Davis Mountains

STATE PARK

Davis Mountains State Park blends the best Texas has to offer — scenic mountains, picturesque campsites, superb birdwatching, beautiful trails and a historic full-service hotel. Try your luck at spotting the rare Montezuma quail in the morning and climb a rocky mountain slope in the evening. Enjoy a shady campsite or relax in a quaint room at Indian Lodge, built in 1933 by the Civilian Conservation Corps. One visit to Davis Mountains is sure to lead to more!

 Camping: Campsites with water only or water and electricity plus tent pads or full hookups with shade shelters and cable TV. Also primitive camping sites.

 Group Facility: Group picnic area under the oaks.

 Picnicking: Picnic tables and grills.

 Interpretive Center: New exhibits and bird viewing area.

 Trails: Over 12 miles of hiking trails, including a 4-mile trail that leads to Fort Davis National Historic Site.

 Also, mountain bike and equestrian trails.

 Special Feature: Skyline Drive winds to some of the park's highest ridges and provides a breath-taking view of the park and Davis Mountains.

Located in Jeff Davis County, one mile north of Fort Davis on Texas 17, then three miles west on Texas 118 to Park Road 3.
