (Oct. 4, 1904) married Herbert Junker (deceased). Second marriage Willey Millsap.

Christian Aran Hartman and Amalia (Schaefer) Hartman

Amalia Hartman lived in Cuero until her death April 6, 1956 at the age of 95. Christian and Amalia Hartman are buried on the St. John's Lutheran Cemetery at Meyersville, Texas.

HARTMAN, EDWIN FERDINAND AND HELEN AUGUSTA ELIZABETH (DIEBEL)

Edwin Hartman (Jan. 15, 1890-June 22, 1971) was reared in DeWitt County in Meyersville, Texas. His parents are Fred and Bertha Dreier Hartman. (Their story is in this book.) Edwin was the second of four sons of this union. His father was a rancher and owned 1200 acres of land. Each of the sons bought some of the land except Gus who put his money in education. Edwin bought 100 acres – the present Ralph Egg place.

Edwin married Helen Diebel on Dec. 26, 1912 in St. John Lutheran Church in Meyersville, the Rev. F. Gerstmann officiating.

Helen Diebel was born to Jacob Freidrich and Elizabeth (Wendel) Diebel on Nov. 6, 1891, the fifth daughter of this union. She had 7 sisters and one brother. (Their story is in this book.) Helen went to the Noel School. She was very interested in music and took lessons from Ella Cooley. She was organist for the congregation of St. John Lutheran Church in Meyersville for many years. Her other favorite thing was to make scrapbooks of good religious articles.

Edwin and Helen were blessed with five children. Hilmer Fred (Dec. 31, 1913) married Isabel Warzecha and lives in Corpus Christi, Texas. They have one daughter and one grand-daughter. Edrie Emilie (Aug. 12, 1915) married Oscar Sager and lives in Arneckeville. They have three children and five grandchildren. Fred Ray (Oct. 4, 1917-Sept. 14, 1978) married Gertrude Wendel. They have one son. Harold Floyd (Aug. 10, 1925) married Vernell Gerbert and lives in Nursery, Texas. They have five children and seven grandchildren. Helen Mae (Nov. 1, 1927 married Ralph Egg and lives on the home place in Meyersville. They have three children and seven grandchildren.

Edwin and Helen made their living farming and ranching. They raised chickens for eggs and fryers to eat, milked a cow for milk and butter, and bought meat once a week from the butcher, Alvin Doehrman who delivered to homes in Meyersville. Edwin bought and shipped cattle by train to Fort Worth and Houston. His partners were Charlie Schaefer and Willie Buehrig. Edwin's brother-in-law Reinold Gohmert also helped handle the cattle. They bought one or two carloads of cattle a week. In 1953 they sold their farm to their daughter and husband and moved 12 miles south of Cuero on Highway 183 to a small house where they enjoyed a garden and pretty flowers.

Edwin and Helen were very active in their church, attending regularly. Helen was very strict about taking time for devotions with her family. They are buried in the Lutheran Cemetery.

HARTMAN, FERDINAND C. AND MATHILDE SCHRADE FAMILY

Church, Meyersville. There were 12 children in the family, all of whom helped out with farming, ranching and the family cotton gin. He had a few years of formal education at the Lutheran Church School at St. John's.

In February of 1884, Ferdinand purchased his first tracts of land (360 ac.) in the Green DeWitt Community near Arneckeville. Later that month, on 22 February 1884, he married Mathilde Schrade, born 27 November 1862, of Arneckeville. As time went by, he acquired more land and became one of the more prominent ranchers in the state according to a two-volume historical edition of the Texas Encyclopedia.

He was an avid cowman and to his very last years mounted his horse daily to survey his pastures and cattle, carrying corn nubbins to feed them. He also raised corn, cotton, hay and grain. His family and friends were often treated to the good Mustang grape wines he made.

This marriage produced six children: Frieda M. (1885-1976), Albert C. (1885-1965), Rudolph A. (1887-1979), Ernest F. (1889-1975), Carl F. (1893-1895) and Walter F. (1896-1984). The mother, Mathilde, died 13 September 1909, leaving Ferdinand with a young growing family. The only daughter, Frieda, became caretaker of the household and family. Probably due to these responsibilities, she never married; was affectionately known as Miss Frieda and spent most of her life keeping house for Ferdinand who lived to be 96 years of age. He died 5 May 1949 and is buried at Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville.

HARTMAN, FRED HEINRICH AND BERTHA (DREIER)

Fred Heinrich Hartman was born June 26, 1861 in Meyersville, DeWitt County, Texas to Christian Hartman II (Feb. 20, 1819-Sept. 10, 1876) and Marie Schroeder Hartman (March 6, 1823-Sept. 16, 1906). His grandfather, Christian Hartman I, lived in Braunzweig, Germany (his story is given separately). Fred was raised on a farm in the midst of a large family of 12 children, one of which was his twin sister Sophie. Fred was 15 years old when his father died and as a younger member of the family his duties and responsibilities increased for many of the older children had established their own homes by this time.

Bertha (Dreier) Hartman was born August 9, 1867 to Ludwig Dreier (March 25, 1841-Oct. 28, 1922) and Augusta (Meisenhelder) Dreier (June 5, 1844-March 28, 1913) in Kilgore, Goliad County, Texas. Bertha had three brothers and five sisters. Her father was eight years old when he and his family left Lippe Delmont, Germany. Their occupation in Germany was raising flax and processing it into the finished linen. They were also engaged in making grass roofs. The linen industry consisted of much hard labor. The flax had to be dried after harvest and then beaten into pulp for thread. This product was dark in color and had to be bleached by the use of certain ashes which were secured from a distant mill. The ashes were carried by the family members to the farm. The linen was then woven and another bleaching process followed. The cloth was spread out on patches of grass and had to be sprinkled repeatedly with water until fully bleached by the sun. It was then put into packs which the father and sons strapped on their back and carried the finished product to market.

America was beckoning and they left Germany on a small sailing vessel on Sept. 23, 1847. After an eventful journey of over three months they dropped anchor in Galveston on Jan. 1, 1848. Further transportation was not immediately available. After a lengthy wait one large freight wagon was secured with its destination Victoria, Texas. The final leg of the trip from Victoria to Meyersville of 25 miles was made in cold, rainy weather. They became prominent pioneers adding their stature to help shape the newly adopted country.

Fred and Bertha married in the old stone church of Meyersville on Nov. 30, 1887. They established their home in Meyersville in the Hartman family home with Fred's widowed mother Marie Hartman. They had four sons—Louis William (Oct. 22, 1888-May 9, 1949), Edwin Ferdinand (June 5, 1890-June 22, 1971), Gus August (Sept. 23, 1891-Sept. 16, 1919), and Christian Gus (Jan. 26, 1895-Dec. 11, 1957).

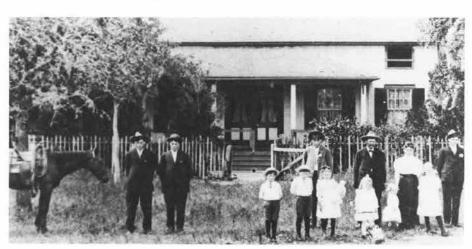

They were members of the Lutheran Church and were respected citizens of the community. Fred was trustee of both the church and school. Tragedy struck when Bertha fell ill with typhoid fever and died on June 27, 1895 at the age of 28.

Louis married Louise Heller on Nov. 4, 1914. Edwin married Helen Augusta Elizabeth Diebel on Dec. 26, 1912. Gus married Edna Mernitz on Dec. 24, 1918. Christian married Hilda Urban on Dec. 21, 1919.

On Nov. 25, 1897 Fred married Bertha's first cousin, Justine Sager. They built a new home on a farm ¾ mile west of Meyersville. In 1906 Fred acquired the title of 334 acres of land. He raised sheep, cattle, corn and cotton.

Justine Sager was born Oct. 30, 1866 to Pastor Christoph A. and Justine (Dreier) Sager in Arneckeville. She had four sisters and four brothers. Heinrich was her twin. Her father passed away when she was only three years old and her life was filled with hard work as she helped with the sustaining of the family.

Fred and Justine were blessed with seven children — Freida Justine (Jan. 8, 1899), twin sons, Werner and Otto (Aug. 5, 1900), Bertha Marie (March 12, 1902), Lena Christiana (April 2, 1904-May 24, 1974), Lillie Emilie

HARTMAN, JAMES AND ELORINE

F381

April 22, 1983, James Hartman and Elorine (Friedrichs) Hartman

James was born Dec. 21, 1919 in Arneckeville, Texas to Alfred and Mathilde Groll Hartman. He was baptized and confirmed in the Zion Lutheran Church of Arneckeville. He grew up on the farm that his parents bought in 1913. He went to school at Arneckeville and Cuero High School. After he graduated from high school he worked for Carl Arnecke and drove the car for Dr. Arnecke to make house calls. He then went to work for Central Power & Light Company in Cuero until he volunteered to serve his country on Jan. 18, 1942. He served in Africa, Sicily, Corsica, France and Italy in World War II. He fought in battles and campaigns of Southern France, Naples-Foggia, Rome-Arno, Rhineland, Northern Apennines, Tunisia and Sicily. He received the Good Conduct Medal, EAME Campaign Medal with 7 Bronze Stars, American Theater Campaign Medal. He was discharged in Sept. of Boys had their way of creating their own entertainment in the country. Hunting rabbits was always exciting and provided food for the table before electricity came to the country for refrigeration. James and a few boys took a stripped Model T and drove in the pasture to hunt. In order to keep up with the darting rabbit, the driver could not watch for holes and dips in the land. While following a rabbit a dip was hit and the gun went off hitting the radiator cap. Needless to say the rabbit got away and the boys had to come home to repair the radiator.

Another time things were getting too dull so James and brother, Victor, tied a Roman candle to their dog's back. Never having tried this before there was no way they could predict how the dog would act. After lighting the candle it went off and the dog ran under the corn crib. Now what they thought would be fun certainly became more serious. The boys knew that if the Roman candle would start a fire under the crib and the corn burned Mama and Papa would punish them, but good. As quick as possible the boys got under the crib to get the dog out. The crib did not burn and the boys never tried that again.

On Nov. 25, 1945 James married Elorine Friedrichs, born Nov. 8, 1925, daughter of Albert and Vera Junker Friedrichs. We lived in Austin, Texas for six months and moved to Houston. In Houston James was employed by automobile dealers as service salesman, was in new car sales and service manager. Our three sons, Jimmy Randolph, Douglas Eugene, and Jeffrey Lynn were born in Houston. We lived in Houston for 14 years and then moved to Arneckeville, Texas in 1959. We built our home on land that James' father, Alfred, bought in 1923.

James ranched and farmed the land that he grew up on. He also did custom hay baling for about 9 years. He retired in 1975. I stayed home to be a homemaker and took care of the children.

We were active in Trinity and Mt. Olive Lutheran churches in Houston. We joined Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville in 1959. James served in different offices and was a delegate to local church conventions. I taught Sunday School and am still active doing church work.

James helped organize the VFW post 3972 in Cuero and was a life member. He was a director for the DeWitt County Electric Coop for nine years. He also served as a director for the DeWitt County Taxpayers League. James died May 1, 1986 and is buried on Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville.

HARTMAN, JEFFREY LYNN AND PATRICIA HLAVATY

Jeffrey Lynn was born March 2, 1953 in Houston, Texas, son of James Rudolph and Elorine Friedrichs Hartman. In 1959, with his mother, father and brothers he moved to Arneckeville, Texas, DeWitt County. He went to elementary school at Arneckeville and Meyersville. He graduated from Cuero High School in 1971. After graduation he served 6 years in the Texas National Guard.

On February 15, 1986 he married Patricia Jean Hlavaty, born Sept. 5, 1952, daughter of Jerome and Henriette Hlavaty of Lolita, Texas. She went to elementary school in LaWard, junior high school in Lolita and graduated from Industrial High School in Vanderbilt, Texas in 1971. She attended Victoria College and worked for 10 years in Victoria and was production clerk for BDK, then BD Production Company.

In December of 1988 they built and moved into their new home on land in DeWitt County that Jeffrey's Grandfather Hartman bought in 1923.

Jeffrey has been employed with Mid-Coast Diesel Company in Victoria since July 1975

Jimmy Randolph was born Jan. 17, 1947 in Houston, Texas, son of James and Elorine Friedrichs Hartman. In 1959 with his family he moved to Arneckeville, Texas, DeWitt County. He went to elementary school at Arneckeville and high school in Cuero, graduating in 1967. In 1970 he went to Delmar College in Corpus Christi, Texas, taking a diesel mechanic course.

On Oct. 30, 1971 he married Janet Marie Schroeder, born April 15, 1952, daughter of Anton and Lena Schroeder from Volet, Texas. Janet attended St. John's Catholic elementary and high school in Robstown, Texas. She graduated in 1970. After graduating she worked for Nueces County Electric Coop. in Robstown.

In 1973 they moved their mobile home to Arneckeville and in 1978 they built their present home on land that Jimmy's great-grandfather, Fred Friedrichs, bought in 1884.

They have two children — Mitchell Randolph, born July 12, 1976 and Jennifer Renee born Nov. 28, 1978.

Jimmy is employed with Permian Oil Company in Cuero as a Grade 3 mechanic. Janet had been employed with Buchel Bank and is now employed with DeWitt County Electric Coop as cashier-data processing.

Jimmy is a member at Zion Lutheran Church, Arneckeville. Janet, Mitchell and Jennifer are members at St. Peter & Paul Catholic Church, Meyersville.

HARTMAN, LEE R. JR. AND MARJORIE M. HARTMAN

Lee Robert Hartman, Jr. was born in San Antonio, Texas on July 15, 1929 to Lee Robert and Alice Jane (Hector) Hartman. He was the oldest of eight brothers and sisters, Joyce, Louis, Mary, Harvey, Vernon, Patricia, and Bernard. The family lived in Yorktown, Texas in the early 1950's. It was during this time that Lee met Marjorie Mae Adickes while he was home on vacation from Texas A&I College at Kingsville, Texas. Time passed and it was almost two years before they met again.

Marjorie Mae Adickes was born on August 19, 1934 in the Adickes home on Gonzales Street in Cuero, Texas. She was the first child born to Caesar and Emma (Konrad) Adickes. As a child, Marjorie had much love and attention since her grandparents William A. and Bertha (Post) Adickes lived next door. Her grandfather took her for walks when she was little, and taught her to play dominoes when she was older. Grandmother talked with her often and provided many delicious after school treats.

Marjorie attended John C. French primary school, Cuero Junior and Senior High Schools where she graduated in 1952. She was a member of the Choral Club, the Band, the Future Homemakers of America. Music was most important in her life. Under the voice teaching of Mrs. Chester Buenning and piano lessons from Mrs. Charles Ott, she received training she would use all her life. She sange in St. Mark's Lutheran Church Choir and learned from the directions of Mr. Alfred Marquis. Years later, Marjorie played the organ for chapel services at Oxnard Air Force Base; sang with the Taipei International Catholic Choir and the Choir of St. Rose of Lima Catholic Church in Houston, Texas.

After graduation, Marjorie went to work full time in the Adickes Building Supply Company office. This job didn't last long since she had met and fallen in love with a young Air Force pilot.

Second Lieutenant Lee R. Hartman, Jr. graduated from the United States Air Force Jet Pilot Training School at Bryan, Texas on September 1, 1953. Four days later, he married Marjorie in a beautiful ceremony in St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Cuero.

After a brief honeymoon, Lee and Marjorie moved to Panama City, Florida where Lee attended the Jet Fighter Interceptor School at Tyndall Air Force Base and graduated in December 1953. He received his first assignment to perform all weather intercept missions for the Air Defense Command. He and Marjorie moved to Iowa where Lee became a part of the 87th Fighter Interceptor Squadron at Sioux City Air Base.

The couple led a changing, challenging life as Lee was assigned to duty around the world. They next traveled to England with the entire squadron on the ship USS General Alexander Patch in December 1954. After landing in Southhampton, they were bused to their new base, Bentwaters Royal Air Force Base near Woodbridge, Suffolk. During their three years here, Lee had temporary duty twice to Wheelus Air Force Base, Tripoli, Libya and survival school in the wilds of Scotland. He also flew to France, Italy, and Denmark. Together, he and Marjorie traveled to Holland, Belgium, Germany, Austria, Switzerland, and Ireland.

Upon their return to the United States, Lee was assigned to Chanute Air Force Base, Illinois to attend the school for Aircraft Maintenance Officers. Their next move was to Oxnard Air Force Base, California where they lived for five years. Four months of this time was spent at Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery, Alabama where Lee attended Squadron Officers School.

On the next assignment, the family remained in Oxnard, California while Lee attended the Military Assistance Institute in Washington, D.C. and the Counter Insurgency Institute at Eglin Air Force Base, Florida. With this training, came an assignment to the Military Assistance Advisory Group, Republic of China, as an advisor to the Chinese Air Force. The flight to Taipei, Taiwan took the family via Honolulu, Hawaii, Wake Island, and the Philippine Islands.

During this most interesting tour of duty, Lee was promoted to the rank of Major. He also was presented with Wings #291 of the Chinese Air Force. As they prepared to return home, they were honored with a gift of royal blue satin embroidered slippers sent to their home by the Commander of the Chinese Air Force, General Hsu.

The Hartman family arrived back in San Francisco in June of 1966 and traveled to Hurlbert Field, Ft. Walton Beach, Florida. Lee was assigned to the Special Air Warfare Group. It wasn't long before he was sent to Pleiku, South Vietnam to fly with the Special Operations Section during the war. The family purchased a home in Houston, Texas and Marjorie and the children remained there. One year later, Lee returned safely and the family moved back to Florida where Lee served with the Air Research and Development Command at Eglin Air Force Base. In October 1969, Lee retired from the Air Force and the family returned to their home in Houston, Texas.

Lee and Marjorie were blessed with seven children:

Barbara Gail, was born at St. Joseph Hospital in Sioux City, Iowa on June 1, 1954. She was married to Jerry W. Thompson on June 28, 1975 and they have two daughters, Angela Dawn and Jennifer Ann. Barbara graduated in October of 1973 from Massey Business College with an Executive Secretary Degree and is currently employed with the Spring Independent School District in Spring, Texas helping children who have learning problems.

Annette Marie, was born on August 14, 1955 at Wimpole Park Hospital in Cambridgeshire, England. She received an Associate Degree in Interior Design from San Jacinto Jr. College. She is currently employed as the Administrative Assistant to the Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer of Transco Energy Company in Houston, Texas.

Carol Ann, was born on January 25, 1957 at Wimpole Park Hospital in Cambridgeshire, England. She is currently employed as the Secretary to the Vice President of Sales for Hollywood Marine, Incorporated in Houston, Texas.

Donna Kay, was born on October 10, 1958 at Chanute Air Force Base Hospital near Rantoul, Illinois. She was married to Kenneth W. Kimich on May 17, 1980 and they have two children, Matthew Lee and Christine Marie. Donna is presently self-employed as a Sales Director with Mary Kay Cosmetics, Incorporated.

Teresa Lynn, was born on November 16, 1960 at St. John's Hospital in Oxnard, California. She was married to Michael D. McDonald on May 28, 1983 and they have two daughters, Jessica Lynn and Clarissa Ann. Teresa is currently employed as a Senior Office Assistant with Tenneco Gas in Houston, Texas.

Patricia Jean, was born on July 31, 1963 at St. John's Hospital in Oxnard, California. She was married to Glenn A. Robinson on April 15, 1989. She graduated in 1985 from Texas A&M University, with a Bachelors Degree in Business Finance. She presently works as a Trading Assistant with Government Securities Corporation of Texas.

Michael Lee, was born on August 25, 1966 at Eglin Air Force Base Hospital in Ft. Walton Beach, Florida. He graduated in 1988 from Texas A&M University with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Political Science. He currently works with a law firm in Houston, Texas.

Major presently works with Breen's Florist of Houston as a floral designer specializing in contemporary and exotic fresh flower designs and wedding bouquets. Her love of flowers was inspired at an early age by the flower gardens of her mother and grandmother. In her early teens, she spent many hours watching and learning at the Hawk Flower Shop near her home in Cuero. Her natural talent was enhanced by formal training which came from the Houston School of Floral Design and the Contemporary Design Class at Texas A&M University. She has also attended learning seminars given by several well known designers from both America and Europe.

Lee presently enjoys his retirement and is pursuing various hobbies. His current project is doing genealogical research of our family's history. Lee and Marjorie still reside in Houston, Texas.

1942. Shortly after graduation, Bob enlisted in the U.S. Navy and proudly served in the war efforts in the Pacific. After an honorable discharge, Bob married first, Edna; however, this marriage quickly ended in divorce. Bob married secondly on 19 November, 1946 in Bay City, Texas; Mary Fuller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Fuller. However, their happiness was very short as Mary caught typhoid fever. She died in The Kenedy hospital on 7 January 1947, and was buried in Karnes City cemetery on 10 January 1947, with Rev. W.C. Craig of Karnes City Baptist church officiating.

Bob's first niece, Marianne Elizabeth Hall, was named for Mary Fuller Hartman and for Ray Slater Hall's mother, Anne Elizabeth Slater Hall.

Vernon Blanton "Bob" Hartman married third, Mickey Lorraine Blake, on 16 November, 1952, in Karnes City, Texas.

Mickey Hartman (born 15 August 1919) was a registered nurse as well as a musician. She and Bob Hartman had a musical act called "Bob Hartman and Buttercup". Buttercup played the tub and Bob played the piano and fiddle. Sometimes Peewee played guitar with them. They became well known all over south Texas, especially in Port Aransas, where they lived for many years.

After Bob's father, August Blanton Hartman, died on 10 November 1971, Bob and Mickey moved to Karnes City and Bob worked for Buzzini Drillin Company. Bob was tragically killed in a Buzzini truck accident near Franklin, Texas on 28 June 1974. He was buried on 1 July 1974 in the August Hartman family plot next to his second wife, Mary Fuller Hartman and near his father, August Blanton Hartman.

Mickey Lorraine Blake Hartman lived with her mother-in-law, Muriel Morrison Byram Hartman, until Mickey had to be hospitalized shortly before her death on 19 August 1982. She was buried next to her husband, Vernan Blanton "Bob" Hartman in Karnes City cemetery, Karnes County, Texas.

There were no children by any of the three marriages.

HARTMAN, WALTER F. AND LUCILLE BOEHL

Walter F. and Lucille (Boehl) Hartman, 1927.

Walter Ferdinand Hartman, 6th and youngest child of Ferdinand C, and Mathilde Schrade Hartman (story elsewhere) was born 12 September 1896 at home in the Green DeWitt Community near Arneckeville. He was baptized and confirmed at Zion Lutheran Church at Arneckeville where he was a lifetime member and was active in church life all his years until disability kept him from attending. He attended the Green DeWitt school through 6th grade. The greatest interests of his life were baseball and music. He played on local baseball teams well into his adult years, and played his flute and "fiddle" in many bands in the area. Though he aspired to be a train engineer, he never left the farmlands of his birth except for a brief tour in the U.S. Army during WW I.

Being the last of the sons, he stayed on the home place to help his aging father run the farm and ranch. Range lands produced cattle while the fields produced corn, cotton, grain and hay. Depression years brought hard times and made it necessary to diversify into truck farming and raising chickens, turkeys and hogs.

Lucille, baptized Marie Emma Lucile Boehl, entered this life on 15 December 1897, also in the Green DeWitt Community. She was the daughter of William F. and Johanna Rath Boehl (story elsewhere). Her baptism and confirmation are recorded at Zion Lutheran Church at Arneckeville where she, too, was a lifelong active member. She also attended Green DeWitt School through the sixth grade, and as a young girl enjoyed music, teaching herself how to play the piano and organ.

Walter and Lucille were married 22 February 1927 at Zion Lutheran. They built their home on the F.C. Hartman place. Running water and Delco electricity were luxuries in their new home from the beginning. The farm and ranch had many demands. Farm work days were very long with all the plowing, harrowing, planting and hauling done with "mule powered" implements. Corn was pulled by hand and fodder cut and tied by hand. Cotton, too, was chopped and picked by hand involving the whole family. Fences had to be mended, cows milked, wood cut for wood stoves to cook, bake and warm the home, hogs butchered for meat, and on and on as all early families had to do.

Lucille was a good cook and seamstress; did the gardening and canning as well as helping with farm chores. Laundry was done by heating water in the big black pot and scrubbing on the rub board. Soap was also made in the big black pot. The work was hard and never ending, but both still found time to enjoy making music together. Lucille was church organist many years and together with Walter on the violin, they played special music for weddings and other occasions. Both also sang in the church choir. Activity in the American Legion, agricultural and community organizations were also interests.

Their marriage produced two children: Virginia Ruth (Stoldt, story elsewhere) and Dr. Walter F. Hartman, Jr., also known locally as Walter died 17 August 1984 at home after several years of failing health. Lucille died 1 August 1986, also at home and following years of declining health and complete deafness. They both rest in peace in Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville, amidst the graves of their ancestors.

HARTMAN, WAYNE LOUIS AND SUSAN EMALEE (WELLS)

Wayne Louis Hartman was the only son of August Christian Hartman, Jr., (1882-1956) and Elsie (Lenz) Hartman (1893-1941). He was the grandson of August Christian Hartmann, Sr., (1848-1917) and Josephine (Hans) Hartmann (1856-1930). His great grandparents were the first of the Hartmann family to emigrate to Texas from Germany in 1845. They were Christian Hartmann II (1819-1976) and Marie (Schroeder) Hartmann (1823-1906).

Wayne was born in Cuero, Texas, July 4, 1918. He attended Cuero Public Schools, A. and M. College at College Station, Texas and the University of Texas Law School at Austin. He was admitted to the State Bar of Texas on April 29, 1940. While attending the University of Texas Law School, Wayne met Susan Emalee Wells whom he later married in Brownsville, Texas, at All Saints Episcopal Church on March 9, 1941. They began their married life in Cuero. In 1955 they moved to Victoria, Texas, where they lived until they returned to Cuero in December of 1983. They now reside at 110 East Reuss Boulevard, Cuero, Texas.

In 1940, after Wayne was admitted to the Bar, his father, August C. Hartman, Jr., who was also an attorney, retired and Wayne practiced law for a time with Newton M. Crain, his father's former partner. In 1942 Wayne ran for and was elected County Attorney for De Witt County. He served in that office until 1943 when he volunteered for service in the United States Army during World War II. He received his basic training at Fort Custer, Michigan, and served with the Military Police as an investigator in the Provost Marshall's Office at Camp Plauche, Louisiana.

He had resigned from the Office of County Attorney when he entered the Army. At that time his father, August C. Hartman, Jr., was appointed by the De Witt County Commissioners' Court to hold his office for him until he returned. He was discharged from the Army in April of 1946, his father resigned and the Commissioners' Court appointed him to resume his office as County Attorney. Once again his father, August C. Hartman, Jr., retired. Wayne served in the capacity of County Attorney until September 1, 1951, when Governor Allan Shivers appointed him District Attorney of the 24th Judicial District of Texas. At that time the district was composed of the counties of De Witt, Goliad, Refugio, Calhoun, Jackson and Victoria. He held that office until January 1, 1956, when he resigned to go into private practice in Victoria, Texas. On July 9, 1959, the Commissioners' Court of Victoria County appointed him County Judge of Victoria County. He remained in the office of County Judge until January 1, 1970. On that date he formed a partnership for the practice of law in Victoria with Arthur L. Lapham under the firm name of Hartman and Lapham. He is still active in this firm which is now Hartman, Lapham, Smith and Scott. Their offices are located at 201 South Main Street, Victoria, Texas.

In addition to the practice of law Wayne carries on his family's tradition of farming and cattle ranching on several tracts of land in De Witt and Refugio Counties. One of the tracts on which he ranches is a 158 acre tract which was purchased in the Arneckeville area of De Witt County by his great grandfather, Christian Hartmann II (1819-1876). Christian Hartmann II purchased the tract from Richard and Elizabeth Owens by deed dated July 16, 1872. The consideration paid was "$393.32 cash", a goodly amount at the time! Wayne has two cattle brands, the 2H, registered in De Witt County on April 23, 1958, and the 2H with a bar over the H, registered in De Witt County on September 8, 1981. Both of these brands evolved from the H with a quarter circle over the H which was the brand of Christian Hartmann II, registered in De Witt County on October 5, 1852.

Susan Emalee Wells, Wayne Hartman's wife, was born in Bay City, Texas, October 28, 1919. Her father, Edgar B. Wells, was born in McKinney, Collin County, Texas, June 28, 1885, the oldest child of Charles Moorehead Wells and Susan (Kimbro) Wells. He is living today in Victoria, Texas at the age of 104 years! Emalee's mother, Letitia Preston (Lewis) Wells, was born in Sherman, Texas, November 25, 1890, the younger daughter of John Floyd Lewis and Emma Lee (Hawthorne) Lewis. "E.B." and "Letty" as they were called, were married in Bay City, Texas, September 12, 1916. They later moved to Brownsville. Letty Wells died in Bay City, December 28, 1960, and is buried in the Lewis family plot in the Bay City cemetery.

Emalee attended the public schools in San Benito, Texas and Brownsville, Texas. She also attended Our Lady of the Lake in San Antonio, Texas, and Incarnate Word College, also in San Antonio, Texas. She graduated from the University of Texas at Austin in 1940.

Emalee met Rosemary Kibbe Breeden (now Mrs. Fred D. Kokernot) of Cuero while a high school sophomore at Our Lady of the Lake. They became room-mates. At the time Emalee was fourteen years old. Emalee visited her room-mate, Rosemary, in Cuero often. The two roomed together their freshman year at Incarnate Word College and later at the University of Texas. There they were joined by Beulah Margaret Bennet (now Mrs. Fain McDougal), also a native of Cuero. This relationship brought Wayne and Emalee together. In 1938, when Beulah Margaret was the Sultana of the Cuero Turkey Trot, Emalee was Dutchess from Brownsville and Wayne was her escort. The girl room-mates have remained close friends throughout the years. Today they all live in Cuero. In 1967 Rosemary and Emalee formed a partnership in the travel business under the name of "Fly Away Tours". They have planned and conducted foreign and domestic trips for over twenty years. As a result, they have traveled all over the world and together they have flown almost two million miles.

Emalee is a member and past president of the Junior League of Victoria, Texas. She is also a member of the Colonial Dames of America, the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Court of Six Flags at Victoria. Wayne is a member of the Cuero Masonic Lodge No. 409, the St. John Commandry No. 101 of Victoria, the Al Amin Shrine Temple of Corpus Christi and the Knights of Phythias and Hermann Sons Lodges of Cuero. He is licensed to practice law in all of the courts of Texas, in the United States District Court, Southern District of Texas, and in the United States Fifteenth Circuit Court of Appeals. Both Wayne and Emalee are members of Grace Episcopal Church of Cuero. Two daughters were born of their marriage. Letitia Lewis Hartman was born in Cuero, Texas, on January 25, 1942. She married Dr. David George Lloyd on October 21, 1967. They have two sons, David George Lloyd, Jr., and Christian Hartman Lloyd. Their stories are given separately. Susan Wells Hartman was born in Brownsville, Texas, on June 23, 1944. She married Michael Lloyd Pope on February 11, 1967. They have two sons, Wayne Lloyd Pope and Lewis Wells Pope. Their stories are given separately.

HARTMANN, AUGUST CHRISTIAN, SR. AND JOSEPHINE (HANS)

F389

August Christian Hartmann, Sr., was born in the Meyersville area of De Witt County on January 24, 1848. He was the oldest of ten children born to Christian Hartmann II (1819-1876) and Marie (Schroeder) Hartmann (1823-1906). His parents were the original members of the Hartmann family to emigrate from Germany to Texas in 1845 and to De Witt County in 1847. August Christian, Sr., grew to manhood on property owned by his father. Christian Hartmann II farmed and ranched extensively. His cattle brand, the H with a quarter circle over the H, was recorded in De Witt County on October 5, 1852. An inventory of his land holdings dated May 23, 1877, showed that he owned in excess of 1,713 acres. One tract of land he purchased by deed dated July 16, 1872, contained 158 acres in the Arneckeville community. He bought this tract from Richard and Elizabeth Owens for "$393.32 cash." In addition to his farming and ranching interests, he owned and operated the first cotton gin in De Witt County.

Christian Hartmann II (1819-1876)

August Christian, Sr., married Josephine Hans, born December 18, 1856, in Alsace-Lorraine. They bought land in the Arneckeville area, but they built their home on the 158 acre tract mentioned above which he inherited from his father, Christian II. August Christian, Sr.'s cattle brand was the 2H with a quarter circle over the H. It was registered in De Witt County on June 2, 1876. He farmed and ranched on his land in the Arneckeville community for the remainder of his life. He died on May 1, 1917. His wife, Josephine, died near Tivoli, Texas, on December 15, 1930. They are both buried in Mount Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville, Texas.

Six children were born of this union, Otto Ferdinand, Lenora Mary, Henry Charles, August Christian, Jr., Edward William and Herbert Adolph. Two children died in infancy and are buried on the family homestead. It will be noted that Christian Hartmann II who originally emigrated from Germany spelled his name with a double "n," i.e., "Hartmann." His children followed his example and continued that spelling. It was the third generation which, either for convenience or to prove their loyalty to the United States during the first World War, dropped the last "n" from their surnames. The story of August Christian Hartman, Jr., appears separately.

HARTMANN, C.G. FAMILY

F389

In 1845, at the age of 26, George Ludwig Gottlieb Clemens Hartman arrived in Texas through the port at Indianola. He had left his home in Hanover, Germany for a new life. He was a surveyor by profession.

In the war between the United States and Mexico (1846), Hartmann was in the company of Captain Augustus Buchel. He served as a private.

He was the surveyor of the division of Indian Point for the German Immigration Company in 1848.

By 1850, Clemens (C.G.) Hartmann was married to Sophia, daughter of Louiza and Thomas Andreas Strieber (born 1801), also from Hanover, Germany. (Thomas) Andreas Strieber and C.G. Hartmann became citizens of the United States in the Fall of 1852.

The children of Sophia and C.G. Hartmann are August, Johanna (who first married John Henry Parker in 1868 and after his death married Ben W. Lucas), Clementine (who married E.F. Leack in 1874), and William (who married Emma Woods in 1881).

C.G. Hartmann was a private in the 2nd Texas Infantry, Company C, during the Civil War. This is stated on his tombstone.

In 1868 four identical brands and marks were issued to August, Johanna, Clementine, and William Hartmann, all "of C.G.H." Hartmann, as DeWitt County Surveyor, surveyed the land of his son-in-law, John Henry Parker and Parker's mother, Dicey Preval in 1871.

At the age of 79, C.G. Hartmann died in DeWitt County in 1899. He, along with his wife, Sophia, who died at the age of 63, in 1892 and his son, William and William's wife, Emma are buried at Woods Cemetery, off of Highway 72 between Cuero and Yorktown.

Caroline and Carl are buried at Zion Lutheran Cemetery. 4. Ferdinand (twin) was born Feb. 26, 1853 and died May 5, 1949. He was married to Mathilda Schrade and they had six children: Frieda, Albert, Rudolph, Ernst, Carl, Walter. Ferdinand and Mathilda are buried in Zion Lutheran Cemetery. 5. Elizabeth (twin) was born Feb. 26, 1853 and died June 3, 1912. She was married to Theophilus Eberhardt and they had eleven children: Lena, Charles, Emma, Elizabeth, Mollie, Marie, Natalie, Amelia, Julius, William and Edward. Elizabeth and Theo are buried at Fort Valley, Georgia. 6. Carl was born Jan. 9, 1855 and died March 21, 1920. He was married to Adophine Meyer and they had six children: Nora, Ida, Mamie, Albert, Lillie and Annie. Carl and Adophine are buried in Llano, Texas. 7. Heinrich was born Oct. 3, 1856 and died Aug. 27, 1859. He is buried at St. John Lutheran Cemetery in Meyersville. 8. Christian was born March 26, 1858 and died May 15, 1925. He was married to Amalia Schaefer and they had eleven children: Mathilde, Hugo, Amalia, Alfred, Louise, William, Edwina, Christian (Dick), Arthur, Erwin, and Leona. Christian and Amalia are buried in St. John Lutheran Cemetery. 9. William was born Oct. 12, 1859 and died May 11, 1918. He married Sophie Shaefer and they had seven children: Ottilie, Julius, Edgar, Charles, twin boys who were born prematurely and died, and William. William, Sr. and Sophie are buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero, Texas. 10. Fred (twin) was born June 26, 1861 and died Oct. 22, 1916. He was married to Bertha Dreier and they had four children: Louis, Edwin, Gus, and Christian. Fred's second marriage was to Justine Sager and they had seven children: Frieda, Werner and Otto (twins), Bertha, Lena, Lillie and Ottilie. 11. Sophie (twin) was born June 26, 1861 and died March 6, 1915. She was married to Gustav Schrade and they had seven children: Hugo, Emilie, Ottilie, Bertha, Ida, Berthold and Lena. Sophie and Gustave are buried in St. John Lutheran Cemetery. 12. Louis was born July 7, 1863 and died July 26, 1882. He is buried at St. John Lutheran Cemetery in Meyersville. 13. Emilie was born March 20, 1868 and married Ferdinand Hennig on Nov. 28, 1889. She died at the birth of her first child.

The Hartmanns became established as farmers and ranchers and later owned a cotton gin in Meyersville. The ginning process was by revolving a gear which was horse-drawn, the team drove in circles. The whole family had to help. The records of St. John Lutheran Church in Meyersville, reveal the Christian Hartmann families took an active part in the church. Christian was a charter member of the congregation. In 1857 he helped haul 600 logs for a fence for the pastor's garden. In 1866 the congregation decided to build a stone church. Christian was on the building committee. The church still stands today, marked with a medallion and historical plaque. Christian died at age 57 in 1876 as a result of becoming overheated while working in the gin. After his death his widow, Marie, lived with her daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schorlemmer, in Arnecksville, Texas.

The following information was gathered by Mrs. Ottilie Hartman Zorn. The above mentioned Christian Hartmans' father (also Christian) died at an early age. His mother then married a brother of her first husband. From her second marriage she had a son (who she named Christian) and a daughter (name unknown), was born. It is unknown why the two half-brothers were given the same name circumstances may have been such that they did not grow up in the same household. It is known that their paths in life separated and that the elder brother who settled in Texas was unaware that his half-brother and half-sister had come to America and were living in Aurora, near Chicago, Illinois. Through chance circumstances this fact became known and family relations were re-established between the two branches of the family. Besides corresponding together through the years visits were also exchanged at various times. The Hartmans of the Chicago area were a large, influential and wealthy family. Many owned large fertile farms, corn was a main crop. A community of Hartmanville named for them existed. The well known Hartman Luggage Company of Chicago was established by a family member.

HARTMANN, KURT FAMILY

F391

After their marriage in St. Paul Lutheran Church in Yorktown, Texas, on August 26, 1940, it took Kurt and Frances Hartmann 37 years to move back to Yorktown. She was born March 11, 1917 at Weser, Goliad Co., the only daughter of August and Frances Franke Duderstadt. She has two brothers, A.J. and Alonso. Frances graduated from Yorktown High School in 1935 and from Texas Lutheran College at Seguin, Texas in 1938. She used these original lines at the close of her valedictories at each graduation: "Now, dear Yorktown High (TLC), we leave you into this world to go; We promise ne'er to grieve you because we love you so. Although we're far away out on life's great sea, dear old Yorktown High (TLC) you'll stay forever in our memory." Before her marriage, she taught school for two years at the Melrose School near Weestache.

Kurt Carl Hartmann, born February 20, 1911 at Hilda, Mason Co., TX, was the oldest of the nine children of Conrad and Rosa Eckert Hartmann. He attended public schools in Mason and Fredericksburg before graduating from Texas Lutheran College in 1931. He attended Wartburg Seminary in Dubuque, Iowa, from 1931 to 1934 and was ordained at Mason, Texas, into the Lutheran ministry on August 26, 1934. During his 50-year ministry he served the following congregations in Texas: Waller, College Station (both Campus Ministry and American Lutheran Congregation which he organized), Wiedeville (near Brenham), Pflugerville, Elm Creek and La Vernia, and in Hispanic mission work in Edinburg and San Antonio. Here he also edited the monthly Spanish newspaper, El Mensajero, and at La Vernia he edited the Southern District's monthly newspaper, The Southern Lutheran, circulation over 40,000. For his 22-year editorship, his friends called him, "Mr. Southern Lutheran."

In La Vernia Kurt was a leader in the Lions Club, the City Planning Commission, Boy Scout Fund Drives, the PTA and announced the La Vernia Bears football games over ten years. Frances became an aide in Special Education and Librarian at the La Vernia School. Her happiest experience: teaching English to two 3rd and 4th grade girls from Germany! Her greatest frustration: trying to teach a 15-yearold illiterate whose stated aim in life was "to go to jail where my uncle is!" Once, to fill a La Vernia faculty vacancy, Kurt taught Spanish I and II and Frances English III and IV, "substituting" a whole year. The Senior Class honored them by dedicating the annual to them.

The four Hartmann children, who added six grandchildren to the family, all graduated from La Vernia High School and from Texas Lutheran College, on whose Board of Regents, Kurt served 34 years. Daughters: Carolyn Spears is the judge of Bexar County's 224th District Court; Ruth Brady is a Mastiff dog fancier in Houston; Emily Harborth teaches at St. Paul Lutheran Day School in New Braunfels. Son: Kurt, Jr., teaches chemistry at Churchill High School in San Antonio. His wife, Ethel, and Dennis Harborth complete the family.

On August 17, 1977, Kurt and Frances left La Vernia and moved to 310 N. Church St. in Yorktown to retire. Kurt again became active in the Lions Club, Scouting drives, Historical Society, Golden Crescent Area Agency for the Aging, the City "Think Clean" improvement project and the Sesquicentennial Celebration. He was named "Citizen of the Year" in 1985. At St. Paul Church in Yorktown he was on the council, directed children's and adult choirs, taught Sunday School and led the singing in church. In 1985-86 he served as interim pastor at Hallettsville and Arneckeville. When asked, "How's retirement?" He quipped, "It's working!"

During Frances' 1978-88 tenure as librarian at the Yorktown Public Library, a 5,000 sq. ft. brick library was constructed and furnished. Frances is active in St. Paul's church work, the Hospital Guild, Sr. Citizens, Historical Society, and Friends of the Yorktown Public Library and the Library Board.

Back to the wedding day: All through the 46 years of their married life, Kurt and Frances were mindful of their wedding text explained to them by Pastor C.G. Hankammer: "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." Joshua 24:15. After Kurt's death on October 8, 1986, now Frances and her family also remember and find comfort and guidance in the wedding day hymn, "Jesus still lead on, till our rest is won; And although the way is cheerless, we will follow calm and fearless; Guide us by thy hand to our Father's land."

mann. Clemens Hartmann had come to Texas as part of the Fischer-Miller-Verein German immigrants to south Texas in 1845 and the Andreas Struber/Strieber family had come to Texas in 1846. Clemens met and married Sophia Struber/Strieber in Indianola, Calhoun Co., Texas on 2 July 1847 and they resided in Yorktown, DeWitt Co. Texas by 1848. William was educated in Yorktown and served as an apprentice and chain bearer for his father in his survey work in DeWitt Co, and other areas in Texas. William also bought land in DeWitt County and began farming and ranching.

Emma Ardelia Woods was born on 27 December 1851 at Woods Fort, Fayette Co, Texas to Montraville Woods, son of old three hundred pioneer, Zadock Woods, and Montraville's wife, Isabella (Hidalgo) Gonzales, daughter of Francisco (Hidalgo) Gonzales and his wife, Procopia (Hidalgo) Valdes. Montraville and Isabella Woods moved their family from Fayette County to DeWitt County in 1856. Montraville's brother, Henry Gonzalvo Woods had married their brother Norman's widow, Jane, and moved their combined family to DeWitt County, as well. Henry Gonzalvo Woods had escaped Dawson's Massacre in which Zadock died and Norman was taken prisoner and later died in Perote Prison, Mexico City. When Montraville died on 15 July 1857, Isabella donated the land which became Woods Cemetery, Shiloh, Yorktown, DeWitt Co, and had Montraville buried there under the stately oak trees.

On 27 January 1881, Emma Ardelia Woods married William Hartmann in Yorktown, DeWitt County, Texas with Justice of the Peace L. Beryel Wright officiating the ceremony. Isabella Woods and Clemens Georg Hartmann and his wife, Sophia attended their wedding. Emma's favorite sister, Madeline, and her husband, Sylvanus Brown witnessed the marriage as did William's brother August, who was his best man. Emma's brother, Montraville Zadock Woods bestowed the family's blessings and gave the bride's hand in marriage to William.

William and Emma Ardelia Woods Hartmann had eight children who were all born in Yorktown, DeWitt County, Texas and were as follows: Henry Clemens, born 13 July 1882, married Shely Odem on 6 January 1903 and died on 2 January 1952; Isabella Carline (Bell). born 22 September 1883, married Denton Dubose on 17 December 1902 and died on 1 September 1965; Willie Solma, born 26 April 1885, married Eph Caffall on 28 November 1906 and died 16 August 1950; Sophia Amelia, born on 4 January 1887, married Joe Passmore on 28 October 1908 and died on 11 November 1958; Cora Lee, born on 1 November 1888, married William Asher and died 25 December 1958; Montraville Albert (Monty), born 28 April 1891, married Annie Griffin on 14 Feb 1918 and died 23 June 1978; Edward Franklin, born 7 November 1893, married Lula Cobb on 12 February 1914 and died 21 June 1970; August Blanton, born 7 March 1897, married Muriel Morrison Byram on 21 November 1923 and died on 10 November 1971 and was buried in the August Hartmann family plot in Karnes City Cemetery in Karnes Co, Texas. Each of the Hartmann children were baptized in Holy Cross Catholic Church in Yorktown. After the children were older, Emma joined the First Presbyterian Church of Yorktown and enjoyed an active role as a Women's League volunteer for many years.

William was very active with the Woodsmen of the World organization in DeWitt County and when he died on 14 January 1916, Emma buried him in Woods Cemetery, Shiloh, Yorktown, DeWitt Co, Texas with a Woodsmen of the World Memorial to mark his grave.

Emma did not like the prospect of living alone and when Monty married Annie Griffin, they moved into the old family homeplace at Mound Creek with her. She was said to have been a beautiful woman and aged gracefully under the care of her beloved sons and daughters. She remained with Monty and Annie until she died of a heart attack on 20 November 1939. Her final resting place is under the old oaks at Woods Cemetery, Shiloh, Yorktown, DeWitt County, Texas next to her husband, William Hartmann and near both her parents and William's parents.

HAUN, ADOLPH BERTHOLD AND BERTHA MARIE (IDEUS)

Adolph Berthold Haun was born July 14, 1897 in Meyersville, son of William Haun (9/3/66-3/1/59) and Mary Doerhmann (6/3/71-5/20/54). Their story is elsewhere in this book. The Haun and Ideus homesteads were located about ½ mile apart on the twelve-mile Coleto Creek in Upper Meyersville. Adolph Berthold and Bertha Marie were united in marriage on Oct. 2, 1921, in St. John Evangelical Lutheran Church by Pastor P. Gogolin. The young couple made their home on the fifteen mile Coleto about 6 miles from Meyersville. They were blessed with four children: Corine Faye, Ellis James (8/6/24-5/10/45), Norvan Gene, and John William.

In the early 1930's the family began selling milk as a dairy. Corine went to work in Houston where she met and married Marvin Froehlich. They had three children: Rodney James, Randall Lee, and Donna Kay. They live in Houston and Meyersville. Ellis James gave his life for his country on Okinawa in World War II. Norvan married Georgia Uhyrek and they had one son Bryan. They live in Meyersville. John married Elizabeth Gohmert and remained on the family farm. Their story is elsewhere in this book. In 1976 the Haun Dairy Farm qualified for the Texas Land Heritage Program as having seen continuous productive operation at the hands of one family for 100 years or more with Cristoph Doerhmann being named as founder. Adolph and Bertha were faithful workers in St. John Church and raised their children to be Christians. They raised a large garden and chickens and hogs, slaughtering their own hogs and smoking sausages. Adolph made wine from the Mustang grapes that are plentiful in that area. Adolph passed away on August 24, 1978 and Bertha on July 6, 1984. The Haun Dairy Farm is now owned and operated by their grandsons, Terry and Lee Haun. Their story is elsewhere in this book.

HAUN, JOHANN GEORG FREIDRICH ADOLPH AND MISS (THIEME)

Johann Georg Friedrich Adolph Haun, known as Adolph, was born April 8, 1825, son of Johann Friedrich Haun and Johanne Magdalene Haun nee Ruhland. He was born in Rudelstadt in the province of Schwartzburg in Germany and was baptized July 14, 1825, in the church of Teichweiden. His sponsors were Mrs. Elisabethe Margerethe Ruhland and Johann Friedrich Ruhland; Master Johann Georg Bernhard; Johann Georg Heinse and Johann Christoph Heinse. There were seven children besides Adolph, but it is believed that they stayed in the Old Country. On August 12, 1846, Adolph left the port of Bremen for America. He was traveling under the auspices of the Mainzer Adelsverein (The Society for the Protection of German Immigrants in Texas). His passport reveals that he was twenty-one years old, of medium height, with red hair full eyebrows, green eyes, oval face and healthy face color. Adolph arrived in Indian Point (Indianola), Texas, on November 6, 1846. There he met Mr. Friedrich Hausmann who was in Indian Point to get supplies from the Mainzer Adelsverein for the small group of settlers at Meyersville in DeWitt County. After greeting each other with great friendliness, Mr. Hausmann told Adolph, Ludwig Franke, and W. Soerbert that he lived on Coleto Creek and that land there was cheap. So Adolph and his fellow immigrants went to the Coleto Creek settlement with Mr. Hausmann. Adolph settled on the Twelve-Mile Coleto, becoming one of the earliest settlers of this small German community. The book "The Church on the Coleto" describes the hardships these early settlers endured. Adolph was married three times and had seven children. His first wife was a Miss Thieme. They had two children: Auguste Antonio (2/14/50) who married Johan Michal Hiller on Oct. 10, 1867; and Albrecht (10/10/51) who married Bertha Jones in Llano and later settled in San Antonio. Auguste and Johan Hiller had three children: Kate who married Rudolph Nagel; Adolph who died when he was small; and a third child who was stillborn. (Auguste died from this childbirth).

Albrecht and Bertha Haun had four children: Albrecht; Bertha who married Edwin Vanderbilt; Pauline who married Adolph Jonas; and an adopted child named Oscar Hombach. Adolph was married the second time to Friedericka Fisher on February 20, 1853. They had one child Fred (Fritz) who married Sophie Gerhold and settled in Arneckeville. Fritz and Sopie had seven children: Henry; Marichen; Otto who married Elena Thieme and settled in Arneckeville; Amalia; Albert; Louis; and Fritz. Adolph married the third time on May 18, 1856, to Katherine Schmidt (8/5/33 - 6/16/13). Katherine had sailed from Germany with her sister to land in Texas. The trip was very stormy with a food and water shortage. Rain came, providing fresh water. Four children were born to Adolph and Katherina; Bertha Pauline (10/18/57 - 11/4/53) who married William Diebel on Aug. 1, 1878, and settled in the Golly community in DeWitt County. (See William Diebel story.); Adolph who married Mary Reinhardt on Jan. 27, 1881, and settled in Fredericksburg; William (9/3/66 - 3/1/59) who married Mary Doehrmann on Dec. 21, 1893,

Adolph Haun and 3rd wife Kathrina Schmidt and settled in Meyersville. (See William Haun story); and a girl who died at birth. There is a log building on the Haun property that was either a barn or possibly the original Adolph Haun home. It consists of two rooms connected by a dog run. A much larger wood frame home was built later. Adolph's name appears on the roll of Josiah Taylor's Mounted Company of DeWitt Guerillas, 24th Brigade, Texas Militia (1862-1865). An original document dated 1863 states that Adolph was declared unfit for military duty because he was subject to fits of epilepsy. Church records of St. John Evangelical Lutheran Church reveal that Adolph hauled twelve loads of stone for the stone church that was built in 1866. Adolph also registered the cattle brand H in 1854, one of the earliest brands recorded in DeWitt County. After Adolph's death on Jan. 10, 1892, and Katherina's death on June 16, 1913, William and Mary Haun became the owners of the Haun farm. It was passed to their son Herbert and his wife Martha Morgenroth Haun. Herbert's son Clifford and his wife Bette Jo Rohan now own and operate the Haun farm.

HAUN, JOHN WILLIAM AND ELIZABETH MARIE (GOHMERT HAUN)

F395

John William Haun and Elizabeth Marie

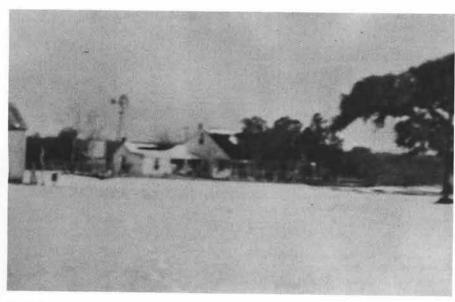

Gohmert were married July 7, 1956, in St. John Evangelical Lutheran Church by Pastor E.L. Arhelger in Meyersville, Texas. John was born November 10, 1938, to Adolph Berthold Haun and Bertha Marie Ideus. Their story is elsewhere in this book. John was the youngest of four children and stayed on the farm to help his parents. He graduated from Cuero High School in 1956. Elizabeth Marie was born November 6, 1935, to Reinhold Henry Gohmert and Linda Anne Emilie Diebel. Their story is elsewhere in this book. Elizabeth graduated from Cuero High School in 1954. After their marriage John and Elizabeth made their home on the Haun Dairy Farm located on the Fifteen mile Coleto Creek about 6 miles from Meyersville. Their union was blessed with three children: Terry Ray (9/23/57), Jeffery Dale (6/5/59-7/28/80), and Lee Charles (8/21/65).

Johnny was a charter member of the Cuero Chapter of Young Farmers. In 1959 he was selected as Outstanding Young Farmer in Texas in Area X. He also served on the board of directors of the Dewitt County Producer's Ass'n and as trustee of the Meyersville Independent School District. In 1976 the Haun Dairy Farm qualified for the Texas Family Land Heritage Program as having seen continuous productive operation at the hands of one family for 100 years or more with Cristoph Doe-rhmann being named as founder.

Johnny and Elizabeth were active members of St. John where Elizabeth sang in the choir, served as an officer of the Women of the Church, and on the church council. Terry Ray married Pamela Sue Stubbs. Their story is elsewhere in this book. Jeffery graduated from Cuero High School in 1979. He passed away after a lifelong battle with cancer when he was 21. Six months later John William passed away on Jan. 10, 1981. Elizabeth married William Alfred Wendel. Their story is elsewhere in this book. Lee Charles graduated from Cuero High School in 1983. Terry and Pam and Lee are now owners of Haun Dairy Farm.

Terry Ray Haun married Pamela Sue Stubbs on January 22, 1977, in St. John Evangelical Lutheran Church in Meyersville, Texas. Terry was born September 23, 1957, to John William Haun and Elizabeth Marie Gohmert. Their story is told elsewhere in this book. Terry graduated from Cuero High School in 1976. Pamela Sue Stubbs was born October 9, 1956, to Bryan Stubbs and Ann Stevens in Cuero. Pam graduated from Cuero High School in 1975. The young couple settled in Meyersville where Terry worked with his family on the Haun Dairy Farm. They had three children: Nicole Denice (1/23/79), Kelsie Elizabeth (11/11/81), and Laura Brooke (1/30/86). After John Haun's death in 1981, Terry and his brother Lee became owners of the Haun Dairy Farm. They recently updated the dairy building with new equipment. Terry serves on the Dewitt County Dairy Advisory Committee and is vice-president of the Meyersville Fire Department. Pam teaches Sunday School and Summer Vacation Bible School and participates in various events at St. John. Pam is also on the board of directors of the Meyersville Country Club and is vice-president of the Parents Club at Meyersville Independent School District. Lee and Terry play on a local softball team, the Tex-Blends. Haun Dairy Farm is proud to be carrying on the tradition of having seen continuous productive operation at the hands of one family for over 100 years. They qualified for the Texas Family Land Heritage Program in 1976.

HAUN, WILLIAM AND MARY (DOEHRMANN)

William Haun was born September 3, 1866, in Meyersville, Texas, son of Adolph and Katherine (Schmidt) Haun. (See Adolph Haun story). Mary Doehrmann was born November 3, 1871, to Christoff and Louisa (Homrickhausen) Doehrmann. William Haun married Mary Doehrmann on December 27, 1893, in St. John Evangelical Lutheran Church in Meyersville. They were married by Pastor W. Westerhoff. William and Mary made their home on the Adolph Haun property on the Twelve-Mile Coleto Creek near Meyersville. After Katherina's death in 1913, William and Mary became the owners of the Haun property and continued to farm the land. This union was blessed with seven children: Alfred (12/31/1894-?) who married Georgia Irene Ingraham and settled in Oklahoma; Adolph (7/14/1897 - 8/24/78) who married Bertha Marie Ideus (10/2/1896 -

William and Mary Haun

7/6/84) and settled in Meversville: (See A.B. Haun story). Frieda (4/15/1900 - 9/12/87) who married Alonzo Seiler (10/26/96 - 5/19/68) and settled in Meyersville; Edwin J. (Shorty) (1/03/02 - 1/15/73); Rudolph (1/15/04 - 5/17/76) who married Lucille Horny and settled in the Weesatche area; Lena (10/9/06 - 1/3/85) who died when she was two; and Herbert Frank Louis (10/9/11 - 1/3/85) who married Martha Helen Morganroth (12/29/15 - 12/9/87) and settled on the Haun farm in Meyersville. Adolph and Bertha Haun had four children: Corine Faye who married Marvin Froehlich and lives in Houston and Meyersville; Ellis James who gave his life for his country in WWII; Norvan Gene who married Georgia Uheryk and lives in Meyersville; and John William (dec'd) who married Elizabeth Gohmert and lived in Meyersville. Frieda and Alonzo Seiler had three children: Leroy who married Mildred Click (dec'd) and settled in Floresville; Florine who married Edgar Dohmann and settled in Meyersville; and Newton who married LaRose Ideus and settled in Weesatche. Herbert and Martha Haun had one son Clifford. Herbert and Martha remained on the home farm and took care of William and Mary until their deaths (William on March 1, 1959, and Mary on May 20, 1954) when they became the owners of the farm. They continued to operate the farm until their deaths when their son Clifford and his wife Bette Jo Rohan Haun became the owners. Clifford (12/15/39) married Bette Jo Rohan (5/5/41) on June 21, 1959, and settled on the Haun property. They had four children: Julie Helen (3/16/60), who married Delvin Arndt and lives in Meyersville; Lesley Kathryn (11/13/64) who married David Bruns and lives in Goliad; Brad Thomas (6/5/66), and Clay Wade (5/27/69). Clifford and Bette Jo continue to operate the land. Their son Brad now lives in the Haun home.

HAUSMANN, BERTHOLD L. AND MARTHA M. TERRY

Berthold L. Hausmann was born in Clinton, Texas (then the county seat of DeWitt County) on November 4, 1867 the son of William Hausmann (born December 11, 1837 and died May 12, 1914) and Magdaline Schiwetz Hausmann (born April 20, 1850 and died July 10, 1923). Berthold had three sisters. William Hausmann and his family moved to Yorktown where he was editor of The Yorktown News. William and Magdaline are buried in the Westside Cemetery in Yorktown.

Martha Maria Terry (affectionately called Mattie) was born December 7, 1870. She was one of three daughters born to James D. Terry (born November 1, 1835 and died August 5, 1891) and Kate Ferber Terry, who came to this country from Germany as a child (born May 28, 1842 and died April 5, 1928). James came to Texas from Tennessee and at one time was the county judge of DeWitt County. Both James and Kate are buried in the Hillside Cemetery in Cuero and their story may be found in this Berthold Hausmann and Martha Terry were married in Cuero on March 25, 1891 and lived there for several years. The Berthold Hausmann family moved to Yorktown around 1900 and lived there the rest of their lives. Berthold, like his father, was editor of The Yorktown News but then sold the paper to G.R. Beckham. He also ran a variety store and worked in the J.W. Hoff store. He was best known for being the Justice of the Peace in Yorktown for many years and was called "Judge" by most people. They had eight children. Their sons William and Olin died in infancy. Their other children were: 1) Genevieve (born October 2, 1893 and died April 1984); 2) James Terry (born February 12, 1892 and died June 28, 1963); 3) Albert William (born March 29, 1897 and died in the early 1960's); 4) Edgar (born in 1898 and died on August 21, 1934); 5) Katie Pearl (born December 19, 1901); and 6) Mattie Lee (born February 22, 1904 and died in the early 1980's). All of Berthold and Mattie's children except Albert and Katie, settled in Fort Worth. Genevieve (known as Dady) married Gilbert Zane Nelson and they had two sons Marquis Edward and Zane. (Gilbert Nelson's mother claimed a blood relationship with the noted author, Zane Gray.) Terry married Helen Smith. Edgar married but had no children. Mattie, who later went by Martha (and was known to her family as Mootsie), never married. Albert served in the U.S. Navy during World War I. He remained single, stayed in California after the war and never returned to Texas until he came to visit a few years before his death. Katie stayed in Yorktown and married Albert J. Turek and their story is in this book.

Berthold died on July 31, 1943. Mattie had preceded him in death on August 15, 1939. Both of them are buried in the Westside Cemetery in Yorktown.

HEARD, HUMPHREY AND LOUISA ELLEN (FOSTER)

F399

Humphrey Heard (1811-1896), planter and rancher in DeWitt County, was a native of Georgia who came to Texas from Alabama. He was born near Milledgeville, Georgia on 9 December 1811, the son of Joel Heard (1785-1840) and his first wife, Nancy Gilmore (1785-1843). Joel was the son of John Heard, a Revolutionary soldier, and Mary (Meador) Heard who migrated to Greene County, Georgia from Virginia in 1782. Joel and his brothers obtained land in Baldwin County, Georgia in the Lottery of 1803, and it was at Milledgeville that he married Nancy Gilmore (1785-1843), the daughter of Humphrey and Catherine (Wylie) Gilmore.

In 1811, the Creek Indians allowed the U.S. Government to cut a Federal road from the Chattahoochie River (Georgia's western border) to Mimms' ferry on the Alabama River, which gave easy access across Creek lands to American settlements in Washington County, Alabama, then a part of Mississippi Territory. A few months after Humphrey Heard's birth, his parents followed the Federal road to the confluence of the Alabama and Tombigbee rivers, bought some former Choctaw Indian land in that area, and began to farm. When Congress declared war on England in June, 1812, the great Shawnee Chief Tecumseh, an ally of the British, visited Alabama and stirred up a band of Red Stick Creek Indians who began raids against the settlers. The militia was called out, and when Joel left on duty with the cavalry, his wife and baby Humphrey went to Fort Mimms for safety.

On the morning of 29 August 1813, Nancy took the baby with her into the woods to hunt berries, and while they were away, the Red Stick Creeks attacked the stockade. The result was the famous Fort Mimms Massacre in which hundreds of white settlers died. Nancy and baby Humphrey hid in the woods until the Indians departed, and so they were saved.

The American retaliated at the Battle of Horseshoe Bend in March, 1814, in which Joel Heard participated. Led by Gen. Andrew Jackson, the militiamen were victorious, and the few surviving Red Sticks fled into Spanish Florida. Mississippi settlements were free of raids thereafter.

After Alabama became a state and Sumter County was formed from the Choctaw Session in 1832, Joel Heard acquired land in that county and established a plantation near the Tombigbee River. On 30 January 1840, Humphrey Heard, then aged 29, married Louisa Ellen Foster (1825-1903), daughter of Benjamin C. and Elizabeth (Henderson) Foster of adjacent Clarke County, Alabama.

In 1849, Joel Heard, accompanied by his younger sons, Allen and Thomas, moved to Texas and settled at Victoria. The sons became prominent ranchers and elected officials in Refugio County. Humphrey and his family followed in 1851, bringing their slaves with them, and settled at Mission Valley. In 1867, at age 56, Humphrey was licensed by the Methodists to preach, and he did so at Clinton, Thomaston and Middletown (Weesatche). They moved to Middletown in 1869, where he owned a large ranch, and then to Thomaston in 1872. The Methodist Church of Thomaston was organized in their home, and services were held there until a schoolhouse was erected. Later, the Heards returned to Middletown where he died on 23 October 1896 at age 85. She died on 29 March 1903 at the home of a daughter in Thomaston, but was buried beside her husband in the Middletown Cemetery. According to her obituary, she left 29 grand-children and 20 great-grandchildren.

The Heards had nine children. Joel B. married Lucretia Ballou; Mary Ann married Murdoch W. McRae of Lamar; Jasper N. married Sarah Newcomer; Hannah married James D. McMaster; Carrie married George W. Ferguson; Allen C. married Lou Newcomer; Ellen married Benjamin Daughtery; Lee Foster married first Leila Franks, and second Lucy Nichols; and Addie married Eugene McMaster.

HEARD, JOEL B. AND LUCRETIA (BALLOU)

Joel B. Heard

Joel Benjamin Heard (1841-1920), the eldest son of Humphrey and Louisa Ellen (Foster) Heard, was born on 1 December 1841 in Sumter County, Alabama and was ten years old when he came to Mission Valley, Texas, with his parents. In 1859, at age 18, he went to Refugio County and engaged in stock raising on his own. He enlisted in Tom Rabb's Company of Texas Rangers in 1861 and served on the Rio Grande, then, in 1862, he joined Capt. R.M. Edgar's Company for Confederate service.

When Joel B. returned to Refugio after the war, he found no trace of his stock, and so went back to his father's old homestead at Mission Valley. In 1864, he married Lucretia Ballou, the daughter of Seth and Elizabeth (Armour) Ballou of Lamar, Aransas County.

Seth Ballou, who had been a seafaring man, and Elizabeth Armour were married in 1838 in East Texas where he operated a ferry. They moved to Aransas County in 1839 and were among the earliest settlers at Lamar on Lookout Peninsula. He established the first steam ferry in Aransas-Refugio counties and operated it between the Peninsula and Aransas City across the bay. The Ballous lived and died at Lamar.

In 1876, Joel B. Heard purchased 700 acres across Heard's Bridge on the Guadalupe in DeWitt County, three miles from Cuero, and made his home there. In 1880, he bought a 4,000-acre ranch in Goliad County and became one of the most prosperous stockraisers in DeWitt County. He had 1,000 head of cattle on his Goliad ranch and 100 more on his DeWitt place, besides horses and other stock, according to a newspaper clipping of the time. He died in 1920 and was buried near his parents in the Weesatche Cemetery.

Joel B. and Lucretia (Ballou) Heard had three children, Alice Heard, who married Dr. Randall Mahon; William C. Heard, who married Gena Schaefer; and Miss Mamie Heard who, after her father's death, took over management of the DeWitt County ranch. At her death in 1948, she left a legacy to the First Presbyterian Church of Cuero in memory of her parents. The fund was used on the remodeling of the church in 1952.

The Heard ranch in DeWitt County passed to Miss Mamie's niece, Eleanor, and her husband, Ed Thigpen.

HEARN FAMILY

F401

Ebenezer Hearn and William David Hearn were brothers who came to DeWitt County, Texas, about 1856. According to family stories, they left their father's home in Florida after a disagreement over how they handled their father's young children by his second wife. The youngsters were scolded for playing in the saw mill which the older boys helped run. The father and step-mother did not appreciate the way it was handled, so the older boys left home. They reportedly came into Texas at Galveston, where they worked as ship builders, then came to Cuero. Ebenezer was a carpenter and wheelright. William was a farmer.

William was a year or two older than Ebenezer. William was born about 1824, and Ebenezer about 1826.

Ebenezer was married first in DeWitt County to Miss Julian Cheeler on July 3, 1856. William married Bethany Meadows on 23 of April 1857.

William David and Bethany (or Bethena) Meadows Hearn had at least five children. George Thomas was born early in 1858. Dilla was born about 1864. Nancy was born about 1869. Jackson Madison was born in 1871. Joseph John Hearn was born in 1876 and died November 6, 1941, at the age of 65 years, 9 mos. and 6 days.

William and Bethany Hearn died about 1879. They died the same night of pneumonia and are said to have been buried in the Clinton Cemetery but their graves have no markers. When they died, the family was split up.

Thomas went out on his own. In June of 1880 he was single, a laborer living in the home of John Andrews. On May 31, 1882, Thomas Hearn married Delia Stewart.

Dilla Hearn worked for Lazarus Nichols in June of 1880 as a cook and launderer. It is not known whether she ever married.

Nancy Hearn was living with the Miles Bennet family in June of 1880, a hired servant in a household which included five children and three other boarders who were cowboys. She probably did a lot of cooking and washing in return for her room and board. She was remembered as blind in one eye. Her brother Joe did correspond with her for a time.

The two youngest boys were cared for by William P. Houston who was appointed their guardian by the court after their parents' death.

Jackson Madison Hearn was born January 21, 1871 and died February 6, 1945. He married Leatha Jane Faught on July 16, 1893. She was born July 9, 1876 and died July 21, 1967. They are buried at the Waelder City Cemetery. Their children were Joseph Sylvester (May 1894), Melinda Elizabeth (Feb. 1896), Johnny David (July 1898), and Willie Mae. Their son, Johnny David, (July 21, 1898 -October 3, 1966) married Naomi Sherry August 8, 1931. Children of Johnny and Naomi were Ruby Faye (February 2, 1932), Jack David (July 22, 1934), Elroy Brooks (February 4, 1936), Letha Mae (April 20, 1938), Johnny Sylvester (December 23, 1939), Lois Marie, James Allen, Judith Elaine, and Jewel Norean. Their son Jack David Hearn, born July 22, 1934, married Jo Ann Elam on August 17, 1957. Willie Mae married Dewey Taylor and had a son named Jack.

Joseph John Hearn was born in 1876 and died November 6, 1941, at the age of 65 years, 9 months and 6 days. Wm. P. Houston was appointed his legal guardian in May 1880. At some point he left the Houston household and lived with a family named Neal (or Neill?). He was married in August of 1897 to Mattie E. Shannon. Mattie died and he married Clara Johnson on July 12, 1903. They lived at Moulton and are buried near Yoakum. Joe Hearn had only one child, a daughter named Dessie Lodesker. She was born July 29, 1904. She married first a Perkins, by which she had a son, Curtis Perkins. She married second Earnest Kleim or Kliem. She was living in Corpus Christi in 1984.

Ebenezer Hearn was born about 1826. He and Julia Ann Cheeler married in DeWitt County on July 3, 1856. Nothing is known of her family. They had three children: John Lisha, Jesse Lee, and Josephine Hearn. Ebenezer died after June 1870. By some time in 1871, Julia married Charlie Bruce, by whom she had three children: Emma, Eddie and Arthur. On August 12, 1879, she married William Hughes, the father of Katie who married Bud Adams.

John Lisha Hearn was born November 2, 1857 and died September 10, 1932. He was married on June 21, 1893 to Lina Francis Henry (January i7, 1877 – November 7, 1933). Their children were Julius Owen (May 9, 1894 – 1977) who married Addie Newman, Stella Lee (September 19, 1896 – October 29, 1915) married Herman Tanneberger, Irene Gertrude (January 8, 1899 – July 7, 1900), James Frederick (November 17, 1901 – August 20, 1983) married Alma Rogers, Thelma Adell (July 10, 1904-) married Elwood A. Newman, John Franklin (August 30, 1908 – July 24, 1970) married Marie Howard.

John Lisha Hearn was raised in Clinton and moved to Wilson County after he married. He hauled freight from Indianola to Abilene, and railroad ties from San Antonio to Pearsall when the railroad was built. He was a carpenter on the railroad depots on the SAP line from Abilene to the coast. He built the Catholic Church at Laire, Wilson County, designing the Gothic type windows himself. He said in later life that he raised three families: his stepbrothers and sisters, his wife's siblings when Wm. P. Henry died, and then his own children. He was almost twenty years older than his wife having danced at her parents' wedding as a young man. He may have thought he had taken on too many responsibilities, but was remembered by his family as a patient, even tempered, soft spoken man. For a time, he ran a store in Fairview. He also ran a gin at one time. He was afflicted with what was called "granulated sore eyes".

Jesse Lee Hearn was born February 14, 1865 and died October 20, 1944. He was married on October 17, 1889 to Mary Frances Chambles (January 26, 1871 – February 19, 1961). Their children were Lee Roy (January 15, 1891), Eulen Doyel (January 8, 1892) John Elzy (May 1893), and L. Grace (April 1898), and Hazel.

Josephine Hearn was born January 26, 1868 and died August 24, 1940. She married first Jess Burris and second Ely Conway. She was buried at Runge.

HEER, FRANZ

F402

Franz Heer (on rig) and Ishmel Perryman (behind horses) digging water well near Nordheim 1917.

Franz Heer was one of the German immigrants who contributed to the development of West DeWitt County.

In about 1900, Franz was working in Bavaria as a Master Brewers Apprentice. He longed for the opportunity to own land and be his own boss, so, he headed out on his own for Texas, leaving his family and friends.

While on the ship to America, he met Emilie Riesch. Despitee the hardships of ocean travel at that time, they fell in love, and promised to marry as soon as possible. They were bound for different destinations. She had a sponsor in New York with an obligation to work there two years. He was bound and determined to go to Texas. He landed in Galveston and walked inland, working along the way to sustain himself. At Nordheim, Franz met other folks from Southern Germany. Mr. Neubert gave Franz a job on his farm and trained him to survive in Texas. In about two years, Franz managed to save enough money to send for Emilie. They were married in Nordheim on April 13, 1903. They moved on the George Treude farm and Nordheim was to be their home for the next sixteen years. Their children: Clara (Heer) Lane, Antoinette (Heer) Steves, Gus R. Heer and Frances (Heer) Laliberte were born there.

It was during these years that Franz became known as a water well driller. He dug most of his wells from 1909 to 1928. His rig was primitive, bulky and slow; but, many of those wells are still producing precious water, an item we all need to live. These wells are about one hundred feet deep.

A lot of small family farms were being settled out of ranch land around Nordheim at that time. Water was needed on these places for survival of people and livestock. If a location was too far from his home Franz, and his helper Ishmel Perryman and in some cases his son Gus Heer, would camp out at the well site for several days. They traveled to the site on a wagon pulled by two horses. The same animals were used to "power" the rig as they walked around the hole raising and dropping the bit.

The method of digging those wells was not by the rotary drill we know today. As the heavy pipe (sharpened as a bit) was dropped in the hole it would fill with dirt and was frequently pulled up to be emptied.

In some cases new farm owners did not have enough money to pay him upon completion. Often, he was paid in kind with animals or part of the crop.

The family moved from Nordheim to a farm on the banks of the San Antonio River on November 17, 1919.

In Bavaria, he had lived near a river, vineyards and large trees. He felt more at home watching the water flow by their place high on a bluff overlooking the river. The Heers never forgot their friends in Nordheim. They had a large pecan bottom where Nordheim families flocked each fall to picnic and pick-up pecans on shares. Many of their pecans were harvested in this manner and old acquaintances met. to perhaps, share a glass of homemade mustang grape wine while speaking some German. This type of outing was one of the few recreational activities that rural families could enjoy at that time. As a youth, I remember looking forward to picnics at the Heer place once or twice a year. It was an opportunity to fish, swim and romp with cousins under the cool trees after a blistering summer of picking cotton.

The Heers traveled many miles to Nordheim where they "traded" the rest of their lives. Franz could be found enjoying a lively game of Scat, banging the trump card on the table with a thunderous blow, denoting he had won the play. Mrs. Heer visited with friends in town. It was customary at that time for ladies to visit for several hours on Saturday afternoons. This usually occurred in a dry goods store, as women did not enter places where alcoholic beverages were sold.

Everyone knew Mr. Heer as the "Water Well Man". He could quote the depth and peculiarities of all wells he dug, even though formal records were not kept. Farmers asked his advice on wells until the time of his death in 1956. Mrs. Heer passed away in 1966. Their daughters died in 1938, 1979 and 1985.

Gus and Helen (Roeben) Heer lived on a farm close to the San Antonio River most of their married life. He is a retired carpenter who ranches and enjoys visiting Nordheim friends. Both are devout members of the Lutheran Church and cherish a host of friends in Runge and West DeWitt County.

HEISSIG, CARL HEINRICH AND HENRIETTE SPERLING

Carl Heinrich Heissig was born in Landsberg on the Warte river in what was then Prussia, Germany on June 15, 1822 to Johann Gottlieb Heissig and Marie Charlotte Zedler. At the end of World War II, the town became part of Poland and is now known as Garzow.

Henriette Sperling Heissig was born on April 7, 1831 in Frankfurt on the Oder river, which is now on the border between East Germany and Poland. This area is not far from Landsberg, where Carl and Henriette were married in 1852 prior to their journey to America on The Oldenburg brig "Texas." Two of Carl Heissig's sisters, Henriette, Mrs. Carl Frey, and Wilhemine, Mrs. Johann Meyer immigrated to Texas about the same time, also settling in the Yorktown community.

The Heissig's arrived at Indianola, Texas on June 12, 1853 and moved inland to Yorktown a short time after their arrival. Carl Heissig purchased a small tract of land, from Moritz Riedel Sr., which was located in the W.W. Gant survey north of Yorktown in what was then known as Upper Town. At this location he built a stone building which served as their home and from which Carl operated a freight stop over point, with restaurant, bar and dance hall. The Heissig's business served freighters and immigrants enroute from Indianola to San Antonio and New Braunfels, as well as a point for local social functions.

During the Civil War, Carl Heissig was a member of the "Hulan Reserve Company" which was organized by the citizens of Yorktown under the command of Captain Caesar Eckhardt.

From the time immediately after the Civil War until the early 1870's, Upper Town was the main center of business for the Yorktown community and Carl Heissig's business prospered, as noted in the September 25, 1876 Victoria Advocate: "Yorktown is divided into the upper and lower town, and having said much as to Yorktown proper, I cannot fail to mention Mr. C.H. Heissig at the upper town as a restaurant and hotel man."

On the night of September 19, 1876, Carl Heissig, unwittingly became a witness to the brutal murder of Dr. Phillip Brassell and his son George, whose home was located only a short distance from the Heissig's establishment. Even though exonerated twice, as to having any part in this murder, he apparently appeared as a witness in the first trial, where the four principals were convicted and sentenced to hang. Just as in the judicial system today, the verdict was overturned on a clerical technicality, and the four principals were again indicted. Just one month before the second trial was to commence, Carl Heissig was brutally gunned down on the evening of May 15, 1880 in front of his home and business establishment. The assailant was never appre-

After the murder of her husband, Henriette faced the monumental task of rearing her young unmarried daughters who were still living at home. As related by her daughter, Henriette, many years later, they had a very difficult time and had to make due with only the bare necessities. Carl Heissig was the victim of a lawless era in DeWitt County. He and his family were the victims of the frontier justice that ruled there at the time. It was not until Capt. Lee Hall rode into DeWitt County with his Texas Rangers that law and order was finally established.

Carl and Henriette Heissig became the ancestors of some of the prominent families of DeWitt County. Pauline became the wife of H.P. Eckhardt; Malvina became the wife of Fritz Kraege; Jane became the second wife of widower H.P. Eckhardt; Lena, became the wife of Paul Stark; Ida became the wife of August Riedel; Henriette became the wife of Otto Riedel: and Louisa became the wife of Gus Willenberg. Two children Mathilda and Otto are buried in Friar cemetery, across the road from where Carl Heissig's home and business once stood. This cemetery is not well maintained today, but little foot stones, still mark the graves of Otto and Mathilda. Carl, Henriette and daughter Fransiska are buried at Westside Cemetery, Yorktown, TX.

HENGST, ALVIN FAMILY

Alvin Hengst, fourth of six children born to Carl August Hengst and his wife Christine Wiegelt Hengst, was born on Jun 1, 1875 and was baptized in the Lutheran faith in Reifland, Germany. At the age of 3 years he came to America and settled near Shiner in Lavaca County, Texas. In 1897 the family moved to the Lindenau community in DeWitt County, Texas. On Nov 2, 1899 he was united in matrimony with Mary Wild, third of seven children born to Daniel Wild and his wife Aloise Grohmann Wild. She was born on Sept 8, 1878 at Black Spring, Fayette County, Texas. She was baptized and confirmed in the Roman Catholic Church to which she remained faithful all her life. Mary had two older brothers, Ferdinard and Adolph Wild, one younger brother, William Wild and three younger sisters, Anna (Mrs. Herman J. Buchhorn); Therese (Mrs. Otto Turk) and Frances (Mrs. Herman Wolter). Alvin and Mary lived at Lindenau with there parents for about two years, later moving to the Metting Community near Yorktown and then lived on the Conrad Schueneemann farm north of Yorktown, near Gruenau. Around 1905 they moved to the Riedesel farm at Garfield in the western part of DeWitt County. Eight children were born to this union; Emil born Jun 17, 1900 (died Aug 9, 1985) married Elfreda Lippke; Herman born Oct 3, 1901 married Milda Jaeger. His second marriage was to Evelyn Simcek Marecka; Lillie Anna, whose story appears elsewhere; Erna born Feb. 22, 1904 (died Feb 27, 1987) married Herman Wulf, born Oct 2, 1901 (died Jan 4, 1986); Edwin F. born Oct 1, 1905 (died Apr 25, 1982) married Lydia Jaeger, born Mar. 18 1904; Benhardt born Nov 10, 1910 married Olga Jaeger born Mar 17, 1906 (died Apr 23, 1975). Bennie's second marriage was to Ottillia Metting Danyah born Aug 16, 1920 (died Dec 8, 1984); Wilma born Feb 20, 1913 married Ernst Waskow; Elenora born July 10, 1915 married Walter Podsim born Aug 3, 1916. About 1918 the family purchased a farm across from the Gaebler Ranch built a new home. Alvin was active in community affairs and being an expert marksman was on several occasions the 'Schuetzen Koenig' of the Garfield Gun Club. Being in ill health for about a year and steadily getting worse, Mary submitted to surgery on Nov 30, 1935. It was found that she had stomach cancer and she passed away that night at 8:30 P.M. at the age of 57 years. Funeral services were held at Holy Cross Catholic Church in Yorktown with Rev. P.A. Voitanis and Rev. Dicks of the Meyersville Church officiating. The family had a difficult time finding a priest who knew the German language. After the death of his wife, Alvin let the farm go to the Harms family for the debt that remained on the property. He then made his home with his children, but always found it difficult to stay very long at any one place. He eventually ended up living alone on a farm about 2 miles from Nordheim. He walked to town frequently to talk to old friends. He was last seen on Friday, Dec 23, 1949, when he stopped by a neighbor to borrow kerosene for his stove. Since he had told friends he had planned to visit his children for the Holidays, no one suspected that anything had gone wrong. When he was finally missed, his sons, Edwin and Bennie found his body in a field about a quarter mile from his home. The bottle of kerosene and his pipe and cap were nearby. It is believed that he suffered a heart attack shortly after leaving the neighbor's home. Alvin and Mary are buried in Westside Cemetery, Yorkton, Texas.

HENGST, CARL AUGUST FAMILY

Carl August Hengst was born in Germany on Dec 19, 1837. He married Christine Wiegelt who was born May 20, 1841 in Germany. While in Germany the family lived in Reifland. In the year 1878 they came to America and settled near Shiner, Lavaca Co, Texas. One brother and his family also came to America and also settled at Shiner. If other members of their families came to the United States it is not known. Some members of this brother's family later moved to Port Lavaca, Calhoun Co, Texas. C.H. Hengst of Port Lavaca, a son of this family corresponded for years with his second cousin, Lillie A. Koopmann, of Yorktown, Texas. In the year 1897, Carl and Christine Hengst moved their family to the Lindenau Community in DeWitt County. Six children were born to them: 1) Hulda E. born Aug 30, 1863 (died Mar 10, 1908) married Louis E. Seifert born Mar 6, 1855 (died Jul 27, 1933); They are buried in Sandy Gate Cemetery, Nopal,, Texas; 2) August married Johanna Dittmar. They are buried in the Herman Sons Cemetery, San Antonio, Texas; 3) Moritz born Mar 4, 1872 (died Dec 28, 1922). He never married and always walked with a stoop due to a back injury as an infant. He had red hair, which he inherited from his mother, and made his home with his younger sister and family; 4) Alvin, whose story appears elsewhere; 5) Helen, born Aug 30, 1878 (died Apr 22, 1946) married Henry Remmers, born May 22, 1877 (died Sept 8, 1972). They are buried at Nordheim, Texas; 6) Otto, born Jan 11, 1883 (died Jun 30, 1970) married, on Feb 28, 1901 to Emma Schroeder. born Mar 11, 1881 (died Aug 10, 1968). They are buried in Westside Cemetery, Yorktown, Texas.

While their oldest son, August and his wife Johanna, made a trip to Germany in 1907, Carl and Christine stayed with their grandchildren, Alma, Hertha and Eddie Hengst. During this period, Christine, while cleaning house, caught a cold and came down with pneumonia and passed away on Jun 7, 1907 at the age of 66 years. She was buried at Westside Cemetery before her son and daughter-in-law returned from Germany. After the death of his wife, Carl, stayed for a time with each of his children's families. His favorite chore was cutting and splitting firewood, which in those days was used extensively for cooking and heating the homes in winter. Whenever he had enough put in one place, he would move on to the next, earning his keep. He continued this routine until his death on Jan. 5, 1922 at the age of 85 years. He is buried beside his wife and his son Moritz in Westside Cemetery, Yorktown, Texas.

HENNEKE, FREDRICH AND FREDERICKE

Fredrich Henneke was born 29 May 1857 in Thiede by Wolfenbuth, Braunschweig, Germany. He came to America, landing at New Orleans on 5 Sep 1870 at the age of 13, with his Aunt and Uncle Luder and their son.

He worked in the Meyersville area before settling in Arneckeville where he purchased a tract of land.

On 8 Jan 1882 Fredrich married Fredericke Arnecke at Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville. Fredericke was born in Arneckeville on 12 Dec 1862, the second child of Andreas Christoph Heinrich Arnecke and Ursula Barbara Sager Arnecke.

They had the following children, all born in Arneckeville: "Alfred" Henry Henneke (b 14 Jan 1883; d 23 Nov 1948); Carl Fredrich "Charlie" Henneke (b 27 Apr 1885; d 26 Nov 1946); Nicolaus Michael "Herman" Henneke (b 6 Mar 1887; d 28 June 1979); Fredrich Henry "Fred" Henneke (b 5 Mar 1889; d 22 Nov 1964); "Henry" Theodore Henneke (b 10 Apr 1892; d 12 Jan 1985); "Lena" Wilhelmine Amalie Henneke (b 31 Jul 1894; d 23 May 1962); Amalie "Mollie" Fredericke Justine Henneke (b 21 May 1897); "Frieda" Christiana Hulda Henneke (b 19 Feb 1899; d 6 Oct 1950).

Fredrich "Fritz" Henneke became a citizen of the United States of America on 17 Nov 1891.

In the late 1890's the whole family traveled in a 2-seater horse-drawn hack to Hallettsville to try to establish relationship with the Hennekes there; however, none could be found.

Fredrich was active in Zion Lutheran Church of Arneckeville where he was a trustee, a church council member, and delegate to conventions. He had a strong singing voice. He was also known for his loud whistle which could be heard for a great distance.

The children rode on horseback to the Arneckeville school. Later, when the Green DeWitt School was built on adjoining property, they could easily walk there. The boys enjoyed games such as baseball, marbles, and "Dog and the Rabbit" which was played in the nearby brush.

"Ricka" made all the clothes (including shirts and pants) for the family. The Henneke family had an early washing machine — a type of gear was activated by a handle which a child turned — moving the agitator in the machine tub.

The Henneke family always had ready-made shoes (wide tongue with one or two buckles) which were made from hides usually not cured very well. (Cuero had no tannery.) If the shoes became wet, they became very hard — "you could kick something and not even feel it!" The shoes did not leak since the family rubbed them with neatsfoot oil which they made by cooking lower legs of cattle or sheep when they were butchered.

All the Hennekes wore grey socks with a white band around the top which were handwoven on a small loom in Cuero by Mr. and Mrs. Weigend and their son who lived on

Fritz made leather barrels for planting the cotton seed. These were pulled by the horse and the seeds dropped out of the holes in the barrel as it rotated. When the worms were bad, Fritz would fasten a bag containing Parish green, a poison, on both ends of a long pole which he tied to the horse. As the horse trotted between the rows, the dust would shake out onto the plants. As in many families, Ricka worked in the cotton field while supervising the children, who also worked. The then large stalks of cotton had to be gone over many times in a season in order to pick only the ripe bolls.

Fritz also raised cattle. His brand was "54." Since there were no fences in early years, he also notched the ears in 5 places. In 1902 he sold two steers over one-year-old for a total of $15.

On 26 Jan 1906 Fredrich and Fredericka Henneke were divorced in DeWitt Co. Fredericka moved with the youngest four children and operated a small place on her own. Her cattle brand was "LA." She later moved to Cuero. She died 29 Jan 1930 in Cuero and is buried at Hillside Cemetery.

Fredrich bought and sold various properties in DeWitt Co. and Cuero. He moved to Comfort, Texas, for a while and then returned to Cuero. He died on 5 May 1934. He is buried in Hillside Cemetery.

HENNEKE, HARRY L. NADINE "DEE"

Harry Lee Henneke was born 18 Aug. 1931 in Cuero, Texas, the son of Rosa Karow and Henry T. Henneke (story elsewhere). He was baptized at St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Cuero on 27 Sept. 1931. At Cuero High School he played the trumpet in the band and was the first and only male drum major. He also played the lead in the three-act senior play. He graduated with honors in May, 1948. He worked at Webb's Confectionary when it opened and continued there when it later was purchased by Joe Keesler and became known as Keesler's. He also worked at Klecka's Coze Nook Confectionary. He played the trumpet and was vocalist in dance bands led by Bennie Prause, Freddie Peiper, and Adolph Migi. He also worked as a TV repairman in Cuero and Victoria.

Harry joined the U.S. Navy on 7 Dec. 1948. He saw action in the Korean Conflict and then commissioned a mine sweeper out of moth balls. He obtained the rank of Petty Officer First Class and was honorably discharged in 1952. He attended the University of Texas at Austin where he was a member of the Phi Eta Sigma Honorary Fraternity. He graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree with a physics major in 1956. In 1957 he received his Master of Arts degree.

On 10 June 1955 Harry married Nadine "Dee" Vernell Rosenberg in San Antonio. Nadine was born 28 Aug. 1936 in San Antonio, the only child of Wilfred Fred and Minnie Weidner Rosenberg. Nadine was baptized at Christ Lutheran Church in San Antonio on 2 Dec. 1945. She attended Alamo Heights Schools in San Antonio. In high school she was editor-inchief of the school newspaper. She graduated in 1954 as a valedictorian of her graduating class. She attended the University of Texas at Austin where she met Harry at the Lutheran Student Center on campus. They have three children: 1) Elizabeth Marie Henneke (born 17 May 1956 in Austin); 2) Mark Vincent Henneke (born 10 Aug. 1957 in Dallas); and 3) Teresa Elaine Henneke (born 26 Feb. 1960 in San Antonio).

1) Elizabeth Henneke married Buford Barry Wilson on 14 Mar. 1976 in San Antonio. She graduated from the University of Houston in Houston with a Bachelor of Science degree magna cum laude in elementary education. They have one son, Miles Travis Wilson (born 8 Sept. 1982 in Houston).

2) Mark Henneke graduated from Texas A&M University with a Bachelor of Science degree in Recreation and Parks Administration in 1979. He is employed as a Reservoir Ranger at Coletto Creek Reservoir near Victoria.

3) Teresa "Terri" Henneke graduated from Cuero High School with honors in 1978. She received a Bachelor of Music degree in organ performance in 1983 from the University of Texas at El Paso and a Master of Music degree from the University of Texas at San Antonio in 1988. She is the organist/choir master at a church in San Antonio and gives private lessons.

When Harry graduated from the University of Texas, he accepted a position at Texas Instruments Central Research Laboratory in Dallas as a member of the Technical Staff. While employed at TI, Harry developed several new types of transistors receiving patents from the U.S. Patent Office for his discoveries. He published and personally presented technical papers before national and international conferences and was honored by being listed in "Who's Who" for his accomplishments. In 1964 he accepted a position as Senior Research Physicist at Southwest Research Institute in San Antonio. He continued to publish specialized papers in his field of microelectronics. He advanced to the position of Director of Microelectronics Research before leaving the research physics field.

Harry returned to college to receive certification for teaching from the University of Texas at Austin. He has also attended classes at Victoria College, University of Houston in Victoria, University of Michigan, St. Mary's University, and the University of Texas at San Antonio.

In 1976 Harry and Dee came to Cuero. Harry began teaching at Cuero High School where he has initiated numerous new classes including physics, pre-calculus, and various different types of computer classes.

Shortly after Harry and Dee moved to Cuero, they began stocking the family ranches with Registered Simmental cattle. They now maintain a herd of over 150. They are members of the American Simmental Association and have received numerous awards for their cattle which are marketed throughout the United States and Mexico.

In 1988 Dee and Harry opened up a furniture refinishing shop, Superior Refinishing, where primarily antiques are repaired and restored.

Harry and Dee have been active members of the Lutheran Church wherever they have lived.

HENNEKE, HENRY T. AND ROSA

F408

Rosa (Karow) and Henry T. Henneke, Golden Wedding Anniversary, June 10, 1964.

Henry Theodore Henneke was born 10 April 1892 in the Green DeWitt Community. Henry was the fifth son and fifth child of the eight children of Friedrich "Fritz" Henneke and Fredericke "Ricka" Arnecke Henneke. (Story elsewhere.)

When the new Green DeWitt School was completed in 1898, next door to the Henneke home, Henry was allowed to attend the school although he was only six years of age. The usual age for beginning school was eight.

The Friedrich Henneke family tended a large garden. Excess produce was taken to Cuero in a wagon. Henry was usually the one who sold the produce and watermelons door to door.

After his parents separated in 1906, Henry lived with his mother and sisters in a house near the Arneckeville School. He was allowed to attend confirmation classes at an early age at Zion Lutheran Church at Arneckeville.

As a member of the Arneckeville Brass Band, at first he played the big drum, but later switched to the tuba. He marched with the band in the first Turkey Trot parade in 1907 as well as in the parades of 1908 and 1909.

In 1908 at the age of 16, he left his home in Arneckeville and came to Cuero. He became a blacksmith in partnership with his brother Charles in a shop located at 107 S. Rail Road.

Henry married Rosa Hulda Elizabeth Karow (born 22 Aug 1894 in Cuero) on 10 June 1914 in the home of her mother, Flora Schlinke Gauhl Karow (1854-1898). Rosa's father, John Gotlieb Karow, had passed away when she was only three years old. Rosa had worked at a dry goods and a jewelry story before their marriage.

In 1915 when automobiles were in their infancy, Henry, realizing the possibilities in the automotive field, decided to leave Cuero to attend an automotive school in Chicago. On the way Henry and Rosa stopped at New Braunfels, where Henry was offered a job as auto mechanic at the Stahl garage. When World War I broke out, Henry and Rosa returned to Cuero, moving their possessions by railroad. In Cuero Henry was offered a position as shop foreman for Cuero Buick Co., for whom he worked seven years.

Florine Elizabeth Henneke was born in Cuero on 26 Sept 1918.

In 1924 Henry and his brother Fred formed a partnership and opened an auto repair shop and filling station under the name of "Henneke Brothers." It was at their location at 202 S. Esplanade that they sponsored the original "Amos and Andy" for a promotional show. In 1931 they opened a second station at 302 S. Esplanade which became known as "Henneke Bros. #2." In 1933 a third location was opened on North Esplanade as "Henneke Bros. #3."

Harry Lee Henneke was born 18 Aug. 1931. Two years later Henry sold his interests, dissolved the partnership, and opened, as sole owner, the "Hy. T. Henneke Auto Supply Station" at 302 N. Esplanade in the Pythian Lodge Building. In 1944 a second business was opened as "Hy. T. Henneke Home and Auto Supplies" at 118 N. Esplanade. Rosa managed this store for 4 years until it was sold. Henry retired in 1957 after 50 years of being in active business in Cuero.

Henry and Rosa owned many automobiles through the years: a 4-cylinder Jackson, the small Monroe, a Dodge, a Star, a Chrysler, a Ford bought in Detroit, a 1957 Chevrolet plus several pickup trucks and tow trucks.

Henry and Rosa were active members of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Cuero. Henry was an active member of the Lutheran Brotherhood. Rosa was a charter member of the women of St. Mark's Lutheran, President of the Light Brigade (Junior Missionary Organization), and superintendent of the primary department of the Sunday School for many years. She was also a past president of the Woodmen Grove and a member of the Pythian sisters.

Henry was an active volunteer fireman. In his younger years, he participated in numerous competitions (manning the nozzle end) and helped fight the Buchel block fire where "even the water was so hot it burned your ankles through the boots."

In the early 1940's Henry purchased several ranches and raised crossbred and registered Hereford cattle. He worked to improve the quality of pasture land as well as the promotion of the pecan industry. He won numerous ribbons for his excellent pecans. He grafted many trees himself — climbing into high trees even when he was well past 70 years of age. He continued to work daily at the ranches until he was 85 years old.

Florine Henneke married Roscoe Robert Chaddock on 7 Sept 1935. They had one son, Michael Henry Chaddock, born on 30 July 1955, in Freer, Texas.

Harry Lee Henneke married Nadine Vernell "Dee" Rosenberg on 10 June 1955 in San Antonio. They have three children: Elizabeth Marie Henneke Wilson (born 17 May 1956), Mark Vincent Henneke (born 10 Aug 1957), and Teresa Elaine Henneke (born 26 Feb 1960).

Rosa Karow Henneke died in Cuero on 28 Dec 1973. Henry T. Henneke died in Cuero 12 Jan 1985. Both are buried at Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

First and Second Generations

In midsummer of 1884, Fritz Reinhardt Herder and Ida Ottilie Arnim left their home in High Hill, Texas (a community just a few miles northwest of Schulenburg) for new opportunities in DeWitt County, Fritz had moved to High Hill with his family in 1858 at the age of 11, and he and Ida had continued to make High Hill their home since their marriage on March 24, 1870. They had managed to make a good living through farming and were parents of six children: Emil August, Annie, Emma, Ida, Alma, and Frieda. However due to harsh living conditions. Ida and Alma succumbed to disease very early in life. On July 31, 1884, less than 10 months after Alma's death, Fritz and Ida purchased from J.P. Morris 428 acres of DeWitt County land along the waters of Big Brushy Creek. They built their home on a hill about 2 miles west of what would later become Yoakum, Texas. Fritz fenced off the land and began production of corn, small grains, and livestock. About half the land was used for cattle, which they branded with a V-bar, V. Approximately 1 year after the move, Ida gave birth to their seventh child, Fritz William. Seven months later, Fritz Reinhardt died of typhoid fever, leaving Ida Herder with five children ranging in age from 14 years to 7 months. She struggled virtually alone for many years trying to continue as best as she could the farm and ranch operations, while raising and educating the five children. She was forced to sell most of the acreage to make ends meet, leaving 118 acres by 1912. Fritz William began working the farm with his mother in 1902, and took over complete operation a few years later. Ida continued to live on the farm for most of her remaining years. The Herder Family Tree begun by Fritz and Ida is shown below:

VII. Fritz William Herder b. 12 Aug 1885 d. 24 Jun 1955 (m. Dora Edna Pettit, 25 Oct 1985) Children of Fritz Reinhardt Herder and Ida

Ottilie Arnim

Emil August, the oldest, began his early career as a farmer, but later chose the life of a merchant. He and his wife, Louisa Vollintine, built a house on the western edge of the city of Yoakum. He was active in many business and civic organizations. Among his activities, he was manager of the R.C. Flick Mercantile, board member of the Yoakum Commercial Club, and director of the Retail Merchants Association. He also served as chairman of the finance committee for the 1913 South Texas Fair, and co-president of the 1914 Fair. Emil and Lou had no children.

Annie married William Leist, who purchased the southernmost 113 acres of the original 428-acre ranch on which to build their home. To this marriage came seven children: Lillie, Oscar, William, Fritz L., Ida, Annie, and Emmett. Annie and William made their livelihood from farming and ranching.

Emma married William Quast, and lived in Yoakum and Houston. They had five children: Olga, Emma, Hulda, William, and Eddie.

Frieda lived most of her life in Houston. She married Adolph Jilek, and had two sons: Arnim and Lloyd.

Fritz William Herder, the youngest of the children, attended Morris School near Yoakum and later Guadalupe Academy in Cuero, Texas. He had ambitions of studying to become a doctor. However, he chose to return to the farm in 1902, when his widowed mother needed help to work the land. He was the only child to remain with the homestead, buying out the other heirs in 1905 and 1912 to obtain the remaining 118 acres ranched by his mother. (In 1912 and 1929, a total of 1.5 acres was sold to DeWitt County for purposes of building a county road. This road was officially named "Herder Road" in 1986.) In 1905, Fritz married Dora Edna Pettit. She was the daughter of Frank Marian Pettit Sr., a cattle drover who made five cattle drives up the Chisholm Trail into the Kansas and Nebraska areas. Fritz and Dora managed a farm and ranch operation that produced cotton, corn, peanuts, feed grains, and Hereford cattle. They adopted the cattle brand F1-D, for "Fritz Herder and Dora" Although Fritz was a lifetime farmer and rancher, he also took an interest in various business and civic activities in and about the city of Yoakum. He joined his brother Emil in certain real estate investments, served as an election judge for Yoakum precinct 18 for 47 years, was a member of the board of directors for one of the Yoakum banks, and played a fiddle with a local group of musicians until the mid 1920's. He and Dora also actively supported the Yoakum Methodist Church. He was a good carpenter as well as a farmer, taking the lead in constructing most of the farm buildings including their 2-story home which still stands today. He was a very innovative person, preferring to try out new technologies as soon as they were available. For example, he was one of the first farmers in the area to use a Delco electric home lighting system in the 1920's, and he bought the first available new Ford tractor in DeWitt County after World War II.

Fritz and Dora had five children: Hazel Irene, Gertrude Evelyn, Ralph Fritz, Ruth Allyne, and Elliott Wayne. These children and their descendants constitute the continuance of the Herder family in DeWitt County. After Fritz's death in 1955, Dora remained on the farm only a few years before moving to the city of Yoakum, leaving operation of the farm to her oldest son, Ralph.

Children of Fritz William Herder and Dora Edna Pettit

Hazel Herder, the eldest, was educated in the Yoakum schools, graduating from Yoakum High School in 1924. She attended Southwest Texas State Teacher's College at San Marcos for two years, receiving a Permanent Teacher's Certificate. She taught school at South Mustang, Center, Hagan, and East Side Elementary schools in Yoakum. In 1927, she married Walter Becker, distributor for the Gulf Oil Co. Near the end of World War II, they moved to Galena Park, where she currently resides. To further her education, she attended the University of Houston, receiving a BS in Education in 1953, and a Master's in Education in 1956. She is a member of the Galena Park United Methodist Church, where she has been church librarian since 1953, Member of the Year for 1989, member of the United Methodist Women, and Sunday school teacher. Hazel was librarian in the Galena Park School District for 20 years, retiring in 1972. She continues to be very active in organizations including Daughters of the Republic of Texas, American Association of University Women, Church Women United, Kappa Delta Pi, and Order of the Eastern Star. Hazel and Walter Becker had two children: Kenneth and Dorene.

Gertrude graduated from Yoakum High School in 1927. She followed in her older sister's footsteps, attending Southwest Texas State Teacher's College at San Marcos for two years and receiving her Permanent Teacher's Certificate in 1929. She taught for 2 years at Center School near Yoakum. (During the 1929-1930 school year, she and her sister Hazel were both teachers at Center School.) Gertrude married R.K. Shafer in 1930, and soon afterwards moved to McQueeney, Texas, where she taught for 11 years. They later taught school in Geronimo for 5 years before moving to San Antonio. Although she only taught for 1 year in San Antonio, she stayed active raising a family and supporting various organizations such as the PTA, United Methodist Women, Band Boosters, Beta Tau Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, and Delphian Club. When R.K. retired in the early 1970's, they moved back to McQueeney. Gertrude and R.K. had two children: Doris Ann and Katherine.

Shafer, and Gertrude (Herder) Shafer.

Ralph Fritz Herder was the only child of Fritz and Dora to remain in DeWitt County. After graduating from Yoakum High School in 1930, he attended Southwest Texas State Teachers College in San Marcos. Since the depression was in full swing, he was forced to work his way through school waiting tables during the school year, and working on his Dad's farm, at the Yoakum Gin, and at the tomato shed during the summers. Sometime during this period, he managed to find time for one of his favorite sports: baseball. He played ball at the Yoakum field near the SA&AP Railroad roundhouse with such notables as Dizzy Dean. After receiving a BS degree in 1936, he taught school in Denhawken, Texas and in Yoakum before entering the Army Air Corps flying school at Randolph Field, Texas. After graduating from the advanced flying school at Kelly Field, Texas in 1938, he was assigned to the 13th Attack Squadron at Barksdale Field, Louisiana. He went to Washington, D.C. in 1940 and served in the War Department General Staff, Military Intelligence Division G-2.

Ralph married Waldine Sporrer Pettit in Washington, D.C. on September 6, 1941. Waldine grew up in Karnes City, Texas, graduating from Karnes City High School in 1936. Prior to their marriage, she had completed studies at Santa Rosa School of Nursing in San Antonio, graduating as a Registered Nurse in 1939, followed by private duty and hospital nursing. They returned to Yoakum in 1945 at the end of World War II, building a house on the west side of town in 1946. In Yoakum. Ralph worked at the Post Office as a clerk, city carrier, and finally as rural carrier until he retired in 1975. Waldine worked as a lab technician at Richter Clinic from April 1963 until September 1979 when she retired. Ralph continued to enjoy baseball and other sports. Around 1950, he helped establish the South Central Texas Semi-Pro Baseball League. (For his sports, he was inducted into the league's Hall of Fame on March 16, 1980.) He also actively participated in local baseball and football games as an umpire or official during the years 1946 to 1966. In addition to these activities, he raised cattle for his mother and himself on the family ranch and on other land he had leased. Since his mother continued to use the FHD brand, Ralph adopted his grandfather's brand, the V. In 1966, Ralph and Waldine realized a long-lived dream and purchased his brother's and sisters' shares of the 118-acre ranch. They continued to raise grass crops and cattle until 1985, when failing health forced him to retire from active ranching. In 1984, Ralph and Waldine accepted the Texas Family Land Heritage Certificate from Commissioner Jim Hightower at the Capitol in Austin, Texas. The program honors properties which have maintained continuous agricultural production for 100 years or more by one family. Waldine continues to make her home in the house they built in 1946. Ralph and Waldine had two children: Mary Jean and Richard William

Ruth graduated from Yoakum High School in 1933. She attended Baldwin's Business College in Yoakum, receiving a Secretarial and Accounting Certificate in 1935. She then worked for the Swift Packing Co. in Yoakum until 1937, when she married Willie H.B. (Herman Ben) Staehr. Willie worked at the Piggly Wiggly store for a brief time and then took a job with Morrow Hardware, where he learned to work with sheet metal. In 1941, Willie used his sheet metal experience to find work in San Antonio at what was then called Duncan Field. In 1942, Willie and Ruth chose to move to Tinker Field, which had just opened in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. Willie started as a sheet metal supervisor, then moved to quality control. Ruth worked as a secretary for the Hoover Co. for 24 years. Ruth continues to live in Oklahoma City, while also enjoying a winter home in Zapata, Texas. Ruth and Willie had two children: LaNell and Doralyn.

Elliott Wayne, the youngest, graduated from Yoakum High School in 1941. Shortly thereafter he joined the Army Air Corps as an aircraft mechanic. Stationed in San Antonio during the war years, there came to be a demand for his services. For a period of time, he worked on aircraft during the day for the Air Corps and on motorcycles during a second shift for the Navy. After the war, he met and married Shirley Erickson. He and Shirley chose to make San Antonio their permanent home. They had four children: Wayne Robert, Bonnie Gail, Barbara Ann, and Frank William.

Descendants of Fritz William Herder and Dora Edna Pettit

As noted in the Herder Family History, Third Generation, all but one of Fritz's and Dora's children eventually moved away from DeWitt County. As a result, most of their grandchildren were raised in other Texas counties and even out of state. This segment of the Herder Family History will include information on only those descendants who lived some portion of their lives in DeWitt County.

Kenneth Becker was born in Yoakum and attended elementary school there. He graduated from Galena Park High School in 1953. In 1957, he received a BS Degree from the University of Oklahoma, and his Wings as Second Lieutenant from the Air Force ROTC. During his 20 years of service in the Air Force, his overseas duties were: 3 years in Vietnam, 2 years in Iran, and 1 year in Saudia Arabia. He retired as a Lt. Colonel in 1978. Kenneth married Mariella Mooney in 1957 in Oklahoma City. They had three children: Kenneth Ted, Walter Charles, and Marilee.

LaNell Staehr was born in Yoakum, but attended schools in Oklahoma City. She graduated from Central High School in 1956 and attended the University of Oklahoma for a brief time before entering the insurance field. She is a member of the Insurance Women Club of Oklahoma City, serving twice as president. She married Russell Osmond in 1961 and has one child: Timothy.

Doralyn Staehr was born in Yoakum just before Ruth and Willie moved to San Antonio. She attended schools in Oklahoma City, graduating from Northwest Chassen High School in 1959. She received a BS in Education from Central State University in 1963. She taught in Longmont, Colorado for 2 years, then 4 years in Pawnee, Oklahoma. She married Wilbur Wheatly in 1969 and moved to Augusta Kansas where she currently teaches. Doralyn has one child: Kimberly.

Mary Jean Herder was born in Washington, D.C. on November 9, 1942. She attended Yoakum schools, graduating from Yoakum High School in 1960. She received a BS degree in Education from Southwest Texas State College in 1963, and a Master's Degree in Education from the University of Houston Victoria Center in 1979. Mary Jean is married to Gene Lesley Martin and resides in Victoria, Texas, where she is currently teaching fourth grade at Shields Elementary School. Gene, who is from Troup, Texas, is a teacher at Victoria High School and a part-time real estate broker. He is a former Victoria County Commissioner. They have three children: Bret, Gene II, and Denise.

Richard Herder was born in Yoakum, on October 11, 1948. He attended Yoakum schools, graduating from Yoakum High School in 1967. He received a BS Degree in Aerospace Engineering from the University of Texas at Austin in 1971. Richard married Rebecca Annaline Golden in May 1971. Becky was also born and raised in Yoakum, attended Yoakum schools, and graduated from Yoakum High School in 1970. They reside in League City, Texas, where Richard works for Computer Sciences Corporation on a contract with Johnson Space Center. Richard and Becky have three children: Kirsta, Karen, and Liann.

The remaining 118-acres of the original 428 acres purchased by Fritz Reinhardt and Ida Herder are now jointly owned by Richard and Mary Jean. Under lease to a local rancher, this land continues to be a highly productive enterprise in DeWitt County.

HESSE, E.C. FAMILY

Edgar Cleveland Hesse, credited with taking the leading role in the pioneering of an organized turkey market in Cuero, was born in Galveston, Texas, on November 22, 1878, son of Fannie Richie and John Edgar Hesse, a longtime employee of the Mallory Steamship Line. He was educated at the Rosenberg School and Ball High School in Galveston, and the Daniel Baker College of Brownwood, Texas, which he attended on a scholarship. He was married on December 17, 1901 to Margaret Spence of Galveston, daughter of Mary Ann Topliffe and Nathaniel Ashton Spence, who operated a successful produce business in Galveston. E.C. and Margaret Hesse had two children, Algerita Alvarez Hesse, born in Brownwood on December 15, 1902, and Ashton Cleveland Hesse, born in Houston on June 10,

After leaving school and working with the Mallory Lines in Galveston, Hesse joined Edson Brothers, a cold storage business established in Houston in 1903. The Edson Brothers firm sent Hesse to Cuero in 1906 to establish an organized turkey market, as the district was one of the greatest turkey raising sections in the state.

For five years Hesse's efforts were directed toward building an Eastern and Northern market for DeWitt County and South Texas turkeys. He succeeded in making Cuero one of the greatest markets in the state. In 1910 the Cuero Packing Company was created and Hesse was elected Manager. At that time it was the only plant in Texas packing turkeys. The success of the Cuero operation led to the establishment of other plants in Yorktown, Brownwood and Lampasas, all incorporated under the name of Northern Produce Company.

At the height of its existence, the Cuero Packing Company annually shipped out as many as one-hundred-twenty-eight railroad cars of live turkeys to Eastern markets. In addition to turkeys, the packing plant also exported eggs to Cuba and Mexico.

In 1933, the plant was sold to Cudahy Packing Company of Chicago. Hesse resigned to go into business for himself, and opened a new plant, the Cuero Turkey Dressing Company. The pioneering efforts of E.C. Hesse established Cuero as the turkey marketing center of Texas.

When but a young man of twenty-two, E.C. Hesse narrowly escaped death in the hurricane of 1900, which devastated Galveston Island. His sister was visiting friends on the opposite end of the island and Hesse's father, sensing the severity of the impending storm, sent him by wagon to bring her home. When Hesse got there, his sister refused to leave because he had not come in the surry, and she was later found drowned. Hesse started back, but unable to reach home due to the rising water and high winds, he sought refuge in a church. When the church collapsed, he was literally washed out into the rapidly rising storm surge. He managed to grab hold of the Rosenberg Monument. a well known Galveston landmark, and clung there until the fury of the hurricane subsided early the next morning.

Galveston continued to play a pivotal role in the Hesse family history. Strangely enough, the next major hurricane to strike Galveston Island nearly caused Hesse to lose his wife and children. After having moved to Cuero with her husband, Margaret Spence Hesse returned to Galveston in 1915 with her two children to attend the wedding of her brother, Ramey Spence. Remaining in Cuero on business, E.C. Hesse heard radio reports of the impending Galveston storm and telephoned his wife, instructing her to leave the island immediately. Mrs. Hesse's father attempted to book them passage on the Inter-Urban, the only railroad link between Galveston and of the mainland, but all seats were taken, leaving the Hesse family with no escape.

As fate would have it, the train trestle collapsed in the storm that day and the interurban plunged into the bay with everyone on board. Margaret, Algerita and Ashton Hesse rode out the hurricane in 1915 in the Spence home in Galveston, and were finally rescued from the island by boat, all other access to the mainland having been destroyed.

The Hesse's daughter, Algerita A. Hesse, married Charles Eugene Davidson of Atlanta, Georgia, on December 26, 1923. They had one daughter, Sara Margaret, born October 10, 1924 in Victoria, Texas. On December 24, 1945, Sara Margaret married Paul Hamilton Breeden III who was born in Cuero on September 29, 1924. Their marriage produced three children, Paul Hamilton Breeden IV, born August 2, 1950 in San Antonio, Texas; Susan Margaret Breeden born October 31, 1953, and Charles Randal Breeden born August 18, 1960, both in Cuero.

On April 23, 1940, in Victoria, Texas. Ashton Hesse married Marjorie Jane Breeden of Cuero, who was born on October 14, 1915. Their four children, all born and reared in Cuero, are Nancy Ann Hesse, born July 13, 1942; Robert Cleveland Hesse, born February 24, 1946; Margaret Lynn Hesse, born September 2, 1948 and Sarah Jane Hesse, born March 5, 1950.

HEYER, GEORGE AND KATHRYN ROSE (DIETZEL)

F413

George Heyer was born August 25, 1831 at 51 Untegasse St. in Kirchheim by Marburg, Hessen-Kassel, Germany. His parents were Johann Heinrich Heyer and Margaretha Prediger.

As a young man he came to this side and resided for a time in West Texas and Indianola, settling in Austin in 1852. In Austin his health was not good and he came to Victoria, Texas. While there he employed his profession of gunsmith and locksmith in which he was familiar with before leaving the old country.

On June 5, 1856, Indianola, Texas he took as his wife, Kathryn Rose Dietzel. Kathryn was born March 1, 1836 in Sachium Weimer, Germany. There is doubt with this writer as to the actual surname of Kathryn. It has been suggested that perhaps her mother was married twice. On Kathryn's marriage to George Heyer she is listed as Kathryn Dietzel but in the newspaper obituary upon her death, she was named as Kathryn Rose Heyer. The ship records say Kathryn came to Texas in 1845, age 9, with her parents, John Dietzel and Anna nee Seifert Dietzel.

George Heyer served in the Civil War under Captain Reuss, as a Private in Company B, 8th Regiment, Texas Infantry. George was also a member of the Masonic Lodge, both in Indinaola and Cuero, Texas.

Ten children were born to George and Kathryn but I have only found information on eight of these children.

1. Fannie Margrete (Feb. 20, 1858-July 28, 1909) married George Wasserman Feb. 17, 1880. George was born April 6, 1855 and died June 23, 1934. They had four children. Both are buried in Port Lavaca, Texas.

Georgie E. was born in 1863 and died May 11, 1936. She married first, Emil Westhoff, October 17, 1884. Her second marriage was to J.L. Boicourt. She is buried in Ft. Worth,

Texas.

3. Henry Lewis was born September 13, 1865 and died August 7, 1921. In 1897 he married Sophie Louise Helena Gohmert (February 5, 1872-March 30, 1925). They had four children. They are both buried in the Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

4. Elizabeth (Betty) Marie was born March 4, 1868. She married Henry Kingsbury Hill (Aug. 21, 1857-Oct. 25, 1919) on August 19, 1888 in DeWitt County. They are buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero, Texas.

5. Robert Fred was born October 30, 1871 and died June 7, 1935. He married Elnora "Nora" Margaret Nitsche (July 7, 1875-June 12, 1965). on December 28, 1896. They had seven children. They are buried in Hillside Cemetery.

6. Josephine was born October 11, 1873 and died February 20, 1929. She married Joseph Sheridan (August 10, 1871-January 26, 1955) on December 25, 1894. They had no issue but raised the daughter of her sister Katherine and Richard Gauhl after the death of Katherine. They are buried in Hillside Cemetery.

7. George B. was born November 28, 1876 and died on November 25, 1933. He never married. He is buried in Hillside Cemetery.

8. Katherine was born May 7, 1882 and died July 17, 1904. On November 18, 1902 she married Richard E. Gauhl who was born February 23, 1879. they had one daughter. Katherine is buried mext to her parents in Hillside Cemetery. Richard E. Gauhl is also buried in Hillside Cemetery next to his second wife, Alma Junker.

George Heyer died February 18, 1914 and Kathryn Rose Dietzel Heyer died March 11, 1904 in Cuero. They are buried in HIllside Cemetery in Cuero.

HEYER, HENRY LEWIS F415

Henry Lewis Heyer, born in 1865, was one of the eight children of George Heyer, Sr. and Kathrine Ross (or Russ), mentioned elsewhere in this book. He held a number of jobs in the community, but considered himself primarily a blacksmith. In 1895, he became the first fire chief of Cuero, and served in that capacity until

Henry Lewis Heyer

In 1897, Henry L. married Sophie Louisa Helena Gohmert, daughter of Wilhelm F. Gohmert and Sophie Galle Gohmert. Sophie L. was said to have been the first child brought to the new town of Cuero from Yorktown.

Henry and Sophie had three children: William Henry, who died at age sixteen months, Hildegarde Heyer, 1904, and Henry Thompson Heyer, 1908. Hildegarde taught school in Yorktown from 1927-1930, for a starting salary of $810.00 per year. She continued her teaching career in Halletsville from 1930-1958. Henry Thompson, named for a Dr. Thompson who delivered him, was a clerk/bookkeeper for several businesses in Cuero, including Cuero Ind. Schools until his death in 1967. He played trombone in the City Band that performed at the band stand near the fire station where his father had been chief.

Henry T. married Mary Eunice Sherrod in 1934, after a seven year courtship. Eunice served as secretary to the Superintendent of Schools for many years. They had two children: Sherrod Ann (Sherry) Heyer and Henry T. (Tom) Heyer, Jr. Sherry married Glenn C. Portis of Baytown, TX., on May 27, 1961, which was the 27th wedding anniversary of Henry and Eunice. Sherry and Glenn are both teachers in the Cuero Ind. Schools. They have two sons: Stanley Wayne and Clifford Allen Portis.

Henry T. Heyer, Jr. (Tom) married Eileen Jay Marchant of Mercedes, TX. on April 30, 1966. After serving as a helicopter pilot in Viet Nam, he returned to Cuero to work at Gulf Coast Wood Products. They now live in Victoria and have three children: Laura Lee, Rhea Ann and Henry T. Heyer, III.

There have been five Henrys in this Heyer family: Henry Lewis (Heinrich) 1865-1921; William Henry (Schatze) 1902-1903; Henry Thompson (Heine) 1908-1967; Henry Thompson, Jr. (Tom) 1942-; Henry Thompson, III (Trey) 1975-.

HEYER, ROBERT FRED JR.

F416

Robert F. Heyer, Jr.

Robert Fred Heyer, Jr. was born in Cuero, Texas, October 30, 1897, the first of seven children born to Robert Fred Sr. and Elnora (Nora) Nitsche Heyer. He was married August 18, 1918 to Hulda Karoline Markowsky, youngest daughter of Gustav A. and Louisa Rosener Markowsky. To this union two children were born; Harold Dale Heyer (12/28/1922 —) and Evelyn Claire (Mrs. Ernest Meier) 10/4/1924 — —).

Robert, who was better known as "Bob", was employed by Freund Funeral Home in 1924 as funeral director and mortician. He later became manager of the business, for Mrs. Josie Freund, until his early death from tuberculosis, June 13, 1944. He was a member of the Catholic church and was very active in community affairs, serving as assistant Fire Chief, president of the Rotary Club, chairman of the City Park Board, member of the City Band and, despite the demanding duties as funeral director and time devoted to civic affairs, he made a great contribution to DeWitt County as chairman of the DeWitt County Red Cross drives, which were highly successful.

Robert's wife was born January 8, 1898 in Cuero, Texas and baptized Hulda Johanna Karoline Markowsky February 25, 1910, having been named for her sponsors, Karoline Fuhrmann, and Johanna Pieper. She was the youngest of five children born to Gustav A. and Louisa Rosener Markowsky. She grew up and attended school in Cuero and was a lifelong member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, where she was baptized and confirmed.

Like all the young ladies of the early 1900's, Hulda learned to cook and sew and do embroidery and fine needle work of all kinds. She became a good seamstress and helped her friend, Mrs. Ethel Green, who was a seamstress, in her dressmaking business until her children were born.

Hulda was married to Robert F. Heyer, Jr., August 18, 1918 in the Catholic parsonage by Rev. Hendericks. Their attendants were Lawrence Taylor and Marguerite Heyer, sister of the groom. Two children were born to this union; Harold Dale Heyer (1922) and Evelyn Claire (Mrs. Ernest Meier) (1924).

In 1928 they moved into their new home at 408 Terry St., Cuero, Texas, where the family lived for 36 years. After Mr. Heyer's death in 1944, Hulda's daughter, Evelyn Meier, and husband moved into the house, living there until 1964. When Mr. Meier was transferred to Corpus Christi, Texas, by his employer, the house was sold and Mrs. Heyer moved into an apartment. At this time she was employed by the Rialto Theatre, where she worked for about 20 years.

Hulda Markowsky Heyer died December 6, 1976 and was buried in Hillside cemetery in Cuero, Texas.

HEYER, ROBERT FRED, SR.

F417

Robert F. Heyer, Sr.

Robert Fred Heyer, Sr., was born in Indianola, Texas, December 28, 1871, the fifth child of George and Katherine Rose Heyer. He moved to Cuero, Texas with his family after the 1886 storm at Indianola. Mr. Heyer was known as "Chief" Heyer since he had been in the Cuero Volunteer Fire Service and was head of the Cuero Fire Dept. for 33 years, and president of the State Firemen's Association in 1924. He was instrumental in securing the convention to be held in Cuero in 1919. He served as City secretary for 25 years and for 35 years was associated with Runge & Co. as a plumber.

Robert and Elenora (Nora) Nitsche were married 12/28/1896. To this union seven children were born: Robert F. Jr. (10/30/1897 – 6/13/1944) married Hulda K. Karkowsky (1/8/1898 – 12/6/1976) on 8/18/1918, Joseph Nitsche Heyer (8/21/1898 – 9/18/1950) married Verna York in 1919, Marguerite Heyer (7/25/1901 – 10/13/1972) married Edwin ("Ed") Mueller in 1918, Annie (Dolly) Heyer (1/28/1905) married Seldon S. Eggleston on 4/2/1923, Lawrence W. Heyer (3/12/1909 – 3/6/1953) married Bernice Dreyer on 10/4/1937, Walter J. ("Buddy") Heyer (5/21/1912 – 1986), and Charles Heyer (9/1916 – 1969) married June Strain.

"Chief" Heyer died on June 7, 1935. His casket was taken to Hillside Cemetery, Cuero, Texas on a fire truck with Rev. Felger of Victoria, Texas, Chaplain of the State Firemen's Association, and Rev. John Kern (Lutheran minister) officiating the services.

Elnora (Nora) Nitsche (7/7/1875 – 7/12/1965), wife of Robert Fred Heyer, Sr., was born in Cuero, Texas, the first of six children of Herman and Annie Sitterlie Nitsche. Her father was born in Rounsbach, Rhine Germany in 1843 and came to Cuero in 1873. He served in the Civil War. He was a barber by trade. He died 10/10/1889 and was buried in Hillside Cemetery, Cuero, Texas. Her mother was born in Victoria, Texas in 1854 and died on 1/28/1905. She was buried in Hillside Cemetery, Cuero, Texas.

Nora went to the Nazereth Academy in Victoria, Texas, boarding with the Nuns. She was a life-long member of St. Michael's Catholic Church and for many years a member of the church choir. She was also an accomplished musician. She married Robert Fred Heyer, Sr., December 28, 1896.

Elnora Nitsche Heyer died June 12, 1965, just 24 days before her 90th birthday.

HIGH, HAROLD R., M.D.

Harold Rutledge High, M.D. was born in Canton, Texas, on May 20, 1924. His father Bonnie Dillard High, and mother Lilla Quinlen High are both buried in the Haven of Memories Cemetery in Canton, TX, Van Zandt County. Harold had no brothers or sisters. Even as a small child he was interested in medicine and decided at an early age that he wanted to become a doctor. Paula Jane Grubb was born in Mesquite, TX, Dallas County. Her father was Stanley Grubb who is buried in Houston, Texas, in the Forest Park Cemetery on Westheimer. Her mother was Eunice Vineyard Grubb who is buried in the Haven of Memories Cemetery in Canton, TX.

Harold High attended public schools in Can-

L-R: Ace High, Karen (Cantley) High, Elizabeth High, Dr. Harold High, Paula (Grubb) High and Karon High, 1984.

Rutledge High, 1989.

ton, TX. He attended North Texas Agricultural College (now the University of Texas at Arlington). His education there was interrupted by the outbreak of World War II, and he entered the service early in 1943. He served in the United States Army Air Force as a pilot — flying B-17s and B-29s — and was honorably discharged after the war in 1945. After his tenure in the Air Force, he entered Baylor University in Waco, TX. and later received his bachelor of science degree. In 1950 he entered the University of Texas Medical Branch, and received his Doctor of Medicine degree in June of 1954. While attending medical school Harold was a member of Phi Rho Sigma Fraternity, and served as rush captain and president of the fraternity.

Paula Grubbs High attended Mesquite schools and was an honor graduate of the class of 1941. She then attended the University of Texas in Austin, and received her bachelor of business administration from the university in 1945. She is a member of Alpha Chi Omega Sorority.

Harold and Paula met in Canton when she was "the girl next door" while they were both attending college. They dated for some five years, and after the war ended and they had both graduated from their respective college, they were married in Canton, TX. on December 7, 1947 in the First Baptist Church. After their marriage, Harold and Paula moved to Houston, Texas, where Harold worked as a research chemist for Shell Oil Company. Paula went to work as secretary to the corporate secretary, W. Duke Walser at Tennessee Gas Transmission Company (now Tenneco). She later was executive secretary to H. Gardiner Symonds, president and founder of the company. She was elected an assistant secretary of Tennessee Gas Transmission Company, and thereby was the first female officer of the company.

In 1950 Harold and Paula moved to Galveston, TX, where Harold attended medical school. Paula continued working for Tennessee Gas in Houston during the following four years, and commuted daily from Galveston to Houston — quite a task in those days! After graduation from medical school, the Highs moved to Fort Worth, TX, where Dr. High served his internship at the City County Hospital (now John Peter Smith Hospital). His salary there was $25.00 per month. During his year of internship Harold and Paul were faced with the decision of where they wanted to begin the medical career. Since they both had been reared in a small town and since Dr. High was very interested in family practice, they hoped to be able to bring up their family in a small town - the decision was finally made and the place was to be Cuero, TX. During the last month of his residency in Fort Worth, Dr. High was stricken with the dread disease polio and the future of the family became very questionable for the young couple who had adopted a baby girl, Karon High, born February 13, 1955. By the grace of God, Dr. High survived his bout with polio, and had no lasting effects from the disease. Nonetheless, their arrival date in Cuero was delayed by about three months, but in October of 1955 they moved to Cuero to begin his practice. His first office was established in a white frame house, owned by Marion Leonardt, where the Wineinger Optical Clinic now stands. He practiced there for about two and a half years, and built his own clinic in 1957 at 615 North Esplanade, and the clinic has had three additions since that time. (See business history)

Daughter Karon was graduated from Cuero High School in 1973 — she was in the National Honor Society, and had many honors in the high school choir, and was the Cuero band drum major. She then went to Baylor University, where she received her bachelor of fine arts degree. She is now employed by American Airlines in Dallas.

In 1959 the High family added another member, with the adoption of a son, Harold Rutledge High II, born June 29, 1959. He was promptly dubbed "Ace" by sister Karon who stated that that was the highest card in a deck! Ace was graduated from Cuero High School in 1977, an all district member of the Gobbler football team, and had honors in the high school choir. He attended SWST in San Marcos, and attended and was graduated from Incarnate Word College in San Antonio in 1984, and was honored as the 10,000th graduate of that institution. He received a bachelor of business administration in finance. In May, 1982 Ace married Karen Cantley High and they have two children: Elizabeth Renice High was born in the Cuero Community Hospital on October 16, 1983; the attending physician was her grandfather, Dr. Harold High. Dr. High also delivered his grandson, Harold Rutledge High, III in the Cuero Community Hospital. Rutledge was born on October 22, 1986. Ace is employed as an assistant vice president of the Farmers State Bank and Trust Company in Cuero, and wife Karen teaches third grade at Hunt Elementary School. Dr. and Mrs. High built their home at 1012 North Hunt St. in Cuero, and Ace and Karen are in the final stages of completing their home as of this writing.

Dr. High and Paula have both taken active roles in the medical profession and in their community. Dr. High is an active member of the Texas Academy of Family Physicians and past president of that organization, and also served as program chairman and treasurer. He is a lifetime member of the American Academy of Family Physicians, and is a charter diplomate of the American Board of Family Practice, which was recognized in February, 1969 as the 20th primary medical specialty. This medical specialty requires recertification every seven years, and Dr. High has just been recertified as of this writing. Dr. High served as a Texas delegate to the American Academy of Family Physicians, and is now serving on the Texas delegation to the American Medical Association; he is a member of the board of trustees of the Texas Medical Association and is a member of the executive committee of that board. In the community he has held offices and been active with the Camp Fire Girls organization, Gulf Bend Center for Mental Health, co-president of the Parent-Teachers Association in the school, medical examiner for the Selective Service, officer in the Cuero Industrial Foundation, director of Buchel Bank and Trust Company, trustee for 15 years with the Cuero Independent School District, City Health Officer, County Health Officer, director of the Cuero Chamber of Commerce, Sunday school teacher with First Baptist Church. In 1967 Dr. High was named the sultan of the Cuero Turkey Trot which is a single honor. He is a recipient of the Rotary Club 4-Way Award, and in 1983 received the community service award from the Cuero Chamber of Commerce.

Paula has been active with the Camp Fire Girls organization, as a director and president, co-president of the Parent-Teachers Association in the elementary school, president of the Cuero Community Hospital Auxiliary, also served on the landscape committee, member of the Hawthorne Club, University Club, co-chairman of the business office for the 1972 Turkey Trot (Centennial), co-chairman of the 1967 Turkey Trot Junior Coronation, board of directors of the Cuero Chamber of Commerce and agriculture, social chairman and on board of directors of the Cuero Country Club, board member of the Gulf Bend Center for Mental Health. In 1981 Paula organized the auxiliary for the Texas Academy of Family Physicians, and was elected to two consecutive terms as president.

HILL, AMOS ADAMS AND ALICE AMANDA (WHITE)

F419

Amos Adams Hill was a direct descendant of Peter Hill who arrived in America about 1632, aboard the ship Huntress, that sailed from Plymouth, England.

Amos Adams Hill was born in Conway, Carroll County, New Hampshire on June 27, 1802. His parents were Henry Hill and Anna Harriman.

Amos Adams went to sea when quite young. While in Canada in about 1826/1827, he married Alice Amanda White. Alice Amanda was born November 26, 1808 in Canada.

To this union were born five children, three of whom reached adulthood. Amanda Melissa, the first born, was born in Canada on February 8, 1828. She married a Mr. Rice and died sometime after 1897 in San Francisco, California.

Henry Felix White Hill was the second child of Amos and Alice. He was born in Canada, November 30, 1829. He married Susan Seamour Garey in DeWitt County, Texas. Susan came to Texas with her parents in 1839. (See Hill, Henry Felix White and Susan Seamour Garey).

In the early 1830's, Amos and Alice were residing in Massachusetts. Their third child, George Nelson was born December 20, 1832 in Massachusetts. He died there on August 16, 1833. The fourth child was also born and died in Massachusetts. He was John Prentiss, born December 26, 1835 and died October 12, 1839.

While still in Massachusetts, their fifth child was born. She was named Maria Delano, born June 27, 1841.

Amos and Alice arrived in DeWitt County about 1845. On June 27, 1861 Marian Delano married William Cherry. Maria Delano Hill Cherry died January 19, 1866. Her daughter, Alice Clementine, lived with her grandmother, Alice Hill, after her mother's death. It is not known at this time, what happened thereafter to William Cherry, or his daughter, Alice Clementine.

Amos Adams Hill was a saddler by trade. After his arrival in Texas, he had his first Saddle Shop in the vicinity of Cameron, DeWitt County, Texas. He also served as a J.P. in this county.

Amos Adams was also a very active member of the Hebron Baptist Church and served as a Deacon

Amos Adams Hill died May 10, 1868 and Alice died January 11, 1872. They are both buried in unmarked graves in the Hebron Cemetery.

HILL, HENRY FELIX WHITE AND SUSAN SEAMOUR (GAREY)

Henry Felix White Hill was born November 30, 1829 in Canada. He was the second child of Amos Adams Hill and Alice Amanda White. He was a seaman and traveled to many distant ports before settling in DeWitt County with his parents in about 1847.

On June 20, 1852 in Clinton, Texas he married Susan Seamour Garey, born July 15. 1835 in Ohio. Her parents were Seamour Garey and Anna Kingsbury. Henry Felix White Hill was elected Mayor of Cuero in April of 1882 and held that office by constant reelection until 1894. In 1889 he was elected J.P. and continued to hold that office until his death. Henry was a saddler by trade before becoming Mayor of Cuero. He owned two farms on Brushy Creek before moving into Cuero. Henry Felix White Hill died July 29, 1895 at 8:00 p.m. at his home in Cuero. His funeral was held at 5 p.m. on July 30, 1895. The Reverend A.H.P. McCurdy conducted the funeral services and the Fire Department served as escorts. He was buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

Susan Seamour (Garey) Hill died February 29, 1908. She was buried March 1, 1908 beside Henry in the Hillside Cemetery in Cuero. In 1839 Seamour Garey, father of Susan Hill, was granted 640 acres near Clinton, Texas.

Henry and Susan Hill were the parents of seven children: Annie Amanda was born July 27, 1853. She married George Leander Alexander on October 28, 1868. They had 15 children. Annie died February 2, 1930 and George died February 26, 1911. They are buried in the Alexander Cemetery at Stratton, Texas.

The second child was Amos Prentiss, born December 21, 1854. He married Mrs. Martha Jane (Lee) Carr on August 28, 1875. Martha was born October 25, 1852 in Mississippi. Amos and Martha had three children. They are buried in the Hebron Cemetery located by the Hebron Baptist Church. Amos died October 19, 1939 and Martha died June 20, 1937.

The third child born to Henry and Susan Hill was Henry Kingsbury. Henry was born August 21, 1857 in DeWitt County. (See Hill, Henry Kingsbury and Elizabeth Marie Heyer History).

The fourth child was Rosaline who was born on January 6, 1859. She married Joaquin Casal on September 21, 1879. Joaquin was born in Spain November 11, 1839. Rosaline and Joaquin had eight children. Rosaline died June 6, 1939 and Joaquin died April 28, 1913. They are buried in the Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

The fifth child was Susan Delano, born March 26, 1861 and died September 25, 1866. She is buried in an unmarked grave in the Cuero area.

The sixth child of Henry and Susan Hill was Emma Francis, born August 26, 1864. She married John Henry Clayton on December 22, 1880. Emma Francis died November 26, 1955 in Kerrville, Texas and is buried there. John Henry died December 17, 1927. They had 2 children.

The seventh child was Harriet Nellie, born March 9, 1869. She married, on August 9, 1885, Samuel Marie, born October 30, 1864. They had nine children. Harriet Nellie died May 17, 1932 and Samuel died February 13, 1933. Both are buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

HILL, HENRY KINGSBURY AND ELIZABETH MARIE (HEYER)

F421

Henry Kingsbury was the third child of Henry Felix White Hill and Susan Seamour Garey. He was born August 21, 1857 in DeWitt County, Texas. On August 19, 1888 he took for his bride, Elizabeth Marie Heyer. They were married in DeWitt County.

Elizabeth Marie Heyer was born on March 4, 1868 in Indianola, Calhoun County, Texas. She was the daughter of George Heyer and Kathryn Rose, who were both born in Germany. George Heyer moved his family to DeWitt County after the 1886 storm in Indianola. A newspaper clipping states, "Mrs. E. Westhoff and child, Mrs. Heyer and daughters, Misses Bettie and Josephine, Katie and Master George Heyer, and Miss Annie Westhoff were carried across the bayou clinging to pieces of debris. The infant child of Mrs. Westhoff was pulled under the waters three times but each time was saved from drowning by her mother.'

Henry and Elizabeth had five children. The first child was Florence Elizabeth, born June 10, 1889 in Yoakum, Texas. She married first, Elmo Dunn Green, on June 10, 1906. He was born January 13, 1882 in Hot Springs, Garland County, Arkansas. To this union four children were born. Florence and Elmo Green divorced and she married Oscar Fredrick Swanson on June 20, 1927. There were no children born to this union. Florence Elizabeth died June 27, 1952 and Oscar died June 9, 1936. They are buried in Victoria, Texas.

The second child was Claude Henry. He was born in Rockport, Texas on January 23, 1892. On December 24, 1916 in Waxahachie, Texas he married Mittie Juanita Ralston, born July 12, 1899. They had seven children. Claude Henry died on November 19, 1953 and Mittie Juanita died July 29, 1978. Both are buried in Victoria, Texas.

The third child was Katherine Susan. She was born February 14, 1900 on the property of the CPL Dam just outside Cuero. (See Hill, Katherine Susan and Hubert Adam Pasley).

The fourth child was Elizabeth May or "Dimples" as she was affectionately called. "Dimples" was born September 9, 1904. On September 5, 1928 she married Alvin Thomas Hill (no relation). There were no children born to this union. Elizabeth died August 25, 1979 and Alvin died April 25, 1966. They are buried in Memory Gardens in Victoria, Texas.

The fifth child of Henry and Elizabeth was Fannie Josephine, born July 16, 1909 in Vanderbilt, Texas. She married Walter Henry McMullin in Victoria, Texas. To this union two children were born. Walter Henry McMullin was born April 16, 1912. He is buried in the Evergreen Cemetery in Victoria, Texas.

Henry Kingsbury helped in the construction of the CPL Dam, owned by Otto Buchel, in DeWitt County and also worked for the railroad. He died in Waxahachie, Texas on October 25, 1919 and was brought back to Cuero for burial in Hillside Cemetery.

Before Elizabeth Heyer married Henry Kingsbury Hill, she and one of her brothers had a dancing school in Indianola, Texas. Elizabeth Marie Heyer Hill died in Victoria, Texas and is buried in Hillside Cemetery beside Henry Kingsbury. She died June 4, 1947 in Victoria, Texas.

HILLER, FELIX

Felix and Bertha Hiller 1923

Felix Hiller, second child and oldest son of Fritz and Pauline Hiller and grandson of Friedrich and Anna Martha Hiller (see histories) was born July 3, 1899 in DeWitt County. He was baptized Felix George Friedrich at St. Peter and Paul's Catholic Church at Meyersville. He attended school at Green DeWitt.

In 1915 Felix went to Automobile Mechanics School in Kansas City, MO. After completing school, he returned to Cuero and worked with an electrician before opening a mechanic shop with the Rath Brothers. In early 1923 Felix moved to Graham, Texas as Ford mechanic shop foreman for LeSage Ford Agency.

On April 24, 1923 Felix married Bertha Elenora Koenig, eleventh child and sixth daughter of Louis and Mary Golly Koenig (see history) in St. Michael's Catholic Church in Cuero. Bertha was born Sept. 24, 1898 in DeWitt County; died April 7, 1981; is buried at Hillside Cemetery, Cuero. Felix and Bertha had four children: Pauline Marie, Kathleen Agnes, Anna Lea and Francis Kenneth "Bubba."

In 1928 after the birth of their third daughter in Graham, Felix moved his family back to Cuero to take over his father's land and cattle interests. At that time he began working for Gulf Oil Company, first operating a Service Station on East Main and then on South Railroad and Esplanade. He retired from Gulf Oil in 1965. During the 30's until 1942, Felix also sold Plymouth and DeSoto cars. Felix continued ranching on the Guadalupe river land purchased by his grandfather Friedrich in 1898. Today this river land is recognized by the Texas Land Heritage Registry for 100 years of continuous family ownership and operation.

Felix and Bertha Hiller were lifelong members of St. Michael's Catholic Church, active in church organizations and particularly supportive of St. Michael's School. Bertha attended high school at St. Michael's, and the daughters of Felix and Bertha as well as their grandchildren and great grandchildren who lived in the Cuero vicinity all attended St. Michael's School.

Felix and Bertha Hiller had great pride in their families and their German heritages, and a unique closeness to their parents, brothers and sisters. Their special care for the welfare and future of their son, Bubba, born with cerebral palsy, reflects their love and dedication to family. Their legacy is one of traditional German customs passed down, values learned, strong faith with cherished memories and a strong family commitment.

The children of Felix and Bertha Hiller with each of their families are:

- Pauline Marie, born March 26, 1924, married Eugene Francis Kacir Nov. 22, 1945: children:

HILLER, FRIEDRICH

A pioneer settler of DeWitt County, Friedrich Hiller came to America in 1852 from Dettingen/Erms, Black Forest District, Kingdom of Wurttemberg, Germany. He arrived at Indianola on June 2nd with his stepfather Johann Martin Rath, his half-brothers Johann Peter Rath and Johann Hermann, his half-sister Heinrike Rath, and his brother Johann Michael Hiller.

Friedrich was born in Dettingen/Erms on April 21, 1836, son of Johann Adam Hiller and Rosina Catherina Linder Hermann. He was baptized Georg Friedrich in the Lutheran Church of Dettingen/Erms where records of his ancestry are located.

On Nov. 25, 1857 Friedrich purchased his first land in DeWitt County, 240 acres on the southwest side of the 12-mile Coleto Creek, adding 75.5 acres in 1884. There on this virgin land, he built a one-room log cabin with grass roof and dirt floor as his home, and hand dug a well to supplement water from the creek. He cleared enough of the land to plant crops, particularly onions and potatoes, which he took by wagon to San Antonio to sell; the trip, according to family history, taking two weeks. On Feb. 6, 1860 Friedrich registered his first cattle brand. He raised cattle and horses on this land with its tall grasses and abundant oak trees.

Freidrich was a very religious man and became one of the first parishioners of St. John's Evangelical Church at Meyersville. On June 13, 1859 he signed the revised constitution of the first church. On Feb. 19, 1860 Friedrich married Anna Martha Heckmann in St. John's. Anna Martha had come to America in 1859 from Heina, Hessen, Kassel, Germany with her sisters Dorothea and Annie Elizabeth. Anna Martha died Nov. 27, 1884. She is buried at St. John's Cemetery.

Friedrich joined the Coleto Creek Guards on Feb. 15, 1858. This was a Texas Militia unit with headquarters at Meyersville organized by Robert Kleberg to repel invasion by the Karankawa and Tonkawa Indians who frequented the land.

On July 12, 1862 Friedrich enlisted at Indianola in the Confederate Army. He served with Co. B, 8 Regiment Texas Infantry stationed at Battery Green, Defenses of Galveston until the regiment was ordered discharged May 22, 1865.

Friedrich and Anna Martha had six children: Anna Margarethe Kathrine, born March 16, 1861, died Feb. 9, 1863; Dorothea Heinricke, born July 10, 1862, died July 8, 1869; Friedericka Sophie, born Jan. 25, 1868, married Fritz Junker Feb. 6, 1894, died May 1, 1939; Johann Adam Friedrich (Fritz), born April 17, 1870 (see Fritz Hiller history), married Maria Paulina Semmler Jan. 21, 1897, died May 26, 1930; Michael Heinrich Julius, born July 24, 1872, married Amelia Arnecke May 30, 1895, died March 4, 1939; Amalie Elizabeth Kathrine, born May 8, 1874, married Otto Schultz Jan. 30, 1901, died July 27, 1952.

On Jan. 7, 1889 Friedrich purchased 214 acres of land, and 10 acres adjoining in 1891, on the southwest bank of the Guadalupe River, some 25 miles northeast of the 315.5 acres he owned on the Coleto. He built a home and barns on this river land and moved there with his children. He farmed and raised cattle with his family. In the winter they drove their cattle by horseback the 25 miles from the Coleto land to winter on the river bottom land. In 1989 the Friedrich Hiller descendants operating this Guadalupe River land were recognized by the Texas Land Heritage Registry for more than 100 years of continuous family ownership and operation.

Friedrich Hiller became an American citizen on July 11, 1891.

Friedrich Hiller instilled in his children the customs and traditions of his native Germany as well as their close family relationships. His special love of the land has been passed down through the generations. His strong faith was evident all his life as he remained a devoted member of St. John's. All his children were baptized and confirmed at St. John's. After Friedrich moved to the river land, he drove every Sunday by buggy from his home there to St. John's to attend services and visit with longtime friends. They are remembered gathering early on the benches outside the church to socialize and speak together in their native German.

Friedrich Hiller died Jan. 8, 1915. He is buried at St. John's, Meyersville.

HILLER, J.A.F. (FRITZ)

Johann Adam Friedrich (Fritz) Hiller, oldest son of Friedrich and Anna Martha Hiller was born at Meyersville April 17, 1870 (see Friedrich Hiller history). In 1889, at the age of 18, he moved with his father, sisters and brother from the Meyersville area land on the Coleto Creek that his father had purchased in 1852 to the acreage on the Guadalupe River, four miles southeast of Cuero purchased by his father at that time. There he assisted his father in raising cattle on the Coleto land and farming the river land.

In 1896 Fritz built a house about 50 yards from the family home. On Jan. 21, 1897 Fritz married Maria Paulina Semmler in St. Peter and Paul's Catholic Church at Meyersville. Maria Paulina Semmler was born June 19, 1868 in Meyersville, daughter of Konrad Semmler and Maria Dreyer. (Conrad Semmler immigrated to America as a young man from Germany. Maria Dreyer came to America from Ceishaus, Alsace in 1856.)

Fritz and Pauline Hiller had six children: Edwina Elferia, born Sept. 28, 1897, married Paul Hausmann Jan. 4, 1933, died Feb. 6, 1989; Felix George Friedrich (see Felix Hiller history), born July 3, 1899, married Bertha Elenora Koenig April 24, 1923, died Sept. 24, 1982; Anna Mary (known as Anna May), born Jan. 6, 1902, married Hugo Buehrig Nov. 14, 1923, died July 25, 1987; Ervin John, born Aug. 24, 1903, married Dolly Ashley in 1935, died Sept. 16, 1977; Annie, born April 6, 1909, died same day; Margaret Lillian, born May 17, 1914, died Feb. 8, 1936.

On March 24, 1898 Fritz Hiller registered his cattle brand, the FP Bar, which brand has been used continuously since that time by the family on the Guadalupe River land.

In 1901 after the marriage of Fritz's youngest sister, Fritz moved his family into the family home on the river land with his father. In 1905 Fritz purchased the 224 acres of land on the Guadalupe River from his father. He farmed the land, raising vegetables, corn and cotton. He sold vegetables in town, particularly watermelons. He raised cattle, horses, chickens, turkeys and pigs. In the fall he harvested pecans from the pecan orchard in the river bottom. He continued the cattle operation on the Coleto Creek land with his father.

In 1910 Fritz purchased 100 acres of land in the Charles Amsler League. This land was farmed for many years by his sister, and later by his daughter Anna May and her husband Hugo Buehrig. Today the farm operation continues by the family.

The oldest children of Fritz and Pauline Hiller were educated at Green DeWitt. The oldest son, Felix, later went to automobile mechanic school in MO, and the youngest son, Ervin, went to business school in Tyler. Their youngest daughter, Lillian, attended St. Michael's, Cuero High School, and Southwest Texas at San Marcos. She was teaching at Terryville at the time of her death. Edwina, the oldest daughter, worked in Cuero until a few years before her death. Anna May farmed and operated a dairy with her husband.

After the death of Fritz's father Friedrich in 1915, Fritz purchased the land interests of his sisters and brother in the 315.5 acres on the 12mile Coleto. In 1916 Fritz purchased 134.5 acres adjoining this Coleto land. Together with his wife and children, Fritz raised cattle on the Coleto Creek land and farmed the Guadalupe River land where he lived.

Fritz and Pauline were devout Christians. Fritz remained a member of St. John's at Meyersville until after the death of his father; then attended services at Cuero. Pauline was a member of St. Peter's and Paul's at Meyersville until 1900 when she joined St. Michael's at Cuero. She, along with her children, were active in the work of the parish and the organizations. In 1978 the children of Fritz and Pauline donated a stained glass window "The Ascension of our Lord" in the main auditorium of St. Michael's in their memory.

Fritz Hiller died May 26, 1930. Pauline Hiller died Nov. 20, 1941. They are buried at Hillside Cemetery.

HOCH, HERBERT R. FAMILY

F427

Herbert R. Hoch and Loula Gates Hoch lived their entire married life in DeWitt County and Gonzales County. Herbert was born in Hochheim (DeWitt County) on September 25, 1890 and was the great-grandson of Volentine Hoch who arrived from the southern part of Germany in 1846 and constructed a home made of rock mined from the Guadalupe River valley. The rock home still stands and served as a stopping off place for other immigrants arriving in Indianola and making their way to Austin and other parts of the United States. Volentine Hoch was the father of August Hoch, the father of Emil F. Hoch, the father of Herbert R. Hoch.

Loula Gates Hoch was born in LaSalle County on July 23, 1888 and was a direct descendant of Samuel Hardin Gates who came to Texas in the early 1800s and was in the Texas War for Independence, Battle of Gonzales and assisted in transferring families to safety before the Battle of San Jacinto. Loula grew up in San Antonio and became a nurse. While attending a patient in Cheapside she met and married Herbert R. Hoch in 1911.

Herbert and Loula made their living farming and ranching in DeWitt County and Gonzales County. They were the parents of two sons Herbert Emil Hoch, Jr. (1916-1966) and C.W. Hoch a retired construction executive and banker who lives in San Antonio. Herbert Emil Hoch, Jr. married DeWitt County resident Mabel Glover, now deceased. They were the parents of Mrs. Betty Hoch Brunasso (Houston) and Mrs. Barbara Hoch Lenk (Mesquite).

Herbert R. Hoch died in 1967 and Loula Hoch died in 1981. They are buried in the Hochheim Cemetery.

HOCH, VALENTINE

"Between 1844 and 1847 some 60 ships brought more than 7,000 Germans to Texas. Arriving at Galveston, they were transferred to smaller crafts and taken to Karlshafen. From there they had to go North to New Braunfels. Because of the shortage of funds and lack of wagons for transportation, most of these immigrants made the trip by foot. It is estimated that more than 300 died and were buried along the way". These people came to Texas under the auspices of an organized emigration company, for short, The Adelsverein. The Verein promised 360 acres of land to a married man and 180 acres to single men. The promise of land and surely prosperity interested the residents of Obershonau, Germany, one of them being Valentine Hoch and his wife Elisabeth Pabst.

On September 27, 1845, Valentine Hoch, his wife, and children, August, Martha, Aminda, and Fredericka, and possibly a baby supposedly born in August 1845, sailed from the port of Bremen on the Ship Everhard, bound for Galveston, Texas. Hopefully they would reach their destination on land Prince Karl Solms-Braunfels had chosen for them to settle by the New Year. The ship, with 287 Verein emigrants landed at Galveston in December 1845. The Hoch family then boarded a smaller vessel to the port of Carlshafen (Indianola) The rigors of the trip from Bremen to Indianola were too much for Elisabeth Pabst Hoch and she died upon reaching port. Valentine buried his wife in a wooden box in a graveyard outside Indianola. Family indicates that the small Hoch baby had died at sea.

Valentine Hoch and his remaining family proceeded inland towards their destination. Events of the next few years are not known and probably never will be, but in any event, Valentine Hoch did receive the Certificate which entitled him to locate his promised 360 acres of land. According to records at the Land Office in Austin, Texas, 640 acres of land was located in Commanche County by virtue of the Hoch Certificate. Many land recipients in the Fisher-Miller Grant were not able to settle on their land for a good while, due to the Indian Tribes who occupied the land and the constant Indian raids upon the would-be settlers. When Valentine Hoch actually chose DeWitt County to be his home in immaterial, but is known that he purchased 45 acres of land in the area of what is today Hochheim in 1848. According to 1850 Census, Hoch and his children wee established at Hochheim.

Unlike many families who built temporary dwellings, Hoch, who was a stone mason, decided to build a substantial house. The building consists of two and one-half stories with a small cellar underneath the kitchen area. Before he could even begin building, he spent several years in preparation. Lime and sand needed to make mortar was made by stacking a layer of wood beneath a layer of sandstone and burning it, then separating the lime from the waste by sifting the ashes. Stones were quarried by hand from the nearby Guadalupe River and hauled to the site on a sled. Over the front door is the inscription "V. Hoch 1857", which is assumed to be the completion date. The sturdy two-story rock house that Hoch built was near the regular stage line between Indianola and Austin. Although Hoch did not build his house for a stage stop, it soon became known that one could partake of a good meal and if need be, spend a night. August Hoch, Valentine's son, was learning to repair harness and make saddles, a service always needed by the horse-drawn freighters that passed by the Hoch place. A short distance to the South of the large house, Valentine Hoch built a one room house, also of native sandstone, which was used as a saddle shop by August Hoch and his stepbrother, Julius Flemming.

In 1854, before the rock house was complete, Valentine Hoch received word, obviously brought by someone on one of the numerous freight wagons passing by, that there was a certain Mrs. Flemming, a widow with two children, living at Indianola. She was eligible, and she was available. Valentine Hoch and Johanna Flemming were married in Calhoun County on August 18, 1854. Johanna's two children were Julius and Ann. The combined family of eight lived in temporary quarters while Hoch continued to build the rock house. Work had to proceed a little faster now that Johanna was expecting their first child. Matilda Hoch, the first child, was born Feb. 24, 1857. Emma, the next child was born in 1859, followed by Theodore in 1861 and Molly in

Valentine Hoch was born October 15, 1808 in Obershonau, Germany to Franz Hoch and Margaretha Elisabetha Hafner according to Evangalische Church Records of Steinbach-Hallenberg, Germany. He died in Texas July 7, 1890 and Johanna Flemming Hoch died in 1896

Valentine Hoch's heritage continues. The house he built still stands. It remained in the Hoch family until long after the children were grown and married. After the death of Hoch's wife, Johanna, the site was sold to an adjoining neighbor, Val. Bennet. In 1953, Lucille Bennett Boothe had the house carefully restored to its original condition. The home was awarded a medallion by the Texas Historical Society.

The children of Valentine Hoch (actually baptized Johann Valtin) and Elisabeth Pabst were: Frederich (1832) died in Germany; August (1834) married Caroline Hornburg; Martha Maria (1838) married James Schwab; Aminda (1840) married Jacob Weber and Martin Otten; Frederike Wilhelmina (1840) married Christoph Fell; Frederich Theodore (1845) died at sea. The children of Valentine Hoch and Johanna Flemming were: Mathilda (1857) married Otto Riebe; Emma (1859) married William Allen; Theodore Hoch (1861) married Mollie Schwab; Mollie (1865) married Charles Clark. Julius Flemming (1850) married Hilda Otten and Ann Flemming married in Gonzales, Texas.

HODGES, JAMES PINKNEY

James Pinkney Hodges, 1867-1932.

James Pinkney Hodges was born June 3, 1867 in Weesatche, Goliad County, Texas to Daniel and Francis Caroline (Wofford) Hodges. James lived with his family in Weesatche until leaving home at an early age to work for the Taylors. The Taylors considered him too young to go on the roundups or cattle drives as it took rugged men to be cowboys in those early days of Texas.

On December 13, 1889 James married Talitha Nora Rice, daughter of Thomas Richard and Martha (Alexander) Rice in Stratton, DeWitt County. It is not known how they met but James could have been visiting his half-sister Alice who married Oren Rice and lived near Stratton. James and Talitha ranched near Stratton and in Morales, Jackson County. To this union seven children were born Daniel, Lola Ann, Charles Allison, Bonnie Blanche, Alpha Belle, Jessie Lea and Thelma Elaine.

1904 brought a drastic change in this young and happy family. Mother Talitha died January 9, 1904, after giving birth to Thelma Elaine in December. The baby died in May. Then Daniel, the oldest son, died age eleven on October 4. Grandfather Daniel Wofford then died in December. Times were hard for this young father so Talitha's grave, in the Alexander plot of the Alexander Cemetery, has only a rock with TNH carved into it. The children's graves are unmarked.

The children were separated and put with aunts and uncles for a year while James went into the Indian Territory of Oklahoma with a herd of cattle to fatten for the eastern market. On his return he decided that he and the children must make a new start. The children and a few possessions were loaded into a covered wagon for the trip west to Mills County whee Uncle Ben Alexander lived with his two sons. James farmed for a year then decided to move further west to Schleicher County, where his brother-in-law Charles Rice lived. James got a job running a ranch known as the Evans and Doty ranch which he eventually bought. The ranch was about seventeen miles from Eldorado. The children attended a one room school, then had to board in Eldorado to attend high school. These children had a unique life having to take care of themselves while learning to do all required to keep a house. Lola at twelve was in charge so naturally there were many disasters.

James ranched in Schleicher County for years and finally moved into Eldorado where he served as a deputy sheriff. After Jessie married and left home James married Pearl O'Harrow. They had one child Omega.

James died March 12, 1932 in Junction, Texas where he was living with his daughter Bonnie Bannowsky.

Lola Ann married Louis Shugart. They had five children Alton, Sladen, Talitha, Calvin and Edward. They lived in Phoenix, Arizona.

Bonnie Blanche married Clarence Bannowsky. Their children are Clarence, Jr., Alfred, and Bernese. They lived at San Leandro, California.

Alpha Belle married Alfred Bay. They raised their family in Chico, California.

Jessie Lea (1901-1977) married Walter McFall in Schleicher County. They ranched in San Saba and Mills County. They had two daughters Jessie Irene and Earline. Jessie Irene married first Carter Garland and had Carlene and Royce Rex. Then she married Delman Sawyer and had Leman Pat (Buzz).

Earline married Lloyd Rumsey in Tom Green County in 1946 and had two children, Jan Ellen and Ronald Louis. Jan married Roy Wimmer and has one son Lance. Louis married Anne O'Keefe and has two children Kathryn and Stephen Louis.

HOERIG, ALFRED O. F434

"Hoerig's in Cuero"

It was in June of 1988 that the Search Committee of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Cuero contacted Alfred O. Hoerig. In the discussions and meetings to follow it was determined that St. Mark's would call Pastor Hoerig to serve this congregation. He answered the call affirmatively and brought his family to Cuero in August of 1988. He began work in the congregation in September.

During the time the Search Committee was meeting with Pastor, his wife, Patricia, was initiating plans to secure a teaching position in the Cuero Independent School District. Their daughter, Krista, was making plans for her Senior year at Trinity University, San Antonio and their son, Karl, was participating by "long distance." He was spending his second year as a staff member of Philmont Scout Ranch and Explorer Base, Cimarron, New Mexico. He was also preparing himself for his first year at The University of Texas at Austin. Pastor Al, Patty, Krista and Karl were all finally settled in the parsonage at 406 N. Esplanade, the last days of August, 1988.

Karl had to be at school a little earlier than Krista. But, by Labor Day, the parsonage had only Pastor and Patty on a daily basis. There was no small amount of excitement though. As plans were being finalized for the official Installation of the Pastor, a hurricane was brewing off the coast. If the hurricane were to make land-fall anywhere between Corpus Christi and Houston, Cuero would have severe weather. Plans were made for the installation to take place on Sunday afternoon, September 18, in spite of the prediction for stormy weather on the Friday or Saturday before. The storm did not materialize and the installation did. The Rev. Arnold P. Moede, formerly a missionary to Libera, Africa, representing the Southwestern Texas Synod of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, officiated at the afternoon installation.

Patty taught fourth grade at Hunt Elementary School in 1988-89. Karl went to The University, excited about being in the Plan II Honors Program. Krista graduated Cum Laude from Trinity University in May 1989 and married Daniel Calvin Bell in June. One year after their move to Cuero, Patty is again teaching fourth grade at Hunt. Karl is back at The University after his third year on the staff at Philmont. Krista and Dan live in Elgin, Texas. Dan works for United Parcel Service and Krista teaches first grade in Bastrop. Pastor Al has become active in the Lions Club, Ministerial Alliance and is an adult leader of Boy Scouts of America. This in addition to the regular duties of the pastor at St. Mark's Lutheran Church.

HOFF, MISS CAROL F435

Yorktown's internationally known author and educator, Miss Carol Hoff.

Yorktown's illustrious educator and author was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoff, Sr. She obtained a law degree from the University of Texas and a Master of Library Science from Texas Arizona. She was a librarian at the old Victoria Bronte Public Library and also a long-time teacher and librarian at Victoria College and Yorktown High School.

Miss Hoff is well known for her children's books. Her best-known work, Johnny Texas, written in 1950, won the coveted first Charles W. Follett Award for children's literature, the Texas Institute of Letters Cokesbury Award, and the Junior Book Award Certificate of the Boy's Clubs of America. The book has had more than 17 printings and was republished in 1977. At that time it won international acclaim when it was translated into German at Stuttgart, Germany. The story is about an immigrant family on the Texas frontier prior to the Texas Revolution.

Other books published by Miss Hoff include Wilderness Pioneer, Johnny Texas on the San Antonio Road, The Four Friends, and Chris.

Miss Hoff, 79, died in July 1979 and is buried in the Westside Cemetery in Yorktown.

50 year anniversary – Edwina (Wendel) Hoff and Elmo Hoff

Elmo Hoff and Edwina Wendel were married in the St. John's Lutheran Church in Meyersville, Texas by Rev. Heinrich. Elmo, son of Alois and Bertha Schrade Hoff was born in Shroeder, Goliad Co. March 25, 1914. Edwina was born in Meyersville Aug. 26, 1914 to Fred and Amalia (Diebel) Wendel whose story is given separately.

Elmo and Edwina lived in Goliad Co. for a few months before moving to the Five-Mile community near Cuero where they rented a large house with indoor plumbing and a hundred acres of land for ten dollars a month from Mrs. William Holzapfel. These were depression days but happy days. They raised corn, cotton, chickens, hogs, sheep and many turkeys. They made many friends in the Five-Mile Community.

After five years on the Holzapfel place they bought 110 acres of land in Shroeder, near Elmo's parents. With the help of their parents and family they built a small three room house, adding more rooms as the years went by.

They joined St. Luke's Lutheran Church in Schroeder. Elmo served as treasurer and councilman for many years. Edwina also took an active part in church and community activities.

In 1945, together with five other couples they organized a bridge club. Everybody took their children to these parties. How they could play bridge and watch nine children at the same time is a real mystery. At one party the weather was freezing. The water was drained out of the car radiators to keep them from freezing and breaking. After the party was over, ice was broken on the water trough to get water to fill the radiators again so that everybody could go back home again. This bridge club is still active after forty-four years.

After seven years of marriage the Hoffs were blessed with a baby girl, Sandra Kay, born Nov. 14, 1942. She married Larry Volkmer, son of Lawrence and Enola Groll Volkmer, on Aug. 26, 1962. Larry was born July 15, 1941. They have two daughters, Sonya Sue, born Aug. 29, 1963 and Rae Jean, born June 2, 1965. Larry served in the armed forces for two years and is employed by the fire department for the city of Victoria. Sandra is office manager for Dr. Richard Sawyers. Sonya Sue graduated from Victoria College and is employed by Pratt Insurance. Rae Jean graduated from Victoria High School, attended Victoria College and is employed by Thomas Petroleum.

HOFFMAN, JULIUS FAMILY

F437

Julius Hoffman was b. 25 Nov. 1861 in Eiselben, Saxony Province, Germany. His parents were Julius Hoffmann and Heinriette Bergmann. He married Bertha Rabenaldt on 2 Sept. 1883 in the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Voigtstedt, Germany. (Bertha Rabenaldt was the first child of Karl and Amelia Rabenaldt to make the voyage to America).

Julius and his bride of only a few months, arrived at the port of Galveston on 30 Oct., 1883. Julius Hoffmann's occupation was that of a farmer.

HOFFMANN, WILLIE, JR. AND ANN (PIEHL) F438

Hoffman Bar 4 H (A Texas Land Heritage Ranch)

Faced with dismal financial and social prospects in their native Germany, the families of Peter Rath and Hulda Thieme decided to immigrate to Texas sometime around 1847. In their searches for new homes, they settled permanently in the Arneckeville area of DeWitt County. Peter Rath and Hulda Thieme married. They grazed cattle and raised corn and cotton, along with their eight children: Fred; twins, Kate and Johanna; Mary; Albert; Emma; Annie; and John. They were active in settling the area and were members of Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church in Arneckeville, Texas. On January 26, 1887, they purchased 280 acres from Michael Sager, who had bought the land a year earlier from Samuel Lane. This acreage was in the Green DeWitt Survey on the Guadalupe River.

In 1895, Fred Rath purchased 140 acres of

the 280 acres previously purchased by his parents in 1887. Fred married Pauline Nagel. They had one daughter named Lydia. Lydia died at an early age. Pauline died shortly thereafter. Fred then married Annie Mary Bade. Fred and Annie expanded the livestock operation to include milk-cows and hogs. They raised cotton and corn and had a truck garden. Fred was a skilled carpenter who helped build some homes in the area as well as the present Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church in Arneckeville. He and Annie had four children: Dorathea Hulda, Emelia Mary, Edward Arthur, and Cornelius Peter. All of the children except Dorathea eventually moved away from the ranch. Dorathea stayed at home to care for her parents and looked after the land and live-

The other daughter, Emelia, married Willie Hoffmann, Sr., the son of August and Sophie Knaak Hoffmann who also lived in the area. Emelia and Willie had one son, Willie Hoffmann, Jr.

Upon the death of Fred in 1947, and later the death of Annie in 1956, the land was divided between their children. Emelia and her husband, Willie, and Dorathea continued with the ranch operation. In 1957, Willie, Jr. and his wife, Ann Piehl Hoffmann, began to acquire the acreage. They operated the ranch with his parents. By 1978, Willie and Ann had acquired all of the original 140 acres. Willie was employed by a major oil company as an administrator. This necessitated living away from the area; but they always lived near enough to travel back and forth to care for the ranch with the help of their three sons. Their sons were Frederick Willie, Harold Keith, and Robert Wayne. Fred Willie, who is now married to Paula Kay McGee, had two sons by his first marriage to Rebecca Louise Thompson. Their sons were Brett Alexander and Geoffrey Lane. Fred is an electronic engineer and works for a Texas based television broadcast company. Harold Keith lives in Texas and is a senior management technologist for a major oil and gas production company. Robert Wayne married Beverly Ann Hoppe and they had one daughter named Robbie Ann. Robert is a manufacturing engineer and owns and operates a machine and tool company in Texas.

Willie and Ann had always planned to move to the ranch upon their retirement. On May 3, 1982, their dream came true when they moved into their new home on the ranch. At this time, they continue to raise cattle and improve the land with the help of their children and their grandchildren. Willie and Ann are members of Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church in Arneckeville, the church which his grandfather helped build.

In Austin, Texas on November 5, 1987 the ranch was recognized as a Texas Land Heritage Ranch. The ranch has been in continuous agricultural production by one family for 100 years or more. It is listed in the 1987 Texas Family Heritage Registry.

HOHN, ARNOLD JOSEPH AND ANNA "ISABELLA" (STURM)

Isabella Hohn

Arnold Joseph Hohn was born in Buir, Germany, on January 18, 1859, a child of Johan Hohn and Elisabetha Wirtz Hohn. He had a sister, Anna "Isabella" Hohn, born November 10, 1854, a brother, Mathias Joseph Hohn, and perhaps other siblings. In Germany, the family grew in stature and love in the town of Buir, where they practiced the Catholic Religion. The father, Johan Hohn, was a cobbler (shoemaker) and the mother, Elisabetha Wirtz Hohn, was a seamstress. The grandparents were Leonard Hohn and Gertrude Pick Hohn. Some of the family's close friends in Buir were Wilhelm Rey, a baker, Heinrich Kuhnen, a miller (flour grinder), Mathias Joseph Rey, Joseph Wirtz, and Michael Schumacher.

Arnold Hohn remained single, an eligible bachelor in Buir. His sister, Isabella, married Ernst Sturm of Braubach, Germany, who was born December 5, 1854. The fruits of their marriage were four children: John Michael Sturm born September 28, 1878, Emma Sturm born January 9, 1880, Katherine Elise (Elizabeth) Sturm born October 27, 1881, and another daughter. All of the children were born in Braubach, Germany.

In January of 1884, Ernst Sturm was very ill and dying. He was 29 years old, and it was extremely difficult for him to leave a loving wife and four children unprovided by his early death. He died on January 27, 1884, leaving Isabella Hohn Sturm a young widow. His daughter followed him in death shortly thereafter.

At the age of 31, Arnold Joseph Hohn immigrated to America, arriving by boat in New York City on July 31, 1890. From New York. Arnold continued by boat to Indianola, and from there settled in Yorktown, Texas, in DeWitt County. After establishing a home in Yorktown, Arnold sent for his sister. In June, 1892, Isabella, age 37, and her three remaining children, ages 13, 12, and 10, also came to America on a boat to New York City and to Indianola, then came to Yorktown. Since a woman could not travel to America if unprovided by a spouse, and since Isabella would be provided in America by her brother, Arnold, it is thought that Isabella traveled to America as the "wife" of Arnold Hohn. The Hohn-Sturm family of five settled in Yorktown to be near their first cousin, Louis A. Hohn and his wife, Johanna Behringer Hohn, and their nine children, who lived on a 160 acre farm two miles west of Yorktown (1/2 mile from West Side Cemetery). Arnold Joseph Hohn was naturalized as a U.S. citizen on May 25, 1896.

Arnold and Isabella lived in a frame house on the west edge of Yorktown off Highway 119. Their original garage still stands in 1989. They had a large garden and kept one or two cows. Here they raised the three children, John Michael, Emma, and Elizabeth. Arnold worked as a cobbler and as a caretaker for the West Side Cemetery in Yorktown, about one mile from his home. Isabella was a wonderful seamstress, making beautiful wedding dresses, gowns, and other clothing. Isabella was also a midwife, delivering many of the babies in Yorktown between 1890 and 1915. Isabella and Arnold were a good mother and uncle to the three growing children.

As a cobbler, or shoe manufacturer, Arnold perpetuated the trade learned from his father. Arnold had all the equipment to manufacture shoes from a piece of leather, including forms made from wood (called a last) for each size of foot. He would accurately cut the leather uppers, insoles, soles and heels from patterns, then sew the leather uppers and insoles together on the wooden forms or lasts, and finally sew on soles and nail on heels to manufacture a pair of shoes. Arnold also did shoe repair work. The family sometimes wore the same pair of shoes for five years or more because Arnold kept the shoes in excellent repair.

Emma Sturm married Herman Gustav Gips on July 25, 1900, and settled in Yorktown. They had six children: Leona, Frances, Isabella, William, Bruno, and Regina Gips.

John Michael Sturm married Elizabeth Demmer on November 5, 1901, and settled near Yorktown at Cabeza. They had ten children: Ernest, Philomena, Herman, Hedwig, Arnold, Mary, Joseph, Johnny, Clara, and Leo Sturm.

Elizabeth Sturm married Julius Joseph Demmer on January 14, 1903, and settled near Nixon. They had six children: Joseph, Rosa, Albert, Herman, Mary, and Isabel Demmer.

Anna "Isabella" Hohn Sturm died August 9, 1915, at age 60 years. Arnold Joseph Hohn died October 21, 1939, at age 80 years. They are buried at West Side Cemetery in Yorktown,

All of Louis and Johannah's children and many of their grandchildren, are gone. Left behind, however, is a flourishing generation of great-grandchildren and in many of the families, great-great-grandchildren have begun to carry on the Hohn traditions. Nearly all of Louis' descendants have married and remarried in Texas; still, some have left Texas and are scattered across America, returning when it is possible to visit.

A more complete narrative of the founding lines of this union, reaching back into the 1750's in Europe, is in preparation and will be published in the next year or two.

HOLLAN, JAMES BERRY AND ALAFAIR (WEST)

F441

William Wade Hollan, Alafair Hollan, James Berry Hollan

James Berry Hollan was born Sept. 25, 1827 in Mississippi, the oldest son of Wade Hampton and Emily (Kelly) Hollan. About 1841 he married Alafair West, who was born in 1824 in Mississippi. No record of the marriage has been found, however, and nothing is known about her family.

They had four children: #1 - William Wade Hollan (1843-1919) married Emily Tanksley Nov. 12, 1863. Children: Elizabeth b. 1864, Jimberry b. 1866, Greenberry b. 1866, and Mary Rosa b. 1868. He married (2) Mary Tanksley. They are all buried in Hebron Ceme-

#2 - Martha E. - listed on the 1850 census in Caldwell Parish, Louisiana. No other information.

#3 - Samuel Morgan Hollan (1847-1900) married (1) Frances Mavis "Fannie" Baker Oct. 13, 1865. Children: James Terry b. 1866, Lillie Ann b. 1869, Mary Alafair "Allie" b. 1872, and Roy b. 1874. He married (2) Lillie Pearl "Dan" Osburn Oct. 9, 1892. Children: Hugh Stephenson b. 1893, James Hart b. 1896, and Cora Ann b. 1898. For more information on the family of Samuel Morgan Hollan, see story "Hollan, Samuel Morgan and Frances Mavis (Baker) Hollan and Lillie Pearl (Osborn) Hollan.

#4 - Frances Rosa Hollan (1853-1924)

married Richard Wood Dodd March 12, 1868. Children: Ruth Ella b. 1869, James Berry b. 1872, Walter b. 1875, Claudia b. 1878, Maude b. 1882, Richard W., Jr. b. 1883, Mabel Claud b. 1886, Leslie Boyd b. 1888, Mabel Ruth b. 1891, and Patti Rosa b. 1894.

About 1846 the James Berry Hollan family moved to Caldwell Parish, Louisiana, and in 1853 they moved to Texas, living first in Gonzales County for a time, and then moving to DeWitt County where they bought land at Terryville, Texas.

On June 22, 1861 James Berry Hollan, his father Wade Hampton Hollan, and three of his brothers, Henry Harrison, Robert A., and John M. were among those who volunteered for A.J. Scarborough's Davis Guard at Terryville, Texas. This unit was mustered into Confederate service in San Antonio as Company B, 4th Regiment Texas Mounted Volunteers on Aug. 27, 1861. The regiment was attached to Gen. Henry H. Sibley's Brigade in the New Mexico Campaign. The three Hollan brothers remained with Company B during this campaign - James Berry, Robert A., and John M. They took part in the battles of Valverde and Glorieta. Company records note that 1st Lt. James Berry Hollan, age 34, commanded Company B during the battle of Glorieta, as Capt. Scarborough was too ill to command. John M. and Robert A. Hollan were taken prisoner at Albuquerque on April 15 and were exchanged. John M. Hollan's military record notes that he was later hospitalized three times. No further information. Robert A. Hollan returned to DeWitt County, and married Miss E.P. Harper on Aug. 29, 1863. No further information.

James Berry Hollan returned to Texas with Sibley's men and subsequently enlisted at Camp Stonewall Jackson in Victoria County and in September 1863 was enlisted in Co. D. 24th Bat., 24th Militia Brigade at Camp Terry.

After the war James Berry Hollan returned to his home at Terryville where he lived for the remainder of his life. Land deeds regarding his property can be found in the DeWitt County Courthouse. He died March 30, 1903 in DeWitt County, and his wife Alafair died Dec. 31, 1904. Both are buried in the Hebron Cemetery.

HOLLAN, ROY AND LILLIE ANN (PARK)

Roy Hollan was the youngest son of Samuel Morgan and Frances Mavis "Fannie" (Baker) Hollan. He was born in DeWitt County November 24, 1874. He was a rancher and farmer in DeWitt County all of his life. Following in his father's footsteps, he was a loyal and active member of the Hebron Baptist Church.

On October 20, 1896 Roy married Lillie Ann Park, with his father, Samuel Morgan Hollan, officiating. Lillie Ann "Lil" was the daughter of King Cyrus Alexander Park, Jr. and Mary Alcesta (Darst) Park.

Roy and "Lil" had a large family of six boys and two girls. The children, in order of age, are:

(1) James Berry Hollan - b. August 1, 1897 d. January 22, 1965, married Maurine Jowers; four children: Dorothy Maurine, James Taylor "Buddy," Julia Dawn, and Kenneth Joe.

(2) Baby boy, Franklin Hollan - died in infancy.

Roy Hollan, Lillie Ann (Park) Hollan, Sam Hollan (baby), and Jimberry Hollan

(3) Samuel Morgan Hollan - named for Roy's father - b. September 9, 1900 d. November 9, 1985, married (1) Eula Goode, one child, Mary Lou; (2) Dorothy Castellaw Goode.

(4) Earl Benbow Hollan - b. January 2, 1903, married Margaret Parks; one child, Joe Earl.

(5) Frank Thrift Hollan – b. September 4, 1904, married (1) Alta Benbow, four children: Wanda Joyce, Anita Ruth (died in infancy), Shirley, Carolyn (adopted). Married (2) Frances Johnson, no children.

(6) Mae Hollan - b. January 17, 1907, married (1) Charles Kibbe, one child, Murry; married (2) Hardie S. Nance, adopted Murry.

(7) Frederick Boyd Hollan - b. December 27, 1908 d. December 8, 1975, married Pauline Fochet; three children: Paul, Paulette, Donna.

(8) Lucille Grace Hollan - b. January 4, 1914 d. May 31, 1930, never married.

The five Hollan brothers and two sisters grew up on the farm in the early 1900's. The family raised most of their own food. The boys' prized possessions were their horses and saddles. Their favorite pastimes were riding, hunting, and fishing. Most of their education was at the Bear Creek country school near Hebron Church. Social life centered around the church and school, with occasional box suppers and "play parties" in neighbors' homes.

Lillie Ann Hollan died March 24, 1925, and Roy died October 23, 1936. Both of them and several of their children are buried in the Hebron Cemetery. Four generations of the Hollan family rest in adjoining plots at Heb-

HOLLAN, SAMUEL MORGAN AND (1) FRANCES MAVIS BAKER AND (2) LILLIE PEARL OSBORN

F443

Samuel Morgan Hollan and Lillie Pearl (Osborn)

Samuel Morgan Hollan was born March 25, 1847 in Caldwell Parish, Louisiana. His parents were James Berry and Alafair (West) Hollan. He came with them to Texas in 1853, living for a short time in Gonzales County and then settling in DeWitt County at Terryville. He had one brother and two sisters: William Wade, Martha E., and Frances Rosa.

Sam Hollan raised cattle and ranched during his early life. He served a short time in the Confederate army during the Civil War, enlisting in 1864 at age 17.

On Oct. 12, 1865 he married Frances Mavis "Fannie" Baker in Guadalupe County. She was born Dec. 23, 1848 in Alabama. Her parents were William B. Baker and Vashti (White) Baker who are buried in the Old Highsmith Cemetery in Guadalupe County. The marriage ceremony of Sam Hollan and Fannie Baker was performed by her brother, James M. Baker, who was pastor of the San Marcos Primitive Baptist Church, Guadalupe Co., from 1862 until his death in 1910.

In 1870 Sam Hollan began driving cattle from DeWitt County to Kansas. He made three or four of these drives in the ensuing years. By his own account, he was a wild, rough fellow, quite at home with other ranchers and cowboys of the times, and numbered Wes Hardin and Bill Hickok among his acquaintances. As time passed, however, his conscience began troubling him, and in Aug. 1877 he had a deeplymoving religious experience. He was converted, a born-again Christian, and became a Baptist preacher and missionary for the remainder of his life.

Sam and Fannie Hollan had four children: #1 James Terry b. Oct. 21, 1866 married Amanda Rosita Hampil Sept. 3, 1892. Buried at Nixon, Texas. Children: Leslie, Guy, Willis, Harley, Gertrude, Carruth, Clarence, Julius and Siles

#2 - Lillie Ann b. Nov. 9, 1868 married Richard B. Thrift Aug. 31, 1885. Buried at Nixon, Texas. Children: Frank, Fannie, William Terry, Ruth, Myrtle and Ima.

#3 – Mary Alafair "Allie" b. Sept. 25, 1872 married James Daniel Benbow Feb. 14, 1893. Buried in Alexander Cemetery at Stratton, Texas. Children: Sidney, Sam, Mae, Jack, Hugh, Frances and Brown.

#4 - Roy b. Nov. 24, 1874 married Lillie Ann Park Oct. 20, 1896. Buried in Hebron Cemetery. Children: Jimberry, Franklin, Sam, Earl, Frank, Mae, Fred and Lucille. (For more information on this family, see story, "Hollan, Roy and Lillie Ann (Park).)

Fannie Hollan died rather young on Sept. 26, 1891.

Sam Hollan was married again on Oct. 9, 1892 to Lillie Pearl "Dan" Osborn. She was born in Texas Dec. 5, 1871. Her parents were Hillard M. and Mary Jane Osborn, both of whom are buried in the Oak Grove Cemetery in Yoakum. Sam and Dan Hollan had three children:

#1 Hugh Stephenson b. Nov. 1893, d. Oct. 14, 1975. Buried in Hebron Cemetery. Married Mary Katherine King in DeWitt Co. Nov. 25, 1918. Children: Hubert Samuel b. 1919, Otho Frances b. 1921, Catherine Clarice b. 1923, Neill Hart b. 1925, and Royce King b. 1927.

#2 – James Hart b. Aug. 18, 1896, d. Feb. 1, 1932. Buried in Hebron Cemetery. Married Geneva Goode Sept. 29, 1915. She was born April 7, 1897. Children: Ruby b. 1916, Mildred b. 1918, Letha Mae b. 1919, Sibyl b. 1921, Lillian b. 1924, Fay b. 1926, Joyce b. 1928 and Wayne b. 1930.

#3 – Cora Ann b. Dec. 29, 1898, d. Dec. 31, 1967. Buried in Hebron Cemetery. Married Wesley Bryan Fitzhenry Aug. 20, 1919. Children: Ina LaRue b. 1920, Edith Estelle b. 1924, and Nellie Irene b. 1927.

Dan Hollan died Dec. 9, 1919, outliving Sam by more than 19 years.

During his life as a preacher and missionary, Sam rode thousands of miles on horseback in all kinds of weather. It was once reported that he arrived at his destination frozen to the saddle. He preached at Baptist churches throughout the area, established new churches including those at Mission Valley and Louise, and served as a Missionary preacher for the Colorado Baptist Association which included Gonzales, Weimer, Columbus, Hallettsville, Hope, Yoakum, Navidad, Louise, Edna, Salem, Seclusion, Midway, County Line, etc. He was pastor of Hebron Baptist Church 1885-1889, 1891-1895, and 1897-1900. When he died Sept. 23, 1900, his death was noted in the Proceedings of the Fifty-Second Annual Session of the Baptist General Convention of Texas held Nov. 9-12, 1900 at the First Baptist Church of Waco. The following obituary was part of the Proceedings: "During the year we have been called to mourn the departure of several of our faithful workers. Elder S.M. Hollan, the earnest missionary in the Colorado Association has been called from labor to refreshment in the present of the King. He was a man of sterling character, courageous, devoted, liberal and strong. He fell on the field of battle, in the prime of life, greatly mourned by those who knew him."

He and both of his wives are buried in the Hebron Cemetery.

HOLLOWAY, H. B. FAMILY

F445

H.B. Holloway, Kay (Holloway) Reese and (seated) Eva Holloway.

Harwell Beron Holloway was born June 27, 1907, in Stephenville, Texas. His parents were Ruben Holloway and Effie Ida Holloway. He had two sisters, Gertrude Holloway and Bess Holloway. At the age of twelve, the Holloway family moved to Kingsville, Texas, and when Harwell was eighteen he entered Texas A&I College.

Eva Docia West was born May 2, 1908, in Mangum, Oklahoma, to Willie and Docia West. One of twelve children, she moved with her family to Bishop in 1914 to live on a farm which had been bought by her father. Eva moved to Kingsville when she was eighteen and entered Texas A&I College.

Eva and Harwell met at Texas A&I in 1926. Eva secured a job at the County Clerk's office in Corpus Christi, and Harwell began delivering ice for Central Power and Light in Corpus Christi. They married August 10, 1929. Cherie Kay Holloway was born to Eva and Harwell on May 3, 1935, and Virginia Ann Holloway was born on September 2, 1944. At that time, Harwell was ice supervisor for Central Power and Light.

In 1944, CP&L began to sell the eighty icehouses which they owned. Harwell bought the Cuero, Goliad, and Yorktown icehouses as well as the Nordheim substation. Thus, in 1944, the Holloway family moved to Cuero. When Mr. Holloway first came to Cuero, he lived at the Muti Hotel while waiting for his family to move from Corpus Christi following the birth of Virginia Ann. The entire family moved to Cuero on July 7, 1944. Ann died in January of 1945.

Mr. Holloway continued to operate the Cuero Icehouse until 1959. He also became a Gulf Oil consignee in 1948. The Cuero Icehouse was sold to Southland Ice in 1959, and he gave up the Gulf consignee business in 1962. He then managed the Cuero Bowl from 1965 until 1968. Beginning in 1971, Mr. Holloway managed the J&H Farm outside of Cuero until he was forced to retire due to health reasons in 1984. He died on September 24, 1986, of emphysema.

Mrs. Eva Holloway, along with her daughter, Cherie Kay Reese, grandson, Raymond Holloway Reese, and great granddaughter, Jordan Elizabeth Reese, still resides in Cuero. Cherie Kay finished high school in Cuero, and received a Bachelor of Science Degree from the University of Texas in Austin while majoring in Elementary Education. She married Raymond R. Reese in 1956. After his graduation from medical school, they had two children, Rebecca Ann Reese and Raymond Holloway Reese. Rebecca Ann received a Doctorate in Choral Conducting from the University of Illinois in May of 1990 in order to pursue a career of teaching at the university level. Raymond Holloway received a Doctor of Jurisprudence from Baylor University School of Law in 1987. He is licensed as an attorney as well as a certified public accountant and is practicing in Cuero. Raymond H. Reese is married to the former Helen Elizabeth Pearson of Rockport, Texas who is a registered nurse. They have one daughter, Jordan Elizabeth Reese, born October 25, 1988. Thus, four generations of Holloways currently reside in Cue-

HOLZAPFEL FAMILY

Gustav Wilhelm Gottlieb Holzapfel, my grandfather (who died on November 4, 1896 before I was born on December 29, 1912), was born on November 23, 1818 in Paderboon, Germany. He came to Texas with his brother Herman and two friends on December 5, 1849, landing at Galveston. They came to Goliad where they lived with Albert Schlueter and Hy. Hildebrand. The four young men had a picture taken in Bremen, Germany just before sailing for America.

They had heard of opportunities in Texas from Frederick Ernst (founder of Industry, Texas), and from Robert Kleberg who had bought land and settled in the George W. Brooks Survey near the Five Mile Creek. These four men also bought land in the George W. Brooks Survey and Gus built a log cabin. Their old homesteads are today, for the most part, still owned by descendants. Walter Pieper, my husband, and I inherited part of this homestead that has been in our family for 133 years.

Gustav married Aguste Charlotte Grothaus, who was born October 3, 1835 in Barmen, Germany. This marriage on June 4, 1855 was in New Braunfels, Texas. (On December 2, 1934 Walter Pieper and I also married in New Braunfels, Texas.) To the union of Gus and Aguste Holzapfel, six children were born: Mathilde, Emilie, Herman, Otillie (Illie), Fritz, and my father, William (Gustav was age 59 when William was born).

Walter and I have five children: John William (J.W.), Charles Allen, Marilyn Marguerite, Beverly Jean and D'Ette Jo. William (my father) was the youngest of his generation. I am the youngest of my generation. D'Ette, who was born December 20, 1958 just 9 days before I was 46 years old, is the youngest of her generation, so her daughter, Laurel Marguerite Ray (age 5 now in 1989) is the youngest of her generation, and the last page in our Holzapfel family tree!

Walter and I moved to this homestead in 1944 shortly before Marilyn was born, because we had cattle on the place, and Walter was due to be drafted into service during World War II. His number did not come up for another year because he was past age 30. That gave us time to repair fences, barns and improve the house with little or no expense. He was called in 1945 and served in the Navy on the USS Prince William in the Pacific until V.J. Day.

After the war years we remodeled the house (for the fourth time) to be more comfortable. In 1960 we built a large new barn, moved our bedroom furniture in there and our kitchen and dining room into the smokehouse. Neighbors and relatives helped take down the old house, and every good board was used in building a modern brick home. In 1980 this house was improved and repaired, and now in 1990 we intend to do whatever is needed, because we are proud of our home and our heritage.

HOUSE, FREDERICK F447

Fredericke Wilhelm House was born 26 February 1833 in the Kingdom of Hannover. It is thought that his father was Christian Hundhausen from Rosbach, Hannover. His mother assed away before the family moved to Texas on the Colchis in 1846 and his father remarried shortly after they arrived in Indianola, Texas. It is thought that Fred had more than the one brother, Christopher who died in battle during the Civil War, and probably one sister who married a Mr. Weber in Gillespie Co, Texas where they and Hundhausen settled. Fred made his way from Indianola to San Antonio riding behind "Old Mr. Campbell" on Campbell's mule. He was 13 years old when he came to Yorktown which was comprised of the Striber family, C.G. Hartmann family, the Hoppes, the Hardts and Peter Metz. John King lived near the settlement and Fred hired out to him for two years. For these services Fred was given ten acres of land, five cows and a horse. His next employer was Elijah Ray near Kenedy and in 1854 went into Old Mexico with Mr. Newman, taking cattle down and bringing horses back to Texas. Fred's first house was in Upper Yorktown, near where Henry Menn's place was and near to Fred's butcher shop which was under the oak trees there, Fred continued the butcher shop for about three years before he moved out on Salt Creek and began ranching shortly after he married Sarah Elizabeth Powell, daughter of Samuel S. and Agnes (Stone) Powell of Madison County, Kentucky, in Jan. 1855.

Sarah Elizabeth Powell had been born in Henry County, Kentucky on 30 December 1838 and her parents had a plantation that adjoined that of Samuel's father, LittleBerry Powell near Richmond, Madison Co., Kentucky. LittleBerry was the son of William Powell, Sr. and had married Samuel's mother, Sarah Sally Kerr (daughter of Samuel Kerr) on 16 December 1807 in Madison Co. KY. Sarah Elizabeth Powell married Fred House soon after the Powell family moved to DeWitt County.

Fred and Sarah's children were John R. born 12 Oct 1855, Harriet Jane Agnes born 12 February 1857, Annie born 6 Oct 1859, Laura born 13 Oct 1861, Martha born 21 Aug 1865, Christopher born 10 Oct 1867, Mary born 27 Sept. 1870, Elizabeth born 22 Aug 1872, Henry born 21 Nov 1874, Robert born 9 Jan 1877 and Ola May born 31 October 1880.

The House ranch prospered and Fred began furnishing cattle for the Kansas drive and was an agent, under power of attorney, for 700 brands, over territory extending from the mountains to the Rio Grande for over ten years. He accumulated many thousand acres before he moved back to Yorktown in 1910 after buying the Danysch residence.

After Sarah Elizabeth Powell House died in January, 1895, Fred later married Mrs. Ada (Tully) Coleman, daughter of A.J. Tulley and widow of Mr. Coleman, on 23 December 1899. There was a son by this second marriage, William Frederick House.

Fred began his service to the Confederate government in 1861 when he drove 1,220 head of cattle to New Iberia, Louisiana. Fred enlisted in Capt. Henry Gonzalvo Woods' Company, 2 Regiment Carter's Brigade, Texas Mounted Volunteers at Camp Carter, Hempstead, Texas on 21 April 1862 after having joined on 3 Feb at Yorktown with Capt. Cupples holding the rank of sergeant at the age of 27. This company became Co K, 24 Regiment Texas Cavalry. Fred, his brother Christopher, and other members of this regiment were taken prisoner of war by the Union soldiers on 11 January 1863 at Arkansas Post, Arkansas. His name appears as "F. Hund" on the prisoner of war rolls and Chris' name is "Hause." They were held prisoner at Camp Butler, Springfield, Illinois until April, 1863 when they were exchanged at City Point, VA. The regiment was retained for a time at Richmond, and was then sent to join Gen. Bragg's army where they fought in the Battles of Chickamangua, Missionary Ridge, Lookout Mt. and at this latter engagement, he pulled the first battery up the mountain. He was later in the Atlanta campaign, where they fought every day down to the battles of Ringold and Dalton. His youngest brother was killed in action at Resaca. (This may or may not have been Chris).

There is an excellent article on Fred House in A History of Texas and Texans, Vol 3, issued by the American Historical Society, pages 1521-1524. There is also mention of Fred in The Trail Drivers of Texas and Reminiscences of the Boys in Gray 1861-1865.

In his obituary which appeared in the York-town newspaper on 21 May 1921, it stated that Fred "was a man who united sound sense with strong convictions, and candid, outspoken temper, eminently fitted to mould the rude elements of pioneer society into form and consistency, and aid in raising a high standard of citizenship in our young and growing state." Fred died at his home in Yorktown on Saturday morning at 6 o'clock 21 May 1921 at the age of 88 years, 2 months, and 25 days and was buried at his family cemetery, House cemetery, at Davy with the Rev. A.T. Cocke of Davy Cemetery Church officiating. He is buried next to his first wife, Sarah Elizabeth (Powell) House.

Irene died July 28, 1988, never married.
- 2. Lillie, the second daughter of John Randolph House and his wife Gustine Schneider, was born in 1881, married John Wesley Hardin, III, both are buried in Runge Cemetery. Their son, Wesley, born October 26, 1898, died 1940, married Ora Davis, a teacher. There were no children. Lillie's daughter, Belva Hardin, first married to Hewitt Vossburg, divorced, Belva then married B.W. Wullschlager. Mr. Wullschlager was born January 21, 1904, died March 31, 1968 in Corpus Christi. He was a Commander, U.S. Navy, WW II. They had no children. A third child of Lillie's was Tommie J., born July 20, 1900, died in Goliad, November 22, 1907.
 - 3. Mary, born November 4, 1879 married

Dave Lyons, both are buried in Runge. They had two daughters, one who died at birth, and Hazel, a teacher, married D. Edwards, in the Oil Field business. Hazel died February 22, 1968 and is buried in Austin, Texas. They had one daughter, Chloe.

- 4. Alfred Randolph, born December 30, 1886, died October 20, 1961, married Estella Pearce, who was born January 28, 1879, died June 16, 1971, both died in San Antonio, Texas and are buried in Runge. They had two daughters, Alfred Estelle, born and died December 20, 1907; Willie Lucille, born March 6, 1909 in San Angelo, Texas, married July 8, 1926 to Harry H. Meyer who was born July 12, 1907 in Nordheim. They had one son, Harry Alfred, born May 2, 1927.
- 5. Chris Fred, born July 18, 1889, died August 3, 1950 in Ft. Sam Houston Hospital, San Antonio, Texas. He served in WW I. He married Maude Sykes of Nixon. They had three children: Bonita, Joy Albert and La-Verne.
- 6. Ella, born September 7, 1891, died May 9, 1969, married Alvo Yeary. They had two daughters, Mavis and Margaurite. When the girls were young, they lived in Runge. In 1925 they moved to Holtville, California. Both Ella and Alvo Yeary are buried in Runge, Texas.
- 7. Lonice, born in 1893, died March 31, 1973, buried in Runge. She married Leon Sykes, brother of Maude Sykes. They had no children.
- 8. Oscar, born February 24, 1896, died May 14, 1957, a WW II Veteran, 36th Division, married Helen Alex. They divorced.
- 9. Ruby Pearl, born 1898, married G. Moore of Nixon, Texas. They had nine children. She is buried in Runge and he is buried in Nixon.
- 10. Bernice, born April 4, 1900, married E. Stevens. They had five daughters. They lived in Runge until they joined her sister, Ella and her family in the move to California. They first settled at El Centro, later moving to Imperial, California.
 - 11. One son, Robert, died at birth.

John Randolph House and his family lived in Nixon about 1911 to 1913 and then moved back to Runge where they lived until their demise. John died April 9, 1922 and Gustine died November 25, 1933 in Runge. They had thirtyone grandchildren and twenty-seven great grandchildren at the time of their passing.

Gustine had several brothers and sisters, among them were Mrs. Max (Mary) Schorre of Runge and William Schneider. Having lived their life in Southwest Texas, they were a well known and respected family.

HOWARD, THOMAS JEFFERSON AND TENNESSEE M.

F449

Stephen Howard brought his family from DeSoto County, Mississippi to settle on the Goliad County side of the Guadalupe in the early 1850's. A widower, Stephen's family consisted of sons Joseph, Jordan, and Thomas Jefferson, and daughters Martha, Ann, and Emily.

On June 22, 1861, a little more than two months after the beginning of the Civil War, Thomas Jefferson and Jordan enlisted in Scarborough's Davis Guards Mounted Volunteers stationed at Concrete. In his report for the month of June, 1861, Captain Scarborough noted, "This company is willing to go anywhere, if it is to New York, to get a fight."

November 7, 1861, Thomas J. married Tennessee Marshall, daughter of Isham and Sarah Marshall, from the DeWitt County side of the river. When he was assigned to frontier duty, he took her back to her mother's place to stay until his return. Thomas J. was stationed at Camp Dix and Camp Nueces, both in Uvalde County, for most of his service, and was promoted to sergeant by 1863.

In a 1940 interview, Tennessee described the times: "They (Thomas' company) had lots of duties and many hard rides to make. He never got home until 1865 when the war was over. We had got along the best we could. We sold butter and eggs and made our own cloth for our clothes. My mother had give my sister Susan and me a farm each with some pasture land and I still have the place she gave me. It is close to Cuero."

Following the war, Thomas Jefferson farmed the place Tennessee's mother had given her just north of Cuero and carried the mail to Yorktown.

Tennessee relates, "The Sutton-Taylor Feud was raging in those days — ever little while a Sutton would kill a Taylor or vise-versa — and once in a while they fell out among themselves. Two men in the Sutton gang had trouble once and one of them killed the other. The dead man was named Demoss. My husband and daughter sat up with the corpse that night and they said there was about one-hundred fifty Sutton men outside. My husband came home and got his pistol —."

Six of the Howard's nine children were born in DeWitt County: Leona born in 1862, married B.B. Watson; William B. was born in 1866; Cora Claire born in 1870, married James Sterling Yancy; Susan F. born in 1873, married Walter Yancey; Vaughn J. born in 1881, married Cora Yancy; and Jennie born in 1881, married Jim Davis.

Thomas Jefferson could not forget the broad vistas and clean water of the area where he served while on frontier duty, and in 1882, moved his family west to Kinney and Uvalde Counties. However, they did not sever all ties with DeWitt County; Tennessee retained property there until her death in 1940.

HUCK, CHRISTIAN FAMILY

F450

Christian Huck was born at Goldschwarten, Grossherz Ogthrem, Oldenburg, Germany, Dec. 5, 1836. In 1857 he married Miss Bernhardine Wulf, who was born Sept. 10, 1823 in Germany. In 1882 Christian and Bernhardine came to America. Their only two sons, Diedrich and John Huck, had come to America in 1881. The family settled at Schulenburg, Texas. After two years they moved to Shiner, Texas and in 1892 the Huck family moved to a farm at Garfield, near Yorktown. Bernhardine Huck died May 14, 1902. Christian Huck made his home with his son and family until his death June 12, 1911. He and his wife are buried in the Nordheim Cemetery.

Christian and Bernhardine (Wulf) Huck

In 1890 Diedrich Huck was married to Johanna Geradine Mueller, who was born in Germany. In 1906 the Huck family moved to their farm south of Nordheim. To this union three sons and three daughters were born - Emil, Harry, Alvin, Emma, Erna, and Ida. Emma Huck married George Ellis and they had no children. She died June 20, 1958 and is buried in the Nordheim Cemetery. Erna Huck married Otto Fuhrken and they had no children. Erna Huck Fuhrken was killed in a storm May 6, 1930 in Nordheim and is buried in the Nordheim Cemetery. Ida Huck married Monroe Charpentier, and they had one son, Norvelle. John Emsley Hutchins married Hazel Chandler and they had two daughters – Johnnie Sue, who died in infancy, and Jo Nell Hutchins. John, Hazel, and Jo Nell Hutchins moved to Nordheim, Texas, in 1945. Jo Nell Hutchins attended the school in Nordheim and graduated from Nordheim High School in 1953.

William Henry "Bill" Hutchins, Jr. married Ruby Whynama Pendleton in Erath County on December 20, 1932. Ruby Whynama Pendleton was the great-great-granddaughter of John Pendleton, a Methodist preacher, who moved to Texas from Virginia in 1857. John and his son, Allison Osborne Pendleton, moved their families to Texas by wagon train and their journey took fourteen weeks.

"Bill" and Whynama (Pendleton) Hutchins had two children – Billie Juanell, born February 28, 1934, and Joe Hugh Hutchins, born May 4, 1936. Billie Juanell and Joe Hugh Hutchins attended the school in Nordheim. "Bill" worked for a pipeline company, but he always operated a personal business in his "spare" time at Nordheim. "Bill" bought and sold vegetables from the old Market in San Antonio; he bought and sold eggs from the Smiley, Texas, area; he bought and sold used cars from San Antonio; and at one time, he and his family operated the "Amos and Andy" Cafe.

Billie Juanell Hutchins graduated from Nordheim High School in 1952. She attended Texas Lutheran College, Victoria College, and Texas A & I University. Billie Juanell Hutchins married Stephen Edwin Schroeder of Yorktown, Texas. Billie and Stephen had three children – Stephen Michael, Susan Michelle, and Sondra Meliss Schroeder. Billie Juanell Hutchins later married Daniel D. Durnan, from Ossion, Iowa, and they live in Bayside, Texas.

"Bill" Hutchins moved his family from Nordheim to Pettus, Texas, in the summer of 1952. Joe Hugh Hutchins graduated from Pettus High School in 1954. Joe attended the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas for a year and a half before joining the U.S. Army. When Joe returned to Texas from the Army, "Bill" Hutchins, his father, was living in Victoria, Texas. They started Air Equipment Rental Company in 1959, an oilfield service company that is still in operation today.

Joe Hugh Hutchins married Bobbie Denise Kelso, great-great-granddaughter of Alfred Kelso, Sr. who fought in the Battle of San Jacinto and was a resident of DeWitt County in the 1840s. Joe graduated from Texas A & M University with a degree in mechanical Engineering. Joe and Bobbie have one son, Christopher Kyle Hutchins born May 6, 1975. Joe, Bobbie and Kyle live in Victoria, Texas.

IDEUS, EDMUND JOHN AND MELINA KAROLINE (DIEBEL)

Edmund John Ideus (1/10/1895 – 5/18/1987) was the fourth child born of the union of John Ideus (1/26/1866 – 1/1/1941) and Marie (Wohlert) Ideus (9/18/1871 – 6/3/1970). His grandfather, Siebend Ideus, having immigrated to south Texas in 1857 from Aurich in northern Germany.

He was known to family and friends as "Ed" and grew up on the family farm situated on the 12 Mile Coletto Creek near Upper Meyersville with his 9 brothers and sisters. One brother, Berthold, died at age 8 when Ed was only 6. He remembers, however, how his Papa and he got the casket from Upper Meyersville with a horse drawn sled and after his Mama had prepared the body for burial, drove it to the cemetery. Ed and his brothers and sisters walked to school and when the creek had a rise, they enjoyed a holiday from classes. Even though he only completed 7 grades, he was very proficient in math, read a lot, and was mentally alert for all of his 92 years (winning second place in a domino tournament, partnered with his son Merton, a few months before his death).

As a teenager of 17 Ed helped to herd 12,000 turkeys from Meyersville to Cuero, on foot, for the first Turkey Trot held in 1912. The group left Sunday morning at sunrise and arrived in Cuero around noon Tuesday. Ed received 75¢ a day for his work. He made many of these journeys as a young man.

During World War I Ed served his country in Co. "D" of the 85th Infantry Division. After the Armistice, Ludwig Bitterly, Alonzo Seiler and Ed walked home from Yorktown (where they had gotten off a bus) to Upper Meyersville, arriving home during the night. The family recalled how Ed's dog started barking as he was walking down the road, and his Mama saying, "Ed is coming home".

Melina Karoline Diebel (11/15/1903 – 7/13/1983) was the daughter of William A. Diebel (1/23/1879 – 3/6/1968) and Alma F. (Schorlemmer) Diebel (5/13/1877 – 5/28/1949) and grew up on the family farm located approximately 2 miles southeast of Upper Meyersville. She also was of German heritage, her great grandfather, Christoph Andreas Diebel came to America from Germany in 1850. She was an obedient, helpful daughter to her parents, was an excellent cook and seamstress and was very close to her only brother, Erwin, who was one day less than a year older than she. They did everything together and she deeply mourned his early death at age 30.

Ed and Melina were married in St. John's Lutheran Church of Meyersville on 11/18/1923 by Pastor H.C. Poehlmann. They lived on the farm Ed purchased from Melina's parents in September of 1923. Therefore, Melina lived and raised her family in the same house in which she was born and raised. This union was blessed with two children, Virgie Reed born 1/10/1926 on Ed's 31st birthday and Merton Lloyd born 4/21/1931.

They always worked a large garden providing fresh vegetables for the family, had numerous fruit trees, and raised and processed some of their own meat (pork, beef, mutton, turkeys and chickens). For years Ed assisted Alvin Doehrman (a neighbor) in his butcher shop every Friday, his remuneration being fresh meat for the family for several meals. To supplement the meager farm income, Ed did carpenter work when there was some available in the vicinity.

The children helped with the farming and ranching chores, attended Meyersville Public School and graduated from Cuero High School in 1943 and 1948, respectively. Virgie went to Business College and Merton served in the Army during the Korean Conflict from 8/19/1952 to 7/28/1954, stationed in Japan.

On 10/21/1945 Virgie married Reuben Lee Gohmert and they had three children, Aletha, JoBeth and Gordon. Their story is given separa-

Merton married Marjorie Helen Thamm on 10/29/1950 and they had five children, Sherryl born 7/6/1953, Patrica born 4/4/1956 and Jonathan born 5/26/1962 and two sons lost in infancy, one in September of 1957 and another in November of 1959.

Ed and Melina spent their lifetime on the farm, enjoying games of domino and bridge with friends and neighbors whenever possible. They loved their Lord and their Church and both are buried on St. John's Lutheran Cemetery in Meyersville. Both of their children and five of their six grandchildren live in the Meyersville area and are active in the Church their father and grandfather helped to construct in 1920-1921.

IDEUS, JOHN FAMILY

John William Ideus (Jan. 26, 1866 – Jan. 1, 1941) and Anna Marie Wohlert (Sept. 18, 1871 – June 3, 1970) were married in the Meyersville Lutheran Church on Oct. 31, 1889. It is fitting that the story of Grossmama and Grosspapa Ideus, as they were fondly known, be recorded in the centenary year of their marriage.

John Ideus' father, Simon (Siebend) Ideus was a German immigrant who came to Texas in 1857 with brothers Fokke H. and Johann and a sister named Anna. Family tradition states that the Ideus immigrants originated in Aurich in Friesland in Northern Germany near the North Sea. Visits to Aurich proved fruitful in locating several Ideus families with naming patterns similar to those of the Texas branch of the family. Exact relationships have not been established, but repetition of unusual given names such as Fokke and Siebend indicates a close tie. The countryside of the Aurich area is a flat and sparsely-wooded coastal plain of the North Sea near the border of Holland. The area is prosperous and substantial in appearance with topography and vegetation that remind one of the Texas coastal plain between Meyersville and the Gulf of Mexico. In Aurich the flat area is called moorland. Although physical characteristics are similar to those of South Texas, the climate is completely different. Winters are severe.

The Ideus men in the Aurich area are farmers and skilled laborers not too different from those of Texas; women are mostly housewives. Present day economy gives no clue to reasons for leaving this attractive place during the middle of the nineteenth century. At the time much of Europe was suffering from poverty, political turmoil and threat of military conscription, and this probably, in part, caused the abandonment of the homeland with the subsequent move to Texas. However, family tradition also states that the reason Simon Ideus came to Texas was to avoid family persecution after having married his first cousin named Anna Ideus. Simon and Anna Ideus Ideus produced one son named Herman who with his family is depicted in the Goliad County history book. Anna died shortly after arriving in Texas, but the exact date of her death and location of her burial site are unknown. After Anna died Simon married Marie Rebecca Adickes (Mar. 28, 1842 - Aug. 4, 1868). It was to this union that John William Ideus was born.

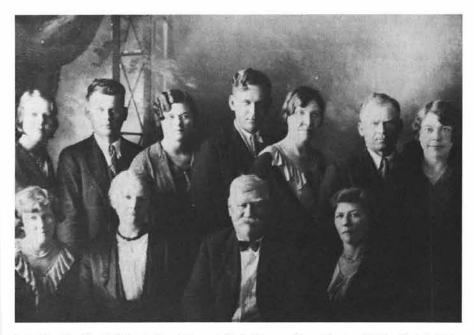

When John was a small child his father, mother and an infant brother died of yellow fever. Simon had been working as a wagoneer hauling freight from the port of Indianola after the Civil War. On one of his trips to the coast he was thought to have contracted the fever which caused the death of all the family except young John. John at the age of two years was taken into the home of Ahrend Adickes, his grandfather, where he was cherished and raised.

John Ideus grew to manhood and married Marie Wohlert who was a second cousin and a granddaughter of Simon's brother Fokke. This marriage resulted in the birth of ten children, nine of whom grew to adulthood. The family lived on a farm on Coleto Creek in a house that had belonged to Ahrend Adickes and supported themselves by farming cotton and feed crops and raising turkeys and cattle. There was always a large peach orchard and a big garden. German was the language commonly spoken in the community and by the family. In fact, although Marie was born in Texas and lived to the age of ninety-eight years, she could speak very little English.

The first child born to John and Marie Ideus was a daughter, Emma Johanna (May 19, 1890 - Aug. 8, 1964), who married Ernst Hiller and had no children. The second child was Albert Henry Louis (July 13, 1891 - July 8, 1949), who married Johanna Hedwig Seiler and had four children: Lucile Margarett, Preston Albert, Warren Louis and Reuben Frank John. These three sons served with distinction in military service during World War II. Preston earned a Silver Star decoration for valor, earned a battlefield commission, and received a Purple Heart in the Battle of the Bulge. Warren was in the Army Air Corps and rose to the rank of a Lieutenant Colonel. Reuben was a sergeant in the Marine Corps and received a Purple Heart Commendation.

The third child of John and Marie was Berthold (Jan. 9, 1893 – April 14, 1901) who died at age eight from measles. Before he died Berthold accidentally broke a window on the front porch of the family home. Grossmama would never permit the half-broken pane to be replaced and to this day the window stands with the pane broken.

Edmund John (Jan. 10, 1895 – May 18, 1987) married Melina Karolina Diebel and they had two children, Virgie Reed and Merton Lloyd. Bertha Marie (Betty) (Oct. 1, 1896 – July 6, 1984) married Adolph Berthold Haun and gave birth to four children: Corine Faye, Ellis James, Norvan Gene and John William. Ellis was killed in an infantry campaign on Okinawa during the second World War. Erna Marie (July 31, 1901 - Sept. 19, 1976) married Erwin William Diebel who tragically died at the age of thirty, leaving two sons, Kenneth Lou, aged seven, and Burton Erwin, aged six weeks. Erna, who was unschooled and impoverished, somehow managed to raise her children. She took in sewing and under her direction and inspiration both sons acquired university degrees. Kenneth studied geology and eventually became vice president and director of an affiliate of a major oil company. Burt became an optometrist practicing in Alice, Texas.

Meta Lenore (Sept. 2, 1903-) became a nurse and practiced in Cuero, New Orleans, Chicago and Gonzales; she did not marry. Elsie Frieda Ottilie (Aug. 6, 1905 – Sept. 4, 1947), also a nurse, married Curtis Baker; they had no children. Werner Gustav (Jan. 17, 1909 – Jan. 23, 1974) never married and to the time of his death was a farmer on the family farm. Mary Sophia Elfrieda (Oct. 26, 1911-) became a nurse and married Dr. Charles D. Peavy; they had no children.

Most of the offspring of these Ideus children learned to speak German as a first language and spoke German to Grossmama and Grosspapa during frequent Sunday visits. These visits always involved a grand Sunday dinner, at which the children felt mistreated. The reason was that in typical German-disciplinary fashion, the men ate first, then the women and lastly the children. As the dining room was small, occasionally there would be two settings of men and then two servings for the ladies before the first grandchild could eat. Invariably by this time some of the "good stuff" like wine rice would be "all gone." It was an impressive occasion when a grandchild was deemed big enough to eat with the grown-ups. This usually occurred in their mid-teens. Evidently the children did not suffer, as most of the grandsons grew to healthy manhood weighing two hundred or more pounds.

Descendants of this pioneer couple number eighty with sixty-six surviving. Approximately half of this number live within twenty miles of the homestead.

JACKSON, J.W. AND ADELE LLOYD

F456

Jesse Wilburn Jackson was born March 1, 1885 in Kosse, Texas. He married Hattie Adele Lloyd, born October 1, 1889 in Somerville, Tennessee. They were married January 1, 1918 in Pecos, Texas by her father, The Reverend John Frierson Lloyd, a Presbyterian minister. Rev. J.F. Lloyd was born July 25, 1853 in Columbia, South Carolina. Adele's mother was Myrtie A. Rudisill, who was born September 21, 1867 in Arkadelphia, Arkansas.

J.W. Jackson's father, Perry, was born May 22, 1854 in Jones County, Georgia, and his mother, Ella Mae Joyce, was born March 23, 1867 in Caldwell Parish, Louisiana.

J.W. Jackson, a graduate of Texas A&M University, was DeWitt County Agricultural Agent for twelve years. Adele, a teacher before her marriage, devoted herself to home and family.

The family moved to 305 E. Sarah Street in November, 1938. When they arrived, accompanied by a moving van, they found their "new" driveway blocked because Friday night football game was in progress. The van had to wait until the end of the game, and the road cleared, in order to unload. That year the Cuero Gobblers won Regional title, so all felt the wait was worthwhile. As four of the five Jackson children were teenagers, they found this very exciting.

The Jackson children were: (1) Wilburn Hoyt, born in Pecos, Texas, September 7, 1920. He married Kathleen Howard, a native of Pennsylvania, on March 28, 1943. To this union were born Norma Kay Jackson Bowers and James Nathan. Wilburn died September 24, 1980 in Victoria, Texas. (2) Myrtie Joyce was born October 18, 1922 in Ralls, Texas. She married Pat Dunn of Cuero on June 15, 1942. Their children are Stephen Lloyd, Benjamin Blake, Patrick Miles, and Laurie Ann Dunn Allen. (3) Mary Louise, born December 22, 1923 in Glen Rose, Texas, married Howard Walter Kleinecke of Cuero February 6, 1943. To this union were born Mary Adele Kleinecke Blackwell, Bonnie Ryn Kleinecke Wheeler, Howard Jackson (Jack), Rebecca Joyce Kleinecke Richter, David Scott, and Gaye Alison Kleinecke Avery. (4) Perry Lloyd was born September 11, 1925 in Glen Rose, Texas. He and Myrtle A. Wachtendorf were married in Cuero on September 4, 1946. To this union were born Philip Randall, Allen Charles, Linda Ruth Jackson Boyer, and Janet Marie Jackson Goodson. (5) Katherine Jeannettia, born November 12, 1931 in Weatherford, Texas, married Jim Hollensbe in February, 1950. To this marriage were born Letitia Lea Hollesbe Duncan and John Warren Hollensbe, Katherine married Robert Milton Gohlke of Cuero in January, 1955. To this union was born Robert Marshall Gohlke.

The J.W. Jackson descendants number nineteen grandchildren, thirty-two great grandchildren, and one great, great, granddaughter.

The Jacksons were very active in the affairs of the First Presbyterian Church. Adele served as a Sunday School teacher, Bible leader, and in many phases of the Women's Organization. J.W. taught the men's Sunday class, was superintendent of Sunday School, and served as Deacon, Elder, Trustee, and Clerk of Session. He was a delegate to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in 1951.

Mr. Jackson served at agricultural substations in Angleton, Beaumont, Troupe, and Pecos Counties and as County Agent in Crosby, Somervill, Parler, Brooks, and DeWitt Counties, until his retirement in Cuero in 1950. He received the Distinguished Service Award in 1945 for his work in the extension service. Following his retirement from the Texas Extension Service, he became service agent for the DeWitt County Farm Bureau. Ill health forced his retirement in 1955.

J.W. served as commanding officer of the Cuero State Guard during World War II years and was captain in that organization's reserve force at the time of his death.

Both he and Adele were active in the Order of the Eastern Star, she having been a Worthy Matron in the Order. Mr. Jackson was a 32nd. degree Mason and a past Worshipful Master. Both were active in civic and community affairs.

Jesse Wilburn Jackson died September 5, 1956 and Adele Lloyd Jackson died October 16, 1979. Both are buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero, Texas.

They did their bit in making DeWitt County a better place in which to live, and will long be remembered with love and respect.

JACOB, LYDIA, HAROLD, ROBERT, LORENA, AND WILSON F457

L-R: Lydia (Jacob) Runck, Elsa (Jacob) Smith, Lorena (Jacob) Park, Olivia (Jacob) Fritsche, Agatha (Jacob) Gohlke, Hulda (Jacob) Parks 1930

This story continues the history of Reinhold Jacob's offspring which was begun in another story.

Lydia Pauline Jacob went to Hill's Business College in Waco and got a Teacher's Certificate. She then taught at the Metting School near Yorktown. Lydia, known as "Sis", then worked as a bookkeeper at the First National Bank of Yorktown from Sept. 18, 1918 to June 15, 1929. Sis was the first woman to work at the National Bank. She married John Runck on Feb. 2, 1930. John was born on Feb. 5, 1874 in Indiana and was reared in Sheldon, Ill. He was in real estate, selling a lot of water-front property in Corpus Christi and Bayside, Texas. John died on Jan. 13, 1960, and Lydia died on Dec. 9, 1977. They had no children.

Harold Reinhold Jacob graduated from Texas Lutheran College in 1915. He played on the first football team the school ever had. Harold then worked as a jitney driver in San Antonio, Texas. A jitney was a small bus that ran a regular route around the city. Harold married Virginia Williams on June 23, 1919 in Atascosa County. She was born on April 7, 1897. In later years, Harold was a cab driver in San Antonio.

The couple later returned to Yorktown and Harold helped run Smith Hotel until it closed. Virginia died on Dec. 10, 1964, and Harold died on Feb. 7, 1979. They had no children.

Robert Berthold Jacob went to Hills' Business College in Waco in 1917. He graduated and then took correspondence courses. He married Jewell Clydelle Lantrip on May 22, 1929 in Yorktown. They recently celebrated their 60th Wedding Anniversary. More details are given of their lives in a separate story.

Lorena May Jacob married Joseph Arch Park on Nov. 2, 1929 in Yorktown. They had one son, Joseph Arch Park, Jr. born on June 14, 1937 in Yorktown. Joe Arch, Jr. married Sheila Ann Lindblom on May 1, 1982 in Bandera, Texas. Lorena died on Jan. 17, 1977.

Wilson Gregory Jacob attended Texas A&I in 1930, but was forced to drop out during the depression. He earned his room and board by playing trumpet in a hotel which closed because of the Depression. Wilson was a very good musician and made his living playing in dance bands which traveled all around the area. Wilson did not marry. He still lives in Yorktown.

JACOB, OLIVIA, ELSA, AGATHA, AND HULDA

Smith Hotel in Yorktown, Tex. built by H. Robert Gohlke. Bridge built by Reinhold Jacob

This account continues the history of the offspring of Reinhold Jacob. The earlier story recounted their childhood. This one follows them into adulthood.

Olivia Emma Jacob worked as a clerk at Nau Bros. Dry Goods from 1903 till Feb. 14, 1914. She married Emil Ernest Fritsche on Feb. 16, 1914 in Yorktown. Emil was born on Jan. 23, 1887 in Giddings, Texas. They had one son, Raymond Robert Fristche, born Nov. 24, 1915 in Yorktown. Raymond married Louise Elizabeth Bullock on Jan. 5, 1935 in Cuero, Tex. They have one daughter, Rayma Jean Fritsche, born Aug. 7, 1937 in Sinton. She married Victor Weldon Hesseltine, Jr. on March 15, 1956. Olivia died on April 16, 1959, and Emil died on Dec. 17, 1963.

The Hesseltines have three children. Vicki Jean was born Jan. 19, 1957; Ricki Dwayne was born May 9, 1958; and Terry Lee was born Feb. 1, 1960. Vicki married Mark Gardner McCoy on May 12, 1979 in Sinton. They have two sons: Dustin Matthew, born May 7, 1981 and Travis Marshall, born Feb. 23, 1983. Ricki married Elizabeth Claire Owens on June 13, 1981 in Sinton. They have two daughters; Holly Ann, born Jan. 10, 1984, and Julie D'Lynn, born Dec. 27, 1985. Terry married Debra Lynn Atzenhoffer on July 2, 1983. They have two daughters; Jessica Lynn, born July 15, 1986, and Lauren Kate, born June 7, 1988.

Elsa Marie Jacob married L. Frank Smith on Sept. 24, 1907 in Cuero. Frank was born on Dec. 7, 1883 in Runge. He held a variety of jobs. Before his marriage, he bought a barber shop from E.T. Clark, Sr. Frank and his brothers Clarence and Jim ran Smith Barber Shop until he sold it to his brother-in-law B.L. Parks, Tommy Danysh, and another man. This barber shop has changed ownership many times, but is still in business in Yorktown as Best Barber Shop. Frank also worked for a laundry by riding around Yorktown on a bicycle picking up men's collars for cleaning. At that time collars were not attached permanently to men's shirts but were buttoned on for easier cleaning.

Then in October of 1922, Frank and Elsa opened the Smith Hotel on the banks of Coleto Creek next to the bridge Elsa's father Reinhold had built. Smith Hotel was the first hotel in the area to have running water. Each room had a lavatory, and there were community showers and toilets on every hall. At one time the famous western singer Tex Ritter stayed at the hotel.

The hotel gradually became the center of the family's life. As the children grew older and lost their spouses, they moved back to live together in the hotel. It closed in the 1960's, but the brothers and sisters continued to live there. Finally, when only Robert and Wilson remained alive, the hotel was sold.

Frank Smith died on Feb. 15, 1932. Elsa then married Rev. James Cowen Shive on June 23, 1940 in Atlanta, Georgia. He was a retired Presbyterian minister when Elsa married him. Rev. Shive died on Nov. 1, 1956 and Elsa died on Dec. 25, 1965. Elsa had no children.

Agatha "Gardie" Jacob went to the University of Texas and got a one-year Teacher's Certificate. She then taught at the Heinzeville School near Yorktown from 1906 till 1909. Gardie married H. Robert Gohlke on Sept. 8, 1909 in Yorktown. Robert was born on Dec. 22, 1883 in Yorktown. Robert was a carpenter who was the contractor for many buildings still in use in Yorktown. He built the current High School building, the Methodist Church, and the Presbyterian Church and Manse. Robert also built the Smith Hotel for Elsa and Frank Smith. Robert died on Feb. 3, 1969, and Gardie on June 28, 1974. They had no children.

Hulda Esther Jacob went to Hill's Business College in Waco. She then worked as a clerk at Goodfriend's Dry Goods Store. She married Bert Lee (B.L.) Parks in Cuero on Jan. 25, 1923. B.L. was born on Aug. 19, 1894 somewhere up North. He held a variety of jobs, including Barber Shop Inspector for the state of Texas. He also ran a poultry farm at one time. B.L. bought Smith's Barber Shop from his brother-in-law Frank Smith. B.L. died on Jan. 13, 1968, and Hulda died on Dec. 1, 1977. They had no children.

The other Jacobs' histories are told in separate stories.

JACOB, REINHOLD

Jacob's Children

The lives of the ten children born to Reinhold and Bertha Afflerbach Jacob between the years of 1885 and 1910 give a good overview of life in DeWitt County at the turn of the century and on. Reinhold and Bertha's history is told in a separate story.

The children in order of their births were Olivia Emma, Elsa Marie, Agatha, Lydia Pauline, Hulda Esther, Harold Reinhold, Melinda, Robert Berthold, Lorena May, and Wilson Gregory. All of the children went to school in a five-room school house near the center of town, which was two blocks from their house. All, except the two eldest girls and Melinda, finished high school, which consisted of ten grades at that time.

Life was busy in their house at the turn of the century. The house was warmed by a wood heater. Cooking was done on a wood stove. Thus chopping wood was a chore that kept the boys very busy. They also tended the pigs, horses, chickens, and other animals. The girls helped with the cooking and sewing, although the family bought most of their clothes readymade. Another piece of "women's work" was the cleaning and filling of the coal-oil lamps which lit the house.

The children's great-uncle Moritz Riedel owned the Riedel Drug Store in Yorktown, which made its own drugs. The post office was in the back of this store. In 1906, mail came once a day, general delivery. The children would pick it up on their way home from school. Prior to 1906, mail delivery had been several times a day, whenever the trains came through. Yorktown had four passenger trains and several freight trains come through in a day.

Serious illness was a fact of life. Melinda died of intestinal trouble the year after she was born. Robert and Hulda both contracted typhoid fever. Agatha became ill with diphtheria. Tuberculosis also killed other members and friends of the family.

But there was entertainment as well - of the homemade variety. The family sang church songs, played checkers and tiddly-winks, and played sandlot baseball. They went swimming in Coleto Creek, two blocks from their house. The boys went fishing and hunted rabbits and squirrels. Starting in 1910, the family went to see silent movies which consisted of slides accompanied in later years by piano music.

Sundays were often spent on the Afflerbach family farm, owned by the children's grandparents. Johann Heinrich and Marie Aschmann Afflerbach, whose stories are told separately. The Jacobs traveled by wagon or on foot to the farm and spent the whole afternoon there. They picnicked on homemade breads and cakes and drank wine which was also homemade.

The children also had many pets - cats, dogs, rabbits, pigeons, a goat, and even a steer which the children hitched to a two-wheeled cart. One day Robert took the steer and cart for a ride down the main street in Yorktown. The sheriff chased him down and told him to take the cart home because he was scaring all the horses!

The Jacob children's lives as adults are told in separate stories.

Heinrich Jacob, known as Henry in English, was born in Alsace Lorraine, France, on May 15, 1813. He married Agatha Sifferlin who was born in Alsace Lorraine on Aug. 17, 1814. They had a large family, most of whom were born while they still lived in Europe. Rosalia was born on Oct. 8, 1837; Louis on Sept. 29, 1839; Michael on Sept. 29, 1841; Anna Marie on April 26, 1843; Henry Jr. on Nov. 26, 1844; Louise Josefin on Nov. 29, 1846; Christina on July 24, 1849; Sigfrit on April 2, 1852; and Panthaleon on June 13, 1855.

In 1854, Heinrich came to Yorktown, Texas. When he made enough money, he sent for his family to join him, which they did in 1856. Their last two children were born in DeWitt County — Reinhold on Feb. 18, 1859, and Pauline on Nov. 21, 1861. Somewhere around 1915, Panthaleon built what is believed to be the first house in what became Alamo Heights in San Antonio.

Agatha died in 1867 and was the first person to be buried in the Catholic Cemetery in Meyersville. Her husband Heinrich died in 1897. Rosalia Jacob Dobsky died in 1919; Louis Jacob in 1918; Michael Jacob in 1904; Anna Marie Jacob Shier in 1920; Henry Jacob, Jr. in 1922; Louise Josefin Jacob Riedel in 1930; Christina Jacob Gisler in 1929; Sigfrit Jacob in 1883; Panthaleon Jacob in 1938; Reinhold Jacob in 1940; and Pauline Jacob Metz in 1954.

Reinhold Jacob married Bertha Afflerbach, whose parents' history is told in a separate story, on Nov. 15, 1884, in Yorktown. After their marriage the Jacobs bought a half-block of land in Yorktown and built a house on one corner of it. Five children, all girls, were born to them in this house. Olivia Emma was born on Nov. 15, 1885; Elsa Marie on Dec. 2, 1886; Agatha on June 8, 1888; Lydia Pauline on Oct. 21, 1889; and Hulda Esther on Aug. 7, 1892.

Reinhold was a custom bootmaker, a bridge builder, and a house mover. In 1904 he built the bridge over Coleto Creek in Yorktown, driving the support beams by hand. When this bridge was torn down in 1929 and the present concrete bridge was built, it was found to be impossible to remove these beams. Some remain to this day. As Reinhold was away from home a good deal because of his work, he bought his wife a small pistol for protection which the family still has today. Reinhold owned the 39th car sold in DeWitt County, a 1909 Model Reo. forerunner of the Oldsmobile.

In 1894, the Jacobs built a new house in the middle of the same block. Their first son, Harold Reinhold Jacob, was born there on March 8, 1897. Melinda was born on May 30, 1898, but died on June 25, 1899 of intestinal trouble. Robert Berthold was born on Nov. 12, 1899; Lorena May on May 19, 1906; and Wilson Gregory on Sept. 5, 1910.

Of Reinhold and Bertha's ten children, two, Robert and Wilson, are still alive. Both live in Yorktown. In fact, Robert still sleeps in the room in which he was born.

Robert tells a story of how the family dog, Queenie, saved his father's life. One day the cow knocked Reinhold down and pinned him by kneeling on him. When Reinhold hollered for help, Queenie responded by biting the cow on its back heels. The cow got up to chase Queenie, and Reinhold escaped.

At first the family stored its meat and milk in a cooler built by Reinhold. This consisted of a pan of water at the top, with cloths running down the sides of the shelves. The whole thing was housed in a wooden frame. In 1922, the Jacobs got their first ice-box. Ice was delivered to their door every day by the ice wagon, at a cost of a nickel for a 20-lb. block.

Vegetables were stored in a pit in the ground which was covered by a teepee made of corn stalks. The whole thing was then covered by a layer of dirt which kept the vegetables from freezing. Water came from a windmill and cistern in the back yard. There was a windmill on every block in Yorktown. The toilets, of course, were outside, although the kitchen had cold running water. When the children were young, they bathed outside with homemade soap in water which had been heated by the sun. Later, Reinhold built an indoor tub, for which water was heated on the stove.

Reinhold died on Aug. 14, 1940, and Bertha died on June 1, 1936. Their children's histories are told separately.

JACOB, ROBERT AND CLYDELLE FAMILY

Robert Berthold Jacob was born on Nov. 12 1899, in Yorktown, Texas to Reinhold and Bertha Afflerbach Jacob, whose histories are told in a separate story. Robert married Jewell Clydelle Lantrip on May 22, 1929 in Yorktown.

Clydelle attended Southwest Texas State Teachers College but was forced to drop out in 1927 a few hours short of graduation, because of a lack of funds. She took a teaching job in Yorktown, planning to finish college in the summer. However, she met and married Robert in the meantime. He assured her that he could take care of her and that she did not need to finish school. After her marriage, Clydelle was forced to quit teaching, because married women were not allowed to teach in Yorktown. The reasoning was that the jobs were needed by men who had families to support during the Depression.

Robert did work hard to support his family. At age 18 he worked for fifty cents a day in a grocery store. Then he worked in a bottling plant in Yorktown. On Sept. 2, 1917, he started work at the Cotton Oil Company in Yorktown. He made $25.00 the first month. Later he became a stockholder, a member of the board of directors, and eventually, the vice-president of this company. He stayed with the company for 41 years until it was sold in 1958. Robert then became business manager and tax-assessor collector for the Yorktown Independent School District. He held this job until he retired in Upon their marriage, Robert and Clydelle moved into a house about six blocks from the house he grew up in. The new home had one of the first electric refrigerators in Yorktown. It also had natural gas and a gas stove.

Their only child, Clydelle, was born on March 21, 1930, in Yorktown Allen Hospital. Approximately five years after this, the Jacob family moved back into his parents' home to take care of Robert's sick mother. She died in 1936, and his father died in 1940.

Thus, baby Clydelle grew up in the same house, built by her grandfather, where her father was raised. She graduated from Yorktown High School as Valedictorian of her class in 1948. She received four scholarship offers but turned them all down to attend Rice University. After one year she dropped out because she missed her high school sweetheart, Arlon Clifford Schroeder, known as "Shrimp."

In 1949 to 1952, Clydelle taught a kindergarten class in the mornings and worked at the oil mill with her father in the afternoons. In 1953 her fiance, "Shrimp", opened a hamburger place in Yorktown called the Dairy Bar. Clydelle began working there and still owns and operates the place today.

"Shrimp" was born in Yorktown on June 27, 1931 to Adolph Jr. and Anna Kimmel Schroeder. He graduated from Yorktown High School in 1949, and worked for his father's tractor company while driving dump trucks on the side. "Shrimp" was also in the Air Force for a few months before being honorably discharged for medical reasons. Then he opened the Dairy Bar, which became a mainstay among Yorktown's eating establishments.

"Shrimp" and Clydelle were married on Dec. 26, 1954. They were married in the chapel of Grace Lutheran Hospital in San Antonio, because Clydelle's mother was confined there with tuberculosis. The elder Clydelle spent nearly a year and a half in that hospital before she was cured.

"Shrimp" and Clydelle had three children. Their son, Stuart Lee, was born on Nov. 2, 1956. Arlene was born on Sept. 29 1959, and Norma, on Aug. 16, 1961. "Shrimp" and Clydelle built a house behind the Dairy Bar in 1961. Clydelle and Arlene still live there. "Shrimp" died on June 12, 1982.

Norma married Robert Edward Schendel, a native of Yorktown, on March 2, 1985 in Yorktown. The couple is expecting their first child in October, 1989. They live on a dairy farm owned by Robert and his brothers at Garfield, near Yorktown.

Stuart married Mary Jean Retzloff, who was born on Sept. 10, 1961 in San Antonio. The marriage took place June 6, 1987 in San Antonio. The couple live in Houston, where Stuart works for Southern Pacific Railroad and Mary is a Certified Public Accountant.

JACOBS, BILL AND NELLIE (SCHINDLER) $_{F462}$

Bill Jacobs was one of four children born to Ludwig G. Jacobs (Sept. 4, 1869 – July 23, 1954) and Emma Wilhelmina Dreier Jacobs (April 18, 1875 – Sept. 24, 1948). This couple farmed and raised cattle in Kilgore Children were:

Olga Schaefer, William Jacobs, Linda Sch?? and Wesley Jacobs. Billie and Ken Liesman are owners of some of the land near Ander that has been in the Jacobs family for several generations.

Ludwig Jacobs' parents were Louis Jacob (1839-1918) and Caroline Willeke Jacob. Louis and Caroline had seven children. Their sons were known as "the Jacob men with the red beards". (This trait followed down the line: Billie had auburn hair, her son, Bruce, has red hair, and Bruce's daughter, Tessa, has auburn hair). Louis owned land north and south of Hanover (later Ander) in Goliad County and also had a blacksmith shop in Hanover for years. Louis and Caroline are buried in the Ander Church cemetery.

Louis' father, Henry Jacob, came to Goliad County from Alsace, France before 1860. His family followed later and lived in a cabin on a springfed creek that flowed into the 15 mile Coleto in Hanover. Henry Jacob (1813-1896) and Agatha Sifferlen (1814-1867) had eleven children, some of whom moved to DeWitt, Victoria, and Refugio Counties.

Emma Dreier Jacobs' parents were Ludwig Dreier and Augusta Meisenhelder Dreier who were married October 20, 1860, and moved to the Kilgore community in Goliad County. They had nine children and farmed, raised cattle and sheep, and hauled freight. She would ride miles sidesaddle, a bucket of eggs in one hand, a child on her lap, to trade the eggs for salt and pepper.

Ludwig Dreiers' parents were Heinrich Dreier (9/22/1788 - 7/25/1869) and Friedericke Louise Blumberg Dreier (1/26/1796 -3/31/1885) who were born in Lippe Detmolt, Germany. They had five children. In Germany, the couple raised flax and from that produced linen. A spinning wheel in Billie and Kenneth Liesman's home is believed to have been brought to Texas by this family.

Billie Liesman's mother, Nellie Jacobs, was the fourth child of eight children born to Frank Schindler and Theresa Preiss Schindler. Their home was in the Turkey Creek Community in Goliad C ounty. Theresa's parents were Joseph Preiss and Anna Marie Dittmeyer Preiss who are buried in Dentler Cemetery, east of Upper Meyersville. It is believed that Frank Schindler came to Texas from Germany when a boy of seven about 1875. Frank and Theresa had eight children: Alfred, Emelie, Clarence, Cornelia (Nellie), Leona, Victor, Lily and Irene. Frank and Theresa are buried in the Coletoville Lutheran Church Cemetery in Victoria County.

JANK, PAUL HERMAN AND RUTH (HICKEY)

A descendant of German immigrants, Paul Jank was of the first generation of his line to be born in America. His father, Traugott, came to Texas from Liegnitz, Schlesien, Germany on the ship Kronprinz Friedrich Wilhelm in 1881 at the age of 15. Traugott went to Paige, Bastrop Co., Texas, to live with an uncle and aunt, Hans and Anna (Jank) Gahno. He remained there for five years. Traugott's parents, Georg and Anna (Berger) Jank arrived with their other seven children: Johann (m. Christine Crautschik), Marie (m. Heinrich Rehling), Anna (m. Henry Preiss), August (m. Dorathea Rehling), Magdalena "Lena" (m. Robert Albrecht), Carl "Charles" (m. Lucy Baker) and Pauline (m. William Hasdorff).

Paul and Ruth Jank, Yoakum, TX

Traugott rejoined his family in Victoria County and remained there until 1891 when he married Caroline Jonischkies in Yorktown, DeWitt Co., Texas, Paul Herman was the only son born to this couple on a farm near Meyersville on May 6, 1894. He had one older sister, Lena Pauline (m. Avery Von Blon) and three younger sisters: Metha Maria, who died of typhoid fever at age 17, Bertha Ann (m. Peter Klitch) and Erna Mathilde (m. Curtis Tate).

When Paul was about eleven years old, the family moved from the farm to the city of Yoakum. Here he continued to grow and the desire to travel grew within him. By 1911, at the age of 17, Paul Herman had gone to work for the railroad. By age 22, records show that he was working as a brakeman for the railroad in Pennsylvania. This career was interrupted by the declaration of war! He joined the Navy, serving during World War I. He entered as a Seaman at Great Lakes, Illinois in 1917 and received an Honorable Discharge as Yeoman at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania in 1919. He was back with the railroad in Pennsylvania after his discharge.

A call from his father to help him with his business in Yoakum, Texas . . . Jank Bottling Works . . . brought him back to DeWitt County. Here he met Margaret Ruth Hickey, daughter of James Ambrose and Elizabeth (May) Hickey, and they were married on September 11, 1923.

Ruth came from a family of seven children. Besides herself, there were: Viola May (m. George David Wright), James Ray (m. Alice Gallagher), Elizabeth (m. William Wright), Edith Agnes (m. Leon Josephus Toudouze), Perry Xavier (m. Agnes Estelle Valenta) and Virginia (m. Lloyd A. Jilek). They are descendants of some of the first citizens of Yoakum and are justly proud of the contributions their ancestors made to the area. Ruth's grandfather, James Hickey was a member of the first trail drive that began in DeWitt County on April 1, 1866. The route began in Bovine (near Brushy Creek) and ended in St. Joseph's, Missouri, and became known as the Chisholm Trail. Her father, Jimmy Hickey, accompanied his father on the ride as a young boy and continued to make four of the long rides up "The Trail".

Paul Herman and Margaret Ruth Jank raised three sons in Yoakum . . . Paul Weldon (b. 1926), David Leon (b. 1934) and Donald Ray (b. 1937). All three graduated from St. Joseph's School there.

Railroading was the good life for Paul Herman because he loved to travel. It took him to Illinois, Pennsylvania, Wyoming, Arizona and Southern Texas for various railroad companies including Canada-Atlantic; Bessemer and Lake Erie Railroad; Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad; Union Pacific Railroad and for the Wells Fargo Company as Railroad and Express Agent. In 1960, after forty-two years of service, he retired from the Southern Pacific Railroad. He then pursued another love . . fishing!

Since the mid-1930's, the Paul Jank residence was listed as 406 Hubbard, Yoakum, Texas. Ruth and Paul Herman celebrated their 50th Wedding Anniversary on September 11, 1973 with a family celebration.

Two years later, Paul Herman Jank was killed in a two-car accident at the intersection of the Yoakum Business Loop and Highway 77-A. . . August 20, 1975. He was driving to one of his favorite fishing spots when the accident occurred.

Ruth Jank is presently residing with her son, Don, in Victoria, Texas and Paul Weldon and David Jank are both residing in San Antonio, Texas with their families.

JANSSEN, CARROLL JAMES AND OLIVIA MARIE RIEDESEL

F464

Carroll James Janssen was born in Nordheim, Texas on 16 September 1921, to Emil Dietrich Janssen and Laura Jane Mueller. Carroll attended Nordheim Schools and graduated in 1939 as honor boy. In the fall of the same year he attended Texas Lutheran College in Seguin for two semesters and in 1940 moved to San Antonio to work. Carroll was a Property Supply Clerk in the Civil Service, working at Duncan Field (now Kelly) when he was drafted into the U.S. Army in June of 1942. After schooling as a radio operator in Kansas City, Missouri, Carroll was promoted to Sergeant and sent to Washington D.C. for work in the Pentagon. After about a year, Carroll was shipped overseas to the Pacific Theater, his job assignment being in General Douglas MacArthur's Headquarters in Brisbane, Australia. From there he went to New Guinea, then to the Philippines. On 7 December 1945, Carroll was given an honorable discharge and he returned to Nordheim. On 10 July 1946 Carroll married Olivia Marie Riedesel, born 27 April 1925, daughter of Herman E. and Marie Schmidt Riedesel, at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Yorktown, Texas. Carroll operated the Janssen's Tractor and Implement Agency from 1946 until his retirement this year, 1989, selling the International Harvester, New Holland and Bush Hog products. Also, during these years, he served on the City Council and

Mayor of Yorktown. Carroll and Olivia have four sons.

James Carroll was born 24 March 1950 in Cuero, Texas. He married Sheryl McCormick, born 29 January 1953, on 30 May 1971, in Yorktown, Texas. They have two children, Christopher Evan born 2 January 1974, and Earl James, born 8 June 1976. James graduated from the University of Texas at Austin with a degree in pharmacy. After working about 5 years in pharmacy he decided to go to college again, and after 2 years James received a degree as a C.P.A., the work he is now doing in Montvale, New Jersey.

Michael Lynn was born 1 September 1951 in Cuero, Texas. He married Beverly Jean Bruton, born 9 May 1953, on 12 June 1971, in Yorktown, Texas. They have two children, Michele Lynn born 27 December 1977 in San Antonio and Michael Lynn, Jr. born 9 January 1979 in San Antonio, Texas. Michael and Beverly are no longer married. Michael graduated from the University of Texas at Austin with a degree as a C.P.A. He is living in San Antonio.

Don Alan was born 29 May 1953 in Cuero, Texas. He married Debbie Styra, born 14 November 1961, in Victoria, Texas, on 1 December 1984. They have two children. Ryan James was born 10 October 1985 in Victoria and Reagon David born 29 June 1988 in Victoria, Texas. Two sons, Jeffrey Duane, born 19 March 1977 and Russ Alan, born 11 August 1979, were born to Don in previous marriages. Don graduated from the University of Texas at Austin with a degree in pharmacy. He is now working for DuPont in Victoria in the research lab and is living in Yorktown.

David Lee was born 27 July 1955 in Cuero, Texas. He married Rebecca Reynolds, born 2 February 1956, in Yorktown, Texas, on 27 August 1977. They have three children. Bryan Lee was born 6 May 1979 in Galveston. Katie Leann was born 8 June 1982 in Houston. Molly Catherine was born 9 July 1986 in Houston. David graduated from the University of Texas at Austin and the Medical School at Galveston as a radiation encologist. David is living in Houston.

Carroll and Olivia are living in Yorktown, Texas, where they have lived for the past 24 years.

JANSSEN, DIEDRICH AND JOHANNA (LAUW)

Diedrich and Johanna Lauw Janssen and two small children came to America, to Texas, in 1886. One daughter, Lena, was born and died in Germany. Diedrich August George Janssen was born in Barghorn, Grossenmeer, Germany in the Duchy of Oldenburg on 17 August 1856. Copies of records from the Lutheran Church in Grossenmeer give this information, also showing that he was baptized there 12 October 1856. His parents were Anton Georg and Marie Margrethe Hillmer Janssen. Johanna Katharine Lauw was born in Iffens, Grossenmeer, Germany in the Duchy of Oldenburg 26 January 1856 to Johann Reinhard and Christine Ulbrand Lauw. She was baptized 17 February 1856. A copy of marriage records from the Lutheran Church in Stollhamm shows that they were married there 11 October 1882. (Note: It was always stated that the maiden name of Johanna Janssen was Lauw; these records show that it could have been Laun.) These records also show that Diedrich Janssen was one of ten children. One brother, Henry, and two sisters, Helene Elise and Helena Gesine, also came to Texas. Henry married Meta Pargmann and settled in the Runge, Karnes County area. Helene Elsie and her husband, Burghard Morisse married in Germany and came to Texas with their family in 1891, settling north of Nordheim, DeWitt County, Texas. Helena Gesine Janssen married Heinrich Domann in Cuero, and they lived in the Cuero area.

Mr. and Mrs. Diedrich Janssen first settled at Breslau, Lavaca County, Texas. In 1890 they moved to Gruenau, DeWitt County and in 1897 they moved to Nordheim where they made their home. They lived on a farm north of Nordheim for many years, but Mrs. Janssen built a house in town and moved there about 1914. Twelve children were born to the couple; three died in infancy.

1) George Janssen was born 12 January 1883 in Germany. He died 29 June 1962 in a Kenedy hospital. He married Frances Morines in 1912, and they had seven children — George, William Henry, Rudolph, John, Lillie, and another son and another daughter.

2) Bertha Marie Janssen was born 28 February 1885 in Germany and died 7 November 1971 in Yorktown. She married Christian Mueller 19 November 1907. They had three daughters, Johanna Fredericka, Viola Caroline and June Nell.

Lena Janssen was born in Germany and died there.

4) Lillie Johanna Janssen was born 18 June

1888 in Breslau, Lavaca County, Texas and died 19 August 1970 in Yorktown. She married Herman Carl Heinze, and they had three children — Wilmer, Hayden and Lillian Jane.

5) Mary Janssen, born 17 August 1889 in Breslau, Lavaca County, died 26 August 1926 in Gruenau. She married Charles John Mueller. They had two children — Elenora and Carlton.

6) Otto John Janssen was born 28 October 1890 in Shiner, Lavaca County. He died in Nordheim 10 September 1969. He married Erna A. Wendt, and they had one son — Otto John. Jr.

7) Louise Caroline Janssen was born 25 December 1892 in Gruenau, DeWitt County, Texas and died 1 December 1975 in San Antonio. She married Walter Stuermer and they had two children — Adolph Diedrich and Inez Lee.

8) Willie Henry Janssen was born 4 May 1895 in Gruenau and died 21 June 1968 in Cuero. He married Elvia Reichert and they had two children — Wilton Theodor and Elvera (Sis).

9) Emil Dietrich Janssen was born 28 May 1897 in Gruenau and died 29 December 1969. He married Laura Jane Mueller. They had two children — Carroll James and Joanna.

10) Anna Janssen was born 12 December 1898 in Nordheim and died there 15 December 1898.

 Minnie Janssen was born 4 July 1900 in Nordheim and died there 13 February 1902.

12) Annie Janssen was born in Nordheim 4 July 1900. She married Max Sauermilch, and they had one daughter, Merle Raye. She later married Joe Wischkaemper on 24 July 1971.

According to his obituary Diedrich Janssen served in the German army for three years, receiving an honorable discharge. Also, according to his obituary, he was a successful farmer in the Nordheim area. He died in a Cuero hospital 4 January 1906. Mrs. Janssen was left with a large family of children. She successfully reared her family, managed her farms and found time to be active in church work. She died in the Burns Hospital in Cuero 10 June 1925. She and her husband are buried in the Nordheim Cemetery. Most of their children are also buried there.

JANSSEN, EMIL DIETRICH AND LAURA JANE MUELLER

F46

Emil D. Janssen and Laura (Mueller) Janssen

Emil Dietrich Janssen was born in the Gruenau community on 28 May, 1897, the youngest son of twelve children born to Diedrich August Georg Janssen and his wife, nee Johanna Katharin Lauw. The family moved to Nordheim in 1897. He attended public school there and as a young man attended a business college in San Antonio. Emil also served in the U.S. Navy during World War I and was honorably discharged March 1919.

Laura Jane Mueller was born 21 July, 1898 in Yorktown, daughter of Gerhardt H. and Louise Goehring Mueller, the oldest of three children. She completed the high school course in Nordheim and later finished her education at San Antonio Main Avenue High School. In 1917, she entered the College of Industrial Arts in Denton majoring in music. Laura and "Checkers", as Emil became known, married 20 November, 1919 in San Antonio. They returned to Nordheim to live.

In July 1919, Checkers had bought a half interest in W.C. Stuermer's saddlery and harness business. E. Wagenschein joined them in the hardware business. This partnership was dissolved and Checkers went into the International Harvester dealership in Nordheim, and some years later he opened another in Yorktown. In July, 1942, Laura and he opened Janssen's Dry Goods. He retired from the farm implement business in 1954 and Janssen's Dry Goods in 1968. He was elected mayor of Nordheim in the early 1940s and served a number of terms. As mayor, at midnight of 12 May, 1949, Checkers was privileged to make the first dial telephone call in Nordheim when the new system was put into service. His pride was his farm he bought from Berthold Lemke in June, 1942. He enjoyed raising registered Herefords and was given DeWitt County's Come Back Farmer of the Year Award one year.

Laura was an accomplished musician, teaching piano to many of the area's children. Several times she took refresher courses in music at Our Lady of the Lake College in San Antonio. She began to teach guitar, accordian, and other instruments. She also served as church organist when needed and taught Sunday School at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Nordheim for many years. Flower gardening was high on Laura's list of things to do. Her yard always had flowers blooming and for some years after her death, friends still remarked that Laura's flowers were blooming again.

Checkers and Laura celebrated their 50th Wedding Anniversary in 1969. A surprise celebration was planned at their home by their children. Checkers died in Cuero 28 December, 1969. Laura continued with her music teaching, club and church work. She and a friend, Margaret Weldon of Yorktown, loved to entertain by singing and playing guitar duets. She died in Yorktown 5 August, 1975.

They had two children. Carroll James was born 16 September, 1921 and married Olivia Marie Riedesel of the Gruenau community in Yorktown 10 July, 1946; and they have four sons. Joanna Louise was born 17 January, 1929 and married Claude B. Moore III of Cuero in Nordheim 1 October, 1949. They have three daughters and a son. Both children's stories are given separately.

Otto, Sr. and Erna (Wendt) Janssen wedding picture 1917.

In 1890 the Janssen family moved to the Gruenau Community in DeWitt County, and in 1897 they moved to a farm north of Nordheim. Otto attended school in Cabeza and went to Draughans Business College in San Antonio.

On May 31, 1917 Otto married Erna Alvina Augusta Wendt in Nordheim. Erna was born near Weimar in Colorado County to John and Mary Laging Wendt on April 8, 1899. The Wendt family moved to Nordheim in 1907. Erna attended schools in Nordheim.

Otto was inducted into the United States Army in 1918. He was stationed in San Antonio.

Otto and Erna lived on a farm north of Nordheim which was a part of his parent's farm that he hd purchased from his mother.

On August 22, 1922 a son Otto John Janssen, Jr. was born to Otto and Erna.

In 1929 they built a home in Nordheim and moved from the farm to town. They continued to operate the farm. Later Otto became a house painter. Otto died on September 10, 1969 and is buried in the Nordheim Cemetery.

Otto Jr. attended school in Nordheim and Draughans Business College in San Antonio. He worked in San Antonio until November 1942 when he enlisted in the United States Army. He served in the Air Force for three years.

On June 10, 1948 Otto Jr. married Myrtle Schmidt in St. Paul Lutheran Church in Yorktown. Myrtle was the daughter of George and Mayme Meyer Schmidt (story appears elsewhere).

Otto Jr. and Myrtle still live on the farm he was born on north of Nordheim. He farmed and later was a truck driver.

Two daughters were born to Otto and Myrtle. Bonnie Dell was born on February 21, 1950. She attended school in Nordheim and Texas Lutheran College in Sequin where she earned a B.S. in Elementary Education. She married Dennis Linhart of Runge on December 26, 1971. They have three children. They are Neal Patrick, John Vincent and Erin Elizabeth. In February 1983 she married Frank Carter, formerly of Victoria. They live in Laredo where Bonnie and Frank are both employed by the United School System where the children also attend school. Bonnis ie a librarian and Frank is Athletic Director.

Penny Lou was born on October 17, 1952. Penny attended Nordheim School and Bee County College where she received an Associate Degree in Dental Hygiene in May 1973. In August 1973 she married Arlan Dale Sievers of Yorktown. Arlan is the son of L.C. and Minnie Sucher Sievers. They live with their two sons Jeffrey Dale and Joshua David near Yorktown. Arlan works at the DuPont plant near Bloomington and Penny works part time for Dr. Larry Dornburg of Victoria. Jeffrey and Joshua attend the Yorktown schools.

JANSSEN, WILLIE AND ELVIA (REICHERT) F468

Willie Henry Janssen was born in Gruenau, DeWitt County, Texas 4 May 1895 to Diedrich and Johanna Katherine Lauw Janssen. (See separate story.) The family moved to a farm north of Nordheim when he was about two years old. He grew up in the Nordheim area and attended school there. He also attended Texas Lutheran College in Seguin, Texas. On 30 July 1912, he and his brothers and sisters were baptized and confirmed in St. Paul Lutheran Church in Nordheim. On 6 October 1916 he was married to Elvia Reichert in Cuero by Rev. William Utesch, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church. The couple first lived in the Janssen homestead on the farm north of Nordheim. Here their two children were born. About 1925, they built a new home on their farm in this area. In 1942 they sold their farm and moved to their home in town. They bought 40 acres of land near town. Except for about five years when he was an employee at Kelly Field in San Antonio, during World War II, Mr. Janssen continued to farm until his death. He died in the Cuero Foundation Hospital 21 June 1968, reaching the age of 73 years, two months and 17 days. He is buried in the Nordheim Cemetery.

Elvia Reichert Janssen was born 27 May 1894 near Weimar, Colorado County, Texas, to Theodor and Anna Koehn Reichert (see separate story). She was baptized in the Lutheran Church 14 October 1894 in Content, Colorado County and confirmed 12 April 1909 in Breslau, Lavaca County. The family moved to Old Kinkler in Lavaca County when she was six years of age. Her father taught school there for five years and then they moved to Witting where he taught another five years. They lived on their farm there until 1910 when they moved to Nordheim. Elvia accompanied the household goods and cattle and came by railroad. The family came by wagon. She worked as a career clerk in the Nordheim Post Office from September 1931 until her retirement in 1958. She continued to live in the Nordheim area after her husband's death until 1974 when she moved to Cuero to be near her daughter, Mrs. Ray (Sis) Gips. She spent much of her time doing beautiful crochet work. She died in the Cuero Community Hospital 27 July 1978 at the age of 84 years and two months. She is also buried in the Nordheim Cemetery.

The first child of Willie and Elvia Reichert Janssen, Wilton Theodor Janssen, was born 23 November 1917. He was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran Church in Nordheim and graduated from high school there in 1935. After graduation, he enlisted in the United States Navy and served on the USS Pensacola until World War II. He then served on a landing craft during the war, serving in all parts of the world, but mostly in the Pacific area. On 1 August 1949 he was married to Lois Brownell at Holly Springs, Mississippi. She was serving as a WAVE in the U.S. Navy. Lois was born in Shelburn Falls, Massachusetts 3 September 1917 to William H. and Jessie Belle Taylor Brownell. They had one son, Wilton Theodor II (Teddy). He was born 15 November 1950 in Memphis, Tennessee. He died 27 June 1963 in San Francisco and is buried in the Golden Gate National Cemetery near San Francisco, California. He attained the age of 12 years, seven months and 13 days.

Wilton was honorably discharged from the Navy as a Chief Warrant Officer after 20 years of service. The couple then made their home in Walnut Creek, California where Wilton worked as an office manager for a copper company. He died at his home 5 October 1970 and is buried beside his son. He reached the age of 52 years ten months and 18 days. Lois continued to live in Walnut Creek.

The second child of Willie and Elvia Janssen, Elvera Annie Dora (Sis) Janssen, was born 13 November 1920. She, too, was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran Church in Northeim and attended school there, graduating in 1938. She attended Texas State College for Women in Denton, Texas for two years, majoring in Library Science. On 25 February 1941 she married Ray Gips of Yorktown, Texas, and they moved to Cuero, Texas where their two children, Julie Rae and William Paul, were born. They continue to live in Cuero. (See separate story.)

JENDRZEY, VALENTINE AND CATHERINE PANICZ

Valentine Jendrzej and Catherine Panicz were born and grew up in village in Upper Silesia, Poland. They were married about 1845 in Poland, and were blessed with three children in Poland: Thomas Jacob Jendrzej, born about 1846, Marian Jendrzej, born August 31, 1849, and Joseph Jendrzej, born February 22, 1852.

The people in Upper Silesia, Poland, were being overtaken and ruled by the Germans, so many Polish people left German oppression and fled to America, the land offering personal freedom to everyone. After the harvest was taken in for the year, the Polish immigrants would travel to America by ship during the months of October, November, and December. It took two months or longer to make the trip from Poland to Indianola, Texas. The first group of Polish settlers arrived in Panna Maria, Texas, on Christmas Eve, 1854, led by Father Leopold Moczygemba. It was in Winter of 1854 or 1855 that Valentine Jendrzej and Catherine Panicz Jendrzej and their three children immigrated to Panna Maria, Texas.

Also coming to America were Valentine Jendrzej's sister, Josephine Jendrzej Kniejski, and her husband, Albert Kniejski. Albert Kniejski is remembered with Frank Biela as the Architects, or Designers, who built the first stone Catholic Church building in Panna Maria. In Panna Maria, Albert and Josepha Kniejski had three children: Frank Kniejski (January 18, 1857), Theodore Kniejski (November 8, 1859), and Jozefa Kniejski (October 28, 1861). (Information on Albert and Josepha Kniejski is incomplete.)

Valentine Jendrzej and Catherine Panicz Jendrzej also had more children after coming to America. On November 28, 1857, they had a son, Frank Jendrzej, born under the big oak tree which still stands by St. Mary's Catholic Church in Panna Maria, Texas.

Valentine and Catherine Jendrzej moved to Yorktown, Texas, and bought a farm across the road from St. Mary's Catholic Church. They had another son, Peter Jendrzej, who was born on June 27, 1864, on the family farm in Yorktown, Texas.

Thomas Jacob Jendrzej served in the military during the Civil War. Tom Jendrzej joined Captain Wash Brown's Company of Cavalry when it was formed at Helena in 1864. From 1864 until the war ended, Tom served in the vicinity of San Diego, in South Texas. After the Confederate surrender, when the soldiers were permitted to return home, Tom Jendrzej happened to be ill. He was cared for by Joseph Gawlik for three weeks until he was well enough to return home to Yorktown. Jacob later settled in Inez, Texas.

After the Jendrzej Family came to America, the spelling of their name was changed. It was spelled Jendrzyi in the old country, then became Jendrzej, and finally became Jendrzey to give it more of an American spelling rather than the Polish spelling.

Maria (Mary) Jendrzey married Josef Warzecha on February 18, 1873, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Yorktown. They bought a 200 acre farm in the Five Mile Community near Ratcliffe, Texas, and they were blessed with seven children: Adam, John, Julia (Respondek), Karolina, Rosie (Pokluda), Tekla, and Nicholas Warzecha.

Joseph Jendrzey took Anna Moy as his wife, and they settled in Yorktown. The eight children of Joseph and Anna Jendrzey were: Frances (Wostal), Katie (Kolodziejczyk), Tekla (Yanta), Frank Jendrzey, Joseph Jendrzey Jr., Caroline (Jarzombek), Regina (Stepanski), and Victoria (Muschalek).

Frank Jendrzey married Florentine Respondek, and they made their home in Yorktown. They had 11 or 12 children, including: Leon, Caesar, John, Magdalen (Machost), Elizabeth (Plasczyk), Gertrude (Mainka), Frank Jr., Jerome, Steve, and Bernard Jendrzey.

Peter Jendrzey married Julia (maiden name unknown). They also settled in Yorktown, and had four children: John Jendrzey, Ignatz Jendrzyi, Lucy (Koenig), and Rosie (Roesler).

Because they were devout Catholics, and because of their special location across from St. Mary's Catholic Church, Valentine and Catherine Jendrzey donated part of their land to establish St. Mary's Catholic Cemetery, which is now Holy Cross Catholic Cemetery. Catherine Panicz Jendrzey is buried on the grounds of Holy Cross Catholic Cemetery. When Valentine Jendrzey died, he wished to be buried on his own land, so he is buried on his farm across the road from Holy Cross Catholic Cemetery.

Their farm is still owned and farmed by the Jendrzey family, and has been honored by the State of Texas as an estate which has stayed in one family for over 100 years.

JOHN, PAUL ALBERT AND ELENORA BOCK F470

Paul Albert John was born on March 3, 1921 at Yorktown, Texas to Peter and Martha Kozielski. He was the youngest of six children.

He attended country school at Buesing until the fifth grade at which time he had to quit school to help his family on the farm. With the call for men during World War II, Paul served his country in the U.S. Army for 3 yrs. and 9 mos. Upon his discharge on the last day of the year of 1945, he returned home to the family farm at "Cotton Patch" just out of Yorktown. He continued on the farm, taking it over and buying it from his parents. Then in 1957 he moved his wife and children to Cuero. For ten years he worked at the Cuero Cotton Mill as a weaver and "fixer" or machine repairman. In 1967, he went to work for Gulf Coast Wood Products as a carpenter and cabinet maker. He remained there for twenty-two years until his retirement in 1989.

Paul and Elenora John

Paul has always been a hard working man and does not take it "easy" in retirement. Even at this present time you can almost always find him with a hammer and nails in his hand building something or the other. He does not remain idle.

Elenora Agnes Bock was born on February 22, 1927 in Yorktown to Sylvester (S.P.) Bock and Annie Marie Broll Bock. Elenora went to school in the Yorktown area until the age of ten, but had to quit school to care for her father and brother, Gene, as her mother became ill and Elenora was needed at home.

Paul and Elenora were married on October 21, 1946 at the Holy Cross Catholic Church in Yorktown. They made their home in Yorktown, until 1957 when they moved to Cuero and made that their home. They have four children: James Paul, Helen Marie, Dennis Ray "Dino", and Philip Lee.

James Paul was born on February 18, 1949 in Cuero. He graduated from Cuero High School in 1967 and is presently employed at Timco Industries of Cuero. James married Mary Janysek from Karnes City in 1970 and they have one son, James Cody John (2-20-81).

Helen Marie was born on April 6, 1953 in Yorktown. She graduated from Cuero High School in 1971. She was employed in the office of Cuero Community Hospital from 1972 to 1981. She married David Buenger in 1969 and they divorced in 1974. One son, Shelton Buenger was born to this union. On January 9, 1982 Helen married Craig M. Seekamp of Yoakum. They have two sons: Craig Morgan, II (3-30-83) and Trevor John (2-17-87). Helen is presently a housewife and the co-helper of her husband's business, Trax Heavy Equip. They made their home in the beautiful country community of Stratton.

Dennis Ray or "Dino" as he is known to all his friends was born August 3, 1957 in Yorktown. He graduated from Cuero High School in 1975. He is a ranch hand for Graham Land and Cattle Co. in Gonzales, and is a true "cowboy" in every sense of the word. He is married to Kathy Martignoni of Victoria. They are blessed with one son — Jeremiah Jason John, (1-31-

Philip Lee was born on May 14, 1963 in Cuero. He graduated from Cuero High School in 1981. He attended Victoria College and is presently employed at Reuss Pharmacy in Cuero. He is totally responsible for the Radio Shack and Kiss Photo Departments. He makes his home in Cuero and is married to the former Melissa Wanjura of Cuero.

JOHNSON, ALFRED S. AND MARGUERITE E. (GOEBEL)

F471

Alfred Johnson and Marguerite (Goebel) Johnson

Alfred Johnson was born January 9, 1907 near the Cheapside Community in DeWitt County, Texas. He was the son of John and Ella (Boysen) Johnson, pioneers of the area.

After attending pharmacy school in Austin, Alfred worked in a drugstore for his uncle in Galveston. On April 6, 1942 he was drafted into military service. He served until ill health caused his early release from the Army and he returned to Cuero. He then assumed the operation of the cafe known as "Pops Place." In June of 1943, Alfred purchased the cafe and surrounding property from the St. Marks Lutheran Church.

Alfred Johnson and Marguerite Goebel were married June 5, 1944. She was the daughter of Ilo J. and Josephine (Koenig) Goebel who were lifelong residents of the Green DeWitt Community.

Together, Alfred and Marguerite operated the "Pops Cafe." She worked in the cafe and also baked the very popular fresh pies for the cafe. In July of 1957, Alfred built a ten unit motel behind the cafe which he ran until his retirement in 1980.

Marguerite was a Catholic and a member of the Altar Society. She received their highest recognition, a cross and chain, for being the outstanding member for the year. Alfred and Marguerite were members of the Green DeWitt Social Club and both enjoyed family gatherings.

Alfred Johnson died March 14, 1981 and Marguerite died August 1, 1975. They are buried in Hillside Cemetery at Cuero, DeWitt County, Texas.

JONISCHKIES, JOHN AND MARIA (KIRLICKS) FAMILY

F472

On 1 Jan. 1862, at St. John's Lutheran Church in Meyersville, the widow Maria (Kirlicks) Gelssus, native of Kirlicken, Lithuania, married John Jonischkies, a native of nearby Rupkalwen, Lithuania. It was the start of a long and happy marriage, which produced six children, all of whom eventually married. The stories of Maria's mother, Catherine Kirlicks, and her first husband, George Gelssus, are given separately. Unlike her sister and brothers, Maria was unable to keep giving her children the same Christian names (two for girls and five for boys), as she had eight daughters, but only one son.

John Jonischkies (19 June 1829-27 Mar. 1911) came to DeWitt County in 1857, following his brother George. Both were well known in the Lithuanian community here. John always considered himself a farmer (at least according to the 1870-1910 censuses), but family members have reported that he was also in the freight business. We know that during the 1860's he wrote long letters to his wife (in almost perfect handwriting) from places in Mexico or near the border, but the contents have not yet been translated. His father, Michael, lived with him for awhile. Michael died 2 Nov. 1882.

The first of John's five daughters was Auguste Emilie (17 Oct. 1862-30 Dec. 1923). On 26 Sep. 1883, Emilie married George Voelkel (27 Apr. 1860-14 Dec. 1905). George was the brother of Wilhelmine (Voelkel) Lundschen (see "George and Anna Lundschen Family"). Their three children were Louis, George William, and Lillie (married Joseph C. Boldt). George and Emilie are buried in the Jonischkies family cemetery, as are their two sons.

The second daughter was Ottilie Friedericke (12 Oct. 1864-22 Nov. 1926). On 20 Oct. 1887, she married Bernhard Post (20 Aug. 1859-2 Feb. 1928), a blacksmith who later owned a hardware store. She is the only one of John Jonischkies' children not married at St. Paul's in Yorktown. They made their home in Meyersville, and had no children.

The next daughter, Wilhelmine Emma (21 Aug. 1865-24 Sep. 1938) married Bernhard's brother, Otto Post (1 May 1861-30 Jan. 1902), also a blacksmith. The parents of the Post brothers were Henry Post and Christine M. Hettig, a native of Saxony. Otto and Emma made their home in Schroeder (then called Germantown) in Goliad Co., and belonged to St. Luke's Lutheran Church. When Otto died of typhoid, he left his wife and four small children - Albert John, Edwin Heinrich Franz, Emilie Magdalena Augusta Maria (married George Reuter), and Helene Emma, whose first husband is said to be the serviceman George Schroeder for whom the town was named. On 21 Aug. 1904, Emma married Charles Debrodt and became a stepmother to his son Charles.

The fourth daughter was Caroline Mathilde (1 May 1868-20 Jan. 1941), or Caroline, contrary to the German tradition of using the last of one's given names. She married Traugott Jank (6 June 1866-26 May 1952) on 14 Dec. 1891, and had five children — Pauline "Lena" (married Avery Von Blon), Paul Herman, Martha Marie "Meta" (died at age 17, buried beside her parents in Yoakum), Bertha Anna (married Peter Klitsch and Bernard Hopkins), and Erna Michele (married Curtis Tate). (Also see related stories on Paul Herman Jank, and Jank Bottling Works.)

The only son was Johann Friedrich Wilhelm "William" (5 May 1872-17 May 1932). On 16 Mar. 1899, he married Louise Kaufmann (26 Mar. 1880-14 Nov. 1918), daughter of Emil Kaufmann and Amelia P. Metz. They had four children — Werner Raymond, Ena Elmira (married Otto Mayer), Esther Leona (married Benjamin Lemke), and Ira Wanda (married Otto Rabke). Otto and Ira Rabke celebrated their golden anniversary in 1984, and still live in Yorktown.

The youngest daughter was Magdalena Bertha "Lena" (8 July 1876-21 Feb. 1946). She married John Calvin McMillan (19 Aug. 1867-2Dec. 1928) on 3 Feb. 1898. Their four children were Willie Paul, Hugo Hermann, Ella Ida (married William Ideus), and Meta Maria (married Louis Hoff, Jr.). The Ideus family still owns the property containing the Jonischkies family cemetery, where members of the Kerlick, Lundschen, Jonischkies, Schork, Ragozsus, and other Lithuanian families are buried.

JUNKER, GEORGE V. AND HILDEGARD DIEBEL

George Valentine Junker was born Aug. 22, 1876, son of John and Katherine Haberkorn Junker. He grew up in the Arneckeville community.

On Nov. 29, 1900 he married Hildegard Diebel, daughter of Fred and Elizabeth Wendel Diebel of Meyersville, Texas. They had seven children: Arthur, May 15, 1900, married Lena Hausmann; Vera, Sept. 12, 1903, married Albert Friedrichs (see Albert Friedrichs history); Fred, July 19, 1906-May 11, 1987, married Ella Roessler; John, Oct. 29, 1909-Jan. 26, 1986, married Minnie Demmer; Edwin, July 18, 1912, married Iva Goehring; Melinda, April 25, 1915-Dec. 4, 1945, married Berner Bade; Richard, Jan. 23, 1918-May 4, 1977, married Alice Gruetzmacher.

While George and Hilda were living on a farm near Weesatche, Vera recalls a carnival being in town. A Mr. Edward Meyer was at one of the trinket booths and in the booth was a certain item he wanted. He would play and play the machine getting a lot of prizes but not the one he wanted. Finally he got the item he wanted. Vera, with all the other children who had no money to play the machine, were hoping that Ed Meyer would give them the items he did not want. However, Ed gave all the items back to the carnival.

Also while in Weesatche, Arthur and Vera, ages about 10 and 12, were sent to a neighbor to borrow a block and tackle. They took a little red wagon to bring back the block and tackle. About half way home the neighbor's billy goat came running after them. Arthur grabbed the goat around the neck and the goat dragged him for a while. When Arthur turned loose of the goat Arthur and Vera ran into the house and crawled under the bed to get away from the goat. The wagon with the block and tackle stayed in the pasture.

Vera went to the Hienzeville School near Weesatche. I, Elorine, daughter of Vera Junker Friedrichs, started doing genealogy and was told to go see Dora Brauer, as she could help me. I took Mother along and for a while we talked family. Then Vera asked Dora what happened to a girl at the school. The girl's name was Dora Kerlick. Of course, Dora answered fast "Here she is." I don't know who was surprised the most. From then on no more family history was discussed. They had a good time reliving school days.

When John Junker died in May 1915, George and family moved to the home place to take care of his mother, Katherine. George was a farmer all of his life. Like all early families he worked the land with horses and walked behind the plows, planters and cultivators. Later they got riding implements that were pulled with horse teams. A son, Edwin, now owns and lives on the home place.

George and Hilda were members of Zion Lutheran Church, Arneckeville. Hilda died July 7, 1947; George died Jan. 26, 1953. Both are buried on Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville, Texas.

JUNKER, JOHN AND KATHERINE HABERKORN

F474

John was born in Richenbach, Hessen, Germany, Oct. 21, 1851, son of John George and Fredricka Schneider Junker. They had two children, John and Katherine Junker. Fredricka Junker died and is buried in Germany. John George then married Margareta Zimmerman in Germany. They came to America in 1859 with John and Katherine, on the ship "Iris" landing at Indianola, Texas. After John George and Margareta came to America they had four children — Anna, who married Albert Waldeck; Sophie, who married Ed Hans; Mary, who married August Hans; and Fritz, who married Sophie Hiller. Katherine married George Afflerbach. John married Katherine Haberkorn, born April 16, 1853 in Leusel, Germany to Conrad and Elizabeth Koehler Haberkorn. She came to America in 1853 with a sister, Elizabeth, and brother, Valentine. They stayed with the Koehlers at Arneckeville. Later in 1883 the parents, Conrad and Elizabeth Haberkorn with a son Louis followed them to Texas. A brother, Fred Haberkorn stayed in Germany and has not been heard from since 1940. Fred lived in Darmstadt, Germany and it is believed that he and his family died during the air raids of World War II.

John and Katherine Haberkorn Junker established their home in the Arneckeville community, now the Edwin Junker place, and lived there all their life. They hauled water from the Five Mile Creek. They had nine children who all grew to adulthood. 1. Fredericka, July 5, 1875-Feb. 18, 1962, married Henry Becker. 2.

George, Aug. 22, 1876-Jan. 26, 1953, married Hildagard Diebel. 3. Otto, Sept. 21, 1878-May 16, 1941, married Emily Gerhold. 4. Rudolph, Nov. 15, 1880-April 14, 1944, married Emelie Jutz. 5. Hugo, Nov. 13, 1883-April 5, 1955, married Frances Thuem. 6. Alma, Dec. 5, 1885-Jan. 1, 1983, married Dick Gauhl. 7. Emma, April 26, 1888-Dec. 26, 1986, married Fred Thamm. 8. Frieda, June 30, 1890-April 8, 1983, married William Buehrig. 9. Urania, Nov. 26, 1892-Jan. 18, 1964, married Otto Buchel.

John Junker was a farmer until 1892 when he became commissioner of Precinct 8, now Precinct 4. He was commissioner for 16 years. He was also Justice of the Peace of Precinct 8. As a member of the court many important questions pressed for settlement during his incumbency, such as the building of a new courthouse, two large river bridges and direct road taxation. All were installed in satisfactory manner to the public interest. Judge Kleberg, a good friend of John Junker, remarked that he was one of the county's most useful and valued citizens.

John died May 30, 1915. Katherine lived on the home place with son, George and Hilda Junker until her death May 31, 1938. Both are buried at Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville.

JUTZ, FERDINAND AND MARGARETHA (LANGHEIT) (MOSTEIT)

F475

Ferdinand Jutz was born 26 Feb 1832 in Prussia, where he was a fisherman. Not much is known about his first two wives. His third wife was Mrs. Margaretha (Langheit) Mosteit,

John and Katherine (Haberkorn) Junker

Margaretha Jutz, ca. 1900.

born 31 Oct 1841 in Memel, Germany (now Lithuania). Her first husband died during a war with Russia.

Ferdinand and Margaretha Jutz landed at Galveston in September 1874. They were accompanied by Margaretha's two children from her first marriage, August Mosteit and Johanna (Mrs. Annie Boldt) Mosteit, and their son, Ferdinand. Ferdinand left daughter Caroline and one of his twin daughters, Bertha, in Prussia. The other twin, Hertha, died at sea during the trip.

Ferdinand Jutz became a farmer after arriving in DeWitt County and lived near Meyersville. He and Margaretha had six children and were members of St. John's Lutheran Church, where their other five children were all baptized on the same day in 1886. Ferdinand died 25 Mar 1890 and Margaretha died 23 Mar 1922. They are both buried in the Meyersville Lutheran Cemetery.

Their oldest child, Ferdinand Gustav Wilhelm Jutz was born in 1872 in Memel also. He married Anna Johanna Katharina Afflerbach. Their story is given separately.

Maria Martha (Mary) Jutz married John Brans and lived in Dallas most of her life. They had two daughters, Myrtle, who married A.L. Leger and Ethel, who married Walter Egner.

Hermann Albert Jutz married Emilie Sophie Mlani Diebel and had three daughters: 1) Lillie married Erwin Rath; 2) Flora married Chilton S. Purcell and had a daughter, Shirley Ann; 3) Malinda married Elder Henry Jacob and had two children, Earlan Lloyd and Patricia.

Helene Friedericke Jutz married Henry C. Rangnow. Their two children were Irene and Margerite.

Emilia Margaretha Jutz married Rudolph F.M. Junker, and they had three children: 1) Valeska Marie Junker, who married Christian V. Hartmann, had two daughters Hazel and Joyce. Valeska was later married to J.V. Lamb and they had two children, Vernon and Sylvia Ann. 2) Herbert F. Junker married Leona Hartmann. 3) Arline Margaret Junker, who has four sons, Frank and Albert Murray and James and Douglas Anderson, and is presently married to Wayne Popp and lives in California.

Lydia Ottilie Jutz married Walter Karnes, had one child, Adelaide, and like her sister Mary, lived most of her life in Dallas.

JUTZ, FERDINAND GOTTFRIED WILHELM AND ANNA (AFFLERBACH)

F476

Ferdinand G. and Anna (Afflerbach) Jutz, Nov. 30, 1897

Ferdinand Gottfried Wilhelm Jutz was born 18 Mar 1872 in Memel, Prussia (which is now Klaipeda, Lithuania). He immigrated to Texas with his parents and step-brother, August Mosteit, and step-sister, Johanna (Annie) Mosteit, landing in Galveston about 15 September 1874. the family settled near Meyersville and attended St. John's Lutheran Church.

On 30 Nov 1897, he and Anna Johanna Katherina Afflerbach were married in Meyersville. Anna was born 22 Feb 1878 in Yorktown to George Afflerbach and Katherina Junker. Anna's grandparents were Johan Heinrich Afflerbach and Marie Elise Friedrich, who immigrated to Yorktown from Westfalia, Germany and Johan George Junker and Fredericka Schneider of Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany.

During the time they were married, Ferdinand worked as a blacksmith in Arneckeville and as a carpenter in Cuero. On 3 Dec 1918, he died of pneumonia. Anna, through her strong faith in God and hard work, took care of their six children, ranging in age from 20 to 1 year. She was an expert seamstress and enjoyed making quilts and crocheting for her children and grandchildren. In her later years, she lived with her brother, Louis Afflerbach, on Morgan Avenue. Anna died at the age of 95 on 1 Jan 1973. She and Ferdinand are both buried in the Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

Their first child, Natalia (Tallie) Katherina Johanna, born in 1898, married Gustav Adolph Denecamp. They lived in San Antonio where they raised two sons, G.A., Jr. and Louis. G.A. Jr. of San Antonio also has two sons, Danny and Gussie. Louis and his wife, Belin, have a son, Louis Jr. and live in Stockdale.

Edmund Emil, second child born 1900, was married to Gussie Dalhman of Nordheim. They had three children: Homer Sylvan, father of Gary and Jerilyn; Mae Antoinette and husband, Howard Reininger of San Antonio, parents of Susan, Patty, and twins, Russell and Randall; and Edmund F. Jutz.

Elsa (Elsie) Amelia Augusta, born 1902, married Alfred J. (Mac) Seffel, son of Frank Seffel and Lavonia Perkins. They had one son, Glenn Warren (Billy) and lived in San Antonio.

Irena (Irene) Margaretha Fredericka, born in 1905 was married to Robert H. Barnes, Jr. They later moved to San Antonio where they raised six children: 1) Robert III who with Dotty live in San Antonio; 2) Ann Larue, deceased, who married Eugene Benferand adopted two boys, Kevin and Robert; 3) Doreen Faye of New Braunfels; 4) James Marion of Elmendorf who has two sons, James, Jr. and David; and twins 5) Terry Charles of Austin and 6) Jerry Neland of Bulverde. Terry and wife, Carolyn Moore, have two daughters, Terrice and Karen. Jerry has a daughter, Lori Ann, and he and wife, Bonnie Gelwicks have two children, Tammie and Frank. Irene still lives in San Antonio with her husband, Leon Eilert.

Julia Anna Hertha, born 1907, married William E. Delaney of Goliad. They had one daughter, Sharon of Willis, who has three children: Clay, Kyle and Allison.

Alvin Neland, born in 1917, served in World War II and the Korean War. He had two children, Raymond and Steven.

KAISER, LESLIE FAMILY

Leslie Charles Kaiser was born February 3, 1920, the second and smallest of twin sons, who were the first children of Ludwig William John Emil and Roma Auguste Thiele Kaiser. Big and Little, as the twins got to be known, were born in their parents home at 2400 Nelson Street in Yoakum, Texas. Except for the four years Leslie was in the U.S. Army, he lived in this home until he married.

He attended West Side School in Yoakum and old Yoakum High School, being in the last class to graduate in the old Barn auditorium in 1937. The Barn was located where the present Primary Annex is now. Leslie worked on on his father's farms, dairy, and trucking and ranching business until 1934. In 1934 and 1936, while attending high school, he worked for his uncle, K.M. Thiele, at the City Meat Market. From 1936 until 1939, he worked for his grandfather Harry Thiele in the Thiele Meat Market, located across from the Gonzales Street railroad crossing. Leslie attended Baldwin Business College and graduated in 1939. He worked in Edinburg, Texas in 1940 and 1941, manifesting in the citrus fruit industry at Polis and Hagan packing shed. In March of 1942 he was drafted into the U.S. Army and served active and inactive duty, until 1953, in the Field Artillery and Infantry; was honorable discharged in 1953 as a 1st Lieutenant. While in the service he attended and graduated from the Infantry School in Ft. Bennington, Ga. He served in the South Pacific in the Philippine Islands. After the War he returned to Yoakum and again went to work for his father in the farming business for about one year. In 1947, he went to work for his twin brother "Big" Kaiser, at the City Meat Market. On September 15, 1947, Leslie married Vera Pauline Ross, and in February, 1948, he purchased the City Meat Market with a partner, and remained co-owner and manager until 1983 when he became sole owner until his retirement in January, 1989.

Vera Pauline Ross Kaiser was born March 17, 1927, at 121 Arnold Street in Yoakum, Texas, about one-half mile from the L.W. Kaiser residence. She was the first child of John Paul and Vera Josephine Porche Ross. Veraline, as she was called by her family, had two brothers. In the spring of 1933, the Ross's moved to a farm about three miles northwest of Yoakum and that fall Vera started school at Hagan School where she completed two grades. She started third grade at St. Joseph School in Yoakum, as her family moved back to town in fall of 1934, when her father went to work for Southwest Natural Gas Company. Vera graduated from St. Joseph School in 1944 and attended Baldwin's Business College. While attending high school, Vera worked at Shropshire Drug Store in the fountain, J.C. Penney Co. as a clerk and at Edgerton Flying Service as a secretary. After graduating from Baldwin's, she worked for two years at Ford Motor Company as a bookkeeper. After she married, Vera was a homemaker and about 1953 began doing the bookkeeping for their market. In 1962 they leased the building adjoining the market on the north side, and opened a BBQ restaurant and enlarged the market. In 1972 they leased the adjoining building on the south and moved the restaurant and retail meat counter there and put in a line of groceries. Vera had been doing the business accounting at home and about 1970 she began working at the store, a little more each year, so it grew into a full time job. Leslie served for years as director of the Yoakum Chamber of Commerce, and the 1968 and 1969 terms as president. He is a charter member of the Yoakum Industrial Foundation and a member of the Project Show committee and very often offers the market facilities to help community service affairs. Vera was very active in St. Joseph's PTC as long as their children were in the school, a member of Catholic Daughters of America, a charter member of DeWitt County Genealogical Society, and a charter member and director of the Yoakum Heritage Museum.

Leslie and Vera are the parents of seven children, all but one of which were born in Huth Memorial Hospital in Yoakum, Texas.

Roma Josephine was born July 3, 1948, was married to Jimmy Ray Delvige in 1970, has two children Brian Kevin and Cheryl Helene and they live on Blue Bonnet Lane in Yoakum.

Leslie Charles, Jr. was born July 1, 1950, in Rockport, Texas and died the same day. He is buried in St. Joseph Cemetery, Yoakum, Texas.

Leslye Pauline, born January 20, 1952, married Charles Anthony Fikac in 1972, has three children, Kara Lynn, Steven Paul and Carl Michael, and they live on Bootleggers Lane 6 miles west of Yoakum.

Diana Marie born February 13, 1955, married Thomas Edward Cliff in 1974, and divorced in 1976. Diana was killed in 1977 in Wharton County, Texas, and is buried in St. Joseph Cemetery.

Patricia Annette, born April 29, 1957, married Robert Wayne Williams in 1988, has one son Cody Robert, and lives on the Victoria Prairie.

Charlotte Kay, born June 30, 1959, married Albert J. Edwards in 1984, has 1 daughter, Katherine Diana and they live in Cibolo, Texas.

Paul Ross was born May 6, 1961, was married to Carol Jean Hrncir of Yoakum on December 28, 1985 now owns and manages Kaiser's City Meat Market in Yoakum. Paul and Carol have one daughter, Carline Terese and live in Yoakum.

Leslie and Vera live on Blue Bonnet Lane about two miles west of Yoakum, and have been living there since 1951.

KAISER, LUDWIG WILLIAM JOHN EMIL FAMILY

F478

The son of Charles Friederich Kaiser and Elise Frerichs, Ludwig W. Kaiser was born in Moulton, Texas on May 1, 1890. He married Florence Hoover but she passed away in 1916. In July, 1919. L.W. "Lovie" Kaiser married Roma Augusta Thiele (born October 1, 1901 at New Braunfels, Texas). Shortly thereafter they bought a track of land at the west end of Nelson Street where they lived in a frame house with two bedrooms and one bathroom. Of this marriage, eleven sons and three daughters were born: 1) Lester H. and Leslie C., b. February 3, 1920; 2) Edith Huebner, b. September 15, 1921; 3) Ludwig W., Jr., b. July 2, 1923; 4) Emil H., b. September 2, 1925; 5) Doris Dornak, b. December 3, 1927; 6) Elmo A., b. November 4, 1929; 7) Walter E., b. August 15, 1931; 8) Robert Lee, b. November 8, 1933; 9) Edwin F., b. August 30, 1935; 10) Vernon O., b. August 30, 1937; 11) Marjorie Cook, b. July 24, 1939; 12) Weldon L., b. September 24, 1941; 13) Clifton R., b. February 23, 1944.

As was the custom, the first eight children were born at home while the last six were born in Huth Memorial Hospital.

After serving in the U.S. Army in World War I, Louie Kaiser returned home to work in the H. Thiele Meat Market in Yoakum. Later he bought the City Meat Market which is today owned and operated by a son, Leslie. In addition to farming, ranching and cattle trading, Louie Kaiser operated three dairies. (On the home place alone, he had around 100 milk cows.) Products of year-around feedlots of cattle, hogs, sheep and goats were usually processed through Thiele slaughter house, supplying local markets and generous family consumption.

For years the family picked up day-old bread and cakes from the Mobley Bakery for the hog feedlot, with many items fresh enough for family and neighborhood children. Neighborhood youngsters usually assisted in the daily work, with the only pay being joining the family mealtimes with hearty appetites. Another fringe benefit could be horseback riding, many times with half-broken horses or mules. Milk was delivered all over Yoakum each day at five cents per quart. All these operations were carried on by the family with little hired belon.

The family remembers that there was plenty of food and hard work for all, but little money. In the 1930's, the family was also doing custom farm work with horse and mule drawn equipment. Later tractors were used to pull row binders, combines and other types of farm machinery. All cash money went into a container on top of the old refrigerator for buying groceries.

After most of the older children left home or were in military duty, the dairy was sold in 1943. Dairy operations on the home place continued on a limited basis until 1957, "Keeping the kids busy and out of trouble".

Mrs. Ludwig Kaiser and her children

The home place itself was sold to Hochheim Prairie Insurance Company in 1979. The proceeds of that sale were divided into 14 portions and distributed to the family with no arguments or hard feelings. Since Leslie lived the closest to the old home place, he moved the house to his land on Blue Bonnet Land and his daughter and son-in-law, Roma Jo and Jim Delvige rebuilt the old house into their home.

The whole Kaiser family which includes 40 grandchildren and many great-grandchildren meets on the first Sunday of October for a reunion. Mrs. Louie Kaiser's birthday was on October 1 and Mr. Kaiser always had a family gathering on that first Sunday.

KASTEN, ADAM FAMILY

In 1895 when Adam Marcus Kasten was 11 years of age, he traveled with his father, August Kasten, from Appelts Hill near Hallettsville to investigate the possibility of settling in or near the newly platted town-site of Weldon Switch, changed to Nordheim officially in 1897. In later years Adam Kasten often spoke of the journey on horseback over ranch lands—the swing gates and the native grass often so tall a cow could get lost in it, a land devoid of underbrush with only stately oaks and hackberry trees scattered here and there.

Adam Kasten was born at Hackberry, Texas near Hallettsville in Lavaca County on January 29, 1886 to August and Gerhardina Heinsohn Kasten. He was baptized at the Ev. Lutheran Church at Frelsburg, Texas on May 24, 1886 and confirmed in the Lutheran faith at Nordheim on April 8, 1901 by Pastor J.K. Poch. His schooling was begun at Pleasant Grove school near Hallettsville and concluded at Nordheim. The boys spent much free time knocking one another's spin tops out of a circle. Young Adam Kasten carved a top 3" in diameter and 4" long from a tree limb, inserted a sharpened bolt for a point and became the scourge of the top spinners, splitting many of the boys tops into pieces. He also had an insatiable interest in U.S. History and politics. This writer was often amazed at his wide knowledge and keen insight into U.S. History and later discovered he owned and treasured a number of U.S. history books written in the German language.

Adam Kasten grew to manhood, along with the growth of Nordheim, on his parent's farm south of Northeim. He farmed with his father, worked in several mercantile stores, but when he married he chose farming for a livelihood, purchasing a farm seven miles south of Runge, Texas in Karnes County. In 1908 he was the champion marksman at the "King Shoot" tryouts. He reigned as king during the May Fest that year — all of the festivities taking place on Pilot Knob. He and the chosen queen led the Grand March at the Grand Ball at night. The inscribed medal he received for being king is on display in the Nordheim Museum. Later that year, on November 23, 1908 Adam Kasten and Lydia Haertig were married in Woodsboro, Texas. They were the first couple to be married in the new but growing town of Woodsboro. The Ernst Haertig family had moved from the Gruenau Community near Yorktown to the Bonnie View Community south of Woodsboro in 1907.

After their marriage in 1908, Adam and Lydia Kasten lived on their newly purchased farm south of Runge where they prospered, but their family and social ties were firmly attached to Nordheim. The writer remembers the many buggy trips to Nordheim and back. These were simple but unhurried adventures every time you could go somewhere in a buggy.

There was a bonding experience between parents and children in a buggy or surrey that can never happen in a car. Of course, it was also exciting when my father brought home our first automobile, a big Overland touring car! The cars were always getting stuck in the mud whereas a buggy didn't get stuck. Two children were born to the Adam Kasten's in Karnes County. The first child, the writer, was born on December 10, 1912 named Lula Belle and the second was a son born May 26, 1920 named August after the grandfather.

In 1921 the family moved to a farm on the northwest edge of Nordheim, bordering the Runge Ranch. Adam Kasten invested in a starter herd of Holstein cattle which he planned to breed and sell. However, the tick fever scourge wiped out the expensive bull and most of the cows, so he turned to building for a trade. The wife, Lydia, was an excellent seamstress and sewed for many residents during her lifetime. Two more children were born at Nordheim; namely, Leon Roland, born January 7, 1922 who died a week later, and Judith Miriam, born February 24, 1925.

Lydia Haertig Kasten was born near Shiner, Texas to Ernst and Martha Leonhardt Haertig on March 5, 1887 where she was baptized in the Lutheran faith. She moved to Gruenau near Yorktown with her family in 1890 where she attended school and grew to womanhood along with eleven surviving brothers and sisters. The story was told that the couple met after Lydia Haertig, while visiting her sister Mrs. John Pundt in Nordheim, had written her name and address on some eggs which were sold to the Willie Kasten store. Adam Kasten clerked at the store and discovered her name on an egg. At the time it was a romantic custom for young people to write their names on eggs in order to make new acquaintances.

The Kasten family was active in St. Paul Ev. Lutheran Church at Nordheim. Both parents and children were confirmed there and Lydia Kasten was a lifetime member of the Missionary Society while daughter, Lula Belle, taught Sunday School for 17 years and was active with the Luther League.

Special interests for Adam Kasten were the Nordheim Shooting Club and the early baseball teams which Nordheim always fielded. He usually played catcher and always participated in the annual Fats and Leans baseball game. He was especially interested in education and served on the school board of the Nordheim public school during the 1930's. Both parents encouraged their three children to attend college at great sacrifice. The writer, Lula Belle, attended Texas Lutheran College and the University of Texas at Austin earning a Bachelors and Masters degree in Education. She taught school for 45 years, thirty-five of which were in the Nordheim Schools, where she worked in the Social Studies field as well as Girls Physical Education, coaching successful basketball and volleyball teams for many years. In 1948 she married Everest Kolodziejczyk of Nordheim, who died in 1983 after operating the Nordheim Barber Shop for 54 years. A daughter, Mrs. Manfred (Venice) Scheurich, is a Professor of Mathematics at Del Mar College in Corpus Christi. At this writing Lula B. Kolodziejczyk resides in Nordheim and is still active with the Nordheim Museum. Lula Belle made letters for her father's car during a political campaign which read: "Dan's the Man Lynch is a Cinch — But me for Ma (Fergu-

A son of Adam and Lydia Kasten, August Kasten, attended A&I University and the University of Texas. He married Annabel Engelking in 1947. He lives in Victoria, Texas and is retired, after having worked in the DuPont Laboratories for many years. One son, Donald Kasten, resides in Victoria with his family while another son, Thomas Kasten, is presently employed in Gonzales, Texas.

The youngest daughter, Judith, acquired a degree in Sociology from the University of Texas. She married Warren Frantz in 1947 and he served as an accountant with Alcoa until his death in 1982. They lived an interesting life, moving to many different places including eleven years in South America. Judith Kasten Frantz now resides in Pittsburgh, PA which was their last assignment.

Adam and Lydia Kasten are both deceased. Lydia preceded him in death on January 6, 1957 while Adam died on November 8, 1966, both having made their contribution to the development of Nordheim from pioneer times.

KASTEN, AUGUST HEINRICH FAMILY

August Kasten and a young son, Adam, first appeared in the Nordheim area in 1895. They had traveled from Appelts Hill near Hallettsville to investigate the possibility of buying land and settling in the Nordheim area.

On April 15, 1849, August Kasten was born to Friedrich and Wilhelmine Eidmann Kasten at Langenhagen, Pommern, Germany. Here he was christened in the Lutheran faith when two weeks old. The Friedrich Kasten family embarked to the United States in 1854, and almost immediately tragedy befell them, for on a stopover at Liverpool, England, the mother died and was buried there. The father continued to America with three young sons, Herman (8), Ferdinand (7), and August (5) plus an infant daughter, Marie, who died on the voyage. They entered Texas at Galveston and settled in Austin County where the father made a living breaking horses for the settlers. Three years later the father was fatally injured, leaving three young orphan boys. The Weishuhn family took in the three boys and during the Civil War young August served as a messenger boy. As a young man Ferdinand moved to Wisconsin while Herman drifted to Arizona and spent his life prospecting for gold. His story is told in another article.

The early adult life of August Kasten was spent in Austin and Colorado Counties. In 1871 he was married to Gerhardina Heinsohn at Frelsberg, Colorado County. She was born on June 13, 1852 at Frelsburg to Wilhelm and Meta Harfst Heinsohn and lived there until she married. The August Kasten family farmed at New Ulm, Frelsburg and Appelts Hill near Hallettsville. With seven living children the family outgrew the Hallettsville farm and in 1895 purchased a section of land beginning at the southern base of Pilot Knob and extending southward for about three miles from Nordheim. Part of the family lived on the new land in a dirt-floor building while the virgin land was prepared for farming. In 1900 the entire family moved into a newly erected eleven room two-story home and the temporary building became a buggy house. At this writing the home and the buggy house are still in place on the farm.

In 1895 August Kasten bought the first residence lot in the newly platted town then called Weldon Switch but officially changed to Nordheim in 1897. He built Nordheim's first cotton gin in 1895 which was operated by Ernst Westphal, a son-in-law, and Paul Ullrich. August Kasten also erected a gin at Cabeza which was operated by his son, Otto Kasten. These gins were very important to the development of the area for cotton was to be the main money crop. In 1902 he financially aided a son, William Kasten, and Edward Wied in establishing a joint mercantile store and gin operation. The Cabeza gin was moved into Nordheim at this time to become a part of the new business venture.

The Kasten family was also involved in the spiritual, social and educational development of the community. William Kasten was elected treasurer at the first recorded Lutheran congregational meeting in 1901 while August Kasten and William Kasten were listed as heads of families in the first congregational list of 1901. Otto Kasten was a signer of the first charter issued to St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church of Nordheim by the State of Texas in 1909. Meta Kasten Riedesel was elected secretary when the first Frauen Verein or Ladies Aid was organized in 1913 and held the position until the organization changed its conduction of business from German to English in 1950.

August Kasten was interested in developing a public school system and he chaired the first public organizational meeting. He served on the board of trustees soon after 1900 while a son, Adam Kasten, served as a truste during the 1930's. One daughter, Leona Kasten, became a teacher and doctor while three grandchildren, Arthur Westphal, Anita Riedesel, Lula Bell Kasten entered the teaching profession.

The male members of the family were very active as members of the Nordheim Shooting Club. Adam Kasten was the best marksman in 1908 and thus reigned as King of the May Feast that year. The mother, Gerhardina Kasten and daughters, Meta and Theresa, were very active in the women's clubs such as the Frauen Verein and Haekel Krenschen.

to Nordheim in 1900 the family had been completed. Nine children were born to August and Gerhardina Heinsohn Kasten but only six lived to adulthood. Battis and Eva died as infants while Ella died at the age of 17. Those born at Frelsburg were Theresa – 1872, William – 1875, Battis – 1877, and Otto – 1879 while Meta – 1883, Adam – 1886, Eva – 1888, Ella – 1889 and Leona – 1892 were born near Hallettsville.

Theresa Kasten married Ernst Westphal in 1898 nd two sons, Roland and Arthur, were born to them. Roland Westphal is deceased but Arthur Westphal and wife, Lorette, reside in San Antonio. William (Willie) Kasten married Louise Westphal and their son, Arno, was the first boy and second child born in Nordheim in 1897. A daughter, Myrtle, was born in 1905 and the family moved to Woodsboro in 1908.

There both father and daughter died in 1918. Arno Kasten and mother are also deceased. Otto Kasten married Ida Mueller and they adopted one daughter, Monette Kasten Besch. All the family are deceased except seven grandchildren. Meta Kasten married Frank Riedesel and they lived most of their lives in Nordheim. One daughter, Anita Riedesel Cook, resides in New Braunfels among some of her children and grandchildren. Adam Kasten was married to Lydia Haertig of Woodsboro and they were the first couple to be married in Woodsboro in 1908. They resided most of their lives in Nordheim. Their son, August Kasten, and wife, Annabel, live in Victoria while two daughters survive; namely, Mrs. Lula Belle (Everest) Kolodziejczyk of Nordheim and Mrs. Judith (Warren) Frantz of Pittsburgh, PA. Leona Kasten attended medical school and had the distinction of being the first woman doctor from DeWitt County. She married Buford Walker and both are deceased.

KASTEN, HERMAN M. F482

Gold Prospector

Very few Nordheim area citizens are aware that a man, who spent his entire adult life prospecting for gold in the Arizona area, is buried in the Nordheim Cemetery. The miner was Hearman M. Kasten, an older brother of pioneer August Kasten of Nordheim.

Herman M. Kasten was born at Langenhagen, Pommern, Germany on February 2, 1845 to Friedrich and Wilhelmina Eidmann Kasten. In 1854 he began the journey to the United States with his parents, two younger brothers, Friedrich Ferdinand and August Heinrich, and a one-year old sister named Marie Alvine. There was much sadness in store for the family for the mother and sister died on the journey. The father and the boys arrived at Galveston, first settled in Austin County and later near Frelsburg. The father made a living breaking in horses for the settlers and in 1857 was fatally injured. The boys were left homeless, for their father's new wife refused to be responsible for them. The Weishuhn family in the Frelsburg area took the boys into their home. A German language Baptismal Certificate shows that Herman Kasten was baptized in the Evangelisah-Lutherisahen Kirche (Lutheran congregation) in Frelsburg in 1862 at the age of 17 by Pastor C. Roehm.

This was the Gold Rush Era in U.S. History and the fever engulfed young Herman Kasten along with many others. He obtained a miners claim certificate to dig for precious metals in Arizona. His entire life was spent in the western area of the U.S. but the big find to make him rich eluded him. He lived the typical miners life one read about or saw in the movies. Enough gold dust and nuggets were found to enable him to go to town to replenish supplies and live it up for a few weeks or months. Then he would head back to his claim and the whole process would be repeated. He did take time off from digging and panning to work on the construction of the Elephant-Butte Dam Project where he suffered a broken leg. However, he did return to his claim for more prospecting.

When Herman Kasten's age and crippled leg made it impossible to withstand the rigors of a miner's life in Arizona, he came back to Nordheim to stay with his brother, August Kasten, until his death. He died November 1, 1920 at the age of 75 and is buried in the Nordheim Cemetery.

He brought back with him some of the tools of his trade including a copy of his claim and a small balancing scale. For his brother and nieces and nephews he brought back gold nuggets and vials of gold dust. This writer inherited her father's (Adam Kasten) gold nugget which he had mounted onto a tie pin. It is unfortunate that some of the tales he could have told were not sought out or written down for posterity. This writer was eight years old when the mysterious old man was with the family and the other surviving cousins were about the same age, but we were too much in awe or fear of him to make close contacts much to our regret today.

KASTEN, DR. LEONA

For a few individual women the movement for equal rights began much earlier than for most. Such a young woman was Leona Kasten of Nordheim. She has the distinction of being the first woman from DeWitt County to graduate from a Medical school and practice medicine.

Leona Kasten was born on May 28, 1892 to August and Gerhardina Heinsohn Kasten at Appelts Hill near Hallettsville in Lavaca County. In 1900 she moved to Nordheim with her family and grew to young womanhood there. Her pioneer environment probably prepared her for her pioneering efforts to become a woman doctor. After graduation from the Nordheim School, she attended Southwest Texas State Normal School at San Marcos, Texas. Upon graduation from the State Normal, she was granted a State Permanent Certificate in 1913 authorizing her to teach in any public school in Texas.

Leona Kasten as a young teacher in the Bonnie View School, ca. 1913

She taught school a number of years in the Haertig and Bonnie View Schools about eight miles south of Woodsboro in Refugio County. She stayed in the Ernst Haertig home and this was an enjoyable time for her. The young

Leona Kasten of Nordheim

Haertig men and women were a joyful, musical family full of fun and dance. Strong friendships were formed but young Leona Kasten had her sights set much higher. She was determined to save her money, go to medical school and become a doctor. The obstacles to such an ambition were tremendous from society in general and from her parents and older brothers and sisters. Why couldn't she be content with more acceptable careers for women such as teaching and being a housewife. But Leona thought that would be like settling into oblivion and was not for this independent young woman.

Leona Kasten managed to secure a grant from the Breckenridge Foundation in San Antonio and off she went to the University of Texas in Austin and then to the University Medical School in Galveston. During these years of study she encountered much discrimination for being female and ridicule because of her German heritage. However, she often said most of the male students were surprisingly sympathetic and supportive. Most of her family did offer their support by providing some food, money, clothing and other necessities. She spent most of her summer vacations with her brother, Adam Kasten and wife, Lydia Haertig Kasten, near Runge, Texas. Lydia Kasten was an excellent seamstress so they would put Leona's wardrobe together for the next school year. This writer vaguely remembers her Aunt Leona staying with them for Adam and Lydia Kasten were her parents.

After graduation from Galveston Medical School in 1923, Leona Kasten served a years internship at a hospital in Oakland, CA. In 1924 she began her medical practice in San Antonio, Texas where she specialized in women's ailments and obstetrics. However, while home in Nordheim, before going to San Antonio, she encountered an unnerving experience. A young child was ill with diphtheria and the local doctor had given up so the family called Dr. Leona Kasten, but it was too late and the child died. This was her first patient and she was deeply shaken by the experience.

During the 1930's Dr. Kasten took post-graduate work in a medical college in Pennsylvania. She then spent a year in a clinic in Vienna, Austria. In Ireland she interned for a year in a hospital and also studied in France and Germany. She engaged in medical practice in San Antonio for 28 years and was recognized as an outstanding member of the medical profession. Dr. Leona Kasten was the only Protestant doctor on the staff at Santa Rosa Hospital.

She was married to Buford Walker of San Antonio and they both enjoyed searching for and acquiring antiques with which they decorated their home. Dr. Kasten died an untimely death of leukemia at the age of 59 on February 18, 1952.

KAUFMAN, NICHOLAS

Nicholas Kaufman and his wife, Augusta Frey Kaufman, came to America from Mullheim, Baden, Germany, between 1845 and 1846, landing at the Port of Indianola, Texas.

This couple had 3 children in Germany, 2 daughters and 1 son. (The son died in infancy in Germany.) The 2 daughters were Wilhelmina Kaufman who at age 4 left Germany with her parents; and Marie Kaufman age 6 remained in Germany to complete her education. (She later came to America.) Another child was born to the Kaufmans after they arrived in Texas, Emil Kaufman.

Nicholas Kaufman was born in Germany on Nov. 21, 1811 and died on Dec. 26, 1896 in Yorktown, Texas. His wife Augusta Frey Kaufman was born on July 7, 1809 in Germany and died March 19, 1898 in Yorktown, Texas. They are buried in the West Side Cemetery.

The Kaufmans were members of the famous Castro immigration band who landed at Indianola and went by ox cart to Castroville. In 1848 Nicholas Kaufman became interested in the Gold Rush and started toward California, but in Uvalde, Texas his wagon became disabled and he was forced to remain behind. This proved most fortunate, for those who went on all met death in the tragic Mountain Meadow Massacre. The Kaufmans then returned to Castroville to live for a short time. Later they moved to what is now the Yorktown area.

On March 17, 1867 Wilhelmina Kaufman married Capt. Henry Dahl. They moved to Goliad, Texas and it was there that they had their first child George. That was in 1868. He married Agnes Arnold. George and Agnes Dahl had 6 children. They were Arthur, Arnold, Dora, Raymond, Forrest, and Winnie Dahl. The ten other children of Wilhelmina and Henry were as follows: Walter who died in infancy; Augusta who also died in infancy; Henry Jr. who also died in infancy; Mary Dahl (1875-1905) who married Ed Bartlett; Mattie who also died in infancy; John Dahl (1879-1954) who married Nellie Maye, they had 2 children, Freeman and Wayman; Nusom Dahl died at age one year; Margaret Dahl (1886-1988) married Warren B. Moore. (Margaret Moore was a newspaper correspondent for the Beeville Texas paper for more than 80 years.) She had four children, Inez, Garnett, Shirley, and Kathryn Moore. Two other Dahl children died in infancy before they were named. The Dahl family moved to Bee Co. in 1882. Wilhelmina Kaufman Dahl died Aug. 17, 1934 and is buried in the Dahl Family Cemetery in Bee Co.

Marie Kaufman, the daughter who remained in Germany, later came to Texas at the age of 16 and came to settle in Gonzales, Texas. She graduated from the old Gonzales College in 1862. She then took up the profession of teaching. In 1883 she married Capt. A.T. Bass, one time county surveyor, tax collector, and sheriff of Gonzales. Marie Kaufman Bass died in Gonzales on May 26, 1926.

Emil Kaufman, third child of Nicholas and Augusta, was born Sept. 13, 1846 in Texas. He married Amelia P. Metz on May 28, 1868. They had nine daughters; they were as follows: Marie Kaufman (1869-1936), never married; Mathilde Kaufman (1871-1964), married Emil V. Gerhardt, and had nine children, Eugene, Edna, Amelia, Josephine, Edwin, Wilfred, Georgia, Nicholas, and Bernyce Gerhardt; Amelia Kaufman (1873-1968 never married; Johanna Kaufman (1875-1958) married Adolph R. Gerhardt, and had seven children, Alice, Jesse, John, Ora, Lorena, Erna, and Daniel Gerhardt; Helen Kaufman (1877-1965) never married; Louisa Kaufman (1880-1918) married William Jonischkie and had four children, Verner, Ena, Esther, and Ira Jonischkie; Emily Kaufman (1882-1967) married Cosby Puckett and had two children, Hazel and Cosbie Puckett; Erna Kaufman (1883-1962) married Albert Jacobs, had no children; Nora Kaufman (1886-1963) married John Theis, and had one daughter, Dorothy Theis.

Emil Kaufman died May 15, 1941 in San Antonio, Texas. He was the last surviving member of Albert Sidney Johnston Camp No. 144 United Confederate Veterans. He served as Texas Ranger in 1860 and 1861. In March 1861 he enlisted in the Confederate Army in Capt. Tom Rabb's Company D, 33rd Texas Cavalry, Duff Regiment, and was released in 1865. He was a member of the Traildrivers Association, United Indian War Veterans Camp No. 14 and a member of the First Church of Scientist. (The Emil Kaufman family lived in Yorktown until 1910, when they moved to San Antonio, Texas.)

KELSO, ALFRED, JR. AND FAMILY

F485

Alfred Kelso, Jr. was born about 1828 in Mississippi. He was the son of Alfred Kelso, Sr. and Martha Martin of Fayetteville, Tennessee. Alfred, Jr.'s father and mother left him with his father's older brother, James Kelso, while they went to Texas in 1829. Alfred, Jr. was raised by his uncle James Kelso. He married Catherine (last name unknown) and they had two children - Leroy and William that were born in Mississippi. Alfred, Jr., Catherine, and their two sons moved to Texas with his uncle James Kelso and his family about 1850. Alfred, Jr. and Catherine stopped in Gonzales County first and then moved to DeWitt County. There a girl, Jane, was born about 1852. Alfred Kelso, Jr. and his wife, Catherine bought some lots in Clinton, Texas, and some land on Sandies Creek.

Alfred Kelso, Jr. married his second wife, Sarah Elizabeth Grier, in DeWitt County on January 17, 1856. They had two sons – Samuel born about 1858 and Felix born about 1860. Both of their sons were born in DeWitt County.

Alfred Kelso, Jr. married his third wife, Susan Ann Cunningham, in DeWitt County on March 15, 1865. They had two sons and a daughter – Robert E. Lee Kelso born on March 10, 1869, in DeWitt County, John born about 1872 in Travis County, and Ninta born about 1875 in Travis County, Alfred, Jr., Susan Ann and their family moved to Travis County in 1870 and later bought some land in Austin, on the west bank of the Colorado River, next to that of his father, Alfred Kelso, Sr.

Alfred Kelso, Jr.'s teenage son, Robert E. Lee Kelso, drove a mule team and wagon to haul pink granite for construction of the State Capitol Building in Austin, Texas, in the late 1880s.

Robert E. Lee Kelso was the last of this branch of the Kelso Family to be born in DeWitt County. He married Amanda Simpson. daughter of Andrew J. Simpson, in Gonzales County on December 15, 1891. Robert E. Lee and Amanda (Simpson) Kelso had eight children: William R. "Billy" Kelso born November 9, 1892, married Lillie Mae (surname unknown); Ida Kelso born July 13, 1894, married Louis Seitz; Jarrett Stricklin Kelso born October 27, 1895, married Lela Lorena Sherry; Bessie Kelso born April 26, 1899, married Edward Seitz; Ben Kelso born April 19, 1902, married Mattie Blundell; Bertha Lee Kelso born February 21, 1904, married Jesse Robert Sherry; Alfred Leon Kelso born July 6, 1909, married Bertha Vida Sherry; Frank Pierce Kelso born July 6, 1909, married Helen Lounieta Ragan. The last two children born to Robert E. Lee and Amanda were twins. The parents did not have names chosen for twins, so the attending physician marked the birth certificate "Tom and Jerry" Kelso. The official names of Alfred Leon and Frank Pierce Kelso were assigned later, but the parents did not get the birth certificate corrected. This oversight was finally, officially corrected in 1974.

Frank Pierce Kelso married Helen Louineta Ragan, daughter of Robert Samuel "Bob S." Ragan and Mattie Helen (Williams) Ragan. Frank and Helen (Ragan) Kelso had one child, a daughter, Bobbie Denise Kelso born January 1, 1941, in Lockhart, Texas. Bobbie Denise Kelso married Joe Hugh Hutchins (a former resident of Nordheim, DeWitt County from 1945 to 1952) on January 12, 1963. Bobbie and Joe have a son, Christopher Kyle Hutchins born May 6, 1975, in Victoria, Texas.

KELSO, ALFRED, SR. AND FAMILY

F486

Alfred Kelso, Sr. was born April 21, 1808, in Tennessee. He was the son of Henry Kelso, Sr. and Jane (Wells) Kelso. Henry Kelso, Sr. is credited with founding the town of Fayetteville in Lincoln County, Tennessee. Alfred, Sr. had six sisters — Mary, Nancy, Elizabeth, Jane, Mandana, and Amytis and four brothers — John, James, Jefferson and Henry, Jr.

Alfred Kelso, Sr. married Martha Martin of Fayetteville, Tennessee. Alfred, Sr. and his older brother, James, moved to Mississippi, where Alfred, Jr. was born about 1828. Alfred, Sr. moved to Texas in February, 1829, leaving his infant son with his brother, James, in Mississippi. The children born to Alfred, Sr. and Martha (Martin) Kelso in Texas died in infancy.

Alfred Kelso, Sr. was a First Corporal in Captain William J. Heard's Company "F" of the Army of the Republic of Texas. On April 21, 1836, Alfred, Sr.'s twenty eighth birthday, he fought in the Battle of San Jacinto, for which he was awarded a league and a labor of land. At the time of the Texas Revolution, he owned 6000 acres of land on the River in Colorado County and some town lots in Columbus, Texas. Alfred, Sr. wrote a letter to his brother-inlaw, John H. Martin, nine days after the Battle of San Jacinto that tells about the Battle and the conditions in the Republic of Texas during that time. A copy of the letter is included in The Papers of the Texas Revolution 1835-1836.

Alfred Kelso, Sr. was the Sheriff of Gonzales County, which included part of what is now DeWitt County, during 1837, 1840, and 1841. One of the people that he arrested was Ben McCullough (sometimes called McCulloch) for fighting a duel. Later, Ben McCullough became famous as a Captain in the Texas Rangers and a Federal Marshall.

Alfred Kelso, Sr. married Louisa Jane Barton on August 26, 1840. Louisa Jane was the daughter of Kimber W. Barton and Margaret (Lockhart) Barton and was born October 15, 1821. Margaret (Lockhart) Barton was an aunt of the girl, Matilda Lockhart, who was stolen by Comanche Indians in DeWitt County in 1838. Margaret was a sister to Byrd, Andrew, Sam, Charles, and Druscilla Lockhart.

In 1847, Alfred, Sr. and Louisa (Barton) Kelso were living in DeWitt County and Alfred, Sr. was acting as agent for all of the heirs of Byrd Lockhart. The land transactions were so numerous that by 1850, Alfred, Sr. and Louisa had moved to Lockhart, Caldwell County, where the major portion of the Byrd Lockhart estate was located. Alfred, Sr. and Louisa Jane had other business interests in Lockhart. They owned part interest in the grist mill tract and its water rights, the market house on the public square, and a retail store for dry goods, groceries, and hardware.

Alfred, Sr. and Louisa Jane (Barton) Kelso moved to Travis County about 1870 and they bought some land in Austin on the west side of the Colorado River in 1874. Eleven months later, his son, Alfred Kelso, Jr., moved from DeWitt County and bought some land beside them on the west bank of the Colorado. Alfred, Jr. died in Travis County sometime after 1880.

About 1880, Alfred, Sr. and Louisa Jane (Barton) Kelso moved to Atascosa County, where his grandson Leroy Kelso was living. Leroy Kelso was the oldest son of Alfred Kelso, Jr. Alfred, Sr. and Louisa Jane were said to have been living with Leroy's family when they died. Louisa Jane (Barton) Kelso died on May 5, 1898, and Alfred Kelso, Sr. died on May 12, 1898.

KELSO, JOHN ROEBUCK AND FAMILY

F487

John Roebuck Kelso was the son of James Kelso and Rhoda Roebuck, daughter of John Roebuck, American Revolutionary Soldier. James Kelso and his nephew, Alfred Kelso, Jr. brought their families from Mississippi to DeWitt County, Texas about 1850. James' younger brother Alfred, Sr. had moved to Texas in 1829 and had fought in the Battle of San Jacinto. James had seven children – William, Sarah, John Roebuck, Parolee, Calvin, Algre, and Jefferson. James had a second wife, Mary Ann (last name unknown), and there is a possibility that they were married in Mississippi and that she was the mother of the last two children.

John Roebuck Kelso married Mary Ann Chisholm in DeWitt County on August 14, 1856. Mary Ann Chisholm was the daughter of Richard H. Chisholm and Hardina Taylor of DeWitt County, Texas. John Roebuck and Mary Ann (Chisholm) Kelso lived near Mary Ann's brother, Glenn Thornton Chisholm. There were always a few Kelso and Chisholm relatives living with John Roebuck Kelso's family. John and Mary Ann had six children—Winchester, Frank Hubert, Hardina, Rhoda, Fannie, and Jessie Kelso.

John Roebuck Kelso served in the Civil War as a Second Lieutenant in Captain Josiah Taylor's DeWitt Guerillas. He was a farmer and a stockman before and after the war. John Roebuck and his wife, Mary Ann (Chisholm) Kelso owned several town lots in Clinton, Texas, and had extensive land holdings throughout DeWitt County.

Mary Ann "Annie" (Chisholm) Kelso died about 1878. John Roebuck Kelso married his widowed sister-in-law, Jane P. "Jennie" (Fore) Chisholm about 1879. "Jennie" was the widow of Glenn Thornton Chisholm, who was the trail boss for Cockett Cardwell's first cattle drive from DeWitt County to St. Joseph, Missouri. The Chisholms of DeWitt County claimed that the "Chisholm Trail" was named for Glenn Thornton Chisholm, who led the first cattle drive to St. Joseph, Missouri.

John Roebuck Kelso and Jane P. "Jennie" (Fore) Chisholm Kelso had one son named John Clyde Kelso. Their combined families were still living together in DeWitt County, Texas, during the 1880s.

KENNEDY, T. J. FAMILY

F488

Sudie Lorena Kennedy was born in Cuero, Tx. on May 19, 1898, to Thomas Jackson and Mary Lee (Priestly) Kennedy. She married Herman William Gerhold (related article) May 24, 1918. To this union were born Geraldine Lucille, b. April 29, 1920 and Dorothy Fay, b. November 19, 1926. Sudie and Herman moved to San Antonio in 1924 and spent the rest of their lives there. Herman died December 31, 1949 and is buried at Ft. Sam Houston National Cemetery. Later Sudie married Henry Ran Stovall. He died in 1972 and Sudie died May 14, 1981. Both are buried at Fort Sam Houston National Cemetery.

Thomas Jackson Kennedy and Mary Lee (Priestly)

Sudie's father, Thomas Jackson Kennedy II, was born January 28, 1857 in Summerfield, Dallas Co., Al. to William W. and Eliza Jane (Pounds) Kennedy. He came to Nacogdoches, Tx. with his parents around 1860 and stayed five years. He and his parents then moved to Pleasantville, La. where other Kennedy family members lived. Texas still called them and in 1870 he and his family moved to Concrete where T.J. was enrolled in Covey College. It was there that he met Mary Lee Priestly (related article) whom he married December 22, 1879 and their happy union extended three years past their "Golden Anniversary." They had six children - William Woodlief b. 8-17-1881 m. Ida Schubeck, Lillie Mae b. 1-6-1883 m. John Pearce, Eliza Jane (Jennie) b. 8-20-1885 m. John Werner, Ada Lee b. 6-6-1887 m. Eris DuBose, Thomas Jackson III b. 8-5-1895 m. Sara Borden and Sudie Lorena.

T.J. II farmed for 16 years with the exception of 2 years in Wilson Co. in the mercantile business and 1 year in Yoakum where he conducted a hotel. He went on old Chisholm Trail drives to Kansas with John Frank White and Tom Stell who married his sisters. In 1896 he accepted a position as Deputy Sheriff under Tom Stell and held that position until November 1904 when he was elected District Clerk of DeWitt Co. He held that office over 26 years and was never opposed. He was a member of the Masons, Knights of Pythias and Woodmen of the World. He was an Elder in the First Presbyterian Church. He always gave the best he had and was never satisfied with half successes. He died June 8, 1933 and buried in Hillside Cemetery, Cuero. Mary Lee died Oct. 13, 1950 and is buried beside him.

William W. Kennedy was born in Summerfield, Al., Oct. 2, 1823 to Hugh and Elizabeth (Simpson) Kennedy. He married Eliza Jane Pounds circa 1853 and they had five children: Thomas Jackson (preceding paragraph), Eliza Jane b. 8-26-1858 m. Frank White, Susan Ann Amanda b. 11-28-1862 m. Thomas M. Stell, William Pounds b. 9-24-1865 m. Addie Lucas, and John Robert never married. During the Civil War William W. served in the 3rd Brigade, Texas State Troops enlisted in Nacogdoches. In 1870 he moved to Concrete, bought 114 acres of land, built his home and raised his family there. He died Nov. 11, 1893, his wife died Sept. 1, 1888 and both are buried in the Clayton Cemetery.

Hugh E. Kennedy was born May 17, 1786 in South Carolina to Rev. John B. and Jane (McAfee) Kennedy. He married Elizabeth Harvey Simpson Oct. 5, 1809. Elizabeth was born July, 1784 on a sailing vessel coming to America from Belfast, Ireland. In 1814 Hugh was living in Dallas Co., Al. He owned a plantation, several farms, a grist mill, saw mill and one of the first Eli Whitney cotton gins. He had eight children as follows: Nancy Simpson b. 2-19-1811 m. John Kerr Callen; Elizabeth Harvey b. 10-1-1812 m. Ellis C. Callen; Mary Ann b. 8-23-1814 m. F.E. Walker; Jane Minerva b. 1-18-1816 m. Robert McGough Armstrong; Thomas Jackson b. 4-17-1818; John b. 10-4-1819 m. Nancy Varner; Hugh Simpson b. 2-17-1822 m. Agnes McWhorton Armstrong and William W. (preceding paragraph). Hugh died 10-25-1843 and Elizabeth died 1-25-1840 and both buried at Lebanon Cemetery, Summerfield, Dallas Co., Al.

Rev. John B. Kennedy was born in Bucks Co., Pa. circa 1737. He married Jane McAfee June 5, 1765 and they had 7 children: Dr. William Everett b. 6-10-1767; Joshua Stubbs b. 5-3-1770; Jane McAfee b. 1776 m. John Combest; Charles Breckenridge b. 8-7-1778; Alice Hamilton b. 8-7-1778; Clinton Harvey b. 10-4-1783 m. Ellen McRaymond; and Hugh (preceding paragraph). In 1776 Rev. John was sent to S. Carolina as a missionary. He moved to Al. and buried in Lebanon Cemetery. Rev. John's father was Jonathan Kennedy who came to America in 1736 with his brothers, Hugh, Ailsa, James and John on ship Paoli from Belfast, Ireland and landing in New Castle, Delaware. Jonathan was elected Associate Justice of Northampton Co., Pa. in 10-4-1755 and later settled in Bethlehem, Pa.

KERLICK FAMILY

F489

Five Days Late - A Kerlick Family Tragedy

A tragedy took place on October 18, 1869. The lack of patience, modern-day investigative procedures, and today's communications probably all contributed to the cause. There are at least thirteen family stories told. This is the fourteenth, based on newspaper accounts found in Houston, Texas.

On September 24, 1869, Thomas Lockhart of Houston was fatally stabbed after attending the traveling Mexican Circus. The accused was either Christopher or John Kirlicks (which one is still not quite clear). On October 13, 1869, Kirlicks was arrested in Fort Bend County and promptly transported to the county jail in Houston. He admitted to the stabbing. However, in the meantime, his name had already gone throughout Texas as being "Wanted". Members of his family had been settlers since 1857 on the Smith Creek, four miles south of Yorktown. They had immigrated from Kirlicken, Lithuania, then a part of Koenigreich Preussen (Prussia). Other spellings of the family name include Kerlick, Kirliks, Kirlick, Kerlicks, Kerlix, Kirlinche, Kerlichs, Kirlik and Kellix.

On the fateful day, the DeWitt County Deputy Sheriff, Edward Faust, Captain Henry G. Woods, and four other men went to the homestead of Catherine Kirlicks. They asked for her grandson, the one accused of the stabbing. The Kerlick family, not knowing that he was already in jail, simply told the posse that he was not there (and probably also that they didn't know where he was). Before all was said and done, guns were fired and four men died. Two of the victims were Catherine's sons, Christopher (father of the wanted man) and William F.; the other two were Deputy Sheriff Faust and Captain Woods. One account states that Mrs. Kirlicks [probably Christopher's wife, Maria, but could possibly be Catherine] was wounded, probably fatally. In fact, however, there is no record of any woman's death as a result of the shootings (Maria died in 1874).

The real tragedy is that the Daily Houston Telegraph, on Saturday, October 23, 1869 (five days after the killings) reported: "The Grand Jury, we learn, did not find a bill against Kirliks for the killing of Thomas Lockhart some time since, and the Sheriff was ordered to discharge the accused."

William F. no longer lived at the settlement; he was only there on business. He had married in August 1869, and was selling his part of the family business in order to make his home in Houston with his bride, Wilhelmine Bering.

The other son, Christopher (Chr. Kellix on his military records) had served as a private in Company D, Regmt. T.S.T. of 1861 under the command of Captain J.T. Kilgore. He was survived by his wife, Maria Thrump-Drump, and five sons, all with the same names as his brothers: John, Christopher, George, William, and Michael.

The first, John, who had joined the Union

Forces in New Orleans during the Civil War, felt much remorse. He moved his wife Librada Mason and son Johann William (daughter Mary was born later) to Ruby, Arizona, where they changed their family name to McNally. Father and son both died tragically, in separate mining accidents.

The second son, Christopher, married Meta Meyer. They made their home in Weesatche, Texas and had five children, four of whom lived to maturity.

The third son, George Edward, was a blacksmith. He married Johanna Steffens in Galveston, and moved to Tazewell County, Illinois. After his wife's death, he remarried, and had two more children (total of five). He died in St. Louis, Missouri after 1931.

The fourth son, William F., married Mary Stanchos and settled in Ecleto, Texas, where they reared their nine children. Three babies of this couple are buried in St. Paul's Lutheran Cemetery in Yorktown.

The fifth son, Michael, married Mary Kroschel, and remained on the original homestead, where they also reared nine children (and buried one very young).

All the descendants of Catherine Kirlicks, including those of Christopher's brothers and sisters, number over 1000. Those who still live nearby meet in Yorktown one Sunday every summer to talk over old times, as they have been doing for the last ten years.

KIBBE FAMILY

Edward Kibbe II tombstone, Wakefield, Mass.

The first appearance of the Kibbe family in America was in the person of Edward Kibbe II, who arrived in Boston in 1640 with his wife, Mary Partridge Kibbe. Edward was born in Exeter, England, on May 11, 1611, the son of Edward Kibbe I and Debora Kibbe, both of whom were born and died in Exeter.

Records indicate that Edward II was an active participant in the affairs of the Boston area. In 1662 he was appointed Clerk of Market, a position apparently created to give the Muddy River area representation in the Boston markets. From 1666 to 1683 and his wife were listed as contributors to a fund to erect the second meeting house in Roxbury, Massachusetts. Mary Partridge Kibbe affiliated with the church in Boston in September, 1645. The records of her registrations of the ten births, baptisms, and deaths of children born to the couple are held in Roxbury and in Boston.

Edward II was interred in the Old Burying Ground located at the Congregational Church in Wakefield, Massachusetts, on November 1, 1694.

Elisha Kibbe, the third child of Edward II

Mary E. Kibbe Breeden

and Mary Partridge Kibbe, was born in Boston, Massachusetts, circa November 20, 1644, and was baptized on September 30, 1645, in Boston. At the age of nineteen he moved to Salem, Massachusetts, where he was married to Rachel Cooke (1645-1740), daughter of Henry and Judith Birdsall Cooke of that city on October 12, 1667. In 1680/1682 he moved his family to Enfield, where they were among the early settlers. He was active in civic affairs, holding the offices of Selectman and Constable among others. He died in Enfield on April 3, 1735, and was followed in death by his wife, Rachel, on September 10, 1740.

Isaac I, the seventh of Elisha's and Rachel's eight children, was born in Enfield on March 21, 1683, the first male child to be born in that city. He married Dorothy Smith, daughter of Ebenezer Smith of Suffield, Connecticut, on July 7, 1720, a union which produced seven children. Isaac died in Enfield on June 6, 1766, at the age of 83, and was followed in death by his widow, Dorothy, on June 29, 1781, at the age of 85.

Isaac Kibbe II was born in Enfield on February 14, 1731. He was married there on February 20, 1755, to Margaret Terry (b. 1735), daughter of Isaac and Margaret Downing Terry of Enfield. Thirteen children were born of that marriage. Isaac II compiled an illustrious career of community service, including aid of money and supplies to the cause of the American Revolution and serving as an ensign in its Navy, and was held in high esteem by his fellow citizens. He died on February 11, 1779.

Gaius Kibbe, sixth child of Isaac II and Margaret, was born in Enfield on either August 10 or August 17, 1765. He was first married in 1785 to Mary (Polly) Pease (1767-1802) at Enfield, who bore nine children. The census of 1790 lists the Gaius Kibbe family as residents of Enfield, Connecticut, and The History of Coos County, New Hampshire, indicates that the family moved to Columbia in that county in 1797. At some later time they moved to Bloomfield, Vermont, where Polly Pease Kibbe died on May 11, 1802.

Mary Kibbe was the third child of Gaius and Polly Kibbe. She was born June 1, 1794, in Colebrook, New Hampshire. On October 7, 1817, she became the wife of Valentine Bennet (1795-1843) at Buffalo, New York. Valentine and Mary Kibbe Bennet are the ancestors of the DeWitt County Bennets. Their children were Miles Squier Bennett (b. December 14, 1818, at Buffalo) and twin daughters, Mary Jane (b. July 27, 1820, d. 1822 at Attakapas, Louisiana) and Sarah Jane (b. July 27, 1820, d. 1883 at Gonzales, Texas). Sarah Jane was married to Thomas J. Pilgrim.

On March 17, 1803, at Chesterfield, Massachusetts, Gaius took a second wife, Nancy Kidd (b. December 15, 1777), daughter of Charles and Frances (Hamilton) Kidd, and in 1814 the family moved to Buffalo, New York.

Having secured a grant of land in Attakapas, Louisiana, Gaius induced his large family of sons and daughters to accompany him there. Rafts of lumber were prepared, and materials for the erection of houses were secured. Loading their household effects and a cow or two on the rafts, they embarked from Oleans Point and traveled down the Ohio River, stopping to spend the first winter of their voyage at Cincinnati. In the spring they resumed their journey down the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, finally arriving at the Bayou Teche region of Saint Mary Parish in Louisiana. Unfortunately, several members of the family succumbed to the acclimating fever of the region, including Valentine Bennet's wife, Mary Kibbe Bennet, and Mary Jane, one of the twin daughters.

Gaius Kibbe died in Louisiana on July 21, 1821, and is second wife, Nancy Kidd Kibbe, followed him in death in 1840. Three children were born of Gaius' and Nancy's union, the oldest being Charles (b. August 30, 1804, at Minehead, Vermont). Charles accompanied his parents on the 1814 move to Buffalo and from there to the Louisiana homestead.

On February 4, 1830, Charles married Joanna H. Booth in Lafayette Parish, Louisiana. Joanna (b. August 20, 1809, in Georgia) was the daughter of Ruben and Mary Moss Booth. Charles Kibbe was a planter and merchant.

In 1850 Charles decided to move west into Texas. The journey, directed to Tyler County, involved swimming his horses and wagons across the Sabine River, and as a result of his exposure to the winter cold, Charles was stricken with pneumonia. His grandson, Walter Kibbe Breeden, relates that Charles, realizing he was dying, sent a faithful slave named Isaac to his brother-in-law, Valentine Bennet, in DeWitt County, asking that he come to the aid of Charles' family. In response, Valentine dispatched his young son, Miles Squier Bennet, to rescue the family, and the widow and children were relocated in Victoria, Texas. Charles Kibbe died in Tyler County on November 20, 1850, at the home of a Mrs. Green. Joanna Booth Kibbe died on February 10, 1864, and was interred at Evergreen Cemetery in Victoria. The eldest of their five children was Mary Elvina (b. March 16, 1833 in Lafayette Parish, Louisiana). In Victoria, Texas, on October 22, 1857, Mary Elvina Kibbe was married to Paul Hamilton Breeden (b. 1830 in Hinds County, Mississippi), son of Hezekiah and Mary Breeden. A captain in the Army of the Confederacy, Paul H. Breeden died in Victoria on November 10, 1874, as the result of a lung disease contracted in a Union prison camp.

Mary Elvina Kibbe and Paul Hamilton Breeden had six children:

(1) Walter Kibbe Breeden, born August 5, 1858, in Victoria. Married Margaret Pleasants in 1882. Died in San Antonio February 15, 1931, and interred in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

(2) Charles Goodwin Breeden, born January

27, 1860. Married Mabel Claire Hall on December 15, 1915, in San Antonio. Died in Cuero December 30, 1925, and interred in Hillside Cemetery.

(3) Mary E. Breeden, born January 27, 1861, in Beeville, Texas.

(4) Paul Fielding Breeden, born January 28, 1862, in Victoria. Married Willie Stayton on December 28, 1881. Died in Cuero January 29, 1892, and interred in Hillside Cemetery.

(5) Mary Blanch Breeden, born September 17, 1865, in Victoria. Married Robert Henry Wofford on October 20, 1886, in Cuero. Died in Cuero October 20, 1899, and interred in Hillside Cemetery.

(6) Robert Perry Breeden, born September 9, 1869, in Victoria. Married Allah Blanche Wofford on August 6, 1893, in Cuero. Died March 8, 1926, in Cuero, and interred in Hillside Cemetery.

This is the background and the beginning of the Breeden family.

KIMMELL, ERNST FAMILY

F492

Friedrich Ernst Kimmell (Kuemmell) was b. 15 Jan. 1854 in Elsterwerde, Posen, Germany. His parents were Gottffried Kuemmel and Johanna Christiana Schneider. He married Therese Wilhelmine Rabenaldt on 31 May 1879 in the Evangelical Lutheran Church in Voigtstedt, Germany.

Their children were all born in Germany before their immigration to the United States with Therese's parents, Karl and Amelia Rabenaldt. (See "Karl Rabenaldt Family.")

For a few years after their immigration, they lived in Lavaca Co. Texas. In the late 1890's they moved to DeWitt County and settled in the Gruneau community where they engaged in farming. Ernst Kimmell died 7 Jan. 1942 and Therese died 10 Jan. 1924. They are buried in the family plot in Sandy Gate Cemetery.

Only the names of their two sons are known. Karl Otto was born 3 Oct. 1876, Saxony Province, Germany d. 20 Apr. 1896, never married. He is buried in the family plot in the Sandy Gate Cemetery near Nopal.

Paul was born 26 Jan. 1882, Saxony, Germany. He was only three years old when his parents immigrated to America. He married Olga Ladewig in DeWitt County. They also lived in the Gruneau community. Paul Kimmell died 11 Aug. 1917 and Olga died 14 Apr. 1914. They are buried in the Sandy Gate Cemetery. Their untimely deaths left their seven children to be cared for by the grandparents, Ernst and Therese Kimmell.

The children were: Ida married Hugo Piske; Alfred married Mary Maureschat; Anna married Adolph Schroeder; Stella Therese married A.L. Simecek; Frieda married a Diebel; Ella married a Griffin; and Edwin married Ernestine Gras.

KING FAMILY

In Cuero

The Reverend George K. King, lifelong supply pastor of Cuero's First Methodist Church, came to Texas with his wife Catherine (nee Harvey) in 1880, debarking from a sailing ship in Galveston. They had seven children, and an eighth was born to them in December of that year. They first settled on a farm, near Lissie, in Fayette County, but after a crop failure (caused by a prairie fire) they moved to Cuero, where he was called to his pastorship, in which he served until his death in 1909. (He was born in London, in 1831.)

George King had lived in London, by profession a locomotive engineer - in England called an engine driver. He had been the driver of the Royal Engine, a special locomotive used to draw Queen Victoria's train to Scotland or wherever she wished to go. He was active at Chapel ("Church" meant the Church of England), and he was of course a Methodist) and by reading and teaching prepared himself for what was to be his life work in Texas. His wife's people the Harveys were a sailing family in Weymouth, where Catherine was born, though she later lived and was married in London. Her younger brother Roderick, who in retirement kept a fleet of rowboats on the beach at Weymouth, was of the opinion that steam was not here to stay.

The George King Family

The Kings built a house at 701 East Main Street. It was plain but sturdy, and had two stories, to accommodate the family. During a turn-of-the-century hurrican a number of the neighbors, fearing that their own slighter houses might blow away, took refuge in the King place. It was said that their weight helped hold the house down in the wind. It stood until the 1950's.

The children were Alice Kate (1870-1949), Emily Maude (1872-?), Rose Adelaide (1873-1899), Annie Amelia (1875-1906), Herbert George (1876-1945), Frederick William (1878-1961), John Edwin (1879-1924), and Margaret Harriet (1880-1980). It was rare in that day and time to be able to raise all your children to adulthood. Catherine King (1842-1943) lived to b 101, and her youngest daughter to nearly 100.

The Reverend King was a kind but firm father, as one had to be in that time and place, but he had a fund of humor that his children used to quote long after he was gone. He would point out to his daughters' callers, at ten o'clock, that it was ten o'clock, and no one ever questioned his watch. He wrote out his sermons carefully, but explained that he had never been able to save any souls after forty minutes of any of them. When they were over and he came out of the church door, his buggy horse would always see him and whinny.

His favorite book (besides the Bible) was Josephus' history of the Hebrews, which he said was the only non-Christian contemporary work that told of Jesus. It was of course required that a Methodist pastor be a teetotaler, but as he told the story, like any Englishman he liked a glass of beer now and then. Then one day he and a friend, who was overfond of the bottle, were attending a temperance rally, and the friend said, "Come on, George, let's take the Pledge." For his friend's sake he went along and took it, and he never broke it.

Catherine King was a model preacher's wife, and that, with her eight children, gave her two full-time jobs. She was of course a very practical person — she had to be — and she had a keen insight into human nature. Personally devout and deeply dependent on her Faith, she nevertheless knew that people were full of the Old Adam - not to speak of the Old Eve, and she took this into account. (She was my grandmother, and I wish everyone could have one so sweet and fine.) Though more than half her life was in Queen Victoria's time, she was not truly a "Victorian" but rather a pre-Victorian. In her life she had to be mother to many children besides her own, notably Lola and Mabel Hall, daughters of her daughter Rose, who married Harmon Hall. When they were left orphans their home was their grandparents' house, and Mabel in particular was her grandfather's favorite.

The King children of course all went to school in Cuero. The boys all became locomotive engineers, following their father's first calling. (Though he never went back to it full time after he came to Texas, he was often in demand by the engineers and mechanics of the shops of the Galveston, Harrisburg, and San Antonio railroad.) The girls all married men who live in other cities - Victoria, San Antonio, Austin. Margaret, the youngest, was valedictorian of her high school class. She married Arnold Romberg, who became professor of physics at the University of Austin, and coinventor of the LaCoste-Romberg gravity meter, used by scientists world-wide. It was at their home Catherine lived in her old age. The Kings are buried in Cuero.

Granddaughter Mabel Hall was the only one of the King descendants who finally settled in Cuero. She married Charles Breeden, a business and civic leader. They had two children, Mabel Claire and Rosemary. Mabel, long after Charles was gone, married Eduard Mugge.

KINLAY, SAMUEL EDWARD AND ROSELIA (NUGENT)

Samuel Edward Kinlay was born 1830 in England. A house painter by trade, he came to Indianola, Texas seeking employment. There he married Roselia Nugent, April 9, 1853.

Roselia was born October 1837 in Ireland. She and part of her family came to New Orleans before 1850. Her sister, Catherine Nugent married twice. First to William Benjamin Johnson and after his death, to William Henry Smith at Indianola, November 19, 1856. Catherine was the mother of seven children: William Benjamin Johnson, Jr. who wed Lettie Seaman; Mary Ann Smith who wed John Dunn; Catherine Smith who wed Adolph Anderson; Theresa who died young; John Robert Smith who wed Eliza Jane Cook; Thomas and Adam Smith.

Roselia's sister, Elizabeth Nugent wed James King at Indianola, August 25, 1862. They had one child, Sarah Ellen King, born January 6, 1864. Roselia also had a brother, John and a sister, Mary Jane Nugent, who came to Texas.

When the Civil War broke out, Samuel Edward Kinlay, William Henry Smith and James King (brothers-in-law) all joined the 8th Texas Infantry at Refugio.

The Kinlay family moved to Cuero in 1884, where they lived on Whitney Avenue until their deaths. Samuel and Roselia Kinlay are buried in Hillside Cemetery at Cuero, where six of their children are also buried.

This couple had eleven children born at Indianola and baptized in the Catholic Church.

(1) Aphilia Kinlay born September 8, 1854, died as an infant.

KIRK, BERT AMBERS

Bert Ambers Kirk, Jr.

In the mountains of West Virginia on july 25, 1916, a son, Bert Ambers Kirk, Jr., richly endowed with innate intellect and ambition that would lead to immense accomplishment, was born to B.A. and Ethel McCallister Kirk. Independent and intellectually curious from an early age on, Bert sold newspapers, worked in a confectionery during the school months; and soaked up the lore of the mountains and rivers camping out in the summers. He graduated from Hinton High School in 1934, and went on to become a "Mountaineer" at West Virginia University from which he earned his B.A. degree in 1938 and his LL.B degree in 1940. He was a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity and Phi Delta Phi International Legal Fraternity. Admitted to the West Virginia Bar in 1940, he returned to Hinton to practice law and, following in the tradition of his grandfather and father, work for the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad.

Wedding Picture. Bert Ambers and Ada Koenig Kirk, March 15, 1944

Bert Ambers Kirk, Jr.'s parents — B.A. Kirk, Sr. and Ethel McCallister Kirk in front of home Hinton, West Virginia about 1968

He was drafted; sent to Randolph Field, Texas; enrolled in Officers Training School in Miami, Florida; and thereafter served in the Air Force Military Intelligence Force until he was discharged as a captain in 1946.

Bert was assigned to be Intelligence Officer at Brayton Flying Field at Cuero in 1943 and his life took on a whole new dimension. He married Ada Koenig, daughter of Charles and Lena Schrade Koenig, March 15, 1944. Then, December 6, 1945, Martha — a daughter to grace his life — was born. The mountains of West Virginia were still in his bones, but as he said, "Ada, I've sunk my boots in the sands of Texas and here I am going to stay." Forthwith, he prepared for the Texas Bar Examination.

He was admitted to the Texas State Bar in 1946 and opened his law office in Cuero. His bar affiliations included the DeWitt County Bar Associations, State Bar of Texas, Texas Trial Lawyers Association and American Judicature Society. He was also a member of the Texas Association of Municipal Judges. He served as Corporation Court Judge from 1964-1971.

He served for many years as DeWitt County Veterans Service Officer. He served as Commander of American Legion Post Dinter No. 3; President of the Chamber of Commerce; President of South Texas Livestock Show (and as a director for many years); member of the Board of Directors of South Texas Children's Home at Beeville; member of the South Texas Chamber of Commerce: member of the District Grievance Committee of the Texas Bar Association; one of the organizers of the Gulf Bend Center for Children and Youth; and listed in Who's Who of Texas. But, more important than that honor, was the "who's who" coming into Bert's life - the son, Robert, born March 11, 1954. Heretofore, Bert had been involved with Martha's dance recitals, ballet, and art and now he became involved with Robert's scouting and sports. He served as committeeman of Boy Scouts Troop 243 and coached a Little League baseball team for five years. He considered travel to be one of the ultimate educational opportunities for children and there were the yearly trips by different routes to West Virginia. In addition, he maneuvered trips from California to New York and from Washington, D.C. to the Olympics in Mexico City.

Branching out from his own law practice, Bert was real estate counsel for Cuero Federal Savings and Loan Association and vice-president of the Farmers State Bank and Trust Company. One of his favorite avocations was raising Black Angus and range Herefords. Another avocation was giving of his time, talent, and money. Christmas and Easter were the occasions for his lavish and joyous giving. However, any other holiday could be pretext for celebration and gifts. Expansive as his beloved adopted state of Texas, Bert spread himself far and wide from the lowly to the rich. Through his charisma and charity for all, he left his impressions in the sands of Texas with his death March 1, 1971.

KIRK, SISTER MARTHA ANN, CCVI

In Cuero, Texas on December 6, 1945, a daughter, Martha Sue Kirk, richly endowed with keen intellectual powers, creativity, and Sister Martha Ann Kirk CCVI presenting a dramatic monologue "Ashes Could Not Stop Her" on Mother St. Pierre, one of the founders of the Incarnate Word Sisters in San Antonio in 1869.

self-discipline that would lead her to a religious commitment, was born to Bert Ambers and Ada Koenig Kirk. As she waxed in grace and wisdom she displayed all the characteristics of a gifted and talented child but with an added dimension — spirituality. She was drawn as if by a magnet — John 15:16 "You did not choose me, but I chose you . . ."—to the professed religious life. Hence, September 1, 1962, she entered Incarnate Word Convent in

San Antonio, Texas. From this day on, Martha Sue Kirk would be known as Sister Martha Ann Kirk

She evidenced her intellectual gifts as she advanced her education — B.A. cum laude in Secondary Education with concentrations in Speech, Drama, and Art, Incarnate Word College, San Antonio, 1968, M.A. in Art Education with a minor in Art History, University of New Mexico, Albuquerque, 1973; M.A. in Religion and Religious Education, Fordham University, Bronx, New York, 1977; Th.D. in Theology and the Arts, Graduate Theological Union, Berkeley, California, 1986.

As her creativity burst forth in many directions, she had the self-discipline to channel it into publication. In 1983 Dancing with Creation: Mexican and Native American Dance in Christian Worship and Education was published. Cassettes and study guide God of Our Mothers' Seven Biblical Women Tell Their Stories were published in 1985. A one-hour video cassette of mime, story, and dance Daughters Who Image God was published in 1987. In 1986 her doctoral dissertation The Prophetess Led Them in Praise: Women's Stories in Ritual was done on Microfilm. In 1987 Celebrations of Biblical Women's Stories; Tears, Milk and Honey was published. In addition she has written over 30 articles published in Modern Liturge, National Catholic Reporter, The Living Light, Concern, Texas Journal of Ideas History and Culture, and St. Anthony Messenger among others.

Sister Martha Ann has been in Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities, International Who's Who in Women in Education, Outstanding Young Women of America, and International Registry of Women-Religious-Artists.

She is a member of American Academy of Religion, American Academy of Homeletics, Catholic Theological Society of America, Women's Ordination Conference, National Assembly of Religious Women, Sacred Dance Guild, and International Registry of Religious Women Artists.

She has taught a wide range of courses — Meditation and Non-violence; Women, Justice, and Faith; Christianity Through Art; Lay Leadership of Prayer; Arts in Worship; and Twentieth Century Art History — at the Franciscan School of Theology, Berkeley; Pacific School of Religion, Berkeley; Oblate School of Theology, San Antonio; and Incarnate Word College, San Antonio. She is now an Associate Professor, Director of Liturgical Outreach Program, and Director of Peace and Justice Studies at Incarnate Word College.

Sound scriptural background and academic training has been the wellspring for her flow of creativity. She, as a Retreat Leader, Storyteller, Luturgist, Dancer, and Mime, has given more than two hundred presentations, workshops, and retreats to thousands of people all over the United States. In addition she has won honors with batiks, tie dye pieces, and creative stitchery. A one-woman exhibit of fiber arts and soft sculpture with texts on feminine symbols of God "Reflections on God Our Mother and the Hidden History of Our Foremothers" was shown at art galleries across the nation. Ideas and issues raised by this exhibit led to dozens of interviews culminating with her appearance on the 700 Club Christian Broadcasting Network. For Sister Martha Ann Kirk, John 15:16 has been a self-fulfilling prophecy "You did not choose me, but I chose you and appointed you that you should go and bear fruit . . ."

KIRK, ROBERT AND CYNTHIA ARNDT FAMILY

F497

The two-story part of the Louis Keonig house (ca. 1900) separated from the one-story part and being pulled out of the yard.

March 11, 1954 was a day of great import for Bert Ambers and Ada Koenig Kirk — the birth of their son, Robert J. Kirk. His sister, Martha, considered him her own special child, and he became closely attached to her for the next eight years until she entered the convent in 1962. This left a void in his life which his father filled with fishing, hunting, horses, baseball, and traveling — West Virginia, New York, Washington, D.C. and the Olympics in Mexico City. March 1, 1971 Rob's father died, and another void was left in his life.

The house dangerously listing on its journey across the flat because of innumerable gopher holes in the sandy soil.

May 11, 1956 was a day of great import for Clyde and Dorothy Morgenroth Arndt — the birth of their daughter, Cynthia Ann Arndt.

The house, intact, after its bout with gopher holes and just a fence line away from its new destination.

The fourth generation — Rob, Cindy, and daughters, Meredith and Morgen, standing in front of the restored Louis Koenig house.

Her brother, Charles, considered her quite special and they grew up very attached to each other. Cindy, with her brown eyes, bright blonde hair, and wide warm smile, became a most popular student, cheerleader, and class favorite. From the eighth grade on, Rob had his eye on Cindy; they were high school sweethearts; and their courtship continued until Cindy graduated from Texas A&M University and Rob from the University of Houston at Victoria. They were married June 24, 1978.

During their high school years, they "watched over" and loved Rob's grandparents, Charles L. and Lena Koenig, who lived on the home place in the big house (ca. 1900) built by Rob's great grandfather. Rob matured under the guidance of his grandfather after his own father's death and the spell of the land — from fence fixing to hay hauling - cast its hold on him. Many times Cindy helped Rob's grandmother in the house polishing the wood wainscoting; dusting the worn-smooth stairs; and wishing she could live in this house someday. Eventually, Rob and Cindy voiced their dream - to live in the Koenig house - which was "impossible" because Charles L. Koenig, Jr. was to inherit the home place. Rob's grandfather, in his wisdom, offered a plan: "Charles doesn't want the two-story part, so Ada, you could move it right across the flat and over the fence to your acres. This old house could surely hold another generation." His plan was mutually agreed upon by Charles and Ada before his death December 9, 1980.

In January 1981 Carlos Cortez Housemovers from Kenedy, Texas apprised the feasibility of separating the two-story part of the house and moving it. February 10 they moved in equipment; February 23 they began jacking up the house; February 24 a fissure appeared; February 25 the crack widened; March 2 two-huge trucks with house-moving apparatus pulled the two-story part free; and headed across the open flat. They sailed along like a prairie schooner but abruptly forced to a snail's pace by a myriad of gopher holes. The house listed but never capsized.

Finally, they crossed the fence line and on March 3, 1981 set the house down amidst large liveoaks. In the restoration, a one-story kitchen area, a new roof, porch banisters, and replicas of the original gingerbread were added. Rob and Cindy moved in August 1981 feeling a continuity with the past — the link even extended to cattle branding. The evolution of Rob's cattle branding began with the Louis Koenig January 16, 1878 registry of Bar over K right hip to Charles L. Koenig, Sr. October 27, 1929, to Bert Ambers Kirk February 14, 1947, Bar over K left hip and finally to Rob Kirk June 8, 1981.

Rob and Cindy have added two farm ponds and one windmill for watering livestock; have improved pastures by planting hybrid range grasses; and have started a program of brush control.

Rob was the first male teacher and later principal ever employed at St. Michael's Catholic School in Cuero. At present he works for the Golden Crescent Regional Planning Commission in Victoria. Cindy also taught school; then served as secretary at Garrett Abstract Company; and later as office assistant at the Soil and Water Conservation District. At present she is teaching Physical Education and Coaching in the Cuero Schools. But the most significant events in their lives were the births of their daughters — Meredith Ambers Kirk born October 26, 1983 and Morgen Ann Kirk born May 29, 1986 — the new generation for the old house.

KIRLICKS, CATHERINE FAMILY

F498

Catherine Kirlicks was the matriarch of the Kerlick clan in DeWitt County, though little is known about her. During the period 1856-58, she and her seven adult children — Michael, Georg Hans, Christopher, Anna, John Anskies, Maria, and William F. — left their homes in Lithuania and came to Texas. Five of the seven children married and four had children. Interestingly, all four gave the same seven Christian names to their children, at least as much as the distribution of boys and girls in each family would permit. Separate articles have been written about the three children with families who remained in DeWitt County; Christopher Kerlick, Anna Lundschen, and Maria Gelssus Jonischkies.

It seems clear that they did not all emigrate together, but most of the immigration records for that period have been lost. This was during a period when Lithuania was under Prussian domination, therefore the people spoke German as well as their native Lithuanian. They were educated people — long letters (in Lithuanian) still exist that were written to Maria by her second husband, her sister, and most of her brothers. Of course, they also learned English, so it is common to find their names written in all three languages, for example, Jurgis/Georg/George and Kristops/Christoph/Christopher.

The family home in Lithuania was in the small town of Kirlicken, Kreis (County) Heydekrug, Regierungsbezirk (District) Gumbinnen. This is about halfway between Memel (now Klaipeda) and Tilsit (now Sovetsk). The children who were married at the time they left the old country lived in the nearby towns of Minneiken and Pagrienen; the two daughters later married men from nearby Ackminiszken and Rupkalwen.

Of the seven children, all but the oldest and youngest lived out their lives in DeWitt County. The eldest, Michael (ca. 1816 – ca. 1898) settled in Galveston, moving to Houston about 1867. He and his wife Annie (27 Nov. 1813 – 2 June 1883) had five children, all born in Lithuania: Mary, William, John Anskies, Michael, and Annie. Michael Sr. is the only one of Catherine's seven children who is not buried in the family cemetery on the old home place in DeWitt County; he returned to the old country after his wife's death.

The rest of the family made their homes on a 269-acre parcel of land on Smith Creek about three miles from Yorktown, purchased by Anskis Kirliks in April 1859, with his youngest brother, William, as a witness. Part of the land, including the family cemetery, is still in the family. The family belonged to St. John's Lutheran Church in Meyersville at first, then moved to St. Paul's in Yorktown when it was built in 1872. Early records spell the family name Kirliks (the Lithuanian spelling), but most use the German Kirlicks, gradually giving way to Kerlicks and finally to Kerlick prior to 1900. (Michael's descendants — the Houston branch of the family — still use the original German spelling Kirlicks.)

William first registered a cattle brand in DeWitt County in January 1857. Ten years later, he moved to Houston, probably living with his brother Michael for a time before he purchased his own place in November 1867. On 26 Aug. 1869, William married Wilhelmine Bering, of the Bering lumber and hardware store family. Shortly after his wedding, he went back to DeWitt County to dispose of his stock and other property there. On 18 Oct. 1869, as he was visiting with his family and just about to return home to his bride, he and his brother Christopher became the innocent victims of an overzealous posse in search of a man already in jail in Houston. (See "Kerlick Tragedy" for more details.)

Not much is known about John Anskies and George Hans Kirlicks, except that they both registered cattle brands in DeWitt County in 1859. Additionally, Anskies owned the land, and became a U.S. citizen. Neither is believed to have been married — at least, no records of marriage have been found, and neither is recorded in the death records at St. John's. Dates from their headstones are: Georg Hans: 16 Apr. 1820 – 7 Oct. 1864, and John Anskies: 23 Dec. 1829 – 31 Aug. 1865.

Catherine Kirlicks remains an enigma. She is estimated to have been born ca. 1795, (based on ages of her children). No birth, marriage, immigration, census, or death records have been found. Deed records show that she was a "widow...of DeWitt County" in Sept. 1866. In June 1867, she was living in Houston, as shown by a power of attorney given to her son William. She is believed to have died and been buried in Houston (exact location unknown), possibly a victim of the great yellow fever epidemic of 1867, but in any case, probably before William's death in October 1869.

Schulenburg and in 1924 to San Antonio, Tex. After his mother's death, his father moved the family to Nordheim. Here Ivie attended school and graduated from Nordheim High School in 1935. He was interested in baseball and encouraged by his father to play. He and his brother both played with the Nordheim Tiger's Baseball Club. Ivie also played with the Yorktown Indians and will be remembered as a star shortstop. He also participated in many Firemen's Races popular in the 1930's.

In June 1941 Ivie received a BBA degree in accounting from the University of Texas in Austin. He was married to Inez Lee Stuermer of Nordheim on Dec. 12, 1941 in Yorktown by Rev. C.G. Hannekammer. The couple moved to San Antonio where he was employed, and in July he was called to serve in the United States Army Medical Corp during World War II. He was stationed in Abilene and El Paso, Tex. and then in New Guinea and the Philippines until the end of the war in 1945. Upon his return, he and his wife and baby son moved to San Antonio. He was employed by Slavik & Slavik, CPA's, attended St. Mary's University, and on Jan. 23, 1950 passed the state exam to become a CPA. He was employed in numerous accounting positions, retiring in 1982. He is a member of Texas Society of CPA's. He and his wife are members of Shepherd King Lutheran Church, San Antonio, Tex.

Inez Lee Stuermer, daughter of Walter C. and Louise Stuermer was born Nov. 17, 1919. She graduated from Nordheim High School in 1937 and in June 1941 graduated with honors from Texas Women's University at Denton, receiving a B.S. degree in Education. She was employed as a 1st Grade teacher in Nordheim until her marriage in Dec. 1941. She moved to San Antonio and was employed as secretary to the Supt. of the Harlandale Indpt. School District. When her husband was called into service during World War II, she returned to Nordheim and was employed as a high school English teacher with Nordheim Public School until Jan. 1946. She and Ivie moved back to San Antonio where she taught school in the San Antonio Independent School District 14 years and in the NorthEast Independent School District 10 years, retiring in 1980. She is a member of Texas Retired Teacher's Association, a former member of Delta Kappa Gamma, Iota Beta Chapter, and a member of Shepherd King Women of the Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Two children were born to the couple.

(1) Ivie James (Jim) Klaeveman, b. Dec. 23, 1942 at Victoria, Tex. He graduated from Jefferson High School, San Antonio in 1961 and received a Bachelor's degree in English from University of Texas at Austin in 1965 and a Master's degree in English from St. Mary's University, San Antonio in 1968. He is presently a professor of English at St. Philip's College, San Antonio. He married Melody L. Teller of San Antonio on April 5, 1968. She is employed in real estate. They have 3 daughters – Melody Sky Hubbard (his stepdaughter), Ivy Klaeveman, and Carlie Klaeveman. One daughter, Leslie, died soon after birth Jan. 21, 1983.

KLAEVEMANN, EDWIN AND CAROLINE (PETERS)

Edwin and Caroline Klaevemann, 1948.

Edwin Carlos and Caroline Louise (Peters) Klaevemann spent their childhood and adult years in Nordheim, DeWitt Co., Texas. After a long courtship, Edwin and Caroline Peters were married on September 7, 1933 at the Nordheim St. Paul Lutheran Church, with Rev. T.J. Roth officiating. Only the immediate families and a few intimate friends witnessed the simple ceremony. The couple made a wedding trip to various Eastern Texas points. They made their first home on the north side of Nordheim (December home). After a couple of years they moved to the George Peters' farm (Caroline's parents) located two miles north of Nordheim. The couple had four children: Carlos, born on June 3, 1935; Lloyd Neil, born on January 21, 1940; William George, born on November 3, 1942; and Kay Carol, born on April 7, 1949.

Edwin was born in the Cabeza Community near Nordheim, Texas on June 26, 1905, the son of Willie and Alvine (Jochen) Klaevemann. He was baptized on February 17, 1937 in the St. Paul Lutheran Church of Nordheim, Texas. Edwin was the oldest of eight children. He spent his childhood and adulthood in Nordheim, and attended the Eckhart Schools. Being the oldest child in the family, he had to quit school while in the Eckhart Schools to help with working in the fields of the family farm. In the late 1920s Edwin bought a cleaning and pressing business from Clarence Riedel, known as the City Tailor Shop. Later the shop was renamed and called Herbert's Tailor Shop. After running the business for a few years, he sold the business back to Clarence Riedel, (1935) and moved his family to the George Peters farm, where Edwin assumed the duties of farming and ranching. In the 1940s he took a job with the City Cleaners in Runge, Texas. Then, in the 1950s he worked for the Braun Tailor Shop in Yorktown. Finally, in the 1960's he took a job with the Karnes County Newspaper as a typesetter.

Edwin had a great love for music. He, along with two of his brothers (Herbert and Bennie) and a cousin (Eddie Stoever) formed a band known as the Majestic Four in the early 1920s. He played the trumpet, and at times played the concertina, along with drawing a fiddle bow every now and then. Having an excellent ear for music, many times Edwin would write the music for the members of the band. Later they had other persons join the band and were then known as the Majestic Orchestra. They played throughout South/South Central Texas in the 1930s and 1940s. Edwin also played for the Nordheim Brass Band and an orchestra called Ceasar and His Oldtimers. In addition to his music. Edwin was an active member of the Nordheim Hermann Sons Lodge, and was a member of the St. Paul Lutheran Church in Nordheim.

Caroline was born in the Garfield Community near Yorktown, Texas on September 2, 1908, the youngest of five children of George and Alwine (Sinast) Peters. She was baptized on December 6, 1908 in the St. Paul Lutheran Church of Yorktown, Texas. In 1913 Caroline moved with her family from Garfield Community to Nordheim. She attended Nordheim High School, skipping two grades along the way, and graduating with honors in 1923. Known as "lean and lanky Pete," Caroline was a valuable player on the school basketball team. She also participated in the high school plays, as well as musical programs. After graduating from Nordheim High School, she continued her education at Yorktown High School. Yorktown had eleven grades whereas Nordheim had only ten grades. She graduated from Yorktown High School with the 1924 class.

Caroline was active in the St. Paul Lutheran Church activities, ladies aid, and evening circles, as well as community functions. She was an active member of the Nordheim Hermann Sons Sister Lodge and also the Nordheim Historical Museum. Caroline, along with Edwin, also had a love for music. She was recalled as one of the sweetest singers of the community, and no local musical program was complete without a number or two by Caroline. Besides singing solos, she also was remembered as singing duets with Miss Minnie Wendell, also of the Nordheim area. On occasions, she sang and played the piano with the Majestic Orchestra.

Caroline always had aspirations of going to college, however, financially, she was never able to continue her education in college. In the early 1950's, times were getting hard for the family, so Caroline took a correspondence course enabling her to obtain a diploma as a Licensed Nurse. She worked for the Laster Nursing Home in Yorktown for several years, and after getting a job at the Nordheim High School Cafeteria in 1956, she continued working during the summer months at the nursing home. Caroline became employed at the Nordheim High School Cafeteria and remained there until her retirement in 1974.

The last two years of Caroline's life, she suffered with a series of strokes, which eventually took her life on September 22, 1980. She died at her home in Nordheim. Caroline was a loving mother, a kind and generous person, and the pillar of strength in the family, never giving up her faith, even through the family's hardest times. She worked very hard throughout her life providing for her family, and always put her children's needs first, even when it meant doing without her own needs. One of her main goals was to keep her family together "as a family." Edwin became very depressed after Caroline's death, and two months later he became ill with bleeding ulcers and his health quickly declined. He died in the Victoria Citizens Hospital on January 24, 1981. Edwin and Caroline were buried in the St. Paul Lutheran Cemetery in Nordheim.

Caroline was preceded in death by her parents, George and Alwine Peters; one brother, Waldin Peters; and two sisters, Frieda Peters and Leona Gaedke. Those surviving at the time of her death were her husband, Edwin; four children, Carlos, Lloyd, Bill and Kay; eight grandchildren; and one sister, Malinda Peters.

Edwin was preceded in death by his parents, Willie and Alvine Klaevemann; wife, Caroline; and three brothers, Lee, Bennie, and Raymond. Those surviving at the time of his death were four children, Carlos, Lloyd, Bill and Kay; eight grandchildren; two brothers, Herbert and Edgar; and one sister, Alice Warnken.

Carlos Klaevemann married Mary Nolen of Cuero on April 29, 1961. They have two children: Charles Wayne and Dawn Marie. Charles married Karla Kahlich of Cuero on April 22, 1983, and they have one daughter, Kelly Lynn, Dawn married Dennis Jemelka of Yoakum on August 18, 1984, and they have one son Brent James. Lloyd Klaevemann married Judy Cole of Corpus Christi on November 23, 1960. They have three sons: Douglas Neil, Chris Ray, and Troy Lynn. Chris married Lori Mutschler of Taft on August 27, 1988. Douglas and Troy are single. William Klaevemann married Marjorie Gips of Nordheim on September 4, 1965. They have three children: Andrea Gail, Amy Kay, and Aaron William. They live at home and are attending school. Kay Carol Klaevemann married and later divorced. Then she married Victor Krejci of Austin on January 24, 1987. They have no children.

KLAEVEMANN, HERBERT FAMILY

Herbert "Shorty" Klaevemann was born on January 15, 1907 in Schulenburg, Texas to Willie and Alwina (Jochen) Klaevemann. He was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran faith in Runge, Texas.

The family moved to Nordheim when Herbert was a young boy. He attended school and helped on the family farm. On December 16, 1931 he was married to Johanna Fredricka Mueller, daughter of Christian and Bertha Marie (Janssen) Mueller in Nordheim by Rev. T.J. Roth at the Lutheran church. Johanna was born August 24, 1908. She was baptized on October 18, 1908 and confirmed in 1924 by Rev. A. Kluge. She attended school in Cabeza and Nordheim and later worked at the Nordheim Post Office.

Before their marriage Herbert operated a trailor shop in Nordheim, later selling the business to his brother, Edwin. They moved to a farm north of Runge in 1934. Herbert opened a tailor shop in Runge which he operated until 1950 when he sold the business to Clarence Riedel. Herbert worked in the oil field for a short while and then the family returned to his father's farm near Nordheim where Herbert farmed. Two children were born to this union. Joan Idell was born September 6, 1932 in Nordheim. Virgie Beth was born October 6, 1935 when the couple lived in Runge.

Johanna died on October 7, 1957 and is buried at the Nordheim cemetery.

Herbert married Elenora Mueller Stratmann on January 20, 1962 in Nordheim. They lived on the farm north of Nordheim. Herbert passed away January 23, 1985 and is buried at the Nordheim cemetery.

Herbert and his brothers, Edwin, Bennie and Raymond; a cousin, Eddie Stoever, and Paul Dittfurth and Max Schorre formed the Majestic orchestra which played throughout South Texas in the 30's and 40's. They also entertained radio audiences on KVIC in Victoria on a weekly program sponsored by Spoetzel Brewery of Shiner, Texas. They named their orchestra after the brand name of the concertina played by Herbert.

Their daughter, Joan, graduated from Runge High School in 1950. She attended Texas Lutheran College in Seguin one year and worked in San Antonio. She married Gordon Hugh Smith of Bryson, Texas on June 13. 1953 at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Nordheim. Four children were born to them. Marcia Carol (b. 4-14-54) married Mark Jonathan Probst (b. 9-30-54) in Baytown, Texas on August 7, 1976. They graduated from Texas A&M and live in Katy, Texas. Sharon Lynn Smith (b. 8-26-55) is a Texas A&M graduate and lives in San Antonio. Thomas Marshall Smith (b. 11-22-58) married Cheryl Lynn Vermillion (b. 4-24-56) December 10, 1983 in Baytown. They are graduates of Texas A&M and live in Baytown. They have one son, Cameron Taylor (b. 8-14-86) in Baytown. Allison Kay Smith (b. 6-5-67) born in Baytown. She graduated from Texas A&M and resides in Houston.

Their daughter, Virgie, attended school in Runge and Nordheim and graduated from Nordheim High School in 1954. She attended Draughon's Business College and worked in San Antonio. She married Roland Morris Webb of Plainview, Texas on April 9, 1960 in Nordheim. They reside in Tulia, Texas. Their three children are Russell Dean (b. 1-20-61). He graduated from Texas A&M and lives in Plano. Johanna Joy (b. 10-3-63) lives in Tulia, and David Kyle (b. 10-9-67) is a student at Abilene Christian University.

KLEBERG, ROBERT JUSTUS

Robert Justus Kleberg was born on the 10th day of September, 1803 in Herstelle, Westphalia, in the former Kingdom of Prussia. His parents were Lucas Kleberg, a prominent and successful merchant, and Veronica (Meier) Kleberg. Robert had four siblings; Ernest, Louis, Joseph and Banise. The family were very affluent and gave their children good educations until the untimely death of the parents.

Robert chose the law as his profession and attended the University of Goettingen, and in two years and a half received his diploma as doctor juris. In 1834 when he was about ready to enter upon a distinguished judician career, he concluded to emigrate to the United States.

On September 4th, 1834, Robert Justus married Miss Rosalia von Roeder, daughter of Lieut. Ludwig Anton Siegmund von Roeder. The party emigrating to Texas consisted of: Three von Roeder brothers, all unmarried, Louis, Albrecht and Joachim, and their sister Valesca, and a servant by the name of Pollhart. This group went ahead for the purpose of selecting a point where they could all meet and start a settlement. Six months after their departure, the rest of the group departed on September 31, 1834 in the ship Congress with Capt. J. Adams. The second group consisted of: Robert Kleberg and wife, Lieut. L.A. S. von Roeder and wife, his daughters, Louise and Caroline, his sons, Rudolph, Otto and William von Roeder, Louis Kelberg, Mrs. Otto von Roeder, nee Pauline von Donop and Miss Antoinette von Donop. After a voyage of sixty days they landed in New Orleans. When Robert finally reached Brazoria, Texas he was informed that Louis and Albert von Roeder had located about fourteen miles from San Felipe on a league and labor of land, but that Joachim and Valesca von Roeder had died.

After many hardships and fighting for the Independence of Texas, the settlers first made their homes at Cat Springs, Texas and then came to DeWitt County in 1847.

At Cat Spring were born the following of Robert and Rosalie's children: 1) Clara Seigesmunde, November 28, 1835; 2) Johanna Caroline, November 29, 1838; 3) Caroline Louise, January 15, 1840; 4) Otto Joseph October 27, 1841; and 5) Rudolph, June 26, 1847. In DeWitt County the following children were born: 6) Marcellus Eugene, February 7, 1849; 7) Robert Justus, December 5, 1853; and 8) Louise Rosalie, September 2, 1855.

Being well acquainted with the prominent citizens such as Sam Houston, Burnet, J.S. Hill, J.P. Borden, Judge Waller, and many other distinguished citizens of that day, Mr. Kelberg's services in the War for Independence and his ability were soon recognized by the young Republic and as early as 1837 he was appointed by President Sam Houston as Associate Commissioner of the Board of Land Commissioners. In 1838 he was appointed President of said commissioners by J.P. Borden, Commissioner of the General Land Office. In 1841, he was commissioned by Mirabeau B. Lamar, President of the Republic, Justice of the Peace, which was then an important office as there were few lawyers, and few law books, and important and perplexing suits to be decided in these courts. In 1846 he was elected Chief Justice in Austin County, and commissioned by Sam Houston, Governor. In 1848 he was elected County Commissioner of DeWitt County, and commissioned by Governor G.S.

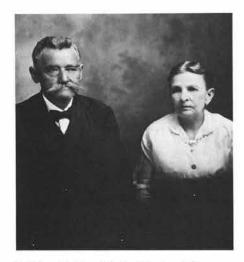

In 1853 he was elected Chief Justice of DeWitt County, and commissioned by Governor Bell. He was re-elected as Chief Justice of DeWitt County in 1854.

When they reached DeWitt County, there were few settlers and no schools or churches in the area that they settled. Judge Kleberg together with Messrs. Albrecht von Roeder, John Pettus, the Bellsand Yorks, erected with their own hands, a log cabin on the Cojetto Creek, near the old York and Bell farm, which was used for a school.

Robert Justus Kleberg died at Yorktown, DeWitt County, October 23, 1888, in his eighty-sixth year, surrounded by his family, and was buried with Masonic honors. His wife, Mrs. Rosa Kleberg, and the following children survived him: Mrs. Clara Hillebrand, Mrs. Caroline Eckhardt, Miss Lulu Keleberg, Hon. Rudolph Kleberg, Marcellus E. Kleberg, and Robert J. Kelberg. His eldest son, Otto Kleberg, who served with distinction in the Confederate army, preceded him in death in 1880.

KLECKA, LOUIS J. AND ALBINA SPACEK/STELLA VASICEK

F506

F.J. Spacek, Jr. and Julia (Gloeckner) Spacek

Louis J. Klecka and Albina (Spacek) Klecka

Evelyn Klecka, Lois Klecka and Doris Klecka

Major Theodore Klecka, M.D., 1941-1945

Stella (Vasicek) Klecka

The first member of the Riebschlaeger household to arrive in Cuero was Evelyn Marie Klecka, oldest child of Louis J. Klecka and Albina Spacek. Other children born of that marriage were Theodore Arthur and Lois Marie Klecka. After the death of Albina at 28 during the 1918 flu epidemic, Louis Klecka married again. His second wife, Stella Vasicek of El Campo, bore him a fourth child, Doris Marie. A few years later, Louis accepted the invitation of his brother-in-law, Dr. Ferdinand Miller, a dentist practicing in Cuero, to open a drugstore there. In 1927 he moved his family from Granger, where he had a drug business. to Cuero and opened what was to become Cuero Pharmacy and later Klecka Drug Company on West Main. Later, the business was relocated to the corner of Main and Esplanade streets, which proved to be a prime location for a small business.

The roots of the Klecka-Spacek/Vasicek household lay in Moravia, Czechoslovakia, and Neustadt, Germany. Frantisek Jan Spacek, Spacek home in Bordovice, 1987.

Jr., arrived in Fayetteville from the small village of Bordovice in Moravia in 1866, having emigrated with a group of Czechs through the Port of Galveston at age 13. The inspiration for his decision came when a Mr. Josef Walla, then a Czech immigrant from Texas, returned to his native land and visited several villages with stories of beauty and unlimited opportunities for those who would return with him. Young Frantisek (F.J. as he would become known) eventually convinced his parents that he would be able to brave the journey to the New World and succeed. He promised to send money back for them to join him later. In 1920, the Spacek family reunion was held in Fayetteville, and members brought their individual stories, in written form, of their memories of the village of their Moravian homes, families, Beskedy Mountains, their journey to Texas, and their enterprises since. This was published in the form of a bound family history, and some grandchildren and great-grandchildren still possess these books, complete with a picture of the original homestead in Bordovice, built in 1800, and still occupied today. In 1987, Evelyn Klecka Riebschlaeger and her two daughters, Sister Elizabeth Riebschlaeger and Mrs. Kaye Riebschlaeger Dunn returned to find the homestead and visit with its present occupants, the family of Mr. Jaroslav Kubena of Bordovice. A picture of the homestead taken in 1987, taken by Sr. Elizabeth, accompanies this story.

Young Frantisek did, indeed, succeed in the New World. In 1870, after the death of his wife, Rozyna, in Moravia, Frantisek, Sr., and his four other children came to Texas to join his oldest son, Frantisek, Jr., in the New World, settling in Fayetteville. Rozyna Spacek is buried in the church cemetery in Lichnov, near Bordovice, in the Frenstat area in Novy Jicin County. The descendants of Frantisek and Rozyna have contributed much to the development of their state and country since their arrival in Texas. Frantisek, Jr., did much to assist others from Moravia, Czechoslovakia, in the immigration and resettlement process. The Spacek home in Fayetteville is marked with an historical marker and stands, facing the courthouse there. His granddaughter, Minna Mae Spacek Kubena still lives in a home once owned by the family, next to the old red schoolhouse, now a museum. Among his descendants are teachers, a physician, engineers, successful businessmen, at least one of whom served as City Manager for several years in Gonzales, Texas, successful rice farmers, and two grandchildren who have built successful acting careers: Elmore "Rip" Torn, nominated for Best Supporting Actor in the movie "Cross Creek" and Mary Elizabeth "Sissy" Spacek, nominated for an Academy Award for Best Actress in "Carrie" and recipient of the Academy Award for Best Actress in the movie "Coal Miner's Daughter." His own son, Rudolph Benjamin, served in the Texas State Legislature with a perfect attendance record.

On November 17, 1887, Frantisek, Jr., married Julia Kirsch-Gloeckner. Julia had accompanied her parents and her maternal grandparents to Fayetteville from Neustadt. All are buried in the cemetery in Fayetteville, Texas, in the Spacek family plot. With them are three sets of Spacek twins, all of whom died in birth.

Louis J. Klecka, founder of Klecka Drug Co., was descended from Aloys Klecka, born in Petrwald, northern Moravia (near the Polish border). After his immigration to Texas, he married Ana Vasicek, born in Troyanovice, near Frenstat in Moravia. Four of their five sons eventually entered the pharmacy profession, one of whom was Louis, father of Evelyn Klecka Riebschlaeger. Aloys died of cancer at the age of 45, and is buried in the church cemetery in Ammansville, Texas. His wife, Ana, married again after his death, and is buried in the cemetery in Granger, next to her second husband, in the Klecka family plot.

The children of Louis J. Klecka, Evelyn Marie, Theodore Arthur, Lois Marie, and Doris Marie, all graduated from Cuero High School. Evelyn and Lois both attended Incarnate Word College and became teachers. Evelyn taught in Hillje (near Louise), Texas, prior to her marriage to Charles Joseph Riebschlaeger, Jr., in Cuero. Among her professors at the University of Texas for summer courses was Dr. J. Frank Dobie. Lois Marie received her degree in Art Education from Mary Harden Baylor College in Belton and was Director of Art Education in the Temple Independent School District at the time of her death. She was married to Burton Bishop of Temple, manager of radio station KTEM and later Advertising Sales Manager for the television station KTEM-TV. They had two daughters, Nancy Benet and Angela.

"Theo" or "Ted" or "TAK," as he is called, attended the University of Texas School of Medicine, and immediately upon graduation, served as a U.S. Army physician in the Pacific theater with the MacArthur forces until World War II's end. During the war, he spent time in Australia, New Guinea, and landed with MacArthur's forces in his famous return to the Philippines, eventually locating in Manila. After the war, Theo set up practice in orthopedic medicine in San Antonio in the New Moore Building on Houston Street. Later, he and several partners founded the Medical Professional Building on McCullough Street, still in use, directly across from Metropolitan, or Humana, Hospital in San Antonio. Recently retired, he and his wife, Lura Hastings of Denison, Texas, have six children and six grandchildren.

Doris Marie attended the St. Joseph School of Nursing in Houston and served as a nurse with the U.S. Armed Forces stateside during World War II. She married First Lieutenant Robert F. Fromhart at Ft. Sam Houston, Texas, and after his retirement as a career Army officer in the Fourth Army, at the rank of full Colonel, they retired in Tacoma and Long Beach, Washington. Doris served there as a supervisor of nurses at Stillekoom Hospital. They have six children and five grandchildren.

KLEINECKE FAMILY

Texas Origins and Successions

The branch of the Kleinecke family of my ancestors came from Germany in the Hanover area and settled in Indianola, Texas in late 1845. The family consisted of father: August Kleinecke, two daughters: Augusta and Henrietta, and two sons: Henry August Louis Kleinecke and Charles Fritz Kleinecke. Daughters Augusta married William Salge and Henrietta married Stephen Konrad Dincans, while sons H.A. Louis Kleinecke married Mary Rose Gruehner and Charles Fritz Kleinecke first married Henrietta Winkel who with their children died during a yellow fever epidemic. His second marriage was to Mary Henrietta Hoenis and six children were born to this marriage: Charles Emil Kleinecke 1870-1959, George Edward Kleinecke 1871-1942, Cecelia Louise Kleinecke 1873-1967, Bertha Heniretta Kleinecke 1875-1910, Oscar William Kleinecke 1881-1964, Walter Frank Kleinecke 1884-1930. August Kleinecke died before he attained his seven year residence required for naturalization but both sons applied for and received their naturalization papers in the 1857 Calhoun County Court.

Charles Fritz Kleinecke, my great-grandfather, was a successful business partner with William Westhoff in the lumber business in Indianola. When the business expanded to include a branch in Cuero, Charles Fritz Kleinecke moved his family, and his house by ox cart, in March 1875 - just prior to the first devastating Indianola hurricane in August of that year. The Kleinecke home was relocated on the corner of Main and McLeod Streets, across from the Cuero Post Office now, but earlier was across the street from the old Turner Hall. This home had, on a side yard, one of the first tennis courts in this part of the country. Later my great-grandfather became a business partner with Mr. H. Kuester in the grocery business. Grandfather Charles Emil Kleinecke was born in Indianola in 1870, but went to school, grew up, worked and married in Cuero. After my father Charles Way Kleinecke was born in 1902 in the James Doss Terry home, my grandfather moved his family to Fort Worth in 1907 and was in the cattle business there. Other surnames related to this family by marriage are Ferber, Lewis, Fuchs, Rittner, Small, Ischey, Galle, Schorre, Brady, and Holmes.

KLEINECKE, HOWARD FAMILY

F508

Howard Kleinecke was born December 4, 1919 in Cuero, Texas to Robert Thomas and Helena Miller Kleinecke.

Helena Miller was born December 24, 1878 in Indianola and died September 25, 1962. Her parents were Bertha Wasserman (May 26, 1859 - Jan. 25, 1948) and William A. Miller (Sept. 15, 1850 - July 10, 1913). Bertha and William Miller were both born in Indianola and died in Cuero. Helena's maternal grandparents were Anna Rosina Rose (Sept, 25, 1826 - Jan. 13, 1894) and J. George Wasserman, (Feb. 17, 1818 - July 30, 1897). They were born in Saxony, Germany and probably came to Indianola around 1846-1850. I think her paternal grandparents were (Helena) Christian Knapp and Joseph (Eugene?) Miller. Helena C. was the daughter of I. David Knapp and Mary Christian Knapp. They came to Texas from Nassau, Germany before the 1850 census. Joseph E. and Helena died before the 1860 census and their sons, August and William, lived with their grandparents, the Knapps. The Millers and Wassermans seem to have stayed in Indianola until after the 1886 storm.

Robert Kleinecke's parents were Mary Rosina Gruhner (June 30, 1839 – February 13, 1933) and Henry August Louis Kleinecke, born June 5, 1836 and died December 12, 1889. Mary Rosina's parents were Mary Rosina Kilian and John Gottlieb Gruhner (also spelled Gruner and Gruehner). In December, 1852 the family landed at Indian Point, coming from Schlesingen (Baumgarten) Germany. The following year there was a terrible yellow fever epidemic and Mr. Gruhner was stricken and was carried to the pest house. When Mrs. Gruhner and their three daughters came to see Mr. Gruhner the next day, they discovered, to their horror, that he was dead and buried.

Robert's paternal grandparents were Carl August and Johanna Munn Kleinecke, who came from Grund am Harz, Hanover, Germany on Sept. 24, 1846 on the ship Flavins. The ship's captain was Isaak C. Davis. The Kleineckes were parents of nine children. All of the family moved to Cuero after the 1875 storm, with the exception of Howard's uncle Dr. Louis Kleinecke, who remained in Indianola with his Aunt Caroline Fuhrman.

Howard was the youngest of Helena's and Robert's five children. These children were (1) Lucille (Jan. 19, 1905 - May 28, 1951) (2) Willard Leroy (July 25, 1906 - July 24, 1981). Willard married Bernice Lehman (Aug. 10, 1905 - March 4, 1986). To this union were born Gerald Allen, January 11, 1936 who lived one day, and Helen Jean Kleinecke Kuecker, (Oct. 15, 1938). (3) Robert Shelton was born Jan. 25, 1909 and died Jan. 20, 1973. He married Jeanette Sitterly of Victoria and there were no children born to this union. (4) Julius William Henry, born Oct. 8, 1914, married Audrey Barfield. Their children were Marsha Lynn who married Joel Meadow, and Robert Bruce who married Frances Dietze Atkinson. William later married Irene Thigpen Patton and is presently married to Olivia Dentler.

Howard's family were all active members of the Lutheran Church and Howard still remains a member. His mother, Helena, worked as a clerk at Graves Department Store, before her marriage, and Howard's father was a city mail carrier. Howard recalls many happy days riding with his father as he delivered the mail. Howard began working at the Rialto Theatre when fourteen years of age. He was employed by Buchel National Bank before enlisting in the U.S. Coast Guard during World War II. After the war, he returned to the bank for a number of years, before accepting the position of office manager for Newman's of Cuero. Howard started his career with Cuero Federal Savings and Loan in July, 1953 and continued in this career until he retired as president in January, 1988. He remains at Cuero Federal and Loan as a consultant and board member. Howard has been very active in civic affairs and received Cuero's Service Award for outstanding community service in 1975.

He married Mary Louise Jackson of Cuero in Charleston, South Carolina on Feb. 6, 1943. They are the parents of six children, eleven grandchildren, and one great-grandchild. Their children are: (1) Mary Adele, born Oct 29, 1944 who married Claude North (Buddy) Blackwell (Sept. 20, 1942) on Oct. 20, 1962. Buddy is a partner in the livestock auction business, and Mary Adele is a piano teacher and organist of First Presbyterian Church. Their children are Kimberly Lynn who was born June 22, 1963, and Finley North, born March 4, 1967. Kim is married to Rick Powers who was born May 2, 1958. They are the parents of Paige Adele (Sept. 16, 1988). Rick works for a communication installation company and Kim teaches school in Victoria. Finley works in the family business. (2) Bonnie Ryn, born Oct. 26, 1948, married Richard Harrison Wheeler, (born Nov. 4, 1946) on Aug. 29, 1970. Ricky is a State Farm Agent and Bonnie teaches school in Cuero. Their three children are Eron Leigh, born Nov. 14, 1973, Lesley Ann, born March 27, 1975, and Richard Harrison, born July 31, 1979. (3) Howard Jackson, born July 8, 1953, married Sharon Elizabeth Bernhard, (born Jan. 24, 1955) on April 12, 1980. Jack is a broker in the Brokage Department of the Victoria Bank and Trust, and Sharon is in the monogram business. Their daughters are Mary Brooke, born Oct. 28, 1980, and Natalie Elizabeth, born May 16, 1985. (4) Rebecca Joyce, born Feb. 22, 1957, married Leslie Arthur Richter, (born July 8, 1953) on August 20, 1977. Rebecca teaches school and Les is self-employed with Les-Marc Communication Company of Victoria, Texas. Their sons are Christopher Joseph (Oct. 23, 1983) and Aaron Michael, born June 28, 1988. (5) David Scott, born Nov. 15, 1959, married Mary Anne Nichols, (born Oct. 22, 1960) on August 30, 1980. Mary Anne is a legal secretary in San Marcos and David is vice-president at Kyle State Bank. Their children are David Scott, Jr. (Jan. 26, 1981) and Sara Elizabeth, born July 7, 1986. (6) Gaye Alison, born May 20, 1964, married Paul Michael Avery (Oct. 12, 1964) on Sept. 20, 1986. Paul is a landscape architect in San Antonio and Gaye is employed by General Furniture Leasing Company.

Mrs. Kleinecke and the children are all active members of the Presbyterian Church, as well as being very active in civic affairs.

KLOKAU, ALBERT AND EMMA (THUEM)

F509

Emma Thuem and Albert Klokau Yorktown, Tx. April 3, 1894.

Albert Klokau was born in Germany in 1862. He landed in Baltimore, Maryland in 1883 and came directly to Texas. He worked on the Runge Ranch near Runge for a while, then moved to Yorktown, Texas. He married Emma Thuem on April 3, 1894.

Emma Thuem was born in Germany in 1866.

She arrived from Germany in December of 1871 as a five year old with her parents, Christian and Frederike (Fechner) Thuem, along with her four brothers and one sister. They came into Galveston on a Clipper ship and from there came on into Indianola on a different type ship. They came to Yorktown where her dad was a farmer until he died in 1899. Frederike died in Ottine in 1916, where she lived her last years with her daughter, Sophie Marie Zeddler.

There were five children besides Emma. These were, Edward Christian Wilhelm, Louis Heinrich, Christian Wilhelm Gustav, Sophie Marie, and Friedrich August (who died in his teens). Most of them lived and died around Yorktown. Sophie Marie married Berthold Zeddler and spent her married life in Ottine.

Albert and Emma moved to Inez around 1900, and around 1903 moved to their farm near Clinton. In 1925 they moved to a house just out of the city limits of Cuero, on the Goliad Road. He continued farming for some years. Mrs. Klokau died in 1946 and Mr. Klokau lived in the house until his death in 1953.

Albert and Emma Klokau had six children:
1) Mary (Mrs. Temple Henry Chaddock); 2) Albert Klokau, Jr.; 3) Waldemar Klokau; 4) Ewald Klokau; 5) Beno Klokau; 6) and Olga Klokau (Mrs. Cecil Newman). Albert, Jr. died unmarried at the age of thirty. Olga married Cecil Newman of Cuero and they had four children, Cecil, Jr., Deryl, Bob and Jack.

field of missionary activity among the Latin Americans in the Rio Grande Valley, was the son of Frederick Christian Koehler (b. 19 March 1879 DeWitt County, Texas; d. 21 May 1955 DeWitt County; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville, DeWitt County; m. #1: 29 June 1904 DeWitt County; m. #2: 4 November 1915 Arneckeville to Friedericka Sager) and Caroline Koehler, nee Sager (b. 29 September 1875 Arneckeville; d. 16 October 1912 Arneckeville; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville). Alvin Koehler was born in Arneckeville on 13 April 1907. He was baptized at Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville on 26 May 1907. His baptismal sponsors were Heinrich Koehler, Heinrich Sager, Mrs. H. Sager, and Justine Koehler. Alvin Koehler was confirmed at Zion Lutheran in Arneckeville on Palm Sunday, April 19, 1922. On 20 January 1933 in Pflugerville, Travis County, Texas, he wed Edna Bohls. The marriage of Alvin and Edna Koehler produced three children: Lois Elaine Koehler (b. 19 December 1936 McAllen, Hidalgo County, Texas; m. 2 May 1959 Pflugerville to John Luedtke); Doris Faye Koehler (b. 13 February 1941 McAllen; m. 9 June 1963 Seguin, Guadalupe County, Texas, to William Ermel); and Ruth Elisabeth Koehler (b. 25 June 1945 Weslaco, Hidalgo County; m. #1: 6 February 1969 Las Vegas, Clark County, Nevada, to Donald Hormuth; m. #2: 1 November 1986 Las Vegas to John Foster). Alvin Koehler died in San Juan, Hidalgo County, on 22 November 1954 and was buried at Immanuel Lutheran Cemetery in Pflugerville.

Following his graduation from high school, Alvin Koehler worked one year on the family farm in DeWitt County before entering Texas Lutheran College in Seguin, where he began his preparation for the ministry. After leaving Texas Lutheran College, he attended Wartburg Theological Seminary in Dubuque, Iowa, and graduated in 1932. He attended Pan American College in Edinburg for a short period of time in order to become more fluent in the Spanish language. He was ordained at Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville in December of 1932. He then began his work as pastor of St.

John's Lutheran Church in San Juan.

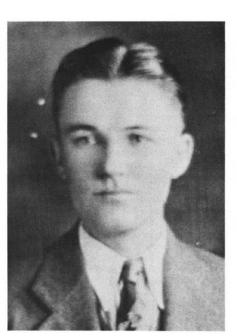

In 1938 the Board of Mexican Missions appointed Rev. Koehler field supervisor of the Rio Grande sector of the Mexican mission field. In 1948 the American Lutheran Church launched an expansion program, and, as a result, the Bible school was erected. Rev. Koehler was promoted to the office of superintendent of Mexican missions and also to the offices of director and dean of the Bible school. The expanding work of establishing various additional congregations and missions came under his supervision, and his long years of experience were called into service during July of 1954, at which time he participated in a survey of Lutheran World Federation interests, an endeavor which took him throughout South America.

Alvin Koehler was a man whose short life exemplified fearless efforts and tenacious perseverance as he sought to bring the word of Jesus Christ, his Lord, to those who might not otherwise have known of the love and forgiveness of the eternal Father. Rev. Koehler's relationship with God produced in him a strong, intrinsic faith which became characteristic of the effectiveness of his missionary work

KOEHLER, ARTHUR HENRY

Arthur Koehler

No man in DeWitt County is more respected than Arthur Koehler. He is a man who, without complaint, meets his familiar responsibilities above and beyond the call of duty, a man who sets an example without dictating to others, a man who is concerned and supportive, but who does not meddle, a man who lives his religion without being self-righteous, a man who looks beyond the rough exterior to appreciate the inner person, a man who has overcome personal tragedies to become a stronger individual, and a man who, when family finances did not permit him to attain the higher education which he so clearly desired and deserved, took his books to the field and read them while plowing the crops. It was said of Hubert Humphrey that he taught us how to die, but we can say of Arthur Koehler that he has taught us how to live.

Arthur Henry Koehler was born in Arneckeville, DeWitt County, Texas, on 11 September 1909. He was a triplet; his sisters, both born on the same day, were Olga Karoline Rath, nee Koehler, and Flora Friedericke Boehl, nee Koehler. The triplets were baptized on 17 October 1909 at Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville; sponsors for Arthur Koehler were Mary Sager and Heinrich Koehler. The parents of the triplets were Frederick "Fritz" Christian Koehler (b. 19 March 1879 DeWitt County; d. 21 May 1955 DeWitt County; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville; m. #1: 29 June 1904 DeWitt County; m. #2: 4 November 1915 DeWitt County to Friedericke Sager and Caroline Koehler, nee Sager (b. 29 September 1875 Arneckeville; d. 16 October 1912 Arneckeville; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville).

On 23 September 1937 in Arneckeville, Arthur Koehler married Wilma Anna Marie Meier, daughter of Eugene Albert Meier (b. 8 June 1888 Schofflisdorf, Canton of Zurich, Switzerland; d. 28 September 1952 New Wehdum, Washington County, Texas; bur. Hillside Cemetery, Cuero, DeWitt County; m. 24 November 1912 Brenham, Texas) and Barbara Juliana "Julia" Meier, nee Trimpler (b. 5 October 1885 Troy Grove, LaSalle County, Illinois; d. 9 February 1974 Cuero; bur. Hillside Cemetery, Cuero). Wilma Koehler, nee Meier, was born on 16 December 1913 in Sagerton, Haskell County, Texas. On Palm Sunday 1928, she was confirmed in Arneckeville at Zion Lutheran Church, where her father was pastor from 1925 until 1946. She passed away on 23 January 1958 in Cuero and was buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

On 7 February 1960 in Seguin, Guadalupe County, Texas, Arthur Koehler then married Ruth Zitelman, nee Evers, daughter of Harry Paul Charles Evers (b. 13 September 1884 Castel, Llano County, Texas; d. 29 October 1980 Cuero; bur. Liveoak Cemetery, Brady, McCulloch County, Texas; m. 10 August 1910 Brady) and Rosa Evers, nee Baze (b. 2 April 1886 Camp San Saba, McCulloch County; d. 17 September 1967 Brady; bur. Liveoak Cemetery, Brady). Ruth Koehler was born on 29 August 1911 in Brady. In 1955 she was graduated with a B.S. degree from Texas Lutheran College in Seguin. She has taught school in Seguin, Brady, Stanton, Crystal City, and Cuero. She is an active member of Delta Kappa Gamma, the University Club, and St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Cuero, where she sings in the choir.

The second marriage of Arthur Koehler produced no issue; however, two girls were born to his first marriage: Judith Grace Koehler (b. 5 November 1942 Cuero; m. 13 July 1963 Cuero to Fred Alan Ludvigsen) and Linda Marie Koehler (b. 6 January 1947 Cuero; m. 2 July 1966 Cuero to Robert Lee Meitzen.)

Records indicate that Arthur, Olga, and Flora Koehler were the only triplets ever born in DeWitt County. And what a surprise they were! According to oral history, Dr. Arnecke, of Arneckeville, arrived at the Frederick Koehler home for the delivery. He requested that Justine Koehler, a nurse, assist him because he was aware of the possibility of Caroline Koehler might deliver twins. One little girl was born; then came another little girl, identical to the first. Dr. Arnecke was ready to tidy up when, low and behold, another baby was born, this one a boy. Indeed Caroline Koehler had delivered triplets, each weighing approximately four pounds. The neighbors all came to help, and the Koehler triplets became a community project.

The triplets were always on exhibit. Everyone coming through Arneckeville just had to see the triplets; cattle buyers coming through town, visitors to church and school, all and sundry wanted to see the triplets. Arthur Koehler recalls that he was often embarrassed by this attention and that he hated to be called in from baseball game to be placed on display.

Caroline Koehler died when her triplets were three years old, and the entire family moved in with her parents, Michael Sager and Heinricke Sager, nee Rath. Three years after the death of his first wife, Frederick Koehler married Friedericke Sage, his first wife's sister. She was the only mother the triplets ever knew, and they all loved her as they continued to live in the large Sager home.

The triplets started to school at the one-room school house in Arneckeville. There was one teacher to approximately forty pupils. The parents were responsible for purchasing the primers. At first, the triplets shared two primers because the store ran out of these books.

Arthur Koehler left the farm in 1930, at which time he attended Tyler Commercial College in Tyler, Texas, where he was enrolled in a course in business and another in radio telegraphy. In his younger years, he was employed at KNOW radio station in Austin and at filling stations owned by the Rath brothers and Felix Hiller in Cuero. After passing the postal examination, he was appointed city carrier for the Cuero Post Office on 1 February 1936, and he retained that position until 4 August 1962, at which time he was promoted to the position of assistant postmaster. He retired on 30 June 1972.

For all of his long and productive life, Arthur Koehler has been an active member of his community and church. He was confirmed in the Lutheran faith at Zion on Palm Sunday 1924. He was accepted as a member of Zion at the congregational meeting of 30 December 1934. He became Secretary of the Sunday School teachers at Zion when they officially organized in 1932. On 1 January 1938 he was elected trustee. About 1945, he moved his membership to St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Cuero, where he continued to give of himself and his time as a dedicated Christian. For example, he has served on the church council, on the building committee, on the stewardship committee, and in the Lutheran Brotherhood, sung in the choir, taught the Adult Bible Class, and served as a delegate to various synods all over the United States. In addition, Arthur Koehler has been active in civic affairs. He is a member of the Cuero Lions Club and is chairman of the Municipal Library Board.

Arthur Henry Koehler, the patriarch of the Koehler family, has faithfully and tirelessly served his God, his family, his church, and his community. He is the personification of what a human being should be.

KOEHLER, ELISABETHA KATHARINA, NEE SCHLITT

F512

Anna (Koehler) Menn

Elisabetha Katharina Koehler, nee Schlitt, was born on 14 May 1811 in Leusel bei Alsfeld, Alsfeld District, Oberhessen, Grand Ducy of Hessen, Germany. She was baptized in Leusel on 17 May 1811; baptismal sponsors were Johann Heinrich Decher, from Liederbach bei Alsfeld, and the grandmother, Elisabetha Katharina Decher. The father of Elisabetha Katharina Koehler, nee Schlitt, was a farmer, Johannes Schlitt (b. 28 January 1777 Leusel; d. 6 April 1836 Leusel; m. 8 August 1805 Leusel), and her mother was Anna Catharina Schlitt, nee Decher (b. 3 April 1788 Liederbach bei Alsfeld, d. 6 October 1842 Leusel). Elisabetha Koehler sailed from Bremen with her second husband, Johann Valentin Koehler, her children, and her brother, Johann Friedrich Schlitt, on the Anton Gunther. They disembarked at Galveston on 2 January 1860. Elisabeth Katharina Koehler, died in DeWitt County, Texas, on 24 July 1894 and was buried in Zion Lutheran Cemetery in Arneckeville, DeWitt County.

Elisabetha Katharina Koehler was married twice. Her first marriage to a farmer, Johannes Kohler (b. 6 March 1815 Leusel; d. 3 January 1853 Leusel) took place in Leusel on 5 June 1842. Johannes Kohler was the son of a farmer, Johann Conrad Kohler (b. 4 May 1788 Leusel; d. 7 July 1864 Leusel; m. 29 April 1813 Leusel) and Barbara Catarine Kohler, nee Hofmann (b. 27 October 1796 Zell bei Romrod, Alsfeld District; d. 15 January 1873 Leusel). Elisabetha Katharina Koehler married for the second time on 3 June 1855 in Leusel); her second husband was Johann Valentin Koehler, the brother of her deceased first husband. Johann Valentin Koehler was born in Leusel on 23

December 1826. He died on 3 April 1906 in DeWitt County and was buried in Zion Lutheran Cemetery in Arneckeville. After the death of Elisabetha, Johann Valentin Koehler married Sophie E Schorlemmer in 1895 in DeWitt County.

Elisabetha Koehler, nee Schlitt, begat five children, all of whom were born in Leusel: Elisabetha Schlitt (b. 20 August 1836; d. 7 September 1836 Leusel); Heinrich Koehler (b. 6 April 1842; d. 12 November 1923 Cuero. DeWitt County; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville; m. 7 January 1872 DeWitt County to Friedericke Justine Christiana Sager); Katharina Koehler (b. 6 May 1843; d. 1868 DeWitt County; m. 19 February 1866 in Texas to Herman Friedrichs); Anna Katharina Koehler (b. 24 April 1845; d. 23 March 1912 Yorktown, DeWitt County; m. 14 April 1867 in Texas to Heinrich Menn); Elisabetha Koehler (b. 22 May 1854; m. 1876 in Meyersville, DeWitt County, to Wilhelm Treude).

Before emigrating, the Koehler and Schlitt families had to settle various legal matters, such as deeds and debts, to the satisfaction of the Hessian courts. For example, the court in Alsfeld assumed the following matter and clarified it through a public notice in the Alsfeld weekly newspaper in June of 1859. Johannes Schlitt, father of Elisabetha Koehler, had apparently given his daughter an acre of land as a dowry upon her marriage to Johannes Kohler; however, Johannes Schlitt had apparently never entered this title transfer to the land register at Leusel. In 1638, in the course of the Thirty Years' War (1618-1648), Leusel was completely burned; apparently only sporadic records concerning legal positions and property titles were made thereafter. Johannes and Elisabetha Kohler sold the land — without registration. It is possible that Johannes Kohler had been planning to emigrate and that the sale of this land was in preparation for this endeavor. However, Johannes Kohler died, and his widow then married his brother, Johann Valentin Koehler, and with the pending emigration of Johann Valentin Koehler, settlement of the titles became a necessity.

KOEHLER, FREDERICK BUCHEL (FRITZ)

F513

Frederick Buchel Koehler, popularly known as Fritz, was born December 19, 1916 in Cuero, Texas. He was the fourth child of Fritz and Erna Buchel Koehler and the grandson of Otto and Olga Buchel, whose stories are given separately. He grew up in Cuero, graduated from Cuero High School and attended Texas A&M University. He returned to Cuero in 1940 upon the death of his father to help manage the family business, Koehler Dry Goods Co. In December 1941, immediately after the bombing of Pearl Harbor, Fritz enlisted in what was then the Army Air Corps. and was a fighter pilot during World War II. He was a flying instructor for a year and a half, then joined a fighter group preparing to go overseas when the war ended.

After the war, Fritz brought his love of flying home with him. He was the dealer for the Swift airplane in south Texas for a number of years. He made several emergency trips in his plane to Houston and Dallas to pick up medicines and serums for the local hospital.

On October 24, 1942, he married Anne Ruth Burns of Yoakum and they had two sons. Fritz, born in 1949 lives in Houston and Terry Burns Koehler, born in 1952 lives in San Antonio.

After Fritz finished his military service, he returned to Cuero to operate Koehler Dry Goods store until 1963 when he became cashier of the Buchel National Bank. Two years later, in 1965, he sold the store.

Fritz was a sportsman, enjoying fishing, hunting and golf. He helped organize the Cuero Sportsman Club which eventually grew into the Cuero Country Club.

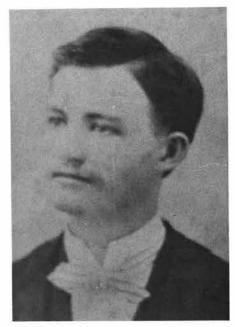

F.B. Koehler died on October 19, 1979 and is buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

KOEHLER, FREDERICK CHRISTIAN AND CAROLINE SAGER

Triplets: Olga Koehler, Arthur Koehler, and Flora Koehler (Born 1909)

Frederick Christian Koehler (1879-1955)

Caroline (Sager) Koehler (1875-1912)

Frederick "Fritz" Christian Koehler was born on 19 March 1879 in DeWitt County, Texas. He was baptized at Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville, DeWitt County, on 23 April 1879 and given the baptismal name Johann Christian Friedrich. His baptismal sponsors were Christian Sager, Ricke Arnecke, Christian Wolf, Elizabeth Koehler, and Friedrich Weiss. The parents of Frederick Christian Koehler were an immigrant farmer, Henrich Koehler (b. 6 April 1842 Leusel bei Alsfeld, Alsfeld District, Oberhessen, Grand Duchy of Hessen, Germany; d. 12 November 1923 Cuero, DeWitt County; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville; m. 7 January 1872 DeWitt County) and Friedericke "Ricke" Justine Christiana Koehler, nee Sager (b. 3 May 1854 Meyersville, DeWitt County; d. 24 June 1935 Arneckeville; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville). Frederick Christian Koehler died in DeWitt County on 21 May 1955 and was buried in Zion Lutheran Cemetery in Arneckeville.

On 29 June 1904 in DeWitt County, Frederick Christian Koehler married Caroline Sager, daughter of Michael Sager (b. 13 June 1843 Dettingen/Erms, Black Forest District, Kingdom of Wurttemberg, Germany; d. 2 April 1915 Arneckeville; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery in Arneckeville; m. 7 January 1866 Meyersville) and Heinricke Sager, nee Rath (b. 21 April 1842 Dettingen; d. 25 February 1928 Arneckeville; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery in Arneckeville). Caroline Koehler, nee Sager, was born on 29 September 1875 in Arneckeville. She was baptized at Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville on 14 November 1875 and given the baptismal name Dorethea Augusta Amilie Karoline. Her baptismal sponsors were John Offers, Fr. Krueger, Friedrich Sager, Heinrich Arnecke, A. Hiller, and Dorothea Bade. Caroline Koehler was confirmed at Zion Lutheran on Palm Sunday, 14 April 1889. She was an active member of her church and probably played the organ at church services. It is documented that, in 1900, she sang in the choir led by Pastor John Herzig, who was pastor at Zion from 1900 until 1904. In Arneckeville on 16 October 1912, Carolyn Koehler died at the age of thirty-one of what was reportedly a tubal pregnancy. She was buried in Zion Lutheran Cemetery in Arneckeville. After Carolina's death, Frederick Christian Koehler married her sister, Friedericke "Ricke" Sager on 4 November 1915 in Arneckeville. Friedericke Koehler, nee Sager, was born on 29 December 1868 in Arneckeville. She was baptized on 7 March 1869 and given the baptismal name Justine Hulda Fredericke. She was confirmed at Zion on 25 March 1882. She died on 17 May 1958 in DeWitt County and was buried in Zion Lutheran Cemetery in Arneckeville.

The second marriage of Frederick Christian Koehler was without issue; however, his first marriage produced five children, all born at Arneckeville: Ella Justine Friedericke Koehler (b. 19 April 1905; d. 28 August 1981 Victoria, Victoria County, Texas; bur. St. John Lutheran Cemetery, Meyersville; m. 25 November 1926 Arneckeville to Eugene Ruschhaupt); Alvin Heinrich Koehler (b. 13 April 1907; d. 22 November 1954 San Juan, Texas; bur. Immanuel Lutheran Cemetery, Pflugerville, Travis County, Texas; m. 20 January 1933 Pflugerville to Edna Bohls); Olga Karoline Koehler, triplet (b. 11 September 1909; d. 5 December 1981 Pasadena, Harris County, Texas; bur. Hillside Cemetery, Cuero; m. 22 May 1930 Arneckeville to Edward Arthur Rath): Flora Friedericke Koehler, triplet (b. 11 September 1909; m. 11 November 1932 Arneckeville to Elmo William Boehl); Arthur Henry Koehler, triplet (b. 11 September 1909; m. #1: 23 September 1937 Arneckeville to Wilma Anna Marie Meier; m. #2: 7 February 1960 Seguin, Guadalupe County, Texas to Ruth Zitleman, nee Evers).

Little did Fred and Caroline Koehler know, when they married in 1904, that within five years they would become the talk of the county. Records indicated that Caroline Koehler gave birth to the only set of triplets ever born in DeWitt County. How miraculous it was that she and the triplets survived without benefit of intensive care specialists or incubators or special noe-natal care units! And yet how sad it was that this young mother died three years later and that the never enjoyed the pleasure of seeing her children grow up to become respected and productive adults.

When his first wife died, Frederick Koehler was unable to manage with five children, three of whom were triplets. He moved the family in with his wife's parents, Michael Sager and Heinricke Sager, nee Rath. When the triplets were six years old, Frederick Koehler married Friedericke Sager, his first wife's sister, and the family continued to live in the sprawling Sager house. It was their step-mother, Friedericke, who actually raised the children, and they loved her as they would have loved their own mother. According to Arthur Koehler, Friedericke never showed any partiality to any one of the children, and on their birthday, each triplet had a small individual cake.

Frederick Christian Koehler was an active member of the Lutheran faith. He was confirmed at Zion Lutheran in Arneckeville on Palm Sunday, 26 March 1893 and was accepted as a member of the congregational meeting of 18 December 1904. He was elected trustee on 31 December 1905, on 28 December 1913, ca. 1929-1930, and again on 27 December 1931. Under the direction of Pastor John Herzig, who served Zion as pastor from 1900 until 1904, a band was formed. Pastor Herzig taught each band member to play an instrument. Frederick Christian Koehler was in the brass band of 1904, and he also sang in the choir.

Frederick Koehler's life was at times filled with tribulation, loss, and distress, but he called upon his reservoir of inner strength and faith to rise above the swirling waters and soar like a bird into the arms of his God in Heaven. A respected leader in his community, a father and husband devoted to his family, a man always serving his Lord, Frederick Christian Koehler was a man whose place in the history of DeWitt County will not soon be forgotten.

by Beverly Boehl

Fritz Koehler was born in Goliad, Texas on June 8, 1866, the youngest child of the William

Fritz Koehler 1930

Erna Louise (Buchel) Koehler 1930

Koehler family. William had come to America from Germany in the 1850's, a young man with the intention of going to California. He missed the wagon train and wound up in southern Texas, presumably decided that California could wait. Establishing a mercantile business and a family, he lived several years in Goliad, then moved to San Antonio.

Fritz, the son, was educated in a German-English school where his musical talents were recognized and developed, in piano and voice, singing in church choirs.

The family then moved their business and home to Cuero, Texas where it became Koehler Dry Goods Store.

Soon after moving to Cuero, Fritz met Erna Louise Buchel who also had been educated in San Antonio at a German-English school, then finishing at Miss Mulholland's School for Young Ladies. Piano and organ were her particular choice of musical instruments. After returning to Cuero, Erna accompanied Fritz by piano or organ for his bass voice recitals. At that time she became the volunteer organist at Grace Episcopal Church, a post she held for fifty years. Later they developed and gave due piano recitals.

Their marriage was solemnized at Grace Church on November 21, 1906 – at what must have been a huge wedding – guests came from the town, the area, and cities. The small church overflowed as did the area around it, where people could stand. Upon leaving the church the crowd formed an impromptu procession to the Buchel home a few blocks away. Led by the bride and groom and escorted by the crowd, they walked to the wedding reception, under flower-laden arches which they had brought with them. Later, the couple departed by train for New Orleans, as was the mode of the day — while the crowd waved!

In 1911 a disastrous fire occurred in Cuero, which wiped out a block on the main street. Including the main business houses, it took Koehler Dry Goods with it. Rebuilding was immediate, a larger brick building that housed not only Koehler's but a bank, upstairs offices and a large grocery story, which stand today.

There were five children from this marriage: Helen, Louise, Frances, Fritz, and Dorothy. Doris Buchel Kirkham joined the family at age 12, after the death of her mother Freida Buchel Kirkham. Harold, her brother, remained with his father Dr. H.L.D. Kirkham and attended Sewanee Military Academy in Tennessee.

The varied household, of many interests and talents and fun, was held together even more by music and the love of music. The children will always remember the musical evenings at Grandmother Buchel's home – just a block

Heinrich Koehler (1842-1923)

Heinrich "Henry" Koehler was a prosperous farmer near Arneckeville, DeWitt County, Texas, and an upstanding and respected citizen in his community. He was born on 6 April 1842 in Leusel bei Alsfeld, Alsfeld District, Oberhessen, Grand Duchy of Hessen, Germany. He was baptized in Leusel on 5 May 1842. His baptismal sponsor was Heinrich Decher, unmarried second son of Johannes D ecker, a citizen and farmer in Liederbach bei Alsfeld. Heinrich Koehler was the son of a farmer, Johannes Kohler (b. 6 March 1815 Leusel; d. 3 January 1853 Leusel; m. 5 June 1842 Leusel) and Elisabetha Katharina Kohler, nee Schlitt (b. 14 May 1811 Leusel; d. 24 July 1894 DeWitt County; m. #2: 3 June 1855 Leusel to Johann Valentin Koehler, brother of Johannes Kohler). Heinrich Koehler was confirmed in the Lutheran faith in Leusel on 11 May 1856. Along with other members of his family, he sailed from Bremen to America on board the Anton Gunther and disembarked in Galveston on 2 January 1860. Having stated that he "doth absolutely and entirely renounce and abjure all allegiance and fidelity to any foreign Prince, Potentate, State or Sovereignty whatever, and particularly to the Emperor of German," he became a naturalized American citizen on 4 January 1892 in DeWitt County. Heinrich Koehler died on 12 November 1923 in the Burns Hospital in Cuero, DeWitt County, and was buried in Zion Lutheran Cemetery in Arneckeville.

On 7 January 1872, in Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville, Heinrich Koehler married Friedericke "Ricke" Justine Christiana Sager, daughter of the minister, farmer, and cabinet maker, Christoph Adam Sager (b. 3 April 1836 Dettingen/Erms, Black Forest District, Kingdom of Wurttemberg, Germany; d. 27 August 1869 Arneckeville; m. 1 July 1853 Meyersville, DeWitt County) and Justine Sophie Sager, nee Dreier (b. 2 June 1833 Bosingfeld bei Extertal, Principality of Lippe, Germany; d. 16 December 1916 Arneckeville; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville). Friedericke Koehler was born in Meyersville on 3 May 1854. Records indicated that in 1900 she was a member of the Zion Lutheran Choir, led by Pastor John Herzig, who served Zion as pastor from 1900 until 1904. Friedericke Koehler died of angina pectoris on 24 June 1935 in Arneckeville. She was buried in Zion Lutheran Cemetery at Arneckeville.

Heinrich and Friedericke Koehler begat six children, all of whom were born in DeWitt County; Justine Koehler, baptized Fredericke Valentina Justine (b. 1 March 1873; d. 23 May 1952 DeWitt County; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville); Anna Koehler, baptized Anna Bertha Caroline (b. 23 November 1874; d. 26 May 1911 DeWitt County; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville; m. 23 October 1901 DeWitt County to Carl Theophil Schorlemmer); John Koehler, baptized Johann Heinrich Friedrich (b. 9 February 1877; d. 3 December 1956 DeWitt County; bur. Tivoli, Refugio County, Texas; m. 1 June 1904 Arneckeville to Louis Friedrich Schorlemmer).

Although Texas joined the Lost Cause and became part of the Confederate States of America during the Civil War, many German Texans were opposed to secession. They were tired of the strife and war and disunity which they had experienced in their motherland; in addition, many were completely devoted to the Union and were also adversely opposed to the concept of slavery and the continuation of human bondage. (As an aside, it should be noted that because German immigrants did not engage in the practice of owning slaves, the Germans worked their own cotton. In fact, because of the special care of its handling, cotton cultivated by the Germans was more valuable on the open market than was cotton grown by slaves.)

In New Orleans, on 27 October 1862, Heinrich Koehler enlisted in the Union forces for a period of three years. He served as a private in Company A (formerly Capt. Noyes' Company) of the First Regiment Texas Cavalry. Koehler was listed as present on the muster rolls from November 1862 until January 1864. In January 1864 he was on a scouting mission, and he was on another scouting mission in March of that year by order of Col. Haynes. During this time period, Koehler owed the United States $1.44 for ordinance. He was present in his own company from May to August. In September or October 1864 he was again on scouting duty. During the period he owed the United States $2.55 for camp and garrison. The muster rolls of November/December 1864 showed that he was on detached service at West Pascaguela, Mississippi, and the rolls from January to April of 1865 denoted that he had been detached as a provost guard for General E.J. Davis since 17 October 1864. In April 1865 he served as a provost guard in Baton Rouge, Louisiana. Koehler was listed as present from May until August 1865. He was discharged at the expiration of his term of service and mustered out in San Antonio on 31 October 1865. His detachment muster-out roll stated that $28.65 was due to the soldier. This same roll also denoted the following: "Bounty paid $25.00; due $75.00." It was remarked that he was "to be stopped for ordinance lost . . . viz: 1 Lariat. To be stopped or detained under general orders No. 101 A.G.O. $15.20 ½ viz: 1 Spencer Carbine and accoutrements, 1 Sabre and Belt - 63 bull cartridges for Spencer Carbine."

Under the Act of June 27, 1890, Heinrich Koehler applied for a disability Union pension. As claimant, he made the statement on 22 July 1801 that he suffered "more or less all the time with chronic rheumatism, especially in his right knee joint incident upon injury received in army service by falling off his horse near Mobile, Alabama, deafness of both ears from catarah for a period of 10 or 11 years." On that same date, J.C. Cook, M.D., examining surgeon, stated that "upon examination, I discovered the complainant's right knee joint is stiffened and limited in motion to the extent of limping, with slight atrophy of the muscles and tendons of said knee . . . He has severe deafness of both ears . . . Inability to hear loud conversation beyond 3 feet . . . I discover evidence of otitis . . . I am satisfied that his disabilities are not the result of vicious habits. The sum of his disabilities is equivalent to loss of thumb and index finger . . . 12/18, so far as manual labor is concerned.

Heinrich Koehler thus qualified for his pension (certificate #944,899) and began receiving the sum of $12.00 per month, effective 19 January 1891. Under the Act of February 6, 1907, he made another declaration for pension on 15 December 1907. According to this declaration, Koehler gave the following description of himself at the time of his enlistment: height, 6 feet; complexion, fair; color of eyes, blue; color of hair, light; occupation, farmer. Over the years, the amount which Koehler received from his pension increased; for example, he was receiving $24.00 per month in 1908, $25.00 per month in 1912, $30.00 per month in 1917, $40.00 per month in 1918, and $50.00 per month in 1923. Upon his death, Friedericke Koehler drew a pension as the widow of a Yankee veteran.

Heinrich Koehler was an active member of Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville; in fact, he was a charter member of this church. He was elected trustee at the congregational meeting of 1 January 1877 and treasurer at the congregational meeting of 20 December 1885. At the meeting of 26 April 1886, he was elected delegate to the Evangelical Lutheran Texas Synod at Yorktown, DeWitt County, and at the meeting of 11 March 1894, he was elected delegate to the First Evangelical German Lutheran Synod of Texas, held in Quihi, Medina County, Texas, Again, on 22 September 1895. he was elected delegate to the Third Delegate Conference of the First German Evangelical Lutheran Synod in Texas, held at Meyersville; and on 17 April 1898, he was elected delegate to the Old German Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Texas, held in Swiss Alps, Fayette County, Texas.

Heinrich Koehler was a man who forged a new life in a new land and who fought for his beliefs in the face of danger and hostility. In so doing, he has left a diverse legacy for his descendants.

KOEHLER, JOHANN VALENTIN

Johann Valentine Koehler (1826-1906)

Johann Valentin Koehler was born on 23 December 1826 in Leusel bei Alsfeld, Alsfeld District, Oberhessen, Grand Duchy of Hessen, Germany, and was baptized there on 26 December 1826. He was the son of a farmer, Johann Conrad Kohler (b. 4 May 1788 Leusel; d. 7 July 1864 Leusel; m. 29 April 1813 Leusel) and Barbara Catarine Kohler, nee Hoffman (b. 27 October 1796 Zell bei Romrod, Alsfeld District; d. 15 January 1873 Leusel). Little documentation has been found regarding Valentin Koehler's church membership; however, notes of a congregational meeting of Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville, DeWitt County, Texas, reveal that he was one of nineteen members present on 30 December 1900. Johann Valentin Koehler died in DeWitt County on 3 April 1906 and was buried in Zion Lutheran Cemetery in Arneckeville.

Johann Valentin Koehler was married twice. His first wife was Elisabetha Katharina Koehler, nee Schlitt, widow of his deceased brother Johannes Kohler (b. 6 March 1815 Leusel; d. 3 January 1853 Leusel; m. 5 June 1842 Leusel). Elisabeth Katharina Koehler, nee Schlitt, (b. 14 May 1811 Leusel; d. 24 July 1894 DeWitt County; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville) was the daughter of a farmer, Johannes Schlitt (b. 28 January 1777 Leusel; d. 6 April 1836 Leusel; m. 8 August 1805 Leusel) and Anna Catharina Schlitt, nee Decher (b. 3 April 1788 Liederbach bei Alsfeld, Alsfeld District; d. 6 October 1842 Leusel). After the death of his first wife, Elisabetha, Johann Valentin was married in DeWitt County in 1895 to Sophia Schorlemmer (b. 20 October 1857 Meyersville, DeWitt County; d. 21 August 1922 Victoria, Victoria County, Texas; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville; m. #2: 20 October 1907 DeWitt County to Carl A. Leuschner). Sophia Koehler, nee Schorlemmer, was the daughter of Wilhelm Heinrich Schorlemmer (b. 8 April 1812 Darmstadt, Darmstadt District, Province of Starkenburg, Grand Duchy of Hessen, Germany; d. 23 August 1898 Meyersville; bur. St. John Lutheran Cemetery, Meyersville; m. #1: 6 October 1844 Darmstadt to Elisabeth Friederike Sperb; m. #2: 6 December 1846 Darmstadt) and Eva Sophie Schorlemmer, nee Reinhardt (b. 11 September 1827 Darmstadt; d. 4 October 1900 Meyersville).

Johann Valentin Koehler and Elisabetha Katharina Koehler, nee Schlitt; begat one child, a daughter: Elisabetha Koehler (b. 22 May 1854 Leusel; m. 1876 Meyersville to Wilhelm Treude). The second marriage of Johann Valentin Koehler was without issue.

Back in Leusel, in order to allow satisfaction to creditors, each prospective emigrant was required to publish his intentions in both the official gazette and in the newspaper which would be read in his village and district. Johann Valentin Koehler had already published his intention to emigrate and asked for release from the subject bond in 1857. Although, for some reason or other, this original request was denied, on 7 May 1859 he again announced his intention in the official gazette and in the Alsfeld weekly newspaper; and his application was finally granted and his passport issued on 18 October 1859.

On 5 October 1859 Johann Valentin Koehler published an auction notice in the Alsfeld weekly newspaper. In effect, on 17 October 1859 he put up for auction his entire household goods, which included the following: three oak wardrobes, a chest of drawers, six bedsteads, a kitchen cupboard, a wall clock with cabinet, several pillows and cushions, household linen goods, tables, chairs, and other household utensils of every kind.

Over and over again, the members of the Koehler and Schlitt families demonstrated rare astuteness in financial matters. Under the pressure of time, most emigrants sold their houses and real estate in order to obtain ready cash. As a rule, they, therefore, sold their property cheaply or at loss. However, notices in the Alsfeld weekly newspaper suggested that the Koehlers did not make this mistake. Johann Valentin Koehler sold his household goods and crops without constraint. However, he allowed the Jewish merchant Gutkind Rothschild, from Angenrod, a neighboring village, to sell the Koehler house and real estate and moreover allowed Rothschild until Christmas to make the payment on the debt. According to Helmuth Riffer of Alsfeld (January, 1989), this was an unusually skillful and intelligent manipulation in that Rothschild and Koehler had gained time and were thus able to obtain an optimum price for the real estate; the money for the net proceeds was then transferred to America.

Johann Valentin Koehler, with his wife, his brother-in-law, Johann Friedrich Schlitt, his daughter, and his step-children (i.e., his nephew and nieces), sailed from Bremen aboard the Anton Gunther and landed in Galveston on 2 January 1860. The DeWitt County federal census enumerated on 10 August 1860 indicated that Valentin Koehler was living in the household headed by his wife's brother, Johann Friedrich Schlitt. The occupation of each was listed as farmer. The value of real estate was listed as $4000, not an inconsiderable sum for the times.

In pursuance of the state law providing for the recruiting of local military units for ultimate state service, DeWitt County citizens organized a number of infantry and cavalry companies. Many prominent pioneer names appeared as officers, non-commissioned officers, and men on the rolls of these volunteer units; and records indicated that Johann Valentin Koehler was a member of Captain Robert Kleberg's Coleto Guards, headquartered at Meyersville (17 June 1861).

Mention was made in the records of St. John Lutheran Church in Meyersville that, on the night of 25 March 1865, a terrible storm tore away the banks of the Coleto and that the "house of Mr. Koehler" was torn loose from its foundation. Johann Valentin Koehler survived this and many other hardships and was listed as the head of the household on the DeWitt County federal census enumerated in June of 1870.

Johann Valentin Koehler filed his Declaration of Intent to become a United States citizen in DeWitt County on 23 January 1871. He was granted citizenship in that same county on 22 December 1879 on the oath of two citizens that he "has behaved as a man of good moral character attached to the principles of the constitution of the United States of America."

Justine Koehler, R.N.

Justine Koehler was born on 1 March 1873 in DeWitt County, Texas. She was the daughter of Heinrich Koehler (b. 6 April 1842 Leusel bei Alsfeld, Alsfeld District, Oberhessen, Grand Duchy of Hessen, Germany; d. 12 November 1923 Cuero, DeWitt County, Texas; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville, DeWitt County; m. 7 January 1872 Arneckeville) and Friedericke Justine Christiana Koehler, nee Sager (b. 3 May 1854 Meyersville, DeWitt County; d. 24 June 1935 Arneckeville; bur. Zion Lutheran Cemetery, Arneckeville)

On 27 April 1873 at Zion Lutheran in Arneckeville, Justine Koehler was baptized and given the baptismal name Fredericke Valentina Justine. Her baptismal sponsors were Frau Sager, Justine Sager, and Valentin Koehler. On Palm Sunday, 3 April 1887, Justine Koehler was confirmed at Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville, where she continued to serve as an active member until her death. For example, in 1900 she was pictured as a member of the choir led by Pastor John Herzig, and she was a charter member of the Women's Missionary Society, which was officially organized on 15 November 1949. She died, at the age of 79 years, 2 months, and 22 days, on 23 May 1952 in DeWitt County and was buried at Zion Lutheran Cemetery in Arneckeville.

According to A History of DeWitt County by Nellie Murphree (1962), Salome Hospital, which was built by the Cuero Hospital Association, received a state charter in February of 1893. Its first chief of staff was Joe H. Reuss, M.D. Associated with him were Joe M. Reuss, M.D., Daniel B. Blake, M.D., and Joe Lackey, M.D. It was at this institution that Miss Justine Koehler received her nurse's training, and graduated from the Nurses' Training School which was conducted there. She worked for a number of years at Burns Hospital in Cuero and was later employed in private nursing endeavors.

Having dedicated her life to serving the sick and infirm, Justine Koehler became one of the most efficient and respected nurses in the DeWitt County area. From the earliest times, the art of nursing has been practiced with skill and much self-sacrifice and devotion. The life of Miss Justine Koehler exemplified these traits and was a credit to the nursing profession in its finest hour.

KOEHLER, WILLIAM

William Koehler (1823-1914) was born in Germany where his father was head forester for one of the princes. William became a prizewinning shot as a young man. In 1842, at age 19, William left Germany and arrived in New Orleans. Six years later in 1849, he decided to join the gold rush to California. The wagon train had gone ahead so he set out to catch up, taking his wares for a general store with him. He lost his way and ended up in Goliad, Texas. He liked the spot and decided "this was good enough for him." So he set up his little store.

One of the best family stories occurred at this time. The people of Goliad warned the young man that there was a gang that came that way and they would shoot up any store they found open. He declared that he would not close his store and they would not shoot it up. Of course the word got around! Soon the news came that the gang was coming. The businesses duly closed up, but William, all five feet four inches of him, stood in his doorway with his rifle by the door. When the gang came, they rode up to the door and demanded that he stand aside, they were going to ride through, and the leader's horse put one foot on the little boardwalk in front. William quickly picked up his rifle and leveled it at the leader. Looking at the man with his steady blue eyes he said "If your horse puts his other foot on that walk, you're a dead man." The leader looked at him a moment and reined in his horse, exclaiming "I believe the damn Dutchman will shoot!" They they all started laughing and rode off. William never closed his store and they never bothered him.

In the 1850's William went to New Orleans and there married Helena Wilde (1836-1903). We know little of her except that she was born in Alsace Lorraine and that her trousseau was made by slaves in or near New Orleans. William gave her diamond earrings in 1857 for her wedding gift. They are still in the family. The couple went back to Goliad. The first two children died of diphtheria within one week of each other. Perhaps because of this, early in the 1860's they moved to Germany. They lived there about two years. One child, William K. Koehler, (1864-1915) was born there.

Germany didn't seem so wonderful after all, so back they came to Texas. Five more children were born to the couple. Fritz in 1866 in Goliad, Carl, Ernst, Fanny and August probably in San Antonio. The family had moved there and had a home on the San Antonio River. Fritz as a boy helped to care for the horses. He used to swim them across the river and back to wash them. He and the others were educated in the German-English School. Fritz studied music and developed a fine bass voice. He sang in the Catholic choir for many years.

In 1890 the Koehler family moved to Cuero, Texas. William and his two sons, Willie and Fritz opened Koehler Dry Goods Co. in the Buchel building. The building burned in 1911 but was rebuilt in 1912 and there they remained.

Fritz was immediately popular and in demand as a singer. Erna Buchel (1884-1977) first accompanied him at the age of eight.

On November 22, 1906 they were married. They had five children: Helen Koehler Bywaters, Louise Koehler Giesecke, Frances Koehler Witcher, Dorothy Koehler Lander, and Frederick Buchele Koehler (Fritz). Fritz was married to Ann Burns of Yoakum, Texas. Doris Kirkham Brokaw, a niece, lived with the family from the time she was twelve.

KOENIG, ALBERT AND MARY RATH

F520

Albert Koenig was born November 24, 1873, the son of Judge and Mrs. Edward Koenig (Nee Agatha Luder). He married Mary Rath, born December 6, 1872, sister of Johann (John) F. Rath, Albert, Johanna (Boehl) Fritz, Emma and Mrs. Ed Koenig. They had one child, Friedrich Royal born May 5, 1905. Author of this article spent many evenings playing "moon" with dad (Werner Wolf) and great uncle Albert. Albert died November 19, 1949. Mary moved to Cuero and passed away November 28, 1951. They are buried in Lutheran Cemetery in Arneckeville. Their old home was sold to Doris (Wolf) and Alton Goebel. The house was moved and remodeled by the young couple. They own the house today and raised two children there, Clifford and Fave Goebel. Cliff married Ella Francis Angerstein of Meyersville and Faye is now Mrs. Odell White, Jr.

Soil Conservation Feature — Charles Koenig on his land amid improved grass

Richard O. Koenig younger son of Charles L. Koenig, Jr. serving in combat duty in Vietnam War

May 27, 1917, Charles Louis Koenig, Jr. was born to Charles and Lena Schrade Koenig at their home in the Green DeWitt Community, only a short distance from his grandfather, Louis' big house with aunts and uncles and cousins galore. Charles was a curly-headed, brown-eyed lively child - as his mother said, ". . . quick as lightning." With his quickness he was a great help to his father and grandfather because by now Charlie and Lena, Charles and his baby sister, Ada, were living on the home place. He went to Green DeWitt School in his grandfather's front pasture built on an acre of land which Louis had donated. On a blustery winter day in 1929, the school building caught fire. At many family Sunday dinners, everyone would beg Charles to tell his anecdote about the fire. He would smile and begin,

"I can remember it just like it was yesterday. We smelled the smoke and heard the crackling of the flames. The teacher screamed 'out, out' and everybody ran out. But then, Ruben Sauer and I who sat together at a double desk, dashed back in, grabbed that desk on both ends, dragged it out all the way to the public road. We turned it around facing the school and sat down in it and watched the whole building burn to the ground." He never admitted, though, whether it was with sadness or satisfaction.

As he grew up, following in his grandfather's and father's footsteps, he became accustomed to hard work. When he went to Cuero High School, he worked before school by delivering cream to the Crescent Valley Creamery and bunches of vegetables tied with Spanish dagger strings to grocery stores, and after school by working for McLarty's grocery store. He attended Texas A&M for a year; completed Draughn's Business College in Houston and worked there for Oefinger Livestock Commission Company; returned to Cuero and purchased a small grocery store on East Broadway which he operated until he joined the U.S. Navy.

On August 15, 1943 in Detroit, Charles and Mary Alice Tullos of Houston were married. Later, when he went to the South Pacific, his wife came to Cuero where Charles Tullos Koenig was born June 16, 1944. After four years of service, Charles came home and in 1946 purchased McLarty's Red and White Grocery changing the name to Koenig's Super Market. On August 18, 1947, a daughter, Judith Lynette was born but died on the same day. On October 20, 1949, a second son, Richard Ormond was born.

Charles successfully operated Koenig's Super Market, down town on Main Street, which had been the location for a grocery store since the founding of Cuero in 1873. However, sensing the winds of change, Charles closed the store in September 1961. He then opened Koenig's Drive-In on East Broadway in May 1962 and it was an instant and continuous success, but not without shrewd management and hard work from 6:00 A.M. to 10:00 P.M. seven days a week. The profits from the Drive-In enabled him to extend his cattle business. In addition to raising cattle on the home place, he leased the adjoining Boehl pasture and "Cousin Ed Koenig's" place. He was considered one of the best businessmen in Cuero and one of the largest cattlemen in the county. On February 1, 1964, his son, Charles, married Patricia Stell and had two daughters, Sherry and Marianne. In August, 1966, his son, Richard, entered the U.S. Armed Services serving in Korea and Germany, but distinguishing himself by three tours of duty in Viet Nam. He was awarded the bronze Army Commendation Medal in Viet Nam and the Air Medal when he served with the 210th Combat Aviation Battalion in Viet Nam. Richard's children were Eric and Amy.

In his later years, Charles suffered crushing blows — near-fatal meningitis, a bleeding ulcer, a debilitating stroke, and yet another crippling stroke. Even though his will to work was strong, his body was too weak. He finally decided, after being in the grocery business 40 years, to sell the Drive-In. Thereafter, he sold his cattle and his life, so to speak. He died June 11, 1987. On June 18, 1987 several of his old customers were at the Drive-In reminiscing about Charles, when one said, "There will never be another like him — he was a legend."

On July 14, 1892, Charles Louis Koenig, fourth son and eighth child was born to Louis and Mary Golly Koenig. Louis was born June 8, 1856 in Alsace and died December 4, 1939. Mary was born in Alsace in November 27, 1862 and died September 19, 1906. The seven older children - Adolph, Josie, Sophie, Emelia, Alfred, Alma, and Henry — cared for Charlie and in turn Charlie helped care for the next four younger children - Lilly, Walter, Bertha, and Frank. It was well that the children took care of each other because Mary died from complications of the "milk leg" at only 44 years of age. Louis lived for 33 years more admirably acting as both father and mother instilling in his children the traditions of industry, perseverance, frugality, and hard work.

Family Picture. Charles Louis and Lena Schrade Koenig, Children: Charles L. Koenig, Jr. and Ada Koenig Kirk

Courting Days. Charles Louis Koenig and Lena Nora Mary Schrade about 1915

Charles L. Koenig, Sr. was presented this Certificate of Honor November 16, 1977 at the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio, Texas

Charlie cut his teeth on hard work. At a very early age, he cut cabbages for shipping with icicles hanging on his shirt tail; cut sugar cane and fed it to the molasses press; helped with butchering hogs; tended the sheep; and milked the cows. As he grew older, he plowed, cultivated, and harrowed the fields with mule-drawn teams.

Charlie was regarded as one of the hardest workers and one of the best farmers in DeWitt County. It was also purported that he had the best looking shiny black buggy and sleekest horse in the county. He was looked upon by many mothers as a "good catch" for marriage-age daughters. But Charlie had his sights set on Lena Mary Nora Schrade - the slim, tiny waisted, chestnut haired, brown eyed, semideaf daughter of Gustav and Sophie Hartman Schrade of Arneckeville. Her semi-deafness did not deter him, and he became her ardent suitor. He, himself, built the sturdy, two-bedroom wood house in the Green DeWitt Community for his beautiful bride. In 1989 seventythree years after this house was built, it is still strong, sturdy and lived in.

May 27, 1917 their son, Charles Louis Koenig, Jr. was born and March 9, 1922 their daughter Ada Koenig Kirk was born - both in this house. However, they were soon to leave this first home. Louis Koenig, now living alone since the last one of his twelve children had married, asked them to come to live in the big house with him. This move was fortunate, for Charlie, carrying on in the traditions of his father, made the 677.49 acres productive. He plowed, planted, and harvested, often singlehandedly, corn, cotton, hegari, hay, and peanuts. In addition, he grew vegetables for sale, raised cattle, sheep, hogs, and sold cream to the local creamery. With the help of his wife, Lena, he raised chickens and turkeys, selling eggs from both, and supplying turkeys "on foot" for the famous Cuero Turkey Trots. The wintertimes centered around butchering hogs for selling homemade sausage, home-cured bacon, and ham. Starting with no assets, he and his wife, through hard work and frugality, accumulated enough money to purchase the home place originally founded by Louis Koenig. Since this farm was continuously owned and operated by the Koenig family, it qualified for the Texas Department of Agriculture Family Land Heritage Program. Therefore, on November 16, 1977 at the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio, Charles Louis Koenig, Sr. was presented a Certificate of Honor for the Koenig Place founded in 1877 for a century or more of continuous ownership and operation as a family agricultural enterprise. Charlie, like his father, became a role-model. Charlie also became a mentor and source of security for his four grandchildren. His granddaughter, Sister Martha Ann Kirk with four degrees in higher education, observed about her grandfather with only a few years of formal education, "You know, Mama, Pamp is the wisest of men because he knows about the elemental things earth, fire, and water and that for everything there is a season." He even displayed his wisdom in his last season - his time to die at 87. Because the doctor ordered him to come to the hospital for removing an obstruction from his colon, I went out to get him. I packed his suitcase and we walked out the door when suddenly he said, "Ada, wait, I have to go back in and say good-bye to this house - "I know I won't be back." In his wisdom, he knew aright.

KOENIG, CHARLES TULLOS FAMILY

Charles Tullos Koenig, fourth generation on the Koenig Place, standing in front of primitive log house dating back to Louis Koenig.

Charles Tullos Koenig son of Charles Louis Koenig, Jr. and Mary Alice Tullos Koenig was born in Cuero, June 16, 1944. His great grandfather was Anton Koenig born in Alsace January 19, 1814, and his grandfather was Louis Koenig born in Alsace June 8, 1856. Just as Charles Koenig, Jr. stepped in the footsteps of his grandfather, Louis, and father, Charles, Sr. on the home place, so, too, would Charles T. follow along behind his father, Charles Jr., and grandfather, Charles, Sr. From them, he learned about live for the land and hard work. As he grew up, he worked in his father's grocery store, Koenig's Super Market. But the best and most satisfying work - no matter how hard was whatever work he died with his grandfather in the country. After high school, he attended Texas A&I Kingsville for a year and then Victoria Collee where he met Patricia Ann Stell who was to be his wife.

Patricia Ann Stell daughter of Travis E. Stell and Geraldine Ward Stell was born in Bay City, Texas, November 6, 1944. When her father returned from duty in South Pacific in World War II, by his own hands, he built a brick home in Edna where Patricia grew up. The family moved to Victoria and Patricia attended Victoria College where she met Charles T. They were married in her family's home in Victoria February 1, 1964. Then they moved to Corpus Christi where Charles T. attended Del Mar College; graduated; and went to work. Patricia attended college for a short while and then worked as a secretary in the school system.

The next move was to Houston where Charles T. worked for the Richardson Chevrolet Company and Patricia, one of the first recipients of the Rockefeller Nursing Scholarships, attended Houston Baptist College of Nursing. On February 9, 1967, their first daughter, Sherry Ann was born. There was great rejoicing over this first granddaughter and great granddaughter. Later, her grandfather dubbed his large irrigation reservoir, Sherry Lake. Sherry, a very bright, curly-headed child, matured into a lovely young lady gifted with a beautiful singing voice - being chosen for all Regional High School Choir. As a member of the Victoria College Choir, she performed at the World's Fair in Canada. Sherry has also been active with her church group going on missionary trips to work with the Indian children in Wyoming. At this point in time, she is continuing her education in the field of business.

Their second daughter, Marianne Stell Koenig, was born in Houston January 18, 1971 with the grave birth condition - Spina Bifida Meningo-myelocele. At this time, specialists had been treating this condition for only five years. It was fortunate that Marianne was born in a large metropolitan hospital for within three hours after her birth, she underwent surgery. Thereafter, until she was three and one-half years old, she had eleven more operations. Her father, mother, and sister, Sherry, with courage and love, never faltered in support of her. All of them shared Marianne's triumph in the summer of 1989. Marianne attended Super Summer at Baylor University for five days of intensive Bible study and worship. During the closing worship service, Marianne, one of twelve out of 2,000 students, was presented the Unsung Hero Award for active participation in the Texas Olympics XI even though she had a physical birth defect.

In 1973 the family moved to Victoria where Patricia achieved her dream of becoming a nurse. She graduated from college with an R.N. Degree in Nursing. She was immediately employed by De Tar Hospital specializing in obstetrics and neo-natal intensive-care nursing. During the ensuing years, Charles worked as Parts Manager for automobile agencies and, in addition, served his community as a Reserve Deputy.

In 1987 coming into his inheritance from his father, Charles could only marvel that he was home again — drinking water from the well that his great grandfather had dug by hand; peering in the dark old log cabin of his great grandfather's; and poking around in the big barn. Soon, he and Patricia were raising improved Hereford cattle; up-grading the pastures with new grasses; adding a tank; and replacing the second story of the house. Charles had come full circle — back to his roots, the Koenig home place.

KOENIG, EDWARD, JR. F524

Edward and Katharine (Rath) Koenig

1868 - 1945

Edward Koenig, Jr. was born at Meyersville, DeWitt County, Texas on October 3, 1868. He was the son of Judge Edward Koenig, Sr. and Agatha Luder Koenig. Like his father, Edward Jr. was interested in cattle and farming. While he did raise cotton and corn, he was more interested in cattle raising and trading. Over time, he accumulated substantial land holdings

Edward, Jr. married Katharine Rath of Meyersville on October 23, 1890. She was the daughter of Johann Peter and Hulda Thieme Rath. Five children were born to Edward, Jr. and Katharine Rath Koenig before her untimely death in 1906 at age thirty-five: Berthold, Friedrich (Fritz), Edwin, Felix, and Ella (Mrs. E.G. Brown). After the death of Katharine, Edward, Jr. continued to raise his five children in the large two-story home on South River Road.

Edward Koenig, Jr. was well-known as a gracious host at many a gathering at that place on South River Road. On numerous occasions, this generous, gregarious man entertained scores of relatives and friends with barbequed beef and all the trimmings. He maintained his good sense of humor throughout his life, interspersing his colorful language with occasional words of "Elsess." His death on October 4, 1945 was widely mourned.

KOENIG, JUDGE EDWARD, SR.

1844 - 1932

Edward Koenig, Sr. was the son of Anton and Rosina Golli Koenig. He was born in the town of Wesserling in the Thur Valley of Alsace, France on February 2, 1844. Edward emigrated to the United States in 1858 with his parents and two brothers (Alphonse and Louis). Arriving at Meyersville, DeWitt County, Texas by way of New Orleans and Indianola, the family engaged in agriculture. Four years after arriving in this country, Edward, at age 17, enlisted in Company G of the Thirty-second Texas Cavalry with which he fought against the Union forces throughout the War Between the States. Mustered out of the service in Houston in 1865, Edward established a grocery business in Victoria, Texas. While residing in Victoria, Edward and Miss Agatha Luder were married on July 10, 1866.

Edward and Agatha Koenig returned to DeWitt County in 1868 where Edward again engaged in agriculture. In 1882 he was elected DeWitt County Commissioner, beginning what was to be a long and distinguished career of public service. After ten years as commissioner, Edward was elected County Judge, serving in that capacity from 1892 until 1896. He was Justice of the Peace for thirteen years and County Treasurer from 1910 until 1915.

To the union of Edward and Agatha Luder Koenig were born sixteen children: Marie and Rosa (twins), Edward, Anna (Mrs. Charles Semmler), Louis, Albert, Emma (Mrs. Louis Semmler), Bertha (Mrs. Albert Rath), Ida (Mrs. Louis Bluntzer), Alphonse, Otto, Apolina (Mrs. Ben Hagel), Elenore (Mrs. Ed Fuess), William, John, and Edwin.

Judge Edward Koenig, Sr. died in Cuero on March 23, 1932. He was preceded in death by his wife Agatha Luder Koenig, who passed away on February 9, 1927.

Carl Friedrich Felix Koenig was born at Cuero, Texas on December 23, 1897 to Edward, Jr. and Katharine Rath Koenig. He grew up on the Edward Koenig, Jr. home place on the South River Road, working very hard learning to be a "cow man" and how to butcher beeves and hogs for the family meat supply.

On November 30, 1926, Felix married Annie Miller of Inez, Victoria County, Texas. Annie was the daughter of Charles and Helen Luhrsen Miller. Felix and Annie had met while Annie visited on numerous occasions on River Road. Felix and Annie Koenig had two children: Felix, Jr. who died at birth, and Kathryn Marie (Mrs. Ben Burdine).

Felix was a good cattleman all of his life. During the early years of their marriage, Annie, one of the few good horsewomen in DeWitt County, rode by his side working cattle and causing quite a stir in the community. They were also well-known for their superb homecured sausage, bacon, and ham. They had steady customers year after year for their famous products, the processing of which always took place under that huge, centuries-old live oak tree in the back yard of their Koenig Road home.

Felix Koenig passed away on April 23, 1987 in Victoria, Texas. He was a lifelong member of Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church at Arneckeville. He will always be remembered for his kind and gentle ways.

KOENIG, HENRY JOSEPH

F527

Henry Joseph Koenig, seventh of twelve children of Alsatian immigrant Louis Koenig and Mary Agatha Golly, was born July 11, 1890 in DeWitt County. He was raised on his father's successful farm and ranch. He attended Green DeWitt School, Nash Academy, and Tyler School of Business. Henry served in the United States Marine Corps in World War I in France and Germany. After military service, he worked for the H. Runge and Co. Bank in Cuero until it closed in 1932. Henry was then employed as secretary for the Cuero Building and Loan Association. In 1934 he was elected county clerk of DeWitt County, assumed office January 1, 1935, and served in that position until January 1, 1955. Henry was a strong supporter and an active member of the business community, both county and city. He was highly respected in the community as an astute businessman. Many remember his impeccable, dignified dress and good manners as he went about his business in Cuero and DeWitt County. He always had a pleasant hello for everyone and a tip of his hat for the ladies. He loved people and mingled easily at county and community gatherings. He served on the board of directors of the Cuero Building and Loan Association along with his father-in-law Charles Juenger, and his brother-in-law John J. Fischer, Sr. He served in this capacity for many years, and at one time served as president of the board. During his service, the board was instrumental in changing the Cuero Building and Loan Association to a federal institution. After that the institution's name changed to Cuero Federal Savings and Loan Association. It is still an important financial institution in DeWitt County. Henry was involved in many other organizations such as the American Red Cross in World War II, the St. Michael's Catholic Church, St. Michael's Parish Board, the Knights of Columbus, the Sons of Henry was married to Meta Arnold in 1919. She died in 1934. In 1937, he married Erna Carolyn Juenger in Cuero. Erna, the youngest of seven children of Austrian immigrant Charles Juenger and Theresa Buchhorn, was born July 12, 1906 in Cuero. She attended Cuero schools and St. Joseph School of Nursing in Houston. She received her nursing degree in 1931 and practiced with a fine reputation until her marriage to Henry in 1937. Henry and Erna had two children. Ramah Carolyn Koenig was born December 12, 1938 in Cuero and Henry Joseph Koenig, Jr. was born February 12, 1941 in Cuero. In 1962 Ramah married Dr. Leo Dennis O'Gorman in Cuero. They have three children: Sean Dennis O'Gorman born May 3, 1963; Kevin Michael O'Gorman born December 20, 1967; and Maeve Eileen O'Gorman born September 25, 1972. Henry Joseph, Jr. married Janis Pisano in 1968. They have three children: Mary Lynn Koenig born January 22, 1970; Mary Kaye Koenig born July 21, 1971; and Henry Joseph Koenig, III born July 13, 1977.

In his private life, Henry Koenig was a kind, affectionate, and fun-loving person. He was particularly fond of children and young people. He took pride in his many nieces and nephews and developed an affectionate relationship with them. He was a devoted husband and father. His family was always a source of pride and pleasure to him.

He maintained a special relationship with his brothers and sisters and their families. He was looked upon as a special family advisor, especially after the death of his father Louis Koenig in 1939.

Henry loved good food, family parties, and especially family reunions. He had an engaging sense of humor which contributed much to the lively family gatherings. He was an avid domino player.

His avocation was gardening and he lovingly cared for the grounds of his beautiful home on 409 Second Street. During World War II he turned his "show case" flower beds into a productive vegetable garden. He also enjoyed river and gulf fishing. His vacations were always spent in Rockport relaxing with his family and fishing with his lifelong friend and brother-in-law John J. Fischer, Sr.

Erna Juenger Koenig was a devoted wife and mother and also gave her time in community service. She was an active member of many organizations such as St. Michael's Catholic Church, St. Michael's Church Choir, St. Michael's Altar Society, St. Michael's School PTO, The Catholic Daughters of America, the American Legion Auxillary, and is a lifetime member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxillary. She helped establish a church organization for the girl youths of her church, the Junior Catholic Daughters, and she served as a sponsor for many years. In later years, Erna continued her faithful church service as a Eucharistic Minister visiting the elderly in local nursing homes and taking them Holy Communion. For relaxation she played bridge regularly with her many friends.

After a lifetime of family and community service in the county in which he was born, Henry Joseph Koenig died on May 11, 1955 at the age of 64. Erna Juenger Koenig still resides in their home on 409 Second Street, Cuero.

KOENIG, LENA MARY NORA SCHRADE

On October 10, 1895, the seventh and last child, Lena Mary Nora was born to Sophie

Hartmann and Gustav Schrade at Arneckeville. Sophie was born June 26, 1861 and died March 6, 1915. She married Gustav May 1, 1883. Gustav was born October 27, 1854 and died April 29, 1899. Both are buried in Arneckeville's Zion Lutheran Cemetery. The six older children, Hugo, Emelia, Ottilie, Bertha, Ida, and Berthold, babied and doted on Lena. But tragedy was soon to strike this happy family. Gustav was a prosperous stockman, but lost everything in the catastrophic cattle depression. Shortly thereafter he developed a malignant facial cancer and died when Lena was only three years old.

Lena attended the German-English school and was a quick, bright, eager student. By the time she was fifteen years old, with her heavy, long flowing chestnut hair, dark brown eyes, and trim figure, she was the beauty of the community. Then another disaster struck. Their home burned! In spite of this loss, Sophie still managed to hold the family together. In the cold winter following, when Lena was sixteen years sold, she suffered a telling personal tragedy. She caught a virulent cold which lingered and developed into a catarrh in her ears and she was left with irreversible semideafness. Her hopes of continuing her education were gone as well as her dreams of being "on-stage" as her grandmother had been in Germany. Her disappointment and depression brought on a marked withdrawal from the social life of the community, but gradually she ventured out. And then Charles Louis Koenig came into her life. Her semi-deafness did not deter him from becoming her ardent suiter. In March 1916 he brought his beautiful bride to the home he had built in the Green DeWitt community. In this house, Charles Louis Koenig, Jr. was born May 27, 1917 and Ada Koenig Kirk was born March 9, 1922.

The next momentous event in their lives was a move. Louis Koenig, Charlie's father was now living alone since the last one of his twelve children had married. He asked Charlie to move into the "big" house on the home place. Thereafter, with Lena as hostess for her father-in-law and husband, the big house (ca. 1900) became a gathering place for the large Koenig family and many friends in the Green DeWitt Community. Lena was known for raising beautiful flowers and pot plants - and many are the people to whom she gave a seed, a cutting, or a root. She also raised hundreds of chickens and turkeys. In the wintertime, she helped with the butchering of hogs and the sausage making. The ensuing years sped by, the children married, and the four grandchildren romped, played, and stayed in the big house. Lena had accomplished much in her heart-breaking world of semi-silence. More and more frequently, she would tell her children in a pensive mood, "I've found the answer — I've learned to pray." This final acceptance led her to thank the Lord, and, yes, even to praise the Lord for His will - her deafness! A miracle was soon to follow. In 1963, she underwent an ear operation - a stapedectomy and the "ears of the deaf were opened." After this operation for the first time since she was sixteen years old, Lena shed her burden of deafness. After her return home, she said in joy and wonder, "I can hear the mockingbird mocking the cats; the locusts singing in the pecan tree; the cows mooing; the lambs bleating; and the hens cackling."

In her newly-opened world of sound, Lena whirled into activities of service. But probably her most rewarding contributions were to her church. With her advancing years, she could no longer raise real flowers, so she started making tissue-paper flowers to adorn the handmade Easter baskets sold by St. Michael's Altar Society. Her living room floor would be covered with hundreds of red, blue, yellow, pink, and purple perfectly-shaped roses and carnations. Easter after Easter, her flowers decorated the Easter baskets until her fingers, stiffened with arthritis, could no longer twist the delicate shapes. In her life many things worked together - and she firmly believed for good as Paul worte in Romans 8:28 "All things work together for good to them that love God."

Antoine and Rosina Koenig — parents of Louis Koenig

Louis and Mary Golly Koenig

Anton and Rosalie Haller Golly — Parents of Mary Golly Koenig

Louis Koenig, born in Alsace Lorraine, emigrated to the United States arriving at the Port of New Orleans when he was about three years of age. On November 25, 1881 Louis applied for his naturalization papers and on January 12, 1882 it was ordered by the court that the said Louis Koenig be, and is admitted to be a citizen of the United States of America.

His father, Anton, was born in Alsace, January 19, 1814 and died in DeWitt County at the age of 86 years on October 18, 1900. Anton married Rosina Golli in Alsace in 1843. Rosina was born in Alsace, April 6, 1817 and died in DeWitt County at the age of 80 on April 5, 1897. Anton and Rosina are buried in the Catholic Cemetery at Meyersville, Texas. Three sons were born to Anton and Rosina Koenig in Alsace — Edward, Alfonse, and Louis.

Louis Koenig was born in Alsace Lorraine June 7, 1855 and died in DeWitt County on December 4, 1939. He was united in marriage to Mary Agatha Golly by Father Anthony Heinkle at the Meyersville Catholic Church in 1877. Mary was born in Alsace, November 27, 1862 and died in DeWitt County at the age of 44 years on September 19, 1906. Mary's father was Anton Golly who died at the age of 47 years on June 11, 1884. Mary's mother was Rosalie Haller who died at the age of 39 years on January 26, 1882. Anton and Rosalie Golly are buried in the Meyersville Catholic Cemetery. Louis and Mary Koenig are buried in Hillside Cemetery, Cuero, Texas.

From the original grant of the Empresario Green DeWitt, Louis Koenig bought his first 100 acres of land April 2, 1877 from William Hasson. From 1877 to 1977 — one hundred years — this homestead with later additions of 693.29 acres was continuously owned and operated by the Koenig family. Therefore, the Koenig Place was accepted into the Texas Family Land Heritage Program for 1977. On November 16, 1977 at the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio, Charles Louis Koenig, Sr. was presented a Certificate of Honor to the Koenig Place founded 1877 for a century or more of continuous ownership and operation as a family agricultural enterprise.

Twelve children were born to Louis and Mary Koenig and remarkably all twelve reached maturity. The first-born, Henry Adolph October 15, 1880 was the only one who suffered an untimely death - in 1904 only twenty-four years of age - from a ruptured appendix. The second-born, Mary Josephine Koenig Goebel April 17, 1882 died December 30, 1952. The third-born, Sophie Eugenia Koenig Jacob September 30, 1883 died October 25, 1973. The fourth-born, Emelie Louise Koenig Arnold March 12, 1885 died November 4, 1964. The fifth-born, Alfred Anton Koenig December 3, 1886 died December 29, 1966. The sixth-born, Alma Clara Koenig Rabel September 26, 1888 died June 26, 1955. The seventh-born, Henry Joseph Koenig July 11, 1890 died May 11, 1955. The eighth-born, Charles Louis Koenig July 14, 1892 died December 9, 1980. The ninth-born, Lilly Cecelia Koenig Gohmert September 2, 1894 died August 22, 1976. The tenth-born, Walter Charles Koenig December 5, 1896 died April 13, 1979. The eleventh-born, Bertha Elenora Koenig Hiller September 24, 1898 died April 17, 1981. The twelfth-born Frank Wilhelm Koenig December 14, 1900 died December 11, 1948.

Louis engaged in farming and livestock raising and was one of the first in the region to grow large crops of sugar cane. He had a molasses press and cooked many gallons for home use and to sell. He was also a pioneer in raising cabbage which was shipped out by railcar loads. In addition, he was a pioneer member and builder of St. Michael's Catholic in Cuero. To accommodate his twelve children, he deeded one acre of his "front pasture" for the Green DeWitt School which was used until the 1950's. His home was a gathering place in the community and one of the most common social activities was the "Sunday dinner' with rich and varied foods - meats, fresh vegetables, noodles, homemade breads, cakes, and pies, and mounds and mounds of whipped-cream desserts. Since these Sunday dinners always included several generations, the strict custom dictated that the older generation ate first; aunts and uncles ate second; older cousins ate third; and finally the famished children ate! As

KOENIG, LOUIS JOHN

Louis John Koenig, son of Walter Charles Koenig and Mary (Shimer) Koenig, was born at his maternal grandmother's home in Meyersville on October 6, 1924. (Grandmother was Johanna Schaeffer Shimer, wife of the first doctor in Meyersville, Dr. William Shimer.)

Louis received his elementary education at Green DeWitt School which he attended for seven years without missing one day. In fact the first time he was absent from school was in the ninth grade when his paternal grandfather, Louis Koenig, died. Also interesting was the fact that he had the same teacher for those seven years, Mrs. Opal Dromgoole.

After graduating in 1942 from Cuero High School, Louis served in the Navy from July, 1943 to April, 1946. On the Aircraft Carrier Uss Hornet he saw action in battles at Saipan, Iwo Jima, the Philippines, and off the coast of Japan.

When the war was over and he was discharged, Louis entered Texas A and I College in Kingsville. There he met his future wife, Beryl Christine Collin from Rockport, Texas. Louis graduated from A and I in May, 1949 with a BS degree in Agriculture and he and Beryl were married May 29, 1949.

Louis was employed by Quaker Oats and located in Austin, Tx. until May, 1950. At that time Louis left Austin to locate in Corpus Christi, Tx. where he taught sixth grade and coached at Sam Houston Elementary School while earning his Certificate in Education. During the 5 years they were in Corpus Christi four children were born: Larry Edward Koenig Sept 15, 1950; Cynthia Gail Koenig (Kastick) Dec. 11, 1951; Marilyn Patricia Koenig (Bourque) Oct. 9, 1953; Steven Louis Koenig April 16, 1955.

In July, 1955 Louis moved his family to Pasadena so he could earn his Masters Degree in Education Administration at the University of Houston. At the same time he taught at South Shaver Elementary School in Pasadena. He received his Masters Degree in 1957. He taught in South Shaver School for ten years (1955-1965) and was Principal at Gardens Elementary, Pasadena for 21 years (1965-1986). He retired in June 1986.

In Pasadena, Texas four more children were born to the family: James Fredrick Koenig March 28, 1957; Frances Joanne Koenig (Rowan) Jan. 25, 1962; David Paul Koenig Aug. 5, 1963; Jennifer Janice Koenig Jan. 13, 1970 The seven oldest have all graduated from college.

Larry lives in Austin, Tx. He received a Bachelors Degree in Environmental Management from Stephen F. Austin in Nacogdoches and earned a Masters Degree in Engineering from the University of Texas. Cynthia graduated from the University of Houston with an Education Degree and teaches in the Seguin, Tx. High School. Marilyn received her Degree in Biology from Sam Houston University and teaches Junior High students in Pasadena. Steven earned a DVM Degree from Texas A&M and is a practicing Veterinarian in Houston. James received a degree in Urban Forestry from A&M and works in San Antonio. Frances is a Kindergarten teacher in the Pasadena District having received her degree at Sam Houston University. David graduated from Southwest Texas State in San Marcos with a Business Degree, then he graduated from Officers Training in Pensacola, Florida and received his wings as a Navy Pilot in Pensacola. He is currently stationed in San Diego, Ca.

Jennifer is attending Stephen F. Austin in Nacogdoches.

Walter Koenig home

Walter Charles Koenig was born December 5, 1896 to Louis Koenig and Mary Agatha Golly Koenig of the Green DeWitt Community. Both parents are buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero. After attending grade school in Green DeWitt, Walter worked on the farm with his father until his marriage to Mary Katherine Shimer of Meyersville on November 24, 1920. Mary was the daughter of Dr. William H. Shimer and Johanna (Jennie) Schaefer Shimer, who are both buried in St. John's Lutheran Cemetery in Meyersville.

Walter and Mary moved into their almost completed home built on the original 142 acres that Walter bought from Louis Koenig Through later additions from Boehl, Semmler, and Charles Koenig families, this was increased to 375 acres.

The first hard years saw the clearing of many acres of timber and selling it for firewood, the breaking of fields, and planting of corn, cotton, hegari, and hay. In the early 1920's Walter Koenig was the first farmer in DeWitt County to terrace his fields and to contour furrow. He was so successful that the County Agent used his farm for demonstration purposes. With the purchase of a 32 volt Delco power generator and a DeLaval milking ma-

Mary began a new career in hatching poultry — both turkeys and chickens. They normally raised about 250-450 turkeys to maturity each year. Mary was a poultry demonstrator for Texas A&M for five years. In 1939 Walter and Mary's turkey tom entry in the Turkey Trot poultry show won Grand Champion. That turkey was taken by the well known Cuero "hitch-hiker", Keys Carson, to Washington, D.C. and presented to President Franklin D. Roosevelt for his Thanksgiving dinner.

Mary continued to upgrade and expand in the White Leghorn poultry field with pedigreed high-egg production male stock imported from California and by keeping meticulous egg production records on her own flocks. The quality of her birds became so well known that for many seasons she was hatching and selling 10,000 baby chicks per month from her little hatchery to customers from all over south Texas.

There were four children born to Walter and Mary. William Louis was born September 16, 1923, but died on the day of his birth and is buried in Hillside Cemetery on the Louis Koenig plot. Louis John was born October 6, 1924, Katherine Marie (Goebel) was born August 10, 1929, and Billie Waldyn (Southern) was born November 27, 1937.

Walter was a lifetime member of St. Michael's Catholic Church and the Knights of Columbus. He died April 13, 1979 and is buried in Memory Gardens Cemetery, Cuero.

Mary Koenig is a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church. She recently celebrated her 91st birthday, and although physically frail, she enjoys excellent mental faculties. She still keeps up an active interest in world events and in her 22 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

KOKERNOT, FREDERICK (FRED) DAVID AND ROSEMARY (BREEDEN)

F532

Frederick David (Fred) Kokernot was born August 25, 1917 in Gonzales at the home of his parents Frederick D. Kokernot Sr. (b. 1-12-1882 d. 2-26-1976 Gonzales) and Ruth (Spooner) Kokernot (b. 3-31-1893 d. 9-22-1980 Gonzales). He was the second of three children and the only son. Fred's mother was the daughter of Judge Thomas Harrison Spooner (b. 8-18-1849 Mississippi d. 10-3-1921 Gonzales) and Mollie Elizabeth Allen.

The Kokernot family was one of the early families in Texas. Fred's great-grandfather

David L. Kokernot came to Texas in 1825 plying his shipping trade along the Gulf Coast. David L. Kokernot (b. 12-28-1805 Holland d. 12-10-1892 Kokernot, Gonzales Co.) arrived in New Orleans with his father in 1815. His interest in the shipping trade and a ship wreck eventually led him to Anahuac, Texas. It was in Anahuac that he first met Sam Houston. Later D.L. Kokernot brought his wife Caroline Josephine Dittmar (b. 1815 Hesse Cassel, Germany d. 1898 Kokernot, Gonzales, Co.) and infant daughter Elizabeth to live here in Texas. He was a farmer and traded along the coast using his small boats. He participated in the Anahuac Disturbance which was the first skirmish leading to the Texas Revolution. Several Texans were rescued among them was William B. Travis. It was here on Galveston Bay that David L. Kokernot helped to form the first Texas Navy with three tiny five ton schooners the Stephen F. Austin, the Water Witch, and the Red Rover of which he was captain. Mr. Kokernot came to Gonzales the first time in October of 1835. He joined in the Siege of Bexar, the Battle of Concepcion and the Grass Fight. On November 29, 1835 he was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Texas Revolutionary Army. In April 1836, he was sent by his good friend General Sam Houston to warn President Burnet of the approaching Mexican troops and to evacuate the women and children. He possibly reached the Battle of San Jacinto after the victory.

D.L. Kokernot moved his family to Gonzales County in 1853 with their eldest son L.M. Kokernot (b. 6-6-1836 New Orleans d. 6-4-1914 Kokernot, Gonzales Co.). L.M. Kokernot served with honor in Terry's Texas Rangers during the War Between the States. Following the war, L.M. Kokernot gathered cattle and herded them up the trail to Kansas. It was during this time that L.M. Kokernot put together the LK Ranch in Kansas. By 1880 this enterprise had grown into the vast 101 Ranch in Oklahoma. He enlarged the acreage at the Big Hill Ranch in Gonzales County to be one of the largest in the area. L.M. Kokernot and his brother John Kokernot put together the 06 Ranch in Jeff Davis, Pecos and Brewster Counties. In 1897 L.M. withdrew from the 06 Ranch in favor of his eldest son.

L.M. Kokernot's first wife, whom he married in 1866, was Sarah E. Littlefield. They had five children. Sarah Kokernot died in 1874 at the birth of the fifth child. In 1876 L.M. Kokernot married Hulda Jane Carnes, daughter of William J. and Jemima Cole Carnes. They had three children: Leonara, who married Coke Emory Dilworth; Alma, who married Robert L.

Brothers; and Frederick David, who married Ruth Spooner. The interest in ranching has carried on in the Kokernot family. Fred Kokernot, Sr. (b. 1-12-1882 d. 2-26-1976) was engaged in ranching until his death. Fred and his father Fred Kokernot, Sr. had a working partnership in Gonzales County.

Fred Kokernot and Rosemary Breeden were married April 1, 1938 in Round Rock, Texas. Buelah Margaret (Bennet) McDougal and Emalee (Wells) Hartman were their attendants. Rosemary Kibbe Breeden was born August 1, 1919 at the home of her parents Mabel Claire (Hall) (b. 1895 d. 1974) and Charles Goodwin Breeden (b. 1860 d. 1925). Dr. John Burns, a close friend of Mr. Breeden and Miss Minnie Ferguson, the nurse of great renown, were in attendance. Rosemary was named for her two grandmothers Rose (King) Hall and Mary (Kibbe) Breeden. An older sister Mabel Claire (b. 11-22-1916 d. 2-18-1983) was on hand for the event.

Rosemary's early years were uneventful. She was baptized at Grace Episcopal Church, Cuero, on November 4, 1919 by the Rev. A.J. Gaynor Banks. Her sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kibbe Breeden and Mrs. Ralph Wofford. Since there were no kindergartens in Cuero, Rosemary went to the Catholic School along with Jimmy (Dr. James) Pridgen and David Benjamin, her early childhood friends. In Vacation Bible School she met Buelah Margaret Bennet who has remained a lifelong dear friend. In the fall of 1925 Rosemary started to school at the old John C. French Elementary; Miss Dora Leonard was her teacher. It was the same fall that her father, Charles Goodwin Breeden, developed the "grippe" and on November the 22, 1925, he was taken to the Burns Hospital with pneumonia. Great effort by many was made to save his life. On Wednesday December 9th one of the first air planes to land in DeWitt County brought a specialist from San Antonio, Dr. Rice. (The trip had taken fifty five minutes.) Despite all efforts Charles Breeden died December 30, 1925. This was a very sad time. In January of 1926 the family of three moved into the house at 310 Terrell that C.G. Breeden had bought and remodeled for his wife

Some years later Rosemary's mother, Mabel Breeden, married Edward Mugge in San Antonio at St. Mark's Church. The Right Reverend Everett H. Jones officiated. Rosemary and her sister Mabel Claire were their mother's attendants.

The summers were filled with swimming at Mr. Friedrichs pool, riding her mother's gaited horses and sunrise breakfasts with friends. Rosemary and her sister Mabel Claire were sent to Camp Kiva on Medina Lake and Camp Waldemar in Hunt, Texas. Later they spent a summer at Westmoorland in San Antonio. In 1934 in her junior year, Rosemary went to Our Lady of the Lake Academy in San Antonio. She roomed with Emalee (Wells) Hartman who was to remain one of her dearest friends. Rosemary graduated from high school at Incarnate Word Academy in 1936. She spent her freshman year in college there before going to the University of Texas at Austin. In 1937. Rosemary was invited by the San Antonio Order of the Alamo to be her sister Mabel Claire's Lady-in-Waiting in the Fiesta Court of Imperial Russia. Her escort was her future husband Frederick David Kokernot, Jr. They married in April of 1938. Later Rosemary went back to the University of Texas; she holds both a Bachelors and Masters degree.

After their marriage the Kokernots lived on the Kokernot Ranch in Gonzales County during this time their two daughters were born. Martha Gay was born in Cuero on November 2, 1941 and Mabel Joy in Gonzales on March 1, 1943. Fred engaged in ranching and stock farming. When World War II came Fred served in the United States Air Force.

Mrs. Kokernot has taught in the Cuero Public School System, Victoria Junior College and the Victoria and Gonzales Public School Systems. Both Gay and Joy Kokernot graduated from Victoria High School and went to the University of Texas in Austin. Both pledged Kappa Alpha Theta social sorority. Gay has a Bachelors degree from the University of Texas, Joy has a Bachelors and Masters degree from the University of Houston in Houston.

Martha Kay Kokernot married Shannon Harrison Ratliff I (b. 9-18-38) on June 6, 1964 at Grace Episcopal Church in Cuero, the Rt. Rev. Everett H. Jones officiated. Shannon is the son of John Thomas Ratliff and Bess Roak Ratliff. Following their marriage, Gay and Shannon moved to Washington DC where he was the clerk for Justice Tom Clark, a Justice on the Supreme Court of the United States. The next year they returned to Texas and Shannon became a partner in the law firm of McGinnis, Lockridge, and Kilgore in Austin. Shannon Ratliff I is a member of Board of Regents for the University of Texas. The Ratliffs have three children: Shannon Harrison II (b. 12-26-67), Rosemary Kokernot Ratliff (b. 9-15-71), and Claire Elizabeth Kokernot Ratliff (b. 10-2-72). Each of the Ratliffs graduated from their school in 1990; Shannon graduated from Haverford College, Haverford, Penn., Rosemary from St. Stephens High School, Austin and Claire from Hyde Park High School, Austin. Gay Ratliff has been active in the Theta Alumni, the Junior League of Austin, the Austin Lyric Opera and the Austin Lyric Opera Antique Show. Gay studied in Paris in 1979 at the Museum of Decorative Arts under Parsons School of Design. She has her own successful decorating studio "Gay Ratliff Interiors."

Joy worked for Delta Air Lines for eighteen years before going to Lexington, Kentucky as a psychologist with a firm counseling youth. She still lives in Lexington and is a realtor. Her daughter Sarah Katherine Elizabeth was born May 3, 1982. Joy and Sarah are very active members of their church. Sarah is a student at the Montesori School; Joy serves as president of the school board.

The Kokernots live in Cuero in the restored home of Rosemary's parents — The Heaton-Breeden House. Fred Kokernot has farming interest in San Patricio County and is interested in the breeding of quarter horses. Rosemary is interested in the continuance of the Main Street Project and the restoration of the nineteenth century buildings in Cuero, and Grace Episcopal Church. She has continued as a sustaining member of the Victoria Junior League, a member of the DeWitt County Historical Commission, Daughters of the Republic of Texas and the Texas Historical Foundation.

Everest Kolodziejczyk in his Nordheim barber shop. Antique back-bar is as old as Nordheim. Customer is Vernon Osterloh.

Lula B. (Kasten) Kolodziejczyk during the 1950's while teaching at Nordheim school. She was called "Mrs. K" by her students.

Everest Kolodziejczyk became a resident of Nordheim in DeWitt County when he purchased and began operating the Nordheim Barber Shop in January 1926. Upon his death in 1983 he had operated the barber shop for 57 years and his had been the oldest continuous business for quite some time. Lula B. Kasten Kolodziejczyk moved to Nordheim with her parents when she was seven years old. Her ancestry is told in the August Kasten and Adam Kasten Family Histories elsewhere in this book.

Venice (Kolodziejczyk) Scheurich, Hal Scheurich and Manfred Scheurich

His ancestry dates back to that group of about 150 Polish farmers from the region of Upper Silesia in Poland, who established the first Polish settlement in America at Panna Maria, Texas in Karnes County. Among these farmers was Simon (Szymon) Kolodziejczyk and a son who disembarked from the sailing ship, Weser, at the old wooden Merchant's Wharf at the port of Galveston on December 3. 1854. They went by ship to Indianola and then made their way up to Karnes County. They arrived there on December 24, 1854 and their settlement came to be known as Panna Maria. Simon Kolodziejczyk was born in Poland in 1794, the son of John and Martina Kolodziejczyk. In Panna Maria he parried Maria Bryczk Prukop on January 23, 1859. Rafael Kolodziejczyk was born to this union on October 22, 1859, the oldest of five children. During the later 1860's the family moved to Meyersville, Texas where Simon died in 1889. Rafael grew to manhood in the Meyersville Area. He worked as a rider on the Chisholm Trail cattle drives to Kansas which originated in the Victoria-Cuero area. He also made his living as a teamster, hauling freight from Indianola to Cuero, Helena, Panna Moria and San Antonio. Rafael Kolodziejczyk married Magdalena (Maggie) Olejnick of Meyersville in 1887. She was born July 14, 1862 to Tom and Margaret Olejnik of Meyersville and was baptized and confirmed in the Catholic faith there. The couple bought a farm at Dobskyville in Goliad County and there were born six sons and one daughter. The sons were Peter, Gilbert, Tom, Conrad, Everest and Chris and the daughter was named Mary. In 1909 the family moved to a farm at Cabeza, a thriving town north of Nordheim. Rafael Kolodziejczyk died at Cabeza on March 13, 1936 and his wife died on May 4, 1939 at home in Cabeza.

Everest Kolodziejczyk was born in Goliad County October 26, 1900 and was baptized and confirmed in the Catholic faith. He attended the "Sister School" in Yorktown until the family moved to Cabeza where he continued his schooling. He grew to manhood on the farm and spoke often of the boys' good times hunting and riding horses. The horses were well trained for, after taking a wagon load of cotton to the gin at Nordheim, Everest would tie the reins to the wagon, lie down to sleep and let the horses take the wagon home. But this young man chose not to be kept down on the farm. Neither did he decide to become a priest to the disappointment of his mother who had hoped to dedicate one of her sons to the church.

During the 1920's Everest Kolodziejczyk decided to become a barber. He attended San Antonio Barber College and in January, 1926 he purchased the Nordheim Barber Shop. It might be interesting to note that this was the time of 25 cent haircuts and 10 cent shaves and neck clips. A sign on the street read Ladies Hair Bobbed Here. In a back room of the shop was a bath tub with hot and cold water where the young men, especially from the country, could bathe after work on Saturday nights before going to a dance or on a date. Everest Kolodziejczyk left the farm for good and moved into some upstairs office rooms at Nordheim with two other young men from the Country. For entertainment the "boys" played pranks on one another and on other citizens of the town, but these pranks were not fit to perpetuate in writing.

On May 16, 1932 Everest Kolodziejczyk was married to Viola Grametbauer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Grametbauer of Runge. She graduated from Runge High School in 1925, attended San Marcos State Teachers College and taught in the Cabeza school for seven years. On September 4, 1937 their only child, Venice Ann, was born. Viola was active in civic affairs, being a member of the Home and School Club, Altar Society and the Garden Club. After a lengthy illness she died on July 5, 1944 and was buried in the Runge Catholic Cemetery.

On October 16, 1948 Everest Kolodziejczyk and Lula Belle Kasten were united in marriage at the Runge Catholic Rectory. She was born on December 10, 1912 in Karness County to Adam and Lydia Kasten and moved with them to Nordheim in 1921. Lula Belle was baptized in the Lutheran Church by Rev. J.K. Poch and confirmed by Rev. Kluge in Nordheim. She received her education in the Nordheim Public School plus two years in the Yorktown High School, Graduating in 1930. The freshman year of her college education was spent at Texas Lutheran College while her B.S. was earned at The University of Texas at Austin. A Masters Degree was received at San Marcos State University in 1957.

Lula B. Kolodziejczyk began her teaching career in the Porter School in Karnes County, teaching there for six years, then at Cabeza School for six years and finally at the Nordheim Public School for 33 years. She retired in 1976 after a long career of 45 years in the teaching profession. Delta Kappa Gamma, an honorary teachers society, inducted her as a member in 1963. The writer feels a major accomplishment was probably in girls physical education, where she demanded equality with the boys program and achieved it even though sports and physical education for girls were not well accepted. Lula B. Kolodziejczyk fielded many winning teams in volleyball, basketball and softball during her tenure at Cabeza and

The daughter, Venice Ann Kolodziejczyk, was very active in the above mentioned sports while in elementary and high school. Her goal was always excellence which she achieved in academics as well as sports. She has earned a

B.S. and Masters Degree in mathematics and is presently a Professor of Mathematics at Del Mar College in Corpus Christi. On November 24, 1955 Venice Ann Kolodziejczyk and Manfred Scheurich of Yorktown exchanged marriage vows and on November 21, 1966 a son, Hal Scheurich, was born. They reside in Corpus Christi and Manfred Scheurich is employed as an Internal Auditor with CP&L. Hal is the only grandson of everest and Lula B. Kolodziejczyk and is working as a news photographer with WKRG-5 in Mobile, Alabama.

Everest and Lula B. were both involved in numerous community activities. He was very active in the Volunteer Fire Department, St. Ann's Catholic Church and he and Editor Jim Blanton were the first male members of the Home and School Club. Everest's special interest was the town baseball team and in 1929 he was elected manager of the Nordheim Tigers baseball team. Lula B., or Mrs. "K" as she is called ini the community, has been active in the DeWitt County Historical Commission and was instrumental in getting the community to finance and sponsor historical markers on Pilot Knob and for the Pavillion in Jubilee Park. She served as chairman of the local Texas Sesquicentennial Committee and guided the Nordheim area citizens through their various year-long unique and interesting activities. One group, The Friends of Nordheim Community, has emerged as a continuing organization, working for the improvement of the town and sponsoring interesting events during the year. The Nordheim Museum, dedicated in 1986, is one of Mrs. K's main interests.

Everest Kolodziejczyk died on April 23, 1983 at the age of 83 and his wife, Lula Belle, resides in Nordheim at present.

KOLODZIEJCZYK, FRANK SIMON AND MARIA WARZECHA

F534

Frank Simon Kolodziejczyk was born on November 19, 1860, in Panna Maria, Texas, the son of Simon Kolodziejczyk and Maria Bryczk Prukop Kolodziejczyk. This writer's early history of Simon Kilodziejczyk and Maria Bryczk Prukop is sketchy, but will be recorded here for the sake of their future progeny. Simon Kolodziejczyk (1794 to 1889), son of John and Martina Kolodziejczyk, served in the military under Napoleon Bonaparte. In Upper Silesia, Poland, he married Catherine Nowak and they had children: Joe (1843), Herbert (1845), and Andrew (1854) Kolodziejczyk. The family immigrated to America about 1855. On August 30, 1856, Simon and Catherine had a daughter Maria Kolodziejczyk, in Panna Maria, Texas. Shortly after, Simon's wife, Catherine Nowak, died. Maria Bryczk Prukop, her husband, Mr. Prukop, and their son, John Prukop (1853), also immigrated to America in 1855, but Maria's husband died on the ship and was buried at sea. In Panna Maria, Maria gave birth to his son, Adam Prukop, in 1856. The widower, Simon Kolodziejczyk, and the widow, Maria Bryczk Prukop, were married on January 23, 1859, in Panna Maria. Simon adopted Maria's two sons, John and Adam Prukop, and Maria adopted Simon's children, Joe, Herbert, Andrew, and Maria Kolodziejczyk. Then together, Simon and Maria Kolodziejczyk had six children: Raphael (October 22, 1859), Frank Simon (November 19, 1860), Martha (1861), Frances (October 5, 1862), Mary (1866), and Pauline Kolodziejczyk. It is from this family of twelve children that Frank Simon Kolodziejczyk emerged. The family lived in Panna Maria, Texas, for several years after 1860, then settled in Meyersville, Texas, before 1880.

Maria (Mary) Warzecha was born on July 18, 1862, in Panna Maria, Texas, the fifth child of Jan Warzecha and Malgorzata Kuczka Warzecha. Her parents immigrated by ship from Upper Silesia, Poland, to Panna Maria, Texas, in October to December, 1855, with two sons, Josef, age 5, and Julius, age 2 years. The trip was long and harsh, and little brother, Julius, died at sea. The family first lived in Panna Maria, Texas, where Konstantina, August, and Maria Warzecha were born. Maria's father served in the Civil War as a Confederate soldier. Then the family settled in Yorktown, Texas, where brother, Stanick Warzecha, was born.

Frank Simon Kolodziejczyk and Mary Warzecha were married on January 9, 1883, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Yorktown, Texas. Rev. Joseph Fabian presided at their wedding.

Frank and Mary Kolodziejczyk made their home in Yorktown, where they had eleven children: Gertrude (November 9, 1883), Dennis (December 8, 1885), Cecelia (November 19, 1887), Frank Jr. (December 3, 1889), Clara (August 9, 1892), Bena (October 27, 1893), Alois (June 1, 1896), Josephine (September 22, 1898), twins Joseph and Mary (May 31, 1901), and Mathilda (January 22, 1905). Clara died as an infant six days old.

Gertrude Kolodziejczyk married Peter Vincent Wollny on October 29, 1912, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Yorktown, where they settled and had six children: Josie (Wunderlich), Helen (Danysh), Bertha (Rabenaldt), Mary (Metting), Thomas Wollny, and Louise (Rabenaldt).

Dennis Stanley Kolodziejczyk married Agatha Anna Respondek on November 10, 1913, at St. Mary's Catholic Church in Yorktown. They had seven children: Joseph, Valeria (Verkamp), Engleberth, Raymond, Emrick (Kolly), Edward, and Ernest Kolodziejczyk. In December, 1922, Dennis and Aggie moved to Wilson, Texas, where they bought a farm and raised their children.

Bena Ann Kolodziejczyk married Theodore Joseph Dlugosch on January 30, 1917, at Holy Cross Catholic Church in Yorktown. They bought a farm near Dobskyville in 1928, where they raised three children: James Dlugosch, Gladys (Morris), and Mary Ann (Dickinson).

Alois Paul Kolodziejczyk married Mathilda Julia Sprenzel on November 11, 1924, at Holy Trinity Catholic Church in Falls City, Texas. They lived on a farm in Yorktown, and had seven children: Victor, Alvin, Alta (Woytasczyk), Alois Jr., Evelyn (Feller), Mary (Kendall), and Lee Gus Kolodziejczyk.

Mary Kolodziejczyk married John Nick Kolodziejczyk on September 19, 1925, at St. Peter and Paul Catholic Church in Meyersville, Texas. They settled on a farm in Yorktown, and had two children: Daniel Kolodziejczyk and Jovce (Rau).

Mathilda (Tillie) Kolodziejczyk married Albert Stanush on November 22, 1932, at Holy Cross Church in Yorktown. They lived in Yorktown and St. Hedwig, then San Antonio since 1941. They had five children: Tillie (Antes), Albert Jr., Frank, John, and Albert Stanush.

Cecelia T. Kolodziejczyk, Frank Simon Kolodziejczyk Jr., Joseph A. Kolodziejczyk, and Joseph V. Kolodziejczyk all remained single. They all lived in Yorktown, Texas.

Mary Warzecha Kolodziejczyk died on February 4, 1933, at age 70 years. Frank Simon Kolodziejczyk died on January 10, 1944, at age 83 years. They are buried at Holy Cross Catholic Cemetery in Yorktown, Texas.

KOOPMANN, ANTON F535

Karl Anton Koopmann on one of his trips back to Abbehausen, Oldenberg, Germany in June of 1900

Karl Anton Koopmann, second of six children born to Heinrich Koopmann and his wife Elise Wiegmann Koopmann, was born in Abbehausen, Oldenburg, Germany on Nov 29, 1867. He was baptized in the Lutheran faith on Jan. 26, 1868 in Seefeld, Germany. He was also confirmed in the Lutheran faith on Apr 2, 1882 in Germany. He came to America on May 6, 1882 with his parents, brothers and sisters, landing in Galveston. The family first settled in Fayette Co. near Flatonia. Later he lived on a farm near Witting, Lavaca Co., Texas. On Nov. 1, 1890 he bought 150 acres out of Section #21, Indianola RR Co. Survey, from V. and Sophia D. Weldon. This tract joined his brother Heinrich's farm. Being open prairie, fences had to be built, a water well had to be drilled, later a two-room house and a large barn was erected. After these improvements were in place, the Weise family lived on the farm. In 1893 Anton came from Lavaca Co. to make his home in Gruenau. As more people moved into the area Sunday afternoon shooting matches and other social activities were held on a hay meadow at the entrance of his farm. It was here that the Gruenau Turn & Schuetzen Verein was organized on May 1, 1898. Being an organizer and a conservationist, Uncle Anton was instrumental in organizing the Hermann Sons Lodges, farm organizations, Yorktown Union Gin Co, Yorktown Warehouse Co. First State Bank of Yorktown, of which he was a long time Director and The DeWitt County Land & Cattle Co. He was among the first in the area to put in a terracing system, using his own expertise with the transet-level and mule drawn grader. He also loved to grow trees, both shade and fruit, and was known to order nursery stock from all parts of the United States. He made trips back to his native Germany on two occasions, supposedly to visit his Aunt Graetchen, although it is believed by many, it was really to see a childhood sweetheart. He also attended the World's Fair in St. Louis, Mo.

Throughout his long career, he contributed generously to many other worthwhile causes in the community and through thrift, industry and wise judgment he amassed extensive property in both DeWitt Co. and Jim Wells Co. and other investments. Uncle Anton never married and lived alone since the death of his parents. On Thursday, December 18, 1941, around 1:30 P.M., at the age of 74 years, he was found on the floor beside his chair in the kitchen of his home by his farm tennant, the victim of a heart ailment with which he had been afflicted for several years. He is buried beside his parents in Westside Cemetery in Yorktown.

Henry Koopmann and Minna (Stindt) Koopmann 1894

Heinrich Anton Koopmann, oldest of six children born to Heinrich Koopmann and his wife Elise Wiegmann Koopmann was born in Abbehausen, Oldenburg, Germany on Aug. 26, 1865. He came to America May 6, 1882 with his parents and family landing in Galveston. The family first settled in Fayette Co. near Flatonia. Later he lived on a farm near Witting in Lavaca Co. On Nov. 1, 1890 he bought 150 acres (21.71 ac of Sec. #19 and 128.79 ac of Sec #21, Indianola RR Survey) for $1837.50 from V. and Sophia D. Weldon of DeWitt Co. In 1893 he and his brother Anton moved to their farms on the Gruenau prairie. On Jan. 2, 1894 he married Minna Elise Antonie Stindt, born Mar. 19, 1873 in Oldenburg, Ger., at Zion Lutheran Church, Charlottenburg (Lavaca Co) Texas with A. Koopmann, E. Stindt, H. Stindt and A. Schuemacher as witnesses. On Nov 13, 1899 he and Minna sold their farm to his brother Anton for $3000. They then bought a farm near Lawton, Okla. where he lived for approximately 13 years. While living in Oklahoma, Heinrich and Minna were divorced. They had no children. Minna later married again She and her second husband reared a family near Seguin, Guadalupe Co, Texas. Heinrich moved back to Texas, living a brief time at Llano and Shiner, eventually returning to Yorktown in 1916. For a time he lived at the Two Sisters Hotel. When he became destitute, his brothers Anton and Willie built a small house for him the backyard of the old homestead in Gruenau where Willie and his wife Anna cared for him until his death, at the age of 67 years, on Friday, November 25, 1932. He is buried in Westside Cemetery in Yorktown beside his parents.

KOOPMANN, HEINRICH, SR. FAMILY

Heinrich Koopmann and Ahlke Margarita (Gron) Koopmann

Eilert Heinrich Christopher Koopmann, youngest of three children born to Heinrich Koopmann and his wife Ahlke Margaritha Gron Koopmann, was born in Seefeld, Oldenburg, Germany on May 28, 1837. His parents were married on May 27, 1830 in Augusthausen (Later called Sweilburg) Oldenburg, Germany. They had two other children, Margaretha Helena Christina, born Oct 2, 1833 and another child born Jan. 16, 1936 and died Feb 3, 1836. Margaretha whom they called Graetchen, never married and remained in Germany all her life. Eilert Heinrich's grandparents were Heinrich Koopmann and Meta Hulstede Koopmann who lived in Reitlande (the village later named Seefeld) Oldenburg, Germany. They had three other children beside his father, Ahlke Margaretha Koopmann born Aug 1801, Johnn Koopmann born Jun 10, 1805. and another child born Sept 16, 1810 who died as an infant. His great-grandfather was also named Heinrich Koopmann. Eilert Heinrich feld on Jun 17, 1837. His sponsors were Eilert Bremer, John Christopher Mohrfeld, and Anna Elizabeth Gallenstede. He married Agatha Elise Wiegmann in Oldenburg, Germany. She was born Jan 27, 1839. Six children were born to them, Heinrich Anton on Aug 26, 1865, Karl Anton on Nov 29, 1867 and Elise on July 28, 1871 while they were living at Abbehausen, Oldenburg, Ger. and Bertha Johanna Augusta on Jun 18, 1874, Johnn Heinrich on Feb 15, 1876 and William Heinrich on Jun 17, 1880 while living at Esensham, Oldenburg, Germany. On May 6, 1882 the family came to America landing at Galveston. The family first settled in Fayette County. On Jun 2, 1883, Heinrich and Elise bought 100 acres of land in the Wiley A. Abercrombie Survey about 12 miles west of Halletsville near Witting, Lavaca Co. Texas from Charles F. Woods for $333.33 and e down and six annual payments of $111.11 and ¢ at 10% interest. This farm was adjacent to the 115 acres belonging to D.A. Stindt. On Jun 27, 1883, they bought another 71/2 acres from C.F. Wood for $112.50. While living there the younger children attended Oak Grove School. Elise was confirmed on Apr 3, 1887 at Baursville. Johanna was confirmed at Immanuel Lutheran Church at Baursville on Mar 25, 1888 and Willie, the youngest, was confirmed on Mar 18, 1894 at Zion Lutheran Church at Charlottesburg. Heinrich Jr. and Anton moved to their farms in DeWitt County in 1893. Elise, after her marriage to Herman Wulf Sr on Dec 12, 1893, moved to the Garfield Community in west DeWitt County. Johanna married Heinrich Schonvogel of Lavaca Co. Some years later, she, her husband and children, Herman, Erna and Ida, moved to a farm near Orange Grove, Texas. On Nov 21, 1896 Heinrich and Elise purchased 250 acres out of the Northwest corner of Section 22, Ind RR Co Survey across the road from their sons farms in the Gruenau Community from Mrs. Jennie W. Stayton, a widow, for $5625.00. They sold the farm in Lavaca Co. and with their two youngest sons John and Willie moved to Gruenau in DeWitt Co. On Nov 29, 1898 they bought 111.7 acres (Section 36, Ind RR Co Surv.) from Henry and Augusta Remmers for $1.00, the amount of the revenue stamp. This evidently was a foreclosure. After the youngest son Willie married Anna Straube on Dec 1, 1904, Heinrich and Elise moved in with their older son Anton. Willie took charge of the homestead. Heinrich suffered a stroke while shucking corn for the horses and mules in the barn and on Nov 25, 1911 passed away. Elise stayed living with her son Anton until she suffered a stroke some years later. Since she was paralyzed and needed constant care, her sons, Anton, John and Willie and her grandson Otto put her on the back of a "spring wagon" covered her with blankets, since it was in the winter and drove her across the road to the old homestead. where her daughter-in-law Anne cared for her until her death on Jan 7, 1915. Heinrich and Elise are buried on Westside Cemetery in Yorktown. Throughout their lives, the Koopmann family spoke almost exclusively their native Oldenburg "Platte deutsch".

Hilmer, E. Koopman

Hilmer Elwood Koopmann is the sixth of seven children born to Wilhelm Otto Koopmann and his wife Lillie Anna Hengst Koopmann. I was born on Jul. 6, 1937, in the Gruenau Community, DeWitt County, Texas, while my family was living on the Willie Koopmann farm. I can vividly remember the night of the 1942 Hurricane when I was 5 years old. Hail broke the East windows of our house and Mama and Papa and my older brothers nailed quilts over the windows to keep out the wind and rain. During the height of the storm, the canned goods in the pantry started falling off the shelves, so they had to move everything into the kitchen. I can also remember when we first got electricity, how fascinated we were about the bright light after being used to kerosene lamps for light at night. After we moved to the place north of the Gruenau Hall, I started the first grade at Weldon School in the fall of 1945. This was a two room schoolhouse, with only one teacher. At midterm a second teacher was hired. Since it was 3 miles to school, my two sisters and I rode in a horse drawn buggy. Later we walked most of the time. I attended Yorktown Elementary School for the 7th and 8th grades, as this was when the country schools were being annexed to Yorktown Ind. School District. I attended Yorktown High School graduating in May of 1955. After completing high school, I started farming with my father until Aug. 15, 1961 when I was drafted into the U.S. Army under the Selective Service Administration program which was still in effect at that time. I was stationed first at Fort Jackson South Carolina for 8 weeks of basic training and the rest of my tour was at Fort Benning, Georgia. Highlights of this period were the Berlin Crisis; the Cuban conflict; the Civil Rights demonstrations in Mississippi and Alabama; and the beginning of the Vietnam action. I was released from active duty on Aug. 16, 1963 and returned to the farm in the Gruenau Community. I spent four more year in the Army Reserve getting my discharge with the rank of Sgt E-5.

As our father's health steadily deteriorated over the years my younger brother and I took over the family operation which is located mostly on the land that our ancestors settled on in the 1890's. I served three, three year terms as committeeman on the DeWitt County ASCS Committee. I am also a member of the Gruenau Herman Sons Lodge #117, the Gruenau Turn & Schuetzen Verein, DeWitt County Farm Bureau, Yorktown American Legion Post #272 and a cooperator with the DeWitt County Soil and Water Conservation District. My hobbies include family history, dancing, travel and most social activities.

John Heinrich Koopmann, fifth of six children born to Heinrich Koopmann and his wife Elise Wiegmann Koopmann was born in Esensham, Oldenburg, Germany on Feb 15, 1876. He was baptized in the Lutheran faith at Seefeld, Germany. He came to America on May 6, 1882, with his parents, brothers and sisters, landing at Galveston. The family first settled in Fayette Co. later moving to a farm near Witting Lavaca Co. Texas. He and his younger brother Willie attended Oak Grove School. He was confirmed on May 7, 1891 at Zion Lutheran Congregation at Witting, Texas by Rev. W. Westernoff of Bauersville. He moved to the Gruenau Community in DeWitt Co. with his parents and brother in the fall of 1896. On Nov 29, 1899 he was married to Augusta Maria Dora Lamprecht, eldest of eight children and and his wife Dorathea Schoop, who was born at Sweethome, Lavaca Co., Texas on Jun 3, 1881. She was baptized on Jun 25, 1882 in Immanuels Lutheran Church, Bauersville, Lavaca Co. Texas. She was confirmed on Mar 29, 1896 at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Yorktown, Texas by Rev. J.K. Poch. In order to receive confirmation instruction, Dora rode a buggie across the open prairie from her parents home West of Nopal in Gonzales Co. to Yorktown alone at the age of 15. She wasn't afraid of firearms and on occasions was known to use them to protect her family. Some years later she also drove cars, the first being a 1912 Model Buick with oversized wooden spoke wheels and the gear shift on the outside, which had to be operated with the left hand. On Dec 1, 1900 John and Dora bought the 150 acre farm, which was originally owned by his brother Heinrich, from his brother Anton for $3000.00. They lived on this farm until 1907. On Nov 25, 1907 they bought the adjoining 125 acres (1221/2 ac of Sect 19 and 21/2 ac of Sect 21 Ind RR Surv.) from Ernst and Martha Haertig for $8125.00 when the Haertig family moved to the Bonnieview Community near Woodsboro Refugio Co., Texas. In the fall of 1907 John and Dora moved to the Haertig farm and remained there until their deaths. Six children were born to this union. 1) Wilhelm Otto married Lillie Hengst whose story appears separately; 2) Martha Elise born May 9, 1902, Died Jun 30, 1984 married August B. Hahn born Nov 19, 1886, died Dec 25, 1974; 3) Elsa A. born Nov 21, 1903 died Nov 1, 1981 married Gustav J. Buchhorn, born Sept 3, 1901 died Mar 23, 1966; 4) George William (Bill) born Sept 6, 1905 married Hedwig Hengst born Apr 23, 1909; 5) Erna Johanna born May 30, 1907 died Jun 24, 1980 married Archie L. Thieme born Mar 27, 1907; 6) Adolph Dietrich Fritz born Nov 13, 1909, died Sept 14, 1984 married Sophie Kenne born Dec 12, 1911; Around 1910. John bought a 125 acre tract out of Sect. #20, Ind RR Co Surv. for $12,500 and another tract near the Gohlke School. Through his investment in the DeWitt County Land & Cattle Co., he also had 240 acres near Springfield, in Jim Wells County, Texas.

only daughter, born to Wilhelm Lamprecht

After surgery in 1916, Dora began having epileptic attacks. As her health deteriorated she stayed with her parents in Yorktown to be nearer to a doctor. It was here that she passed away on the morning of Aug 30, 1923 at the age of 42 years. She was buried the same day at Westside Cemetery with Rev. H.C. Wehemeyer of St. Martins Cong, Nopal and Rev. J.K. Poch of St. John's of Bellville officiating. On Jun 21, 1927, John Koopmann married Ella Adams Kuehnel, one of five children (3 boys and 2 girls) born to Mienke Adams and his wife Gretje Debuhr Adams Mohlman. Ella was born on Oct 12, 1969 in Gillespie, Illinois. She also had three half-brothers from her mothers second marriage to Thees Mohlmann. Ella had two children from her first marriage, a son and a daughter Julie (Mrs. Carl Grip); and two children from her second marriage, a son Albert Kuehnel, and a daughter, Gertie (Mrs. Leo Mark). All her children lived in Platte County. Nebr. After her third marriage, to John Koopmann she made her home in Gruenau. During this time, the Koopmann home was remodeled and rooms were added to the second floor of the house. Ella Koopmann died on Jun 16, 1936 at the age of 66 years and is buried on Westside Cemetery, Yorktown, Texas. On Monday Aug 24, 1936, after attending an all-day meeting at the Grue-Hall, John suffered an injury in a fall at the Little Chicago Store. The following day he underwent surgery for internal injuries. He died at 3:20 A.M. Friday Aug 28, 1936 in Allen Hospital at the age of 60 years. He is also buried at Westside Cemetery, Yorktown.

KOOPMANN, OTTO FAMILY

Wilhelm Otto Koopmann, oldest of six children born to John Koopmann and his wife Dora Lamprecht Koopmann was born on Oct 24, 1900 in Gruenau, DeWitt County, Texas. He was baptized in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Yorktown, Texas on Dec 2, 1900 and confirmed at St. Martins Lutheran Congregation, Nopal, Texas on Apr 23, 1916 by Pastor J.K. Poch. On Dec 7, 1922, at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Yorktown, he married Lillie Anna Hengst, third of eight children born to Alvin Hengst and his wife Mary Wild Hengst, who was born on Nov 13, 1902. Pastor E.A. Sagebiel performed the ceremony with Martha Koopmann, Emil Hengst, Erna Hengst and Herman Wulf as witnesses. Lillie was baptized in Holy Cross Catholic Church, Yorktown, Texas as an infant. Their first year together, they lived on the Elise Wulf farm in Gruenau. During this time Lille went to adult Confirmation instruction and was confirmed in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Yorktown, on Apr 13, 1924. After Christmas of 1923, they moved to the Wm. K. Koopmann farm near the Gohlke School. She often said it was a cold, wet winter and the Gruenau roads were still just black clay. As Papa and the neighbors who were helping move, went on ahead with the horses and loaded wagons, she followed with her horse, "Filly", and buggy. She had a chicken cluck with chicks in a box on the floor of the buggy and her dog, "Snowball" laying on her feet to keep warm. They lived on this farm for 19 years. Six of their seven children were born on this farm. In November of 1942, after the hurricane had flattened most of the Community, the family moved to the old Anton Koopmann farm, then owned by Erna Bruns and her sister Ida Schonvogel of Orange Grove, Texas. On this farm their youngest son was born. On Mar 21, 1955 the family moved into their new home which they built on the 180 acre property Otto and Lillie purchased Dec 14, 1940 from his brother Bill and sisters Martha and Erna to settle their father's estate. In December of 1945 they bought an adjoining 50.4 acres from Stella Simecek. In 1946 they purchased 50.7 acres from Ad. Schroeder Jr. which was part of the old Ernst Kimmel farm. In 1970 they bought 80 acres from Mrs. Ruby Orosz. Otto was always active in Church and civic affairs, serving as President of the Yorktown Union Gin Co., director of the First State Bank of Yorktown, director of Yorktown Warehouse Co., President of Gruenau Turn and Schuetzen Verein; served as secretary of the Gruenau Herman Sons Lodge #254 for 41 years; director of Federal Land Bank Asso. of Karnes City and served on the boards of Gohlke Common School District; Weldon Common School District and Yorktown Ind. School District. He played the bass drum in the Gruen-au Brass Band for a short time during his teens, was an active member in the Turn Verein "Jahn", and was active both in the German theater and chorus of the Gruenau T&S Verein and at St. Paul's Lutheran Church during the 1930's. Otto suffered a major stroke on the night of January 22, 1964, while watching television, which paralyzed his right side. He fought his way back to health and continued farming with his two youngest sons until another stroke took his life on Dec 15, 1977 at the Yorktown Memorial Hospital at the age of 77 years. He was survived by his widow, Lillie, and their seven children; 1) son Gilbert Alvin, born Jul 30, 1925; 2) son Melvin John, born Jun 3, 1927, 3) daughter Elvera Dora, (Mrs. W.E. Butler) born Apr 11, 1929, 4) daughter Earlen Mary (Mrs. Alton Ray Jalufke) born Aug 18, 1933; 5) daughter Doris Ann (Mrs. Milam R. von Roeder) born Jun 14, 1935; 6) son Hilmer Elwood born July 6, 1937; 7) son William Otto born Aug 12, 1943. Otto is buried in Westside Cemetery, Yorktown, Texas. Lillie continued farming with her two youngest sons until her mental capacity diminished to the point where she needed constant care and supervision. On Apr 16, 1988 she went to live at Yorktown Manor Nursing Home. Otto and Lillie were life-long members of St. Martins Lutheran Congregation of Nopal and later of St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Yorktown. They both loved the German language and spoke it fluently with their family and friends all their life.

KORTH, HERMAN

Christian Annanias Herman Korth was born December 16, 1839 in Neu Karbe, Province of Brandenburg. He was educated in the German schools and in 1860 he came to America with his older sister, Ernestine, and her husband Charles Hoff and their three children. They landed in Indianola and settled in Yorktown. He was 20.

The Hoffs owned and operated a grits mill one-half mile outside of Yorktown on a creek near the Westside Cemetery. Herman worked for the Hoffs hauling the commeal and grits into Matamoras and Piedras Negras, Mexico and cotton from Indianola to Mexico. Besides being a freighter, he worked as a stagecoach driver. During the Civil War, he served as a Corporal in Captain Taylor's Company of the 33rd Texas Cavalry under Colonel Woods in the Army of the Confederacy. After the war, he became a freighter to the Rio Grande. On October 2, 1865 he married Louise Menn. He abandoned the hazardous business of freighter except to haul his own farm products to San Antonio. He bought land one mile north of Yorktown near the Hoffs and next to his brother Julius Korth (Julius and Bertha Korth came to Yorktown in 1867. They will be mentioned in another section). They paid 50 cents an acre for their land. Herman and Louise built a log cabin, but as their family grew they built a larger house (see photo). The San Antonio Road passed behind their house. A saloon and stagecoach stop were near. After the war, this area suffered as did the rest of Texas. There were feuds as the one between the Suttons and the Taylors which tore South Texas apart. Desperados and formidable gunmen such as John Wesley Hardin harassed the peaceful citizens of Yorktown. The family was in constant fear when Herman was on a trip to sell his farm products in San Antonio. When the desperados were in town, Louise would hang quilts in front of the windows to keep the light from showing. Eventually normal conditions returned. Herman and Louise lived and prospered there for years. He died June 2, 1924.

Louise Menn Korth was born on June 16, 1845 in Erntebrueck, Westphalla (Germany). Her parents were Johann Heinrich and Marie Elise Roth Menn. In 1849 they settled in Yorktown, one year after its founding. She was 4 years old. Her family lived in a log cabin located across from what is now the City Park. At 19 she married Herman Korth. He was 25. The Menn family will be found in another section. Louise died June 11, 1924.

Herman and Louise had eight children. They were: Fritz, Ida, Augusta Helen, Robert P., Louisa, Matilda, Herman, and Emma.

Fritz married Eleanor Stark from one of the first families to settle in Yorktown. Fritz was a grocer, rancher, banker. He sold and traded real estate. They had two boys. Romeo was a rancher, banker, President of the R.E.A. for thirty years and Secretary/Treasurer of the Garfield Mutual Insurance Association for fifty years. Frederick, is a lawyer, was a banker, and was Assistant Secretary of the Army, and Secretary of the Navy during the Kennedy-Johnson Administration.

Ida married Herman von Roeder. He was also from a very early pioneer family of Yorktown. He was a respected farmer and stockman. He and Ida's children were Robert and Frances. Robert, "Bobby", married Edith Spain. He was a World War I Veteran. The von Roeder family has ranched from early times and even now, Frances resides on their ranch just outside of Yorktown.

Augusta Helen married Caesar William Fechner. He also was from a pioneer family of Yorktown. They lived on a farm and for some years they operated a dairy. Mr. Fechner also operated a meat market for awhile, but they resumed their farming operation. They had five children. John served in World War I. He died young. Thelma, was first married to Frank Hale, then Arno Schultz. She worked as a clerk in several stores and was very well liked. Louis, operated the Fechner Brake and Motor Service Station in El Paso. He was married to E. Mueller. Cecelia, wife of L.O. Williams had three children. She is very devoted to her family. She still lives in Yorktown. Caesar Jr., "Red", married Billie Kirkland. He was a long time Lone Star Beer distributor and avid baseball enthusiast. He was active in many civic organizations.

Robert Paul, married Homer Harper. He served in the Spanish American War. He was President of the First National Bank of Yorktown, was also a prominent rancher and member of the Yorktown City Council. Their children were Melvyl, Robert Jr. and Clementine. Melvyl was devoted to her family. She had a "heart of gold". Robert Jr. was also a prominent rancher and rodeo performer. He married Ione Poindexter of Kenedy. Clementine, "Tennie", married William Knandel. She lives in Austin. She has two girls and is a loving mother.

Louise, "Baby", married William Westhoff. He also was from an early pioneer Indianola family. He owned the W. Westhoff Lumber Yard established by his father. He was a banker, and was Mayor of Yorktown for many years. They had extensive business and farm property. They had one daughter, Rosa Lou. She married Otis Skinner. He was a dairy farmer, rancher, and banker.

Matilda, "Tilda", married Fritz Schwab. He was a druggist. He owned the Yorktown Drug Co. from 1895-1909. He sold it and moved to Yoakum where he owned and operated the Palace Drug Store until his death. They had one son, Elliot, who also became a pharmacist. He was a drug salesman for Sharp and Dome. His wife was Kathleen.

Herman, "Bruddy", was a salesman, and manager of a milling company. He owned a grocery store. He was a member of a baseball team and could hit a ball "a country mile". He was nicknamed "the Flying Dutchman". He married Mary Wilson of Woodstock, Alabama. They had three girls. Phyllis married Victor Taylor. She was a gifted artist, teacher and counselor. Grace Louise married Rasem Rushdi, from Lebanon. She met him when she was stationed in Tripoli working for the Foreign Service. He was a writer and editor for the Voice of America. Mary Ann married Arthur Leask. He is retired after 20 years in the Army. His rank is Major. He was one of the original "Green Barrets". They live in Yorktown.

Emma, "Emmie", married Charles Ramdow. He owned a saloon and later sold real estate in Yorktown. They had two daughters. Mildred, who married E.E. Zuch. She worked as a cashier at the Gunter Hotel in San Antonio for many years. She loves flowers and her yard. Carlyn married J.B. Fowler. She was in the Navy. He was in the Army. They are both buried at Ft. Sam Houston in San Antonio.

Many thanks to Frances von Roeder who has carefully kept the history of the Korth family. Much of this information is from her. Many thanks also to Rosa Lou Skinner who is also very knowledgeable and helpful. Thanks also to Mary Ann and her husband Arthur Leask. I couldn't have done this without them.

KOZIELSKI BROTHERS

Anton and Lucy Kozielski

Four Kozielski brothers and their wives observed marriages of over sixty years in 1988. Frank P. Kozielski and his wife Anita were married sixty-three years; A.L. "Doc" Kozielski and his wife Helen were married sixty years; Willie A. Kozielski and his wife Olga were married sixty-five years; and Joe D. and wife Elsie were married sixty-five years.

These four brothers are members of the John J. Kozielski family who came from Poland. Frank was 84 in 1988; Doc was 86; Willie was 91; and Joe was 95. They all live within ten miles of each other in the Yorktown area. They contribute their longevity to relaxation. As kids they grew up under their mom's wing and helped each other. They have never had a dispute or misunderstanding between them. They are all members of the Holy Cross Catholic Church.

The property on which Holy Cross Catholic Church and the cemetery grounds was donated by the late Anton Kozielski family.

The family once had the Kozielski band which played at weddings and house dances years ago. The four brothers, Frank, Doc, Willie and Joe were all members of that band.

The Anton Kozielski family came to Texas from Germany in 1856, searching for a better way of life. They landed at Indianola, Texas and came inland to Yorktown. The Kozielski's were Polish Catholics and very strong in their faith. They wanted to settle near a Catholic Church. Though there was no Catholic Church in Yorktown, in 1856, there was a Catholic Church about nine miles away the family could attend.

Anton bought a tract of land one mile east of Yorktown, part of the James Kimberling League in about 1861. He and his family immediately began the task of clearing the land for planting. The family consisted of Anton, his wife Lucy and twelve children, most of whom had been born in Germany. They grew corn, sugar cane, Irish and sweet potatoes and other vegetables.

Anton used the large timbers he had cleared from the land to build a log house for the family in about 1862. The kitchen and dining area was separate from the main house and stands that way today. The log walls were later covered with plaster inside and outside with 1x12 planks. The old home was occupied by some member of the Kozielski family from the time it was built until 1979. Today it stands vacant, a wonderful reminder of a pioneer family.

Other Polish Catholic families settled near and around Yorktown. Anton and his family, always active and interested in the Catholic Church, donated four acres of land to build a Polish Catholic Church and provide cemetery grounds. This is the site of the present Holy Cross Catholic Church.

Anton and his wife Lucy's twelve children were: Anton, Paul, John, Frank, Isadore, Annie, Pauline, Barbara, Frances, Constance, Mary and Carrie. This is not in the order in which they were born.

John J. Kozielski married Flora Gola and to them were born ten children. Two of the children died in infancy. The other children are: Annie, Frances, May, Joe, Willie, Matilda, August and Frank. These all lived to a ripe old age. Though the girls have all passed away.

KRAEGE, FRITZ

F545

Fritz Kraege

Fritz Kraege was born in Friedenberg, Germany, September 16, 1855. He landed at Indianola and came directly to Yorktown, with his parents in 1856. He secured his early education in Yorktown and completed it in Germany. His parents returned to Germany in 1867. In 1871, Fritz returned to Yorktown where he was employed by F.B. Gohmert for several years. In 1877 he accepted a position with the firm of C. Eckhardt and Sons and continued in their employ for three years, when he embarked in business for himself.

In October of 1877, Fritz married Miss Malvina Heissig. They had three boys and three girls. Malvina was born June 21, 1855.

Fritz Kraege was a chief election officer of his precinct and a member of the city council. He built up his own business to become one of the best in the city. He was highly respected and owns a beautiful home in the city as well as a valuable farm property.

Fritz Kraege passed away on March 25, 1940 and Malvina Kraege passed away on November 17, 1926. They are buried in the Westside Cemetery at Yorktown, DeWitt County, Texas.

KRUEGER, CHRISTIAN HENRY AND EMILIE ELISA (SCHORLEMMER) _{F547}

Christian H. Krueger and Emilie Elisa (Schorlemmer), January 17, 1906.

Christian Henry Krueger was born in Arneckeville, Texas to Friedrich C. Kruger and Caroline (Sager) on August 31, 1877. After the death of Caroline on September 14, 1877, Christian was raised by his stepmother. He was so unhappy with his stepmother that his grandmother, Justine (Dreier) Sager, took him in and raised him to manhood. He attended Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville all of his life. On January 17, 1906, "Chris," as he was known, married Emilie Elisa Schorlemmer, the daughter of Carl Johann Schorlemmer and Caroline (Hartman). Emilie was born May 2, 1884 in Arneckeville. Chris and Emilie built their home on the Krueger land adjoining the Sager family land.

The Chris Kruegers had five children: Alvin Henry, born November 3, 1906; Edna Caroline, born October 7, 1907; Frieda Heinricke, born July 24, 1910; Elmer Carl, born July 18, 1912; and Werner Christian, born September 15, only four years old, so Chris had to raise his children alone with the help of the older children.

German was sometime spoken by Chris, Emilie and the older children in the home and community. As the family grew, their house became a large two-storied structure. Many social events were held in this house.

Christian Henry Krueger died December 3. 1948, twenty eight years after his wife, Emilie, who died on March 16, 1920. They are buried side by side in the Zion Lutheran Church Cemetery in Arneckeville.

Some of the things that were passed down from Chris Krueger to his grandchildren were stories of early life in the country. When cars first came out, they were only used on special occasions, such as going to church or Sunday visiting. The rest of the week the car would be jacked up in the shed so as not to damage the tires. The car was not large enough to take to town for supplies such as, a large sack of sugar, a large sack of flour, and feed for the animals

When coming to town over Heard Bridge, the driver would shout, whistle or honk the horn before crossing. The bridge was high in the middle and you could not see oncoming traffic, so some noise was made to warn the other side that traffic was coming. Then the driver would make a wild dash across before anyone else came up to the other side. Christian would always shout, "Hold on to your hats," in German, before he dashed across the bridge.

In the later years of Christian Krueger's life, he was known as "Papa" to his children who said it with love and respect.

KRUEGER, ELMER CARL AND THELMA JANE (THOMPSON) F548

Elmer Carl Krueger was born July 18, 1912 to Christian Henry Krueger and Emilie (Schorlemmer) Krueger. He was baptized in the Zion Lutheran Church of Arneckeville, September 8, 1912. His sponsors were Emilie Sager, Otto Wolf and Carl Schorlemmer. He was confirmed in the same church on Palm Sunday in 1927. Elmer attended school at Arneckeville and Cuero High School.

Elmer met Thelma Jane Thompson in Cuero when she came to work in Cuero soon after she graduated from Kingsbury High School in Guadalupe County, Texas. She graduated as valedictorian of her class and was offered several scholarships to attend college. She decided to leave home and work to make a living for herself. Thelma's parents were George Wilson Thompson and Etta Leona (Wright) Thompson of Guadalupe County. When she came to Cuero she lived with the Ben Farmers and later roomed with Fern (Schmidt) Hartman.

On November 2, 1939, Elmer and Thelma eloped to Pearsal, Texas to be married. He borrowed a car from his friend, Fritz Koehler, so he could leave town unnoticed.

Elmer had always made a living working with cattle. He first hauled cattle in trucks for local ranchers. Then he bought his own cattle and began leasing pastures. He kept the same pastures for forty years and still was raising cattle when he died in 1980. He was a very trusting man and his word was his contract and his handshake was his bond. He always helped anyone who came to him in need.

Elmer and Thelma had four children: 1) Patsy Kay, b. September 11, 1941; 2) Annette Emilie, b. July 10, 1947; 3) Susan Etta, b. July 10, 1947; and 4) Elmer Carl, Jr., b. December 21, 1956.

Elmer and Thelma lived in DeWitt County most of their married life. They lived in Lavaca County for several years when Elmer was cowner of the Hallettsville Commission Company. They attended the Baptist Church in Cuero and then the Methodist Church in later years.

After the death of Elmer, Thelma's sister, Mrs. Leota Landers came to live with Thelma. They enjoy fishing, gardening, quilting and visiting friends and relatives.

Thelma has always provided a loving home for her children. She now (1990) has eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Patsy Kay (Krueger) Goebel lives in Cuero with her husband, Bob Goebel. (See story elsewhere).

Annette (Krueger) married Robert Carlos Watson August 9, 1968. They have two children: Robin Suzanne Watson who was born August 30, 1972 in Austin, Texas. Robert Carlos Watson, Jr. was born September 6, 1973 in Austin, Texas. Robert, Sr. is in the ranch service business. He contracts to build fences, barns or anything that needs built or repaired on a ranch. For several years the family lived in Nicaragua and managed a large ranch and started an auction for livestock for the countries government. Ann taught school at the American school in Nicaragua. They fled the country when the government began to crumble. They now live in Dale, Texas and Ann teaches in Lockhart. Robert has his ranch service in the Lockhart area.

Susan (Krueger) married Ronald Wayne Mueller in April 15, 1966. They have two children: Ronald Troy Mueller who was born September 9, 1970 in Victoria; and Tracey Sue Mueller who was born September 8, 1972 in Victoria, Texas. Ron and Sue divorced in 1989. They all live in Sulfur, Louisiana where Sue is a nurse for a private clinic and Ron works for Pittsburgh Plate Glass as an electrician.

Elmer Carl Krueger, Jr. married Gail Eckhart August 3, 1984 and they have one child: Cassie Colleen Krueger born May 31, 1986. They live in Cuero and Carl works for Robert D. Goebel — Contractor as a Construction Supervisor. He also ranches. Gail works for Reuss Pharmacy in Cuero.

KRUGER, CHRISTIAN AND FRIEDRICH

F549

Charitian Kruger was born in Tangendorf, Brandenberg, Germany on March 28, 1821. He was the son of Johann Joachim Kruger. He was christened Johann Christian Friedrich Kruger. On the tenth of November, 1848, Christian married Marie Wilhelmine Charlotte Bethke in Kletzke, Brandenberg, Germany. She was born May 20, 1822 in Wendenmark, Germany to Joachim Bethke. Christian and Marie had four children: Marie, no information at this time; Friedrich C., born March 24, 1850; Christian, born November 11, 1857; and Wilhelm, born February 25, 1863. Christian's first wife died on May 26, 1871 in Germany. Several years afterwards, Christian came to America, landing in New Orleans, Louisiana on September 15, 1874. Christian came to DeWitt County where his son Friedrich was already living. He married Elizabeth Lange (1828-1905) and they moved to Kilgore Community in Goliad County. Christian was a highly respected farmer and rancher in the Kilgore Community until his death, March 1, 1880. Elizabeth then moved into the home of the Frederich M. Sager family to help care for their children. Christian and Elizabeth are buried in the Kilgore Community Cemetery in Goliad County.

Friederich C. Kruger was known as "Fritz" in the Arneckeville Community. He married Caroline Sophie Sager on November 12, 1875 at Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville. She was the daughter of Christoph Adam Sager and Justine Sophie Dreier. She was born March 29, 1856. Fritz and Caroline started their married life on land adjoining the Sager family land. The first log church of Zion Lutheran Church was moved to their land and made into their first home. Their new life together came to an end when Caroline died on September 14, 1877 from complications of childbirth. Their son, Christian Henry Kruger, was born on August 31, 1877. Fritz then married Sophie Gebbert (1857-1948) on January 27, 1878 and they had four children: Fritz, Regina, Frieda and Blanch. Fritz and Sophie lived in Kilgore Community, Goliad County until Fritz passed away on September 23, 1903. Fritz and Sophie are buried in the Kilgore Community Cemetery. Caroline Sager Kruger is buried in the Zion Lutheran Church Cemetery in Arneckeville, Texas.

KRUSE, GEORGE AND ANTONIA (RAAZ)

Antonia Raaz Kruse and her husband George Kruse lived in DeWitt County only a few months while Antonia was dying of cancer. They came to DeWitt County so two of their daughters could help take care of their mother. Antonia was born March 1878 and died June 11, 1938 at age 60 and is buried in Hillside Cemetery. She was born in Lavaca County. George came from Oldenburg, Germany when he was fifteen years old. Antonia's family came from Vienna, Austria. George and Antonia married Dec. 29, 1896. They had nine children — Frieda, Alex, Edmund, Elsie, Willie, Isabella, George, Edgar and Leon.

Christmas of 1937 Antonia came home to stay with her daughter Isabella and her husband A.W. Schaffner as she was too ill to stay in her home. Soon she was too ill to stay alone while Isabella taught and A.W. worked away from home. So she and George went to live with daughter Elsie Wehman and her husband Edgar at Westhoff. After Antonia died George returned to his home until he retired and went to live in Yoakum, DeWitt County, with his daughter, Freida, where he died January 22. 1954 at age 82. He is buried in Hillside Cemetery. All together George later lived in Yoakum, DeWitt County 8 or 10 years after he retired. While their mother was ill, Edgar and Leon came to live with Isabella and her husband and Leon went to Cuero Schools.

Antonia and George had lived in the Dixon and Green School area. The family history has a picture of Green School taken in 1911-1912. The teacher was Professor Martin Ruppel and the older children of the family are in the picture. This was in Lavaca County near Shiner, Texas. George and Antonia built a lovely country home about three miles north of Shiner. After they sold it to the Arthur Ummelmann family they bought a home about four miles north of Yoakum in the Midway Community. Here the children attended Beasley School. This home had much acreage and beside the homestead had two rent houses. Later the family moved between Hochheim and Cheapside. Most of the family was now grown and the younger children went to Ruppert School and then Cheapside School. Ruppert was in Gonzales County and the Ruppert Community was called a German Community. Cheapside operated under DeWitt County. At this time H.B. Montgomery was the DeWitt County Superintendent. Cheapside was thought of as the English Community.

George Kruse farmed and his wife did the farm work that women did then, including picking cotton and making corn tops, milking cows, etc., raising chickens and turkeys.

George's birthdate was December 27, 1871. To earn money to pay his way to America he drove a buggy for a doctor in Oldenburg, Germany. He said the German Government did not want him to emigrate to America and the American in charge of immigration encouraged him to do so. When he docked in New York he had never seen or eaten bananas. He saw people put down a nickel, pick up a banana and go away eating it. He decided he wanted two so he put down a dime. After a while he thought he needed to remind the lady to give him two bananas when she pushed two bags of bananas to him and everyone laughed. There he was on the docks of New York with two bags of bananas.

George and Antonia had an interesting life. Most of their children married. Frieda married Louis Huber and had six children, Selma, Erma, Weldon, Lester, Reuben and Victor. Alex married Gertrude Huber and had seven children but Franklin died as an infant. Others were Raymond, Ernest, Bernice, Viola, Roger, and Bob. Edmund married Lillian Timble and they adopted a son, Michael. Willie had two wives. The first was Annie Schwartz and they had one daughter, Ellen. His second wife was Peggy Noble and they had William, Jr., Terry, and Linda. Isabella married Alvin Wilford Schaffner and they had no children. George, Jr. married Sophie Wascick and they had a daughter, Jeanette. Edgar and Leon did not marry. At this time 1989 only three children survive, Isabella, George, Jr. and Edgar. Leon died of cancer at age 49 in 1971. Edgar and Leon lived with Isabella and Al for 20 years until they bought a home in Cuero in 1963.

When Antonia and George died they left no great estate. All they made was used up. They cared for their children. Whatever was needed they provided, good nourishing food on the farms, both medical, dental care including operations when needed. They never stinted on their children's needs. The estate they did leave was the finest in the world, American Citizenship, the greatest heritage there is!

KUCK, J. J. FAMILY

J.J. and Helene Kuck

Mr. and Mrs. J.J. Kuck were life long residents of DeWitt County and the Yoakum area since their marriage in 1892. Mr. Kuck emigrated from Rastede, near Oldenburg, Germany with his parents, Christian Kuck and wife, Helene Kloppenburg. The mother applied to emigrate three times because their oldest son was of military age, but was not approved until the third application. They left Bremerhaven in the fall of 1886 by steamship and landed in Galveston with their six children, John Juergen, Anna, Eilert, Christian Jr., Henry and Helene. They brought personal needs, some furniture since Papa was a cabinet maker, and $89.00 in cash. They traveled by train to the home of a friend, Henry Santhmann, in Flatonia. Their first crop of cotton was a failure until they learned the difference between cotton plants and cockleburs. The elder Kucks bought a 200 acre farm near Shiner and lived there until their death in 1902 and 1904.

J.J. Kuck married Helene Gerdes on November 9, 1892 near old Sweet Home, in the home of her parents, Eilert Gerdes and wife, Helene Knutzen who had emigrated from Rothenkirchen, Germany, in 1883. J.J. was born on January 18, 1867 and his wife was born on December 19, 1870. They bought a farm near Dreyer in 1893. Their first five children were born on this farm. They were Martha, November 18, 1893 (Mrs. Ed. Dahse of Dreyer); Ella, September 9, 1895 (Mrs. Oscar Ortmann of Orange Grove); Lenora, October 8, 1898 (Mrs. Edmund Langhoff of Hochheim Prairie); Otto, January 17, 1902, of Hochheim Prairie; and John, July 5, 1904 (died January 20, 1907). The family purchased additional land and moved to the Hochheim Prairie in the fall of 1904, now the home of Mrs. Otto Kuck. The last child, Elvera, was born here on August 5, 1910. She was lovingly called "Ditty" until her death on May 10, 1912.

There are many happy memories of Papa and Mama providing for our care. After long, hot summer days of work in the fields, we would all gather on the front porch in the evenings to share happenings of the past and present. Before long, Papa would say "now comes the sea breeze" and Mama would answer, "yes, the mill just turned into the wind." Some time later, we could see the train light coming in through Edgar from Cuero. This was before the brush blotted out much of the Prairie as I remember it from about 1910. We walked to the Hochheim Prairie School to learn the three R's and German for those who wanted to learn to read in two languages.

A never forgotten moment came in May of 1910. Papa called us, past midnight, out of a sound sleep, "to come see the beautiful large comet in the southern sky," which was high in a very clear sky. It had a very bright star and a very long, broad tail near its end, just almost touching earth it seemed. We were told it would not be visible again for 75 years. I thought, "should I be blessed to live that long, then I will really be old." Of course, I am referring to Halley's comet. People of that time worried about the comet, thinking it might put the earth on fire or cause the end of the world. A few years later, I can recall seeing the Aurora Borealis or Northern Lights all over the sky during the summer of 1918 or 1919. We were attending a dance at Turner Hall that night.

Our farm on the Hochheim Prairie grew corn, sorghum for hay and grain, and cotton, which was our main cash crop. The cotton was hauled to Yoakum by wagon and team of mules. This cotton was snow white because it was hand picked. Yoakum had several cotton gins at that time.

J.J. Kuck was a prominent citizen of DeWitt County and the state. He served as Grand President of the Hochheim Prairie Mutual Fire and Storm Insurance Association from 1912 until his death on June 30, 1939, a total of 25 years. He also served on the Grand Finance Committee of the Order of the Sons of Hermann. Our mother, Helene, loved flowers, gardening, family and home. She had a real talent for crocheting bed spreads, which occupied many hours of her time in later years. Mama died on June 5, 1959.

J.J.'s first car was a Model T Ford, 1911. Please see the picture attached which shows five Model T's being delivered at the State Bank in Yoakum in 1911. The first auto connected us with friends at a speed of 20 miles per hour which sure put the old horse to shame. We could attend church at Holy Cross Lutheran on Hochheim and Schwab Street, which was seven miles from home, much easier and faster now.

Descendants of J.J. Kuck now living in the Yoakum area are Lenore Kuck Langhoff 91, John C. Langhoff 57, John Allan Langhoff 29, David Charles Langhoff 28, and Laurie Ann Langhoff 26.

KUNETKA, FRANK W. AND CARRIE M.

F553

Carrie (Morgan) and Frank W. Kunetka

Frank Walter Kunetka was born in Weimar, Colorado County, Texas, on April 25, 1876. He was one of ten children and the second son born to Frank J. Kunetka and Annie Krizan Kunetka, who emigrated from Austria-Hungary in 1873 and landed in Galveston. His parents travelled to Colorado County and settled in Weimar, where the railroad ended. The family moved to Yoakum in DeWitt County, Texas, in 1888.

F.W. Kunetka enlisted in the First Regiment of Texas Cavalry, U.S. Volunteers, in 1898 and served for two years during the Spanish-American War. He was a member of the Army Cavalry Band, playing the trumpet and trombone, and his discharge papers list his occupation as "Musician."

In 1902 he married Carrie Morgan in Yoakum, where he and his brother-in-law, Kos Morgan, operated a general mercantile store for several years. In 1908 they sold the store and bought their first land on the Guadalupe River in DeWitt County from H.E. Lancaster. Operating as a partnership, they engaged in farming and ranching.

In 1916 he moved from the ranch to Cuero and bought the Breeden house at 404 Indianola Street. He was elected DeWitt County Tax Assessor in 1917, a position which he occupied until 1934. In 1935 the Assessor and Collector offices were combined, and he served as a deputy in the new office for approximately 25

He was a fifty-year veteran of the Knights of Pythias and a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, where he was a Sunday School teacher for several years. He could speak five languages: Czech, English, German, Polish, and Spanish.

Caroline (Carrie) Morgan Kunetka was born in Lagarto, Texas, on January 10, 1880. She was the second child of Charles and Nannie Quirl Morgan. Her father died at the age of 38 while the family was living in San Diego, Texas. Her mother and five children moved to Yoakum, Texas, in 1900.

Mrs. Kunetka was very active in civic, church, and fraternal organizations. She served as Worthy Matron of the Eastern Star and as advisor to the Rainbow Girls. For more than 25 years she was Secretary of the Red Cross chapter in Cuero, including the period of World War I, and for many years served as election judge. She was a devout member of the Presbyterian Church and taught the Mattie McLeod Sunday School class for many years.

In 1965 Frank and Carrie retired to the Trinity Lutheran Home in Shiner, Texas, where she died in 1965 at the age of 85 and he followed in death in 1973 at the age of 96. There were no children. Frank and Carrie Kunetka were buried in the Oak Grove Cemetery in Yoakum.

KUNITZ - WASSERMAN FAMILY

F554

Otto Kunitz (1870), father of Ida (Kunitz) Wasserman.

Otto and Pauline (Straube) Kunitz and Gus and Ida (Kunitz) Wasserman, Jr.

Ida Kunitz Wasserman was born July 27, 1872 in Indianola and was a resident in that small community during the 1875 storm. Shortly after this storm she moved with her parents Otto Kunitz, born April 6, 1844 and Pauline Straube Kunitz, born January 7, 1849, to Cuero. Otto Kunitz, her father, was a Daguerrian Artist born in Prussia. Pauline Straube was born in Schoenau, province of Habel Scherdt, Germany and came with her parents, Anton and Theresa Straube to Indianola in 1851 at the age of three. Anton Straube, Ida Kunitz's grandfather, was a carpenter from Prussia. He was born January 13, 1814 and died in Cuero, May 3, 1889. Anton's wife Terrice (Theresa) Straube was born April 22, 1812 and died December 26, 1881.

After the Civil War, Pauline Straube Kunitz moved to Springfield Illinois and then came to Cuero with Otto Kunitz, her husband, in March 1876. Otto and Pauline Straube Kunitz were married in 1868 in Indianola and they were the parents of eight children, one son dying in infancy. The children were Edward Kunitz, drugstore owner in Cuero (husband of Mary Strieber of Yorktown), Oscar Kunitz (husband of Mamie Kunitz, Brownwood), Richard Kunitz (retail store owner in Sinton, husband of Cecelia Kunitz), Albert Kunitz (married, Kenedy), Ida Kunitz (wife of Gus Wasserman, Jr., owner of Wasserman Sign Company, Cuero), Annie Kunitz (wife of Frank Bentley, Louisiana), and Pauline Kunitz (wife of Ed Dietze, owner of farm and dairy, Cuero).

Otto Kunitz died September 30, 1886 and Pauline Straube Kunitz died June 25, 1905 at the age of 56 years. Pauline Kunitz was an ardent Baptist. She died of heart trouble. Otto and Pauline Kunitz and Anton and Theresa Straube are buried on the same lot in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

Ida Kunitz, daughter of Otto and Pauline Kunitz, married Gus Wasserman, Jr. September 23, 1896. To their union three children were born, one daughter and two sons. Ten years prior to her marriage, and birth of her children, she had visited Indianola during the storm of 1886 which completely demolished the town and she told stories of homes being caught in trees and of saving people from being swept out to sea. She told about people who had to go into their attics to stay away from the high water to save themselves. She told one story about a family saved on a floating mattress which landed in some trees. She remembered the storm vividly. During this storm, her father's home in Cuero was also demolished. Ida Kunitz also told stories about the gangs of cowboys who would come to town on Saturday night. They would ride into the town of Cuero shooting their guns at random. Her mother and father would blow out the lamps so the cowboys wouldn't shoot them out and the children would all lie down on the floor. She remembered the sound of bullets hitting the side of the house as these cowboy gangs came into Cuero and passed their house.

Ida related stories of the balls and parties in the elegant era of the late 1890s. Many masquerade balls were held. The Leap Year Ball given by the young ladies of the Orange Blossom Club in 1896 was a memorable event. The young men of the city reciprocated with another complimentary ball at Turner Hall on January 22, 1896. The German Club was another social club and often held balls at Turner Hall at which the Flick orchestra played. In the newspaper of that day, the ladies who attended were listed and each gown was described including every lace, jewel, and feather they wore. The men's attire was also described, particularly if it was a masquerade ball. Chaperones were always in attendance (at least twenty) and usually about 40 couples were invited. There were grand marches and the ladies had a happy time filling out dance programs for each dance. These affairs usually started about 9:00 p.m., and as dance followed dance, ended about 3:00 a.m. Carriages were the means of transportation.

Ida Kunitz was a beautiful painter, a talent she had inherited from her father who was a talented artist. She particularly liked to paint animals. She painted several lovely large pictures of deer running through the woods. In the possession of her descendants are some lovely cat pictures. She was a devout Lutheran and loved her church. She was a member of St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Cuero, as were the members of her family.

Ida Kunitz Wasserman and Gus Wasserman, Jr. were a devoted couple and had three children. They were Edward Raymond Wasserman, Norman Wasserman, and Gladys Pauline Wasserman Voelkel. All of these children married and lived in Cuero.

Ida Wasserman loved to garden and took great pleasure in giving her grandchildren the carnations and sweetpeas she grew so they could take them to school to their teachers.

Ida Kunitz Wasserman died in 1942, at the age of 72 from a heart attack suffered at her home on 707 Newman Street. At this time she lived with Edward and Annie Dohman Wasserman.

Ida Kunitz Wasserman and Gus Wasserman, Jr. are buried in Hillside Cemetery as are their two children, Edward and Gladys. Norman is buried in Memorial Gardens Cemetery.

KYLE, SAMUEL LEE

Samuel Lee Kyle was born in Richmond, Virginia in 1832. His father, David Kyle, an Irish born merchant, removed to Norfolk in the 1830's and Lee and his older brother Robert were educated at the Norfolk Academy. In the early 1850's both Robert and Lee came to Victoria County, Texas, where they ranched until the Civil War. Both brothers were in the

Samuel Lee Kyle

Texas Confederate Army. Lee served in Waller's Texas Cavalry, Terrell's Brigade, and Bagby's Command, where he was Ordnance Officer and a major.

After the war Robert Kyle returned to Virginia to assist his parents. Lee Kyle stayed in Texas and married Martha Holmes Taylor, a maternal cousin. Before 1870 the Kyles moved to Halletsville, and during the succeeding years Lee was licensed as a pharmacist and as a lawyer. Before 1880 he became owner-editor of the Halletsville Herald and Planter. In 1885, according to memos in his notebook, he sold the Herald and Planter to "Lehman and LaCrosse" and bought the Flatonia Star.

In 1889 he moved to Cuero, bringing with him his wife, three daughters, his mother-in-law Hester Lee Taylor, and an uncle, Ralph Lee. He published and edited the Cuero Bulletin until his death in 1894. After that, his daughters Lizzie and Fanny ran the paper until it was sold to Jack Howerton and was absorbed by the Cuero Record.

After his death, Lee Kyle's widow Martha built a house at 715 Gonzales Street, which she ran as a gemutlich boarding house. Among her boarders were Judge Bouquet and Judge Thom-

Lizzie, the eldest daughter, taught school in Halletsville, then Shiner, and finally, for several years, in the Victoria High School, though she continued to live in Cuero. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church and also of the Hawthorn Society.

The second daughter, Hester, married Irven A. Cottingham, the engineer who built the "impossible" high railroad bridge over the Pecos for the Southern Pacific. The Cottinghams lived in Houston. Their children were Lee, Margaret, Mary Mac-Gregor Weaver, Elizabeth Edghill, Hester Pennington, and Martha Smith

My grandmother was Fanny, the youngest daughter. She taught school at Shiner and at Blue Mott School in DeWitt County before her marriage to Isham B. Garrett. Isham and Fanny Garrett lived in DeWitt County for some years, but later moved to Karnes County. Fanny died young and left five young children. The eldest was my mother, Adelaide Garrett Gill. The other children were Isham, Rose Weaver, Irven, and Ward.

LACKEY, DR. J. M. LACKEY

F556

Dr. Joseph M. Lackey.

According to the October 1895 Cuero Star, J. M. Lackey, M.D., was born in Clinton, Texas January 10, 1869 and is a twin brother to Frank Lackey. They are the sons of Samuel C. Lackey (1-23-1833 to 7-11-1888), a prominent attorney, and Nannie M. Lackey (2-20-1836 to 12-1-1917).

Joseph M. Lackey attended the Cuero Institute and secured the rudiments of a literary education, which he finished at the State University in Austin, Texas, and the Kentucky Military Institute of Frankfort. He studied medicine in the office of Dr. Hodge, of Cuero, for two years, after which he graduated from the celebrated University of Louisville. He also took a general course in the eminent Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital of New York City. He entered the practice in partnership with Dr. J.M. Thompson, of Meyersville, and after three and one-half years of success, returned to Cuero to live.

Joseph M. Lackey died February 21, 1935 and is buried in Hillside Cemetery. Dr. Lackey never married.

LAGING, H.W. FAMILY

Civil War Veteran

H.W. Laging was known in all of the Nordheim area as Papa Laging. He was born in Wehdem, Kreisz, Luebeck, Germany, on February 18, 1841. He came to America by the way of Breman, Germany, on the ship Weser in 1860 settling first near Brenham, Texas. He was just getting familiar with the new world when the "Civil War" broke out. He served under General Kirby Edmund Smith as a soldier of the Confederacy, mainly in Arkansas and Louisiana. He was in the Battle of Bull Run under General Sherman. His tour was three years and ten months. He faced its dangers, endured its hardships and Privations and shared in the awesome reconstruction. They spent weeks and months in camps near streams doing drills. They had no tents but slept on blankets when they had some. A wagon brought them food when they could. Nine men ate from one loaf of bread and a certain amount of meat a day. When they had to cook their own food they hunted game with sling shots of sticks as they were not allowed to use ammunition. The roads were pulverized by the wagons, horses, and men and the dust got into their food, teeth, throat, and noses. In winter they had greater discomfort from the coal and wet. But in spite of all they could sing and laugh. When they stopped they dropped and slept for nine minutes of rest. When they needed clothes they were removed from their fallen comrades. He was mustered out in Little Rock, Arkansas. A Historical marker was placed on his gravesite.

He married Miss Marie Dahse on March 3, 1867 at Welcome, Texas. She was born on Oct. 4, 1850 in Brandenbury, Germany, and came to Texas with her parents in the fall of 1858, also settling near Brenham. In 1875 they moved to Weimar and in 1913 to Nordheim. Seven children were born to them. They were: one daughter who died in infancy.

Henry J. married Henrietta Poppe in Weimar. They had no children but raised a young woman – Emilie Koehn. She married Rudolph Kraatz. Henry owned the first auto repair shop and garage in Nordheim in 1918. He also was the Justice of Peace of Nordheim for years.

Marie married John Wendt. They moved to Nordheim in 1907. Their children were Lydia, who married Hugo Schlosser, and they had one daughter, Vernice, now Mrs. Berthold Oehlke; and Erna who married Otto Janssen, Sr., and they had one son Otto Jr. He married Myrtle Schmidt and they have two daughters Bonnie (Carter) and Penny (Sievers).

Willie married Blanche Long from Brandyville, Penn. She was the daughter of Samuel Long and wife Angelina Buchanan, Will served in Spanish American War in the Medical Corp in Cuba. He became a pharmacist and lived in the Philadelphia area until they moved to Nordheim in 1942. He later became a relief druggist in Cuero during World War II. They had no children. They are both buried in Pennsylvania.

Carl married Emma Stech. They lived on a farm out of Yorktown until after the death of Emma when he moved to Laging home in Nordheim. They had three children: Werner who married Bernice Mueller, Hilda married Jerry Pivonka; and Elna married Theodore Ammermann. Carl later married Hermine Schuenemann. Carl, Emma, and Hermine are all buried in Yorktown.

Alvina married Henry Boeer. They had one son, Erwin. They are buried in San Antonio.

Walter, born April 30, 1888, married Elsie, daughter of Henry and Minna Natho Meyer, on June 1, 1909. Although they had no children they helped raise their niece, Mildred Lee Huck Mueller. They first lived in Weimar but soon moved to Nordheim, where he became a partner with his brother in the garage later buying it from him. He became a very successful business man and rancher. He was Mayor of Nordheim for many years. He was a member of numerous organizations. Walter and Elsie celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on June 1, 1959. She died on Jan. 19, 1974 and he died on April 29, 1980. They are both buried in the Nordheim Cemetery.

Two young nieces, Mrs. John Stech and Mrs. Caroline Havermann lived with the H.W. Lagings until they were married.

Papa Laging being a practical, industrious, courageous man who went about the task of making a living. He always had a cheery greeting and word of encouragement for the school children as they passed the Laging home on their way to and from school. He was the last veteran of the confederacy in the Nordheim community when he passed away on Dec. 5, 1935 at 93 years and 10 months. Grandma Laging as Marie was affectionately known, passed away on January 14, 1943, also at the age of 93 years, 3 months. They were married 67 years. They are both buried in the Nordheim Cemetery, Nordheim, Texas.

It has been noted in the "New Homes Die Bremervervandscraft in Deutschland and in Texas book" there was a Charlotte Laging, born June 5, 1824 and died Dec. 22, 1909, who married B.G. Rosenbaum. She came from Wehdem, Germany, the same section as Papa Laging. There may be some relationship. She is buried in the Salem Cemetery near Brenham.

LAMPRECHT, WILHELM FAMILY F559

Friedrich Heinrich Wilhelm Lamprecht, second of six children born to Heinrich Lamprecht and his wife whose last name was Mennrich, was born on Dec 28, 1848 at Garza, near Luneburg, Hanover, Germany. He was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran faith. As a young man he served in the German Army. On Aug 22, 1880 he was married to Dorathea Catherine Margaretha Schoop only daughter of Friedrich Schoop and his wife Anna Magdelene Schoop. She was born on Aug 19, 1858 at Moor, near Bleckede, Hanover, Germany and was baptized in the Lutheran faith on Oct 3, 1858. After receiving her education and religious instruction, she was confirmed by her Pastor Behnecke on Apr 6, 1873. Ten days after their wedding they began the trip to America, arriving at Galveston on Oct 2, 1880. At first they settled in Washington County. Later they moved to Sweethome Lavaca Co. and then to Yoakum where on Mar 27, 1884 they bought 127 acres from Martha May. On Aug 31, 1887 they sold 6 acres to the San Antonio and Aransas Pass RR Co. for right of way. The railroad built a roundhouse on part of this tract. On Mar 8, 1888 the sold 4 acres to C. Grichard and on Apr 13, 1888, one acre to Thos. Carroll. On Jun 25, 1888 they sold 95 acres to J.P. Nelson. On Jun 16, 1887 Wm. became a U.S. Citizen. Wm.'s oldest brother Heinrich born in Feb. 1844 inherited the Lamprecht Home near Luneburg, Ger. and remained there as did his sisters, Dorothy and Minne. Heinrich's grandson Heinrich Lamprecht III still lives in the home in Garza which was built in 1839. Wilhelm's two younger brothers came to America. Dietrich and his wife Doris first settled at Nopal but later moved to Victoria County. Ernst and his family settled at Muscatine, Iowa. Dorothea's mother died on Oct 12, 1858 when she was 2 months old. Her father married again and there were some half-sisters from this second marriage. On June 30, 1890 Wm. and Dorathea bought 598 acres for $7774.00. 521 acres were in Gonzales Co and 77 acres in DeWitt Co. West of Nopal. The family moved to this farm in 1891. On Dec 6, 1890 they sold 100 acres of this farm to his brother Dietrich. On Oct 7, 1897 Dietrich sold the 100 acres back to Wm. when he moved his family to Victoria. Wm. was instrumental in organizing St. Martin's Lutheran Cong. of Nopal and in the early years played the Church organ. He was a carpenter by trade but also farmed until 1913 when he and his wife moved to Yorktown, first living on Riedel St. and later in the home across from St. Paul's Lutheran Church. Besides the farm at Nopal they also owned a farm at Woodsboro. He was the original owner of the Park Garage on N. Riedel St. across from the City Park. The business was later sold to the Migura Bros. but the building remained in the family until the Estate was settled. After they moved to Yorktown, he gardened and did carpenter work, sometimes building coffins for the local mortuary. He passed away on Mar 27, 1934 at the age of 85 years. Dorathea lived alone in her home until feebleness took its toll. Her last years were spent with Ms. Frances Wagner as her constant companion. She passed away on Sunday, Dec 30, 1945 at 6:25 A.M. at her home. They are buried at Westside Cemetery, Yorktown. Eight children were born to them: 1) Dora, whose story appears elsewhere; 2) Willie Edward born Jul 11, 1883 (died Oct 23, 1952) married Cora Metting. They are buried in St. Paul's Lutheran Cemetery, Yorktown; 3) Herman married Mary Neuman. They lived first in Victoria and then in Woodsboro. While living there, he left his family and was never heard from again. Mary moved back to Yorktown and is buried in St. Paul's Lutheran Cemetery; 4) Ernst J. born Oct 30, 1887 married Anna Heimlich, born Jun 19, 1886, on Jan 14, 1912. He died Aug 6, 1933 and she died in 1974. They are buried in Catholic Cemetery #2 in Victoria; 5) Baby boy passed away at the age of 3 months and is buried at Yoakum; 6) Dietrich C. born Jan 30, 1891 married Emma Seifert, born Jan 30, 1891, on Dec 9, 1912. They first lived at Nopal and then at Stockdale. He later left his family and lived at Port Isabelle and later at Odem. He died on Oct 19, 1972 and is buried beside his father. She stayed living in Stockdale until she died on May 7, 1984 and is buried in Westside Cemetery, Yorktown; 7) Charles born Mar 17, 1893 (died Dec 11, 1974) married Edna Hargrove, born Aug 19, 1897, on Jun 20, 1915. She died Jun 28, 1980. They are buried at Westside Cemetery; 8) Otto Ludwig Christian born Jul 1, 1895 (died Nov 29, 1970) married Bertha Jane Peters, born Feb 8, 1898 on Apr 17, 1919. He is buried in the Woodsboro Cemetery in Refugio Co.

dren. The fifth child was Arthur Dutton lane who was born in the Boothe Hospital in Cuero on October 24, 1925. The family had moved into town only a few months before Dutton was born. He was named for a colonial ancestor, Dutton Lane, and for Mrs. Lane's brother, Arthur Williams. Dutton attended school in Cuero. After high school, he served in World War II. He was drafted in February of 1944 and went into combat with the 36th Division in November of that year. He participated in the Battle of the Bulge in Germany. He was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for Bravery in Action.

After the war he attended the University of Texas and A&I University; then went into ranching with his father. He married Bennie Rae Lowrance, daughter of S.A. Lowrance and Alice Humphrey Lowrance in Yoakum on August 4, 1951. Bennie Rae was born in DeWitt County, on the home place of Alfred Lowrance, her grandfather, on November 27, 1930. She and Dutton have three children. Their first child is Robert Dutton Lane, born October 9, 1954 in Yoakum. Robert Dutton attended school in Cuero and graduated from A&M University with a degree in Agricultural Economics. He married Denise Barker of Alice on September 20, 1980, and they have three children: Travis Shay, a son from an earlier marriage of Denise; Amber Lee, born May 24, 1982; and Dutton Trevor, born February 2, 1985. Robert Dutton and his family live in Alice, and he ranches in the Cuero, Laredo and Alice areas.

Candyce Lane was the second child. She was born on July 31, 1956 in Cuero. Candyce attended school in Cuero and graduated from Sam Houston State University in 1979 with a degree in Music Education. She lives in Florida and teaches music in the elementary grades.

The third child was Sherri Lane. She was born on November 7, 1962 in Cuero. She attended school in Cuero and after graduating from high school went to A&M University. She completed three years of college and went into the food management business. She is currently with Professional Food Services of Dallas and lives in Fort Worth.

LANE, DANIEL TAD (BOBBY)

F561

Daniel Tad "Bobby" Lane, the second child and only son of Harold N. "Fritz" Lane and his wife Marion, was born in Cuero, July 28, 1947. He attended school in Westhoff, Bloomington, Tivoli, Duncanville and Cuero in Texas as well as in Alaska two years. In Alaska he attended sixth grade in 1959 to 1960 at Afognak (the town of Afognak was destroyed by the devastating earthquake and tidal wave of 1962 and the community was rebuilt on the Island of Kodiak by Lions Clubs, and renamed Port Lions) and seventh grade in Anchorage. On Afognak Island, he was able to go on a bear hunt and do much mountain hiking and exploring with his father as well as participating in an Englishspeaking culture with unique Russian-Aleut customs. Bobby graduated from high school in Cuero, and attended Victoria College a short time before enlisting in the Navy for four years.

In the Navy, Bobby became a radarman on a destroyer. In the fall of '68, he was able to get a leave to drive the family to the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City. While in the Navy, he experienced a Mid-East patrol around the coast of Africa to Bahrain, and a NATO cruise in Europe. Upon his return from the Navy, he married Fern Jeanette Palmer, a Cuero girl born in Gonzales, October 6, 1951, to C.C. Palmer, Jr. and wife Marie. Fern was a member of the honor society in high school and also at Victoria College, where she received her Associate of Arts degree. She and Bobby were married in Grace Episcopal Church in Cuero, December 4, 1971.

Bobby received his degree in Business Administration from Southwest Texas in 1974.

LANE, HAROLD NICHOLS "FRITZ"

F562

Harold N. "Fritz" Lane and Marion Lane, 1981 Ambergris Caye in the Caribbean.

Harold Nichols "Fritz" Lane, the fourth child of S.W. Lane III "Tad", was born on the ranch near Lindenau, September 7, 1919. His mother, Baby Lee, chose the name "Nichols", as her mother-in-law, Eliza, wanted him named "Lazarus" for her father, Lazarus Nichols. However, when her father-in-law looked down at the new blond baby, he commented, "He looks just like a little Fritz" — a German neighbor — and "Fritz" he became. Fritz attended first grade at Lindenau, riding horseback with his sister Siddy; but then the family moved into Cuero so Sam IV could continue his education. After Tad bought the old Buchel house on Indianola and Broadway, near the home of his Aunt Lou Lane Schleicher on Terrell and West Live Oak, Fritz was tutored and read to from her extensive library of classics. (His great-aunt was a natural teacher, and before her marriage to George Schleicher in Gonzales, had tutored in the home of Judge Graves there - Mary Sue Graves Hamilton's mother was one of her students).

When the Depression hit the farm and ranch community of Cuero, the Tad Lane family moved back to the ranch; but Lou and George became house parents for Fritz, so he spent weekends and vacations on the ranch, learning to love the out-of-doors with his brother, Sam, and his father. Fritz graduated in Cuero at sixteen and attended A&M; but after his third bout with pneumonia there in two years, the college advised his mother to send him to a drier climate. While at Sul Ross at Alpine, Fritz first learned to fly. In May, 1941, he was drafted into the Army Air Corps and spent the next four and one-half years being sent to each new school the Air Corps had, as an observerreporter. He was an instructor in mental and physical reconditioning for men returning from combat in the Pacific to the Santa Maria, California, Hospital.

Sam, his Marine brother, was killed on Guam in 1944; and on April 9, 1945, Fritz married Marion Ruth Eichenlaub, a high school teacher from St. Paul, Minnesota, whose brother had also been killed by the Japanese in 1944. She was born in St. Paul September 16, 1917, and after high school worked as a copy reader for West Publishing company and the St. Paul Pioneer Press-Dispatch, earning her B.A. degree from Macalester College in 1941. She has taught school wherever she and Fritz have lived; and when Fritz returned to Sul Ross to get his degree, Marion attended also and earned her M.A.

At Sul Ross, with two young children, Fritz was an honor student; and when Dan (Hoss) Blocker starred in "Green Pastures", he urged Fritz to accept a part, which he did. After graduating, Fritz and Marion moved to Austin, Fritz working on his M.A. and Marion beginning a doctorate. Fritz was applying for parttime work when he met a superintendent from Raymondville, needing a teacher desperately, so he accepted and moved his family to the Valley. When they were in Cuero for Thanksgiving, their fourth child was born. Fritz liked new challenges, so in addition to teaching, he has owned and operated dairies, raised turkeys, owned and operated shrimp boats and a live-bait business on the Texas Coast, and was one of the forty or so men who started up the Carbide plant at Long Mott near Seadrift, and he operated the Cuero office of the Texas Department of Public Welfare. It was while he was in this last sedentary work in 1968, that he had his first serious health problems, having carotid artery and lung surgery that same year. While still recuperating, he took his family to the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City, with his Navy son, Bobby, driving.

Fritz and Marion's four children were all born at the Bohman Hospital. Marion Ruth "Tinker" born October 4, 1946, graduated from high school in Cuero, married Jimmy Carl Whitley, and they were attending college in Denton when Kimberly Lane Whitley was born. Kim is now working on her doctorate in psychology at Commerce, Texas, and has two children. Tinker earned her B.A. and M.A. degrees at Southwest Texas in Special Education and teaches in Cuero. She is married to Charles Stanley Cox from Alabama, and their daughter, Misti Dawn, is in kindergarten in Cuero. Charlie is an instrumentation specialist with H.B. Zachery.

Daniel Tad "Bobby", their second child, is listed separately.

Their third child, Barbara Lee, born October 7, 1950, was a cheerleader and UIL drama participant through high school and got her degree in Drama Education from the University of Texas. She was married at the First Presbyterian Church in Cuero September 8, 1973, to Robert Edward Glodt, Jr., of San Angelo, an A&M graduate and an independent entomologist at Plainview. Barbara is in the D.A.R. and is teaching there; and they have two sons: Tyler Edward and Travis Blair.

Cynthia Ann, their fourth child, was born November 24, 1951, during Thanksgiving vacation. After graduation from Cuero High School, she attended Victoria College a short time, then married Emil Mayenzet of New York, and they have one child Ingra Lee, born in Port Lavaca. Cynthia later married Jeffrey Dean of Louisiana, and they have two daughters: Dallas Marie and Leigh Ann. Cynthia and Jeff live in Louisiana, and she teaches restaurant management.

The Lane family went to Alaska the year it changed from a territory to a state, 1959. They lived there for two years; the first year both parents taught school on Afognak Island which was culturally Russian-Aleut; and the second year the family lived in Anchorage so Tinker could continue her schooling. Marion taught there and Fritz flew their Cessna 175 for Williams Brothers, who were laying a pipeline from the Kenai to Anchorage. After they returned to Texas, Fritz returned seasonally to Alaska as a big game guide for the southern region. He was preparing a Kodiak bear hunt for Roy Rogers and his party when the Good Friday earthquake and tidal wave occurred. He had recently read about the speed of a tidal wave, and knowing the epicenter of the earthquake from his marine short wave, he was able to prepare so his boat and crew survived, and they were able to go to the assistance of another remote settlement. This 8.4 quake on the Richter scale was so strong that water in the Guadalupe sloshed at the old Cuero dam and in swimming pools in Houston.

Later Fritz ranched on an extensive scale on leases in DeWitt County, always having laborers with him due to his limited lung capacity -"You don't grow a new lung". After thirty-three years of teaching (nineteen in Cuero) Marion retired in 1978, and was able to accompany Fritz and his crew taking a boat around the Yucatan to Central America, where Fritz established a transportation business on a Caribbean Island, flying back to Cuero frequently in their Cessna 210. After four years, Fritz retired, and they lived in the state of Vera Cruz in Mexico two years, when Fritz had to have carotid artery repair and by-pass surgery. Their son, Bobby and family live in the house Fritz and Marion built - the first house built in Brayton Park after it became city property - and Fritz and Marion live in a house across the street, both houses on the corner of Thomas and Terrell.

LANE, SAMUEL WINSTON, I, AND ANN MARY CATHERINE PUCKETT

F563

Samuel Winston Lane, the first of that name in DeWitt County, was from a line of Lanes who embarked from England on "Ye Expectation" for the Colonies in 1635. He was born March 31, 1823 in Florence, Alabama, where his mother must have been visiting her parents, as the family was living in Tennessee. His father was Col. Tidence Lane, born in Tennessee, and a veteran of the War of 1812; and his mother was Abigail Hughes (Hewes) Thomas, born in North Carolina. His father helped lay out the town of Athens in McMinn County, Tennessee, but removed his family to Brandon, Rankin County, Mississippi, probably in the 30's to raise cotton. When Tidence was having financial difficulty in the 40's, Samuel told his father to keep his brother Nathaniel in college as he was a gifted Latin Scholar, and Samuel would make his own way. (Brother Nat was struck on the head by a sentry while in military service, was missing several days, and was found at the home of an uncle, babbling in Latin. He never recovered and never married).

It was probably before the Mexican War that Samuel came to Texas as a "drummer" selling sewing machines. In the Mexican War he was a corporal in Company E, First Regiment, Mississippi Volunteer Infantry; and this unit under Col. Jefferson Davis passed through Texas to fight in the battles of Monterey and Buena Vista. For this service he received a military bounty land warrant for 160 acres in Wisconsin, which he sold in January, 1848. On the 1850 Rankin County census, he was listed as a twenty-six-year-old farmer of 1,100 acres of land, with his nineteen year old wife. (He was married at Brandon October 9, 1849, to Ann Mary Catherine Puckett, born at Brandon January 16, 1832, to Dr. Samuel Murrell Puckett, a physician, and his wife, Mary Jane Matthews).

On the 1850 census enumeration, Pucketts were 237 and Samuel was 247 – the proximity of the two households bearing out the family story that Ann Mary's mother disapproved of her headstrong oldest child's marriage at sixteen and would not allow her or her husband in her home, though she could see her daughter's house on the hill from her porch. (Ann Mary's will states that she was the oldest child, so the twenty-three-year-old Puckett on this census must have been a nephew).

Then one of Ann Mary's four younger children, revelling in a parade, was being deliberately jostled by another boy. When the harrassment continued, the Puckett boy stabbed the tormenter with his knife. Sam Lane was able to get his young brother-in-law out of Mississippi and into Mexico. The boy wrote to his mother from Mexico that she should accept Sam as a son, for he had saved his life.

In the summer of 1851, after the birth of their first child, Sam and Ann Mary emigrated to DeWitt County and settled on a farm on Sandies Creek on the Tobias Wentworth League. There he built a log cabin with a stick and branch arbor in front, and became a stock raiser and a buyer and seller of land. In 1865 he became very ill with the painful complications of typhoid and died at their home in Clinton September 27 at the age of forty-two, leaving his widow with five children - the oldest fourteen. The following year the youngest child, James, died at the age of eighteen months and was buried beside his father at the Clinton Cemetery. Ann Mary remained at Clinton, selling land as needed to educate her children.

The two oldest daughters were married in Clinton: Mary Jane, the second oldest, was married January 17, 1870 to William Mayo Atkinson of Virginia, and they made their home in Gonzales where he bought the college property and built a home; and Cora Wharton Lane, the oldest child, married Sterling Fontaine Grimes of Kentucky December 12, 1871. Sterling had fought for the Confederacy and was held prisoner at Camp Douglas, Chicago, for more than a year, along with most of his regiment under General John H. Morgan. After the war he returned to Kentucky; and he came to DeWitt County in 1867 and read law, passing the bar in 1871. He was county attorney for three years, district attorney of the twenty-fourth judicial district for ten years, and was district judge from 1892-1896. About 1890 Cora took their son and daughter to Kentucky to visit, and all three died of a fever and were buried there. Sterling died in Cuero at the age of seventy-five, but was always Ann Mary's attorney and advisor.

of her sister, Mary Jane, in Gonzales September 1, 1896, to George Johnston Schleicher, son of Congressman and Colonel Gustave Schleicher, who was one of the founders of Cuero and was instrumental in bringing the railroad to Cuero.

Congressman Schleicher died in Washington during his third term in office when George the oldest child, was only fifteen. (George's father was so large that the Congress had to have a special chair built for him). After his father died, the family came to Cuero, and George went to work for the Buchel interests, deferring college til later. He finally studied law at Columbia University in New York, graduating with honors just before his marriage. He practiced law in Cuero; his office was in the first block of west Main, next to the Buchel Bank, and he and Lou built a large twostory home on the northwest corner of Terrell and West Liveoak. Lou was actively interested in literature and current affairs. Lou and George had no children, but were house parents during school to Ann Mary and Sam's grandson, Harold Nichols (Fritz) Lane. Both Lou and George died (after Fritz was at A&M) in the thirties, and are buried at Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

Ann Mary Puckett Lane died in Cuero January 16, 1912, and is buried in Hillside Cemetery in the Lane plot. Her infant son, James, was reinterred beside his mother as her will requested. (Her husband's grave at Clinton Cemetery has been called Cuero's oldest surface burial vault).

LANE, SAMUEL WINSTON, II AND ELIZA NICHOLS

F564

Samuel Winston Lane, II, the fourth child born to Samuel Winston Lane, I, and his wife, Ann Mary Catherine Puckett, was born in Clinton, August 1, 1862. His father died when he was only three, leaving his thirty-three-year-old mother with considerable property and five children, between the ages of fourteen and four months. A little more than a year later, his little brother, James, died at the age of eighteen months.

Samuel Winston Lane, II, grew up fatherless in the tumultuous times of the feuding seventies, when those who owned land and raised cattle were defending their investment from those who rustled cattle and sometimes allies with carpet-bag government. After the marriages of his two oldest sisters in their home in Clinton, his mother built a home in the budding town of Cuero (laid out in 1872) so Sam II could attend school at the Nash Academy there. His sister Loulou may have also attended the Nash Academy; but she went to Stanford Female College in Kentucky and graduated as valedictorian of her class. At fifteen Sam quit the Academy and went on a cattle drive "up the Trail" to Kansas.

Eliza Nichols, Sam's future wife, was born on Fulchears Creek in Gonzales County August 23, 1863 to Lazarus Nichols of Mississippi and his wife Margaret Louisa Means, a born Texan. He moved his family to Cheapside in DeWitt County and later bought land on the Elihu Moss League. When Eliza and her twin brother Elisha were fourteen, they entered the Nash Academy in Cuero. To enter them on his roll, Mr. Nash first asked Elisha how old he was. When he asked the same question of Miss Eliza, who was more mature, and received the same answer, the older children in the school laughed, so Eliza immediately stood up and announced, "Mr. Nash, we are twins!"

While a student at the Academy, Eliza boarded with Mr. Nash. He warned her against her friendship with her classmate, Sam Lane, saying, "He is a scamp and has the devil in him." Eliza's preparation under Mr. Nash was thorough that in 1881, when she entered the University of Texas as a charter member of the first Freshman Class, she was excused from two major Freshman courses. When it was time to return for her Sophomore year, her father was quite ill, so she did not attend further; and he died at their home in Clinton December 28, 1882. Like Mrs. Lane, the widowed Mrs. Nichols later built a home in the rising town of Cuero. (Her grandson, Ted Lane, located her home "back of the old Brown Hotel and across the street from Diebel's").

In about 1885, Sam Lane sent word to Eliza in Clinton that he would like to call on her at her mother's home. They were married in Clinton at her mother's September 30, 1886, by J.T. Gillett, an ordained minister, with witnesses Annie R. Blackwell and J.J. Pleasants. Samuel took his bride to his place on the Prairie that he had inherited from his father. She looked around for the cook he had promised her. Sam whipped out a cup-towel, tied it around his waist, and grinned, "I'm the cook." This left Eliza with a responsibility she disliked, and most of the stories of their sometimes stormy marriage concern food.

Sam Lane used a lot of salt on his food, but Eliza often forgot to put salt on the table. At one meal he stormed away from the table and came back with a shoe, a hammer, and a nail, nailed the shoe to the ranch table, filled it full of salt and said, "Now I guess we'll have salt!" Another food contention arose because he liked soda biscuits and she liked cornbread. If Sam went to town, he came back with meal; if Eliza went to town, she came back without flour. On one occasion, they both went to town, then quarreled over which bread would be prepared for the next meal. Sam cut a hole in the sack of commeal and walked around the outside of the house shaking meal on the ground; they met at the front gallery as Eliza was shaking his flour on the ground.

Sam also had a feisty mother-in-law, diminutive Margaret Louisa Means Nichols. She was born in what became Sabine County, as her grandmother, Rachel Means from Georgia, received a headright in her own name for land on the Pedernales, now a part of the LBJ Ranch. Her father William Means with his wife Frances, accompanied his mother to Texas in 1832, having one child in Louisiana enroute. William was a colonel at the battle of San Jacinto, Sabine County sheriff, its tax collector, and represented the County in the Eighth and Ninth Congresses, 1843-45, so Margaret Louisa born in Texas November 16, 1833, was truly a Texas Pioneer. Late one evening Sam was visiting Mrs. Nichols when the sky grew dark from an impending storm. She asked Sam if he was going home to Eliza and young "Tad" who were alone in the country; and since the storm of 1886, Eliza was frightened of storms. Sam said he wasn't going home, so Mrs. Nichols said, "Then I'm going. Ovie, hitch up the buckboard." As they neared the cemetery, with the sky darkening, a moaning white figure rose up and down several times among the graves. As the horse became nervous, Ovie said, "Miss Louisa, I cain't go no fu'ther. A ghost's in that cemetery." Mrs. Nichols took her hands out from under the half apron she always wore, and now holding a pistol said loudly, "Ovie, drive up to that gate. I've never seen a ghost, and I'll sure fill this one full of lead." Throwing off the sheet, Sam Lane stood up shouting, "Don't shoot."

Sam and Eliza were proud of their only child, "Tad", and they took great pleasure from his children, four of whom were born before Sam died. Once Sam asked his youngest grandson, four-year-old "Fritz", what he would like from town, and Fritz wanted a corncob pipe. When he awoke from his nap, the corncob pipe was in his mouth. Sam died in the Boothe Hospital in Cuero, October 29, 1923, at the age of sixty, and was buried as he wished beside Sandies Creek on his ranch, the grave surrounded with a chain-link fence. About 1940 Eliza moved into town and lived in the vacant house of her deceased sister-in-law, Lou Lane Schleicher. Eliza had her mother's spunk and lived to the age of ninety-one. She died in Cuero July 13, 1955, and is buried in the Lane lot at Hillside Cemetery.

LANE, SAMUEL WINSTON, III (TAD) AND NANNIE LEE WILLIAMS (BABY LEE)

Samuel Winston Lane, III, called "Tad," was born on his father's ranch on the prairie land he had inherited from his father. Tad was born August 20, 1887, and soon after that his father sold the Prairie land and they moved to the Elihu Moss League on land his mother, Eliza Nichols, had inherited from her father. Tad attended the Nash school in Cuero, which his parents had also attended. Tad's father raised cattle, and Tad was a country boy who loved to fish and hunt. As a small boy, one of his pastimes was to fashion a wire into a miniature branding iron and brand corncobs. As a married man with a family, he and his rural neighbors had frequent outings on the Sandies Creek or Guadalupe River, or held parties at each other's homes. As an older man he delighted in seeing his wife, children and grandchildren spend time at Indianola in the summer, swimming, fishing, crabbing - just as they had done in the Twenties when his wife had packed a trunk or two and taken their children there.

As a young man, Tad had a horse, Rondo, that he rode when he was courting Baby Lee Williams at Westhoff. Baby Lee was born at

S.W. "Tad" Lane

Blanconia in Bee County, December 1, 1893, to Timothy Clinton Williams, of Colonial Welsh stock, and his wife, Thrula Kimball of Louisiana. She was christened Nannie Lee, but as the twelfth of thirteen children, "Baby Lee" was always her name. Her mother died when Baby Lee was two and her baby brother, Thrula, was two weeks old. The motherless baby was reared by a sister of his mother's; but Baby Lee was kept with the family as her sister Ada Mae kept house even when they moved to El Campo (Wharton County Census, 1900). When Ada Mae married William J. LeBauve in 1901, she took Baby Lee with her, and in 1902 enrolled her in Holy Child Jesus Convent School in New Orleans. There she made several good friends whom she visited after her son, Sam, was killed on Guam. When she was about seventeen, she returned to Texas, where her two railroad brothers, who lived in Victoria, Arthur and Timothy Williams, sent her to the Nazareth Academy there. Her free time was spent in Westhoff with her sister Lena, whose husband, David Winn, was station master. It was here that she met Tad Lane, who courted this spirited young beauty who rode a horse down the streets of Westhoff with her hair flying behind her in the wind. Tad came courting with old Rondo and a buggy; and often with Tad asleep on the way home, Rondo would cross Sandies Creek at the Hamilton Place and take him safely home. Tad and Baby Lee were married in the Westhoff Baptist Church, January 2, 1912 by Pastor J.S. Bowles; and the reception was held at the Wallis Ranch, home of Jack Wallis' parents.

Though Tad was married and had a family, was an only son, and was engaged in the production of food, he was drafted into the Army in World War I; but when these things were noted in San Antonio, he was sent back to ranching.

The story of the first child of Tad and Baby Lee, Samuel Winston, IV, is the next entry.

Their second child was Thrula Mae, named for Baby Lee's mother and for the sister Mae who took her to New Orleans with her. Thrula Mae, called "Siddy," was born February 16, 1914, on the Lane Ranch. She rode horseback to school in Lindenau with her brother, Sam, until the family moved into Cuero in 1925, as Sam had completed the eight grades taught at Lindenau. Siddy married Walter Christian Sager of Arneckeville, and they had one child, Walter, Jr., called "Bucky." Siddy and Walter were divorced, and during World War II, Siddy married a Brayton Field pilot from Wisconsin, Frederick Otto Zentner; and they had one child, Frederick Lane Zentner. Fred was killed flying an unarmed reconnaissance plane in Korea, and is buried at Ft. Sam Houston National Cemetery. Siddy later married Emil Penner, a California rancher and cattle buyer, and she and her sons lived there for a time. She and Emil came to Cuero and built a beautiful home on North Terrell, that was sold after her death February 11, 1969. Siddy is buried in the Lane lot in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

For the story of the third child, Ann Mary, see "Ann Mary Lane Wofford."

The fourth child, Harold Nichols Lane, called "Fritz" is an earlier "Lane" entry.

Their fifth child, Arthur Dutton Lane, is also a separate entry above.

Baby Lee was devastated when her firstborn, Sam IV, was killed on Guam. She suffered from severe hypertension, and was in the Bohman Hospital, too sick to be told when in 1952 Sam's body was returned from Guam to Ft. Sam Houston for military burial. She died in a coma shortly thereafter, November 11, 1952, at the age of fifty-nine. Tad continued to run the ranch with the help of Dutton and Fritz. He died in the Cuero Bohman Hospital after a two-year illness, December 11, 1966, at the age of seventy-nine, and is buried beside Baby Lee at Hillside Cemetery in the Lane lot in Cuero.

LANE, SAMUEL WINSTON, IV AND RUTH JENNINGS

F566

Samuel Winston Lane IV. 1940 Senior Texas

Samuel Winston Lane IV was born October 14, 1912, son of Samuel Winston Lane III and Nannie Lee Williams Lane. His parents lived in Cuero, Texas, but he was born at the P.&S. Hospital in San Antonio, Texas.

He attended school in DeWitt County and Cuero. In 1932 he went to school in Kentucky at Stuart Robinson School. It was there that he met Ruth Eugenia Jennings, daughter of Dr. Thomas Jennings and Ruth Stokes Jennings of Whitesburg, Kentucky.

They were married October 7, 1933 at Bowling Green, Kentucky. They returned to Cuero, Texas, where they lived on the Lane Ranch.

One child was born to this union, Samuel Winston Lane V, July 19, 1934. This child suffered a severe illness in 1935, which left him profoundly deaf. This deafness of Samuel Winston Lane V changed the course of the lives of this small family.

In 1936 Samuel Winston Lane IV entered Texas A&M University. He graduated in 1940. He was in the first class to graduate at A&M in Wild Life Management. He was employed by Texas Wild Life Commission as a Fresh Water Biologist until 1942, when he enlisted in the Marine Corp.

He was commissioned Second Lieutenant in 1943. He was on active duty with the Fifth Marine Division in the Pacific War area until his death on July 21, 1944 in the retaking of Guam. He received the Bronze Star, the Purple Heart and the Asian Pacific medals.

Samuel Winston Lane IV is buried in Sam Houston National Cemetery in San Antonio,

The deafness of Samuel Winston Lane V took him and his brother to Austin, Texas, for his education at the Texas School for the Deaf. He graduated in 1954. He attended Gaulludet College in Washington D.C. He was later employed at the Texas School for the Deaf.

He married Dewanna J. Clark, daughter of Tracy and Opal Clark, of Hope, Arkansas, on January 26, 1958. They had four children: Samuel Winston Lane, VI, born November 18, 1958; Julie Ann Lane, born September 16, 1960; David Timothy Lane, born December 19, 1961; and William Clark Lane, born July 1, Samuel Winston Lane, V, died September 28, 1974. He is buried at Forest Lake Cemetery in Oak Hill, Texas.

There is one granddaughter, Michelle Erin Lane-Pace, daughter of Julia Ann Lane.

All of the children of Samuel Winston Lane, V, live in the Austin, Texas, area and are connected with the Texas School for the Deaf in the education field. Their grandmother, Ruth Jennings Lane Billingsley, also lives in the Austin area.

LANGHOFF, EDMUND AND JOHN C.

F567

Edmund Langhoff was born November 28, 1899, the son of Charles, who emigrated from Spandau, West Berlin, and Anna Stratmann Langhoff. Lenore Kuck was born October 8, 1898, the daughter of J.J. and Helene Gerdes Kuck. Edmund Langhoff and Lenore Kuck were married October 19, 1927 in Holy Cross Lutheran Church, Yoakum, Texas by Pastor

Edmund A. and Lenore K. Langhoff, 1974.

Standing: John Allen and David. Seated: Laurie, Kathryn, and John C. Langhoff, 1984.

Edmund and Lenore lived in the same house on Hochheim Prairie, where they engaged in farming and ranching, since their marriage 62 years ago.

Their son, John Carlton, was born January 29, 1932, during the great depression.

In the 1930's, we had to diversify farming because cotton didn't have much value any more. We began to milk cows and sell milk and cream. Elton Zander and later Albert Dedear picked up our cans of milk for delivery to the Swift Co. in Yoakum. (This is now the Tex Tan Western Building next to H.E.B. in Yoakum.)

During these early married years before 1940, we had no electricity. We had a carbide gas lighting system with pipes from the generator to each room. Due to no electricity or refrigerators, the community families formed a meat club. Every Saturday someone in the meat club would butcher a calf and take it to Hochheim Prairie School where Mr. Dieringer would cut it into large portions. All members would bring a sack of fresh meat home for Saturday dinner.

During the war years, cotton was again in demand and we were able to raise a bale per acre annually which was an excellent crop at that time.

Edmund was a prosperous farmer who was able to add to his land holdings by acquiring part of the Schumacher estate in 1940. John C. Langhoff now lives on this property. He also bought 217 acres of land from the Moore Estate in Gonzales County near Dreyer in 1948.

Edmund served as an appraiser for Hochheim Prairie Trunk Society Insurance for 20 years and later as president. He was president of Hochheim Prairie Hermann Sons Lodge #90 for two years and served on the church council of Holy Cross Lutheran Church.

Edmund passed away on June 26, 1976 and is buried at the Hermann Sons Cemetery on the Hochheim Prairie.

John C. Langhoff graduated from Yoakum High School in the Class of 1949. This class published the first edition of our school annual. The Bow Wow. During those years we rode bicycles, walked or rode buses to school. To have a motorbike or a car at school was unusual. There was no parking problem at YHS.

During 1949-51, John attended Texas Lutheran College, later transferring to Texas A&I to earn a B.S. degree in Agriculture in John was employed by the Soil Conservation Service of the USDA in Brenham, Texas, in 1953. The S.C.S. office was in the Washington County Courthouse where John met Kathryn Roese, from Washington, Texas. They were married October 9, 1955, at Friedens Evangelical and Reformed Church at Washington, Texas. Kathryn is the daughter of Reinhardt and Frieda Holle Roese of Washington, Texas.

John was Executive Officer of the National Guard, Company B, 386th Engineers of the 49th Armored Division, when the division was mobilized October 15, 1961. Getting combat ready for the Berlin Crisis proved to be long days of hard work. We were combat ready in four months. Thank God we were not needed.

While living in Brenham, the Langhoff family was increased December 12, 1959, when John Allan arrived. David Charles was born December 12, 1960 and Laurie Ann, October 29, 1962.

John and Kathryn moved to Yoakum in June of 1973 and moved into their home on the Hochheim Prairie June 21, 1974.

John has been employed by Parke, Davis & Co. as a pharmaceutical salesman since April 14, 1958. He is owner and operator of the Windy Hill Brangus Farm raising bulls and heifers for seed stock.

John serves as Republican Party County Chairman since 1984. Under his leadership the Republican primary election has grown to 16 or our 17 election precincts.

John Allan has a M.S. degree in Petroleum Engineering from Texas A&M University and married Nancy Ann Davis of Cuero on August 4, 1984. They were blessed with the birth of Brian Allan Langhoff on Sept. 12, 1987 in Rangely Colorado.

David Charles is a 1983 graduate of the University of Texas with a B.S. degree in Pharmacy. David purchased Zatopek Pharmacy, 121 Main St. in Weimar, Texas in July of 1987. He is engaged to be married to Peggy Guenther of Weimar.

Laurie Ann is a 1985 graduate of the University of Texas with a B.S. degree in Pharmacy. Laurie is employed as a staff pharmacist at Citizens Medical Center at Victoria.

LEGGETT, OTTIS F. AND MARY J. SHAW

Ottis F. Leggett was born in Williamsburg, Lavaca County, Tx. on February 25, 1892. His parents were James Newton and Ida Sarah Wilson Leggett. He married Mary Jane Shaw, March 29, 1914 in Hallettsville, Tx. Their first home was at Mossy Grove, a small settlement about 8 miles from Hallettsville. Her parents were Wm. and Elizabeth Percival Cave Shaw.

The Leggetts came to America from England in 1753 about the time that General Braddock's forces came over. The tradition is that the family migrated to England from France about the time of the Norman Invasion. There were three brothers, lawyers, in England who were called Legates — from this the name came to be Leggett.

Our part of the family settled in West Virginia and Tennessee. John Leggett, a great, great grandfather of Ottis F. was born in North Carolina, probably about 1775. He married Nancy Jackson in 1803. She was a first cousin to Andrew Jackson. Some of the family moved to Miss. and then to Tenn. and from there they came to Texas in 1842. They settled in Williamsburg, Lavaca County, Tx. and were farmers, raised cattle and turkeys, hauled lumber, raised their own grain and had large gardens. Their friends and neighbors were like family and they helped one another when the need arose.

James Newton Leggett, the father of Ottis F., and his family moved to Goliad, Tx. in 1915 and Ottis F. and family moved in 1919. In 1936, Ottis and his family moved to Yorktown, DeWitt County and in 1941 they moved to Cuero.

Mary Jane Percival Cave Shaw was born in Williamsburg, Lavaca County, Tx. on July 22, 1891. Her parents, Wm. and Elizabeth Shaw, came from Middlesborough, England in 1884 and settled in Williamsburg, Lavaca County Tx. Elizabeth's maiden name was Percival and William's family name was Cave when he lived in England but when they moved to America, they changed their name to Shaw. No one seems to know why, but all of the children born in America had Percival Cave on their birth certificates.

William Shaw taught school for a while but also engaged in farming and ranching. Elizabeth took care of the children and was always ready to help out as a nurse when anyone in the neighborhood was sick. They had eleven children — one was born in Middlesborough, Eng. and one was born on board the ship on the way to America — the other children were born in and around the Williamsburg area. They were very active in their little community and in the church and on Sundays they would take their lunch and spend the day there.

Ottis and Mary Jane lived a similar life — farming and ranching, raising their own live-stock, hogs, turkeys, chickens, etc. They had large vegetable gardens, summer, spring and fall. Mary Jane did all the canning of the vegetables, caring for the children, sewing for the family and for others who needed help. She loved to quilt and crochet and always had three or four projects going at the same time. With both sides having large families, they never lacked for company and, of course, that meant preparing meals. I still marvel at the way she could prepare a meal for 20 or 30. It was always a feast — she never worried about cholesterol!

Ottis loved to hunt and fish and always had five or six hunting dogs ready to go when anyone called. There was a group that he played dominoes and cards with and I know that was his favorite pastime.

Ottis and Mary Jane had eight children but on Jan. 1, 1946, there was a terrible tragedy: a train wreck at Burns Crossing, two hundred yards in front of their house, killed three of their daughters, a granddaughter and a sisterin-law. Two of the daughters had gone into town to pick up the other sister and aunt and on the way back home the accident happened. There were two small grandsons who survived the crash. How this happened has never been determined. It was an ordeal that few people could have lived through, but with their faith and the support of their other children, relatives and friends, they carried on.

In a few years they bought a home, with acreage on the Yoakum Highway, a few miles from Cuero. They continued to do some farming, mostly grain for their cattle and a large vegetable garden, and raised their own chickens and turkeys. They lived there until Ottis's death in July of 1965. Mary Jane lived there a year after his death but sold the farm and moved to town in 1966. She loved her home in town and made many new friends, young and old. She was very active and her home was always open to the children, grandchildren and great grandchildren who kept her busy. I believe that one of the most treasured memories that we all share is that on Christmas Eve, we would all be at Grandma's house. She passed away July 27, 1987 at age 96.

The Leggett children were: Dorothy Faye, born Jan. 10, 1915, Mossy Grove, Lavaca County, Tx. Attended school in Goliad, Tx. Married B.W. Kirkwood in 1933 in Goliad. Had 3 children, Beverly, Roger, and Butler. Dorothy and her daughter were both killed in the train accident. Roger lives in Ennis Tx. and Butler lives at Lolita, has 2 daughters.

Blanche S., born July 4, 1917, Mossy Grove. Attended school in Goliad Tx. While in high school she worked in a beauty salon and when she finished school she moved to Victoria and opened her own business. She married Lyn. Goldsum in Victoria, Tx., Nov. 4, 1934. They had one daughter, Jolynne. Blanche was killed in the train accident and her daughter was raised by her grandmother, Mrs. Goldsum in San Antonio. Jolynne is married to Bob Mowery and they have two sons, Doug and Rick.

Grace Lufborough, born in Mossy Grove, Lavaca County. (See C.E. Gips Story)

William Raymond, born in Goliad, Tx., Feb. 9, 1921. Attended school in Goliad and Yorktown, graduated from Yorktown High School and worked a year for Groce Wearden Wholesale Co. World War II had just begun and he enlisted in the Air Force in 1942. He served in the 5th Air Force, Squadron 240, as an electronics operator. After his basic training his squadron was sent to the South Pacific, New Guinea. While there he became ill with jungle fever (a type of malaria) and was sent back to the states to recuperate. When the war was over he returned to Cuero, where his parents lived, and married a girl he had met while in the service in Washington, Shirley Niblack. He and his brother-in-law, Clif Gips, went into the radio and T.V. business in 1946. (See Gips T.V.) Ray and Shirley had two daughters, Janey and Raychel. Janey is now married and lives in Alaska. Raychel is also married and lives in Calif. Shirley had moved back to Washington where she passed away in 1987.

Ralph Douglas, born in Goliad, Tex., July 13, 1923. Attended school in Goliad and Yorktown. Graduated from Yorktown High School and worked at Dow Chemical in Freeport, Tx. for about a year. Enlisted in the Air Force and after basic training was sent to the European theater. After the war was over he returned to Texas and entered A&I College in Kingsville. After graduating from college in 1950, he went to work for Geo. and Herman Brown in the ranching business in Bracketville. He married Christine Craft in 1950. They have four children, Douglas, Jessie D., D'Ann, and Dawn. Jessie D. is married and has 4 children, D'Ann is married and has 2 daughters. Ralph and Christine lived in Bracketville for a few years and then moved to Anahuac, Tx. He continued to work for the Browns until they passed away. He then went into the ranching business in Bracketville and still lives there.

Lorna Jerene, born in Goliad, Tx. Nov. 16, 1925. Attended school in Goliad and Yorktown. Graduated from Yorktown High School and soon after went to work at Foster Field Air Base in Victoria. She married Charles Reese, an Air Force pilot, in Calif. in 1944. She and Charles had one son, Charles Jr. Lorna was killed in the train accident and her husband and son moved to Morgan, Tx.

Lois Evelyn, born in Goliad, Tx., Dec. 14, 1927. Attended school in Goliad, Yorktown and Cuero. Graduated from Cuero High School and worked in Victoria for a year. Married Charles Fischer in 1947. They have six children, Charles Jr., Mark, Mary, Barbara Lou, Daniel, and Cindy. They now live at Colleta Creek near Victoria.

Billie Jo, born in Goliad, Tx., Sept. 10, 1933. Attended school in Yorktown and Cuero. Graduated from Cuero High School and worked a year at the ASC office in Cuero. Married Bob Wagner of Cuero in 1950. They have three children. Reed and his wife live in Cuero and have 2 children. Richard, is a lawyer and lives in San Antonio, Tx. Sandra Faye is married to Ward McCampbell, they have a daughter and live in Corpus Christi, Tx.

LEMPA, VINCENT FAMILY

F569

Vincent Lempa, son of Frank Lempa and Agnes Jancyk, was born in Schlesien, Ger many on June 6, 1869. He and his wife Mary daughter Sophie and son Ludwig arrived fron Germany at the port of New York on the vesse Aragonia about June 30, 1897.

Vincent and Mary Lempa and their two small children came to the United States with Mary's parents, John and Rosalia Arlt Hadamek. The families arrived in Galveston and came by wagon to Meyersville, DeWitt County Lempa Family: Elizabeth, Nick, Julia, Joe, Sophie, Gertrude, Mary. Front: Frank, Anne, Vincent, Frances (baby), Mary and Hedwig.

lernard and Lucy Lempa

Texas.

Their possessions were packed in a huge black trunk with a rounded top. The trunk still remains in the family. DeWitt Co. Court records show that in 1911 Vincent and Mary Lempa renounced their allegiance to Wm. II, Emperor of Germany, and became citizens of the U.S. of A. This citizenship also, included 11 of their children.

The Lempa family settled on the William Buehrig Sr. estate and were tenant farmers for ten years. They later bought a few hundred acres from Louis and Henry Reinhardt in the Five Mile Community. This property is still the Lempa estate. They raised cotton, corn, hay, and cane. Each year they sent a hundred turkeys to market. The family prided itself on a garden and orchard. They raised cattle, hogs, and chickens for food, and for sale.

While residing in Meyersville there were a number of children born to Vincent and Mary Lempa. All attended the St. Joseph's Catholic Church. When St. Joseph's Church was dismantled and moved to Yorktown, parishioners either took their membership to Holy Cross Church in Yorktown, or Sts. Peter and Paul in Meyersville. The Lempa family became members of St. Michael's Catholic Church in Cuero about 1920.

The older Lempa children attended school in Meyersville, then later they attended Five Mile School which was located on the Wm. Holzapfel estate. When that was moved the younger children attended school in Clinton. Later they were transferred to Ratcliffe as in this new district the ninth grade was taught.

Sophie Lempa (1895-1974) the oldest child, was twenty-two years of age when Mother Mary Lempa died in 1917. She helped her father rear the smaller brothers and sisters. The youngest was Frances, age three. In 1923 Sophie married Joe Plasczyk of Meyersville. They farmed in the Ratcliffe Community before moving into Yorktown. They are survived by two sons and two daughters.

Ludwig Lempa (1896-1911) the oldest son, was accidentally shot by a neighbor's son while the boys were squirrel hunting. He and his mother are buried in St. Joseph's Catholic Cemetery in Meyersville.

Joe Lempa (1897-1985) was drafted in WWI but the Armistice was signed and he was returned home. He married Adela Wisniewski of Lockhart. They were farmers and ranchers. They are survived by three sons and six daughters:

1) (1898-1900) Martha Lempa died from what was then simply known as convulsions from high fever; 2) (1900-1980) Julia Lempa married William Pullen of Cuero in 1920. They had five daughters. William and one daughter preceded Julia in death. Julia is buried in Austin; 3) (1901-1978) Nick Lempa was married to Catherine Garvel of Yorktown in 1926. They had no children. They farmed near Yorktown. Both are deceased; 4) (1902-) Elizabeth Lempa married Charles Martin in San Antonio in 1928. They separated while their son and two daughters were small. She and her children live in or near San Antonio; 5) (1904-63) Mary Lempa was church organist at St. Joseph's Catholic Church for several years. She married Ben Danysch of Yorktown in 1924. They moved to Karnes Co. and farmed. Two daughters died; but two sons and three daughters survive; 6) (1905-86) Frank Lempa and Susie Woytasczyk were married in Yorktown in 1933. He is survived by his wife and three daughters. He and an infant son are buried in Holy Cross Cemetery in Yorktown; 7) (1906-) Agnes Lempa married Daniel Foy in San Antonio in 1930. They later separated. Agnes and her only son, Dan Foy Jr., reside in San Antonio; 8) (1908-) Gertrude Lempa was married to Aubrey Melvin in 1933. Melvin was stationed at Ft. Sam Houston. They have two sons and a daughter; 9) (1910-1986) Anne Lempa served in the WAC during WWII. After her military stint she worked for the Bell Telephone Co. for 27 years in Los Angeles; 10) (1911-) Hedwig Gladys Lempa married Sgt. Harry L. Grubb. He also served in WWII. He is buried in Ft. Sam Houston Cemetery. Hedwig and her three daughters and four sons reside in or near San Antonio; 11) (1914-), I, Frances Lempa, was born in the Five Mile Community. I married James J. Peyton Jr. Our story follows

LENZ, CHARLES LUDWIG AND EMMA (MULLER)

F570

Charles Ludwig Lenz and Emma (Mueller) Lenz

August Ludwig Lenz

Charles Ludwig Lenz (1856-1935) was born in Yorktown, DeWitt County, Texas, on June 16, 1856. He was the son of August Ludwig Lenz (1828-1903) and Alwiena Augusta (Zedler) Lenz (1838-1898). His father immigrated to Texas from Landsburg, Germany, in 1854 and originally settled in New Braunfels. There he spent his funds in seeing the new country and, when forced to seek employment, went to Yorktown where he engaged in various occupations including well digging and rail splitting. He was married to Alwiena Augusta Zedler, the daughter of a German farmer in the community. For a time thereafter he worked at hauling freight from San Antonio to Indianola and in 1860 he opened a hotel, a bakery and a liquor store in Yorktown. During the Civil War he served with the Yorktown Hulan Reserve Company of Lancers as a sergeant. He served at Saluria, Texas, and participated in the battle at Indianola under Captain J.M. Reuss. When discharged, he returned to Yorktown to resume his businesses. He was the father of seven children: Charles, the subject of this story, Louis, Gus, Mary, Agnes, Matilda and Julia. He died in Yorktown in 1903.

Alwiena Augusta (Zedler) Lenz

When Charles was twelve years old, his mother, Alwiena Augusta (Zedler) Lenz, fell in love with a Dr. Frederick Bernard Schultz who also lived in Yorktown. He returned her love and one dark and stormy night the two ran away together and disappeared. She took her two daughters, Mary and Agnes, with her, but left her two sons, Charles and his younger brother, Louis, with their father. Dr. Schultz left behind a wife and three children. Charles was devastated by the loss of his mother and vowed to find her some day. His father ultimately remarried and had a second family and when Charles was sixteen years old, he left home and set out to fulfill his vow.

His first stop was New Orleans, but an epidemic of yellow fever caused him to leave abruptly and go to Cairo, Illinois. There his funds were exhausted and he was forced to secure employment as a section hand on the Illinois Central Railroad. When he received his first pay check he resumed his search and went to St. Louis where he worked for a time as a boot-black and as a clerk at the Tivoli Hotel. He soon left again and in succession went to Cincinnati, Ohio, through Kentucky, to Niagara Falls and to and through many other cities and towns on the way. At each stop he stayed only long enough to search the area and to secure the funds necessary to resume his journey. He eventually came to New York City where he worked for a paper company and a bakery until he had enough to travel to Europe. There he searched the old family haunts in and around the City of Landsberg, Province of Brandenburg, Prussia, from where his mother had come. He was in Europe three months, after which he returned to Galveston from the City of Bremen, Germany. In spite of all his efforts, he never did find his mother and, after eleven years of futile search, he gave up and returned to Yorktown.

Shortly after his return he met Johanna Maria Adelheit Emma Muller who, because of her many first names, was better known as Emma Muller. They were married in Yorktown on October 31, 1884. She was born in Madge-burg, Germany, on October 31, 1864. She was a daughter of Fredrick William Muller and Emelie Fechner Muller of that city. Her father, Frederick William Muller, was a music teacher and was very temperamental. When Emma was seventeen years of age, he was trying to teach his son, William Muller, to play the violin when, in a rage, he broke the violin over William's head. Emma, who was present at the time, criticized her father severely for his actions. In response he pointed to the door and ordered her to leave his house. She did and soon thereafter she came to America with an aunt and uncle and settled with them in Yorktown. Later they were joined by her mother's father, Heinrich W. Fechner, who, family legend has it, was forced to leave Germany because of an incident which occurred while he was serving in the German army. His company was camped on the banks of a river and nightly for some time their sleep was disturbed by the appearance of a "ghost" on the river bank who made strange noises and rattled heavy chains draped around his body. Everyone was thoroughly frightened except Heinrich W. He did not believe in ghosts and when his patience with the "ghost" was finally exhausted one night, he grabbed him and threw him into the river. The "ghost" drowned and, unfortunately, turned out to be one of the company's officers, who was obviously a great practical joker. Heinrich W. was forced to flee the company and the country and ended his days in Yorktown where he is now buried.

Charles and Emma Lenz moved from Yorktown to Cuero where they owned and operated a hotel and restaurant and a bakery and where he was for many years the consignee for the Anhauser Busch Beer Company. In addition to these businesses, Charles served for seventeen years as an alderman for the City of Cuero, resigning only when he moved from the city. He also served several terms as commissioner of Precinct One of DeWitt County. On one occasion Buffalo Bill Cody brought his wild west show to Cuero and staved at the Lenz Hotel. He and Charles became friends. Charles called him "Buffalo Bill" and he called Charles "Biffalo Bull" because Charles was a great talker and loved to "shoot the bull".

In the year 1909, when Charles was fiftythree years old, he and his wife, Emma, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary and an article about the celebration appeared in the Yorktown newspaper. Shortly thereafter he received a letter from his two long lost sisters. Mary and Agnes, who had been taken away by their mother forty-one years before. They had subscribed to the Yorktown newspaper and had learned from the article that their brother, Charles, was living in Cuero. They lived in Cape Girardeau, Missouri, where their mother and Dr. Schultz had settled. Charles did not wait to reply to the letter, but immediately boarded a train for Cape Girardeau. When he arrived he learned that both his mother and Dr. Schultz were deceased. At their request, his sisters had not endeavored to contact him until after their deaths. He learned, also, that in addition to his lost sisters, he had found seven half-brothers and sisters who were the children of his mother and Dr. Schultz, born during their lives together in Cape Girardeau. Although Charles was disappointed that he did not find his mother before she died, he always said that the story had a very happy ending because he not only found his long lost sisters, out he found seven half-brothers and sisters he lid know he had. Ironically, while Charles was touring the country, looking for his mother, he once came within twenty-five miles of Cape

In August of 1910, Charles sold his businesses and retired to an eighty acre tract of land which he purchased on the Guadalupe River, approximately two miles west of Cuero. There he built the home in which he and Emma lived for the rest of their lives.

In 1911 Charles and Emma traveled to Magdeburg, Germany to help her parents celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary. Emma and her father had long since reconciled. Their son, Louis Lenz, had just graduated from A.&M. College and was permitted to accompany them as his graduation present.

Charles was an avid collector. He collected antique rifles, pistols, daggers and swords, and fossils and curiosities of all kinds. During his lifetime he amassed the largest and most complete privately owned collection of American Indian artifacts in the state of Texas. He received contributions from all over the United States to add to his collection which, as it grew, became better and better known throughout the country.

Charles died in Cuero on July 1, 1935. Emma Lenz survived him by fifteen years and died in Cuero on July 18, 1950. They are both buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

Charles and Emma Lenz had five children: Louis, Charlotte, who married Hugo Boldt, Elsie, who married August C. Hartman, Jr., Estella and Margaret, who married Shellie G. Barnes.

Elsie (Lenz) Hartman (1893-1941) and August C. Hartman, Jr., (1882-1956) had two children, Hazel Ruth Hartman, who married Oscar Talbot McAlister, Jr., and Wayne Louis Hartman, who married Susan Emalee Wells. Their stories are given separately.

LIENHARD - FLICK

The Lienhard-Flick story begins with the emigration to Cuero of our great-grand-parents, John Wendell Lienhard from Bilten, Switzerland and his wife, Dorothea, from Oberelbert, Nassau, Germany and Frederick Flick and his wife, Anna, from Prussia.

The Flick and Lienhard families were united when Alvina Flick, daughter of Frederick and Anna Flick married Henry Joseph Lienhard, son of John W. and Dorothea Lienhard.

Children of this latter union were Dorothea Anna, Alvina (Lienhard) Ott, Wendell Frederick and Henry Joseph, Jr.

The Lienhard-Flick union produced many musical and teaching talents that were prominent in Cuero and surrounding communities subsequent to the year 1900. Alvina (Flick) Lienhard as a young girl of 16 was the first organist of St. Michael's Catholic Church, which her father helped found and she also gave piano lessons for many years. She had four sisters and six brothers. Her sister Carrier (Flick) Shield, Pauline (Flick) Matthews and Lydia (Flick) Collins were church organists at a later date - her sister, Bertha, was an accomplished vocalist. One brother, C. Roland Flick, moved from Cuero to Nashville, Tennessee where he composed music and was an accomplished pianist and violinist. Two other brothers, Raymond and Hubert, played in the Cuero municipal band directed by Henry J. Lienhard Sr. who was an accountant, music teacher and leader of the Cuero City Band, organized in 1882. His youngest brother, Albert, followed him in the directorship of the Band for a period of about 35 years. Two other brothers of Henry J. were William and Peter, lifetime ranchers in the Cuero area.

Between 1900 and 1935 the H.J. Lienhard family taught music to innumerable children in Cuero and the surrounding area. Alvina (Lienhard) Ott was a piano teacher for many years and also an organist at the Grace Episcopal Church. Henry J. Jr. played clarinet in the municipal band, a grandson, Charles Ott, played trombone in the band as well as did Wendell Frederick who went on to make music his career. He taught music, directed high school orchestras, composed and wrote musical scores for the students in his orchestras in Yorktown, Nordheim, Runge, Kenedy, Karnes City, Poth, Floresville, Stockdale and La Vernia. Also, in the 1920's he directed a 7 piece jazz orchestra playing for dances in the Yorktown area. In 1935, he retired from teaching and did complete piano rebuilding in the Gulf coast region until he was 80 years of age in 1970. His eldest sister, Dorothea, was known as "Miss Dora" to her Cuero school pupils for over four decades and she also was a choir member at Grace Episcopal Church for fifty years.

Most importantly to the writers of this historical excerpt is that on March 1, 1915 Wendell F. Lienhard married Miss Natalie Stark, daughter of Paul C. and Caroline Stark, pioneer settlers in Yorktown Texas. The couple were married in Grace Episcopal Church in Cuero. These two dear people were our devoted parents. They lived to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary.

LIESMAN, KENNETH GUY AND BILLIE NELL (JACOBS)

F572

Kenneth Guy Liesman and Billie Nell Jacobs Liesman have resided in Cuero since September, 1951, except for 2 1/2 years in Victoria in the late 1950s. Kenneth was born on March 1, 1927 in San Antonio, the second child and oldest boy of eight children born to Benno and Thusnelda Nolte Liesman. Upon graduation from Alice High School, Kenneth served in the U.S. Navy for three years at the end of World War II. He then attended Texas A&I College, graduating with a degree in Agricultural Education.

Billie was born and reared in San Antonio, the only child of William (Bill) Jacobs and Cornelia (Nellie) Marie Schindler Jacobs. After graduating from Jefferson High School and attending A&I College, Billie became certified as a Medical Technologist. Her father was an electrical contractor, eventually being half owner of Menger Electric Company in San Antonio. Due to his poor health, the Jacobs retired and moved to Cuero in 1953.

Having met at college, Kenneth and Billie married on September 2, 1950 in San Antonio at Zion Lutheran Church. After Ken's last year at A&I, they moved to Cuero in September 1951 and Ken went to work for Gay Implement Company, selling farm equipment and teaching veterans at night. In 1952, he went to work at DuPont Chemical Plant in Victoria where he worked until 1969 when he began teaching school in Cuero.

Today he is a school counselor with the DeWitt-Lavaca Co-Op program.

Kenneth and Billie are the parents of two sons, Randy Keith Liesman and Bruce David Liesman. Randy was born May 31, 1952 at the old Bohman Hospital. After graduating from Cuero High School, Randy earned a degree in business at U.T. at Austin where he continued on completing graduate courses in Business Administration. Today, he is a Senior Vice President of First City Bank in San Antonio. On October 19, 1980, Randy married Deborah Lynn Grafe of Cuero. They have one son, William Gage Liesman, born July 20, 1987.

Bruce was born on January 2, 1956, also at the Bohman Hospital. After graduating from Cuero High School, Bruce earned a B.A. in Drama and then a Doctor of Jurisprudence from U.T. at Austin. Presently, he is an attorney with Alamo Title in San Antonio. At college, Bruce met Anna Gangal and married her in Cuero on September 15, 1984. They have a daughter, Tessa Nathalia Liesman, born November 14, 1986.

Kenneth Liesman's family roots are in Comal, Blanco and Kendall Counties. Kenneth's parents were Beno William Liesman (12/30/1901 – 3/3/1985) and Thusnelda (Tess) Nolte Liesman (1/16/1905 – 5/25/1981). Beno William Liesman's parents were Edward Liesman and Emilie Kaderli Liesmann (4/30/1868 – 3/18/1953) who were married on July 1, 1886. Beno was the eleventh child of fourteen born to this couple. Emilie was born in St. Galien, Switzerland to Bennedict Kaderli and Anetta Zuend Kaderli.

Edward Liesman's parents were Heinrich (Henry) Liesmann (4/17/1833 - 6/2/1924) and Nathalia Schmidt Liesmann (1/26/1843 -2/18/1928) who were married May 11, 1862 in Boerne, Kendall County, Texas. Henry was born in Hanover, Germany, and immigrated to Texas by ship through Indianola in November, 1845 with his father, Georg Heinrich Luesemann (5/10/1809 - 4/25/1871). Henry was an early member of the Texas Rangers involved in numerous campaigns in West Texas fighting Indians and outlaw Mexicans. Nathalia was born in Coblenz am Rhein, Germany and was orphaned on the ship to Texas when her parents died three days apart of yellow fever in August, 1846. Henry and Nathalia had ten children which they raised on the family homestead ranch, a land grant from the Republic of Texas to his father in Twin Sisters, Blanco County, Texas. The couple is buried in a family plot on the ranch. George Henrich married three times moving to Comfort, Texas in 1855 as one of the founding families and is buried in the Comfort cemetery.

Kenneth's mother, Tess Nolte Liesman's parents were Alonzo Nolte and Bessie Elizabeth Soachting Nolte.

LINCKE, CHARLES F. AND EMMA (LUEDECKE)

F573

Charles F. and Emma (Luedecke) Lincke Sept. 16, 1886 Wedding Day

Everything was finally ready. Charles had rented a farm where his parents and siblings could live. He had received word that his family had departed Bremen on Oct. 10 and were expected to arrive in New Orleans as scheduled. After four long years, they would soon all be together again. Charles Ferdinand Lincke was prepared to introduce his family to their new home: Texas.

C.F. Lincke was the oldest child of Carl August Lincke (5/30/1834 – 2/19/1899) and Christiane (Pietschner) Lincke (5/12/1833 – 10/21/1900). Charles was born on September 13, 1858 in Reuss Schleiz Germany. He was baptized Lutheran.

In 1873, at the age of 15, Charles emigrated to Texas with a relative, C.W. Laas. He arrived in Galveston Oct. 20, 1873 on the vessel Camania bound from Hamburg. Charles lived with the Laas family until 1877 when he rented the Henniger farm between Shelby and the Schoenau Community in Austin Co. Tx. for his family. Charles' parents, brother Herman and sisters Louise, Alma, Pauline, Bertha and Emma arrived at the port of New Orleans in Nov. of 1877. They traveled across Texas where they were soon reunited with Charles.

Over the next few years, Charles lived with his family during which his musical career took hold and began to flourish. As a child in Germany, Charles had learned to play the violin and had listened to his father, Carl, play many German tunes on his own violin. In Texas, Charles made his own violin and by the age of 19, was playing in a band. He traveled around the area playing for dances and other community gatherings. It was at one of these dances, near Industry, Tx. that he met his future wife, Emma Luedecke.

Emma, the daughter of John Luedecke and Wilhelmine (Dudensing) Luedecke, was born Dec. 5, 1868 in Austin Co. Tx. She, her parents, brothers Otto and William and sister Anna lived in the Austin and Lavaca Co. areas of Texas. On September 16, 1886, 28 year old Charles F. Lincke and 17 year old Emma Luedecke were united in marriage by Max Chritzen (Kristen) justice of the peace in Fayette Co. Tx.

The Lincke's first child, Hertha Louisa Wilhelmina Lincke (Wolters) was born July 31, 1887 near Shelby in Austin Co. Tx. On Dec. 13, 1888, their second child Harry Wilhelm was born in Colorado Co. near Columbus Tx. A second son, Leland Otto, joined the family on Jan. 12, 1890 in Breslau, Lavaca Co. Tx.

In 1891, Charles moved his family to the Gruenau area of DeWitt Co. Tx. Charles relocated his family to escape various epidemics that were prevalent in the areas where they had lived. On Feb. 12, 1891, Charles purchased 100 acres from V. Weldon in the Gruenau area and remained a DeWitt Co. resident the rest of his life.

As his farming and ranching interests grew, so did his family. Hertha, Harry and Leland were joined by Ella Lena (Lemke) April 29, 1892, Frieda Johanna (Long) Aug. 17, 1893, Richard Carl Heinrich March 26, 1899, Alfred Ernst Heinrich Feb. 6, 1902 and Emilie Therese Elsa (Voelkel) on Aug. 24, 1907.

Charles' musical career grew as well. Charles was a member of different bands in DeWitt Co. and when his sons learned to play, they joined forces with their father to form the Lincke Band. The band members changed over the years, but Charles remained always the leader. Charles also taught music lessons to several budding area musicians.

Over the years, Charles bought and sold additional land in DeWitt Co. for agricultural purposes, but in 1910, Charles purchased some real estate with personal dreams in mind. On Oct. 19, 1910, Charles bought 5 years in Westhoff (Bello) and before the disastrous fire that struck Westhoff in 1913, Charles had built a two story home and a dance hall he named the Lincke Hall on that five acres. These two structures escaped damage and the dance hall remained in operation until the 1930s staging dances, trade days and masked balls. The hall was torn down after being moved off its foundation by a hurricane.

Emma Luedecke Lincke died Oct. 10, 1931 in Nixon Tx. The funeral was held Oct. 11 and Emma was laid to rest in the Westhoff Cemetery. Charles lived with his son Richard and daughter-in-law Leona in Nixon after his wife's death. Charles Ferdinand Lincke died July 20, 1932 in Nixon. The funeral was held July 21 and Charles was buried next to his wife in the Westhoff Cemetery.

LINCKE, LELAND AND ANNA (STORCH)

He was like many men of his time. He worked his land as his neighbors did with mule and horse drawn equipment. The cotton and corn, cows and chickens he raised put food on his family's table. He hunted and fished with his sons and visited his family and friends on Sunday afternoons. His life was simple out of necessity, but there were things about him that were unique. He was a storekeeper and beekeeper; he brewed home brew for special occasions and he played the violin as his father and grandfather before him. This was the life and personality of Leland Otto Lincke.

Leland Otto Lincke was born Jan. 12, 1890 in Breslau, Lavaca Co. Tx., the third child of Charles Ferdinand Lincke (9/13/1858 – 7/20/1932) and Emma Luedecke (12/5/1868 – 10/10/1931). Leland, his parents and older brother and sister moved to DeWitt Co. in 1891 and Leland lived in DeWitt Co. for the remainder of his life. On March 24, 1907, Leland was confirmed at the St. Paul Lutheran Church in Yorktown, Tx.

While Leland was living at home, he learned the farming trade from his father who also encouraged the musical abilities Leland and his brothers possessed. Leland, who played violin, his father and brothers played at local dances as the Lincke Band. It was at one of these dances that Leland first met his future wife, Anna Storch.

Elizabeth Frederike Anna Storch was born March 15, 1895 in Lavaca Co. Tx. Anna's parents, Henry William Storch and Hilda Margarete (Froeling) Storch were residing in Gonzales Co. when Anna and Leland met. Leland and Anna were married on Dec. 3, 1913 by J.F. Christensen in the Evan. Lutheran Church in Westhoff, Tx.

In their early married life, Leland and Anna lived on several farms in the Davy and Gruenau area before settling down on an acre of land Leland received from his parents in 1929. Leland and Anna were blessed with six chiltren during their marriage. Their first child Willie Karl Heinrich was born Sept. 22, 1914. A second son, Edvin John Richard Harry Willielm was born Aug. 4, 1917. When Edvin was two months short of his third birthday, he fell ill with summer sickness and died on Jun 17, 1920. The grieving parents buried their little son in the Sandy Gate Cemetery near their home.

On Dec. 12, 1921, the couple's sadness was tempered by the birth of their third son, Herbert Alfred Emil. Slightly over 3 years later, the two boys were joined by a little sister named Selma on April 1, 1925.

However, Selma's time with the Lincke's was cut short. She fell ill soon after birth and only lived until April 18. She was laid to rest next to her brother Edvin.

When Willie was 13 and Herbert 6, the Lincke family was completed with the birth of twin boys Raymond Charles and Roland Willie, on Aug. 27, 1928.

For his entire life, Leland remained a farmer. The family did not buy their first tractor until 1945. Until then, the entire family worked in the fields with mule and horse drawn implements. Leland and Anna both worked in the fields and their entire family picked cotton. The Lincke's raised chickens, cows, turkeys and hogs, along with cotton and corn, while Leland kept bees and sold the honey.

In the early 1930's, Leland and Anna ran a grocery store out of the back of their residence complete with filling station, drygoods, candy counter and one armed bandit.

For entertainment, the family would visit with family and friends such as the Linckes, Storchs, Jaegrs, Afflebachs and Bruns. The men hunted and everyone enjoyed playing dominoes and cards or fishing and picnicing at nearby Pilgrim Lake. The family would attend dances and trade days at the Lincke Hall in Westhoff where Leland would sell dance tickets and Anna would fry hamburgers for the hungry dancers. Leland also was a member of the Gruenau Shooting Club.

Leland and Anna celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary with a party at their home in 1938. The couple's four sons hosted a 50th wedding anniversary celebration at the Gruen-up Hellan Dec. 2, 1962.

au Hall on Dec. 3, 1963.

Leland and Anna remained in their home at Gruenau until advanced age precipitated a moved to the Siesta La Casa Nursing Home in Yorktown. Leland passed away on Oct. 17, 1972 followed by Anna on Aug. 13, 1973. They were laid to rest in the family plot in Sandy Gate Cemetery in Nopal.

LITTLE, ROBERT FORSYTH, IV AND MARIANNE ELIZABETH HALL

F575

Robert Forsyth Little, IV, son of Robert Forsyth Little III and Jane Lee Giblin Little Burbank, was born 3 August 1952 in New York City. After attending private schools, Rob joined the U.S. Coast Guard on 5 June 1971 and was trained by the U.S. Navy as a Corpsman, Physician's Associate and battlefield surgeon during the Viet Nam War. He was honorably discharged on 6 June 1975 in New Orleans, Louisiana and moved to Pasadena, Texas to attend college. By a prior marriage, Rob had three children: Aaron, born and died 12 Jan. 1974, in New York City; Christopher Lee, born 4 Jan. 1975 in New Orleans; and Sarah Jane, born 28 Feb. 1978 in Pasadena, Texas.

Marianne Elizabeth Hall, daughter of Ray Slater Hall and Lavelle Hartman Hall, was born at Wright Hospital in Houston, Texas on 20 Aug. 1948. The Halls lived with Ray Slater's mother, Anne Elizabeth Slater Hall Hildebrant, and his stepfather, Leon Bernard "Hilde" Hildebrandt, while Ray Slater attended University of Houston and LaVelle worked for the Harris Co. clerk's office. The Halls also lived in Alaska; at Marianne's maternal grandparents' (August Blanton & Muriel Morrison Byram Hartman) ranch in Davy, DeWitt Co., Texas; in Ft. Riley, Kansas, Aschaffenburg, Germany; Columbus, Georgia and El Paso, Texas. Marianne graduated from Bel Air High School, El Paso, in May 1966, shortly before she married R.J. Mauldin on 25 July 1966 at the home of her Hartman grandparents in Karnes City, Texas, with Judge B.A. "Pete" Hartman officiating. Marianne gave birth to four children: Michelle Marie, born 13 Aug. 1967, Brawley, California; Kristianne Elizabeth, stillborn May 1969 in Kingsville, Texas; Kelley LaVelle Anne, born 14 April 1970 in Corpus Christi, Texas; and Scott, born 3 March 1972 in IJmuiden, Velsen, Holland, The Netherlands.

After living in Europe for many years, Marianne moved first to Victoria, Texas, where she attended Victoria College, then to Houston, Texas, where she attended San Jacinto College. She was chosen to be a member of Phi Theta Kappa National Honor Society and received an Associate of Arts degree in Psychology with honors in May, 1979.

Robert married Marianne at their home at 11423 Sagewhite Drive, Houston, Texas on 10 March 1979, with Rev. Dr. Maurice Cadwalder officiating. They attended University of Houston-Clear Lake together and took many of the same classes. Marianne was accepted for membership in Phi Kappa Phi National Honor Society and received a Bachelor of Science degree with honors in Psychology and a Bachelor of Arts degree with honors in Human Resource Management and History in Dec. 1981. Rob received a Bachelor of Science degree in Behavioral Science in Dec. 1982. Marianne was accepted as a graduate student at University of Houston-Clear Lake in Jan. 1982 and began classes in Psychology, Business, Management and Human Resource Management. Heavily influenced by Prof. Al Hyde, Marianne concentrated on the Human Resource Management program and Rob audited many of Dr. Hyde's classes, as well. Marianne received a Masters of Arts in Human Resource Management with honors on 3 Aug. 1985.

Michelle Marie married Glenn Roy Earl Klusendorf in Friendswood, Texas on 7 October 1983, with Rev. Jerry McIntyre officiating. They have three children: Karee Ann Elizabeth, born 9 March 1985 in Friendswood, Texas; Chase Forsyth Glenn born 9 September 1986 in Houston, Texas; and Joshua Alexander Glenn on 15 April 1989 in La Mesa, California.

Rob worked for Brown & Root, Houston for many years as a Medic and Safety Engineer. As his interest in Risk Management grew, he was employed by Wassau Insurance Co. and later by Crawford & Company, where his is currently the Houston Branch Manager of Risk Control ter she received her Masters degree, Marianne joined Mortgage & Trust as an Account Executive. However, she accepted a more challenging position in Jan. 1988 as Grant Counselor at San Jacinto College North, as part of the federal grant to retrain displaced workers from the steel, oil & gas and construction industries.

Following a normal work routine on the morning of 5 May 1988, Marianne was asked to attend the Offshore Technology Conference that afternoon; however, she was involved in a near-fatal car accident and had to be rushed by Life Flight helicopter to Hermann Hospital, where she was treated for massive head injuries, multiple facial fractures, a blown-out right eye, skull fractures, broken ribs and damage to her neck, spine, back & hips. During the many long months of hospitalization and surgeries, Rob, the children and grandchildren, family and friends gave constant encouragement and continue to be a great source of strength for her as she begins the rehabilitation process at home. Despite being disabled, Marianne has continued her life-long interests and research into her family's history, and is currently writing articles for several historical societies and for the DeWitt County View newspaper in Yorktown, Texas.

LLOYD, DR. DAVID GEORGE AND LETITIA LEWIS (HARTMAN)

Letitia Lewis (Hartman) Lloyd, also known as "Letty Lew Lloyd", was born in Cuero, Texas, January 25, 1942. She is the older of two daughters of Wayne Louis (1918-) and Emalee (Wells) (1919-) Hartman. She is the grand-daughter of August Christian Hartman, Jr. (1882-1956) and Elsie (Lenz) Hartman (1893-1941). She is the great granddaughter of August Christian Hartmann, Sr. (1848-1917) and Josephine (Hans) Hartmann (1856-1930). Her great, great grandparents were Christian Hartman II (1819-1876) and Marie (Schroeder) Hartmann (1823-1906). The latter two were the first of the Hartmann family to emigrate from Germany to Texas. They came to Texas in 1845 and to the Meyersville area of De Witt county in 1847.

Letty Lew attended public schools in Cuero and Victoria. In 1947 she was a princess in the junior coronation of the Cuero Turkey Trot. In 1960 she was dutchess from the University of Texas to the Sultana of the Cuero Turkey Trot. She graduated from the University of Texas at Austin in 1963. She was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma social sorority. She met her future husband, Dr. David George Lloyd, while attending the University and on October 21, 1967, they were married at Trinity Episcopal Church in Victoria, Texas. He was serving as a captain in the United States Air Force at the time. They now live at 215 Cardinal in San Antonio, Texas.

David George Lloyd was born January 11, 1939, in Tyler, Texas. He was the only son of George and Elsie (Honeycutt) Lloyd. He attended Rice University, Houston, Texas, the University of Texas at Austin and, in 1964 he graduated from the University of Texas Dental College at Houston with a D.D.S. degree. In 1966 he received a M.S.D. degree with a residency in Orthodontics. He was a member of Omicron Kappa Epsilon and Xi Psi Phi honorary fraternities and Sigma Chi social fraternity. He is engaged in the practice of Orthodontics in San Antonio and carries on the family tradition of cattle ranching on a ranch he and Letty Lew own in Uvalde County.

Letty Lew owns and operates her own design business under the name "Letty Lew Lloyd Interiors". She is a sustaining member of the Junior League of San Antonio.

Two sons were born of this marriage, both in San Antonio. David George Lloyd, Jr., was born April 13, 1970. He is presently enrolled at the University of Texas at Austin as a sophomore. He is an active member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon social fraternity. Christian Hartman Lloyd was born February 16, 1975. He is a freshman at Alamo Heights High School. The Lloyd family are members of, and active in, the Methodist Church.

LOCKHART FAMILY

F577

Byrd Lockhart was born 1782 in Virginia, arrived in DeWitts Colony 20 March 1826, and was soon appointed Deputy Surveyor by James Kerr. Most of his brothers and sisters arrived in DeWitts Colony by 1829. Mexican Land Grants of Andrew, Samuel and Charles Lockhart, and that of Kimber W. Barton, who married Margaret Lockhart, were located in the present DeWitt County. The Grant of George Blair, who married Sarah Lockhart, was on Plum Creek, remained in Gonzales County, but the Blair family lived on Cuero Creek, near the Guadaloupe River until after the 1850 census (see George Blair sketch). All of these men of the Lockhart related families, except Kimber W. Barton, died early. Andrew Lockhart left a will, showing that only two daughters, of his large family, survived him.

Later research of this Lockhart family has added information. Byrd Lockhart had died early (account in Telegraph and Texas Register) and his probate shows that he had lost his wife and children, as his heirs were his brothers and sisters. Two sisters, Mary Briggs and Nancy McKinney, were living in Montgomery County, Illinois. Marriages listed in Illinois: Byrd Lockhart to Eliza Barton, Charles Lockhart to Catherine Barton, Samuel Lockhart to Winny Walker, Nancy Lockhart to James McKinney, and Sarah Lockhart Fulton to George Blair, Margaret Lockhart married Kimber W. Barton in 1821, in Cooper County, Missouri. Drusilla Lockhart married Eben Haven in Gonzales County, Texas. No marriage record was found in Illinois for Andrew and Mary Lockhart.

Briggs family records in Washington County, Ohio, show that Andrew Lockhart married Esther Briggs and Mary Lockhart married Robert Briggs. Both families appear on the 1810 Washington County, Ohio census. A Wood County Virginia deed, dated 1804, is signed by Bird Lockhart and Sarah Lockhart, then living in Washington County, Ohio. A Washington County Ohio history related that in the winter of 1793/94, Bird Lockhart, a celebrated hunter, then living in a garrison established by Isaac Williams on the Virginia side of the Ohio River had an exciting adventure with two Indians, while hunting deer. Bird Lockhart was not listed on the Ohio or the Virginia census of 1810, but a Bird Lockhart was listed on the 1810 Kanawha County, Virginia tax roll, and listed as gone on the 1811 tax roll.

Illinois records indicate that Bird Lockhart Sr. took his family to Illinois before 1812. From March 9 to June 9, 1813, William Lockhart, Andrew Lockhart and Byrd Lockhart Sr., were listed on War of 1812 Muster Rolls, and from August to October 1814, Bird Lockhart was listed on the War of 1812 Muster Rolls for Illinois, and he signed a voucher as Byrd Lockhart Jr.

A sketch on Robert Briggs Jr. in a Bond and Montgomery County, Illinois History, mentions that his maternal grandfather died from loss of blood from bleeding from the nose, at Fort Russell in Madison County, Illinois, after rescuing a daughter from the savages. Briggs family records indicate that Bird Lockhart Sr. died the last part of 1813 or the first part of 1814. The Illinois Territorial census taken to see if Illinois qualified for Statehood, in 1818, lists Andrew Lockhart, Samuel Lockhart, and Sarah Lockhart. The 1820 Illinois census lists only the Andrew Lockhart and George Blair families.

Members of Charles and Catherine Barton Lockhart's family lived in the Thomaston area for many years. Andrew Lockhart's daughters, Elvira Gilbert, and Malinda Patterson-Templeton must have lived on Andrew Lockhart's land.

Sue Briggs Eyerly of Provo, Utah, compiled a "Lockhart Migration Trail", from Virginia to Texas. A well documented manuscript with sources listed, which has been presented to the Gonzales County Historical Commission, along with copies of other documents and records.

LOCKHART, CHARLES

Colonist, Soldier, Surveyor, and Patriot

My great great grandfather was born December 3, 1790, in Virginia. He was the son of James and Rachel Totten Lockhart.

The National Archives, Washington, D.C. war records of 1812 list his residence upon induction into the service as Winchester, Frederick County, Virginia. He and his brothers Byrd, Andrew and Sam were all veterans of the Texas (Texas-Mexican) War.

During 1814-1815, Charles and Byrd were appointed surveyors for Madison County, Illinois and while in Illinois, he married Catherine Wise Barton on September 20, 1817 in Kaskaskia, Randolph County, Illinois. Evidently the Barton and Lockharts admired each other because Byrd married Catherin's sister, Mary, and their sister Margaret Lockhart married Catherine and Mary's brother, Kimber W. Barton.

Byrd, who had come to Texas in 1825 with Green DeWitt, made several trips back to encourage all his family to come to the new frontier. Only Mary (Polly) and her husband, Robert Briggs and Nancy and James McKinney couldn't persuaded to join DeWitt's colony.

The Charles Lockhart family came to Texas March 2, 1829 to join their brother and Green DeWitt's colony. Their other brothers and sisters, Andrew, Sam, Nancy, Sarah Ann, Margaret and Drusilla also joined the colony by the year 1831.

Charles and Catherine settled at their homestead, Pecan Grove, Texas which was located approximately ten miles south of Gonzales, Texas. The family cemetery is here but it is in poor condition.

Charles and Catherine, along with five of their children, are listed in "Citizens of the Republic of Texas," published by the Texas State Genealogical Society and on file in the Alamo D.R.T. Library. Charles and Catherine are also listed in "Founders and Patriots of The Republic of Texas."

Published facts say that Green DeWitt screened his citizens very carefully and was very particular about their backgrounds.

Charles was a surveyor for the Green DeWitt colony and assisted his brother, Byrd, who performed all the colony's surveys after 1826. Byrd was appointed Surveyor General on April, 1831 by Jose Antonio Navarro.

Surveying was one of the most widespread professions of the frontier. The surveyor was an indispensable functionary within the empressario system. The task performed by the frontier surveyor has, until the past twenty or thirty years, been overlooked by historians. Several letters written by Catherine Lockhart to her mother, Elizabeth Barton, in Franklin Furnace, Ohio, mention some of the hardships. One letter written in 1838 is on file in the Alamo D.R.T. Library and a copy is being submitted to the Gonzales County Historical Association.

The surveyor's world was not always one of mathematics and geometry. On many occasions they were the first white men in the area and encountered native Indian tribes which were often hostile. The land survey itself was one of the final steps in processing a clear and valid title.

In 1828, 1829, and 1830, Byrd Lockhart assisted by Charles cleared timber and laid out a road via Gonzales from Bexar to Austin, 195 miles and a little later on, one from Gonzales to Matagorda. The Bexar to Austin road was used as a guide for the present day paved highway.

Under the directions of Colonel John H. Moore, Charles laid out the town of La Grange. He was elected Second Rigidor of the colony in 1832, and became First Rigidor in 1833. These were a few of his accomplishments.

The Lockharts, as well as all citizens, encountered many hardships, one being their many encounters with the Indian tribes. Much Texas history is based around his niece, Matilda Lockhart. She and the Putnam children, while playing together, were kidnapped by the Comanche Indians on December 9, 1838. She was recovered from the Indians at Council House in San Antonio on April 1840. She was in poor condition and had been tortured terribly. She only lived three more years.

Charles and Catherine died in the year 1844 and were buried in the family cemetery. The oldest child, William B., assumed responsibility for the surviving children, Charles Louis, Kimber, Elizabeth Drusilla, Louisa Jane and Mary Melvina. Elizabeth Drusilla married James H. Wilson, Mary Melvina became Mrs. John Patton Wright and Louisa Jane married Dave Hunter.

Catherine and Charles never lived on one of their leagues of land granted him in 1831 for services to the Republic by Jose Antonio Navarro. It was located south of Cuero. The area was Prices Creek and later became Thomaston, Texas. Two of the daughters, Mary Melvina (Mrs. John Patton Wright) and Elizabeth Drusilla (Mrs. James H. Wilson) settled on their portions of the estate.

Two of Charles Lockhart's grandchildren, Margaret Lucinda Wilson (Mrs. John Bowden Pridgen) and John Robert Wright were living there as late as 1936 and 1952. They are both buried in the Thomaston cemetery which was given to the town by Mary Melvin Lockhart Wright.

The Wrights and Pridgens were very generous and Mary Melvina gave the town site and also much land from her share of the Lockhart survey for the Gulfwestern, Texas & Pacific Railway right of way. This resulted into Thomaston being the first railroad station in DeWitt County.

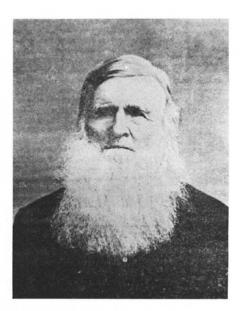

Some of the Pridgen and Wright heirs still own small portions of the Lockhart estate. The John B. Pridgen heirs were Wilson B. Pridgen, Dr. John Leslie, Dr. Ross Edwin, Floyd, Ethel Pridgen Brooks, Pearl Pridgen Conwell and Mary Pridgen Brasher. The John Robert Wright children were William, Welton and Genevieve (Mrs. Joseph Mack Young).

The Thomaston Community, which boasted of having two mercantile stores, a drug store and druggist, a resident physician, three schools, three churches, a cotton gin, a saw mill, a butcher shop, the Thomaston News, Julia Pens, which sent out thousands of head of cattle, a railroad and Western Union Station, is no more. Only the ruins of one store and a small post office still stand, but even so many former citizens want to come back to the peaceful cemetery to be buried.

LORD, GEORGE AND KATE MEYERS

F579

George Lord

George Lord, son of Fetsled and Anna Siggs Lord, was born in Essex County, England on 21 April 1816. His father, Fetsled, was a bricklayer and died trying to repair a hot oven when George was a baby. His mother, Anna, remarried and later died in London at age 82.

Mr. Lord completed his education in England prior to his passage to Canada in June, 1834. He lived there for two years. Next, he moved to New Orleans, Louisiana and worked on Mississippi steamboats. In December, 1836, Mr. Lord joined Capt. Lyons and a company of 75 men when they came to aid Texas in the war for Independence from Mexico. They landed in Galveston in February, 1837. He mustered into service in Capt. John Holliday's Second Regimental Volunteers at Camp Independence on the Lavaca River. This unit escaped Fannin's massacre with Col. Wigginton. George Lord was honorably discharged in 1838 and joined a group of settlers who avenged an Indian attack on Col. Patton's ranch on the Cibolo River. He then joined Col. Burleson and participated in the battle with Cordova near Seguin on the Guadalupe River. Mr. Lord joined Col. Nicholas Dawson's Company in San Antonio to remove Cordova from Texas.

Joining Gen. Canalas on 1 Sept. 1839. George Lord went into Mexico to fight and defend the Mexican Constitution of 1824. He aided in the capture of Guerro, Mexico and participated in the battles of Alcantra, Matamoros and Monterey, helped capture Laredo and fought in the battle of Saltillo. Finally deciding to quit warfare, he settled in Victoria Co., Texas and it was there that he joined the company of Capt. Ewing Cameron in the Mier expedition in the fall of 1842. George Lord was among the Texas prisoners who were cruelly forced by the Mexican soldiers to draw beans to determine which ones would be shot because of an escape attempt. Drawing a white bean meant one lived, while a black bean equalled death. There were 9 white beans to each black, and Mr. Lord was among those who drew white beans and were taken to Perote prison near Mexico City. Many of his Texas friends (besides those in the Mier Expedition) were held in this prison, including Norman B. Woods (who was captured after Dawson's massacre and died in Perote prison) and John Lewis Smith III (who was captured with 52 other Texans by Mexican Gen. Woll's soldiers when they invaded San Antonio on 11 September 1842.

Finally released from Perote prison in 1844, Mr. Lord went first to New Orleans and then on to California's Gold Rush, where he mined $7,000 worth of gold.

Miss Kate Meyers (born 15 October 1832 in New Orleans), married George Lord on 30 December 1849 in New Orleans shortly before they moved to Texas to homestead his land grant of 1280 acres in DeWitt Co. for his service to the Republic of Texas. They established their ranch at Cheapside, DeWitt Co., Texas.

During the Civil War, Mr. Lord served in the home guards for two years, despite the fact that he was exempt due to prior service and his age. After the Civil War, he returned to his ranch at Cheapside where his eleven children were born. Nine of the children lived to adulthood. These children born to George Lord and Kate Meyers Lord were: Cynthelia Anna (married John Johnson); George T.; Robert F.; Emily Agnes (married H.N. Smith); William P.; Minnie Mae; Sidney Johnston; Henry Lee; Kate A. (married L.A. Carter); James E. and Pomona B. Lord.

George Lord died on 23 February 1895 at his home in Cheapside, DeWitt Co., Texas and was buried at the Lord family cemetery on his ranch. When Mrs. Kate Meyers Lord died on 15 January 1905, she was buried by his side.

There is an excellent article on George Lord written by Mrs. C.T. Traylor of Cuero which appeared in J. Marvin Hunter's Frontier Times, volume 15, number 12 in September 1938. Many of the details of this sketch were extracted from Mrs. Traylor's article.

LOUIS AND IRENE DREIER

F580

Louis Dreier, son of Alfred and Amalia Dreier, was born at Meyersville, Texas. He married Irene Kahlich, daughter of Anton and Stephaia Kahlich from the Lindenau Community.

In 1940, Louis and Irene purchased 100 acres next to his fathers' farm. In 1962 they acquired the title to the 200 acres that Louis' grandfather bought in 1877. Louis and dIrene live on their original acreage and raise cattle on all of the land. Louis has been a County Committeeman for the Agricultural Adjustment Act and the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. He also, has given his time as a 4-H leader for 20 years.

Louis Dreir

In 1987, Louis and Irene were fortunate to celebrate their Golden Wedding Anniversary.

Louis was always interested in old cars and about 20 years ago he purchased a model T and repaired it to running condition. He takes it and drives it in parades. He has always been interested in racoon hunting, too.

Irene is a housewife and mother. Louis says she is a good cook. They have two children: 1) Randolph of Victoria who has two children, Cheryl and Ronald Dreier; and 2) Faye Kennish of Colorado who has two children, William and Kendra Kennish.

LOWE FAMILY

F58

The 1840 Census of The Republic of Texas shows Alfred D. Lowe in Gonzales County. Marriage records of DeWitt County show A.D.

Faye (Dreier) Kennish, Louis Dreier, Irene (Kahlich) Dreier and Randolph Dreier

Lowe was Justice of Peace at Cameron, Texas in 1847. It is believed he is the Alfred Lowe who married Frances Harrison December 11, 1819 in Rockingham County, North Carolina, and is the son of John Lowe of Rockingham County, North Carolina as shown in the will of John Lowe.

No proof has been found but records indicate Alfred Lowe and Frances Harrison Lowe had the following children:

(1) Benjamin F. Lowe, born in North Carolina, married Nancy Ann Harvey Dowlearn, widow of Patrick Dowlearn, June 6, 1850 in DeWitt County, Texas. Their children were Ellen who married James H. Cobb; Frances A. who married Oscar Fitzgerald Pridgeon; Alfred Scott who married Mrs. Sarah Margaret Cobb Jones; Martin Franklin; and Rena Davis. M.F. Lowe is mentioned on land records of B.F. and Nancy Lowe but there is no other information on daughter Rena Davis listed age 9 on 1880 census. B.F. and Nancy Lowe died in 1902 and are buried in Gonzales City Cemetery.

(2) Elizabeth Lowe, born in North Carolina, married Rufus Taylor July 21, 1842. Their children were Martin, Alfred, Maryann H., Victoria, James, Marcia, and Rufus (Scrap) Taylor. Rufus Taylor, Sr. died October 13, 1854 and Elizabeth married Rilla Pratt October 4, 1855 in DeWitt County. She was listed as Elizabeth Pratt, widow, on 1860 DeWitt County census.

(3) Jackson Lowe, born in North Carolina, married Margaret Petty February 13, 1853. Their known children were Sarah A., Henry, and John. Jackson Lowe then married Mathilda Rose April 21, 1867 in Lavaca County, Texas. They had a daughter, Delilah, who married Gidden Nolen. Further research is needed on this family.

(4) Jane Lowe, born in Alabama, married Joshua Dowlearn October 20, 1850 in DeWitt County. Their children were Mary Elizabeth who married Houston Myers; Patrick Hayes "Bud" who married Mary Catherine Goodson; Josephine who married William Park; William T. who married Mary Harkins; Rufus who married Annie Meeks; Alfred Clark who married Georgia Blair; Jeff who married Mary Simpson; Susan Lenora who married Joe Bennett; Dora who never married; Sephrona who married Wyatt Hanks. Jane died June 23, 1871 and Joshua Dowlearn married Rebecca Harkins. Their children were Joshua Martin, Jr. who married Eloise Neel; Allie who married Ed Bell; Cyrus who married Willie Trace Gray; Annie Hepzibeth who married Charley Taylor; and Walter Hollis who married Effie Yeater. Joshua and Jane are buried in Burns Station Cemetery. Rebecca is buried in Floresville, (5) Frances Ann Lowe, born in Alabama, married John Day February 5, 1854 in Lavaca County, Texas. Their known children were Alfred, Jackson, Susan, Short, Martin, Henry, John, and Phillip. Frances Ann died April 6, 1883 and John Day died February 1872. They are buried in Burns Station Cemetery.

LUDDEKE, HERMAN AUGUST ANDREAS

F58

Herman August Andreas Luddeke was born February 12, 1864 in Grossdenkte, Braunsweig, Germany. He emigrated at age 4 with his parents, Johann and Elisabeth Luddecke, an older half-sister Anna Elisabeth Schulze, and his brother, Albert, age 1. The family arrived at the Port of Galveston in June of 1868. After a brief residence in New Braunfels, the family moved to Weesatche. In Germany Johann had been a handworker and tradingman. He began hauling freight up the La

Herman and Wilhelmine Luddeke with William.

Bahia Road, auctioning the goods at the Coleto Creek settlements, and north as far as Cibolo. Johann was killed by a tree he was cutting and was buried there along the Coleto Creek.

Mrs. Luddecke married Wilheim Thurke September 16, 1871. Wilheim Thurke was a stone mason, farmer, and trader of land in both Goliad and DeWitt Counties. They came to reside in the Nopal area.

Herman Luddeke recalled sheep herding in the New Braunfels area as a boy of 12. In May of 1884 at age 20, he recorded his brand 7CL in DeWitt County. On October 18, 1886, Herman married Wilhelmine Rappmund. They farmed and raised their family in DeWitt County, first in the Nopal area and later at the Lost Creek area.

When Herman and Wilhelmine retired about 1915 or 1916, they purchased a home on North Gonzales Street in Cuero, Texas, where they lived until their deaths in 1940 and 1943.

Children born to Herman and Minnie Luddeke are: 1) William Edward August (m. Erna Mueller) Cuero; 2) Minnie Annie (m. Fred Kahlich) Slayton; 3) Henry Edward, Sr. (m. Carrie Newman, Louise Boldt Barth) Cuero; 4) Adela Louise (m. Louis Joseph Schaefer) Victoria; and 5) Friedrich (m. Hertha Hengst) San Antonio.

AND MARIE AGATHE GOLLY

F584

Pantaleon Luder was born March 22, 1828, in Oderen, Upper Alsace, France, to Antoine Etienne Luder and wife, Richarde Grunewald. Pantaleon was a cousin to Theresa Jacob Bluntzer and Genevieve Jacob Winckler (Golly) who had emigrated from Oderen to Texas about 1843 and 1846. It is believed that the return visit to Upper Alsace by Peter Bluntzer in 1854 may have had something to do with why Panta-leon Luder immigrated to Texas at all. It is obvious that Bluntzer's wife, Theresa, and her sister, Genevieve Jacob Winckler, were determined to help as many of their relatives and friends leave Alsace for Texas as they possibly could. Peter Bluntzer had accumulated enough land to settle several families, there was still much land that could be purchased, and there was plenty of open range. It was after this 1854 trip by Bluntzer back to Alsace that more than a few applications were made by families to leave the Thur Valley, and their destination was Texas. Some familiar names were those of Joseph Bitterly, Pantaleon Luder, Henri Jacob, Bluntzer's brother-in-law, and others making a total of about 10 families and 10 single people. Another factor that may have influenced Pantaleon Luder to leave his home in Oderen and immigrate to this new land called Texas was that the Thur Valley area of Alsace was severely depressed, and means of earning a living were practically nil. It did not take much coaxing to get Pantaleon to make the decision to join his kin in Texas. He left the port of LeHavre and arrived in New Orleans on December 29, 1854, reaching his destination, Meyersville, in January 1855.

Pantaleon Luder had been in Texas only a short time before he purchased land in the Bell Survey in DeWitt County, applied for citizenship and married Marie Agathe Golly, daughter of Antoine Golly and Catherine Hauer. Marie Agathe Golly was born in Fellering, France, April 28, 1838 and her brother, Antoine, was born 1835. The Golly family had been with the Henri Castro Colonization project and had immigrated to Texas in 1844. They lived in Castroville from 1844 to 1850. Marie Agathe's mother died in about 1846 or 1847 and her father, Antoine Golly Sr. was married twice more, to widows from Castroville. Both wives died within a year of one another from cholera, the disease rampant in the early years of the Castroville Settlement. Marie Agathe was 12 years old when her father was married for the last time on March 29, 1850 to Genevieve Jacob Winckler, the widow of Joseph Winckler. Genevieve had two little girls, Josephine, born in Ranspach, France in 1844 and Theresa, who was born in Texas in 1848. Marie Agathe Golly soon had a half-sister, Catherine, who was born to Antoine Golly and Genevieve Jacob in June of 1851. Marie Agathe was the sponsor at baptism for this child.

Pantaleon Luder and Marie Agathe Golly (at times written Marguerite or Margaret) were married March 4, 1856, according to records in St. Mary's Catholic Church in Victoria, Texas, when Marie Agathe was not quite 18 years old. Their first child, Mary Emiliana, was born Jan. 19, 1857. In 1875 Emiliana married John Hotz, son of Antone and Elizabeth Hotz, and had at least four children. Emiliana died in 1939 and is buried in Hallside Cemetery in Cuero, Texas. The second child was Alphose Luder, born in 1858. Alphonse married Alvina Schaefer in 1884. He died in 1936 and is buried beside his wife in Clinton Cemetery, DeWitt County, Texas. On December 9, 1869, Edward Luder was born, but he died at age 7 and is buried in the Catholic Church Cemetery at Meyersville, Texas.

The death of Edward was tragic, but tragedy was not new to Marie Agathe as she had witnessed death and sickness many times in her young life. The death of her father, Antoine Golly Sr. in 1869 was followed by the death of her husband, Pantaleon Luder, on December 18, 1873. His death is recorded in Catholic Church Records in Victoria, Texas, but it is not known what caused his death or where he is buried.

Marie Agathe remained a widow for 18 months and on May 25, 1875 she married James Lindsay, a man who stated he was born in Scotland in 1845. James Lindsay and Marie Agathe Golly had a daughter named Susie, who was born Nov. 20, 1876. Susie married William Bergman in 1893. She died in 1957 and is buried beside her husband in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero, Texas. A son, Robert Lindsay, was born in 1879 to James and Marie Agathe, but not much is known about Robert Lindsay other than that he was living in Yorktown in 1900.

It is not known when Marie Agathe Golly Luder Lindsay died, but her death must have occurred about 1887 as it is shortly after that date that Susie and Robert Lindsay were declared Minors by the DeWitt County Probate Court and John Hotz, the husband of their half-sister, Emiliana, was appointed their Guardian. He remained in this capacity until about 1900, when Robert Lindsey became 21 years of age.

LUKAS – NOVOSAD FAMILY

F586

Josef Lukas born in 1832, Roustky, near Vsetin, Czechslovakia, was a son of Jan Lukas and Rozina Mikolas. He married Rozina Novosad (1837-1876) from Jablunka. They had several friends and relatives living in Texas. These people wrote them about the wonderful new land called Texas. Rozina's sister, Katherine, who had married Jan Hruska came to Texas in 1855. Her sister, Anna who had married Josef Mikolas came to Texas in 1882. Rozina's mother, Anna Martinete Novosad, her brothers, Jan. Josef, Stephan, and her youngest sister Marie, came to Ellinger, Texas in 1873.

In 1872, Josef and Rozina Novosad Lukas and their two sons, John and Joseph, bid their friends and kin farewell and started their long journey to Texas.

They came to Galveston. From Galveston they came by train to Columbus, Texas. Jan Hruska from Ross Prairie, a small Czech settlement near Ellinger in Fayette County, met the Lukas family and took them in a wagon to their little log cabin.

Josef and Rozina lived in Ross Prairie on a farm rented from John Hruska for several years. Then they moved to a farm of their own near Heckberry.

In 1870, a daughter, Katherine, was born and in 1873, a son Louis was born to them.

Then in 1876 Rozina died. She was buried in Ross Prairie Brethren Cemetery. A small tombstone marks her grave.

In 1884 Josef bought a farm near Shiner, Texas where he and his second wife, Anna Nedbalek, lived until his death on November 26, 1902. He is buried in Unity of Brethren Church Cemetery near Shiner, in the neighborhood of the old Michone School.

John Lukas, son of Josef and Rozina Novosad Lukas born 1867, married Mary Hrncicek. Their union was blessed with seven daughters and one son. The son died at the age of six.

Their oldest daughter, Alice, married Milosh Grossman. Alice died in 1935 leaving her husband and three children. The children are Henry, Jerry, and Sydonia.

Henry married and has a boy named Jimmy and a girl named Alice.

Vlasta, the second daughter of John married Edward Vinsek of Shiner. Their only son, Ernest married Emily Joks. They and their sons, Daniel, James, and Ernest Jr., lived in Bryan, Texas.

Henrietta married John Hanus. She is a widow and lives at San Antonio. Her son, John, is a dentist. He married Miss Landheck. His daughters are Michele and Tracy. Henrietta's daughter, Mildred, married Paul Crep. Her children are Gregory and Paulie. Her daughter, Martha Ann, married Jimmie Dorman.

Miss Albina Lukas, the fourth daughter of John lived in Austin. She died in 1953.

Emily Lukas married August Janota. Their sons, Harvey, August, and Larry have finished college and are teaching school.

Lydia Lukas married J.J. Templett. Their daughter Pegg Ann married Billie Golden. They have two girls, Janice and Sandra Kay. They all live in Houston.

Sydonia, the seventh daughter married Floyd Moede. They do not have any children and live in Missouri.

Joseph Lukas, born in 1869, is the second son of Jan and Rozina Novosad. He married Rozina Hurta in 1893. This union was blessed with four children. They lived on their farm in Shiner for many years. In 1908, they bought a farm near Westhoff and moved there.

Amalie, the oldest daughter of Joseph and Rozina Hurta, married Frank Baros in 1912. She and her family lived on the Baros farm for many years. Then in 1943, they bought the old Lucas farm and moved there. Her husband, Frank, died in 1967.

LUNDSCHEN, GEORGE F587

Two George Lundschens

On 1 January 1854, at the bustling port of Indianola, two men stepped ashore in search of a better life. They both had the same name, George (Jurgis) Lundschen. Just what the relationship was between these two is not known. Their stay at Indianola was a brief one, as records show that in August, 1854 they had both registered their cattle brands in DeWitt County and on the 7 May, 1854 they declared their intention to become citizens of the United States at the District Clerk's office at Clinton, DeWitt County.

The older of the two Georges (born 16 Sept., 1815 in Prussia) was accompanied to America by his wife, Anna, (born about 1814 in Prussia) and four children. One land deed recorded in DeWitt County describes his residence "below Yorktown on the North side of the 18 Mile Coleto".

George Lundschen and his family seemed to move back and forth between DeWitt Co. and Lewis Co. Missouri. He kept his land in Texas but also had a farm near Tolona, Dickerson Twp., Lewis Co. Missouri. (Tolona no longer exists). George and Anna did return to DeWitt Co. as Anna died 26 Jan., 1899 and is buried in the Woodlawn Cemetery in WEESATCHE, Texas. George lived a few years with his grand-daughter, Maggie and her husband, Frank Krause. George died 29 Nov., 1901 and is buried beside Anna.

The four older children who were born in Prussia were:

Mary Ann (born about 1843/44 – died about 1882 in Lewis Co. Mo.), married (1) William S. Perkins on 20 March, 1860 in DeWitt County, (No further information concerning Wm. S. Perkins). Mary Ann's second marriage occurred about 1866/67 in Lewis Co. Mo. to John Schork (born 1844 – died Nov., 1934 in California). There were 7 children born to this union.

The next daughter, Margaret (born 18 Feb. 1844) married Lewis Menn in DeWitt Co. about 1870. Margaret and Lewis had no children of their own but the raised the two motherless sons of Edward Lundschen, brother to Margaret. Margaret died 14 Nov., 1930 and Lewis died 16 July, 1924. They are buried in Westside Cemetery in Yorktown, Texas.

The third child, Doretta "Dora" (b. 23 Nov. 1847) married Theodore Schork on 31 Mar., 1867 in Lewis Co. Mo. They established a farm in Dickerson Twp. Lewis Co. Mo. There were six children born to this marriage. Dora died 26 Jan., 1878. A few years later, Theodore married Dora's younger sister, Emelia "Emma".

The fourth child, Edward (born 22 May, 1851) married Maggie Schork (a sister to John and Theodore) in Lewis Co. Mo. about 1875/76. Not long after their marriage, they moved back to DeWitt County. Evidence on a tombstone in the Jonischkies Cemetery near Yorktown, reads "Maggie (Schork) Lundschen born 14 Jan., 1856 – died 12 Aug., 1878." Edward was left alone with two small sons, Theodore Henry and Leroy L. These boys were taken in by Edward's sister, Margaret Menn.

Edward Lundschen married a second time to Frances Fell in Goliad Co. on 26 Apr., 1881. They had 9 children. Edward died 23 March, 1903 and is buried in the Glendale Cemetery in Goliad, Texas. His widow, Frances, later, married Arthur C. Welch. Frances died 1925/26 and is also buried in Glendale Cemetery.

A fifth child, Emelia "Emma" was born to George and Anna Lundschen on 21 Jan., 1858. When Dora, Emma's sister died in Lewis Co. Mo., Emma assumed the care of the motherless children. A few years later, on 16 Feb., 11882, Emma married Theodore Schork, her brotherin-law. There were four children born to this union. Emma died 11 May, 1929 and Theodore died 22 Apr., 1916 in Lewis Co. Mo.

Very little is known about the last child born to George and Anna Lundschen. Her name was Louise and on the 1860 DeWitt Co. Texas census, she was three years old, born in Missouri. On the Lewis Co. Mo. 1870 census, she is living with her parents, age 12. Nothing more is known of her.

LUNDSCHEN, GEORGE AND ANNA (KIRLICKS) FAMILY

F588

George Lundschen was born in Ackminiszken, Lithuania. When he was born is not so certain — his headstone says 2 Feb. 1829; his naturalization record shows 20 Mar. 1829; church records give 22 Mar. 1827; and the 1900 census says Feb. 1822. He died 24 Aug. 1903, and was buried in the Jonischkies family cemetery on Smith Creek (Schmidt Kreek).

He married his third wife, Anna Kirlicks, on 25 Mar. 1858 at St. John's Lutheran Church in Meyersville. She was born 14 Sept. 1826 in Kirlicken, Lithuania, quite close to Ackminiszken, and died 17 Mar. 1911 in Yorktown. She is buried beside her husband. Her mother was Catherine Kirlicks, whose story is given separately. Nothing is known of Anna's father—presumably he had died before Anna and her family immigrated to the U.S.

They had four children — William, Mary, Annie, and George — all born in Yorktown and presumed baptized at St. John's (the early records are not available). All four were confirmed at St. Paul's in Yorktown, and the three oldest were also married at St. Paul's (the youngest never married). Only the oldest child, Friedrich Wilhelm, has descendants still living today. As they are quite numerous, his family will be discussed last.

The second child was Anna Marie "Mary." She was born 26 Feb. 1860, and married Christian Neese (9 Feb. 1862-29 Jan. 1939) on 21 Feb. 1894. She was nearly 34 at her marriage, continued a family tradition of marrying late (her mother was 31, her younger sister nearly 38). The Neeses had three children: Anna Elenora Ottillie "Tillie" (26 Dec. 1895-10 Dec. 1982), her stillborn twin brother (buried 27 Dec. 1895 at St. John's), and Otto Robert Alfred (6 Jan. 1899-29 Mar. 1976). Tillie and Otto were both baptized at St. John's, but neither ever married. Between 1900 and 1910, the Neese family moved to Goliad County and remained there. Mary died 16 July 1938, and Christian followed her just six months later, on 30 Jan. 1939.

Anna Lundschen's third child was Wilhelmine Anna "Annie." She was born 31 Jan. 1867, and married Charles E. (Carl) Baacke (21 Dec. 1874-18 July 1948) on 11 Jan. 1905. They had no children. Charles Baacke was born in Yorktown, the son of August Baacke (1841-1927) and his wife Sophie Kalkofen (1835-1912). Annie died in San Antonio on 21 May 1940, and was buried at St. Paul's Lutheran Cemetery in Yorktown.

The fourth child was George Ewald, called Ewald. He was born 28 July 1870 in Yorktown, and died 5 June 1929 in San Antonio. He is buried in San Antonio.

Friedrich Wilhelm Lundschen (William F. as an adult) was born 9 Jan. 1859 and married Wilhelmine Justine Voelkel (16 Sep. 1865-3 Mar. 1924) on 14 Sep. 1887. Her parents were George Voelkel (1830-1883) and Justine Strohmann (ca. 1832-ca. 1868). They had nine children (one died in infancy), all born in or near Yorktown: (1) Edwin George (6 July 1888-25 Feb. 1955), (2) Olga Justine (15 Jan. 1890-29 Oct. 1950), (3) Alfred William (30 Aug. 1891-1 Feb. 1937), (4) Lillie Emilie (22 Mar. 1895-7 Mar. 1988), (5) Helene Wilhelmine (2 May 1897), (6) William Ewald (12 Feb. 1899-13 May 1961), (7) George Robert (22 Jan. 1901-29 Dec. 1956), and (8) Berthold Frederick (1 Jan. 1903-8 Aug. 1968).

Edwin married Mary F. Vogt (4 Nov. 1894-4 Aug. 1984) on 10 Nov. 1924 in Victoria. Her parents were Emil F. Vogt and Louise Seiler. Their children are Friedrich Berthold (born 1 Jan. 1926; married 19 June 1956 to Lois Ray Semper at St. Paul's); Mary Evelyn Louise (born 11 July 1930, married 23 Nov. 1947 to Wilbert A. Lemke at St. Paul's); and Delores Frieda (11 July 1934-21 July 1934). Olga Lundschen never married.

Alfred married Ida Hackfeld on 30 Oct. 1919 at St. Paul's. She is believed to have been born 13 Mar. 1900 in Breslau, Lavaca County, the daughter of Fred Hackfeld and Mina Lehmann. The Lundschen children were Elvie Martha (born 17 Aug. 1920, married Otis Walter Smith in San Antonio ca. 1945); Leroy Alfred (born 19 Feb. 1923, died 8 Oct. 1945 in an airplane crash in Laredo while serving in the military, unmarried); and Idell Ruth (born 10 Sep. 1927, married James L. Findley in San Antonio ca. 1949).

Lillie married Louis Mehnert on 24 Oct. 1922 at St. Paul's. Their children are Edwin Louis (28 July 1923-24 Feb. 1924); Gladys (married LeMaster Warneke); Evelyn (married Burnie Falor); and Verline (married Werner Dentler).

Helene married Edgar Doerr (born 29 July 1898) on 5 Nov. 1919 at St. Andrew's in Weesatche (Goliad Co.). Their children are Wilbert Edgar (born 9 Jan. 1927), now a Lutheran pastor, and James Everett Doerr. William married Dorothy Meyer on 22 Dec. 1920 at St. Paul's. Their son is Floyd Wilfred (born 9 Jan. 1927).

The two youngest sons, George and Berthold, both lived in Seguin, both remarried after their wives died young, and neither had children.

LUNDSCHEN, "YOUNG" GEORGE

L-R: Agnes and Hedwig Lundschen

The other George Lundschen, "the younger one" (born 2 Feb., 1829 according to his tombstone) was born Ackminiszken, Kreis Heydekrug, Lithuania. Family members state that he may have been married when he arrived in 1854 at the port of Indianola or did so very soon after his arrival. The story goes on to say that her maiden name may have been Koch and she died just a few months later. (there was a yellow fever epidemic at Indianola in 1854). She may have left a daughter, for on the 1860 Census there is an older child named Anna, age 6 living in George Lundschen's household.

According to the marriage record of 24 Apr.,

1855 of DeWitt Co., Tx., George Lundschen takes Mary Mertine as his second wife. Their son, George Robert was born 17 Aug., 1856 and no further information is known about Mary. It would appear that George was, again, left with another motherless child.

On 25 March, 1858, George once again married. His bride's name was Anna Kerlick (see "George and Anna Lundschen family"). On 26 Apr., 1859, at St. John's Lutheran Church in Meyersville, both George Robert, who was almost three years old and Frederick Wilhelm, infant son of George and Anna (Kerlick) were baptized together. (in later years, the family would move their church membership to St. Paul's in Yorktown.)

In the spring of 1862, George Lundschen enlisted as a private in Co. I, 6th Reg't, Texas Infantry. He was mustered into service at Camp McCulloch in Victoria County. On 22 May, 1862, the 6th Tx. Infantry was ordered to march to Arkansas Post, Arkansas. On 11 Jan., 1863, the first fight of the regiment ended in capture at the Post.

Out of the 643 men in the regiment, only 100 men survived the war. The others were killed or died, principally from exposure. George Lundschen was imprisoned at Camp Butler near Springfield, Ill. In May 1863, Camp Butler was closed and the prisoners exchanged. George Lundschen did return to his family and home near Smith Creek in DeWitt County, but his duties and whereabouts till the end of the War are unknown at this time.

George Lundschen died 24 Aug., 1903 and Ann (Kerlick) Lundschen died 17 March, 1912. They are buried in the Jonischkies Cemetery near Yorktown.

There are numerous land deeds in the DeWitt County Clerk's office listed for "George Lundschen". Since there were two men of the same name, it is questionable which one bought land where. Most of the land was purchased in surveys under the names of J.H. Davis, E. Caples, P. Ragsdale, Wm. Starke, and Guadalupe College. These surveys are south of Yorktown near the Goliad County line.

George Robert Lundschen, the only child of George's second marriage had resided in the Weesatche vicinity practically all his life. He was confirmed 6 Apr. at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Yorktown, Texas, where his parents were members. On 22 Nov., 1885, he married Emma Emelie Schuenemann, daughter of Karl Schuenemann and Hermine Kluge.

Robert and Emma began their life together on a farm in DeWitt County. They were also members of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Yorktown. They had three daughters, the oldest, Anna Aline (born 10 Oct., 1886) died in infancy.

Their second daughter, Hedwig Matilda was born 17 Oct., 1888 in DeWitt County, Texas. She married William Thormalen (born 31 Oct., 1884) in DeWitt Co. on 29 Oct., 1907. They were the parents of three children. Hedwig died 29 Nov., 1986 and William died 23 Aug., 1963. They are buried in the Tivoli Cemetery, Tivoli, Texas.

Agnes Wilhelmina, the third daughter, was born 10 Feb., 1890. She married Paul Marcus Rabenaldt on 22 Apr., 1908 in DeWitt Co. Tx., They were the parents of eight children, seven lived to adulthood. Agnes died 28 Aug., 1981 and Paul died 20 Aug., 1957. They are buried in the Tivoli Cemetery, Tivoli, Texas.

Robert Lundschen died 28 Sept., 1914 and Emma Lundschen died 1 Oct., 1913. They are buried in St. Andrew's Lutheran Church Cemetery, Weesatche, Texas.

LUTTENBACHER, JOSEPH VINCENT

F590

Joseph Vincent Luttenbacher came to Texas with his parents Franz Joseph Luttenbacher, his mother Agnes Wilhelm, and his brother Ambrose and sister Josephine in 1853. They came from the Thur Valley in Alsace, France. They settled in DeWitt County close to the other Alsatian settlers. Joseph's younger brother, Charles, was born in Texas.

Josephine first married M.J. Ormond. Her second husband was J.F.C. Hille who was born in Prussia. He was a doctor and according to some letters dated 1873 and 1875 they lived in Galveston during one of the big storms. They are buried in Beaumont.

Joseph's brother, Ambrose, became Brother Joseph C.S.C. in the order of the Holy Cross. In 1872 the Brothers of the Holy Cross operated the St. Mary's School for boys in Galveston. According to the order's historians, he was the First Brother to take the habit in Texas. Brother Joseph wrote his parents in 1875 that he had 46 boys in his class. He was sent to New Orleans shortly after this. He died there on October 31, 1878 of yellow fever. His body was sent to Notre Dame, Indiana, the order's headquarters for burial.

Charles Luttenbacher was born in Texas in 1857. He married Mary Ann Bednorz. He was a well known carpenter in DeWitt County. He was the contractor for St. John's Lutheran Church in Meyersville in 1923.

Joseph Vincent Luttenbacher (1851-1932) married Maria Magdalena Fuchs on November 20, 1872. They settled in the Arneckeville area. Maria's parents were Edward Anton Fuchs (1805-1877) and Mary Amilin (1813-) from Kruth in the Thur Valley of Alsace France. They came to Texas in 1858.

Joseph Vincent and Maria M. had 8 children. Maria Adelaide and Edward Joseph died of diphtheria in 1876. Willemenna died at birth and Clara Josephine when she was 13 years old. Louis Luttenbacher (1876-) married Annie Hausenfleck. He worked in a bank in Goliad for 30 years. Cecelia (1878-1971) never married. Miss Celie was the lady who came to stay with new mothers and take care of the other children and the household until the mother was able to do so. Little children loved Miss Celie and cried when it was time for her to leave. Sophie (1888-1946) married Rudolph Fuchs.

Mary Helen (1879-1964) married Michael James Bluntzer. He was the son of Sixtus Bluntzer. In 1912 J.V. Luttenbacher went to live in Meyersville with his daughter Mary Bluntzer. His mode of transportation was a white horse and buggy. It is said he would visit the Semmler Saloon in Lower Meyersville and if he had too much beer they would just put him in his buggy and the white horse would bring him home to Upper Meyersville. His obituary states that his wife died in 1890 and left him with 5 small children, the youngest only one year old. It states he suffered many hardships during this time.

Joseph Vincent Luttenbacher is buried in St.

Peter and Paul Cemetery in Meyersville next to his mother and children.

MACHA, FLORIAN AND ROSALIE

F591

Florian Macha, born 18 November 1859 in Moravia in the Empire of Austria, was the son of Johan Macha and Johanna (Stefka) Stefkova. He married 21 October 1883 Rosalie Zbavitel, born 14 August 1862 in Moravia. Rosalie was the daughter of Joseph Zbavitel.

Florian and Rosalie Macha came to the United States on their wedding trip as stated in her obituary. Naturalization records in the District Clerk's office of Fayette County, Texas show they emigrated from the port of Bremen, Germany on or about the 23 day of November, 1883 and arrived at the port of Galveston, Texas on or about the 23 day of December, 1883. The naturalization record was signed and dated 26 July 1887.

They settled first in Dubina and Shiner and then moved to DeWitt County and settled in the community of Chicolete, where they remained the rest of their lives together. Shortly before her death, Rosalie moved to Cuero with her son Florian and his wife, Lillie.

The earliest land record in DeWitt County is dated 12 October 1893. By working hard and saving, they eventually accumulated over eleven hundred acres in Chicolete area.

There were nine children born of this union. Mary married Peter Michna; John married Antonio Wysatta; Joseph married Annie Kalich; Agnes married John Doubrava; Rosalie married Emil Wallek; Amelia married Beauregard C. Key; Louise married Reinhold Kalich; Florian married Lillie Kalich; Baby Florian died as a child, age 2 years, of pneumonia.

Florian died 22 December 1921, having been injured while riding horseback, and Rosalie died 15 April 1950. They are buried in the Yoakum Catholic Cemetery.

Amelia Macha married Beauregard Cleveland Key. They have four children, Gilbert Florian, William Edward, Celia Rosalie, and Aleen Estelle. B.C. died in 1974. Amelia is still living at the age of 94 years.

MANNING, BOB AND JOYCE (SOEHNGE)

F59

Both Bob and I are descendants of early settlers of DeWitt County. My ancestors came Bob and Joyce Manning wedding picture.

L-R: Louise Kalich, Rosa Wallek, Mary Michna, Florian Macha, Rosalie Macha, John Macha, Amelia Key, Joe Macha and Agnes Doubrava to DeWitt County from Germany in 1848. The Tax Collector/Assessor of DeWitt County in 1889 was Bob's great, great grandfather, James Brown.

Bob was born in Yoakum on September 28, 1936. He is the son of James Brown and Effie Wilcox Monk Manning. Bob has six brothers and four sisters. They are Edward Monk, Mary Manning Adams, Marjorie Monk Wasserman, J.D. Manning, Neiland Monk, Helen Manning Foxell, Joyce Monk Benbow, Don Monk, Jimmy Manning, and Wayne Manning. Since his dad was a construction worker, the family lived in many Texas towns. Bob started school in Yoakum, then moved to Stephenville for the second grade. At mid-term of that year, his family moved back to Yoakum where Bob completed his schooling. He played football for Yoakum High School. After graduating in 1955, he attended college on a football scholarship at the University of Texas at Arlington and Southwest Texas University. There he received a B.S. of Education degree. He received his Master's degree along with a Mid-Level Management degree from Prairie View A&M University.

I was born in Cuero to Ernest Soehnge (a naturalized citizen from Germany) and Corrine Rabke Soehnge on August 29, 1936. I started school in Mathis, Texas, where my father had a welding business. When I was nine years old, my father was killed in a welding accident, so my mother, my brother Charles, and I moved back to my mother's hometown of Cuero. In 1952 my mother married S. Adelbert Parker of Yoakum and we moved there. I graduated from Yoakum High School in 1954. I then went to Baldwin's Business College in Yoakum where I took secretarial training. I have worked as an office clerk for an insurance company, an aircraft defense plant, an Army post and at school.

In the First Methodist Church of Yoakum, Bob and I were married on August 19, 1955. We have three children: Michael born in Austin in 1959, Kevin born in Yoakum in 1962, and Jan born in Victoria in 1966.

Upon completing college, Bob taught and coached in Yoakum from 1959 until 1963. From 1963 until 1964, he was the head coach and athletic director of Yorktown High School. We then moved to Victoria where Bob became a salesman for Athey's Sporting Goods Co., and he traveled to schools in the Central Texas area. At the opening of Victoria Stroman High School, Bob went back to his love, teaching and coaching. He stayed at Stroman from 1967 until 1973.

In 1973, we moved back to our hometown of Yoakum when Bob accepted the athletic director and head football coaching position. In football, the 1976 Bulldogs were State Quarter-Finalists, the 1977 Bulldogs were State Semi-Finalists, and the 1978 Bulldogs were Co-District Champs.

In 1978, Bob and I opened Manning's Sports Center, with me running the store and Bob coaching and teaching. We sold the store in 1984 and Bob became principal of Yoakum High School.

Like their parents, Mike, Kevin and Jan have all graduated from Yoakum High School. Mike married Kathy Bucek of Yoakum on March 13, 1982. He is a salesman for Acme Boot Company. They have two children: Jenna Lee born July 15, 1986 and Scott born February 1, 1989. They live in Victoria where Kathy is a physical therapist. Kevin graduated from the University of Texas in Austin in May of 1989. Jan lives in Corpus Christi with her husband, Gregory Wayne Sitka. Greg is from Yoakum where they married February 28, 1987.

MANNING, JAMES BROWN FAMILY

F593

Jim and Effie Manning

I was born in Brownwood, Texas, on July 24, 1904, to John David and Sally Leah Spinks Manning. I came to DeWitt County at the age of one year to live with my foster parents, Uncle Lige and Aunt Mary Alice Manning of Terryville. I attended Terryville's Countyline School.

After I finished school I returned to Brownwood where on December 15, 1921 I married Myrtle Helen Richardson. Myrtle was born to Wesley and Mary Etta McKinney Richardson on July 31, 1903.

To this union four children were born. Mary Alice born November 8, 1922, James David born December 21, 1924, and Helen Viola born November 15, 1926 and Royal Ray born September 4, 1929. Myrtle passed away that day and was buried in Greenleaf Cemetery in

I later returned to Yoakum and on June 4, 1932 I married Effie Wilcox Monk of Yoakum. Effie was born in Yoakum on December 8, 1907, to John and Dora Castellow Wilcox of Sweet Home. She had five children, Edward Fredrick born August 25, 1923, Marjorie Mae born August 10, 1924, Neiland Hale born October 12, 1925, Elleen Joyce born September 8, 1927, and Donald Ray born April 8, 1931. Their father was Edward Thomas Monk. We had three boys, James Brown Jr. born July 6, 1933, Robert Earl born September 28, 1936 and Gorden Wayne born April 19, 1938.

All of the children have homes of their own now. Edward married Shirley Helen Powell of Holyoke, Colorado. Mary married Charles Fletcher Adams of Yoakum, Marjorie married Albert E. "Pete" Wasserman of Cuero (Pete died in February, 1985), J.D. married Elyne Jane Krause of Yoakum (Elyne died in January, 1974) and Joyce Moldenhauer of Stonewall, Neiland married Lillian "Ethel" Fitch of Korth, Helen married Will Albert Foxell Jr. of Yoakum, Joyce married George Morrow Benbow of Stratton, Don married Joyce Helen Fox of Corpus Christi, Jimmie married Sylvia Ann Welch of Yoakum, Bobby married Joyce Janet Soehnge of Yoakum, and Wayne married Bonnie Lou Evans of Yoakum. We have 38 grandchildren and 40 great-grandchildren.

I worked in the grocery business most of my life and am now retired. Effic retired after 28 years with Tex Tan, but her job as wife, mother and grandmother kept her busy.

After 53 years of marriage, Effie died May 20, 1985, and is buried in Countyline Cemetery. James B. died in October 1989.

John David Manning was born in Terryville, Texas on December 12, 1875 to William Henry and Frances Martha Ray Manning. He attended school in old Terryville. He married Sally Leah Spinks in 1899 in DeWitt County. Sally Leah was born in DeWitt County on August 12, 1883, to Henry and Eliza Brown Spinks.

Sally and John went to Brownwood, Texas, there John worked for the Santa Fe railroad until his retirement. Three children were born to this union, all in Brownwood. James Brown "Jimmie" was born in 1904. William Henry "Buster" was born in 1900, and Zula Belle was born in 1902.

This marriage ended in divorce in 1905 and John married Clara Cooper in Brownwood in 1914. They had two daughters, Frances born in 1916 and Nadine born in 1918.

Buster married Meale Cook, Billie Quida, and Kay Pratt. Zula Belle married Bill Spence, Homer Andrews and Bill Lambert. Jimmie married Myrtle Helen Richardson, and Effie Wilcox. Frances married W.H. Perkins. Nadine married George Bernard.

After the death of Clara, John lived with Buster in Angleton, Texas. But visited with his other children and grandchildren until his death on January 2, 1964. He is buried in Countyline Cemetery at Terryville.

MANNING, MARY MATILDA CLOVER

F595

Mary Matilda (Clover) Manning and Joe Manning

Mary Matilda Clover was born in Angelina County, Texas (5 Apr. 1846) to John Clover and Mary Massingale Clover. In those days people lived in log cabins and wore home spun clothing, wore brogan shoes and rode in ox carts. Their social life consisted of quilting, candy braking, log raising and camp meeting.

When Mary was fifteen years of age, her father enlisted in the Confederate Army and served four years on the Texas frontier. During that time Mary and her mother tended the farm and cattle. After her father returned from the war, Mary, her mother and father, along with several other families, moved to Hamilton. Texas.

At the age of twenty-one Mary Matilda Clover married Joe Manning. Their six children were: 1) Luticia Ann, b. Nov. 1, 1866 – d. Jan. 1, 1893; 2) Johnnie Louis b. Unknown – d. Dec. 10, 1867; 3) Thomas Martin b. Mar. 18, 1869 – d. young; 4) Ezekiel b. Feb. 1, 1871 – d. young; 5) Mary Alice b. Sept. 17, 1873 – d. July 24, 1963; 6) Joseph b. Mar. 26, 1875 – d. Unknown.

In those days Hamilton County was infested with Comanche Indians. They raided mostly at night by moonlight, murdering, stealing and otherwise terrorizing the settlers. Horses were absolutely necessary to cattle business, and were especially coveted by the Indians. In order to outwit the Indians, Mary and Joe would find a large thicket and clear the center and use the brush to make a corral for their horses. The Indians would not enter the thicket for fear of a trap.

One time the Indians raided the school house and killed the teacher and kidnapped a pupil named Kuykendal, causing the other children to flee into the woods. The men of the community formed a chase, Joe Manning joined the chase. They were gone three days, but failed to catch the Indians. Eighteen months later the Indians brought the Kuykendal boy to trade for tobacco and supplies.

Joe Manning died in 1876 and several years later Mary married Varese Manning, her husband's third cousin.

In the course of years five more children were born: 1) Benjamin b. Oct. 31, 1878 - d. Nov. 3, 1928, m. Josephine Goodson. 2) Malissa Ann b. Jan. 2, 1880 - d. Jan. 10, 1979, m. Walter Cock. 3) Martin Hermit b. Dec. 19, 1883 -d. Apr. 18, 1958, m. Janie Ridgeway. 4) Henry Vetallis b. Feb. 13, 1886 d. Mar. 27, 1938, m. Minnie Clara Rush. 5) James Leroy b. Mar. 16, 1888 - d. Jan. 15, 1957, m. Susan Emily Woodrome.

In 1882 Mary and Varese Manning moved to DeWitt County, Texas, near Terryville. They purchased land and lived there until their deaths. Varese passed away Feb. 13, 1920 and Mary Matilda passed away Jan. 30, 1938. Both are buried in the Catholic Cemetery in Yoakum, Texas.

MANNING, WILLIAM ELIJAH AND MARY ALICE

F596

"Lige" Manning and Mary Alice (Manning) Manning

William Elijah "Lige" Manning was born in Butler County, Alabama, on March 10, 1870, to William and Martha Frances Ray Manning. At the age of five, the family moved to DeWitt County, Texas at Thomaston. There, they lived and ran a cotton gin. After a year, they purchased 340 acres of land at Terryville, Texas, where they farmed.

On October 7, 1900 William Elijah married Mary Alice Manning (no relation). They purchased 200 acres of land adjoining Lige's family. There, they farmed, milked cows, and sold butter for a living and to pay for their land.

Mary Alice was born in Hamilton, Texas on September 17, 1873 to Varice and Mary Clover Manning. The Mannings gave the land that the Hamilton township is built on. A street was named in their honor.

Although Mary Alice and Lige were never able to have children of their own, they raised several children in their home. Soon after their marriage Mary Alice's sister died at childbirth. They took the baby girl and raised her until she was eight years old. At that time, her father took her with him. In 1905, they took Lige's nephew, James Brown "Jimmy" Manning, to live with them. Later, after the death of Jimmy's wife, Lige and Mary Alice took Jimmy's small children, Mary, Helen and James David "J.D." to raise.

Lige was a member of the Baptist Church from an early age and was a faithful member until his death on November 30, 1944. He was a lifetime member of the Woodman of the World Lodge at Terryville.

Mary Alice was raised in a Catholic home, but in July 1906, she joined her husband's church and was an active member until her death on July 24, 1963. She was a hard working lady who was fondly called "Grannie" by all. Lige and Mary Alice are buried, along with other Manning family members, at Countyline Cemetery at Terryville.

MARIE, SAMUEL

F598

Archie Marie and Sam Marie at S.A. Marie and Son Jewelry Store, 1918.

Samuel Marie was born on October 30, 1864 in Lavaca, Texas. His mother was Angelina Thibodaux who was born May 5, 1828 in Thibodaux, Louisiana. She was a devout Catholic. Her parents were sugar plantation owners. Sam's father was Pierre Marie who was born in 1803. He came from Corsica but we are not sure if this was his place of birth. He was a cargo boast captain. Pierre and Angelina were married in 1843 in Thibodaux. They had eleven children, all born in LaFouche Parish except Samuel who was born in Lavaca. Pierre took hides and pecans and etc. from Texas and brought in coffee, sugar and other supplies. Family stories say he sunk his boat during the Civil War to keep it from being confiscated.

Pierre Marie died in 1866 and was buried in Pt. Lavaca but later, his body was moved to Cuero and buried at Hillside Cemetery. He and Angelina, who died in 1906, are both buried in Hillside.

Arcelie Muti was their second oldest child. Sam grew to young manhood in Cuero and learned watchmaking from John Welch. At the age of twenty one he married Harriet Nellie Hill, the daughter of Henry F.W. Hill who was the Mayor of Cuero. Sam and Nellie had nine children, one died in infancy. Eight grew up in Cuero. Their children were Maude, Walter, Archie, Hill, Beatrice (Mrs. Newton Brown), Arcelie, Violet and Samuel Arthur.

Beatrice married Newton Brown and they had three children, Lunell Brennan, who graduated from Cuero High, Newton, Jr., and Mary Jeanniene Bell. The Browns lived in Cuero until Newton's job took him to San Antonio in 1938. Cuero was always home to them tho and Newton and Bea are buried at Hillside.

Sam Marie owned and operated jewelry stores and did watch repairing in Smiley and Edna for a short time. He returned to Cuero where he and his son, Archie, had a store together. Archie was also a watchmaker. He taught his brother Arthur the trade. Archie was married in 1917 to Merle Murray of LaVernia, Texas. A short time later he was drafted into the Army. Sam, Nellie and Arthur then moved to Kenedy where Sam opened a store. He was in business there until his health failed and they moved back to Cuero about 1920.

Archie was only in the Army ninety days. He was given an honorable discharge due to his health and he returned to Cuero and began watch repairing again. Archie and Merle had five children: 1) Mary Genevia was born in 1918 and died in 1932; 2) Clairice was born in 1924 (Mrs. Bert Barnes); 3) Murray was born in 1926; 4) Melba was born in 1933 (Mrs. Charles McGlothlin); 5) and James Kinnion who was born in 1935. Archie and his sister, Bea saw to their parents needs until Nellie died in 1932 and Sam died in 1933. Archie owned and operated A. Marie Jewelry Store for over thirty years. He was widely known for his fine watch making and his kindness and honesty. There has been a Marie business on Main Street for many years. Kin Marie now owns, and with his wife Sandra (Leske), operates Running K. Western Wear and Shoe Repair Shop.

Archie died in 1944 and is buried in Hillside Cemetery on the lot with his Mother, Father and daughter, Mary Genevia.

MARKOWSKY, GUSTAV ADOLPH

F599

Gustav Adolph Markowsky was born October 24, 1863 in Berlin, Germany. He came to this county in about 1879 in search of employment and to escape the unrest in Germany. He worked his way over on a tramp steamer, landing at Galveston, Texas. He made his first home in Meyersville, Texas. He married Louisa Rosener, Dec. 1, 1887 in the Meyersville Lutheran Church. This little church still stands and is nearly 140 years old.

Gustav and Louisa later moved to Lindenau, Texas where they owned a General Merchandising store and Post Office. In 1897 Mr. Markowsky was appointed Street Commissioner of Cuero, Texas, and built a home on the corner of Broadway and Terry St. The house still stands as of 1989 with a few minor changes. He continued to work for the City and County, constructing roads and building bridges for 35 years. He was also a member of the County Drainage Commission.

Mr. Markowsky was one of the founders of the Cuero Municipal Band. Their regular Monday night practices were held at his home, where he would always serve refreshments of sandwiches and beer. The band had concerts in the City Park Band Stand every Friday night through the summer months. He, as well as his two sons, Emil and W.G. "Bill" and a son-inlaw, R.F. Heyer, Jr., were members of the band.

Gus and Louisa celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary on Dec. 1, 1937 with an open house and a band concert hosted by their five children; Alfred H. Markowsky (Dec. 6, 1888 – Dec. 9, 1953), William G. "Bill" Markowsky (Nov. 16, 1892 – March 24, 1939), Emil B. Markowsky (August 19, 1890 – Aug. 6, 1944), Lydia Anna Markowsky (April 19, 1894 – Jan. 5, 1973) and Hulda Karoline Markowsky (Jan 8, 1898 – Dec. 6, 1976).

Alfred H. Markowsky, Sr. was born in Meyersville, Texas on Dec. 6, 1888. He attended school in Cuero, Texas and later married Leona Albrecht on Dec. 16, 1908. He was a mail clerk in the Cuero Post Office, starting by delivering mail on his bicycle. Later in 1925 he moved to Harlingen and served 2 years in the Harlingen Post Office and 19 years in charge of dispatching as assistant Postmaster in the San Benito Post Office. He retired in 1947. After retirement he was Justice of the Peace for that area until 1952, when he had to resign because of ill health. He died 12/9/1953. Alfred and Leona had nine children; Alfred H. Markowsky, Jr. ("Sonny"), Edward R., Leland D., Eugenia, Elgerine, Aline, Marjorie Clair, Mary Lou and Walter Leon, who died when he was three Emil Berthold Markowsky was born Aug. 19, 1890 and died Aug. 6, 1944. He was married to Claude B. Hunter. He served in World War I and served 2 terms as Cuero City Marshal (1923-1925). He then became first deputy and jailer for DeWitt County under Sheriff F.A. Lenz in 1926. He was appointed sheriff on June 6, 1934, was then elected to this position Nov. 6, 1934, and served from 1934 until Jan. 1, 1938. Two children were born to this union; Raymond Lee Markowsky (Dec. 9, 1917 – March 8, 1981) and Donald W. Markowsky Dec. 14, 1921 – Feb. 6, 1974). Donald was well known in Dewitt County for his talent as an artist. (See history for Raymond Lee ("Ray").

W.G. ("Bill") Markowsky was born in Meyersville, Texas Nov. 16, 1892. He came to Cuero as a boy and lived there practically all his life. He married Myrtle Worley on Feb. 1, 1915. They had two children; Edwin ("Obbie") Markowsky (Sept. 24, 1917 ——) and Mary Joe (Mrs. Jack Keilberg) (Oct. 7, 1921 — Oct. 4, 1981). For many years he was construction foreman for DeWitt County, Precinct #1, and for 15 years before his death he served as constable and deputy sheriff. He was a member of the Cuero Turkey Trot Band and a member of the Herman Sons Lodge. He died March 24, 1939.

Lydia Anna Markowsky (April 19, 1894 – Jan. 5, 1973) was born in Cuero, Texas and married William F. Casal of Cuero on Aug. 14, 1914. Two children were born to this union; Katherine (Mrs. Jimmy Reiffert) (June 18, 1915 – April 15, 1974) and Dorothy Jean (Mrs. Carlton Stubbs) (1/3/1923 – —).

Hulda Karoline Markowsky (Jan. 8, 1898 – Dec. 6, 1976) was born in Cuero, Texas and married Robert F. Heyer, Jr. (See history of Robert F. Heyer, Jr.)

MARKOWSKY, LOUISA ROSENER

Emil Markowsky

Ray Markowsky

Johanna Dorothea Louisa Karolina Rosener was born October 13, 1869 and was adopted by Heinrich Rosener and Louisa Hausmann Rosener. According to the records of St. John's Lutheran Church in Meyersville, Texas, she was an American orphan whom no one else wanted to adopt. She was baptized Oct. 12, 1873. Her sponsors were Johannes Bertram, Karolina Post and Dorothea Hausmann. She was also confirmed in the same church on March 18, 1883. Her birth date was entered as 1870. Her father's death was recorded as Johann Adam Rosener, born Aug. 10, 1813. He was killed in an accident somehow related to horses on July 5, 1886. (In the family bible, written in German script, his name was Johann Friedrich Wilhelm, born Aug. 10, 1834 and another date entered was February 16, 1848, which could possibly be a confirmation date). In the church records, Louisa's mother, Sophia Louise Rosener, was born Feb. 2, 1834 and died Nov. 9, 1886. All the early church records have been translated from German script to English and naturally there is a possibility of error in dates or names.

The first wife of Johann Heinrich Post, Lena Rosener Post, childbirth could have been Louisa's younger sister. She was also adopted by the Roseners after the real mother's death. The family of Louisa was told that her real name was Bell and that she was probably of the Catholic religion, since she had a rosary belonging to her real mother.

Louisa Rosener married Gustav Adolph Markowsky, Dec. 1, 1887 in the same little Lutheran Church in Meyersville, Texas, where she was baptized and confirmed. There were five children born: Alfred H. (1888-1953), Emil B. former sheriff of DeWitt County (1890-1944), William G. (1892-1939) Lydia A. Casal (1895-1973), and Hulda K. Heyer (1898-1976).

Louisa and Gustav celebrated their Golden Wedding anniversary Dec. 1, 1937. She suffered a stroke in 1944 and died August 15, 1944.

Raymond Lee Markowsky, better known as "Ray", was the son of Emil B. and Claude B. (Hunter) Markowsky. He was born in Dallas, Texas, December 9, 1917, but lived most of his life in Cuero, Texas. He was a veteran of World War II. He married Golda Faye Cameron Bean, who had one son, Carrol "Babe", who was later adopted by Ray.

Ray followed in his father's (Emil Markowsky) footsteps when he was elected sheriff of DeWitt County. He was elected sheriff on November 2, 1948, reelected in 1950, 1952, 1954, 1956, 1960 and served until August 31, 1964, when he resigned. He served a total of 15 years and 8 months, which is the longest time served as sheriff in the history of DeWitt County.

He was named Palacios Police Chief, January 10, 1967 and served in that capacity for 5½ years and then served as Matagorda County sheriff's deputy for the Palacios area for 4 years. He died March 8, 1981 in Matagorda County, Texas.

Carrol "Babe" Markowsky married Jo Ann Finchand they have two children; Vickie, born in 1957 and Mark.

MARSHALL, ISHAM AND SARAH

F601

Sarah Music Marshall

Isham Marshall and his wife Sarah came to DeWitt County from Nacogdoches prior to 1845.

Isham, descended from the Virginia Marshalls, was born in Tennessee sometime between 1800 and 1810. He lived for a time in Missouri and Arkansas, and was living in the Nacogdoches District of Texas in 1833. About 1840 he married Sarah Music.

Sarah was born in 1820 in what is now Hempstead County, Arkansas. Sarah's father, Robert B. Musick, ran a trading post in the noman's land along the Red River from 1814 to 1819 and earned the disfavor of the authorities by selling whiskey to and "plundering" the Indians. Circa 1819, he married Martha and went into the slave trading business. He bought land in what is now Cherokee County, Texas, in 1829, and shortly thereafter died leaving Martha to raise five children. In 1838

Martha applied for and received a headright consisting of a league and a labor of land. In 1844, Martha married John H. Reagan who was later Senator from Texas, the first Texas Land Commissioner, and Postmaster General of the Confederacy.

Isham purchased one hundred thirty acres from J.J. Tumlinson, just north of Cuero in 1845, and by 1849, had purchased one thousand fifty-five acres from the J.J. Tumlinson survey and two-thirds of the John Adriance League.

Isham and Sarah had three children: Elizabeth, born in 1841 and who did not marry; Tennessee, born February 27, 1845, who married Thomas J. Howard; Susan Missouri, born February 4, 1847, who married G.M. Alexander.

Apparently Isham had some indication that his life was to be cut short, because in November of 1848, he deeded the first one hundred thirty acres he had purchased in DeWitt County, a Negro named Ellen, five horses, seventy head of cattle, his entire stock of hogs, a wagon and fodder to Sarah. Isham died intestate and Sarah petitioned to be named administratrix of his estate in May, 1850. He left an estate of one thousand fifty-five acres valued at $1.00 per acre; two thousand ninetynine acres valued at twenty-five cents an acre; one hundred twenty-eight head of cattle, two yoke of oxen and one 'odd' ox; four horses; one lot hogs; and various household goods and implements.

On June 1, 1851, Sarah married Benjamin Stout and to this union, a son, Benjamin L. was born. Benjamin L. married Mary E. Park.

In 1857, Sarah married William Flepping, but by the 1870 census, she was a widow again.

The records of Sarah's life fade at this point and the final resting place for Sarah and Isham Marshall has not been found.

MATTHEW, MARTHA FRANCES NEWMAN KIRKLAND

F603

The first setters of Austin's colony in Texas are known as the "Old Three Hundred". These are the families brought into Texas by Austin under his contract with the Mexican government. They were all, or nearly all, in Texas before the close of summer 1824.

Three hundred seven titles were issued. Nine families received two titles each, which leaves, not including Stephen F. Austin, two hundred ninety-seven as the actual number of families introduced under this contract. They can truly be called the "first families" of Texas.

According to the General Land Office archives in Austin, title to lands was granted to William Raab in Fayette County, July 19, 1824 and August 24, 1824. William and Mary (Smalley) Raab had an only daughter, Rachel, who married Joseph Newman. To their union was born a son, Joseph Austin Newman, October 2, 1824, one of the many succeeding generations of Newmans to bear the name "Austin" in tribute to their patron.

Joseph Austin Newman and Mary Elizabeth Baker were married by a Methodist minister in Clinton, Texas in 1854. He died in 1872 of complications following surgery in San Antonio, Texas, where he is buried.

Their children were Jim, Lee, Joseph Sylvester, John Austin, Dedie (Stovall), Ann (Means), Mollie (Woods), Rachel (Houston), and Martha Frances Newman (Kirkland) (Matthew).

John Austin became a deputy sheriff of DeWitt County, where many of his descendants still reside.

Joseph Sylvester Newman, according to his own writings, began riding horses and herding sheep at the age of seven years. In 1866 he was one of the cowboys who made that first grueling trip north up the Chisholm Trail. In 1886 he was ordained into the ministry by authority of the Primitive Baptist Church, a calling he was to follow until his death in November, 1935. He is buried in Alexander Cemetery, Stratton.

Martha Frances was born to Joseph Austin and Mary Elizabeth (Baker) Newman August 13, 1864 near San Marcos, Texas. She died in Cuero November 21, 1955 at the age of ninetyone. She is buried in Alexander Cemetery in Stratton, the community in which she had lived most of her life and reared her thirteen children. She was a charter member of Pilgrim's Rest Primitive Baptist Church.

On Nov. 10, 1880 at the age of sixteen years, Martha Frances married William Vinson Kirkland, the son of Daniel Coates and Mary Ann (MacDonald) Kirkland. This union produced two sons, James Monroe (Sept. 21, 1881) and William Samuel (June 18, 1883). Their father, William Vinson, died July 1, 1883 two weeks after the birth of his second son.

On August 4, 1885 Martha Frances Newman Kirkland, a young widow with two small sons, married a DeWitt County farmer, Walter King Matthew, who was born in 1865, the son of Elbert Franklin and Delilah Hollan Matthew. They parented eleven more children. Walter King Matthew died December 1, 1917.

MAUER, CHARLES FREDERICK AND SUSAN MOORE

F60

Charles Frederick Mauer was born April 2, 1891 in Corpus Christi, Texas to William Frederick and Minnie (Vollers) Mauer. The family later moved to Cuero where they built a home that remains standing on East Newman Street. The house is constructed on barrelshaped piers formed when barrels of concrete were inundated by flood waters during the great Indianola storm. The contents dried in the shape of the containers, were brought to Cuero and used as a foundation.

Charles was skilled with his hands, as were his brothers, William Frederick (Willie) (9-26-1884), Eugene Richard (7-25-88), Frederick Othello (Fred) (7-10-93), Clifford Chester (12-13-98), Robert Roland (5-1-03), and Albert Bertram (Bert) (9-5-07). Except for Bert, who worked for many years before his retirement for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., they were all carpenters and home builders. They worked on many of the public buildings in Cuero and built private homes that are still in use in the city and throughout South Texas.

Their sisters were Myrtle Schultz Alphonso and Viola Rosamund (Lola) Coker. All of the brothers and sisters are now deceased.

On February 10, 1917 in Sinton, Charles married Susan Ophelia Moore, who was born June 10, 1899 in Helena, Karnes County, to Thomas Acy and Mary Susan (Forehand) Moore. Her brother and sisters were Thomas LaFayette Moore, Beulah Katherine (Dromgoole), Carrie Jane (Lowery), Caldonia Mae (Coffey), Josephine Rebecca (Senessen), William Gertrude (Garner), Grace Knox (Barnwell, and Homa Christine (McDaniel.

Ten children were born to Charles and Susan: Heywood Wilbur (10-7-17), Richard Edgar (12-14-19), Ray Frances (5-20-21), Charles Fredrick, Jr. (8-7-22), Helen Annette (7-5-24), Glenn Reginald (7-15-27), Marion Julius (8-10-30), Tommy Lee (1-28-33), Carl Wayne (5-15-35), and Marjorie Nell (8-22-38).

In May, 1939 Heywood married Floy Eldred Stewart, daughter of Elmer and Marny (Baker) Stewart of Cuero. Their two sons are Gerald Ray (4-23-40) and Gilbert Eugene (5-24-43). Floy died Feb. 5, 1978 in Houston and is buried in Hillside Cemetery, Cuero. Heywood, who followed in his father's footsteps as a builder and electrical contractor, returned to Cuero where he lives with his present wife, the former Esther Waldrep Martin, and serves as building inspector for the City of Cuero.

Richard Edgar (Jackie) was married October 20, 1940 to Mary Helen Poetter, daughter of Fritz and Annie (Caffall) Poetter. Their children are Richard Edgar, Jr. (11-9-43) and Marilyn Ann (Courtney) (9-28-47). They live in Port Lavaca where Jackie has retired from Alcoa Aluminum Co. and Mary Helen from school administration.

Ray Francis and Geraldine (Jerry) Baker were married June 1, 1941 in Yorktown at the home of her parents, Calvin Cason and Pearl Matthew Baker. Their three children David Ray (6-15-42), Robert Michael (9-25-45) and Melinda Lou (8-3-51) were born while they lived in Cuero, where Ray worked at Brayton Field, and as administrative assistant to the Texas National Guard, and later at Foster Field in Victoria. In 1958 the family moved to San Antonio. Following his military and civil service retirements, Ray and Jerry moved to Lakehills on Median Lake, Bandera County. He is presently serving as Bandera County Judge, an office to which he was elected in 1986.

Charles Fredrick, Jr. married Mary Faye Stewart, younger sister of Floy Stewart Mauer, in Cuero on May 10, 1947. They have lived in Beaumont for a number of years where his company is a supplier of bottled gasses and she is employed by Beaumont Motors. Their son, Charles Frederick III, was born July 2, 1952.

Annette and Dalton Edward (Penny) Pennington were married in Houston March 2, 1942. Their daughters, Marjorie Anne (12-28-42) and Terrell Sue (10-17-44) were born in Cuero. The Pennington's have lived in Houston most of their married life. Penny is now retired from the Veteran's Administration.

On Aug. 2, 1950 Glenn married Am Floyd in her home town of Post, Texas. They lived in Odessa where both their sons, Michael Glenn (5-12-54) and Mark Stephene (12-6-55) were born. The family moved to Waco where Glenn is senior auditor with Cameron & Co. Divorced, Glenn later married Joy Elaine Baker of Waco.

Marion Julius and Wanda Louise Wilburg were married in Los Angeles April 9, 1952. Their home is in Norwalk, Ca. where Marion is an industrial engineer with Pacific Pumps, a division of Dresser Industries. Their children are Rhonda Louise (9-19-55), Marion Scott (2-26-58), and Kevin Timothy (2-10-66). Wanda died 12-3-83.

Tommy Lee married Loretta June Lamb in Shreveport, La. March 3, 1956. During Tom's career as a U.S. Navy pilot, they lived on various military bases in the U.S. and overseas including California, Hawaii, Okinawa and Texas. Their children Tommy Lee, Jr. (4-6-57) and Lynn-Anne (4-27-61) were born in San Diego, Ca. Tom retired as a Lt. Commander from the Navy at Beeville Naval Air Station where he had been a pilot training officer while the family resided in Sinton. He began a second career in school administration, serving as principal of Odem High. Tom and June presently live in San Marcos where he is high school principal and she is a middle school teacher.

Carl Wayne and Billie Jean (York) Fritz of Cuero were married April 23, 1955. Her daughter, Deborah Kay, was born 5-25-52 in Kingsville. Their son, Steve Wayne, was born 2-8-56 in Oahu, Hawaii where Carl was stationed with the U.S. Marine Corps. Following his military discharge, the family returned Stateside and have lived in Port Lavaca for a number of years. He works with Alcoa Aluminum Co.

The youngest of the Mauer children, Marjorie Nell, married Billie Jo Reid in La Pryor 12-20-56. Their four children are Sheryl Lynn (9-13-57), Vickie Jo (10-27-58), both born in Cuero, Denson Wayne (11-9-59) in Laredo, and Donna Leanne (4-22-61) in San Antonio. Bill and Marjorie now live near Pleasanton. His career has been primarily related to law enforcement.

Charles Frederick Mauer, Sr. died July 19, 1969 and is buried in Memory Gardens, Cuero. Susan Moore Mauer continues to reside in Cuero and will observe her 90th birthday in June 1989. All of their children were reared in Cuero and attended Cuero schools. Seven sons and one son-in-law served honorably in various branches of the military during World War II and the Korean conflict. Despite their years of travel and lives spent in other cities and areas, they all still call Cuero "home".

MAYWALD, ROGER AND LONNIE

F605

Lonnie and Roger Maywald, August 7, 1988.

Roger and Lonnie Maywald are newlyweds and newcomers to DeWitt County. Roger moved here from Victoria after he completed building a home along the Guadalupe River about two miles from Cuero. He and Lonnie Kilgore Ficklen were married on 8-7-1988 at the First Baptist Church in Port Lavaca, Tx. Soon after Lonnie retired from her job at the Port Lavaca Clinic Associates and moved to DeWitt Co.

Roger has one daughter, Lea Ann, born 10-11-69 in Corpus Christi, Tx. On July 1, 1989 she married Gregory Scott Sutton in Victoria, Tx where they now reside.

Lonnie has three children, all born and raised in Port Lavaca, Tx. Their father is deceased. Her children are: Toni Darlene Ficklen Day (3-20-60) married to Randy Day of Castro Valley, California, where they now reside with their two sons, Matthew (3-29-84) and Austin (8-24-88). Richard Lindsey Ficklen (7-10-66) lives in Victoria, Tx. David Ryan Ficklen (3-19-69) is a student at Texas Tech University in Lubbock, Texas.

The Maywaldt (Maywoldt) family first came to America in 1849 from Prussia and settled in Grimes County, Tx. The 1860 Census shows that August Maywoldt, age 60, was a blacksmith, son Christian, age 27, a miller, and son, George, age 25, a wheelwright, all born in Baden. Two sons, August, 14, and Henry, 12, were day laborers. F. Gustavus Maywoldt, age 36, was a retail dry goods merchant. He and his wife, Henrietta, age 30, were born in Baden also. Their children were all born in Texas. Henrietta must have died and F.G. remarried because the 1880 census lists his wife as A.W., age 24, born in Louisiana. The spelling of the name had changed to Maywald by this time. They had several children, the youngest son, Sercy Morris Maywald (1-24-1894, 4-6-1951) married Amy Linda Williamson in 1915. They lived their married lives in Pleasanton, Tx where they raised three children: Roger Morris Maywald, Sr. (3-21-17), Virginia Grace Maywald Henry and Robert Dee Maywald.

Roger Maywald, Sr. married Marietta Landrum (5-18-15, 9-1-72). They had one child, Roger Morris Maywald, Jr. born and raised in Pleasanton. Marietta was the daughter of Hull Hill Landrum and Sadie Horton Landrum, the granddaughter of John Horton and Harrisona Sherpie, and the granddaughter of Zadok and Amy Miller Sherpie. Marietta was born in Cotulla and died in Pleasanton. After her death Roger, Sr. married Alene Haverlan Degenhardt in 1973. He died 12-12-78 and is buried at Pleasanton next to Marietta and his parents.

Amy Linda Williamson Maywald was the daughter of W.C. Williamson and Stella Sherpie Williamson (1-26-1872 in W. Va., 8-26-1958 in Pleasanton, Tx). Stella's parents were Zadok and Amy Miller Sherpie (11-12-1837, 3-19-1917 in Pleasanton, Tx). Amy Miller Sherpie was the daughter of Samuel and Rachel Dawson Miller of Ohio. Zadok Sherpie was the son of Charles Henry Charpier (later changed to Sherpie) and Marianne Blanchard Charpier. They came to America from Switzerland, accompanied by Marianne's mother Lydia Jabas Blanchard.

This records five generations on the Maywalds, seven generations on Roger's paternal grandmother's family, and seven generations of Roger's maternal family.

Lonnie is a descendant of the Douglas family of Scotland, known as the Earls of Angus, from which Queen Victoria descended. About 1763 five of the gt gt grandsons of Lord Douglas Kilgore, together with a number of Scotch and Irish emigrants came to North America and settled in N. Carolina. The Kilgores were from the county of Fife, Scotland. All five of the Kilgore brothers were in the battle of King's Mountain, fought Oct. 7, 1780, which battle was a turning point in the Revolutionary War. One brother was killed and two others wounded. One of the wounded was Charles Kilgore, Sr. from whom Lonnie's father descended. His wife was Winnie Clayton Kilgore.

Roger and Lonnie have carried on the traditions of their families. Upon graduation from high school in Pleasanton, Tx and duty in the Texas Air National Guard, Roger went to work for the railroad, the same as his father, Roger, Sr., and his grandfather, Sercy Maywald. At one time they were the only three generations of one family to work as engineers for the same railroad and on the same tracks at Pleasanton. Roger's paternal great grandfather also worked as a boomer for the railroad. All of these have deceased, except Roger, Jr., and he still works for the Union Pacific Railroad.

Roger and Lonnie enjoy living in the country with their two cats and a dog and have a large garden. Roger is a member of the Masonic Lodge and Lonnie is a member and Past Matron of the Order of the Eastern Star. Lonnie has been active in church and community affairs for a number of years. She was the Calhoun County Chairman for the Texas Sesquicentennial Celebration in 1986, chairman of the LaSalle Three Hundred Year Celebration in 1985. She has been honored as the "Woman of the Year" in 1984 by the Beta Sigma Phi, and 1985 by the Port Lavaca-Calhoun Co. Chamber of Commerce, and "Outstanding Citizen" 1986 by the VFW, Distinguished Service Award, 1986 by the Commissioners Court of Calhoun County. She was also honored by the Texas Senate, sponsored by John Sharp with a resolution honoring her as "Woman of the Year." She was selected "Notable Woman of Texas 1984-85. She has served on the Calhoun County Historical Commission, the Parents Advisory Board for the Calhoun County Independent School District and has been active in many youth activities. She is currently a member of the DeWitt County Historical Commission, the DeWitt County Historical Museum Committee, and the Cuero Community Hospital Auxiliary.

McALISTER FAMILY

F60

Oscar Talbot McAlister came to Cuero, Texas from Woodville, Texas in 1894, to serve as an apprentice stone mason in constructing the present DeWitt County Court House. He was born January 10, 1872, one of ten brothers and sisters raised by Mathew Luke and Araminta Van Vleck McAlister. Whiled he was working on the Court House a man was killed when a scaffold crashed to the ground. Mr. McAlister told his boss, who was his brother-in-law, that he did not relish a hazardous job and quit. He also told John McRell, his boss, that some one installed a small pillow above the west entrance upside down. Mr. McRell said no one will ever notice it and today it is still upside down. (There are about 12 of these pillows in a row.) Mr. McAlister loved to take people to the Court House and show them the upside down

Mr. McAlister eyed a pretty girl across from the west entrance and across the street, who was the first telephone operator in Cuero. Her name was Anna Stokes, born in Hernando, Mississippi September 11, 1874. She was the daughter of Judge A.W. Stokes and Henrietta Moore Stokes.

Mr. McAlister, being a man of strong purpose, stayed in Cuero so he could get acquainted with the auburn haired girl, which in time culminated in a marriage September 11, 1898

Mr. McAlister went to work for Mr. Otto Buchel, a banker, mercantile operator, farmer and the originator of an electric power generation plant on the Guadalupe River. Mr. McAlister started in that plant and for the next 52 years served in many capacities for different owners of the electric company. Central Power and Light Company, for 25 years, hired him as manager here in Cuero.

Seven children were born and raised by Mr. and Mrs. McAlister. Norman D. McAlister 1899-1985; Thelma D. Teller 1901 – living in Cuero; Erica M. McAlister 1904-1984; John K. McAlister 1906-1989; Jay Burns McAlister 1909 – living in Cuero with his wife, Bert Marie (Broadway) McAlister – 1914. They were married October 27, 1935; Oscar Talbot McAlister 1912-1981; Francis F. McAlister 1915-1979.

Mr. O.T. McAlister, Sr. died March 21, 1958 and Mrs. O.T. McAlister died January 18, 1939.

McALISTER, OSCAR TALBOT

F607

Oscar Talbot McAlister was born on January 10, 1872 to Matthew Luke McAlister (1837) and Araminta E. Van Vleck (1842) in Woodville, Texas. At birth, he weighed only four pounds and was named for the Woodville doctor who saved his life. He grew to be over six feet tall and lived to be eighty-six years old.

He moved to Cuero in 1894 where he worked on the construction of the DeWitt County Courthouse with his brother-in-law, John McRell (1865-1940). While working on one of the upstairs porches, he saw a beautiful redhaired young woman walk past. He told his brother-in-law, "That's the girl I'm going to marry."

The red-haired girl was Anna Augusta Stokes (1874-1939), daughter of Henrietta Barnett (1854-1936) and Allen Ware Stokes (1850-1912), longtime Justice of the Peace in Cuero.

After the usual polite preliminaries, they were married Sept. 11, 1898. If ever a marriage was made in Heaven, this was it.

Their children were Norman Douglas McAlister (1899-1984), Thelma Doris McAlister (1901-1989), Maggie Erica McAlister (1904-1984), John Kirby McAlister (1906-1989), J. Burns McAlister (1909), Oscar Talbot McAlister, Jr. (1912-1981) and Francis Fanning McAlister (1915-1979).

O.T. McAlister was manager of Central Power and Light Co. in Cuero from 1919 until 1951, when he retired.

McCRABB, JOHN

F608

John McCrabb was born about 1798 in Ireland, came to America in early life, and lived in Tennessee before coming to Texas with Green DeWitt's Colonists in 1828. As a single man, he received the usual grant of ¼ league of 1,107 acres of land from Empresario Green DeWitt in May, 1829. He lived a lonely bachelor's life on this land which was located on the west bank of the Guadalupe River not far from Mission Valley and across the river from the section that later became the Thomaston Community. This land has been owned continuously by descendants bearing the McCrabb name.

In the summer of 1829, John and Sarah Creath McSherry and their baby boy lived in a log cabin on land adjoining McCrabb's. Late one afternoon John McCrabb went over to see the McSherry's. He found the frightened mother and baby in the house with doors barred because she had seen several Indians rush upon her husband and kill him while he was getting a bucket of water from a nearby spring. The Indians made no attempt to come to the house, but disappeared at once. John McCrabb was fearful that the Indians might return during the night, so he put Sarah and baby John on his horse and he walked along beside them as they traveled on the way to Andrew Lockhart's home 10 miles up the river. The weary trio reached there sometime after midnight. The next morning McCrabb and Lockhart went to the McSherry place and found his body lying where it fell near the spring and buried it near the house. So far as is known, this John McSherry was the first white man ever murdered in the section that is now DeWitt County. John McCrabb, Andrew Lockhart, and Squire Burns, guided by a friendly Indian, followed the murderer's trail up to the "hide-out" of the Comanches beyond Gonzales but were unable to find the culprits or to ascertain any motive for the murder.

Before long, John McCrabb decided to return to Tennessee to see the sweetheart he had left there. Mary Miller consented to become his wife and to come to Texas with him. Mary was born April 6, 1811 in Holland, came to America as a child and lived in Tennessee. Sometime prior to 1836, John and Mary McCrabb came to Texas and it seems likely that they lived in a log house on the John McCrabb headright land west of the Guadalupe River. John McCrabb decided to join the Texas army. On April 1, 1836, he joined Houston's army and took part in the Battle of San Jacinto on April 21. Records of the General Land Office of the State of Texas at Austin show that, for his having served in the Texas Army from April 1st to July 23rd. 1836, he was granted Bounty Warrant 473 for 320 acres, which land was located in Gonzales County.

Evidently, after Texas became a Republic, John and Mary McCrabb took up their abode in Victoria. The records show that he served as District Clerk of Victoria County from 1838 to 1841 and that, when Victoria was incorporated in 1839, he was made the first city treasurer. On February 2, 1838, John McCrabb received an augmentation certificate for 3,498 acres of land. These lands were located in Jackson and DeWitt Counties. This was his fourth land grant; the first was his 1/4 league headright; the second was the 640 acres for taking part in the Battle of San Jacinto; the third was the 320 acres for serving in the Texas Army under General Houston. He made use of some of these lands to carry on extensive farming and stockraising interests.

After DeWitt County was organized, John McCrabb became the first tax assessor and collector and served faithfully until his health failed.

John Frederick (Buck) McCrabb was the voungest of the John and Mary Miller McCrabb children. He was born February 11, 1846 in the home where, about 21/2 years later, his father passed away. "Buck" McCrabb received only a limited education in the early day schools. In 1863, at 17 years of age, he left school at Clinton to enter the Confederate Army in S.H. Hudson's Company of Independent Scouts and served in the Rio Grande Valley until the close of the war. Buck then returned to DeWitt County where he engaged in raising cattle and became one of the best stockmen of the locality - he owned 7,000 acres of land (4,000 acres in one tract near Thomaston). "He had 150 acres of good bottom land in cultivation and the other in pastures". (Quote is taken from the book, "The Lone Star State", printed in 1894.)

On March 21, 1883, J.F. McCrabb was married to Cora Augustine – daughter of Dave and Mary Augustine. Dave was a native Texan and was one of the earliest citizens to come to live in the Shiloh Community. Mary was born in Springfield, Missouri and came to Texas at an early age.

Cora Augustine was born April 26, 1865 at Shiloh, near present Cuero. She attended school at Clinton. The records show she joined the Presbyterian Church there on June 29, 1879. John Frederick (Buck) McCrabb came to his death accidentally. He was driving a team of young horses that ran away and overturned the wagon. After his death in 1909, the management of the large holdings of land and cattle fell to his wife who was assisted by their son, John Samuel McCrabb. J.F. McCrabb was also survived by his daughter, Mary E. (McCrabb) Atkinson and three grandchildren, Jessie E. McCrabb, J.F. McCrabb, and Mary Lee McCrabb.

McCRABB, JOSEPH ALEXANDER

F609

Joseph Alexander McCrabb was born about 1835 to John and Mary Miller McCrabb. He was with his mother in Texana while his father served in the Texas Army. From 1837-1841 the family lived at Victoria. Sometime about 1845, the McCrabb family moved to a home on the east bank of the Guadalupe River on land they secured from Joseph Tumlinson.

There were few, if any, schools in this section in those early days. It would seem most probable that Joe and his sisters were taught by their father in the home when they were small, and that later they went to the school taught by Rev. J.M. Connelly at Clinton.

About 1867, Joseph Alexander McCrabb was married to Sarah Jane McDonald, the daughter of William J. and Lucy Ann McDonald. Sarah was born in October 1849 in Alabama. In 1852, she and her older sister, Lucy Charlotte, came with their father and his parents and three brothers to Texas to live in the Prices Creek section of DeWitt County. The mother Lucy Ann McDonald died about 1851 in Alabama. William married a second time in 1856. Lucy and Sarah supposedly lived with their father and stepmother at Blue Mott and later, on the old Borland Ranch on the Guadalupe River in Victoria County. It is not known where Lucy and Sarah went to school.

For a time after Joe and Sarah were married they lived in the home with his mother. For a number of years they lived in their home about a mile from Cuero and not far from his mother. On April 19, 1877 Joseph A. McCrabb sold to Thomas Bates a place on Irish Creek, southeast of Cuero. On January 24, 1881, Joseph bought from Richard C. and Eliza Bates Warn, 1125 acres of the Amadore survey and all improvements for $5,000. The two-story house on this place then became the home of Joe and Sarah McCrabb and their two daughters and

Prior to his marriage, Joe McCrabb served as a Confederate soldier. Upon his return to civilian life, Joe became a very successful farmer and stockman and continued this work the remainder of his life. He was also, a 32nd degree Mason in the lodge at Cuero.

In December, 1883, Lucy McCrabb passed away only one day old. Mother Sarah remained ill for months. She died on March 8, 1884 in her home near Thomaston. Sarah was thirty four years old.

Joe's younger brother, John Frederick (Buck) and his wife Cora, and their daughter, Mary, were living with his mother in the old home near Cuero. Joe arranged with them to come live in his home near Thomaston and let him and his motherless children go to live with

Joe and several others were taking turns sitting up with Jim Cottingham who was seriously ill in his home near Burns Station. On a freezing cold December night, Joe rode horseback to fulfill his vigil with the sick. He soon took a very severe cold and developed double pneumonia. He died on December 20, 1885.

Joe and Sarah's children were: Mary Jane (Mollie) was born August 13, 1868. John William McCrabb was born about 1870. Annie was born in 1873, and Joseph (Jodie) McCrabb was born about 1875.

Also, three children died as infants: Jimmie McCrabb was born after 1875 but only lived seven months. Mandy McCrabb was born and died at eighteen months of age. Lucy McCrabb only lived one day in 1883.

McCURDY, JAMES SUMNERS FAMILY

F610

Jim McCurdy was born in Lockhart, Texas, Nov. 2, 1907, son of William David and Carrie Brown McCurdy. The family returned to Cuero, Mrs. McCurdy's home, in 1909. They established their home in the Valley View vicinity, on land inherited from her uncle James J. Sumners. This land is still owned by the children and heirs and is well known as the McCurdy Ranch.

Jim had four sisters: 1) Mary Beth, who married Dick Poth of Cheapside. 2) Evelyn, who married Tom Cates of Monahans. 3) Ann, who married Don Formby of Tucson, Arizona, and 4) Dorothy, who married Allen Briley of Houston. Dorothy still lives in Houston. The others now live in Cuero.

Jim graduated from Cuero High School in 1925 and attended Schreiner Institute one year before going to the University of Texas. He received a BBA degree in Accounting in 1930. Because of the Depression he decided to return to Cuero to farm and ranch with his father.

While at the University he was very active on campus, in the University Presbyterian Church, and as a Cowboy. It was there that he met his future wife, Virginia Rich, a resident of Austin and also a student at Texas University. She received a BS degree in 1929 and taught in several Texas high schools until their marriage in 1938.

In 1939 Jim and Virginia bought land on the Gonzales Highway from Ritchie Taylor, a long time friend, and built the home where Virginia continues to live. Jim was first engaged in dairy farming. In late 40's or early 50's he sold the dairy and devoted his time to turkeys and cattle ranching. Eventually the turkeys were sold and cattle became his chief occupation, changing from Hereford cattle to Black Angus cattle. When his health grew worse he sold his cattle to his son, Bob.

During his life time Jim became one of the founders of the DeWitt County Producers Association and remained a director throughout his life. He helped to organize a Turkey Foundation to help better marketing for the industry. He served on both the Cuero School Board and the DeWitt County School Board. As long as it existed, he was active in Dr. McLeod's Men's Fellowship Club, an ecumenical organization of Cuero Churchmen. He also served as Trustee of the First Presbyterian Church. Last, but not least, he was convinced that the Cuero Dam was a detriment to Cuero's growth and worked tirelessly to defeat its construction for every year after the 40's, when it was first proposed. Jim died Oct. 28, 1978.

Virginia was born in Memphis, Texas on March 24, 1908, the eldest of five children of Thomas J. and Alice Dahlman Rich. Tom was county attorney of Hall County, having received his L.L.B. degree from the University of Texas in 1906, and Alice was a school teacher with a teaching certificate from the San Marcos Normal. They married on May 9, 1907. In 1915 they moved to Austin and remained there until 1967 when they moved to Cuero to be nearer their children. Tom died in 1968 and Alice died in 1974.

Virginia had three brothers and one sister. All are deceased except the youngest brother, George L. Rich, who is a retired chemical engineer, and now lives in New Braunfels.

Jim and Virginia McCurdy had two sons in the family, both a joy and a blessing. John Richard was born Mar. 20, 1946 in Fort Worth and adopted in April 1946. He graduated from Cuero High School in 1964 and went one year to Texas A.&M. before joining the U.S. Air Force and serving four years in the war in Vietnam. In 1966, John married Corinne Hutchison daughter of Jerry and Madeline Hutchison of Cuero. They have three children: 1) John Colin, 2) Allison Kristin, and 3) Carrie Elizabeth.

John's interest in flying was lifelong, and after the war he and Corinne made their home in Fort Worth where they continue to live. His work has always been in the aviation world. He presently is chief of maintenance for the Sid Richardson-Bass Aviation Corporation.

Robert (Bob) Walter McCurdy, the second son of Jim and Virginia was born in Kansas City, Missouri, January 20, 1950. He was adopted April 1950. Bob graduated from Cuero High School in 1968 and attended Southwestern University in San Marcos for about two years. He worked in and around San Marcos until Jan. 6, 1973, when he and Mary Frances Peyton married. She is the daughter of Jim and Frances Peyton, also of Cuero. Bob and Mary moved to Seguin after she graduated from Southwestern University with her B.S. degree in 1973. She taught there for two years. In 1975 they returned to Cuero to make their home on the McCurdy Ranch. Mary has taught in Cuero since 1975, in Hunt Elementary School and Bob has his own cattle and manages the McCurdy Ranch. They have two children: 1) Matthew Pierce, born Sept. 15, 1977, and 2) Mary Katherine, born Oct. 3, 1980.

McDONALD, JAMES A. AND ANN

F611

James Albert McDonald was born 29 October 1830, the 3rd son of John S. and Charlotte Collins McDonald. He grew up on a plantation near Brandon in Rankin County, Mississippi. Little else is known of his early years. He came to Texas in 1852 with his parents and brothers, settling in DeWitt County near Price's Creek Settlement. Just two years after coming to Texas James' father died. When the estate was settled James bought the shares of the other heirs. He now owned a log house and the surrounding land.

After the fall harvest, James returned to Brandon Mississippi to marry his sweetheart, Judith Ann John Ferguson, 7 Dec 1858, the daughter of James F. Ferguson and his wife, Mary Ellen Wilkinson. Ann was born 21 October 1837 in Pittsylvania County Virginia. They returned to DeWitt County to make their home. When the Civil War started, James rode away 14 May, 1862 on his mother's buggy horse to join the Confederate Army. He was in the battles of Mansfield, Pleasant Hill, Franklin Fordoch and Yellow Bayou. He remained in the army until General Lee surrendered at Appomattox 9 April 1865, returning home riding on the same horse he was riding when he enlisted three years earlier.

James and Ann were interested in community activities and their church. He built a small school house on his property for the education of his children and the other children in the area. 7 December, 1908 James and Ann celebrated their Golden Anniversary with the help of family and friends. James wore his wedding suit and Ann was wearing her wedding dress of white dotted swiss. Ann died 25 March 1912 in Thomaston and James died 29 December, 1920 in San Antonio. Both are buried in Thomaston Cemetery. They were the parents of eight children who were:

Mary Ellen "Mollie", born 3 March 1860, married Dr. John Paul Williamson. They lived for a time in Thomaston, then moved to San Antonio. John died 12 October, 1917. Mollie lived until 1956. Their children were: Daisy Augusta, Pauline Ellen, Sarah Baily, Ann B., Rowena Ora and John.

James Albert, Jr. "Jimmy", born 28 April;, 1862, married Celia LeGalley(z) 20 November, 1884. Both died following an automobile accident September 1938. They were the parents of William Albert, Myrtle Jane, Lou Ella, Ruth, Laura Mae, Bessie, Gladys Elizabeth and James Albert, III.

Sarah Ann, born 15 May, 1866, married 20 November, 1884 William E. Collins in a double wedding with Sarah's brother James and his bride Celia LeGalley. There were eleven children: Julia, Robert, Sarah, Corrine, Ellen, Frances, Donald Grant, William, Mary and Jack.

John William, born 10 January, 1868, died 29 September, 1951 in Edna. He was married to Nina Watkins 6 Dec., 1893. They had: Leonard, John William, Jr., Agnes Parmelia, Dorothy, and Harrell.

George E. born 1 October, 1870, died 8 March, 1871.

Charles F., born 5 June, 1872, died 1932. He was married to Lizzie King. Their children were: Joe, Frank and Arthur.

Henry F., born 22 October, 1874 died 1945. He married 24 November, 1896, Martha Alice Pridgen. They had Rupert and Butler who died as infants.

Joseph Benjamin, born 4 February, 1883, died 16 March, 1941. He married Theresa Marie Jecker on 31 October 1905 in Edna, Texas. Their children were: Louise Antoinette, James Dessia, Katherine Nell, Marie Theresa, Marjorie Joyce, Ann John, Louis Francis, and Leslie Charles.

McDONALD, JAMES A., JR. AND CELIA

F612

James Albert McDonald, Jr. was born 28 April 1862 at Prices Creek Settlement, the oldest son of James A. and Judith Ann John Ferguson McDonald. Jimmy was born just a few short days before his father rode away to become a Confederate soldier in Company A Waller's Battalion of Texas Cavalry. He was three when he saw his father for the first time. He attended school not far from home, taught there first by Sallie Sangster and later by Sam J. Baggett. In his late teens he became a trail driver, riding on several drives that ended in Ft. Worth.

On the 20 November, 1884, Rev. John Gillett married Jimmy McDonald and Celia LeGalley(z), daughter of William Peter and Jane Ann Bates LeGalley(z). Celia was born 19 April 1866 on Guernsey Island of the English Channel Islands. They made their first home at Thomaston where Jimmy farmed and raised livestock. To support his growing family he also built windmills, some of the first in DeWitt County, worked as a land appraiser and a Notary.

Friday, 2 September 1938, Jimmy and Celia left Cuero for a reunion in Houston with some of their children. Their trip ended just a few miles from home when they collided with another car on a bridge near Nursery. Celia died 4 September 1938 and Jimmy died the next day, 5 September. Both are buried in Hillside Cemetery.

They were the parents of eight children, who were:

William Albert, born 26 September 1885. He attended schools at Thomaston and Cuero, graduating from John C. French High School, where he was the only boy in the class. He studied engineering at A. & M. and was the captain of the football team. After graduation he went to work for Houston Lighting Power Company. At San Antonio on 10 June 1914 Albert married Jean Lockwood. Jean died 3 August 1959. He married, 2nd, Mrs. Thelma Goodman. Albert died 4 December 1971.

Myrtle Jane, born 8 February 1888. She attended local schools and then went to a teachers normal to receive her teachers certificate. On 14 November 1909 Myrtle married Lyle Thomas Phillips and went to live in Eagle Lake, later in Garwood, Donna, San Antonio, and Austin. Myrtle and Lyle were the parents of Lyle Thomas, Jr. and Ross Elton. Myrtle died at Eagle Lake 11 February, 1971 and Lyle died 11 May, 1971 at Pasadena.

Lou Ella, born 10 June 1890 at Thomaston. Worked for a teachers certificate, then taught school 12 years before her marriage 29 December 1920 to Allen Osborn Laster. Allen was killed in an accident 21 October 1934. Lou died 15 March 1971. They were the parents of Allen Osborn, Jr., Marjorie Lou, William Henry, Albert Wayne and Arthur Gene.

Ruth was born 28 October, 1892 in the log home of her McDonald grandparents near Thomaston. She went to school in Cuero, then completed courses at Draughan's Business College in San Antonio. On 29 June 1921, in Cuero she married William Oscar Thigpen, born 20 April, 1896 at Hope, son of William Henry and Minnie Elizabeth Davis Thigpen. In 1929 Oscar and Ruth moved to Houston where Oscar was employed by Houston Lighting and Power Co. After retirement they moved to Navasota, Texas to raise horses and cattle. They celebrated their Golden Wedding in 1971. Oscar died 7 December, 1974. Ruth is still living and will soon be 97 years old. They had three children, William Oscar, Jr. who died shortly after birth, Ruth Elaine and James Llovd.

Laura Mae, born 13 January, 1897 attended school in Cuero, then a teachers normal. She taught school several years before her marriage to Leroy Morgan Williams 8 October, 1932. Morgan was an attorney and County Attorney for Atascosa County. He died 2 December, 1943. Laura returned to the classroom to support herself and adopted son James Morgan. She died in Wisconsin 1979.

Bessie was born 28 June, 1900 and died 9 November, 1904.

Gladys Elizabeth was born 14 May, 1905. She was married 28 May, 1928 to E. Brown Yeary. They lived in Houston where Brown was employed as Recorder of Arabia Temple Shrine. They had two daughters, Celia Elizabeth and Mary Sue. Brown died 24 June, 1981. Gladys is still living in the family home.

James Albert, III, named for his father and grandfather was born 13 April, 1907 at Cuero. He attended public school and A&M College receiving a degree in engineering. At Charles Street Presbyterian Church in New Orleans, La. James married Helen Jane Ross on 28 May, 1938. They continued living in New Orleans until James retired. They moved back to Texas, living in San Antonio. After the marriage of their only child, Clarice Jane, they moved to Richardson to be near her. James died 9 September, 1985.

McDONALD, JAMES ALBERT

John McDonald was born March 01, 1793 in Georgetown, South Carolina; died December 24, 1854 and is buried at Burns Station, DeWitt County, Texas. As a youth, he moved to Brandon, Mississippi, and in December 1852, he moved to Thomaston (Prices Creek), DeWitt County, Texas. John and his wife, Charlotte Collins McDonald (1830-1920) made the trip to Texas in mule-drawn wagons. Their one daughter, Sarah Ann, remained in Brandon, but their four sons, William, John, James Albert "Jim", and Charles came with them.

John and Charlotte paid Buckner Harris $4000 in cash for 1040 acres – including a log house – located in the Prices creek area of the Guadalupe River Valley of the Amadore Survey. The house consisted of two 18' square rooms with an open hall 12' wide running north and south between them. The two back shed rooms were of lumber and were 12'X18'. The hall extended between these rooms, making its full length 30'; and the north end was used as a dining room. Rock chimneys were located on the east and west ends of the house. A log barn and three well-built log cabins served as quarters for the negro slaves.

James Albert "Jim" McDonald (1830-1920) lived with his father and mother in the log house and farmed the land. At the age of twelve, he suffered a serious illness. His father had a coffin made for the impending death of his son, but Jim recovered and the coffin was used to inter a friend of Jim's.

When Jim's father died in 1854, his mother and brothers sold their interests in the land and home to him. In December 1858, Jim returned to Brandon to marry his sweetheart, Judith Ann John Ferguson (1837-1912) and brought her back to his home in Thomaston.

Jim and Ann endured the hardships of their time. While he served in the Confederate Cavalry (1862-1865), Ann superintended the farm work. Jim left home on "Old Buck" and used the horse as a cavalry mount during service in the Mississippi valley. He returned home on May 05, 1865.

Jim and Ann had eight children: Mary Ellen, James Albert, Jr., Sarah Ann, John William, Charles, George, Henry Ferguson, and Joseph Benjamin.

James Albert, Jr. (April 29, 1862 – September 05, 1938) married Celia Le Galley (April 19, 1866 – September 04, 1938) in 1883. Celia was the daughter of William Peter Le Galley and Jane Ann Bates. William was born on the Isle of Guernesey August 29, 1831, grew up there and kept a livery stable. He died November 04, 1897. Jane was born March 20, 1831 in Calstock, England; died August 17, 1918. William and Jane lived in the Thomaston area and are both buried at Hillside Cemetery, Cuero.

James Albert, Jr. and Celia were the parents of eight children: William Albert (1855) married Jean Lockwood; Myrtle (1888) married Lyle T. Phillips; Lou Ella (1890) married Allen Osborn Laster; Ruth (1892) married William Oscar Thigpen; Laura (1897) married Le Roy Morgan Williams; Bessie (1900-1904); Gladys Elizabeth (1905) married E. Brown Yeary; and James Albert, III (1908) married Helen Ross.

James Albert, Jr. had a dairy farm, three miles south of Cuero on the Guadalupe River, on 150 acres of land. He also installed and repaired windmills for a living.

On September 03, 1938, James, Jr. and Celia were in an automobile accident. She died on September 04th and he on the 5th. They're buried at Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

Lou Ella McDonald (1890-1972) married Allen Osborn Laster (1892-1934) on December 29, 1920 and had five children: Allen, Jr. (1921); Marjorie Lou (1923); William Henry (1926); Albert Wayne (1928-1982); and Arthur Gene (1931). Lou Ella taught school for 27 years, and her husband, Allen, was a produce trucker. He died as the result of a truck accident in October 1934.

McDONALD, JOHN S. AND CHARLOTTE

John S. McDonald was born 1 March, 1793 in Georgetown County, South Carolina. As a young man he moved to Wayne County, Mississippi, arriving there fore Mississippi became a state. Before 1820 he married Charlotte Collins, born 22 June, 1801 in South Carolina, the daughter of Jacob Collins and his wife Lucy Hendrick. John became a member of Gaelic Speaking Philadelphus Presbyterian Church in Winchester and Charlotte joined Zion Baptist church at Buckatuna. Following the signing of the Dancing Rabbit Treaty, Indian lands were opened for settlement. About 1828 the McDonalds moved to Rankin County near Brandon. John became a County Commissioner and a delegate to the Democratic States Rights Convention in 1839. Many families began moving from the area to Texas, including several of Charlotte's married sisters. 1852 found the McDonalds preparing for a move to Texas, too. Late in the summer they began the long trip by mule drawn wagons, bringing with them their four sons and families, slaves and household goods. December, 1852, John McDonald paid $4000 to Buckner Harris for 1040 acres of land located in Prices Creek section of DeWitt County. They moved into a log house already on the property, Christmas Day, 1852. John did not live long following the trip, dying 25 December, 1854. He was buried in Burns Station Cemetery. Charlotte lived until 6 August, 1874, dying in Benton County, Mississippi at the home of her daughter. John and Charlotte were the parents of seven known children. Two little girls born before 1820 and who died before 1830 and five children who lived to maturity.

William J. born 1822-23 in Wayne County, Mississippi married 1st Lucy Ann Donogan in Rankin County on 10 January, 1843. It is believed Lucy had died before the family came to Texas. They had two daughters: Lucy Charlotte and Sarah Jane. William married 2nd Mrs. Cynthia Elizabeth Shultz Sutton 4 December, 1856 in Karnes County. Cynthia had two small sons, James and Bill Sutton. William was in the Confederate Army and was captured by the Yankees. He was taken to New Orleans and imprisoned for several months. William and Cynthia had one daughter, Mary Ann. William disappeared in Mississippi in the spring of 1870 and was not heard of again. It is believed he may have been killed for the money he was carrying.

Sarah Ann was born 15 December, 1824 in Wayne County. She married Caswell Tate, Jr. 1 March, 1843 in Rankin County. They did not come to Texas with the rest of the family instead moved to Tippah County, now Benton County. Sarah Ann died in 1878. There were ten Tate children: Thomas J. who died during the Civil War, John C., R. Washington, James Polk, Franklin Pierce, Addison Swift, Charles Edward, William Irving, Elizabeth and Mary Charlotte.

John William was born about 1826 in Wayne Co. He married Leah Kirsh, November, 1851 in Rankin County. John died 16 December, 1859 and Leah died shortly thereafter. They left one small daughter, Laura Endora who was raised in the home of William J. and Cynthia McDonald. Laura married William "Bill" Sutton son of her Aunt Cynthia. Bill died in Indianola ending the Taylor-Sutton Feud.

James Albert born 29 October, 1830 in Rankin County, married Judith Ann John Ferguson 7 December, 1858. James served in Company A Battalion Texas Cavalry. He was taken prisoner but escaped to return to his Company. James and Ann had 8 children. See James A. and Ann McDonald story.

Charles Edward born 22 April, 1833, died 19 January, 1891 in San Antonio. He married Hannah Lampley 4 June, 1861. They lived at Clinton for several years and then moved to Pearsall. Charles served in the Confederate Army, belonging to General Waul's legion of Artillery. He was taken prisoner at the fall of Vicksburg. Charles and Hannah had seven children: John, Floy, May, Bettie, Lee, Eddie and Charles.

McDOUGAL, FAIN AND BEULAH MARGARET (BENNET) FAMILY

F615

Estelle (McDougal) Massey Cook

Fain and Beulah McDougal call 208 N. Hunt St., Cuero, "the home we love." They have lived there forty-five of their forty-nine plus years since they married July 4, 1940, in Greenville, Mississippi. Beulah has called the beloved house "home" for sixty-five years since it was built by her father, Miles Dudley Bennet and mother, Beulah Bell (Blackwell), both natives of DeWitt County, in 1924. (The M.D. Bennet and John Harland Blackwell's family stories are given separately.) Fain and Beulah are members and elders of the First Presbyterian Church of Cuero.

Fain was named manager of DeWitt County Electric Cooperative, Inc. of Cuero November 15, 1945, and served as manager thirty-five plus years retiring January 1, 1981. He helped pioneer extension of electric and telephone service to every farm and ranch in the seven county area. He served in many elective offices of the Texas and National Association of Electric Cooperatives, Inc. (The Coop story is given separately.) Beulah taught seventh grade Texas History for twenty-six years in Cuero Junior High School retiring May 31, 1980.

Fain was born September 25, 1909, in Lawrenceburg, Lawrence County (founded 1817), Tennessee, near the location of Davy Crockett State Park. He was the youngest of three children born to Marshall Simeon (5-18-1853) and Annie Fain (9-21-1874) McDougal both natives of Tennessee. His father owned and operated the McDougal Dry Goods Store in Lawrenceburg and died September 27, 1916, 63 years old. His mother died four months later January 31, 1917, 42 years old. His paternal grandfather, James, was born August 1, 1800, in North Carolina, son of James and Nancy Kennedy McDougal. His paternal grandmother, Elizabeth McSwain, was born in Georgia. Nine children were born to this union with Marshall Simeon the youngest, being born when his father was fifty-three years old and with Fain being born when his father was fiftysix years old. Needless to say, Fain did not know his McDougal grandparents.

Fain's maternal grandfather, Samuel Lafayette Fain, was born in Marshall County, Tennessee (12-19-1845), died June 20, 1924, in San Antonio while visiting his grandsons. He was the son of John and Crowder Fain and married Annie Jackson, daughter of Nathan Jackson in Rutherford County, Tennessee October 26, 1873. She died at birth of daughter, Annie Fain, September 21, 1874. Annie Fain was raised in her maternal grandmother's home. S.L. Fain was a Confederate veteran. He was a circuit riding Methodist minister in Tennessee before being petitioned to become the first full time minister (1899-1900) of the First Methodist Church of Lawrenceburg, which was organized in 1824. Fain's mother, Annie Fain, first married Lee Clark who died before birth of their second child, a daughter, Sammie Clark, November 20, 1898. She moved in 1899 to Lawrenceburg with her two children (son Waman Clark born 6-23-1897 and daughter Sammie) to be near her father and stepmother, Ellen Douglas Crockett whom her father had married May 4, 1892. There Annie Fain met and married M.S. McDougal. They are buried in the Mimosa Cemetery in Lawrenceburg, Tenn.

Following the death of his parents, Fain and his four year older brother, Marshall, Jr. (2-18-05 to 3-3-59) came by rail to San Antonio to live with, and be adopted by, their thirty-two year old half sister, Estelle (6-25-1885 to 1-1-64) on father's side and husband, William Lee Massey. They did not change their McDougal name. Enroute to San Antonio the boys were accompanied to New Orleans, LA by Sammie, their seventeen year old half sister on their mother's side. They were to meet their other thirty-two year old half sister halfway. Fain's full sister, Annie Elizabeth, born 10-5-02, died 1-11-05. Indirectly, her death caused premature birth of brother, Marshall born 2-18-05, weighing approximately two pounds. He survived to graduate from Texas A&M College, class of 1926, with a B.S. degree in architecture and to be commissioned a Lt. Colonel in World War II. He married Vivian Williams in San Antonio September, 1926. Fain's half sister, Estelle McDougal's, mother also died from childbirth June 25, 1885. Estelle's father did not remarry until he met Annie Fain Clark fifteen years later. Her father had also remained a widower eighteen years before remarrying a second time. Both fathers were devoted to their daughters and provided them the best education possible.

Fain completed first grade in Lawrenceburg in May, 1917, and came to San Antonio where he attended grade and high school and continued studies at John Tarleton Agricultural College, San Antonio College, University of Tennessee, University of Houston and short courses in electrification and irrigation at Texas A&M and Texas Tech. He is a life member of Sigma Chi Fraternity. When asked what was his work classification, Fain generally replied, "I always had a good interesting job helping Texas grow." I worked for Western Union, The Gunter Hotel, MGM News, City Public Service, Civil Engineers, General Contractors, American General Insurance Company, on construction of Mansfield Dam, as safety engineer and insurance representative, building pipelines, irrigation, water, gas and electric distribution systems while farming cotton and raising cattle which I still do. I was deferred in WW II to construct the Big Inch and war emergency pipelines.

Beulah, born in Cuero, May 31, 1918, attended Cuero schools, Gulf Park College, Gulf Port, Mississippi, and received a B.A. degree from the University of Texas, Austin, in June, 1939. She is a member of Delta Delta Delta Society.

Fain and Beulah have two sons, both graduates of Cuero High School. Fain, Jr. born 11-6-42, has a B.S. degree from the University of Texas, Austin, and is a member of Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity. He served in the Viet Nam War as a naval officer. Dudley Bennet, born 8-7-44, has a B.S. degree from Trinity University and served in Viet Nam as a signal corps officer. He earned two bronze stars with oak leaf clusters and other special commendation medals. Fain, Jr. married 1-2-71, Esther Jane (Janie) Grant, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Grant, of Bryan, Texas. She is a graduate of University of Texas and a member of Pi Beta Phi Sorority. They have two children, son, Miles Grant, born 1-6-76, and daughter, Margaret Esther (Margo) born 4-22-79. Fain, Jr. and family live in Bryan. He is Vice President of First American Bank. He was formerly with Trammel Crow and Turney Collie & Braden Engineers in Houston. Dudley married 3-9-74, Constance Faye (Connie) Gilliam, daughter of Drs. R.B. (Rocky) and Patty Dodson Gilliam both MD's of Victoria. She is a graduate of the University of Texas and a member of Kappa Alpha Theta Society. They have one daughter, Mary Bennet, born 1-29-82. Dudley and family live in Victoria where he owns Radio Station KNAL.

Fain and Beulah were active in all club, church and civil programs prior to retirement. Then they became world travelers and cruise enthusiasts. Now they are thankful for each day they have together in "the home we love."

McFARLAND, JAMES F616

(1879-1852)

James McFarland was born in Ireland. His family immigrated to South Carolina when he was an infant. He married Margaret Dial in Newberry County South Carolina on May 25, 1809. She was the daughter of John and Mary Montgomery Dial and the granddaughter of Jeremiah and Margaret Dial and David and Jane Beard Montgomery. The Dials, Montgomerys and the Beards arrived in South Carolina aboard the "Dunluce" with the Rev. William Martin and his five shiploads of settlers in 1772.

The McFarlands left South Carolina prior to 1820 and lived in Alabama until the 1830's when they moved to Mississippi. By 1840 they were in Montgomery County, Texas and lived there until they moved to DeWitt County, Texas about 1848. They settled in the Shiloh Community. By 1850 all of their children were grown and their grandson, John David Brantley, was living with them.

The births of eleven children, recorded in their family Bible, are as follows: Mary Ann (1810-1820) b. S.C.; James P. (1812) b. S.C.; John Dial (1814) b. S.C.; Samuel J. (1816-1860) b. S.C.; Nancy Jane (1818-1903) b. S.C. married 1) Thomas R. Brantley, 2) Wyett Anderson; Mary Ann (Polly) (1820-1892) b. AL, married 1) Francis Calloway, 2) Henry Gonzalvo Woods; Judy H. (1823-1847) married Walter Anderson; David Montgomery (1824) b. AL, married Sarah Calaham b. LA; Thomas Alexander (1826) b. AL; Jeremiah Dial (1823-1865) b. AL, married Melvina; George W. (1830-1863) b. AL.

James McFarland died July 10, 1852 and is buried in Clinton Cemetery in an unmarked grave. Margaret Dial McFarland died January 1, 1868 and is buried in Shannon Cemetery which is located near Yorktown in the Benjamin Harrell Survey.

McLAIN, ALAN AND PATRICIA KAREN FITZGERALD

F617

Marshall Ty and Forest Alan McLain

Alan Michael was born October 14, 1954 in Corona, California. He is the second born of William F. and Joan C. (Erney) McLain of Brandon, Florida. His siblings include an older sister, Peggy, a younger brother, John, and a younger sister, Joni. William was born in Bay Minnett, Alabama, son of Millie Jane (Weekely) and Benjamin F. McLain both of whom were born in Bay Minnett, Alabama. Joan is the daughter of Ida Mae (Fehr) and Howard R. Erney, both of whom were born in Bay Minnett, Alabama. Alan grew up in Miami and Brandon, Florida. Since his father is an avid duck and bass fisherman, Alan spent many a day enjoying the opportunities that Florida offers. Alan graduated from the University of South Florida with a degree in Geology. He a ttended a geology field camp at Sul Ross State University in Alpine, Texas where he met Karen Fitzgerald. In the spring of 1979 Alan moved to DeWitt County and started working as a survey in Victoria. On August 18, 1979 he married Patricia Karen Fitzgerald (born July 7, 1958) in Zion Evangelical Lutheran Church of Arneckeville.

Karen is the daughter of Jack Collier Fitzgerald (born July 4, 1932 in San Antonio) and Lorita Mae Wolf (born September 20, 1932 in Cuero). The Fitzgeralds moved to DeWitt County near the Green DeWitt Community in 1969. They had a place large enough to run a few cows and to keep some horses. Karen and her sister Jacquelyn Kay (born May 15, 1964) attended Meyersville school through the 8th grade. They both graduated from Cuero High School, Karen in 1976 and Jacquelyn in 1982. Some of the memories from the home place include riding shetlands and horses with friends such as Carol Hartman, Rip Gibson, and Marilyn Cheatham. Sometimes the riding was not just for fun, since there were calves that needed doctoring or cattle that needed working. Jack and Rita spent many long hours on the road, and many longer ones at rodeos and horseshows across the country, so the girls could complete. Other memories include the Labor Day picnics that grandparents Werner and Lorene Wolf held at their river bottom each year. Lots of friends and relatives gathered each year to pitch horseshoes, toss washers, play tether ball, gossip and eat Bar-B-Que. Karen attended Sul Ross State University and finished her degree at the University of Houston-Victoria with a bachelors degree in accounting. While at Sul Ross Karen often worked as a whitewater rafting guide on the Rio Grande. Karen and Allen have two boys Marshall Ty (born September 17, 1981) and Forrest Alan (born November 5, 1985). Forrest was born on the same day as his first cousin Morgan Elizabeth Rath (see story on Jacquelyn Fitzgerald). Marshall and Forrest are up and coming cowboys with their horses, Rio Bravo and Dipstick, respectively.

McLARTY FAMILY

Of DeWitt County, Texas

The McLartys, as documented in a book, "The McLarty Family of Kintyre Scotland" (Crabtree Press, Charlotte, N.C.) migrated to Cushendall, Ireland in the 17th century. A large McLarty cemetery still stands in Cushendall and a number of that clan still live in the area. In 1928, William Tell McLarty, a direct descendant of that proud Irish family, moved with his wife, Doy Alice (Martin) and two children, Tell (age 11) and Alice Gene (age 1), from Yoakum to Cuero, thus beginning the McLarty Family of DeWitt County, Texas. He was more commonly known as W.T. McLarty, for he found the name William Tell often necessitate an explanation that he had no part of the apple incident associated with that name. He was born in Dime Box, Texas, in 1898, the 2nd son of Dr. Claude M. McLarty and Ella (Monroe) McLarty, who had a family of 5 sons and 4 daughters. Dr. McLarty was an old fashioned country doctor, calling on his patients in a horse and buggy, often driven by his son, W.T. His mother, Ella, a descendant of Pres. James Monroe, died after the family had moved to Lexington, Lee County, Texas, in the early 1900s.

W.T. McLarty had been a grocerman in Yoakum when he accepted a job as manager of a new Piggly Wiggly Groc. opening in the Trautwein Blvd. in Cuero. It was a proud promotion for him, a career grocer who believed that the customer was always right and that next to honesty, service was his chief responsibility. We first lived in the old Schwab home at the corner of Broadway and Esplanade, when we came to Cuero. We had been there only a short time when a law was passed taxing cigarettes. I well recall when my father, mother and I stayed up all night attaching tax stamps to over 10,000 packages of cigarettes.

W.T. later opened his own supermarket on Main St., in the old H. Runge Co. building and called it McLarty's Grocery. It boasted a meat market, feed and fertilizer dept., cotton buying dept., fully occupying the block long building. He also opened a branch in Meyersville, Texas, which he operated several years. As a young boy, I helped my father in the business when not attending school at John C. French and later Cuero High School, from which I graduated in the class of '35. My family later purchased the Traylor home on Prairie St., where my sister and I were reared under the loving eye of my mother, Doy. My father always wanted me to be a grocer, like he. Although I learned the business quite well, I was never certain that it was my first choice. After graduating from high school, I went to the University of Texas at Austin, and there earned by keep by working off hours in a grocery store, Slaughter's on Lavaca Ave.

When I finished my schooling, my father urged me to open a store in Yorktown, Texas, which I did in 1938. Another McLarty's Grocery, right next to the National Bank and 1/2 block from Smith Creek. Being the first selfserve store in town, it caused quite a furor, offering such unusual items as baby food, "bottled milk", beer, and "dressed chickens". In addition to that, we provided an occasional extravaganza on Saturdays, jig-dancing by Flunk Sims, and prizes for the fattest or skinniest customer, the "most pregnant" lady, the man who could spit the furtherest or yell the loudest. Our store was a howling success. Among those it attracted was a beautiful young lady named Myrtle Grace Dahme, whose father operated an oil, gas and minerals brokerage firm two door down from McLarty's. Enroute to the post office, she passed in front of my store at least once each day, and often twice. Until then, I had been commuting from Cuero each day to Yorktown, but the idea of having a room in town now seemed quite logical, if not imperative. Myrtle was kind enough to recommend the home of the Walter Dunn's to me. Within hours, the deal was made and I had a lovely room and to my surprise, the following day, directly across the street from the home of August and Freda Dahme where Myrtle lived! Such convenience resulted in the inevitable: Tell and Myrtle were married in the Lutheran Church, June 7, 1939. Tell's parents gave them a 1939 Ford Convertible as a wedding gift. The price: $925.00, loaded, which included a "rumble seat", the last year model such luxury was offered.

Tell and Myrtle occupied the first "garage apartment" ever built in Yorktown, built by the Jim Parkers on Riedel St. Their first son, Tell Jefferies (Jeff) McLarty, Jr. was born at the Allen Hospital 8/24/40. Although their grocery store in Yorktown prospered, Tell and Myrtle decided to sell it so that Tell could help August Dahme who by this time had lost his vision.

Alfred Kerlick purchased McLarty's Grocery in the latter part of 1941. Although handicapped by his vision loss, August Dahme, who had formerly been the County Surveyor of DeWitt County, had a remarkable photographic memory and virtually knew the metes and bounds description of every tract of land he had ever surveyed. Such a talent aided them greatly in their business of buying oil and gas leases and doing title work for numerous major oil companies in DeWitt and adjoining counties. Of course Myrtle and her mother, Freda Dahme. worked in the business as well the home, as was typical of both the McLarty and Dahme families. By this time, World War II was well under way and Tell wanted to get into the service even though being a father may have well deferred him from it. Shortly before he enlisted, August Dahma died at the age of 61. Tell entered the service of the Army Air Force at Ft. Sam Houston, San Antonio and spent two years as S/Sgt. in a B-29 outfit in the Western Air Offensive, Japan, based in Guam, the Marianas Islands. He was honorably discharged in 1946.

Meanwhile, back in Cuero, Alice Gene had grown up, graduated from high school and attended Mary Hardin Baylor College in Temple and Texas Womens University, Denton. She later served on the Board of Trustees of that University. Having studied music and voice extensively, she became one of the best known singers in the area and was offered an opportunity to tour USO facilities with Bob Hope and other celebrities. She oped, however, to stay home and marry R.W. (Bob) Butler of Bryan, Texas, son of the R.B. Butler family who owned and operated a large construction and contracting firm. They were married at the First Baptist Church in Cuero in 1946. Probably the greatest voice to ever come out of Cuero or DeWitt County, Alice Gene and Bob still live in Bryan and have reared 2 sons and one daughter. Doy Ellen is married to Dr. Nolan Shipman M.D. She has two young daughters, Anne and Katherine. Billy, the Butler's older son, has two young daughters, Sarah and Jessica. Byron Tell Butler, their younger son, is married to Susan Steelman and they have four young sons, John Tell, Andrew, Matthew and Luke. Bryan based, deeply religious and multi-talented, this contingent of the McLarty Family of DeWitt County is 100% Aggie!

Returning home from the war and having to start anew, Tell and Myrtle with son Jeff, moved back to Cuero and purchased W.T.'s grocery store, then called McLarty's Red & White, but still in the same location on Main St. About this time, the Tucker automobile made its appearance on the scene and due to the scarcity of automobiles, Tell and Myrtle negotiated for a Tucker Dealership. Although they never received a Tucker, the facility, McLarty Motor Co., enabled them to acquire a Buick Dealership combined with Willys-Overland (Jeep) and Reo Truck. Soon thereafter, they sold the grocery business, including the quaint Bak-O-Max, a barbecue emporium with rocking chairs only for seating, to Charlie Koenig. They also purchased the Tom Morman home and ranch on the old Yoakum Hiway near what was then called the Goldfish Bowl, a restaurant adjacent to the once famous Friedrich's swimming pool. The stone house and 67 acres went for $5,000. During their tenure in this home, their second son, James Patrick (Pat) McLarty was born, Nov. 26, 1946, at the Bohman Hospital, Cuero. The McLarty's continued to operate their automobile dealership and other enterprises, including cotton farming, broiler raising and small interests in the oil and gas industry. By this time, the W.T. McLartys had moved to Bryan, Texas, where W.T. took a job with the Butler Enterprises managing some of their warehousing and distribution divisions. He also operated a small farm near his old home, Lexington.

In 1954, an intriguing oil prospect in the Denver-Julesburg Basin near Denver developed through friends Tell had in the oil industry. Fortified with geophysical exploration data provided by the finest research company in the U.S.A. Tell prevailed on his wife to liquidate their Texas holding and enter into the Overland Oil Co. venture operating out of Denver, Colo. Selling their home to Don Stiles ($12,000.00) and their Buick Dealership to Robt. Pratt, the McLarty's bade good-bye to Cuero and DeWitt County and took up residence in Denver near the Cherry Creek Country Club. After discovering what was then termed, "Denver's Backyard Oil Well", the ensuing deep wildcats proved dry and Overland Oil was put to rest. But rest was a word the, as now, unknown to the McLartys and they quickly transferred to Chicago, Ill. where Tell became Vice-President of National Swage Tool & Die, a wire rope specialty manufacturing firm. Traveling the entire North American continent for National Swage, Tell created a new niche for himself and in 1961 moved to California as the exclusive manufacturer of wire rope specialty products (slings) for the John Roebling Sons Wire Rope Mfg. Co., headquartered in Trenton, N.J. This and his continuing marketing efforts on the West Coast, eventually led to the establishment of Rhino, Inc., a McLarty owned corporation still operating in the city of Los Angeles, CA. Myrtle, simultaneously with Tell's move, entered real estate business and is now an owner-director in West Ways Realtors, Inc. of Los Alamitos. CA. She has two partners and 28 years of real estate experience to her credit.

Jeff McLarty, is associated with Crossroads Community Church in Westminster, CA. He has never married and lives with Tell and Myrtle in Seal Beach, CA.

Pat McLarty is President of Rhino, Inc. and associated with Tell in the management and expansion of that company, presently into ocean cargo containers. In 1981, Pat married Maura Elizabeth Cummings of Connecticut. They had two children, Meghan Elizabeth Grace, born Sept. 18, 1984, and James Patrick (Jimmy), born Sept. 18, 1986. They live in Garden Grove, CA., a few blocks from the T.J. McLartys.

The McLartys, though no longer residents of DeWitt County, are still property owners there, having a part of the old Burrow Ranch near Yorktown. They frequently visit family members in Texas and their many friends in DeWitt County.

W.T. McLarty died at the age of 90 in Bryan, Texas and is buried there. Doy Alice, his wife, now 93, lives near Alice Gene in Bryan.

McMAHAN, CHARLIE

C.L. "Charlie" McMahan

A Half-Century in the Saddle

Charlie LeRoy McMahan was born December 11, 1907 in Denison, Texas to Jeff and Emma McMahan. He has one brother, Russell McMahan. Charlie's grandparents, John and Josephine King, brought him, an infant, to Cuero where they raised him.

October 5, 1926 Charlie McMahan married Alice Harryman in Gonzales, Texas, but they always lived in Cuero where they had five sons: Charlie (died an infant), Kenneth (Sheriff of Goliad County), Bobby (Sheriff of DeWitt County), Jimmy (employed by BASF, Freeport, Texas) and Wayne (employed by Tenneco Gas and Oil, Victoria, Texas).

The rest of C.L. McMahan's life story is told very well by Greg Bowen as follows, except Charlie (Uncle Charlie, as he is often lovingly called) wants everybody to know two things about him: One: "Nobody ever got me out of jail to go to work for my boss." Two: "My boss never asked me 'What became of that cow's calf?"

So that's our Uncle Charlie in 1989 after fifty-six years working on the Friar Ranch!

Charlie, 76, began his long ride on the cattle ranch back in 1933, when he traded a day's work to ranch owner Alfred Friar for the use of Friar's pipe-threading machine, which Charlie needed to repair an old water well.

Charlie and Friar worked together that first day, on horseback, and when the ranch owner saw how well Charlie could handle a horse and a rope, the rancher hired him.

Forty years later, Alfred Friar died and Friar's daughter Anne and her husband J. Carter Thomas took over the cattle ranch.

"I wanted to quit after the old man died, 'cause I'd been bunged up. I told Carter and Anne that it wouldn't hurt my feelin's none if they hired a young man to run the ranch and let me go," Charlie said.

Instead, the new owners made Charlie foreman of the 1,200-plus acre ranch with its more than 900 head of Brahmans and Brahman-

Jersey crossbreeds.

"And Mrs. Friar told me to take care of the ranch just like Alfred Friar did, and that's what I've been trying to do."

As ranch foreman, Charlie sees that the work gets done; sees that the fences are mended and the cattle are fed, vaccinated and wormed; sees that the hay gets cut and the calves nurse and the wells pump. And since Friar Ranch has acreage in DeWitt, Goliad, Victoria, Karnes and Gonzales counties, it's not unusual for Charlie's rounds to take him to all 5 counties in one day.

I got my brains knocked out workin' cattle one day. My horse run under a limb with me. I saw the limb and throwed my arm up in front of my face, but the limb got me right in the forehead. Two of my boys found me and took me to the hospital. Sometime that night I came Charlie's seen a lot of changes in his 50 years on the ranch. The pastures are clearer now, he said, because of the chemicals they've been using to control brush. After being almost wiped out by "outlaws and roadhunters," the wild turkeys are increasing their numbers again. The deer are fewer, but bigger and healthier.

"Now we use the truck more than the horse, but when we gather cattle to ship or sell, we still use the horses."

Up until several years ago, Charlie said, cows didn't come too bad or too fast or too wild for his tastes. "I liked 'em like that."

"I roped a good many bulls and used to really enjoy doin' it. But I don't want it no more. You can get hurt too easy."

"I roped a cow in a brush pasture back in the days when we didn't know what a mohair girth was. The girths we had would cut the horses stomachs, so we'd put an inner tube there so it wouldn't rub 'em. It rained in that inner tube and that girth rotted and I roped a dog-gone cow and when that horse set down that rotten girth busted and over his head I went and he kicked me in the head with his hoof when he tried to jump me. I laid there a little while before I got over it. Then I found the cow and my saddle and rope all hung up together in a bush."

Charlie's taking things easier now, says he can't do the heavy work anymore and doesn't try to. But he's not planning on retirement "until they pull my boots off me."

Charlie's a deacon at the First Presbyterian Church, the father of DeWitt County Sheriff Bobby McMahan and Goliad County Sheriff Kenneth McMahan,, and two other sons. He's got nine grandchildren and one great-grandchild

His wife passed away two years ago. "She was a sweet, understanding woman. The Record came out and took pictures of her several years ago. She was a collector of pitchers, must have had 500 of 'em. I still got 'em out at the house."

I had two mares and a paint horse that I rode I guess a million miles. I'd change off, ride one one day and another the next. If there were things I had to do on Sunday, I'd do 'em on horseback. When the old man was alive I didn't do nothing but ride and take care of the cattle. I've had horses bog down with me and fall on top of me. Broke a good many ribs on both sides. I don't ride much now unless I have to. It sort of hurts me to ride."

MEIER, ERNEST LOUIS

Ernest Louis Meier, third child of Rev. Eugene A. Meier and Julia Trimpler Meier, was born August 9, 1918 in Winters, Runnels County, Texas. At the time of his birth, during World War I, there was much strife in Winters, Texas due to the German services in the Lutheran Church. This resulted in the moving of his family to Phillipsburg, a small community near Brenham, Texas when he was just a few months old.

In 1925 the Meier family moved to the Arneckeville community, where Rev. Meier was pastor of Zion's Lutheran Church. Ernest attended the Arneckeville school, Cuero High School where he graduated in 1936, and Texas Lutheran College, Seguin, Texas. He taught in the rural schools of Meyersville and Clinton prior to his enlistment into the military service, December 1941.

Ernest and Evelyn C. Heyer, daughter of Robert Heyer, Jr. and Hulda Markowsky Heyer, were married on January 8, 1943 in St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Cuero, Texas. The ceremony was performed by the groom's father, Pastor Eugene Meier. To this union two children were born: Barbara Kathryn (Mrs. Thomas Baur) July 12, 1946 and Michael Paul, December 29, 1950.

After four years of military service, Ernest and Evelyn made their home in Cuero, Texas from 1945 until 1964. During this time Ernest was employed by Continental Oil Company in Yorktown and El Campo. In 1963 he was transferred to Corpus Christi, Texas, where the family made their home for 18 years. After 35 years with Continental Oil Company, he retired in 1981 and moved back to Cuero, Evelyn Claire Heyer, daughter of Robert F. Heyer and Hulda Markowsky Heyer was born October 4, 1924 in Cuero, Texas, DeWitt County and was baptized in St. Michael's Catholic Church, Cuero, Texas. She attended school at St. Michael's through the sixth grade and graduated from Cuero High School in 1942. She was employed by Bell Telephone Company in Cuero for a short time. After her marriage in 1943, she moved to Wichita Falls, Texas, where her husband, Ernest Meier was stationed at that time during World War II. After Ernest's discharge from the military, they made their home in Cuero, Texas, living in Evelyn's family home for about 20 years. After Ernest's transfer to Corpus Christi, Texas, Evelyn was employed by the Nueces County Clerk's office in Corpus Christi, Texas for about eight years. After Ernest's retirement from Continental Oil Company, they moved back to Cuero, DeWitt County, Texas.

MEIER, EUGENE ALBERT AND BARBARA JULIANA TRIMPLER

F621

Eugene Albert Meier

Eugene Albert Meier served his Lord and his God in the Lutheran ministry for forty years, twenty of those years in DeWitt County. Today there are many persons in DeWitt County who were either baptized, confirmed, or married by Pastor Meier. Indeed it was Pastor Meier's hope that those who received his instructions would remain faithful to their promise.

Eugene Albert Meier was born on 8 June 1888 in Schofflisdorf, Canton of Zurich, Switzerland; he was baptized there on 8 July 1888 and given the baptismal name Eugene Albert. He was the son of Jakob Albert Meier (b. 6 June 1864 Schofflisdorf; d. 18 May 1938 Hye, Blanco County, Texas; bur. Trinity Lutheran Cemetery, Albert, Gillespie County; m. 1888 Schofflisdorf) and Anna Meier, nee Merki (b. 29 August 1854 Schofflisdorf; d. 22 July 1942 Hye; bur. Trinity Lutheran Cemetery, Albert). Eugene Meier was confirmed in Schofflisdorf on Palm Sunday, 16 April 1905. In February of 1906 he emigrated from Switzerland with his parents and their other children; the family settled on a farm in Hye, Blanco County, Texas. Having received and acknowledged God's call to minister to his fellow man, Eugene Meier attended the Evangelical Lutheran Proseminary in Brenham, Washington County, Texas, from 1907 until 1909. He then attended Wartburg Lutheran Seminary in Dubuque, Dubuque County, Iowa, from September of 1909 until June of 1912; he passed the ministerial exam on 19 June 1912. Eugene Meier was ordained in the Lutheran ministry on 30 June 1912 at the Trinity Lutheran Church in Albert. In the regular term of the District Court of Austin County, Texas, held at Bellville on 10 January 1925, he was granted United States citizenship.

Eugene Albert Meier died on 28 September 1952 in New Wehdem, Washington County, Texas, as he was walking from his home toward the church building to prepare for Sunday School, which was scheduled to commence shortly. Accompanied by his wife, he had taken only about ten steps from his front porch when he suffered a heart attack. Funeral services were held at his New Wehdem Lutheran Church with three of his fellow ministers officiating and with six other Lutheran ministers serving as pallbears. Additional services were held at Freund Funeral Home in Cuero, DeWitt County, Texas; Pastor Meier was buried at Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

On 24 November 1912 Eugene Meier married Barbara Juliana "Julia" Trimpler, whom he had met while he was attending Wartburg Lutheran Seminary in Dubuque. The ceremony was performed in Brenham by the bride's brother-in-law, Rev. E.A. Sagebiel. Barbara Juliana Trimpler was the daughter of Johann Wilhelm "William" Trimpler (b. 2 August 1856 Troy Grove, LaSalle County, Illinois; d. 28 August 1892 Troy Grove; bur. Troy Grove; m. 6 September 1881 Troy Grove) and Anna Maria Trimpler, nee Mason (b. 23 March 1867 Stuttgart, Germany; d. 22 November 1929 Dubuque; bur. St. John's Cemetery, St. Matthews Lutheran Church, Dubuque). Barbara Juliana Meier, nee Trimpler, was born on 5 October 1885 in Troy Grove and was baptized there on 13 June 1886. Her mother, Anna Maria Trimpler, nee Maser, had immigrated to the United States in 1873. After the death of her husband, Anna Maria Trimpler moved with her children from Troy Grove to Dubuque. where Barbara Juliana Meier, was confirmed in the Lutheran faith at St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church on 9 April 1899. Barbara Juliana Meier died in Cuero on 9 February 1974 and was buried at Hillside Cemetery in Cuero.

Four children were born to the marriage of Eugene Albert Meier and Barbara Juliana Meier, nee Trimpler: Wilma Anna Marie Meier (b. 16 December 1913 Sagerton, Haskell County, Texas; d. 23 January 1958 Cuero; bur. Hillside Cemetery, Cuero; m. 23 September 1937 Arneckeville, DeWitt County, to Arthur Henry Koehler); Eugene Albert William Meier (b. 6 July 1916 Winters, Runnels County, Texas; m. 20 October 1940 Arneckeville to Corine Kornfuehrer); Ernest Louis Meier (b. 9 August 1918 Winters; m. 8 January 1943 Cuero to Evelyn Claire Heyer); Edwin William Henry Meier (b. 23 January 1924 Phillipsburg, Washington County, Texas; m. 14 January 1949 Knippa, Uvalde County, Texas, to Elvira Vilma Schroeder).

Eugene Albert Meier's first ministerial assignment was with a Lutheran mission in West Texas; serving eight congregations, he made his home in Stamford, Jones County, Texas. He later served at Sagerton in 1913. He accepted a call on 13 January 1914 from St. Johns Lutheran Church in Winters at a salary of $275 per year, and on 26 March 1914 he accepted another call from the Lutheran Church in Miles, Runnels County, at an additional salary of $75 per year. He was called to St. Paul Lutheran Church in Phillipsburg on 6 November 1918 at a salary of $700 per annum.

Pastor Eugene Meier served as pastor of Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville from 20 September 1925 until early 1946; his beginning salary was $900 per year. From 13 September 1925 until 1938, he also ministered to Zion Lutheran Church in Mission Valley, Texas, for an additional $300 per year. His pastoral duties in Mission Valley consisted of two complete services and Sunday School twice each month on Sunday afternoon. On 20 May 1940 he accepted a call from St. John Lutheran in Lindenau, Texas, at an additional salary of $400 per year; at Lindenau, he delivered a sermon every other Sunday prior to the regular service in Arneckeville. The servicing of more than one church resulted in extensive driving in open touring cars on muddy roads. On one occasion, as Pastor Meier was rushing back from Lindenau, the steering rod fell off his car, and he ran through a barbed wire fence. Luckily someone came along and, with barbed wire, tied the rod back onto the steering; he arrived slightly late to his second service.

Pastor Meier was an accomplished musician, and he played the organ and the piano. He loved to sing and soon formed a large choir and a men's chorus at Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville. In his early years in Arneckeville, he conducted many contatas for Christmas and Easter. He was also very active in the community and directed a number of three act plays, which were presented on the school stages in Arneckeville and in Mission Valley. These plays were well attended and were considered special events in the community.

In 1932, in the midst of the Great Depression, Pastor Meier voluntarily reduced his salary at Zion in Arneckeville to $70 per month plus fire wood and the use of the parsonage. Also during his tenure at Zion, a new pump organ was purchased, the present church was constructed in 1938, and, perhaps most importantly to him, three young men from his church entered the ministry.

During World War II, Pastor Meier wrote a letter once each month to each of Zion's twentyfour men in the armed services. Letters which he received from them were, in most cases, shared with the congregation in the parish paper, "Zion's Messenger," which Pastor Meier had originated in 1936. Financial reports, news items, and problems of that day and time were presented and discussed in this paper. In the final issue, dated Palm Sunday, 14 April 1946, Pastor Meier wrote, "Zion's Lutheran Congregation, I have given you the best years of my life. Soon the years will come . . . when we are no longer that which we were, when evening shadows became longer." This was Pastor Meier's farewell message, after twenty years of service, to the congregation of Zion Lutheran Church in Arneckeville.

Upon leaving Arneckeville, Pastor Meier ministered to two more congregations before his untimely death at the age of sixty-four. He accepted a call on 12 January 1946 to Immanual Lutheran Church in Knippa and on 26 February 1950, he accepted a call to St. James Lutheran Church in New Wehdem.

According to the 1880 DeWitt County Census Adam Meisenhelder came from Prussia. His tombstone in the Kilgore Cemetery in Victoria County says he came from Bonfeld, Wurttemberg. He was born July 19, 1819 and died May 2, 1895. We know he was a member of St. John's Lutheran Church in Meyersville in 1856. He was elected a Councilman there in 1872. We don't know what happened to his first wife and the mother of his children. He married Mrs. Charlotte Shuh on April 22, 1864 in Meyersville. She had been married to Edward G. Schorre in 1854.

Adam Meisenhelder had 3 children. Jacob, Christene and Augusta. Christene was confirmed at St. John's Lutheran Church in Meyersville on Palm Sunday of 1857. Jacob was confirmed at this same church on Palm Sunday 1859. Augusta was confirmed in 1856.

Augusta married Ludwig Dreier in 1860. They lived in Goliad County. Christene married Theadore Stahl on December 31, 1867 in Meyersville. Pastor Adam Sager married them. He was Augusta's brother-in-law. Their wittnesses were Jacob Meisenhelder and Justine Sager, the pastors wife. Christene died in 1877. According to the 1880 DeWitt County Census, Theadore and the children, Louisa, Alma, Otto, Fred, and William Stahl lived with Adam and Charlotte.

Jacob Meisenhelder married Mary Stanteen, the daughter of Fred and Henrietta Stanteen, who came to America in 1852, landing at New Orleans. Jacob and Mary had 8 children: Matilda Charlotte who married Seferine Dreyer, Albert who married Helena Jacob, Emma, Bertha, and Willie who never married, John who married Elenora Jacob, (after her death he married Emily Boldt), Mary Meisenhelder who married John Boldt, Annie who first married Charles Luttenbacher. He died young, She then married someone named Strain and was Mrs. Cody Grose when she died.

Jacob married a second time to Mrs. Minnie Alex. He died in 1923. He is buried in a cemetery in Yorktown.

J. Adam Meisenhelder was on the Muster Roll of Capt. Robert Kleberg's Company of Coleto Guards, 24 brigade in June of 1861. Mrs. John (Maggie) Diebel, Mrs. Ed (Jewel) Hennig, and Mrs. Marvin (Virginia) Fetters are three of the many descendants of J. Adam Meisenhelder who live in DeWitt County.

MEITZEN, LINDA MARIE AND ROBERT LEE FAMILY

Linda Marie Meitzen, nee Koehler, was born on 6 January 1947 in Cuero, DeWitt County, Texas. She was the daughter of Arthur Henry Koehler (b. 11 September 1909 Arneckeville, DeWitt County; m. #1: 23 September 1937 Arneckeville; m. #2: 7 February 1960 Seguin, Guadalupe County, Texas, to Ruth Zitelman, nee Evers) and Wilma Anna Marie Koehler, nee Meier (b. 16 December 1913 Sagerton, Haskell County, Texas; d. 23 January 1958 Cuero; bur. Hillside Cemetery, Cuero). In Cuero on 2 July 1966, Linda Koehler married Robert "Bobby" Lee Meitzen (b. 29 September 1946 Cuero). Three daughters were born to this marriage: Terri Lynn Meitzen (b. 25 September 1969 Victoria, Victoria County, Texas); Tammi Lea Meitzen (b. 3 September 1971 Victoria); Robbi Kay Meitzen (b. 1 May 1987 Victoria).

Love between Linda and Bobby Meitzen bloomed in the season of their youthful innocence, at a time when all dreams were possible and when the future was devoid of thorns and bramble bushes. In a day when many marriages crumble under the pressures of ordinary living, the love between Linda and Bobby Meitzen has survived periods of illness, adversity, and pain and has continued to grow and blossom like the young baytree planted by the river of waters.

MENN, JOHANN H. AND MARIE E. ROTH

The seaport of Indianola, Texas was the end of the ocean voyage for Johann Heinrich and Marie Elizabeth Roth Menn and their four children. Erntebruck, Westphalia, Prussia had been home of the Johann H. Menn family. Their children who accompanied them to this new land were: Fredrick, age 13; Heinrich, age 10; Justine, age 6; and Louise, age 4.

Johann was born June 21, 1810 and Marie Elizabeth was born June 24, 1810 in their native Germany. After arriving at the port of Indianola, the family traveled across the open prairie to low rolling hills near Yorktown, Texas where they arrived in November 1849, one year after the town was founded.

On March 4, 1856, Johann Heinrich Menn died and was the first person buried in the Westside Cemetery of Yorktown.

On November 7, 1856 Marie Elizabeth Menn married Gottlieb Schultz and they continued to live in the Yorktown area. Fredrick Menn later married Johanna Meyer, Heinrich Menn married Elilie Stark, Justine Menn married Rudolph Gohmert, and Louise Menn married Herman Korth.

Henry (Heinrich) Menn was born on December 21, 1839 in Erntebruck, Westphalia, Prussia. He was sixteen years old when his father died. His stepfather, Gottlieb Schultz encouraged the young Henry to work hard and save his money in order to get well established in this their new land and home. Henry assumed the responsibility of paying his late father's doctor bills, by driving the Doctor on house calls. His work was varied. At one time, he worked at the construction of saddles. He drove a freight wagon. After one very eventful trip up the farming and ranching. On June 28, 1870, Henry married Emilie Stark, daughter of William and Henrietta cattle trail, he turned his interests toward

Groth Stark (whose story will be found elsewhere in this book). The following eight children were born to Henry and Emilie Menn: Herman, Ida, Willie, Henry, Jr., Marie, John, Emily, and Paul. During their 62 years of marriage, Henry and Emilie worked hard to provide for their family. In that time they acquired over two thousand acres of land, which they passed on to their children a number of years before they died so that they could enjoy seeing their children using their inheritance.

Henry Menn's land stretched from just east of Coleto Creek to the west past a point known as "Two-mile Timber". That landmark (a mott of live oak trees located two miles from Yorktown) was a gathering point for riders and waggoners of the early days. They stopped there and made repairs in the shade of the trees and watered their horses. "Two-Mile Timber" is still in the Menn family, the home of two of Henry Menns' great grandsons (Paul H. Menn and William G. Menn) and their fami-

The Menn family home was located just west of Coleto Creek on the old San Antonio trail northwest of the present town of Yorktown. For many years the Menn family lived there and it was home in the truest sense of the word. Henry remained active until his late eighties even riding horseback at age 89.

On January 20, 1932 Emilie Menn died. The next day, January 21, 1932, Henry Menn died. These two, who had lived together for 62 years, died one day apart and were buried in a double grave in Westside Cemetery, Yorktown, Texas.

Herman married Marie Schwartz, Emily married Paul Hohn, Paul married Willie May Kohler, Willie and Henry Jr. never married, Ida died at the age of 17 years, and John and Marie both died in infancy.

On June 28, 1916, Paul R. Menn married Willie May Kohler, the daughter of Silas William Kohler and Lillie Hilliard Kohler in the First Baptist Church in Cuero.

Willie May Kohler grew up in Cuero, being raised by her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. William Milligan. She attended San Marcos Normal and the University of Chicago. She was teaching in Yorktown when she met Paul R. Menn.

Paul grew up in Yorktown and attended Tyler Commercial College. He worked as a bookkeeper in several places . . . the last place being the First National Bank. For health reasons he was forced to retire from the desk job and he went into full-time ranching. He continued ranching for most of the rest of his life. Willie May died on June 17, 1971 and Paul died on January 25, 1981. They are both buried in Hillside Cemetery, Cuero.

Paul and Willie May Menn had two sons, William Paul, born July 15, 1917 and Walter Hilliard, born September 16, 1922. He died of whooping cough September 1, 1923.

William Paul Menn received a D.D.S. degree from Baylor Dental School and served three years in the U.S. Army Dental Corps at Fort Hood, Texas and in the Philippines during World War II. On December 16, 1944 he married Robbie Neta Haines, daughter of Frank G. and Vida Haines of Coryell County, Texas at the Post Chapel at North Fort Hood. Will and Robbie have two sons. Paul Haines was born December 10, 1945 and William

Ca. 1888 Back Row - Willie Menn, Herman Menn, Ida Menn. Front Row - Emily Menn, Henry Menn, Sr., Emilie Menn and Paul R. Menn (on lap)

Gardner was born December 29, 1947.

For 12 years Will, Robbie, and sons lived in Yorktown, where Will practiced Dentistry. In September of 1959, the family moved to Austin where Will entered Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary and obtained a B.D. degree. Together the W.P. Menn family served Presbyterian Churches in Pleasanton, Donna, Victoria, and Karnes City. The family retired in 1978 and returned to Yorktown to live.

Paul Haines Menn married Paulette Broom of Pleasanton, the daughter of Paul and Lillian Broom, on July 18, 1970 in the First Methodist Church in Pleasanton. They have three daughters, Julie Renee, born March 11, 1974, Amy Leigh was born August 27, 1976 and Rebecca Lynn was born October 30, 1981. Paul and Paulette both obtained degrees from Southwest Texas University in San Marcos and use their degrees in their professions.

William Gardner Menn married Marilyn Kay von Roeder, daughter of Bobby James and Billie von Roeder on April 30, 1977 in the First Presbyterian Church in Yorktown. They have one son James Paul born September 4, 1979. Both William G. and Marilyn have degrees from Southwest Texas University and also use their degrees in their professions. William G. Menn served 6 years in the U.S. Navy during the Viet Nam conflict.

The three Menn families, along with some other decendents of Henry and Emily Menn continue to live on part of the land which Henry and Emily acquired. There are 5th., 6th., and 7th. generations of the decendents of Johann H. and Marie Elizabeth Roth Menn still residing in Yorktown, Texas.

MENN, JOHANNIS AND MARY ALICE

F625

Johannis Menn was born 1807 in Erndtebrucke, Prussia. He married Mary Alice (maiden name unknown) born 1810. Very little is known of her. Her place of birth and their marriage date and place is also unknown.

They immigrated to Texas prior to the 1860 census. He purchased land on February 5, 1856 from Peter Ragsdale. They settled on the Smith Creek approximately four mile south of Yorktown on highway 119. Their home of hewn logs still stands today on the property of Lewis and Evangeline Menn, a great-granddaughter. Johannis died in the year 1865. On June 25, 1866 his will was probated.

The oldest son of this couple was Henrich (Henry). Henry stated in his naturalization papers that he was born 10 Jun 1839. Other documentation lists his birth as 16 September 1839. He further stated that he immigrated to the United States in November of 1849. Henry Menn at the age of 22 served as a private in Captain Josiah Taylor's Company Texas Mounted Riflemen . . . Civil War April 3, 1862 until 1864. He married Anna Koehler (22 April 1845 – 23 March 1912).

Johannis Menn and Mary Alice Menn had four other children: Louis (1841) married Maggie Lundschein, William 1849) married Justine Buergner, and a daughter Justine (birth date unknown) married Carl Riedel. One daughter married and remained in Germany.

The descendants of Henry, Louis, William,

Justine, and the unknown daughter in Germany have not been adequately researched to give further information for this article.

MENNING, LEE ROY CHRISTIAN AND MARY ANN PLOEGER

F626

Yoakum Huth Memorial Hospital came alive on February 17, 1943 with the birth of Lee Roy Christian Menning. Lee Roy William and Agnes Christina (Schaefer) Menning were the proud parents of a very active son. Little League, boy scouting, camping, and neighborhood games were all a part of everyday life. A telegraph system was rigged up from his pal's house next door. Lee Roy always enjoyed working with his dad in their workshop. They built a small cabin cruiser in the 50's that still survives today.

Lee Roy's grandfather, Edward Frederick Schaefer, taught him to drive at an early age in a 1933 Chevrolet coupe. Ever since then he has been fascinated with cars. He is an avid antique car enthusiast and collector. He is very active in many antique car clubs: The Antique Automobile Club of America, Classic Car Club, and Horseless Carriage Club.

He graduated from Yoakum High School in 1961 and was All District in football and track. In 1965, he received a BBA Degree from Southwest Texas State University. He worked in San Antonio and Houston for the Southern Pacific Railroad. In 1967 and 1968 he taught at Camp Gary Job Corps in San Marcos.

In 1968, Lee Roy married his high school sweetheart. Mary Ann (Ploeger) Menning was born on May 10, 1943 in Yoakum to Leslie and Dorothy (Borchers) Ploeger. She was the first born of six children: Mary Ann, Leslie Jr., Patti, Dorothy Lee, Sally and Mark.

Mary Ann's first twelve years of school were completed in Yoakum. Band, twirler, National Honor society, and class officer were part of her activities. After graduation in 1961, she attended Texas Tech University and then transferred to Southwest Texas State University where she was student body treasurer and a member of the Strutters. She holds a B.S. in Education Degree with a major in business and a Masters Degree in Education. Teaching was done in Big Spring and South Houston High School before moving back to Yoakum.

Lee Roy Christian and Mary Ann were married at the First Methodist Church in San Marcos on July 3, 1968. A year later Lee Roy was called to active duty for the US Army Reserves. While he was gone, Mary Ann moved from San Marcos back to Yoakum and taught the third grade. After a year, she changed back to secondary level to teach business subjects. After Lee Roy was discharged, he taught as a Distributive Education teacher for seven years in the Yoakum Independent School District.

January 21, 1974 Lee Roy and his father Lee Roy W., entered in a partnership business by buying Yoakum Auto Parts which was located at 315 W. Grand Avenue. In 1975, they opened another store, Shiner Auto Parts. In 1979, Leon Schacherl purchased Yoakum Auto Parts and in 1984 Shiner Auto Parts was sold.

The biggest event of all happened on January 23, 1974 with the birth of Christina Ann at Yoakum Huth Memorial Hospital. Things really began to pick up at a fast pace. Christina has been very active since the beginning: swimming, dancing lessons, gymnastics, piano, Campfire, band, golf, tennis, University Interscholastic League storytelling, and oral reading. In 1981, she won the Yoakum Little Miss title. In 1987, she was crowned Junior Miss. She spent two years riding floats representing Yoakum. She was runnerup in the Little Miss South Texas Pageant and winner of Little Miss Photogenic. Presently, she is on the high school tennis team, student council and active in the Anchor Club.

In 1983 and 1984, Lee Roy raced across the United States in a 1934 Bentley Open Tourer in the Great American Race. His collection of antique cars varies from a 1911 Maxwell to a 1959 Rolls Royce. He is continuously buying and selling cars to keep the collection interesting. The number of cars ranges from fifteen to thirty.

The Mennings are active in the First United Methodist Church. Lee Roy has served as a trustee, member of the choir and UMY sponsor. Mary Ann has served as chairman of the administrative board, Sunday School teacher, and UMY sponsor.

In 1985, Mary Ann was elected to Yoakum City Commission. She served on the Library-Museum Board, City Recreation Board, American Cancer Society Board, and as a Campfire leader. She is a graduate of the Texas Tech Advanced School of Banking. In 1989 she graduated from the American Bankers School of Banking at the University of Delaware.

Lee Roy is involved in real estate and investments. Mary Ann serves as Chairman of the Board and President of Buchel Bank & Trust Company and on the Cuero Industrial Foundation Board. She is active in the Cuero Chamber of Commerce, City Industrial Development Committee, and Main Street Advisory Board. She is an area representative on the Victoria Regional Medical Center Board and Treasurer for the Tennis Booster Club.

They are proud of their heritage and to be a part of DeWitt County. All parents and grand-parents have roots in DeWitt County.

MENNING, LEE ROY W. AND CHRISTINA

F627

Cris Menning (1893-1949) came from Vienna, Austria and settled in America at the age of five. When he was a young man he settled in DeWitt County. He owned blacksmith shops in Lindenau and Breslau. He was extremely talented and in addition to shoeing horses, he started repairing some of the first automobiles in DeWitt and Lavaca Counties.

Cris married Augusta Hehmke (1896-1972) from Hallettsville. They had six children: Lee Roy W., Melvin Christian, Jesse, Pearl, Geneva, and Leola. Several languages were spoken in the home – German, Czech, and English.

In 1921, the Mennings moved to Breslau in Lavaca County. Cris was a man of many abilities; Shoeing horses, repairing autos and farm equipment, wood craftsman (some of his work survives today) and selling. He sold cars in Moulton and Shiner, was a buttermaker for Trautwein Creamery, and served as brewmaster and salesman for Spoetzl Brewery.

Lee Roy William was born November 9, 1914 in Lindenau. His schooling was done in Moulton and Shiner. He was strong academically and able to bypass several grades. He also starred on the State Basketball Team. Engines and mechanics always fascinated him.

Lee Roy W. and Agnes Christina Schaefer were married in Yoakum on October 29, 1938 at four o'clock in a house on Montgomery Street. Lee Roy was an assistant brewmaster at Spoetzl Brewery in Shiner from 1934 until 1941. In 1941, he went to work for the railroad on steam trains. He served as an engineer until February 1, 1975 when he retired with 331/2 years of service.

Christina was born in Yoakum to Edward Fredick Schaefer (1885-1955) and Lula Wallace (1878-1947). They had eight children: Gertrude, Edna, Lena Bell, Lillie Mozell, Woodrow Wilson, Agness Christina, Louis Edward (Huck), and Lee Marek.

Lula Wallace was of Indian descent. Edward Fredick Schaefer was a lovable, friendly, jovial person who was loved by his fellow workers and family. Being outdoors walking and telling stories were some of his favorite past times. He was a machinist in the railroad shops until they closed. He worked for Southwestern Gas Transmission until his retirement.

Christina Schaefer Menning was born and raised in Yoakum. In 1935, after graduation from Yoakum High School, she enrolled in Baldwin Business College. After completion of a year course of study, she went to work for Southwestern Bell as a telephone operator for seven years.

On February 17, 1943 Lee Roy Christian was born at Huth Memorial Hospital. Their only other child, Barbara Jean, was also born in Yoakum on January 2, 1945.

In 1950, Christina helped organize and start boy scouting in Yoakum. She served as a den mother for about four years. Also, they formed the Yoakum Little League Baseball with the help of Jody Jacobs, Adolph Ullman and others.

Both Lee Roy C. and Barbara graduated from Yoakum High School. Lee Roy graduated from Southwest Texas State University in 1965 and Barbara graduated from Mary Hardin Baylor in 1967. Lee Roy C. lives in Victoria with his wife, Mary Ann Ploeger, and daughter Christina Ann. Barbara lives in Taylor with her husband, Ivan Leschber, and son Matthew Wayne. She also has a married daughter, Christi Davidson, who lives in Austin.

In 1961, Christina went to work for First State Bank. After twenty years, she retired and entered ranching. Meme, as her grandchildren fondly call her, is an active member of the First United Methodist Church, Wesley Fellowship Class and Philomathic Club.

Lee Roy W. and Lee Roy C. entered into a partnership business by buying Yoakum Auto Parts which was located at 315 W. Grand Avenue on January 21, 1974. They ran the business until 1979 when Leon Schacherl from Gonzales purchased it. They opened another store in Shiner in 1975 and sold Shiner Auto Parts in 1984.

Lee Roy W. is a member of the Masonic Lodge #662 and the Alzafar Shrine Temple in San Antonio. While with the railroad he served as Regional Legislative Representative and attended national meetings. Being raised around his father's blacksmith shops and woodwork plus being mechanically inclined,

Papa spends much of his retired time fixing family and friends' small mechanical devices. He is considered by most to be a mechanical genius who can fix anything.

MEYER, GEORGE CARL AND EMMA VOGT

George Carl Meyer was born in Neyersville on September 30, 1865 to Adolph and Meta Friedricks Meyer. Adolph Meyer was a founder of Meyersville and operated a wind-driven grist mill and also built the first cotton gin in Meyersville. Meyersville was named for Adolph Meyer who also operated the first Post Office there.

The Adolph Meyer family moved to Weesatche in Goliad County in the early 1880s. George Carl was a mail rider carrying mail from Weser to Weesatche three times a week. He also hauled cotton to Cuero and freight to San Antonio. He told stories of these trips and of sometimes being waylaid by bandits.

On January 8, 1896 George was married to Emma Vogt in Trinity Lutheran Church in Victoria by Rev. Karl Weis. Emma was born August 4, 1870 to Christian and Maria Schellentraeger Vogt in Victoria.

George and Emma made their home on a farm near Weesatche where they also operated a General Merchandise Store. Five children were born to them. In 1920 they moved to a farm they purchased about three miles south of Yorktown. Three of the five children made their home in DeWitt County.

William Herman was born April 19, 1902. He attended schools in Weesatche. He was a trucker, hauling cattle to San Antonio and sometimes bringing cedar posts back from the Hill County. He suffered a stroke in December 1943 that left him partially paralyzed and unable to talk. He still maintained a large garden and raised champion sized watermelons on the home place south of Yorktown for many years. He died March 30, 1979.

Mary Meta (Mayme) was born June 2, 1904 and attended schools at Weesatche and Yorktown. She married George Schmidt. (Story appears elsewhere).

George Ember Christian Meyer was born June 3, 1914 at Weesatche. He attended schools in Yorktown. He served in the Signal Corp of the United States Army during World War II for 3 ½ years. He received the European-African and the Middle Eastern service ribbons with two bronze stars. After his discharge he operated a radio and television sales and service shop in Yorktown. George E.C. Meyer died November 6, 1972.

Mother Emma died June 4, 1946 at the age of 76 years. Father George Carl died August 6, 1951 at the age of 86 years. They, along with sons William and George, are buried in St. Paul Lutheran Cemetery in Yorktown.

MEYER, GORDON EDWARD

Gordon E. and Dorothy E. Meyer, 50th wedding anniversary.

In the Handbook of Texas an entry appears on Meyersville, Texas stating that the town was settled in 1845 by Adolph Meyer who built a log cabin on the La Bahia Road where it crossed the Coleto Creek. This Adolph Meyer was Johann Henrich Adolph Meyer born April 13, 1813 in Friedrichahagen, Kurhessen, Kingdom of Hanover, Germany.

Adolph Meyer came to America with a land grant from the Fisher-Miller group, sponsored by the Verein Zum Schutgedeutscher Ein Wander in Texas. His ship landed in Galveston Dec. 4, 1845. He then made his way to Indianola, and to what would become Meyersville, Texas.

Adolph married Meta Friedrich August 17, 1854, in San Antonio. Adolph and Meta had thirteen children. One died in infancy, six boys and six girls survived until adult age.

Gordon Edward Levin Meyer is the son of the tenth child, Wilhelm Gustav Meyer, born August 12, 1870 in Meyersville. Gutsav married Levine Fromme in 1907. Levine was the daughter of Levin and Dora Ruprecht. Dora had come to United States with Wilhelm,

Adolph and Meta (Friederich) Meyer

Adolph's brother, his father Johann Meyer, and a sister Carol on the ship Canapus in 1848.

After the marriage of Gustav and Levine, they lived in Yorktown where they had a clothing store, Meyer Brothers, in partnership with Henry Koehler, a brother-in-law. Levine had a millinery department in the store. From this marriage two sons were born: Gordon Edward born November 17, 1908, and Welbyn Gustav born Aug. 17, 1912. Both were born in Yorktown. Gustave and Levine died in San Antonio and are buried at San Jose Cemetery.

Gordon married Dorothy Elizabeth Doss October 7, 1933 in San Antonio. Gordon was employed by Central Power & Light Company in the Engineering Department of the Home Office. Dorothy was a school librarian in Corpus and Flour Bluff schools. Both retired and moved to Victoria in 1976 and are living at Crescent Valley on a farm which had been the home of Levin and Dora Fromme. They have two children, Marilyn Elizabeth born September 21, 1937 and a son Gordon Edward Jr. born February 14, 1942, both in Corpus Christi.

Marilyn attended Del Mar College and is married to Asa Elsworth Logan. They have four children: Marilyn Kay born Feb. 6, 1958 in Corpus Christi; Karen Elizabeth born July 15, 1960 in San Benito; Asa Scott born September 30, 1962 in San Benito; and William Bryan born April 9, 1965 in Laredo. Marilyn is employed by Alcoa at Point Comfort, and Asa is employed by Central Power & Light Company in Victoria. Their residence is Victoria.

Marilyn Kay married Bradley Stevenson and has one daughter, Stacey Brianne Stephenson. Kay later married Zane McElroy, and is now married to Steve Nelson. They reside in Victoria.

Karen Elizabeth Logan married Terry Lee Fleeman April 30, 1979 in Victoria. They reside in Bloomington, Texas. Terry is employed by Union Carbide at Seadrift. Karen and Terry have three daughters: Tiffany Elizabeth, September 6, 1980; Meagan Kay, August 30, 1983; and Taryn Lee, March 17, 1986. All were born in Victoria.

Asa Scott married Wanda Gayle Heller August 13, 1982 in Victoria. They have two sons: Asa John born December 4, 1984 and Kyle Scott born June 18, 1987. They reside in Bloomington, Texas.

William Bryan was born April 9, 1965 in Laredo. He is unmarried and is a senior engineering student at A&I College in Kingsville.

Gordon Edward Meyer Jr. was born February 14, 1942 in Corpus Christi. Edward and Dorothy Stratmann married February 16, 1961. They have 3 children: Sherry Lynn born April 15, 1963; Norma Jean born November 10, 1961; and Gordon William born June 26, 1964. All were born in Corpus Christi. Dorothy and Edward divorced in 1972 and he married Toni Winkfine Melton November 10, 1976. Edward is owner of GEM Enterprises. Ronald Melton, Toni's son by a former marriage was adopted by the couple.

Norma Jean married Jeff Frazier April 26, 1980 and they have two sons: Edward Tyrell born December 2, 1982 and Jakob Mikal born July 9, 1984. Both were born in Corpus Christi. Norma and Jeff adopted her half-brother Bradford Wayne. After a divorce, Norma married William Allan Worthington November 21, 1988.

Sherry Lynn married Randall Lee Schwirtlich July 23, 1983. They have one daughter Jessica Lynn born May 18, 1984 in Corpus Christi. Randy works for the City of Corpus Christi as a Computer Programer, and Sherry teaches pre-school. They reside in Robstown, Texas.

Bill married Jodi (Johanna Lynn Corbin) July 26, 1986. Bill and Jodi have one son Justin William born November 17, 1987 in Dallas. They adopted Jody's daughter, Stephanie, by a former marriage. They reside in Garland, Texas.

MEYER, JOHANN GEORG AND META FRIEDRICHS

F631

Johann Heinrich Adolph Meyer (1813-1899) and Meta (Friedrichs) Meyer (1837-1896)

Johann Georg Meyer (1778-1864)

Adolph Meyer

Johann Heinrich Adolph Meyer was born ca. 13 April 1813 reportedly in Hanover, Germany. He was the son of Johann Georg Meyer (b. ca. 28 September 1778 reportedly in Hanover; d. ca. February, 1864 Texas) and Juliane Meyer, nee Peters (b. ca. 1779; d. in Germany, spring, 1848, at the age of 681/2 years). Adolph Meyer died of cancer in Weesatche on 14 October 1899. An obituary in the Cuero (Texas) Record of 16 October 1899 stated the following: "Mr. Meyer was one of the oldest citizens of Weesatche and will be greatly missed in that community. Mr. Meyer was the first settler in Meyersville, after whom it was named. His remains were laid to rest in Middletown Cemetery.

Adolph Meyer married Meta Friederichs, daughter of Friederich Friederichs ca. 1855. Meta Meyer, nee Friederichs, was born ca. 10 May 1837 reportedly in Aurich, Kingdom of Hanover, Germany. She died on 1 February 1896 in Weesatche and was buried in the Weesatche Lutheran Cemetery.

Meta Meyer, along with her parents, and her fellow siblings arrived at Indianola, Texas, ca. 14 May 1852. According to oral history, both her parents died there ca. 11 June 1852. The story was told that, upon landing at Indianola, a wheel from their wagon was missing on their boat; the family therefore waited for other ships to see if the wheel could possibly be located. While they were waiting, the parents became ill and died. Meta and most of her brothers and sisters were taken into the home of Frederich Hamm; the guardianship papers are located in the Probate Journal (Book A, page 127, 1852) of Calhoun County, Texas. According to oral history, the guardianship of Frederich Hamm was not advantageous to the children. According to Dorothy Meyers, those Friederichs children who had not married by 1860 had evidently been taken in by other families in DeWitt County.

It has been reported that the brothers and sisters of Meta Meyer, nee Friederichs, were as follows: Eliesa Friederichs (b. ca. 1834/35; m. Wilhelm Meyer; brother of Adolph Meyer); Herman Friederichs (b. ca. 1836; m. #1: Katharina Koehler, daughter of Heinrich Koehler and Friedericke Justine Christiana Koehler; nee Sager; m. #2: Minnie Bauer); Anna Friederichs (b. ca. 1845; m. John Olfers); Friederich Friederichs (b. 15 October 1846; d. 29 June 1932, bur. Hillside Cemetery, Cuero, DeWitt County, Texas; m. Carolyn Wiess).

Twelve children were born to Adolph Meyer and his wife Meta Meyer, nee Friederichs: George Edward Adolph (b. 1 March 1856); Eliesa Mariane Adolphine (b. 15 February 1858); George Adolph Edward (b. 12 October 1859); Sophie Wilamina Annalier Meta (b. 22 May 1861); William Herman Julius (b. 10 March 1863); Henry Carl George (b. 30 September 1865); Johanna Christiana Caroline (b. 28 January 1868); William Henry Gustave (b. 12 August 1870); Louis Friedrich Albert Robert (b. 9 October 1872); Johanna Maria Georgine Ottilde (b. 26 December 1874); Carl (b. 9 April 1878; d. 6 May 1878); Sophie (b. 16 July 1881).

Johann Heinrich Adolph Meyer, along with his sisters, Mariana and Juliana, left the port of Bremen, Germany, aboard the brig Hercules on 25 August 1845, and they arrived at Galveston on 23 November 1845. Their names are found among the "List of Emigrants who arrived here... Hercules... from Bremenforthe German Emigration Company and who are hereby entered at the State Department of Texas,... on the grant ceded to Messr. Henry F. Fisher and Burch. Miller under date Washington October 4, 1843, transferred to said Company as per Contract of 24th June 1844 and extended as per ... Resolution of the 9th Congress of 29 January 1845."

After disembarking at Galveston, the Meyer family went to Indianola, where Juliana died, reportedly in May of 1846. Adolph and Mariana moved to DeWitt County; they arrived at Coleto Creek on or about 28 May 1846. They were the first settlers of a community located thirteen miles southwest of present-day Cuero. This community later became known as Meyersville, named in honor of Adolph Meyer, in whose home the first post office was established on 22 December 1851. Adolph Meyer was thus appointed postmaster on that date. His successor was his sister, Mariana Meyer (b. ca. 6 February 1811; d. ca. 21 May 1872), who served as postmistress from 18 October 1866 until 27 June 1872.

According to Albert Meyer (A History of DeWitt County by Nellie Murphree, 1961), the first house was built of post oak trees split in half; the ends were dove-tailed so that they could be fitted and fastened with pegs. A mixture of moss, clay, and ashes was used to fill the open spaces between the logs. The roof was made of long grass; ashes, adobe, and water were mixed together to make a solid floor.

In August of 1845 at Bremen, before sailing to Texas, Johann Heinrich Adolph Meyer had signed an immigration contract with the Association for the Protection of German Immigrants in Texas (Verein zum Schutz deutscher Einwanderer in Texas). This agreement stated the following: "The Association...grants to Mr. Johann Heinrich Adolph Meyer, from Friedrichshagen, who accepts same for himself, his family, his heirs and assigns,... three hundred twenty acres of land, to be taken from its lands situated in the present county of San Antonio, Republic of Texas." On 25 June 1850 Meyer was consequently issued Certificate #490 for one half section of land No. 242 in Howard's

District No. 1 under " 'an act to secure to the German Immigration Company and their colonists, the lands to which they are entitled, and to adjust the liabilities of said company,' approved January 21, 1850." Commissioner Joseph P. Portis certified "that Johann Meyer appeared before me, and upon oath declared that he . . . was introduced into Texas by virtue of the colonization contract of H.F. Fisher and Burchard Miller with the President of the late Republic of Texas, before the first day of September A.D. 1847." On 5 June 1851, Meyer was issued a similar certificate (#104) by Commissioner Granville H. Sherwood for a half section of land No. 156 and 153 in Erskin's District. He sold the land in Howard's District for one hundred dollars on 3 July 1851, and he sold the land in Erskin's District for twenty-five dollars on 2 June 1854.

The records of St. John Lutheran Church in Meyersville illustrate that Adolph Meyer was an active member and that he signed the 1859 constitution. Among other things, Meyer donated wood in 1857 for an addition to the parsonage and hauled rails to fence a garden for the pastor; on 28 October 1864 he donated five dollars toward the purchase of a residence for the pastor. In addition, Adolph Meyer was an accomplished musician; in fact, Meyer had brought his piano over from Germany (although it was later lost in a fire that burned his home to the ground while the family was reportedly gathering pecans down by the creek). It is reported that at any time when the regular church organist failed to appear, Meyer took over and played for the church service, even after he had reached the age of eighty.

The story has been told that Adolph Meyer's father, Johann Georg Meyer, was a professor in Germany for forty years and that he received a lifetime pension of forty dollars per month as a result of this service. According to oral history, the father came to America in 1848. With him came another son, Wilhelm "William" Meyer, who settled in DeWitt County and married Eliesa Friederichs, and another daughter, Caroline Meyer, who married Carl Wenzel and moved to Sisterdale, Texas.

MEYER, JOHANN JULIUS

F632

On January 20, 1816, Johann Julius Meyer was born in Woldenburg, District of Frankorthin, Kingdom of Prussia. Early in his life he became proficient in music, playing many instruments. He was a member of the band of and special guard of Kaiser Frederick the Great. Members of the guard were required to be six feet tall, so Johann Julius was tall and had a fair complexion and blue eyes. He was reared in the Lutheran faith.

On November 5, 1840 Johann Meyer took as his bride Wilhelmina Heissig in Landsberg an der Warte, East Brandenburg, Prussia. Wilhelmina's birth to Johann Gottlieb Heissig and Marie Charlotte Zedler is recorded on May 23, 1820. She is described as being of medium stature with a light complexion, black hair and blue eyes. She enjoyed her health and also belong to the Lutheran church.

Julius and Wilhelmina Meyer landed in

Johann Julius Meyer

Wilhelmine Heissig Meyer

Texas on July 9, 1854 according to his naturalization papers which were granted September 25, 1858. Several of his children died in infancy, but five achieved maturity: Adolph, Anna Justine, Albert, Marie, and Johanna. The last four all married into local Yorktown families. Both Adolph and Albert died in their forties.

By 1855 Julius Meyer was providing music for balls and parties being held in Strieber's private hall. Mr. Meyer was the first musician in Yorktown, and long before the Civil War he organized the first orchestra which laid the foundation for the Old Band organized about 1869 by Messrs. Riedel and Gips. Julius gave music lessons to various ranchers' children, often travelling there by buckboard.

Albert Meyer, son of Julius, recorded in a letter that his father built his first houses of post oak trees split in half with the ends dovetailed in order to be fitted and fastened with pegs. Open places between the logs were filled with a mixture of moss, clay, and ashes. This soft plastic excluded the cold. The roof was made of long grasses which were found in abundance nearby. The floors were made of ashes and adobe ground together to make a solid film. This first house burned and had to be rebuilt.

They made rail fences which were zigzag with a rider on top. The first fence was created of post oak trees which Julius split and used to fence in a field in Meyersville.

Soap was made out of hog grease and lye. Lye was made by filling a barrel with ashes and water, taking the drippings of ashes water over and over until it was strong enough to carry a hen egg. In the first years food was plain — wild game and corn bread were basics. Flour was saved for special Sunday treats.

The first taxes on ninety acres of land were appraised at ninety cents. In order to tame the wild mustang horses, Julius learned to crease their necks by barely shooting them with the fine cap and bolt rifle he had brought with him from Germany.

The 1860 census records Johann Julius Meyer living in dwelling 561 in DeWitt County, aged 43, male, born in Prussia. With the imminence of the Civil War, Julius Meyer enlisted in the Yorktown Hulan Reserve Company composed of sixty officers and men. After the war was over, the parents of Wilhelmina Meyer, Johann Gottlieb and Marie Hessig made the long journey from Germany to visit their three children, Wilhelmina, Henriette and Carl. Both parents died in Germany — Johann in 1867 and Marie in 1869.

Johann Julius Meyer died in Yorktown on March 27, 1878 and is buried in Westside Cemetery. Wilhelmina wrote a letter to her daughter, Anna Stark, three months later which detailed a terrible storm which had hit Yorktown with hail as large as small eggs. Fences were blown down, corn was broken off, chicken and turkeys were killed, cotton was broken off, and rain blew all through the house.

The DeWitt County census lists Wilhelmina Meyer, aged 60, birthplace Prussia. An inventory of the assets of Johann Julius Meyer recorded under probate listed $2491.62, consisting chiefly of barroom materials and supplies of various kinds of liquor. On August 5, 1900, Wilhelmina Heissig Meyer died in Yorktown and is buried at Westside cemetery. Both she and Julius were pioneers who had come from a very different type of background than that of Texas. Yet both adjusted to the difficult tasks of settling a new land and added much to the enjoyment of their fellow settlers.

MEYER, WILHELM AND HENRY FAMILIES

F633

Wilhelm (Meier) Meyer was born on July 5, 1838 in Luechow, Hanover, Germany, and his wife, Margaretha nee Sasse, born on Nov. 4, 1832 in Salzhonsen, Hanover, Germany, came to America in 1873 via New Orleans. With them came Katharina Dorothea, nee Vogelsang Sasse, mother of Margaretha, their children – Henry, George, Wilhelm, and Alvina. They settled in Sasseville near Nopal. Wilhelm Jr. died at eighteen. Henry was born in Hamburg, Germany, on June 25, 1865 and came to

Henry and Minna (Natho) Meyer

America at the age of eight.

On January 28, 1887, Henry married Minna, nee Natho, daughter of Christine and Wilhelmine, nee Puhlman, Natho. Minna was born on July 23, 1865 in Caswig, Anhalt-Dessau, Germany and was four years old when she came to America in 1869 with her parents.

In June 1887 Wilhelm bought a farm north of Nordheim when it was known as Weldon Switch and only a railroad switch. In October Henry and Minna moved to Nordheim and became one of the first settlers in this area, eventually buying the farm from his parents. They lived with their son and wife when in 1889 Wilhelm became helpless from chronic rheumatism and became an invalid. His wife gave him constant care. They being devout Christians of the Lutheran faith, he accepted his physical infirmity as a manifestation of the Divine Will. On Nov. 25, 1905 Margaretha passed and a week later, on Dec. 1, 1905 Wilhelm died. Both are buried in the Lutheran Cemetery in Yorktown, Texas. Wilhelm became a citizen of the U.S.A. on Nov. 7, 1874 and Henry on Dec. 18, 1893.

When the Meyers came to this area it was raw land. They built their home in a grove of giant oak trees in the middle of a prairie. They had to go to a nearby ranch of several miles to get water and to Yorktown for supplies. Many of the great oaks are still standing together with cedar trees which were planted in front of the home. Henry was known as the Truck Farming King for numerous years in the early 1900's. Beside truck farming they raised sheep and cattle. He was instrumental in building up the town of Nordheim by building a number of store buildings such as grocery, dry goods, barber shop, tin shop, post office, and many homes. He was a prominent farmer-stockman and through thrift and perseverance accumulated extensive land holdings, some of which are still in the family. Six children were born to Henry and Minna; Annie married Richard Schroller and their children were Kermit, Evelyn, Henry, Jack, Lillian, Mildred and Noel Dean. Annie died in Sept. 1973. Elsie married Walter T. Laging and had no children, but took their niece Mildred Lee Huck into their home. Elsie died on Jan. 19, 1924. Caesar married Lyida Weigang and had one son Caesar, Jr. who has six children. Caesar died in Sept. 1979. Viola died in infancy at the age of ten months. Harry married Willie House and have one son Harry Alfred (Bussy) Jr. Meta married Emil C. Huck and had five children; Lucille died at the age of ten from a heart ailment resulting from diphtheria. They survived a terrible tornado which took their home on May 6, 1930. However, Emil died the following Feb. 9, 1931, of a heart attack.

Son Raymond married Alfreda Mueller on Oct. 15, 1936 and have three children. June Nell married Wilfred Buchhorn and have one son David. Delores married James Denman and have three children, Dianna, Janet, and Mark. Son Dickie Ray married Marji LeSturgeon and have three children, Shane, Rodney, and Dayne.

Son Nelton married Anita Riebschlaeger on Oct. 20, 1940 and had four children. Harlan drowned June 2, 1957 at the age of 11 years. Billy Joyce married Gordon Reynolds and their oldest daughter died at birth. Their other children are Bradley, Kristin, and Jeffrey. Another son Roger who has a daughter Rachil Waine. Daughter Charlene married Gary Butler and has a son Ross. Nelton died on May 29, Daughter Lorene married Stanley Reiman and had four children. Joe married Shirley Schmidt and have three children; Joe, Michelle, and Chris. Stanley, Jr. married Francis Merritt and have four children. Emil married Carrie Dlugosh and have three children -Johnny, Rhonda, and Eric. Marylyn married Charles Merritt and have two daughters. Lorene died on March 1, 1985.

Daughter Mildred married Edmund E. Mueller and have four children. Son GARY married Nancy Wilson and have a son Jason Lee. Daughter Sandra Lea married William J. Fronek and have a son Wilbur and daughter Janet. Daughter Sharon Ann married Rev. Jeffrey Thompson and have a daughter Jennifer and son Christopher. She has two sons, Brian and Brent Nickell and two stepchildren Barbara (Rath) and Bruce Nickell. Daughter Lerna Kay married David Hansel and have two sons Matthew William and Joshua Edmund.

Henry and Minna also took in a young man to stay with them by the name of Rudolph Kraatz. After the death of Minna on July 4, 1936 Meta went to live with her father Henry on the home place. Henry died on Sept. 12, 1940. On Aug. 3, 1943 Meta married Emil Onken. She died on jan. 6, 1981 at the age of 88 years and six months.

The original land that is still in the family is now owned by Edmund and Mildred Mueller.

MEYNARD, ERNEST B. AND NELLE (BENNET) F634

Ernest Barnaba Meynard was born on 17 January 1890 in Charenton, La., the son of Etienne Meynard, Jr. and his wife, Noemi Robin. His great-grandfather, Jean Baptiste Menard (the spelling at that time), was born in 1804 at Blaye, near Bordeaux, France. He came as a youth to New Orleans where he married Justine Chevale on 19 March 1828. In 1836, he purchased a sugar plantation with slaves on the Bayou Teche at Charenton, St. Mary's Parish, La. His son, Etienne Meynard (1831-1898), married Rosalie Ellinor Gigleux, served with Confederate forces during the Civil War, and afterwards established a sugar mill on the family plantation. The management of the mill passed to his son, Etienne Meynard, Jr. (1856-1898), who died at age 42, leaving his wife with eight children under age thirteen and another on the way.

Ernest, the fourth child, was educated at Charenton and came to Cuero in 1911 at age 21 as Clerk and Cashier for the Southern Pacific Ernest Barnaba Meynard (1890-1978, agent for the Southern Pacific Railroad for 42 years, is shown in Cuero depot office.

Railroad. H.B. Sheppard was the Agent at that time. There were no typewriters or adding machines then, and all waybills and reports were made out in longhand. On 7 July 1917, Ernest married Nelle B. Bennet and purchased the home of her mother, who continued to reside with them.

Nelle Bathsheba Meynard was born on 23 September 1892, the daughter of Samuel D. and Josephine (McRae) Bennet of Oakhill Ranch, DeWitt County. Their story appears separately. Nelle was educated in her early years by a governess at the ranch, attended the country school later, and entered Nash's Academy when her parents moved into Cuero in 1904. She was a lifelong member of the First Presbyterian Church of Cuero and served for many years as Chairman of its Special Services Committee.

In 1920, Ernest Meynard was made the Agent for Southern Pacific at Cuero, a position he held for 38 years until his retirement in 1958. During his tenure as Agent he saw the rise and decline of the railroad industry, through the height of shipping cattle to the end of passenger service at Cuero.

In the beginning, Mr. Meynard had three employees and Dick Harris with his buggy and wagon at the passenger depot. When special excursion trains were run to Port Lavaca and the coast, Rose Livery Stable was called on to help transport people and their baggage back to their homes on their return. By the 1930s, there were 37 employees, 12 daily trains (eight freight and four passenger ones) with "Polly" Olson and his taxi at the passenger depot. During the years when Cuero had a cotton compress, much cotton was shipped out and cotton season kept the freight office busy. However, the peak loads were during the war years, 1942-1945, when gasoline and tires were rationed and the public was dependent on the railroad for transporting products and people. There also were troop trains headed for secret destinations which passed through the Cuero station and were given priority.

By 1945, with beef in great demand and cattle prices high, ranchers shipped out 96 carloads of cattle each month. The cattle were brought to town in trucks and were penned two or three days until Mr. Meynard could obtain enough rail cars to ship them to market. They were loaded only on Friday nights, and on one occasion, 54 cars were shipped out at one time by the Cuero Livestock Commission Company. It was the heyday of both the rancher and the railroad, but by the 1960s trucks had replaced cattle cars and people made trips in their own automobiles. The passenger trains were discontinued in November, 1949, and eventually the freight cars also.

Mr. Meynard retired in 1958, took up oil painting as a hobby, and at age 70 was awarded several prizes for his works. In 1976, Mr. and Mrs. Meynard moved to Columbia, S.C. to reside with their son and daughter-in-law. There they celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary the next year. He died there on 17 April 1978, and she died in Columbia on 24 January 1986. Both are buried in Hillside Cemetery at Cuero.

They were the parents of one son, Ernest Bennet Meynard (1919), who married Virginia Gurley of Waco. A graduate of Cuero High School and Texas A. and M. College, he was associated with Buckeye Tool Corporation and Rockwell International in Dayton, Ohio, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Columbia, S.C. before his retirement in 1985. They are the parents of a son and two daughters, Jennifer Nell Meynard of Los Angeles, Calif., Ernest Bennet Meynard, Jr. of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Loulie Gurley Meynard of Ann Arbor, Mich.

MILLER FAMILY

Mary Elizabeth Miller Callaway's father was Jacob A. Miller of Victoria and DeWitt Counties. His grandfather came from Germany to Philadelphia and he and his son, also Jacob A., served in the Revolution in the Pennsylvania Militia. Jacob II migrated to Tennessee - Carter County, where his son, also Jacob A., was born in 1810. Young Jake Miller came to Texas in September, 1839 and took a land grant in Guadalupe County but never resided on it. Some descendants believe that as he still spoke German as he had intended to settle among the German-speaking Texans. But apparently he began to buy up land claims - mostly good, but some forgeries. In 1842 he joined the Mounted Ranger Company of Captain John T. Price of the Republic of Texas Army, to go to the Rio Grande area in response to the Mexican invasions of 1842. He returned to Victoria without injury. When the Mexican War came along he enlisted in Captain Price's mounted Ranger unit he had been with in 1842. He saw action until DeWitt County was formed in 1846 when he returned.

Jake Miller helped secure the new County seat for DeWitt County. When Richard Chisholm set aside 640 acres of his land for the future County Seat, Jacob A. Miller was one of four men appointed as Trustees of the land which became Clinton - the first County Seat. Jake Miller married the first couple in DeWitt County, at Clinton, as a Justice of the Peace. He served twice as Sheriff of DeWitt County and once as Tax Assessor-Collector. With the advent of the Civil War he enlisted as a Private in one of the Texas State Troop mounted units in DeWitt County. When the Civil War ended, he was appointed Sheriff. Jake Miller apparently was a Sam Houston Unionist.

Jacob A. Miller married twice. On October 3, 1847, on DeWitt County Marriage License Number 5, he and JoAnne Cook, born in Germany, were married. In January, 1849 JoAnne is listed on the 1850 Mortality Schedule as having died as did her daughter also Joanne. However, for obscure reasons, Jake Miller was not enumerated on the 1850 U.S. Census for DeWitt County. On October 2, 1851 Jacob A. Miller married Amanda Jane David, recently arrived from Warren County, Mississippi. Jake's first act was to give his new wife 2,000 acres of land in her own right. Family tradition has it that Amanda Jane was the niece of President Jefferson Davis and the daughter of his youngest sister, Mary, who had married a man with the family name of David. Children of Jake and Mandy Miller: 1. Mary Elizabeth b. 26 Jan. 1852, m. William T. Callaway; 2. John F. Miller, b. Feb. 24, 1853, m. Jane Anderson, d. Shannon Cemetery, Yorkton; 3. Amanda Jane b. ?, m. John Ferguson, died Wilson County; 4. Norris Miller b. 1858, m. Cordelia Callaway d?; 5. Jacob A. Jr. b. 1860 d. 1895. b. Yorkton; 6. Joseph A. Miller, b. 1852, m. Nellie Smith; 7. James, left Texas and was never heard from after that.

When he died in 1868, Jacob A. Miller left his wife and children 12,000 acres of land. His wife Amanda Jane Davis Miller, used the income from this to raise her children. Jacob A. Miller was buried in DeWitt County and his Masonic Lodge so noted it in their "minutes." His grave has not been found but was believed to have been in the "old" Clinton Cemetery. Amanda Jane Davis, his wife lived on to 1913 and is buried in the Stockdale Cemetery, Wilson County, Texas.

MITCHELL, ISAAC NEWTON

(1809-1853)

Isaac Newton Mitchell came to Texas from South Carolina over 150 years ago and settled in what is now Lavaca County, near the present site of Hallettsville. He then moved to Mitchell's Point in Calhoun County. He was married to Mary Margaret Kerr (1822-1884) in 1872. He had two sons I.N. Michell, II, and Daniel by his wife Mary Margaret.

After his accidental death, his two sons took over and soon purchased 400 acres of land on Carancahua Bay. I.N. then bought out his brother and built a large house there. This is where he brought his bride, Callista A. Stapp (1853-1942) in 1872. Callista is a descendant of Elija Stapp, a signer of the Texas Declaration of Independence. Callista's Grandmother was a Rice. (Founder of Rice University in Houster)

All of the above have had a residence either in Calhoun County or on Carancahua Bay.

I.N. and Callista had four children, I.N. Mitchell, III, C.S., H.C., and A.C.

Isaac Newton Mitchell, III

I.N. Mitchell, III was born 1-1-1873 and died Sept. 16, 1935, married to Mary Fromme, now deceased. They had three sons, I.N. Mitchell, IV, Hugh C. Mitchell and Alfred Mitchell.

I.N. Mitchell IV married Zatella Fields and had 2 children, Mary Katherine and I.N. Mitchell, V. Their daughter Mary Katherine still lives on Mitchell property. I.N., V. lives in New Braunfels. Mary Katherine has four children, one of which still lives with her on the ranch. I.N., V. has two sons.

Hugh C. Mitchell married Ethel Parnell and has one son, Michael who has two sons, Michael V. and Stephen Hugh. Ethel still lives on the Mitchell Ranch. Also A.C. Mitchell married Mildred Sterling. They had no children.

So you see, the Mitchell heirs are still ranching and farming. Times have changed but the love of cattle and nature are too strong to keep us away. The way of ranching has changed, cattle have changed, but the Mitchell's have not

MIXON, MORRIS AND WALLING

F637

John Mixon Ist came from England in 1650 and landed in Gloucester County, Virginia. This information appears in the Mixon-Mixson Family Vol. I by John Leslie Mixson and published by American Reference Publishers, Inc. Fort Worth, Texas.

Alfred Morris migrated to the Sabine District of Texas with his wife the former Sarah Ann Taylor and one son from Franklin County, Georgia in 1833. He crossed into Texas with a Spanish Land Grant (from the files of the General Land Office in Austin, Box 89, Folder 60)

Joel Adam Walling came to Clinton from South Carolina. He was a veteran of the Civil War. He fought under Col. Sellers Battalion where he was captured and held a prisoner of war by the Union Army. Joel Adam came to Texas with his wife Adela Rooke and three daughters. His wife was from Georgia and was the daughter of the Rev. Amos Rooke.

Ruby Mae Walling Mixon (1902-1973)

On Sept. 23, 1898 the ninth great grandson of John Mixon Ist, James Irvin Mixon married Johnny Morris in DeWitt County. She was the daughter of John M. Morris and Mary Jane Little and the granddaughter of Alfred W. Morris and Sarah Ann Taylor.

Between 1850 and 1900 the Morris family were located on acreages in the adjacent counties of Karnes, Gonzales and DeWitt. While they were living near the old town of Cabeza, a tragedy occured to the eldest son "Brack", which after almost ninety years continues to be recounted and publicized.

While serving his third term as sheriff of Karnes County, W.T. "Brack" Morris was shot and killed on June 12, 1901, by the notorious Gregorio Cortez. It is reported in the June 20, 1901 issue of the Karnes County News, Runge, Texas that over two thousand mourners attended the funeral at the Runge cemetery.

Cortez fled to Gonzales where he killed another sheriff. However, for ten days he skillfully eluded organized posses of lawmen before he was captured near the Mexican border. Ironically, Cortez became a folk hero, and his legendary flight has been the source of a Mexican border called "El Corrido de Gregorio Cortez," a book "With His Pistol in His Hand" (1958) by Americo Paredes, and a subsequent movie by the same name.

Accounts vary. The sentiments reflected in the ballad do not coincide with those of the Morris family. Joel Morris Mixon of Rockport, Texas a great-nephew of "Brack", retained original newspaper clippings of the incident. But, of more importance, the contributions of "Brack", a lawman, remain chronicled in Texas Ranger history.

James and Johnnie Morris Mixon owned and operated (until their death) the general store in Cabeza, Texas. Both James and Johnnie died in their early twenties, leaving two small children who were raised by their grandfather Jeff Mixon of Kenedy, Texas. Their son Pat Mixon later in life served as president of the Community State Bank in Runge, Texas.

Joel Amos was the son of J.A. Walling and Adela Rooke Walling who were farmers and land owners in Clinton in 1870, 1880 and the

MOLLENHAUER, HENRY AND ALVINA (FECHNER)

F638

Theodor Leopold Henrich (Henry) Mollenhauer was born in Liebenau, Germany 22 May 1843. He left Germany at the age of 19 years and went to South America. He traveled through various countries there, coming to Texas and to Yorktown in 1870. On 29 July 1871 he married Alvina Fechner. They first lived in the Yorktown area, then moved to Zedler's Mill in Gonzales County, and then settled in San Antonio where they lived for 13 years. They returned to Yorktown and Mr. Mollenhauer went into business. At the time of his death, he was the owner of a large hardware and furniture store. A son, Herman, worked with him. Henry died in Yorktown 23 February 1915 and is buried in Westside Cemetery in Yorktown.

Alvina Fechner was born in Eichenquast, near Schweinitz in Magdeburg, Germany 12 June 1846. She was baptized and confirmed in the Lutheran Church of her home community in Germany. She came to Yorktown from Germany in 1869. She was one of eleven children of Henry and Marie Fredericke Dahme Fechner. After the death of her husband, she continued to live in their home in Yorktown, and her sister, Augusta Bremer, came to live with her after her husband died. Alvina died in Yorktown 7 July 1945 at the age of 99 years and 25 days and she is buried beside her husband. For the last ten years or so of her life, she took turns, living with each child for four months. For more on this family, see Fechner, Henry and Marie.

Henry and Alvina Mollenhauer had five children; one, Ida, died in infancy. Those growing to adulthood were:

1) Edward Mollenhauer was born in Yorktown 3 May 1872. He lived in Yorktown all his life. On 12 January 1897 he married Annie Gips, daughter of Otto and Anna Fechner Gips. She was born 17 January 1878, in Yorktown, and died there 15 November 1967. They had three children, but only one, Alfrieda, grew to adulthood. Alfrieda was born in 1900 and died in 1938. She married Dr. Sidney Bohls, and they lived in Austin, Texas. She is buried in the Lutheran Cemetery in Yorktown. Edward Mollenhauer had a general merchandise store and owned the Mollenhauer Funeral Home in Yorktown. He died 15 October 1962.

2) Helen (Lena) Mollenhauer was born 26 December 1875 and died in Cuero 16 December 1952. She married Thomas (Tom) Mayne 15 March 1898 in Yorktown, but the couple lived in Cuero. He was born 19 October 1875 and died 25 July 1961. They are buried in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero, Texas. They had two sons, Henry Thomas and Lewis Harden. Henry was born 24 December 1898. He married Irene Newman of Cuero 21 June 1919 and they had two children, Carlyn and Lewis Elwood. Henry later married Joyce Richards of Cuero. He died 19 December 1966. Lewis was born 2 April 1902 and died 21 July 1933. He married Beatrice Garner 2 July 1925. He is buried in the House Cemetery near Yorktown.

3) Herman Mollenhauer was born in June 1879. He died while on a visit to his son, Warren, in Virginia, 3 July 1946. On 15 January 1904 he married Minna Marie Dahme in Yorktown. She was born in Indianola and grew up in Yorktown. She was the daughter of Fred Dahme, pioneer lumberman. She died 5 August 1949. She and her husband are buried in San Antonio. For many years the couple lived in Yorktown where he was engaged in business and was active in civic affairs. They moved to Beeville where he was in business for about a year and then moved to San Antonio where they continued to live. He was a plumber. Mr. and Mrs. Mollenhauer had three children, all born in Yorktown. Warren was born 27 November 1907 and died in 1986. He married Margie Hotchkiss. He was a Civil Service employee. Hazel Lorraine was born 27 July 1910 and died in San Antonio. She married George Stage and they adopted two daughters, Joy and Judy. Hilton Mollenhauer was born 31 August 1924. He does research with A&M University at College Station, Texas. He married Barbara Felsing and they have three sons.

4) Antonette (Nettie) Mollenhauer was born in Zedler's Mill, Gonzales County, Texas 29 June 1880. She grew up in San Antonio and Yorktown. She married Paul Gips 30 July 1902, and the couple lived in Yorktown. Five sons were born to them. (See separate story.)

MOORE, CLAUDE BENTLEY, I AND HARRIET ELOISE PHILPOTT

F639

Claude Bentley Moore I

Claude Bentley Moore I was born 15 July 1868 in Jackson County, Missouri, the son of Cornelius Moore, a farmer, and Mary Josephine Moore, nee Oldham. The 1880 Census shows Claude had two sisters, Annie and Mary, and three brothers, William, James, and Gregory. Another sister, Ladora Mae, was born 1882. Claude and James came to Laredo, TX from Lee's Summit, MO to open a banana importing business. They did well and, together with another partner, set up a wholesale produce operation in Cuero in the early 1890s named Moore and Sames. Claude was to run this branch. He was a super salesman traveling the territory by the train, known as the "Dinky". He acquired a host of friends and became a legendary traveling man. Claude was a gourmet cook. He died 27 Feb 1934.

Harriet Eloise (Philpott) Moore

Harriet Eloise Philpott was born 2 Feb 1870 in Bryan, TX to Horatio V. Philpott of Alabama and Henrietta Clay Bledsoe of Kentucky. Horatio had become a Methodist minister and moved to Texas by 1860. He lived in Huntsville and was a friend of General Sam Houston. By 1870, Dr. Philpott had moved to Bryan. A Philpott tradition holds that Sam Houston's sword was kept at Bryan for many years. Later it was returned to Sam Houston II since it was given to him in his father's will. In 1875, Horatio wrote an article in the Dallas Herald scolding the Austin Statesman for running saloon ads. Eloise had three brothers, William B., Horatio, and David H., and five sisters, Sarah A., Nannie E.M., Mary, Lillie and Bess. The 1900 U.S. Census shows Horatio, living with his 17 year old daughter, Lillie, in a hotel run by John Farris on Gonzales St., Cuero.

Eloise was a beautiful lady with the poise and grace of a southern belle. She married Claude Bentley Moore I 28 Dec 1893 in Cuero. They had four children, Ruth, Claude, James, and Harry. Elois died 2 Jan 1947.

Ruth was born 18 Oct 1894. She married Harold C. Hatfield who was a 2nd Lieut. in the 220 Aero Squad during World War I. He contracted T.B. while in Europe and spent most of his life in the Legion Hospital in Kerrville where he died 4 Apr 1953. They had a daughter, Eloise, born 15 July 1925; died 29 July 1929. Ruth died 20 Nov 1980.

James married Helen Houston of Cuero. They had a daughter, Faye Ruth, born in 1924. Jim operated the Humble Service Station at Esplanade and Broadway and was tragically killed while trying to start a car. He died 23 Mar 1935.

Harry Nicholson was born 5 Feb 1910. He married Josephine Wofford of Cuero. They had three children, Judy, Mary Jo, and Harry Jr. Harry died 27 Apr 1981.

The story of Claude is told separately.

MOORE, CLAUDE BENTLEY, II AND ANABEL SMITH

F640

Claude Bentley Moore II was born in Cuero 19 Feb 1900, son of Claude Bentley Moore I and Harriet Eloise Moore, nee Philpott. Claude had a twin brother, James P., an older sister Ruth, and a younger brother, Harry Nicholson. Claude graduated from Cuero High School and attended A&M University in College Station and Sewanee University in Tennessee. He and his twin brother enjoyed many sports while in from the Local Board #34. The most outstanding thing about Anabel was her abiding faith and her tolerance for others. On 21 Mar 1976, Anabel and Claude received Certificates of Recognition for the longest memberships in the First United Methodist Church, Claude for 69 years and Anabel for 66 years. In 1973, they celebrated their Golden Wedding Anniversary at the Austin home of their son, Buddy and his wife, Joanna. Anabel died 10 Apr 1980 and Claude died the following year, 9 Jan 1981. They had two children, Jane and Buddy.

Jane Marie was born 7 Aug 1924 in Cuero. Jane was a very popular honor student at Cuero High School winning its highest award upon graduation, the Dentler Post Award. Cuero had a very formidable high school debating team at that time composed of Jane Moore, Ada Koenig, Frank Sheppard, and John Fisher. Jane was working at Brayton Flying Service, planning for college, when she died suddenly 29 Sept 1942.

Claude Bentley (Buddy) III was born 16 July 1926. He married Joanna Louise Janssen 1 Oct 1949 in Nordheim. His story is given separately.

MOORE, CLAUDE BENTLEY, III AND JOANNA LOUISE JANSSEN

F641

Claude Bentley Moore III was born in Cuero 16 July 1926 to Claude Bentley Moore Jr. and Anabel Smith Moore. He had an older sister, Jane Marie, born 7 Aug 1924; died 29 Sept 1942. Buddy graduated from Cuero High School in 1943. In summer, during his high school days, he was a life guard at Cuero Municipal Park. After graduation, Buddy went to Schriener Institute in Kerrville for a year, and later to the University of Texas/Austin where he received a degree in Industrial Engineering.

Joanna Louise Janssen was born 17 Jan 1929 to Emil Dietrich Janssen and Laura Jane Mueller Janssen in Nordheim. Her older brother, Carroll James was born 16 Sept 1921. Joanna was baptised and confirmed in St. Paul Lutheran Church. She attended the Nordheim public schools, graduating in 1946 as valedictorian of her class. Growing up with a large group of aunts, uncles, and cousins made Nordheim a very comfortable and safe place. Her friends and she loved to go to the large country dances, meeting young people from all over the

Anabel Smith Moore was born in Cuero 8 Sept 1899. She was the daughter of Charles G. Smith and Eliza Edgar Smith, owners of the Smith Ranch. Anabel was the 2nd oldest of eight children, Carry May, Anabel, Marie, Charles Edgar, Margaret Evelyn, Rufus Henry, Alexander Hamilton, and Mary Eleanor. Anabel and her siblings were taught at home while at the ranch. Later the family moved to town and the children attended Cuero Public Schools. Upon graduation, Anabel went to college at Ward-Belmont in Nashville, Tennessee.

Claude and Anabel were married 29 oct 1923 in the First United Methodist Church, Cuero, TX. He was working in the wholesale produce business, Moore and Sames, with his father, inheriting a compulsion to meet everyone in the world. He traveled throughout South Texas selling and during the last part of his life, he was successful selling lumber and supplies to county commissioners. In 1929, Claude was initiated into the Cuero Masonic Lodge #409 and became a 32 degree Mason. Anabel received recognition in 1940 for working with the National Red Cross for the War Relief. She began working for the Federal Selective Service System in the 1950s, and received a pin 7 Feb 1965 for completing 20 years of service surroundings counties. It was at one of these dances that Buddy and Joanna met. In the fall of 1946, she entered the University of Texas/Austin.

Buddy and Joanna married 1 Oct 1949 in St. Paul Lutheran Church in Nordheim. They lived in Shiner for a few months, then returned to Nordheim where he was employed by Janssen's IH dealership (farm equipment). After Checkers Janssen retired in 1954, Buddy and Carroll Janssen were partners in Nordheim and Yorktown. In 1962, Carroll bought the implement business; Buddy and his family moved to Seguin, then to Austin. Since 1963, he began to work in the field of chemical addiction, becoming a certified drug and alcohol counselor. His most noteworthy accomplishment is the acclaim he is receiving in the relatively new science of intervention and aftercare of chemically addicted people. Joanna has worked for the Texas State Board of Pharmacy in Austin from 1973-1981. For relaxation they began camping on the beach at Goose Island State Park on the Texas coast when the children were young. Their spare time is still spent fishing and relaxing on the beach. They have four children; all born in DeWitt County. Sandra Jane was born 28 Aug 1950. She graduated from Travis High School in Austin and attended the University of Texas/Austin, majoring in Nursing. Sandra married Sam Ray Paul on 21 Aug 1971. Their son, Ian Christian, was born 21 June 1980 in Austin. She married Jefferson Koger Ransom 25 May 1985. Jeff is a carpenter and Sandra is a nursing supervisor for the Austin/Travis County Health Department.

Sue Ann was born 27 Sept 1952. She graduated from Crockett High School in Austin and attended the University of Texas/Austin and is a licensed physical therapist. She married Douglas Thurman Bachman on 30 Aug 1975 in Austin. He is associated with Goodwin-Bachman Homes and Sue is employed as a physical therapist with the Austin ISD. They have two children, Page Joanna, born 23 Jan 1979 and Trey Douglas, born 19 Aug 1982.

C.B. Moore IV was born 13 Dec 1954. He graduated from Crock th High School in Austin and attended the University of Texas/Austin majoring in Finance. He married Karen Beth Cone in Rockdale, TX on 21 May 1977. They have two daughters, Megan Lyn, born 24 Jan 1980 in Austin and Bethany Nicole, born 22 Dec 1987 in Fort Worth. Karen is employed by Texas American Bridge Bank in Fort Worth and C.B. works for First City Bank in Arlington. They live in White Settlement.

Laura Jo was born 3 Sept 1956. She graduated from Crockett High School in Austin and attended the University of Texas/Austin, receiving her license as a physical therapist. On 11 Apr 1981, Steven Paul Krol and Laura were married in Austin. Steve and Laura own their own clinic, Krol & Krol, Physical Therapists, in Corpus Christi where they are living. They have three children, all born in Corpus. Kelsey Eileen was born 7 Apr 1984, Kari Ann was born 1 Apr 1986, and Kenton Thomas was born 13 May 1988.

MORGAN – SEEKAMP FAMILY

F642

Nannie Quirl Morgan (Mrs. Charles William Morgan 7-22-1854) was the granddaughter of "Texas' Betsy Ross 1836", Sarah Bradley Dodson (1-8-1812), who designed the Lone Star Flag in September, 1835. Lt. Archelaus Dodson, her husband, carried the flag which she had made of solid, red, white, and blue calico with a lone star (the exact design of the Texas flag of today, except that the rectangles were placed vertically). This flag was taken into battles by Lt. Dodson from October thru December 1835, during the siege of Bexar, where he was wounded. It is believed that the Dodson flag flew over the building at Washington-onthe-Brazos when the Declaration of Independence was signed March 2, 1836. it was also flown in the Battle of Palo Alto, May 8, 1846.

In 1936, Texas's Centennial Year, a monument was erected, by the State of Texas in memory of Sarah Bradley Dodson at Bedias, Texas.

Nannie Quirl, orphaned in infancy, was raised by her grandmother. She married Charles William Morgan, whose father had a shipping line. He was known to have shipped the first camels to Indianola, Texas.

Mrs. Morgan moved to Yoakum in 1902. She operated a rooming and boarding house called the "Morgan House';' on the corner or West Gonzales and Front St. Her daughter, Nell (2-4-1889), graduated from Yoakum High School in 1907. Nell met Herman "Sooky" Seekamp at the "Morgan House" when he came to Yoakum in 1907. A veteran of the Spanish-American War, he was a brakeman on the S.A.A.P. Railroad. They married in the year of 1907. "Sooky" was a farmer, rancher, horse and mule trader, a Mason, a Shriner, a Knight Templar, and a De Witt County Commissioner of Precinct #2 for twenty four years. He was instrumental in building Highway 111 from Edna to Hochheim via Yoakum and also the underpass here in Yoakum connecting the two sections. He also influenced the location of the District #13 Highway Department in Yoakum.

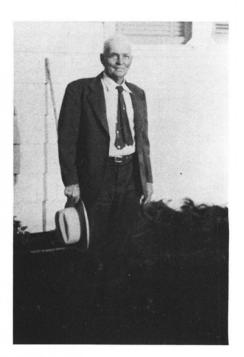

"Sooky" and Nell were blessed with a son, Charles Seekamp (10-21-10). He was a Yoakum High Graduate of 1927, a member of the De Molay and Fireman Band. He also played in the Bennie Prause Orchestra. He graduated as a petroleum engineer from the University of Texas in 1942 with a Bachelor of Science Degree. He was an engineer for the Railroad Commission, State Land Office and Stanolind Oil and Gas Co. He was a 25 year Mason, a Shriner, a Boy Scout Master, owner and operator of Seekamp Construction in Yoakum and a franchise dealer of "Alicia" Bermuda Grass.

Charles married Joyce Kopecky of Moulton. She was the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Joe C. Kopecky. Mr. Kopecky was a pharmacist and the owner of Kopecky Drug Store until 1937. Charles and Joyce were blessed with four sons: Charles Herman, John Frank, Joe Ray, and Craig Morgan. Charles Herman resides in Yoakum, John Frank in South Carolina, Joe Ray in San Antonio and Craig Morgan in the Stratton Community. Their families are listed in the Seekamp history.

MORGAN, KOS

F643

Kos Morgan.

Kosciusko (Kos) Morgan was born July 25, 1884, in Lagarto, Live Oak County, Texas. He was the fourth child of Charles William Palmer Morgan and Nannie Harriet Quirl Morgan. He was named Kosciusko after his paternal grandfather, who was named after the Polish national hero and military leader in the American Revolutionary Army.

His father passed away when Kos was only eight years old, and his mother was hardpressed to support the family of five children, four of whom were girls. For several years she operated a hotel in Yoakum. The other children were Charles Marion (Mamie) Morgan Chandler (1877-1973), Caroline M. (Carrie) Morgan Kunetka (1880-1965), Zella May (Dot) Morgan Simpson (1882-1978), and Nellie Craig (Nell) Morgan Seekamp (1889-1982). A sixth child, Charles, was born in 1887 but survived for only a few days.

In his early twenties Kos Morgan moved to DeWitt County and settled in Yoakum, where he and his brother-in-law, Frank W. Kunetka, operated a grocery store. In 1908 the two men bought their first land from H.E. Lancaster. It is located ten miles north of Cuero on the Guadalupe River. Here they engaged in ranching and farming.

Kos Morgan married Inez Preston on the Preston Ranch near Cheapside on April 24, 1912. They both lived on the Morgan Ranch for the rest of their lives, and all three of their daughters were born there. They are Ellyce Morgan Hansen (b. 1914), Melba Morgan Fly (b. 1918), and Doris Morgan Steele (b. 1920).

Kos Morgan died on November 26, 1955, and Inez Preston Morgan died on September 11, 1986. Both were buried in the Hillside Cemetery in Cuero, Texas.

Ellyce Morgan married Frederick Louis Hansen in 1937. They had three children. Their older son, Fred Morgan Hansen, (b. 1940) a dentist, married Marian Bryant Cole in 1965. Their two children are William Schuyler Hansen (b. 1968) and Katrine Elise Hansen (b. 1972). Subsequently, in 1988, Fred Morgan married Melinda Lacy. Frank Louis Hansen was born in 1944. He was an orthodontist and practiced in Houston until his death in 1980. resulting from an airplane accident on a hunting trip in the Yukon Territory, Canada. Frank Louis was born in Hillside Cemetery in Cuero. Lisa Caroline Hansen (b. 1952) married Walter Grant Braly, a surgeon, in 1978. Their children are Frank Hansen Braly (b. 1982), Houston Lee Braly II (b. 1984), and Morgan Fain Braly (b. 1987).

Melba Morgan married Walter Lamar Fly in 1938. Their son, William Lamar Fly, an attorney, was born in 1941, and their daughter, Susan D'Ette Fly, an educator, was born in 1943. William Lamar married Paula Cole in 1971. Their daughters are Susan Inez Fly (b. 1974) and Kelly Elizabeth Fly (b. 1979). Susan E'Ette married Robert Kyle Cowan, a banker, in 1964. Their three sons are Robert Kyle Cowan (b. 1964), Claiborne Lamar Cowan (b. 1968), and Benjamin Miller Cowan (b. 1977).

Doris Morgan married Richard Andre Steele, a military officer, in 1944. Their oldest daughter, Katherine Ann Steele (b. 1946), married Mamiliano James Rodriguez, a dentist, in 1970. Their children are Nicole Katherine (b. 1977) and Mamiliano Joshua (b. 1979). Their oldest son, Richard Andre Steele II (b. 1950), a sales manager, married Lois Faye Luedeker in 1974. There were no children by that marriage. Their second daughter, Mary Eileen Steele (b. 1951), married Gary Forrest Cox, a physician, in 1976. Their children are Justin Forrest (b. 1980) and Lauren Morgan (b. 1983).

Doris and Richard Steele's second son, Robert Michael Steele (b. 1954), an administrative technician, has not married. The third daughter, Nancy Gayle Steele (b. 1959), and Robert Hugh Bowman, a sales manager, were married in 1983. Their daughter, Jacqueline Marie, was born in 1985, and their son, John Christopher, was born in 1986.

a baby (born 10 July 1831 and died 25 Sept. 1831). Elizabeth never recovered from the birth and death of the baby and she died 28 Feb. 1832.

John H. married a second time, on 18 Dec. 1833, to Mary Ann Overstreet (born 28 Feb. 1815). Born to this union were Louisa J. (22 Sept. 1834), Elizabeth F. (18 March 1836), John Wingfield (14 Jan. 1838), Mary Ann (13 Dec. 1839), Margaret E. (18 Feb. 1842), Robert H. (4 Nov. 1843), Matison B. Chelton (30 Dec. 1844), Martha DeMay (7 July 1845), Susan P. (8 July 1850) and Wellington Wingfield (8 Aug. 1852).

By 1840, John H. Morrison appears on the Holmes Co., MS census as head of a family consisting of 1 male under 5, 2 males 10-15, 1 male 15-20, 1 male 20-30, 1 male 40-50, 3 females under 5, 2 females 5-10, 1 female 10-15, 1 female 15-20, 1 female 20-30, 1 female 30-40 and 1 female 50-60 years old.

The Holmes Co., MS census for 1850 found John H. and Mary Ann Overstreet Morrison and family living in Lexington Police Beat as follows: John H. (52, farmer), Mary Ann (35), James (22, student), Sherman (24, farmer), John (12), Robert (6), Matison (3), Louisa J. (16), Elizabeth (14), Mary Ann (10), Margaret (8) and Martha (4).

In the 1850's, John Morrison moved his family to DeWitt Co., TX, where they settled on Irish Creek. However, the family had moved their mill to Seguin, in Guadalupe Co., TX. before Mary Ann Overstreet Morrison died on 18 Feb. 1859. The 1860 Guadalupe Co., TX census found John H. (62) still at Seguin with real estate and personal estate valued at $10,335 and $3,740. John Wingfield (22, farmer), Margaret (18), Robert (17, student), Martha (14), Matison (12) and Wellington (8) were still living with their father.

William C. Morrison married Josephine Friley on 28 Aug. 1849. Elizabeth F. Morrison married Luther H. Wyatt 10 Feb. 1853 and had John W., Molly (married Burnett), Reed and Lee Wyatt. Robert Goode and Louisa J. Morrison were married at 8 p.m. 12 Feb. 1857, by Rev. Dr. Castles and had 1 son, Edward Goode. Mary Ann Morrison and Burnnett G. Henderson were married by Rev. Wm. H. Crutcher 14 Sept. 1859 and had Burnnett, Jr. and Mary Henderson. On 12 Feb. 1861, John Wingfield Morrison and Mary I. Alexander were married by Rev. A. Herron. Robert H. Morrison and Maggie I.A. Burnsides were married 9 Dec. 1862 by Rev. Wm. Hamilton. Margaret E. Morrison and A.P. Bowles were married in 1864 and had twin sons, John and Oscar, and Pinkie Bowles. Rev. Nelson Ayres and Martha DeMay Morrison were married at St. Andrews church, Bryan, TX on 2 June 1873, by Rt. Rev. Alex Gregg, and had Morrison, Nelson, Beatrice and George Ayres. Matison B. Chelton Morrison married Mary Ann on 18 Nov. 1869 and had John Wingfield, William Chelton, Nora B., Dora, Ocie J.W. and Matison B. Chelton Morrison, Jr. Wellington Wingfield Morrison married on 9 Dec. 1876 to Lucy Anne Elizabeth Cox (daughter of John R. and Mary Jane Victoria Reese Cox) and had James Edward, Annie Lee (married Applegate), Maude (married Robie), Robert Wellington and Lula Viola (married Rainbolt). Mary Ann Morrison Henderson married secondly to a Mr. Cotton and had 1 son, Clarence Cotton. John Wingfield Morrison married secondly on 11 June 1869, at Helena, Karnes Co., TX. to Mary Jane Victoria Reese Cox Rhymes (daughter of George Monroe and Lucy H. Reese and mother of Lucy Anne Elizabeth Cox, wife of W.W. Morrison). From this union came Wellington Walter, Martha Viola (married Powell), Mary Lula, Stella Francis (married Smalley) and Lena Zenobia Morrison (married A.A.G. Henry Byram).

John H. (82) appears on the 1880 Guadalupe Co., Tx census with the John Wingfield and Mary Ann Morrison family. However, some time in 1881, the Morrison mill blew up and shortly thereafter, the family moved to near San Antonio, where John H. Morrison died on 20 Dec. 1884.

John Wingfield Morrison

Mary Jane Reese Cox Rhymes Morrison - Yorktown, Tx. ca. 1880

John W. Morrison was born 14 Jan. 1838, probably at Rocky River Settlement, N. Carolina, to John H. Morrison and his second wife, Mary Ann Overstreet Morrison. The Morrisons were millers by trade as well as farmers. By 1840, John H. and Mary Ann Morrison had moved to Holmes Co., MS. The 1850 Holmes Co., MS census found the family living in Lexington Police Beat. During the 1850's, John H. moved his family to DeWitt Co., TX, where they settled on Irish Creek; however, they had moved again, to Seguin, Guadalupe Co., TX before Mary Ann Overstreet Morrison died on 18 Feb. 1859.

Mary I. Alexander and John Wingfield Morrison were married by Rev. A. Herron on 12 Feb. 1861, but she died soon thereafter.

John Wingfield married secondly at Helena, Karnes Co., TX on 11 June 1869, to Mary Jane Victoria Reese Cox Rhymes (daughter of George Monroe and Lucy H. Reese and mother of Lucy Ann Elizabeth Cox, who married W.W. Morrison). Wellington Walter Morrison was born 4 June 1872, Martha Viola was born 11 Feb. 1874, Mary Lula was born 16 March 1876, Stella Francis was born 20 Dec. 1878 and Lena Zenobia Morrison was born 21 Feb. 1881, in San Antonio, Bexar Co., TX.

The 1870 and 1880 Guadalupe Co., TX census found John W. and Mary Jane Morrison and family at Seguin, where John W. operated a mill and farmed with his father, John H. Morrison. His father-in-law, George Monroe Reese, Jr. and mother-in-law, Lucy H. Reese, had a farm next to them.

Late in 1880, or in Jan. 1881, the Morrison's mill blew up and John W. moved his family, his father and the George Reese family to San Antonio, Bexar Co., TX., where his youngest daughter, Lena Zenobia Morrison, was born 21 Feb. 1881. The family settled near San Antonio where John H. Morrison died on 20 Dec. 1884. John Wingfield Morrison died on 14 Oct. 1893.

Wellington Walter Morrison had no descendants, nor did his sister, Mary Lula. Martha DeMay "Mattie" Morrison married a Mr. Powell and had Reginald, Wilber Ray (Tom), Loyse and Lucille Powell. Stella Francis Morrison married Maurice Ervin Smalley and had Maurice, Muriel, Louise, Marshall and Esther. Lena Zenobia Morrison married Presley Randolph Byram, son of A.A. Henry and Jane Harriet Agnes House Byram, on 28 May 1900, at Davy, DeWitt Co., TX. They had one son who died as an infant and Muriel Morrison Byram, born 20 Oct. 1902, Davy, DeWitt Co., TX. Muriel Morrison Byram married August Blanton Hartmann 21 Nov. 1923 at Davy, DeWitt Co., TX.

Mary Jane Victoria Reese Cox Rhymes Morrison lived with Presley Randolph and Lena Zenobia Morrison Byram at Davy, DeWitt Co., TX until her death on 4 June 1917. Her grave remains unmarked (but covered with concrete) and is next to the graves of her daughter, Lena Z.M. Byram (died 23 Nov. 1943), and her son-in-law, Presley Randolph Byram (died 24 May 1947), in Salt Creek Cemetery, Davy, DeWitt Co., TX. The Byram graves have markers; however, their infant son's grave is not marked. All four graves are in a row and the entire surface of the four plots is covered with concrete.

MORROW, STERLING AND JEAN

F646

Morrows are descended from James Morrow (born 1812 North Carolina), settled in Missouri and came to Grayson County, Texas where he farmed in the 1860's. His son Thomas Jefferson (b. 1843 Douglas Co. Mo.), who served in the Civil War, came to DeWitt County in 1867 and settled in the Sandy Fork area. He married Margaret Jane Webb (b. 1844, Ill.) in Greenville, Texas. Their son, Marcus Morrow (b. 8-22-1869 DeWitt Co.) in 1890, married Mary Emma "Molly" Parker (b. 1869) daughter of Gerhardt H. Mueller was born 19 November, 1874 in Jarde, Oldenburg, Germany to Meine Mueller and Sophie Kathering Hoepken. Five children were born — M.G., Dick, Benhardt, Eilert and Gerhardt. Sophie died and Meine married Helen Wilhelmine Brand. Three children were born — John, Martha, and Marie. All the boys came to America, but Martha and Marie stayed in Oldenburg. Gerhardt came to America in 1890 and first engaged in farming near Shiner.

Louise, known as Lillie, was born 23 August, 1879 near Westhoff, a daughter of a prominent pioneer family of DeWitt County, Frederick Goehring and wife, nee Ernestine Hoffman. She was the seventh child, having six sisters and four brothers — Lena Mozal, Augusta Leubert, Marie Bolting, Berthold, Sophia Stolleis, Paul, Agnes Thieme, Otto, Alma Buesing, and Olga Meyer.

On 12 October, 1897, Gerhardt and Lillie married in Cuero and lived in the farming communities of Garfield, Westhoff, and Nordheim. In July, 1905, because of ill health, he sold the farm they were living on, to his brother, M.G. Mueller and bought the home of Paul Jacob in Nordheim. He took charge of a beer agency and moved to town. In 1909, Richard Schroller and he bought a soda water bottling company in Runge. Lillie and Gerhardt moved to a new home they had built in Nordheim where he died 29 December 1911. Lillie and her family moved to San Antonio in 1919, and she lived there for forty-four years. She died in Yorktown 5 September, 1963. Gerhardt and Lillie had three children.

Laura Jane was born 21 July, 1898 in Yorktown and married Emil Dietrich Janssen 20 November, 1919 in San Antonio. They had two children — Carroll James and Joanna Louise Janssen Moore. Their stories are given separately.

Alvin Gerhardt Mueller was born 16 May, 1900 in Westhoff and moved to Nordheim in 1902. As a young man he worked in the oil fields in Tampico, Mexico until they were nationalized by the Mexican government. He returned to San Antonio to work and married Martha Mary Habenicht 7 August, 1943 in Boerne. She was born 1 October, 1906 in Bandera. They moved to Bogota, Columbia, where Alvin again worked in the oil fields. He retired in 1953 returning to San Antonio where he operated a lock and key business from their home. Al and Martha enjoyed traveling and loved to visit their customers throughout the state. Alvin died 10 September 1966.

Edna Louise was born in Nordheim 5 March, 1906. She was married 8 August, 1923 to Louis Herman (Tige) Fechner in Corpus Christi. He was born in Yorktown 10 September, 1902 to Mr. & Mrs. Caesar W. Fechner. They had two daughters while living in Yorktown. Helen Louise, born 1 August, 1924 and Gloria Ann. born 1 December, 1925, died 4 May, 1963 in Bishop. The family moved to El Paso where Louis operated the Fechner Brake & Motor Garage. There he died 13 December, 1939. Edna moved her family back to San Antonio where they lived with her mother. She became a hairdresser. Edna later married Ross L. Davis on 15 November 1941, and they celebrated their Silver Wedding Anniversary in 1966. Ross was a mechanic and operated various service stations in that city. They loved to bowl and were active in many leagues until her death 26 April, 1967.

He immigrated to the U.S. in 1854. He had a son, Louis Trautwein and a daughter, Sophie Trautwein Walters, by a previous marriage. Wilhelmine and William had two children: Albert Trautwein (1877-1960) and Louise Trautwein Knocke (1878-1944).

Johann Friedrich Wilhelm Mueller (William) was born Oct. 5, 1847 and died July 11, 1927, Arneckeville. He married Fredericke M. Klopf on Feb. 21, 1882 at Arneckeville. Friedericke was born Aug. 20, 1859 and died April 4, 1942 at Arneckeville. William and Friedericke had 15 children: Fred (Fritz) Mueller, John F. Mueller, Leopold Mueller, Henry John Mueller, Willie Mueller, Julius F. Mueller, August Leonard Mueller, Katherine Marie Lena Mueller Hoffman, Louis Mueller, Josephine Mueller Sievers, Emil Robert Mueller, Clarence Mueller, Mary Mueller Schulze, Emelie Mueller Eichhorn, and Bertha Mueller Atzenhoefer. William Mueller hauled freight from Indianola to San Antonio, Tex. and was a farmer.

Wilhelmine Henriette Mueller was born Jan. 16, 1852 and died Sept. 7, 1905 at Arneckeville, Tex. She did not marry.

Johann Ludwig Mueller was born May 29, 1854. He settled in Wilson County, Tex., married, and had no children.

Carl Ludwig Berthold Mueller was born May 1, 1857 and died Sept. 28, 1920 at Runge, Tex. He married Caroline Klopf Oct. 14, 1883. Caroline was born Aug. 18, 1862 and died Oct. 9, 1949 at Runge, Tex. Carl and Caroline had 9 children: Marie Cornelia Mueller, Alice Mueller Gerdes, Charles Mueller, Ludwig Mueller (Lewis E.), Bert Mueller, Albert Bonham Mueller, Alfred Mueller, Theodore Mueller, and Frances Mueller Kokes. Carl owned and operated a grist mill, a planning mill, and waterwork plant at Runge, Tex., and was a farmer.

Johanna Hulda Mueller was born Aug. 16, 1859 and died Jan. 7, 1925 at Meyersville. She married John Henry Post. John Henry was born Feb. 21, 1854 and died Dec. 16, 1932, DeWitt Co. They are buried on the Meyersville Lutheran Cemetery, Meyersville, Tex. They were farmers. Hulda and John had 8 children: Bertha Post Adickes, Elizabeth Post Diebel, Henry W. Post, Ben Post, Alfred Post, Otto Post, Ferdinand Post, and Herbert Post.

Ferdinand J. Mueller (John Fred) was born Mar. 28, 1862 and died Sept. 12, 1942, Cuero. He married Caroline Raak Jan. 7, 1889, DeWitt Co. Caroline was born Dec. 2, 1866, DeWitt Co. and died Oct. 14, 1962, DeWitt Co. They were farmers. John and Caroline were buried on the Hillside Cemetery, Cuero. They had one child: Josephine Mueller.

Johann Friedrich Mueller (Fred) was born April 24, 1869 and died Jan. 8, 1935, Nursery, Tex. He married Elizabeth Raak Dec. 18, 1888, DeWitt Co., Tex. She was born May 11, 1869 and died March 1, 1946, Nursery, Tex. They are buried on the Mission Valley Cemetery, Tex. Friedrich received his citizenship papers Sept. 5, 1892. He was a farmer-rancher. MUELLER, WALTER ANTON

(1893-1977)

Walter Anton Mueller was born on October 11, 1893, the sixth child in the family of nine children born to German immigrants Heinrich "Henry" August Mueller and Catherine Struabe Mueller, in Little Chicago, near the Gruenau community in northwest DeWitt County, Texas. His father was a farmer and all the children were expected to help in the fields when possible. They farmed with mules, making exact straight rows. Cotton and corn were the main crops. When not working on the farm, Walter went to school in a one-room school-house about one-quarter of a mile from the

Lizzie and Walter A. Mueller, wedding picture

Mueller home. He completed the fourth grade with Mr. Langley as his school teacher.

When Walter was eleven years old, his father died. Five years later, his mother died. The older children took care of the younger children with the help of their neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Stanchos.

During World War I, Walter served in the US Cavalry, however, his regiment never left San Antonio Texas due to a quarantine. He returned home after the war and married Elizabeth "Lizzie" Ann Seidel on December 3, 1919. She was the daughter of Paul Seidel, Sr. and Meta Bargman Seidel.

Selling his inherited land in Little Chicago to his brother, Walter and Lizzie then purchased 180 acres for $125.00/acre near Nopal, Texas in 1920. Helping in the financing of the land was Paula Roewe. They began building their home in 1920, the home they lived in all their lives. The builders were the Roewe Brothers, Robert and Bill. They sawed all the wood by hand and numbered the boards before starting to build the 1800-plus sq. ft. structure.

He farmed and ranched here raising cattle, sheep, hogs, chickens and turkeys. The Depression hit hard causing the Muellers to lose all of their money in the bank. However, they later acquired more acreage in the area.

The first automobile the Mueller's owned was a Ford Model T, taking excellent care of it and only driving it to church on Sundays. During the week, it was jacked up to save the tires

On February 13, 1921, their first child, Elden Walter Mueller, was born. During World War II, Elden served as a flight officer with the US Air Force. On February 22, 1945 he was killed in a glider accident in Torres, France.

On September 15, 1932, their second child, Arlen Paul Mueller, was born. Arlen married Barbara Egg on June 9, 1956 and on May 11, 1958 Walter and Lizzie became grandparents at the ages of 54 and 53 years. Four more grandchildren followed. Walter delighted in taking care of his grandchildren and was a proud Grandpa. He taught them how to hunt, fish, drive a truck and to love the country.

Walter was also a lifelong member of the Gruenau Schuetzen Verein and a member of the St. John Lutheran Church in Westhoff. As a young child, Walter was taught the German card game of Skat. This game was played only by the men at family gatherings such as birthdays, holidays and other special occasions. This game was also passed down to his three grandsons.

Walter Mueller passed away on July 27, 1977 and his wife, Lizzie, died on June 26, 1980. They are buried in Westside Cemetery in Yorktown, Texas. Their home place, and other pastures they owned, are now owned by their son Arlen and wife Barbara Mueller of Meyersville.

MUGGE, EDWARD "EDU" AND MABEL

F652

Mabel (Hall) Breeden Mugge, Turkey Trot Sultana 1922.

Edu and Mabel Mugge were a very devoted couple and they enjoyed doing many things together.

Mr. Mugge was born in Cuero December 8, 1903, the second child of Henry August Mugge (1871-1918) and Mary "Mayne" (Wooford) Mugge (1877-1958). Both were from early pioneer families of Indianola and DeWitt County. Edu Mugge married Mrs. Charles Goodwin Breeden, the former Mabel Claire Hall, June 6, 1929 at St. Mark's Episcopal Church in San Antonio. The Right Reverend Everett Holland Jones officiated at the marriage ceremony. Bishop Jones was the rector of Grace Episcopal Church in Cuero at the time.

Mr. Mugge was educated in the Cuero Public Schools and at the University of Texas in Austin. He was affiliated with the Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity. Mr. Mugge was associated with Mobil Oil Company for forty-one years which he operated along with Mobil Motors, an Oldsmobile company. Edu died June 22, 1972 in Cuero. He had been very active in Grace Episcopal Church serving as lay-leader and on the vestry.

Mrs. Mugge, Mabel Claire Hall, was born in Cuero August 6, 1895, from an early Texas family. Her father was Harmon Hall (b. 1867 d. 6-21-1901), son of Charles Hall (b. 1804 d. 1868) and a very English mother, Rose Adelaide (King) Hall (b. 7-8-1873 d. 2-6-1899). Mrs. Mugge's parents both died in Sulphur, Louisiana when she and her sister Lola were very young. They were reared by their maternal grandparents, the Rev. & Mrs. George K. King in Cuero. Mabel often quoted the antedotes of her grandparents such as "haste makes waste" or "too many cooks spoil the broth". Her love of cats reached back to her childhood. She let her cat in the second story window when he climbed the big oak tree and meowed. Her grandfather could not understand why Mabel's cat was in the house every morning.

Mabel went to school at John C. French before going to San Antonio Female Institute and on to Cornell Institute in San Marcos. She married Charles G. Breeden December 15, 1915 in San Antonio. The couple trained to New Orleans where they sailed on the S.S. Excelsior to Havanna, Cuba for their wedding trip. In 1922, Mabel was the fourth Sultana to the Cuero Turkey Trot. The Sultan was Friench Tarkington. Mabel Mugge died June 4, 1974. She too was a member of Grace Episcopal Church. Mrs. Mugge's daughters were Mabel Clair Breeden (b. 11-22-1916 d. 2-1981) wife of John Junior Bell (b. 5-15-1910 d. 1-24-1963) and Rosemary Kibbe Breeden (b. 8-1-1919 d.) wife of Frederick David Kokernot (b. 8-25-1916 d.). The grandchildren were claimed by both Edu and Mabel. They are Martha Gay Kokernot (b. 11-2-1941) wife of Shannon Ratliff I (b. 9-15-39) and Mabel Joy Kokernot (b. 3-1-1943).

Mabel Mugge was born with a great zest for life. Both Mabel and Edu enjoyed their family and friends. Many will remember their warm hospitality.

MUGGE, EDWARD FAMILY

F653

Edward Mugge

Edward Mugge was one of the three men prominently associated with the business house of H.R. Runge and Company along with Emil Reiffert and William Frobese. He was born November 7, 1839 in Germany and was a member of one of the early pioneer families in Texas. He came to Texas to join his brother Julius who had become a Texan several years before and who after spending some years in DeWitt County, finally moved to San Antonio. Later Edward was joined by a younger brother, Carl Mugge, who became a DeWitt County farmer and died unmarried. In 1874 Edward moved to Cuero from Indianola and extended the Runge Company's business in merchandising and stock ranching. He died May 16, 1897, at the age of 57 years.

He was married to Pauline Blumenthal in New York June 17, 1867. She was born in Schnackenburg, Kingdom of Hanover, Germany, November 14, 1840 and died in Cuero, September 2, 1920. Their children were: 1. Edward, Jr. who died in 1908. He was married to Mildred Hutchenson of Houston and had a daughter, Pauline, who lived in New York City. 2. Lillie who was born July 4, 1870 and died May 17, 1900. She married Oscar Reuss who was born March 7, 1861 and died March 24, 1908. Their children were Theodore, Joe, Pauline, John (Hans), and Bertha. 3. Henry A. Mugge was born Oct. 8, 1871 in Indianola and died in 1918. He was at one time Mayor of Cuero. He married Mayme Wofford April 17, 1900 and their five children were Margaret, Edward, Katherine, Henry and John Wofford Mugge. 4. Anna who was born August 9, 1875 and died Dec. 24, 1933. She married Walter Reiffert, Sr. Feb. 20, 1901 and they had four children: Walter, Jr., James, Ralph and Mildred Alma. 5. Oscar J. Mugge who was born Oct. 1, 1876 and died Oct. 12, 1918. He was a doctor. 6. Fred Theodore Mugge who was born Aug. 1, 1880 and died May 4, 1960. He married Hilda Reiffert who was born Aug. 17, 1885 in Indianola and died June 1, 1980 in Cuero. Their son was Fred Mugge, born May 16, 1916 and died Nov. 30, 1983. He was unmarried.

To the grandchildren, Edward and Pauline were known as "Opa" and "Oma".

The Edward Mugge house was built in the 1870's. The home was originally built with seven rooms. Three of these rooms were milled in Saint Louis and assembled here in Cuero. Over the years, Mr. Mugge made additions as surprise gifts to his wife, Pauline. The house grew to fifteen rooms, five halls and three porches. On the grounds were a summerhouse, greenhouse, wash house, smokehouse and a huge underground cistern (still existent). Also, on the grounds were a carriage house and stables which later became a garage for some of the first automobiles in Cuero. It still has a three foot iron fence on two sides of the property. The Mugge house can be seen on the 200 block of South Terrell Street and illustrates the history of its builder and its period.

MURPHREE, DAVID AND MARGARETTA (PATTON)

F65

Judge David Murphree, son of Stephen and Rebecca Brooks Murphree, was born in Tennessee in 1811. He moved to Texas in 1834 and was a volunteer under Ben Milam at Bexar in 1835. The Alamo fell while Murphree carried out orders to scout Fannin's whereabouts. At the Battle of San Jacinto Lt. Murphree earned recognition and a 640 acre land certificate.

In 1837 he served as clerk to Gail Borden, collector of customs at Galveston. In 1838 he was president of the Board of Land Commissioners for Bexar County. In 1839 David Murphree's parents traveled by flat boat to New Orleans and by Gulf Steamer to Linnville. They made their home in Victoria for a number of years.

From 1840, for several years, Judge Murphree was chief justice of Victoria County. While serving as justice, he assisted in the pursuit of the Commanche Band which burned Linnville. Later he served in the Vasquez Campaign of 1842 (as a Major) and in the Somerville Expedition. His last military experience was on the Indianola Coast during the War Between the States.

David married Margaretta Patton, who was born in Kentucky in 1824. Her parents moved to Texas before the Revolution and settled at Columbia.

"Point Evergreen," Judge Murphree's home on Price's Creek was completed in 1848. There with the help of his negro slaves he raised fine, thoroughbred horses, mules, and some cattle.

Three sons were born to the judge and his wife. Alex, born in 1845, was killed while on guard duty at the Battle of Pleasant Hill in 1864; James Owen (1847-1923); and John Charles (1858-1944).

In 1866 Judge Murphree sent 250 horses and mules to Missouri under the supervision of Captain Harvey Cunningham. The judge traveled by boat. He was killed on the outskirts of Osceola, Missouri, simply because he was a Texan and happened to arrive during a post war sectional quarrel. His body was buried in Missouri.

James Owen Murphree, stockman and farmer (1847-1923), married Lulu Smith (1853-1938), daughter of David's sister, Virginia F. Murphree Smith. Seven children grew up in the home that Jim built in 1881 on his share of the Judge Murphree Estate; five died in infancy. The children who survived were:

(1) David Murphree and his wife, the former Ella Coleman (1878-1943), had one son, David Douglas. David died in 1901. Douglas and his wife, Leona Nagel, had a son, D.D. Murphree, Jr., who married Rosemary and they had a daughter; and twin daughters, Mary (Mrs. Charles) Taylor (had four children) and Martha (Mrs. Ed Fitch) (had three children).

(2) Tom Murphree (1880-1959) first married Abbie Edgar. She died in 1905. He and his second wife, Ollie Neal, had a son and a daughter, Joseph Owen and Eunice. Joseph Owen and his wife, Sally, had one daughter, Bonnie. Eunice and her husband, Ralph Reiffert, had one daughter, Sandra Smythe, whose three daughters are Tracy, Cendi (Mrs. Buddy Wilson), and Samantha Smythe. Tom later married Annie Alexander Dunn.

(3) Nell "Nellie" Murphree (1882-1982)

(4) John Owen Murphree (1885-1986) and his wife, Jessie Tarter (1888-1972) had two sons, Hugh Owen and John Charles, and a daughter, Nell. Hugh and his wife, Erma, had three sons - Charles, Mace, and Barney. John and his wife, Bess Davenport, had two sons, John and Gary, and a daughter, Pat. The children of John and wife, Judy Blackaller, and a son, Brice, and a daughter, Cassie. Gary's children are a son, Lee, whose son is Colton, and a daughter, Terry. Pat and her husband, Lance Benbow, had two daughters, Kelly and McKey. Nell and her husband, Howard Holzheizer, had a daughter, Marjorie Lynne (Mrs. Willie Macon) with one son, Tommy Vincent Macon (1973-1981).

(5) Ben Murphree (1889-1960) married Mildred Burditt and they had one daughter, Louise.

(6) Robert Lee "Bob" Murphree (1891-1975).

(7) Ann Murphree (1896-1971).

John Charles Murphree (1858-1944), a farmer, sold his land to Mrs. Dorah Clegg after 1879. In 1885 he journeyed up the trail under A. Field as trail boss. Field was supervising the driving of 3400 beeves to the Wichita River. He and Ella Coleman Murphree (1878-1943), widow of his nephew, David, were married in 1905. They lived in Thomaston where their three children, Charles Patton (1907-1968), James Alex (1913-1984) and Margaraetta Coleman Murphree (1915-1983) were born. Charles Patton and his wife, the former Elizabeth Calliham, had one son, William Frederick "Bill". Bill and his wife, the former Sherry Jurline "Jerrie" Mathis had one daughter, Sherry Elizabeth (Mrs. Steven Wayne Johnson). James Alex "Jim" and his wife, Catherine, had no children. Margaretta "Gretta" and her husband, Jerome M. Stokes, had two sons, James Milton (wife, Sally), had four children, and William "Bill" (wife, Linda), had two children.

MUTI, JOHN

John Muti was born on the Isle of Elba, Italy on July 17, 1835 and died September 25, 1910. He is buried at Hillside Cemetery in Cuero, Texas. As a boy he worked on a boat and came to the United States. He landed in New Orleans, Louisiana. He married Arcelie D. Marie who was born on March 19, 1844 at Thibodaux, Louisiana. They married at Indianola, Texas on February 7, 1867. She died September 30, 1933.

Family stories tell of this couple starting in business with boarding houses, the first one on a dirt floor. When John was able financially, he brought his sister Maxia Muti Paoli and a brother, Ratli and others of his kin to America. Maxia is buried on the Muti lot at Hillside Cemetery. John and Arcelie, who was called "Lee", had no children. Being second oldest in the family of twelve, Lee Muti was generous and helped her family and her church when ever possible. She and John were devout Catholics and were instrumental in starting the Catholic Church in Cuero. John's fondest wish was to own a grand hotel, which he did.

The Muti Hotel in Cuero, was a very popular place and credit to our town. It was built in 1897 by McKnight Brothers of Hallettsville. The architects for the hotel were McAdoo and Wolley of San Antonio, Texas. The building was three stories with a basement. The dining hall said to be one of the prettiest in Texas was described by one writer as "a palatial feast hall". The lobby featured an octagon shaped rotunda with a beautifully tiled floor and stained woods of cherry and mahogany. More than half the forty guest rooms were provided with private baths and the entire building had steam heat. John Muti was praised for his enterprise and the Muti Hotel acquired the reputation of one of the finest hotels in South Texas. When John Muti died, the hotel was sold but continued to carry his name for many vears.

NAGEL, EDWIN HENRY AND EDNA CAROLINE KRUEGER FAMILY

Edwin Henry Nagel was born January 26, 1906 in Waco, Texas. He is the son of Henry W. Nagel and the grandson of J.R. Nagel - the founder and proprietor of the first business established in the city of Cuero, - Nagel Hardware. (The J.R. Nagel story is given elsewhere.) He married Edna Caroline Krueger on Edwin H. and Edna C. (Krueger) Nagel, 1936.

December 10, 1936. She is the daughter of Christian Krueger and Emilie Schorlemer and the granddaughter of Frederich Krueger and Caroline Sager. Caroline's father, Reverend Christoph Adam Sager, established the Lutheran congregation in Arneckeville, Texas.

Edwin and Edna reside on the original Frederich Krueger property in DeWitt County which was purchased in 1875. Frederich and Caroline bought the original Arneckeville log church (built in 1868 by Caroline's preacher father) for $100, moved it to the original tract of land and converted it into a home. It was later used as a barn and corn crib by Christian Krueger.

Edwin established the Nagel Dairy and had a retail milk route in Cuero in the early 1920's. Milk sold then for 52 cents a gallon. He also helped in the beginning operations of the Cresent Valley Creamery which was established in Cuero in 1927. Edwin moved his dairy operation to its present location on the original property in 1949. As a young man, Edwin was called on by Cuero businessmen to custom mow their land with his mower and fine team of horses. Later, he helped to keep the four highways leading out of Cuero mowed with his team and equipment.

Edwin and Edna have three children -Edna Kathleen Nagel Benfield (deceased). Charles Edwin Nagel, and Sandra Jean Nagel Machen. They also have nine grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

In 1977, ownership of the original founder's land and operation of the Nagel Dairy passed on to the present owner, Edwin's son, Charles Edwin Nagel.

Charles Edwin Nagel and Jean Marie Fuchs were married on July 26, 1959. They have three children - Jeffery Keith Nagel, Gregory Charles Nagel, and Ann Marie Nagel Pratt. They also have three grandchildren — William Bell Nagel and Molly Beth and Jenny Ann Nagel, twins.

All male family members have been active in agricultural related businesses and associations. In addition, Edwin served on the Arneckeville School Board for many years. Also, Edwin was one of the earliest 4-H members involved in 4-H Club work. All of the Nagel family members have been active in 4-H Club

NAGEL, HARLAN

F661

Harlan and Edith Nagel

Harlan Nagel was born November 29, 1929 at Arneckeville in DeWitt County, Texas. His parents were Henry A. Nagel and Olga Sager Nagel, whose story is found elsewhere.

He was baptized in Zion Lutheran Church of Arneckeville on January 19, 1930. His sponsors were Albert Sauermilch and Alma Sager. He attended Sunday church school also at Zion Lutheran Church. He was instructed and confirmed in the Lutheran faith by Pastor E.

Meier on Pslam Sunday, April 2, 1944. His classmates were Virginia Hartman Stoldt and Nell Rose Afflerbach Knebel.

He attended public school in both Arneckeville and Meyersville. He rode horseback to school for a time and also rode with the teachers who happened to be close neighbors. His first grade teacher was Ruth Sager. Incidentally she was also the first grade teacher to his youngest son many years later. After completing classes in Meyersville, he was needed at home to help with the farming so he had no further schooling. This was during the war and his three older brothers were all inducted into the service.

In December of 1949, he married Edieth Zengerle at Zion Lutheran Church at Arneckeville. She is the daughter of the late Herbert Zengerle and Esther Roessler Zengerle. She was baptized in the Yorktown Lutheran Church but later attended Sunday Church School at Arneckeville. Her birth date is December 19, 1928 and her birthplace is Arneckeville, DeWitt County. She attended public school at Arneckeville and later graduated from Cuero High School in 1946. Edieth attended confirmation instruction under Rev. E. Meier and was confirmed on Psalm Sunday, April 18, 1943. Her classmates were: Marjorie Schorlemmer (Wasserman), Dorothy Faye Bade (Diebel), Alton Goebel, Dalton Friedrichs, and Roland Henneke.

When Harlan and Edieth were married they had as attendants Eunice Nagel (Friedrichs), Marjorie Zengerle (Shellenbarger), Dalton Friedrichs and Weldon Goebel. For a honeymoon trip they went to Galveston and Houston spending a night with Harlan's older brother, Leon and family in Houston. Upon returning, they lived with Harlan's parents and continued to until they (his parents) died. Four children blessed their marriage; Mary Louise was born on September 12, 1951. She was valedictorian of her graduating classes both at Meyersville and Cuero High School. She attended Texas Lutheran College in Seguin and Oklahoma State University in Stillwater, Okla. She met and married Steven Leida of Tulsa, Okla. in Stillwater, Okla. They moved to St. Paul, Minnesota where their son, Hans, was born. At present they live in Sioux City, Iowa where she teaches biology courses at Morningside College.

Robert Harlan was born February 21, 1953. He attended public school in Meyersville, Cuero High School and Texas A. & M. University at Bryan, Texas. He earned a degree in Ag. Education. He returned home to work in cooperation with his father, farming and ranching. He specializes in hogs. He met his wife at Texas A. & M. University. She is Julie Ann Bullard and they have a son, Nathan Jeremy. Ann teaches first grade at Meyersville School.

Judith Aileen was born on February 14, 1954. She also attended public school at Meyersville, Cuero High School and Texas Lutheran College. She worked as a secretary while attending Texas Lutheran College which led to her occupation as budget director for Houston Achievement Place in Houston, Texas. She met her future husband, Bob Hohne of Baltimore, Md. while attending the wedding of a close friend.

Patrick James was born March 6, 1961. He attended Meyersville public school, Cuero High School and then chose to attend Victoria Junior College to pursue a career in welding. He worked a number of years for Safety Railway of Victoria before leaving to return to work in partnership with his father and older brother on the family farm.

Harlan and Edieth are engaged in farming and ranching. They raise registered Beefmaster cattle as well as commercial cattle. They live in the Henry Nagel home. They both have served as officers in the Lutheran Congregation of Arneckeville. Harlan was for years on the board of directors for DeWitt County Producers Association and Edieth worked as an assistant bookkeeper for the firm for about ten years. Harlan was sec. on the school board at Meyersville for many years. He resigned to make way for the hiring of his daughter-in-law.

NAGEL, HENRY A.

The Henry A. Nagel Family, 1937. L-R: Elenora, Edwin, Henry, Leon, Olga, and Hilbert; Harlan in foreground.

Henry Albert Nagel was born December 2, 1892 in DeWitt County near Arneckeville, Texas. His parents were Albert Henry Nagel and Henrietta Wolf. He was the first of three sons to survive, the first two dying within a week of birth. After his mother died, when Henry was very young and his father remarried, he lived for a time in Jackson County, near the community of Cordele. He recalled to his children and grandchildren many times of his years on the flat prairie land and the work that he did for his father at a very young age. He delivered, on horseback, meat that his father had processed and he hauled lumber with freight wagons pulled with a number of yoke of oxen. He returned to DeWitt County when he was about 17 or 18 years of age to attend confirmation instruction at the Lutheran Church where he had been baptized on December 9, 1892. His sponsors were Christian Wolf, Dora Sager and Katherine Nagel. Dora Sager was an aunt and Otto Wolf was an uncle, so when he returned to DeWitt County, he lived and worked for the two families and continued to do so until he was married. He was confirmed in the Lutheran faith on Psalm Sunday of 1911. Church records show that his classmates were: Emelie Arnecke, Agnes Sager, Amalia Henneke, Elena Haun, Lucile Boehl, Katie Boehl, Willie Thieme, and Friedrich Haun. On October, 1914 he married Olga Sager, a daughter of Heinrich Sager and Alma Stahl. The officiating minister was Pastor J.M. Bergner, the pastor at Zion Lutheran Church at Arneckeville at that time. Felix Wolf and Agnes Sager were witnesses at the wedding. Henry and Olga set up housekeeping on the "Wolf" place. They also lived on the Henry Koehler place and still later built their own home on their land. Times were hard and money was scarce. Olga suffered a serious bout with malaria. She told of the winter when their youngest son was born. It turned very cold. As the house was not insulated and their only heat was a wood burning stove, they took the young baby to bed with them to keep him warm. During the night they changed his diaper and by morning it was frozen at the foot of the bed. Henry once mentioned that he spent his last ten dollars for the doctor when another son had a bad earache, but he was not complaining. He said "The Lord took care of us and provided for all our needs." Children born of their marriage were: Elenora Alma, born Dec. 25, 1915; Edwin Henry, born Jan. 21, 1917; Hilbert Albert, born July 22, 1918; Leon Gus, born Aug. 10, 1921; and Albert Harlan, born Nov. 29, 1929. Elenora lived until March 25, 1939 when she died of pneumonia. The loss of their only daughter was a heavy blow to the family. Edwin was married in 1940 to Pearl White Schaefer and they had a son, Donald and a daughter, Carol Ann. Edwin passed away in 1975 of cancer. Hilbert was married in 1940 to Bernice Jaschke and they had one daughter, Beatrice, and two sons, Kenneth and Hilbert, Jr. Hilbert died of cancer Feb. of 1968. Leon married Ruth Wendel in 1941 and they had three sons, Glen, Rodney, and Dennis. Leon lives in Meyersville. Harlan was married in 1949 to Edieth Zengerle and they had two sons, Robert and Patrick and two daughters, Mary Louise and Judith. They live in the Arneckeville area. Henry and Olga celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in 1964 with a dinner and reception held at the Arneckeville Community Center where their attendants, Felix Wolf and Agnes Sager Sauermilch, both were present. Also attending, along with many friends and relatives, were their four sons and families, eight grandsons and four granddaughters. Olga sewed her own dress for the momentous occasion. Henry served as treasurer of Zion Lutheran Church of Arneckeville for 20 years, from 1937 to 1957. He kept very accurate records, accounting for every penny taken in or spent. He kept copies of these records as long as he lived. He was the treasurer when the present church and parsonage were built. He gave many hours of unpaid voluntary time to the construction of these buildings. He was always ready to work when anything was needed at the church and he was ever-ready to share of his food with the pastor's family and others. His occupation was farming but he was also a fine carpenter. He worked his fields with mules and a walking plow in early years and told of how the mules ran away from him several times when he would be leaving the fields to come home. They would get tangled up and ruin his implements and he would have to spend many days repairing them. He raised cattle, hogs, turkeys, chickens and milk cows. He butchered and sold meat throughout the community. He took great pride in doing whatever he did to the best of his ability. He said "Anything worth doing, is worth doing right." He died of a heart attack very suddenly while leaving the Sager homestead on April 25, 1974, at the age of 82. He was buried in the Arneckeville Cemetery. After his death, Olga, who had grown quite confused as she had suffered from hardening of the arteries for many years, lived in a Cuero nursing home until her death on Dec. 24, 1977. She was laid to rest by the side of her beloved Henry and their only daughter, Elenora.

NAGEL, HENRY W.

Henry W. Nagel was born in a log cabin near Clinton in 1871 and came to Cuero with his parents at the age of two. His parents were J.R. and Auguste E. Nagel. He entered the public schools of Cuero and attended them until he was sixteen when he started to work as delivery boy for C.F. Gerhardt, grocery dealer. He worked in this capacity for eight months and then went to work for his father in the hardware business.

In August, 1888, his father opened a branch store at Yoakum and Henry went there to assist Albert Schrade in the management of that store. It was while in Yoakum that Henry married Miss Annie Thomas of that city; that happy event occurring in 1895.

In 1896 the Yoakum branch was sold and Henry went to Waco to accept a position in the firm of Eikel, Breustedt Co., wholesale and retail hardware dealers, with whom he remained for seven years, resigning to accept a much better position with the McLendon Hardware Co. of the same city. He remained with that company until the incorporation of the Nagel Hardware Co. here, when he came here to accept the presidency of that firm and to assume the management of the Hardware Department.

Henry and Annie are the parents of six children, two boys and four girls. The children were: Albert, Edwin, Annie, Lillian, Melba and Lu Elsie.

brother, Gottleib. They landed in Indianola, a leading port town about seventy miles southeast of Cuero. Together they walked to Clinton and started a gunsmith business. Later J.R. Nagel became a teamster, carrying merchandise from Indianola, Eagle Pass and Matamoras. At the outbreak of the Civil War J.R. drove a team for the Confederate government. He also delivered mail.

On September 6, 1861 J.R. Nagel married

Auguste Kirchner in Yorktown, Texas. That night they rode to Cuero on one horse. Both came from Germany. Reinhard was born on March 25, 1829 in Rawicz, Providence Posen, Prussia (Germany). He came to the United States as a carpenter or furniture apprentice. He was of short stature, only five feet, his hair and eyes were brown, his eyelashes were blonde. J.R. was lovingly called "Opa" by his family. Auguste was born December 11, 1833 in Esslingen, Germany. She was called "Oma." The boys would teasingly call "Oh, Maw"; she disliked being called Maw, so the nickname "Oma" was derived. Sometimes "Oma" would hitch up the team for "Opa" and would sing happily while doing so. She had a beautiful voice and a loud voice which carried far. J.R. Nagel died September 13, 1897. Auguste Nagel died June 22, 1907. Both are buried in Hillside Cemetery. Reinhard bought 98 acres on Chisholm Creek about two miles from Clinton. He farmed here for a few years. It was here that two girls and five sons were born. The youngest son was born in the living quarters above the hardware store in Cuero.

In 1871 in Clinton J.R. Nagel started a tin shop in a corn crib owned by Wm. Hausman. The next year he prepared to build a business house but learned the railroad was coming to Cuero, so he moved. In January 1873 he bought a 29 feet x 70 feet lot and built a two-story house on Main Street, Cuero. The family lived upstairs and he operated J.R. Nagel Hardware downstairs. This has the distinction of being the oldest business house in Cuero. A kitchen and dining room for the family were built in the rear. One of the interesting incidents in the Nagel family is that during the Sutton-Taylor feud days of Cuero, a bullet was fired on the street in front of the store and passed through the dining room in the rear and shattered the knob on the kitchen door. Also, during the feud one day a man rode through the store on his horse.

In 1879 J.R. Nagel bought a little over one acre on J.A.V.Y. Gonzales original survey from Hugo and Fredrike Buschick for three hundred dollars. It was known as the old Brewery place, on the NE corner of the old Schleicher Mill. Lumber was hauled from Indianola and stacked for two years to age. By November 1882 the residence, a stable, outhouses, fences and a warehouse for the Nagel Hardware were built. The warehouse was moved and still stands and is used by a great granddaughter, Hermine Hartman Henry.

Family members lived in the house until April 1981 when it was donated to the DeWitt County Historical Museum. They partially restored it for a Museum House. Much of the original furniture and the straw matting covering on the parlor floor remained. Newspaper lay beneath the matting to cushion and protect against winter breezes. The house was closed and sold in December 1983. Most of the remaining furniture is displayed in The Nagel Room of the DeWitt County Museum. Kitchen and dining room furnishings have been added to the museum kitchen.

Eight children were born to Reinhard and Auguste Nagel:

Bertha (1862-1947) married Albert Schrade (1859-1889); one daughter Althea (1889-1980) married Alfred Marquis (1893-1976), two children: Paul and Bertha Antoinette (Toni).

Augusta (1864-1940) married Alphons Probst (1862-1899), two children: Adeline (1896-1986) and Oscar George (1898-1979).

Herman Julius (1865-1947) married Louise Loebel (1866-1918), three children: Anna Augusta (1889-1986) married Alfred Friar (1891-1973), Eleanore (1890-1979) married Ernest F. Hartman (1889-1975), Jacob Reinhold (1895-1979) unmarried.

Adolph died an infant, buried in Clinton Cemetery.

Reinhold (1869-1937) married Bettie — (1874-1916), three children: Ernst (1898-1953), Carl (1906-1965) both unmarried, Floyd Walter died an infant.

NAGEL, LEON G. AND RUTH WENDEL

F665

Ruth (Wendel) and Leon Gus Nagel

Leon and Ruth Wendel Nagel live in Meyersville, DeWitt County, Texas. Leon was born 10 August 1921 to Henry A. and Olga Sager Nagel in the Green DeWitt Community. He had one sister and three brothers: Elenora, Edwin, Hilbert and Harlan. They moved to Arneckeville when Leon was 4 years old. Leon attended school in Arneckeville, Meyersville and graduated from Yorktown High School in 1939. He then attended Draughon's Business College in Houston and was employed by Chas. Martin & Co., Petroleum Inspectors.

Leon married Ruth Wendel on 21 December 1941 in Meyersville. He was drafted into the Army on 9 July 1942 and served with the 163rd Signal Photo Company. He went overseas in January 1943 and served in Africa, Italy, France and Germany, returning to the United States in October 1945. He and Ruth then lived in Houston for about four and one-half years, where Leon worked for his former employer.

In 1950 Ruth's father became ill and he asked Leon and Ruth to come to Meyersville to work on the farm. They moved and worked here for about three years. Leon then worked for the Agricultural Stabilization & Conservation Service, USDA, in Cuero for 27 years, retiring on 12 June 1981. Leon and Ruth have three sons: Glen, Rodney and Dennis.

Ruth Wendel was born 26 October 1920 in Meyersville to Paul and Elfie Wendel. She has three brothers: Allen, Alonzo and Cleo. One sister, Ruby Lee, died in infancy. She attended Meyersville School and helped her parents with household duties and was active in church work. After Ruth and Leon were married her primary job was being a housewife and mother. After their children were grown, Ruth worked in the Meyersville School Cafeteria, retiring in 1978.

Leon and Ruth are active members of St. John Lutheran School of Meyersville, both having taught Sunday School. Leon has served on the Church Council as financial secretary, treasurer, president, elder and is now assistant cemetery custodian. Ruth has served as Chairman of Stewardship and Education in the ALCW, taught Bible School and is now librarian for the church library, treasurer of the Ladies Aid and serves on the Altar Guild. She also sews quilt tops and helps quilt them for Lutheran World Relief. The ladies of the church send an average of 100 quilts a year for this cause.

Leon and Ruth are enjoying their retirement. They have gone on many of the Happy Excursion Tours, traveling to all parts of the United States and into Canada. Leon enjoys working in his garden and with his cattle. Ruth enjoys crocheting, playing bridge and dominoes. Both enjoy visiting with their children and grandchildren.

Glen, the oldest son, was born 1 October 1942 in the Cuero Hospital. He graduated from Cuero High School and attended Texas Lutheran College in Seguin, Texas, for 2 years. He married Glenda Hanks on 22 May 1970 in the First Assembly of God Church in Victoria, Texas. They live in Victoria where both of their children were born. Angela was born 22 September 1971, and Michael was born 5 June 1973. Both children attend Victoria High School. Glen works at DuPont and Glenda works with BeautiControl. The entire family is active in their church.

The second son, Rodney, was born 4 February 1947 in a Houston hospital. He graduated from Cuero High School and then enlisted in the U.S. Navy. Her served as a Seabee for a year in Vietnam, then on Midway Island, and at Port Hueneme, California where he met and married Norma Blevins. They moved to Meyersville after the completion of his service duty and then moved to Victoria. They have 3 children, all born in Victoria, Texas. Kelly was born on 17 November 1970, Shelley was born on 21 January 1972 and Jeffrey was born on 3 August 1973. The children all attend Victoria schools. Rodney is employed by Alcoa in Point Comfort, Texas and Norma is employed by Victoria Bank and Trust. They are members of the Catholic Church.

Dennis, the youngest son of Leon and Ruth, was born on 23 June 1951, in the Cuero Hospital. He graduated from Cuero High School and then attended Victoria College for a year. He joined the Texas National Guard and served in Texas and Louisiana. On 16 June 1973 he married Vickie Clark in Cuero. He was employed by the Southern Pacific Railroad and is now with Elder Oil Tools, Yorktown, Texas.

"I stopped in Boerne about 18 months; lived in a rented house for the first time in life, then left there and stopped in Kimble County on the Llano River, 5 miles below Junction, where I think I shall stay the remainder of my time. I think I have a fine place here. Our oats this year was very good. At one time I thought we would make from one to 1-½ bales. Corn is good, 53 bushels to the acre and its large heavy corn. The Pecan crop turned out eight thousand pounds, so I am well pleased with my place." [Quotes from a letter by A.J. Neal, 25 Nov. 1913.]

Andrew Jackson and Mary Talitha Neal were parents of ten children. Their first born, triplets, died at birth. The other children were: Richard Alexander "Tuck" Neal, Musetta Ann (Neal) Swartz, Ben Frazier Neal, Lillie Pearl "Lil" (Neal) Squyres, Harrison August "Harry" Neal, James Conley "Con" Neal, and Andrew Jackson "Dock" Neal, Jr.

In 1908, when the family moved to Kimble County, Edgar Neal Swartz, their grandson, was neighborhood "Mill" boy. He usually drove to a mill on the Lavaca River. "My outfit was a yoke of oxen and cart that would carry 16 or 20 bushels of corn at a time." After the war, he was engaged in stockfarming and also on trail drives to Kansas. "The first herd that I went with was bought for eight dollars in DeWitt and Victoria Counties and sold in Dickinson County, Kansas, for thirty-two dollars per head."

L-R: Edgar Swartz, "Uncle Dock" A.J. Neal, Jr., "Grandma Dock" A.J. Neal, Sr. and "Grandmother" Mary (Alexander) Neal

Andrew Jackson Neal (first) married in 1864, to Nancy Marinda Byars (1846-ca 1869). They had a son, William Samuel Neal, born 1867, died 1881. Nancy (Byars) Neal and William Samuel Neal are buried in "Old" Terryville Cemetery, DeWitt Co., Texas.

Andrew Jackson Neal and Mary Talitha Alexander married 1 March 1871, DeWitt County, Texas. He worked the open range and made a few more trips to Kansas. When the open range was fenced, he fenced his place on came with them. His mother, Musetta Ann (Neal) Swartz, died in 1903 when Edgar was one month old.

Mary Talitha (Alexander) Neal died 6 April 1915 and Andrew Jackson Neal on 19 May 1917. They are buried in the Gentry Cemetery, Kimble County, Texas.

Richard Alexander "Tuck" Neal, born 25 Oct 1874, DeWitt Co., died 20 Nov 1952, San Antonio, Bexar Co., buried Junction Cem., Kimble Co., Texas; married 3 Jan 1900, DeWitt Co., to Amma Clara Irwin (1877-1946), and were parents of Janie Neal; James Irwin Neal; Bessie Neal, married Jessie T. "Chip" Dorton; Hattie Neal; and Conley Neal. "Tuck" and Amma Neal were engaged in stockfarming in Kimble Co., Texas.

Musetta Ann Neal, born 22 May 1877, DeWitt Co., died 16 Feb. 1903, Fordtran, Victoria Co., buried "Old" Terryville Cem., DeWitt Co., Texas; married 11 Jan 1899, DeWitt Co., Texas, to William Andrew Swartz (1877-1967). Their children: Viola Pearl Swartz (1899-1985?), married Elmer Cecil Barnett (1885-1972); and Edgar Neal Swartz (1903-1960), married Dovie Lee Sellers (1904-1984).

Ben Frazier Neal, born 13 April 1881, DeWitt Co., died 5 Sept 1949, Weatherford, Parker Co., buried Junction Cem., Kimble Co.; married 1 June 1918, Mason, Mason Co., Texas, to Bertha Katherine Loeffler (1885-1968). Their children were Robert Max "Bob" Neal (1919-1981), married Clara Maye Dunlap; Ruby Katherine Neal, married Robert Wade "Bob" Sorrels; and Elza Mae Neal, married William Lester Fair. Ben Neal attended the Guadalupe (Nash) Academy, Cuero, DeWitt Co., Texas, finishing in 1903. Ben and Bertha were engaged in ranching in Kimble Co., Texas.

Lillie Pearl "Lil" Neal, born 30 April 1883, DeWitt Co., died 21 Dec 1954, Alvin, Brazoria Co., buried at Yoakum, DeWitt Co.; married 7 Nov 1902, DeWitt Co., Texas, to John T. Squyres (18??-1934). Their children were Oscar Louis Squyres, married Ruby Dickinson; John Bennett Squyres, married Noma Woods; Pearl Squyres, married J.C. Miller; Marie Squyres, married Farris McMillan; Edwin Neal Squyres, married Lucile Wilson; Terry Hollan Squyres, married Maudie Byars; Myrtle Squyres, married A. Don Tilley; James Conley "J.C." (1920-1925); and Emma Mae Squyres, married Otis Outlaw, Jr.

Harrison August "Harry" Neal, born 4 Feb 1885, DeWitt Co., died 31 March 1956, Houston, Harris Co., buried Yoakum, DeWitt Co., to Josa Virginia Atkisson (1888-1970). Their children were Edward Moore "Ed" Neal, married Flossie Davis; Floyd Andrew Neal (1915-1976), married Geraldine "Jerry" Blanchard; and Virginia Joe Neal (1920-1945); unmarried. Harry and Josa were engaged in dairy, stock, and truck farming in the Stratton Community, DeWitt Co., Texas.

James Conley "Con" Neal, born 8 Aug 1887, DeWitt Co., died 21 Feb 1967, Boerne, Kendall Co., buried Boerne Cem., Kendall Co., Tex.; married (ca 1910) to Bennie Woods (1890-1967). They were parents of Connie Mae (1911-1919), and "Jack" Neal (1913-1976), married Shirley. "Con" and Bennie resided in San Antonio, Bexar Co. He was a civil service employee of the U.S. Post Office.

Andrew Jackson "Dock" Neal, Jr., born 20 Nov 1889, DeWitt Co., Tex., died 29 Nov 1950, Bayard, Grants Co., N. Mex., buried Memory Lane Cem., Silver City, Grants Co., N.M.; married 21 June 1912, Junction, Kimble Co., Tex., to Appie McLendon (1895-1930). Their children were Charles Weldon Neal (1916-198?), married Lois M. Bookout; Joseph Maurice "Joe" Neal, married Patricia "Pat" Pittman; Andrew Jackson "Jack" Neal, married Consetta "Connie" Zuccarello; and Delbert Neal (1925-198?), married Audrey Lee Skinner. "Dock" and Appie were engaged in farming and after her death he moved to New Mexico and worked for Kenecott as a plant supervisor.

NEAL, HARRY FAMILY F670

Harry A. Neal and Josa (Atkisson) Neal

Harry A. Neal and Josa Virginia (Atkisson) Nov. 17, 1907

Stratton Community

Harry A. Neal (Feb. 4, 1885 – Mar. 31, 1956) married Josa Virginia Atkisson (Oct. 3, 1888 – Aug. 19, 1970) on November 17, 1907, in San Antonio at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Will Moore in Laurel Heights.

Mother was the youngest of three girls of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Atkisson, Jackson County, Texas. She had four older half sisters. Her mother died when she was nine and her father when she was eleven years old.

The three girls were raised by anyone that would take them in. Uncle Will and Aunt Betty Moore, no relation, were one of these thoughtful families. This is where I got my middle name "Moore". Uncle Will never knew of his namesake as mother was afraid he would think it was for a monetary reason. Will Moore owned a large ranch on Turkey Creek at Cline, Texas, near Uvalde.

Mother and Dad married at sun-up in order to catch the early train back to Yoakum. In the wedding party were Uncle Bennie Neal, Cousin George Morrow and, I believe, Cousin George Alexander. While waiting for the train, Daddy and Cousin George Morrow went to a cafe across the street. Uncle Bennie Neal was left in charge of the bride. The train's whistle blew and Dad said, "George we'd better go." Cousin George said, "Harry I have just got to have another glass of water." The waitress was not very prompt and the train left without them. Uncle Bennie tried to get mother to get on the train and assured her the boys could run and catch the caboose. Mother would have none of that. To my personal knowledge for the rest of their lives, Dad would say, "George, would you like another glass of water?"

The following spring of 1908 Dad started buying cattle for his livestock operation. The records show his father A.J. Neal, loaned him one thousand dollars on March 21, 1908. Beginning on that date and for the next week, checks were written for yearling cattle. Purchases were made from J.E. Werner, O. Teller, H.L. Wade, Gus Teller, W.C. Cooper, S.C. Parker, E.S. Cook, and J.T. Hollan.

Harry Neal had a great desire to move to West Texas and go into the sheep business. Mother, however, was opposed and mentioned the isolation, poor roads, great distance to towns, schools, doctors and churches. This opposition resulted in the decision to remain in DeWitt County.

On January 1, 1909, they leased the old Neal home place at Stratton, consisting of 812 acres for five years at fifty cents an acre. Then on October 5, 1912, they bought the place for eight dollars an acre. This created a debt of sixty five hundred dollars. Mother was opposed to the pressure of this huge debt so they sold five hundred acres in 1914 to a Mr. Dooley and kept the three hundred twelve acres near Stratton.

The following children were born to Harry and Josa Neal: Edward Moore Neal, May 7, 1912; Floyd Andrew Neal, January 19, 1915, died January 4, 1975; and Virginia Joe Neal, September 13, 1920, died November 27, 1945 in a hunting accident.

Our family life was typical for the times: lots of work with little money, but satisfaction and happiness. We tried most everything to make the farm operation profitable. In 1928 Dad sold the beef cows and switched to dairy cows. We sold sweet cream to the Valley Gold Creamery in Cuero. There was a cream route truck that picked the cream up daily. We raised sheep, Angora goats, hogs, turkeys and White Leghorn hens. The farm produced cotton, corn, Hegari, peanuts and commercial tomatoes. All of this was accomplished by hand labor and with little profit. There was not much time for boys to get into serious trouble.

We were not sent to the field to work; we followed mother and could hardly keep up with her pruning or picking tomatoes. She would go to the house at eleven o'clock, have a good hot dinner ready by noon and be ready to return to the field with us at one o'clock.

In our family honesty, dependability, and especially punctuality were emphasized almost to a fault. Dad had more credit at the bank than he would use.

We were taught country manners. They called it "raising". We were never to wear our hats or spurs indoors or our spurs in town. Another rule was to never lope your horse by a home: pull up to a saddle gait, and then, if time was precious, resume the lpe fifty to one hundred yards past the residence. We were to act respectful towards all adults.

We had our fun too. We boys owned good horses. We were permitted to rope the goats but not the sheep or calves. We did, however, slip the rope on a calf ever now and then. We hunted both day and night with dogs and sling shots, fished, swam in the stock tanks, and fought wasp and bumble bees. None of this recreation cost money, but it was fun.

On numerous occasions Dad would barbecue a mutton sheep and let us invite area boy friends in to rope goats, play baseball or whatever.

I remember a couple of amusing stories Dad used to tell. One day on returning from town the hired man (this was before we got big enough to work) told Dad a visitor stopped by while he was gone. Dad asked who it was. The man said, "I do not remember his name but he had a lot of money." Dad asked how he knew. He stated "he was carrying a checkbook." This same hired genius was told to go into the pasture and get the work mules. He was also told to take an ear of corn and catch the old buggy mare to ride. Dad looked and he was chasing Old Slipper all over the place. When he returned he was asked why he had not taken an ear of corn as told. The reply, "I thought you said the old mare could be caught in 'air corner'."

Mother was a small woman, weighing about one hundred ten pounds, or less, with lots of energy and spunk. One day as a small lad I went with her horseback to gather the turkey eggs. I rode behind the side saddle. Mother carried, on the crook of one arm, a bucket with a flour sack in the bottom for a cushion. On arriving at a turkey nest in the brush, a big chicken snake was in the process of swallowing the egg. Without hesitation, mother jumped off the horse. The snake spit out the egg and started up a tree. Mother caught it by the tail and slammed it against the tree until it was dead. That has to be e classed as pioneer spunk.

The Neal family took an active part in community leadership. My grandfather, A.J. Neal, donated the land for the Old Stratton one room school. The playground was in the Neal pasture. The front door opened on the public road and the back door into the pasture.

My father once found a bunch of his goats out in the public road. He was driving them home and when they got to the school house the whole bunch went in the front door and out the back door while school was in session. This caused a slight interruption in concentration in teaching and studying.

We had an old pet mother goat named "Nanny" that would show up at school every noon hour and take biscuit and jelly sandwiches away from the little girls. They would run and scream, but old Nanny would gently reach up and take the sandwiches out of their hands.

The girls had an "out-house" but the boys went to the brush. Someone did remove the barbs from the wire fence to protect our clothes.

The old school was also used by the Primitive Baptist Church (known as Hard Shell Baptist) for their monthly services.

Harry Neal was on the school board which consisted of three members. One year in order to keep a top teacher, Miss Annie Lee Williams, we boarded her free-of-charge. As is always the case, the school district was short of tax income. She taught grades one through the eighth and got the mission accomplished. I remember her as "the best".

The community school usually had a picnic at the end of the seven month school year. Once Mrs. Fred House, who had organized a band in Yoakum, came out and the band played at the picnic. That was something extra special for Stratton. Another year at the school picnic Dad found there was enough money to pay Miss Annie Lee for one more month of teaching. It was announced that classes would be extended for an extra month. I don't think the students ever completely forgave the school board for this decision.

Harry Neal took the lead in consolidating the Stratton and Crossenville school districts. An election was held on August 9, 1924, approving the consolidation. There were seventeen votes cast, all for consolidation.

At new two room, two teacher, school was built and was ready for use in 1925. The community was coming up in the world, girls and boys both had "out-houses". We regret to report the boys refused to use theirs and still went to the brush.

After the new school was completed Dad organized and taught a non-denominational Sunday School class for the young people around stratton for several years.

There were no school buses or car pools. Transportation to school consisted mostly of walking or riding horseback. The Ben Benbow kids, Johnny, Bill, and Tom, all rode the same cropped eared donkey. The donkey was as hard to get started to and from school as a T-model Ford on a cold morning. Everyone had a certain tree to tie or "park" their transportation.

One year there were two little girls that lived out on Irish Creek about five miles from school. Dad arranged to borrow an old gentle mare and a saddle and then he furnished the feed for the horse. They came to school every day in style.

Does this sound like a depressed area? It wasn't, families were providing for one another. We had a disciplined, happy youth. We learned to work and to do without things we could not afford. Our parents taught us the only way for an easier life was to get a college education. They used the cash value in an insurance policy to send me to Texas A&M College my first year. They were never able to repay the loan and consequently lost the life insurance. Financing the last three years of college was my responsibility. I worked at manual labor for twenty five cents an hour. Jobs included ditch digging, mowing lawn, janitor work and one summer milking fifteen cows three times a day by hand. The summer the cows were milked I also had janitor responsibilities for the third floor of the old Administration building. Regulation required students to be enrolled in at least two courses to hold student labor employment. Registration was made for two courses but only one was attended. There was time for only four hours sleep each night. My weight went from 145 pounds to 120 pounds in three months. When the failing grade appeared I was called to the dean's office. Naturally Mr. C.N. Shepardson asked, "What is the problem?" The explanation was simple. I needed $150 for registration for the coming fall term and due to my work schedule I could attend but one class. Mr. Shepardson looked at me about one minute and said, "Get the hell out of here." Summer employment was completed and registration was possible in the fall of 1933. Loans were also secured for other years. Two hundred dollars was borrowed from Mr. J.K. Elkins of Yoakum and one hundred fifty dollars from the A&M Ex-Students Association. The great sacrifice my parents made to give me a start at A&M made me feel so obligated that I had no choice but to somehow complete the last three years and earn my degree.

After finishing Texas A&M College and working several years my father suggested it might be time for me to think about marriage. He said, "I never knew an old bachelor that ever amounted to too much." I told him as a matter-of-fact I had met a real pretty school teacher down at Beeville that I was considering bringing home for an introduction. This young lady was Flossie Mae Davis, and we celebrated our fiftieth wedding anniversary on June 11, 1989. From the very beginning, and to this day, she has been an excellent partner. She continued to teach school to help pay my school debts, and for her engagement and wedding rings, and ranch notes.

My good honest, hard-working parents and the family "togetherness" down on the Stratton farm were great growing up and maturing experiences: there are few regrets.

NEAL, SAM

F671

As far as we know, there has never been any contact or family information prior to Samuel M. Neal (1808-1868). We do not have accurate information but, apparently, Sam Neal was the son of a fairly well-to-do family for that day and time in Tennessee. Sam was sent away to school but lost the money given him by gambling. Rather than face his father, he moved west as a lot of the young men did in the early days when they got their foot "over the trace."

Sam Neal married Eliza Hollan Fatheree, a widow with five children, in Jackson Parish, Louisiana. Sam and Eliza had three children: Alafair Neal Hanks (1847-1901), A.J. Neal (1897-1917), and Sicillia Jane Neal Garey (1852-1879). The Neals moved to Texas around 1855.

Samuel M. Neal and Eliza Hollan Fatheree Neal (1811-1863) are buried in the old Terryville Cemetery near the old Bear Creek School in DeWitt County, Texas. This old cemetery was recently fenced and cleaned up. A Texas Historical Marker was dedicated nearby on F.M. Road 682, 10.5 miles south of Yoakum on May 4, 1986.

A.J. (Dock) Neal was born in Bienville, Parish, Louisiana. A.J. Neal married Nancy M. Byars January 20, 1866. A son was born, Sam Neal II, November 8, 1867 – May 27, 1880. Nancy died in 1869.

A.J. Neal's second marriage was to Mary T. Alexander (1849-1915) March 1, 1871. To this marriage seven children were born, two girls and five boys. They arrived in this order: R.A. (Tuck) Neal, October 25, 1874-1947; Musetta Neal Swartz, May 22, 1879-1903; B.J. (Bennie) Neal, April 13, 1881-1949; Lillie Neal Squyres, April 30, 1883-1954; H.A. (Harry) Neal, February 4, 1885-1956; C.J. (Con) Neal, August 8, 1887-1967; and A.J. (Dock) Neal, Jr., November 20, 1889-1950.

Sometime around 1908 A.J. Neal, my grandfather, Uncle Bennie and my father, H.A. Neal, made a trip to West Texas, in a horse-drawn wagon, to buy Dad a ranch. My father, Harry was the one most interested in stock raising of the Neal boys. Grandpa was a great believer in sheep. He said that the men who moved to West Texas and ran sheep stayed, and those that depended on cattle went broke. On this trip Dad was impressed with the Lampasas country. I believe he said it could have been bought for fifty cents to a dollar per acre. Dad said he has never figured out exactly how it happened, but on the way back home Grandpa and Uncle Bennie bought a ranch on the Llano river near Junction and Dad bargained for the old home place in DeWitt County near Strat-

Dock Neal used the livestock fire brand called Heart Vee. The records show it was registered in DeWitt County in 1874. The brand was probably used before it was officially registered. Information handed down stated that the brand was registered in all counties south to the coast.

On the open range cattle drifted away from the cold north winds in the winter. Each spring they were driven back to their home range. My father, Harry Neal, used the Heart Vee brand during his life time (1885-1956). I, Edward M. Neal, used the brand from 1951 to 1982 and have it registered in DeWitt, Bee, and Live Oak Counties. My daughter Sara Jane and her husband, Allen L. Dunn, are now using the brand. We have two grandsons, Brett Edward Dunn (1968) and Neal H. Dunn (1972) that we hope will keep the brand tradition alive. They are both good brush cowboys.

A.J. Neal was given a Power of Attorney by J.R. (Uncle Jim) Benbow dated May 11, 1874, to drive and sell cattle with certain brands and ear marks in Kansas. Uncle Jim was no relation, however, it was the custom to call older people "Uncle and Aunt".

Mr. Madison Granberry, who was distantly related in some way by marriage told me a story a number of years ago about one of these trail drivers. Apparently Dock Neal often played pranks on the other trail drivers. One day during a noon stop on a river, four men decided they would even up the jokes. Grandfather was taking a nap. They picked him up, one man on each arm and leg and proceeded to the river. He offered no resistance whatsoever until they got to the river bank. A big kick took care of the two leg men and he got up and threw the other two men in the river. It was a good story for a young grand-son who was all ears. Another trail drive story of interest regards his returning home alone from Kansas with the money in gold coins carried on a pack horse along with his bedroll. One night in camp he was aroused by his horses stirring around. Grandfather said to his horses, "Hey what are you doing there?" - A voice answered, "Just trying to see who you are."

Another story that indicates A.J. (Dock) Neal's personality or character was about a stray shoat (pig) that showed up at the Neal place. In trying to run it off, Grandfather cut its tail off as it ran under the lot fence. A neighbor who was not known for truthfulness came over to check on the stray pig. "Yes Dock, that is my hog all right, I cut its tail off before it got out of its mother's bed." Grandfather said "Well this is not your shoat then, as I cut off its tail. Grandfather said he was convinced the hog belonged to the man, but he never gave up possession of the shoat.

My father, Harry Neal, said that Grandfather also took a very active part in breaking up the so called mavericking of cattle, or more correctly, wholesale stealing on the open range.

It is interesting to note that Grandfather started buying land during his trail driving time. It must have been a method of creating capital. Land purchases were made as follows by A.J. Neal:

110 A 1/12/74 for a total $330 coin dollars from Estate of I.G. Belcher, Brenham, Texas; 80.5 A 11/23/1880 total $201.25 from Mrs. Barsheba Belcher; 79 A 1/12/83 total $135 from Royal Garey (brother-in-law); 390 & 116 A 6/13/83 total $1,381 from Estate Eugene Wallace; 33.3 A 4/6/86 total $350 from C.B. Williams; 3.9 A 10/26/88 total $39.00 from Royal Garey (brother-in-law). Records show money was borrowed from numerous individuals at 10%-12% interest rates.

Edward M. Neal, (1912) present owner, married Flossie Davis (1917) in 1939. To this union were born: Judy Neal Stubbs (1943), Sara Jane (Neal) Dunn (1947) and Diana Neal Loving (1953).

It must have been rugged, hard, and exciting times for the old timer's but they built a great country. It is amazing how they accomplished all this without someone to tell them when to tighten their saddle girth or buckle their seat belt.

NEWMAN, JOHN LESLIE (PETE)

F672

John Leslie (Pete) Newman was born on November 2, 1903 in the vicinity of Stratton in DeWitt County. He was the fourth child of John A. and Julia Ann (Terry) Newman, whose story is given separately.

Pete grew up in and around Cuero and always considered it home. He was well known as a brick mason and many of the masonry homes and buildings in the area were built by him.
