Texas Libraries is issued bi-monthly by the Texas State Library. Opinions expressed in signed articles are not necessarily those of the Texas Library and Historical Commission. Persons are urged to submit articles and items on every phase of librarianship and library development to: Robert E. Lee, Editor, Texas State Library, State Capitol, Austin.

Introduction

The 281 public libraries listed with the Texas State Library, 200 of which submitted reports for the year, serve 6,466,502 Texans, or 85% of the state's 1950 census population.

This year's directory is comprised of the following sections:

Public Libraries, 1958

College and University Libraries

Special Libraries

County Library Service

Head Librarians.

Information on the public libraries includes the name of the library, county, librarian, population served, book stock, circulation, total income, public funds, expenditures (figures in parentheses indicate the amount spent for books and periodicals), and extension units.

The total reported library income, according to the reports received by the Extension Division was $4,803,541 of which $4,512,200 was allocated by city and county governments. This total income figure, which incidentally does not include some large city and county libraries not reporting, represents a per capita expenditure of $0.74 for the population served, and $0.62 for the state's total population.

Annual reports which included both book stock and circulation figures indicate that 4,302,707 books circulated 13,784,303 times, or approximately three times per book.

The holdings of public libraries are supplemented by those of the 231 college and special libraries, and additional assistance is available from the Texas State Library, W. B. Harwell, Librarian and the Extension Loan Library of the University of Texas, Imogene Thompson, Librarian. The statistics for the State Library, which are not listed in the public library section this year, are as follows:

325,000 volumes

$195,408 total income.

134,446 salaries

($32,000) books and periodicals

At the close of 1958, fifty-two counties had no local public library service. During the year the Texas State Library demonstrated bookmobile service in three of these counties, and in 1959 this type of service will be demonstrated in an additional six. Thus by 1960 State Library bookmobiles will have dramatized library service in approximately 20% of the fifty-two counties without local public libraries, and libraries in fourteen other counties will have had their services temporarily supplemented.

The State Library's Extension Division supplemented the collections of thirty public libraries during the calendar year of 1958.

A regional pattern for library service is emerging in the Coastal Bend Counties of Nueces, Jim Wells, Live Oak, and Kleberg. This program, initiated the latter part of 1958, is demonstrating the advantages of cooperative practices and will provide the necessary experience for rendering the Texas Library Law more operative.
