

1 SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

2 WHEREAS, The efficient exploration, production, and 3 transportation of oil in Texas prevents waste of the state's 4 natural resources, contributes to the health, welfare, and safety 5 of the general public, and promotes the prosperity of the state; and

6 WHEREAS, The tax revenues and economic prosperity deriving
7 from this Texas energy renaissance have greatly benefited Texas
8 public schools, higher education, critical infrastructure 9 development, and public health and safety programs; and

10 WHEREAS, Improved technologies and abundant resources have 11 made America the world's leading oil and natural gas producer, 12 overtaking Saudi Arabia and Russia; and

13 WHEREAS, The 1970s-era federal law prohibiting crude oil
14 exports is a relic from an era of scarcity and flawed price control 15 policies; and

16 WHEREAS, Allowing American crude oil exports will strengthen
17 United States geopolitical influence by giving our trading partners
18 a more secure source of supply, and allowing the export of American 19 crude oil will make our allies less dependent on crude oil from 20 Russia and the Middle East; and

21 WHEREAS, The world's other major developed nations allow 22 crude oil exports, making America the only nation that does not take 23 full advantage of trading a valuable resource in what is an 24 otherwise global free market; and

1           WHEREAS, Crude oil exports will benefit America's national 2 security interests by decreasing the likelihood that global oil 3 supply can be used internationally as a strategic weapon; and

4           WHEREAS, Numerous studies have found that allowing American 5 crude oil into the world's free market will benefit United States
6 trade and American consumers while creating more high-paying jobs
7 for Texans to fill; and

8           WHEREAS, According to an analysis by the American Petroleum 9 Institute, Texas will lead all states in job growth following the 10 repeal of the ban, with an estimated 40,291 jobs by 2020; and

11           WHEREAS, Other studies have similarly found tremendous 12 prospective GDP growth from lifting the 1970s-era ban; and

13           WHEREAS, The United States is the largest exporter of refined 14 petroleum products and would benefit even more substantially from 15 the export of both crude oil and refined petroleum products; and

16           WHEREAS, At least seven independent studies have confirmed
17 that repealing the ban on American crude oil exports will lower gas 18 prices in the United States, benefiting Texas consumers and 19 businesses; and

20           WHEREAS, Thousands of small and large Texas businesses that 21 support oil and gas development will benefit from ongoing 22 production; and

23           WHEREAS, Manufacturers will benefit from less volatility in 24 energy costs; and

25           WHEREAS, The technology and brainpower behind the American 26 energy renaissance was mostly pioneered in Texas by Texans; and
