HB 79 was read second time on June 20, and Amendment No. 4 was pending at the time of adjournment.

Amendment No. 5

Representative Lewis offered the following amendment to Amendment No. 4:

Amend Amendment No. 4 by R. Anderson to HB 79 by striking the text of the amendment and substituting the following:

Amend HB 79 (house committee printing) on page 47, between lines 3 and 4, by inserting the following:

(d) The rules adopted by the supreme court may not:

(1) require that a party in a case be represented by an attorney;

(2) be so complex that a reasonable person without legal training would have difficulty understanding or applying the rules; or

(3) require that discovery rules adopted under the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure or the Texas Rules of Evidence be applied except to the extent the justice of the peace hearing the case determines that the rules must be followed to ensure that the proceeding is fair to all parties.

(e) A committee established by the supreme court to recommend rules to be adopted under this section must include justices of the peace.

HB 79 - STATEMENT OF LEGISLATIVE INTENT

REPRESENTATIVE P. KING: Just kind of help me think through this again—there's three courts, in a justice court, three dockets. There's the justice court, which operates under the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure, and then the other docket is the small claims docket, which really has no rules, or rules of evidence. It just operates under whatever the judge sees and what we kind of truly think of a small claims court—

REPRESENTATIVE LEWIS: Right.

P. KING: And then it has the magistrates court that does all of the administrative stuff and criminal stuff.

LEWIS: Yes, correct.

P. KING: And so, what your original amendment did was, if I'm correct, it abolished the justice court docket?

LEWIS: Not quite, well—

P. KING: And then ordered the supreme court to write rules for the small claims court docket?

LEWIS: Here's what it did, Phil, and of course, you know much more about this subject than I'll ever know. But here's what the bill does—where we have the justice court, that has all the rules of civil procedure, and then you've got a small claims court that is very informal, and all of it's with the same judge. One judge, two different dockets. What it did, it just really combined the two dockets so you've got one docket. You'll have—instead of using the name small claims court, you'll call it the justice court because you had to call it one or the other. You'll call it justice court—but the basic rules and procedures will be the small claims procedures. So that's what it does, it merges it. It calls it the justice court, but it uses the small claims court procedures, because you didn't want to just do away with the title justice court because then there'd be griping about that.

P. KING: In giving the supreme court the authority to write rules over the small claims court, or whatever we're going to call it, would it give the supreme court the authority to ever require that justices of the peace be attorneys, licensed attorneys?

LEWIS: No. The supreme court does not have that power—

P. KING: And they wouldn't after this bill, either?

LEWIS: Yes, they would not have—there's nothing in this bill that would do that. In fact, what this bill does, since it makes everything small claims, and makes everything accessible to a layman, and except for the three—they're already outside of small claims court types, collection cases—everything's going to be small claims. It makes it much more amenable to having a layman be justice of the peace. And many more cases, all the cases now will be small claims court. It'll be much more amenable to being able to work out those cases without lawyers.

(Burnam now present)

HB 79 - STATEMENT OF LEGISLATIVE INTENT

REPRESENTATIVE ISAAC: Does this in any way open the door for a requirement to make JPs become attorneys?

REPRESENTATIVE LEWIS: No, the requirements for the justices of the peace are in the Election Code. There's no requirement that they be attorneys. This'll mean it'll be less necessary than ever because right now you have to know the Code of Civil Procedure. And for cases that are not filed in small claims court, after this, that won't be true. Everything that's filed in the justice court will be under small claims rules, so no requirement at all, and it won't tend to do that, either.

ISAAC: Does it in any way hinder access to courts for indigents?

LEWIS: No. It'll make it easier, and faster, and it'll just make it universal. What we've been doing in small claims will be the universal way to handle it. You won't have a divided docket in the justice court anymore. You'll just have the small claims way of doing things.
