One recipient, Tommy Michael Bates, has already been selected. Another will be chosen soon and announced at the upcoming annual meeting.

Candidates should be nominated by university representatives from upperclass undergraduate students. Only one nominee should be selected each year from each school. Awards will be made on the basis of academic excellence, professional activities, and promise for future involvement in and contribution to fisheries science.

Nominees must file an application to be forwarded to the Scholarship Selection Committee. This application should include the following data:
