PREFACE

The Pattern Jury Charges (volume 3) Committee for this second edition has worked for over two years to revise this important volume in the State Bar of Texas's PJC series. A major objective has been to incorporate broad-form submissions wherever possible, with the aim of simplifying the charge for the jury as well as for the bench and bar.

The Committee wishes to express its gratitude to State Bar presidents Joe Nagy (1987–88), Jim Sales (1988–89), and Darrell Jordan (1989–90) for their support of its work. It also wishes to thank the staff of the Books and Systems Department of the State Bar, especially Sue Mills, director, and Vickie Tatum, project legal editor.

The Committee wishes also to thank Richard Griffith, a former member (1988–89), for his important service to the Committee.

J. Hadley Edgar, the chairman of the standing PJC Committee that oversees the publication of all PJC volumes, played an important role in supporting and advising the Committee in all phases of its work.

Russell H. McMains, the liaison from the standing PJC Committee, was a de facto member, attending the meetings and providing information, advice, and expertise that was invaluable.

Finally, the Committee thanks the first PJC 3 Committee (1981–82) for the dedication with which it labored to produce the original volume. Its members were—

PREFACE TO THE 2016 EDITION

The Committee for Texas Pattern Jury Charges—Malpractice, Premises & Products is pleased to submit this 2016 edition to the bench and bar of Texas. A notable change to this edition is the inclusion of a new PJC that provides questions and instructions regarding open courts challenges in medical malpractice cases. The Committee has also made several significant improvements to existing PJCs, including revised comments on the use of “injury” and “occurrence,” several updated definitions in the premises chapter, clearer instructions on the submission of exemplary damages regarding corporations, and additional “cap-busting” questions. Finally, the admonitory chapter includes a new (and long awaited) unanimity certificate for use in cases involving multiple parties or claims.

The members of this Committee have given unselfishly of their time, displayed a continuing spirit of nonpartisanship, and provided practical solutions to often difficult problems. Our guiding principle is to “get it right.” If we have fallen short of that goal in any way, we ask the bench and bar to let us know. The Committee takes these comments seriously; indeed, several revisions to this and previous editions were prompted by thoughtful questions or suggestions from practitioners and judges.

We thank Vickie Tatum and the staff of the TexasBarBooks Department of the State Bar of Texas for their invaluable guidance, tireless assistance, and unfailing good humor. Their steady hand keeps us on task and on time. And we dedicate this volume to the founders and protectors of the American judicial system. Without them, we would not have juries to charge.

—Jeff Levinger, Chair

INTRODUCTION

1. PURPOSE OF PUBLICATION

The purpose of this volume, like those of the others in this series, is to assist the bench and bar in preparing the court's charge in jury cases. It provides definitions, instructions, and questions needed to submit jury charges in professional malpractice, premises, and products cases. The pattern charges are suggestions and guides to be used by a trial court if they are applicable and proper in a specific case. Of course, the exercise of professional judgment by the attorneys and the judge is necessary to resolve disputes in individual cases. The Committee hopes that this publication will prove as worthy a contribution as have the earlier Texas Pattern Jury Charges volumes.

2. SCOPE OF PATTERN CHARGES

It is impossible to prepare pattern charges for every factual setting that could arise in the areas covered herein. The Committee has tried to prepare charges that will serve as guides in the usual types of litigation that might confront an attorney in a professional malpractice, premises, or products case. However, a charge should conform to the pleadings and evidence of the particular case, and occasions will arise for the use of questions and instructions not specifically addressed here.

3. USE OF ACCEPTED PRECEDENTS

The Committee has avoided recommending changes in the law and has based this material on what it perceives the present law to be. It has attempted to foresee theories and objections that might be made in a variety of circumstances but not to favor or disfavor a particular position. In unsettled areas, the Committee generally has not taken a position on the exact form of a charge. It has provided guidelines, however, in some areas in which there is no definitive authority. Of course, trial judges and practitioners should recognize that the Committee may have erred in its perceptions and that its recommendations may be affected by future appellate decisions and statutory changes.

4. PRINCIPLES OF STYLE

a. Broad form to be used when feasible. Rule 277 of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure provides that "the court shall, whenever feasible, submit the cause upon broad-form questions. In Texas Department of Human Services v. E.B., 802 S.W.2d 647, 649 (Tex. 1990), the supreme court interpreted the phrase 'whenever feasible' as mandating broad-form submission 'in any or every instance in which it is capable of being accomplished.'" The court has described the reasons for broad-form questions as follows: "Broad-form questions reduce conflicting jury answers, thus reducing appeals and avoiding retrials. Rule 277 expedites trials by simplifying the charge conference and making questions easier for the jury to comprehend and answer." E.B., 802 S.W.2d at 649; see also Lemos v. Montez, 680 S.W.2d 798, 801 (Tex. 1984). The court further stated, “The rule unequivocally requires broad-form submission whenever feasible. Unless extraordinary circumstances exist, a court must submit such broad-form questions.” E.B., 802 S.W.2d at 649. The term “extraordinary circumstances” would seem to contemplate only a situation in which the policies underlying broad-form questions would not be served. See E.B., 802 S.W.2d at 649; Lemos, 680 S.W.2d at 801. More recent cases on proportionate responsibility, damages, and liability, however, indicate that broad-form submission may not be feasible in a variety of circumstances depending on the law, the theories, and the evidence in a given case. See Romero v. KPH Consolidation, Inc., 166 S.W.3d 212 (Tex. 2005) (single broad-form proportionate responsibility question may not be feasible if one theory is legally invalid or not supported by sufficient evidence); Harris County v. Smith, 96 S.W.3d 230 (Tex. 2002) (broad-form submission of multiple elements of damage may cause harmful error if one or more of the elements is not supported by sufficient evidence); Crown Life Insurance Co. v. Casteel, 22 S.W.3d 378 (Tex. 2000) (broad-form submission combining valid and invalid theories of liability was cause of harmful error). As a result, although some modifications to the pattern jury charges have been made where a lack of feasibility appears to be the rule rather than the exception, the court and parties should evaluate all submissions to determine whether broad-form submission is feasible. When broad-form submission is feasible a harmless error analysis typically applies. See Thota v. Young, 366 S.W.3d 678, 693 (Tex. 2012) (applying harmless error analysis to broad-form question with separate answer blanks for plaintiff and defendant offered in single-theory-of-liability case).

b. Simplicity. The Committee has sought to follow the court’s admonition that “a workable jury system demands strict adherence to simplicity in jury charges.” Lemos, 680 S.W.2d at 801. The Committee has, in a few instances, attempted to simplify questions and instructions previously approved by the courts.

c. Replacing questions with instructions. This volume also reflects Supreme Court of Texas precedents and Texas Rules of Civil Procedure amendments that have led to replacing questions with instructions for many theories and defenses. Rule 277 forbids inferential rebuttal questions (questions inquiring about facts that deny or rebut an element of an opponent’s cause of action or defense). An inferential rebuttal, if appropriate, should be submitted by explanatory instruction. The use of instructions in chapters 50 and 65 for such rebuttals as “new and independent cause” and “emergency” is consistent with current Texas law.

d. Definitions and instructions. The supreme court has disapproved the practice of embellishing standard definitions and instructions, Lemos, 680 S.W.2d 798, or adding unnecessary instructions, First International Bank v. Roper Corp., 686 S.W.2d 602 (Tex. 1985). The Committee has endeavored to adhere to standard definitions and instructions. Also, definitions are stated in general terms rather than in terms of the particular event or names of the parties. A general form is deemed more appropriate for a definition and less likely to be considered a comment on the weight of the evidence.

e. Placement of definitions and instructions in the charge. Definitions of terms that apply to a number of questions should be given immediately after the general instructions required by rule 226a of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure. See Woods v. Crane Carrier Co., 693 S.W.2d 377 (Tex. 1985). However, if a definition or instruction applies to only one question or cluster of questions (e.g., damages questions), it should be placed with that question or cluster. Specific guidance for placement of instructions can be found in the comments to each PJC.

f. Burden of proof. As authorized by rule 277 of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure, it is recommended that the burden of proof be placed by instruction rather than by inclusion in each question. When the burden is placed by instruction, it is not necessary that each question begin: “Do you find from a preponderance of the evidence that ” The admonitory instructions contain the following instruction, applicable to all questions:

Answer “yes” or “no” to all questions unless you are told otherwise. A “yes” answer must be based on a preponderance of the evidence [unless you are told otherwise]. Whenever a question requires an answer other than “yes” or “no,” your answer must be based on a preponderance of the evidence [unless you are told otherwise].

The term “preponderance of the evidence” means the greater weight of credible evidence presented in this case. If you do not find that a preponderance of the evidence supports a “yes” answer, then answer “no.” A preponderance of the evidence is not measured by the number of witnesses or by the number of documents admitted in evidence. For a fact to be proved by a preponderance of the evidence, you must find that the fact is more likely true than not true.

g. Hypothetical examples. The names of hypothetical parties and facts have been italicized to indicate that the names and facts of the particular case should be substituted. In general, the names Paul Payne and Mary Payne have been used for plaintiffs, and Don Davis for the defendant. In wrongful death and survival cases, Mary Payne is also used for the decedent. Dr. Davis, Don Donaldson, Donna Dunn, Darla Dean, and Dixon Hospital have been used for medical malpractice defendants, and Dora Dotson and Tom Taylor for nonmedical professional defendants. Connie Contributor designates a contribution defendant (third-party defendant not sued by the plaintiff), Responsible Ray a responsible third party, and Sam Settlor a settling person. ABC Company is used for the seller of an alleged defective product, and Panther Manufacturing Co. for the manufacturer of an alleged noncrashworthy automobile. Paul Payne, Jr., Polly Payne, and Mary Minor are minor plaintiffs, and Fred Father is a derivative claimant suing on behalf of an injured child. Dixie Drugstore and Olivia Owner are owners or occupiers of premises.

5. COMMENTS AND CITATIONS OF AUTHORITY

The comments to each PJC provide a ready reference to the law that serves as a foundation for the charge. The primary authority cited herein is Texas case law. In some instances, secondary authority—for example, Restatement (Second) of Agency—is also cited. The Committee wishes to emphasize that secondary authority is cited solely as additional guidance to the reader and not as legal authority for the proposition it follows. Some comments also include variations of the recommended forms and additional questions or instructions for special circumstances.

6. USING THE PATTERN CHARGES

Matters on which the evidence is undisputed should not be submitted by either instruction or question. Conversely, questions, instructions, and definitions not included in this volume may sometimes become necessary. Finally, preparation of a proper charge requires careful legal analysis and sound judgment.

PJC 40.1 Instructions to Jury Panel before Voir Dire Examination

[Brackets indicate optional, alternative, or instructive text.]

MEMBERS OF THE JURY PANEL:

Thank you for being here. We are here to select a jury. Twelve [six] of you will be chosen for the jury. Even if you are not chosen for the jury, you are performing a valuable service that is your right and duty as a citizen of a free country.

Before we begin: Turn off all phones and other electronic devices. While you are in the courtroom, do not communicate with anyone through any electronic device. [For example, do not communicate by phone, text message, email message, chat room, blog, or social networking websites such as Facebook, Twitter, or Myspace.] [I will give you a number where others may contact you in case of an emergency.] Do not record or photograph any part of these court proceedings, because it is prohibited by law.

If you are chosen for the jury, your role as jurors will be to decide the disputed facts in this case. My role will be to ensure that this case is tried in accordance with the rules of law.

Here is some background about this case. This is a civil case. It is a lawsuit that is not a criminal case. The parties are as follows: The plaintiff is _____, and the defendant is _____. Representing the plaintiff is _____, and representing the defendant is _____. They will ask you some questions during jury selection. But before their questions begin, I must give you some instructions for jury selection.

Every juror must obey these instructions. You may be called into court to testify about any violations of these instructions. If you do not follow these instructions, you will be guilty of juror misconduct, and I might have to order a new trial and start this process over again. This would waste your time and the parties' money, and would require the taxpayers of this county to pay for another trial.

These are the instructions.

1. To avoid looking like you are friendly with one side of the case, do not mingle or talk with the lawyers, witnesses, parties, or anyone else involved in the case. You may exchange casual greetings like "hello" and "good morning." Other than that, do not talk with them at all. They have to follow these instructions too, so you should not be offended when they follow the instructions.

2. Do not accept any favors from the lawyers, witnesses, parties, or anyone else involved in the case, and do not do any favors for them. This includes favors such as giving rides and food.

3. Do not discuss this case with anyone, even your spouse or a friend, either in person or by any other means [including by phone, text message, email message, chat room, blog, or social networking websites such as Facebook, Twitter, or Myspace]. Do not allow anyone to discuss the case with you or in your hearing. If anyone tries to discuss the case with you or in your hearing, tell me immediately. We do not want you to be influenced by something other than the evidence admitted in court.

4. The parties, through their attorneys, have the right to ask you questions about your background, experiences, and attitudes. They are not trying to meddle in your affairs. They are just being thorough and trying to choose fair jurors who do not have any bias or prejudice in this particular case.

5. Remember that you took an oath that you will tell the truth, so be truthful when the lawyers ask you questions, and always give complete answers. If you do not answer a question that applies to you, that violates your oath. Sometimes a lawyer will ask a question of the whole panel instead of just one person. If the question applies to you, raise your hand and keep it raised until you are called on.

Do you understand these instructions? If you do not, please tell me now.

The lawyers will now begin to ask their questions.

COMMENT

When to use. The foregoing oral instructions are prescribed in Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a. The instructions, “with such modifications as the circumstances of the particular case may require,” are to be given to the jury panel “after they have been sworn in as provided in Rule 226 and before the voir dire examination.

Rewording regarding investigation by jurors. In an appropriate case, the sentence “Do not post information about the case on the Internet before these court proceedings end and you are released from jury duty” may be added in the second paragraph of this instruction, and the instructions admonishing against independent investigation by the jurors contained in item 6 of PJC 40.2 may be included in the instruction.

PJC 40.2 Instructions to Jury after Jury Selection

[Brackets indicate optional or instructive text.]

MEMBERS OF THE JURY

You have been chosen to serve on this jury. Because of the oath you have taken and your selection for the jury, you become officials of this court and active participants in our justice system.

[Hand out the written instructions.]

You have each received a set of written instructions. I am going to read them with you now. Some of them you have heard before and some are new.

1. Turn off all phones and other electronic devices. While you are in the courtroom and while you are deliberating, do not communicate with anyone through any electronic device. [For example, do not communicate by phone, text message, email message, chat room, blog, or social networking websites such as Facebook, Twitter, or Myspace.] [I will give you a number where others may contact you in case of an emergency.] Do not post information about the case on the Internet before these court proceedings end and you are released from jury duty. Do not record or photograph any part of these court proceedings, because it is prohibited by law.

2. To avoid looking like you are friendly with one side of the case, do not mingle or talk with the lawyers, witnesses, parties, or anyone else involved in the case. You may exchange casual greetings like “hello” and “good morning.” Other than that, do not talk with them at all. They have to follow these instructions too, so you should not be offended when they follow the instructions.

3. Do not accept any favors from the lawyers, witnesses, parties, or anyone else involved in the case, and do not do any favors for them. This includes favors such as giving rides and food.

4. Do not discuss this case with anyone, even your spouse or a friend, either in person or by any other means [including by phone, text message, email message, chat room, blog, or social networking websites such as Facebook, Twitter, or Myspace]. Do not allow anyone to discuss the case with you or in your hearing. If anyone tries to discuss the case with you or in your hearing, tell me immediately. We do not want you to be influenced by something other than the evidence admitted in court.

5. Do not discuss this case with anyone during the trial, not even with the other jurors, until the end of the trial. You should not discuss the case with your fellow jurors until the end of the trial so that you do not form opinions about the case before you have heard everything.

After you have heard all the evidence, received all of my instructions, and heard all of the lawyers' arguments, you will then go to the jury room to discuss the case with the other jurors and reach a verdict.

6. Do not investigate this case on your own. For example, do not:
 - a. try to get information about the case, lawyers, witnesses, or issues from outside this courtroom;
 - b. go to places mentioned in the case to inspect the places;
 - c. inspect items mentioned in this case unless they are presented as evidence in court;
 - d. look anything up in a law book, dictionary, or public record to try to learn more about the case;
 - e. look anything up on the Internet to try to learn more about the case; or
 - f. let anyone else do any of these things for you.

This rule is very important because we want a trial based only on evidence admitted in open court. Your conclusions about this case must be based only on what you see and hear in this courtroom because the law does not permit you to base your conclusions on information that has not been presented to you in open court. All the information must be presented in open court so the parties and their lawyers can test it and object to it. Information from other sources, like the Internet, will not go through this important process in the courtroom. In addition, information from other sources could be completely unreliable. As a result, if you investigate this case on your own, you could compromise the fairness to all parties in this case and jeopardize the results of this trial.

7. Do not tell other jurors about your own experiences or other people's experiences. For example, you may have special knowledge of something in the case, such as business, technical, or professional information. You may even have expert knowledge or opinions, or you may know what happened in this case or another similar case. Do not tell the other jurors about it. Telling other jurors about it is wrong because it means the jury will be considering things that were not admitted in court.

8. Do not consider attorneys' fees unless I tell you to. Do not guess about attorneys' fees.

9. Do not consider or guess whether any party is covered by insurance unless I tell you to.

10. During the trial, if taking notes will help focus your attention on the evidence, you may take notes using the materials the court has provided. Do not use any personal electronic devices to take notes. If taking notes will distract your attention from the evidence, you should not take notes. Your notes are for your own personal use. They are not evidence. Do not show or read your notes to anyone, including other jurors.

You must leave your notes in the jury room or with the bailiff. The bailiff is instructed not to read your notes and to give your notes to me promptly after collecting them from you. I will make sure your notes are kept in a safe, secure location and not disclosed to anyone.

[You may take your notes back into the jury room and consult them during deliberations. But keep in mind that your notes are not evidence. When you deliberate, each of you should rely on your independent recollection of the evidence and not be influenced by the fact that another juror has or has not taken notes. After you complete your deliberations, the bailiff will collect your notes.]

When you are released from jury duty, the bailiff will promptly destroy your notes so that nobody can read what you wrote.

11. I will decide matters of law in this case. It is your duty to listen to and consider the evidence and to determine fact issues that I may submit to you at the end of the trial. After you have heard all the evidence, I will give you instructions to follow as you make your decision. The instructions also will have questions for you to answer. You will not be asked and you should not consider which side will win. Instead, you will need to answer the specific questions I give you.

Every juror must obey my instructions. If you do not follow these instructions, you will be guilty of juror misconduct, and I may have to order a new trial and start this process over again. This would waste your time and the parties' money, and would require the taxpayers of this county to pay for another trial.

Do you understand these instructions? If you do not, please tell me now.

Please keep these instructions and review them as we go through this case. If anyone does not follow these instructions, tell me.

COMMENT

When to use. The foregoing instructions are prescribed in Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a. The instructions, 'with such modifications as the circumstances of the particular case may require,' are to be given to the jury "immediately after the jurors are selected for the case.

PJC 40.3 Charge of the CourtPJC 40.3A Charge of the Court—Twelve-Member Jury

[Brackets indicate optional or instructive text.]

MEMBERS OF THE JURY

After the closing arguments, you will go to the jury room to decide the case, answer the questions that are attached, and reach a verdict. You may discuss the case with other jurors only when you are all together in the jury room.

Remember my previous instructions: Do not discuss the case with anyone else, either in person or by any other means. Do not do any independent investigation about the case or conduct any research. Do not look up any words in dictionaries or on the Internet. Do not post information about the case on the Internet. Do not share any special knowledge or experiences with the other jurors. Do not use your phone or any other electronic device during your deliberations for any reason. [I will give you a number where others may contact you in case of an emergency.]

[Any notes you have taken are for your own personal use. You may take your notes back into the jury room and consult them during deliberations, but do not show or read your notes to your fellow jurors during your deliberations. Your notes are not evidence. Each of you should rely on your independent recollection of the evidence and not be influenced by the fact that another juror has or has not taken notes.]

[You must leave your notes with the bailiff when you are not deliberating. The bailiff will give your notes to me promptly after collecting them from you. I will make sure your notes are kept in a safe, secure location and not disclosed to anyone. After you complete your deliberations, the bailiff will collect your notes. When you are released from jury duty, the bailiff will promptly destroy your notes so that nobody can read what you wrote.]

Here are the instructions for answering the questions.

1. Do not let bias, prejudice, or sympathy play any part in your decision.
2. Base your answers only on the evidence admitted in court and on the law that is in these instructions and questions. Do not consider or discuss any evidence that was not admitted in the courtroom.

3. You are to make up your own minds about the facts. You are the sole judges of the credibility of the witnesses and the weight to give their testimony. But on matters of law, you must follow all of my instructions.

4. If my instructions use a word in a way that is different from its ordinary meaning, use the meaning I give you, which will be a proper legal definition.

5. All the questions and answers are important. No one should say that any question or answer is not important.

6. Answer “yes” or “no” to all questions unless you are told otherwise. A “yes” answer must be based on a preponderance of the evidence [unless you are told otherwise]. Whenever a question requires an answer other than “yes” or “no,” your answer must be based on a preponderance of the evidence [unless you are told otherwise].

The term “preponderance of the evidence” means the greater weight of credible evidence presented in this case. If you do not find that a preponderance of the evidence supports a “yes” answer, then answer “no.” A preponderance of the evidence is not measured by the number of witnesses or by the number of documents admitted in evidence. For a fact to be proved by a preponderance of the evidence, you must find that the fact is more likely true than not true.

7. Do not decide who you think should win before you answer the questions and then just answer the questions to match your decision. Answer each question carefully without considering who will win. Do not discuss or consider the effect your answers will have.

8. Do not answer questions by drawing straws or by any method of chance.

9. Some questions might ask you for a dollar amount. Do not agree in advance to decide on a dollar amount by adding up each juror’s amount and then figuring the average.

10. Do not trade your answers. For example, do not say, “I will answer this question your way if you answer another question my way.”

11. [Unless otherwise instructed] The answers to the questions must be based on the decision of at least ten of the twelve jurors. The same ten jurors must agree on every answer. Do not agree to be bound by a vote of anything less than ten jurors, even if it would be a majority.

As I have said before, if you do not follow these instructions, you will be guilty of juror misconduct, and I might have to order a new trial and start this process over again. This would waste your time and the parties' money, and would require the taxpayers of this county to pay for another trial. If a juror breaks any of these rules, tell that person to stop and report it to me immediately.

*[Definitions, questions, and special instructions
given to the jury will be transcribed here.]*

Presiding Juror:

1. When you go into the jury room to answer the questions, the first thing you will need to do is choose a presiding juror.
2. The presiding juror has these duties:
 - a. have the complete charge read aloud if it will be helpful to your deliberations;
 - b. preside over your deliberations, meaning manage the discussions, and see that you follow these instructions;
 - c. give written questions or comments to the bailiff who will give them to the judge;
 - d. write down the answers you agree on;
 - e. get the signatures for the verdict certificate; and
 - f. notify the bailiff that you have reached a verdict.

Do you understand the duties of the presiding juror? If you do not, please tell me now.

Instructions for Signing the Verdict Certificate:

1. [Unless otherwise instructed] You may answer the questions on a vote of ten jurors. The same ten jurors must agree on every answer in the charge. This means you may not have one group of ten jurors agree on one answer and a different group of ten jurors agree on another answer.

2. If ten jurors agree on every answer, those ten jurors sign the verdict.

If eleven jurors agree on every answer, those eleven jurors sign the verdict.

If all twelve of you agree on every answer, you are unanimous and only the presiding juror signs the verdict.

3. All jurors should deliberate on every question. You may end up with all twelve of you agreeing on some answers, while only ten or eleven of you agree on other answers. But when you sign the verdict, only those ten who agree on every answer will sign the verdict.

4. [Added if the charge requires some unanimity.] There are some special instructions before Questions _____ explaining how to answer those questions. Please follow the instructions. If all twelve of you answer those questions, you will need to complete a second verdict certificate for those questions.

Do you understand these instructions? If you do not, please tell me now.

I certify that the jury was unanimous in answering the following questions. All twelve of us agreed to each of the answers. The presiding juror has signed the certificate for all twelve of us.

PJC 40.3B Charge of the Court—Six-Member Jury

[Brackets indicate optional or instructive text.]

MEMBERS OF THE JURY

After the closing arguments, you will go to the jury room to decide the case, answer the questions that are attached, and reach a verdict. You may discuss the case with other jurors only when you are all together in the jury room.

Remember my previous instructions: Do not discuss the case with anyone else, either in person or by any other means. Do not do any independent investigation about the case or conduct any research. Do not look up any words in dictionaries or on the Internet. Do not post information about the case on the Internet. Do not share any special knowledge or experiences with the other jurors. Do not use your phone or any other electronic device during your deliberations for any reason. [I will give you a number where others may contact you in case of an emergency.]

[Any notes you have taken are for your own personal use. You may take your notes back into the jury room and consult them during deliberations, but do not show or read your notes to your fellow jurors during your deliberations. Your notes are not evidence. Each of you should rely on your independent recollection of the evidence and not be influenced by the fact that another juror has or has not taken notes.]

[You must leave your notes with the bailiff when you are not deliberating. The bailiff will give your notes to me promptly after collecting them from you. I will make sure your notes are kept in a safe, secure location and not disclosed to anyone. After you complete your deliberations, the bailiff will collect your notes. When you are released from jury duty, the bailiff will promptly destroy your notes so that nobody can read what you wrote.]

Here are the instructions for answering the questions.

1. Do not let bias, prejudice, or sympathy play any part in your decision.
2. Base your answers only on the evidence admitted in court and on the law that is in these instructions and questions. Do not consider or discuss any evidence that was not admitted in the courtroom.
3. You are to make up your own minds about the facts. You are the sole judges of the credibility of the witnesses and the weight to give their testimony. But on matters of law, you must follow all of my instructions.
4. If my instructions use a word in a way that is different from its ordinary meaning, use the meaning I give you, which will be a proper legal definition.
5. All the questions and answers are important. No one should say that any question or answer is not important.
6. Answer “yes” or “no” to all questions unless you are told otherwise. A “yes” answer must be based on a preponderance of the evidence [unless you are told otherwise]. Whenever a question requires an answer other than “yes” or “no,” your answer must be based on a preponderance of the evidence [unless you are told otherwise].

The term “preponderance of the evidence” means the greater weight of credible evidence presented in this case. If you do not find that a preponderance of the evidence supports a “yes” answer, then answer “no.” A preponderance of the evidence is not measured by the number of witnesses or by the number of documents admitted in evidence. For a fact to be proved by a preponderance of the evidence, you must find that the fact is more likely true than not true.

7. Do not decide who you think should win before you answer the questions and then just answer the questions to match your decision. Answer each question carefully without considering who will win. Do not discuss or consider the effect your answers will have.

8. Do not answer questions by drawing straws or by any method of chance.

9. Some questions might ask you for a dollar amount. Do not agree in advance to decide on a dollar amount by adding up each juror’s amount and then figuring the average.

10. Do not trade your answers. For example, do not say, “I will answer this question your way if you answer another question my way.”

11. [Unless otherwise instructed] The answers to the questions must be based on the decision of at least five of the six jurors. The same five jurors must agree on every answer. Do not agree to be bound by a vote of anything less than five jurors, even if it would be a majority.

As I have said before, if you do not follow these instructions, you will be guilty of juror misconduct, and I might have to order a new trial and start this process over again. This would waste your time and the parties’ money, and would require the taxpayers of this county to pay for another trial. If a juror breaks any of these rules, tell that person to stop and report it to me immediately.

*[Definitions, questions, and special instructions

Presiding Juror:

1. When you go into the jury room to answer the questions, the first thing you will need to do is choose a presiding juror.
2. The presiding juror has these duties:
 - a. have the complete charge read aloud if it will be helpful to your deliberations;
 - b. preside over your deliberations, meaning manage the discussions, and see that you follow these instructions;
 - c. give written questions or comments to the bailiff who will give them to the judge;
 - d. write down the answers you agree on;
 - e. get the signatures for the verdict certificate; and
 - f. notify the bailiff that you have reached a verdict.

Do you understand the duties of the presiding juror? If you do not, please tell me now.

Instructions for Signing the Verdict Certificate:

1. [Unless otherwise instructed] You may answer the questions on a vote of five jurors. The same five jurors must agree on every answer in the charge. This means you may not have one group of five jurors agree on one answer and a different group of five jurors agree on another answer.
2. If five jurors agree on every answer, those five jurors sign the verdict.

If all six of you agree on every answer, you are unanimous and only the presiding juror signs the verdict.

3. All jurors should deliberate on every question. You may end up with all six of you agreeing on some answers, while only five of you agree on other answers. But when you sign the verdict, only those five who agree on every answer will sign the verdict.

4. [Added if the charge requires some unanimity.] There are some special instructions before Questions _____ explaining how to answer those questions. Please follow the instructions. If all six of you answer those questions, you will need to complete a second verdict certificate for those questions.

Do you understand these instructions? If you do not, please tell me now.

COMMENT

When to use. The above charge of the court includes the written instructions prescribed in Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a. The court must provide each member of the jury a copy of the charge, including the written instructions, “with such modifications as the circumstances of the particular case may require” before closing arguments begin.

Modification of additional certificate. The additional certificate set forth in Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a lists the questions that require unanimous answers for an award of exemplary damages and requires the presiding juror to sign the certificate only if the jury answered unanimously to all of the listed questions. This format may require modification in cases involving multiple claims and/or multiple parties. In such cases, the jury’s answers might be unanimous as to some but not all of the listed questions, and therefore the presiding juror will be unable to sign the certificate even though an award of exemplary damages might be appropriate based on the questions to which the jury answered unanimously. The Committee suggests that the additional certificate be modified in such multiclaim, multiparty cases. One possible approach is as follows:

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 40.4 should be used as an instruction for the second phase of a bifurcated trial pursuant to Transportation Insurance Co. v. Moriel, 879 S.W.2d 10, 29–30 (Tex. 1994), or Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.009. If questions that do not require unanimity are submitted in the second phase of a trial, use the verdict certificate in PJC 40.3.

Source of instruction. The foregoing instructions are prescribed in Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. For actions filed before September 1, 2003, add the following instruction derived from Hyman Farm Service, Inc. v. Earth Oil & Gas Co., 920 S.W.2d 452 (Tex. App.—Amarillo 1996, no writ), along with signature lines for jurors to use if the verdict is not unanimous:

I shall now give you additional instructions that you should carefully and strictly follow during your deliberations.

All jurors have the right and the responsibility to deliberate on [this] [these] question[s], but at least ten [five] of those who agreed to the verdict in the first phase of this trial must agree to this answer and sign this verdict accordingly. If your first verdict was unanimous, this second verdict may be rendered by the vote of at least ten [five] of you.

Modification of additional certificate. The additional certificate set forth in Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a lists the questions that require unanimous answers for an award of exemplary damages and requires the presiding juror to sign the certificate only if the jury answered unanimously to all of the listed questions. This format may require modification in cases involving multiple claims and/or multiple parties. In such cases, the jury’s answers might be unanimous as to some but not all of the listed questions, and therefore the presiding juror will be unable to sign the certificate even though an award of exemplary damages might be appropriate based on the questions to which the jury answered unanimously. PJC 40.5 Instructions to Jury after Verdict

Thank you for your verdict.

I have told you that the only time you may discuss the case is with the other jurors in the jury room. I now release you from jury duty. Now you may discuss the case with anyone. But you may also choose not to discuss the case; that is your right.

After you are released from jury duty, the lawyers and others may ask you questions to see if the jury followed the instructions, and they may ask you to give a sworn statement. You are free to discuss the case with them and to give a sworn statement. But you may choose not to discuss the case and not to give a sworn statement; that is your right.

COMMENT

When to use. The foregoing instructions are prescribed in Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a. The instructions are to be given orally to the jury “after the verdict has been accepted by the court and before the jurors are released from jury duty.”

PJC 40.6 Instruction to Jury If Permitted to Separate

You are again instructed that it is your duty not to communicate with, or permit yourselves to be addressed by, any other person about any subject relating to the case.

COMMENT

When to use. The foregoing instruction is required by Tex. R. Civ. P. 284 “[i]f jurors are permitted to separate before they are released from jury duty, either during the trial or after the case is submitted to them.”

PJC 40.7 Instruction If Jury Disagrees about Testimony

[Brackets indicate instructive text.]

MEMBERS OF THE JURY:

You have made the following request in writing:

[Insert copy of request.]

Your request is governed by the following rule:

“If the jury disagree as to the statement of any witness, they may, upon applying to the court, have read to them from the court reporter’s notes that part of such witness’ testimony on the point in dispute ”

If you report that you disagree concerning the statement of a witness and specify the point on which you disagree, the court reporter will search his notes and read to you the testimony of the witness on the point.

JUDGE PRESIDING

COMMENT

When to use. This written instruction is based on Tex. R. Civ. P. 287 and is to be used if the jurors request that testimony from the court reporter’s notes be read to them.

PJC 40.8 Circumstantial Evidence (Optional)

A fact may be established by direct evidence or by circumstantial evidence or both. A fact is established by direct evidence when proved by documentary evidence or by witnesses who saw the act done or heard the words spoken. A fact is established by circumstantial evidence when it may be fairly and reasonably inferred from other facts proved.

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 40.8 may be used when there is circumstantial evidence in the case. It would be placed in the charge of the court (PJC 40.3) after the instruction on preponderance of the evidence and immediately before the definitions, questions, and special instructions. For cases defining circumstantial evidence, see Blount v. Bordens, Inc., 910 S.W.2d 931, 933 (Tex. 1995) (per curiam), and Russell v. Russell, 865 S.W.2d 929, 933 (Tex. 1993). It is not error to give or to refuse an instruction on circumstantial evidence. Larson v. Ellison, 217 S.W.2d 420 (Tex. 1949); Johnson v. Zurich General Accident & Liability Insurance Co., 205 S.W.2d 353 (Tex. 1947); Adams v. Valley Federal Credit Union, 848 S.W.2d 182, 188 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi 1992, writ denied).

PJC 40.9 Instructions to Deadlocked Jury

I have your note that you are deadlocked. In the interest of justice, if you could end this litigation by your verdict, you should do so.

I do not mean to say that any individual juror should yield his or her own conscience and positive conviction, but I do mean that when you are in the jury room, you should discuss this matter carefully, listen to each other, and try, if you can, to reach a conclusion on the questions. It is your duty as a juror to keep your mind open and free to every reasonable argument that may be presented by your fellow jurors so that this jury may arrive at a verdict that justly answers the consciences of the individuals making up this jury. You should not have any pride of opinion and should avoid hastily forming or expressing an opinion. At the same time, you should not surrender any conscientious views founded on the evidence unless convinced of your error by your fellow jurors.

If you fail to reach a verdict, this case may have to be tried before another jury. Then all of our time will have been wasted.

Accordingly, I return you to your deliberations.

COMMENT

Source. The foregoing instructions are modeled on the charge in Stevens v. Travelers Insurance Co., 563 S.W.2d 223 (Tex. 1978), and on Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a.

PJC 40.10 Privilege—No Adverse Inference

[Brackets indicate instructive text.]

You are instructed that you may not draw an adverse inference from [name of party]'s claim of [privilege asserted] privilege.

COMMENT

When to use. On request by any party against whom the jury might draw an adverse inference from a claim of privilege, the court shall instruct the jury that no inference may be drawn therefrom. Tex. R. Evid. 513(d). The court is not required by rule 513(d) to submit such an instruction regarding the privilege against self-incrimination. Tex. R. Evid. 513(c), (d); see also Wilz v. Flournoy, 228 S.W.3d 674 (Tex. 2007).

Scope of assertion of privilege. The Committee expresses no opinion as to the propriety of such an instruction on the assertion of a privilege by a nonparty witness.

PJC 40.11 Parallel Theories on Damages

In answering questions about damages, answer each question separately. Do not increase or reduce the amount in one answer because of your answer to any other question about damages. Do not speculate about what any party's ultimate recovery may or may not be. Any recovery will be determined by the court when it applies the law to your answers at the time of judgment.

COMMENT

When to use. If several theories of recovery are submitted in the charge and any theory has a different legal measure of damages to be applied to a factually similar claim for damages, the Committee recommends that a separate damages question for each theory be submitted and that the above additional instruction be included earlier in the charge.

PJC 40.12 Instruction on Spoliation

[Brackets indicate optional, alternative, or instructive text.]

[Name of spoliating party] [destroyed/failed to preserve/destroyed or failed to preserve] [describe evidence]. You [must/may] consider that this evidence would have been unfavorable to [name of spoliating party] on the issue of [describe issue(s) to which evidence would have been relevant].

COMMENT

When to use. The above instruction is recommended for the adverse inference resulting from spoliation. In Brookshire Bros. v. Aldridge, 438 S.W.3d 9 (Tex. 2014), the Texas Supreme Court clarified the standards governing spoliation and the parameters of a trial court’s discretion to impose spoliation remedies based on the facts of the case. After the trial court has determined that a party has spoliated evidence, it has broad discretion to impose a remedy that is proportionate to the conduct, including, under appropriate circumstances, a spoliation instruction to the jury. Brookshire Bros., 438 S.W.3d at 23–26. A spoliation instruction is a severe sanction the court may use to remedy an act of intentional spoliation that prejudices the nonspoliating party. Brookshire Bros., 438 S.W.3d at 23. To find intentional spoliation, the spoliator must have “acted with the subjective purpose of concealing or destroying discoverable evidence.” Brookshire Bros., 438 S.W.3d at 24. To submit a spoliation instruction the trial court must find that “(1) the spoliating party acted with intent to conceal discoverable evidence, or (2) the spoliating party acted negligently and caused the nonspoliating party to be irreparably deprived of any meaningful ability to present a claim or defense.” Wackenhut Corp. v. Gutierrez, 453 S.W.3d 917, 921 (Tex. 2015). Moreover, the court must find that a less severe remedy would be insufficient to reduce the prejudice caused by the spoliation. Brookshire Bros., 438 S.W.3d at 25.

On rare occasions the negligent breach of the duty to reasonably preserve evidence may support the submission of a spoliation instruction. Where the spoliation “so prejudices the nonspoliating party that it is irreparably deprived of having any meaningful ability to present a claim or defense,” the court has discretion to remedy the extreme prejudice by submitting a spoliation instruction. Brookshire Bros., 438 S.W.3d at 26.

Caveat. Because the imposition of a spoliation instruction is considered extremely severe, it should be used cautiously, as the wrongful submission of an instruction may result in a reversal of the case. Brookshire Bros., 438 S.W.3d at 17 (citing Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Johnson, 106 S.W.3d 718, 724 (Tex. 2003) (“[I]f a spoliation instruction should not have been given, the likelihood of harm from the erroneous instruction is substantial, particularly when the case is closely contested. ”)).

Required findings by the court. Whether a spoliation instruction is appropriate is a question of law for the court. Brookshire Bros., 438 S.W.3d at 20 (citing Trevino v. Ortega, 969 S.W.2d 950, 954–55, 960 (Baker, J., concurring)). Before considering whether to instruct the jury on spoliation as a remedy for the loss, alteration, or unavailability of certain evidence, a court must consider—

1. whether there was a duty to preserve the evidence at issue,
2. whether the alleged spoliator breached that duty, and
3. prejudice.

Brookshire Bros., 438 S.W.3d at 20.

In evaluating prejudice the court must analyze—

1. relevance of the spoliated evidence to key issues in the case;
2. the harmful effect of the evidence on the spoliating party's case (or conversely, whether the evidence would be helpful to the nonspoliating party's case); and
3. whether the spoliated evidence was cumulative.

Brookshire Bros., 438 S.W.3d at 20; see also Petroleum Solutions, Inc. v. Head, 454 S.W.3d 482 (Tex. 2014). Because the imposition of a spoliation instruction is such a severe sanction, courts must first determine whether a direct relationship exists between the conduct, the offender, and the sanction imposed, and the sanction must not be more severe than necessary. Petroleum Solutions, Inc., 454 S.W.3d at 489 (citing TransAmerican Natural Gas Corp. v. Powell, 811 S.W.2d 913 (Tex. 1991)).

Use of “may” or “must.” In Brookshire Bros., the majority does not articulate the specific language that should be included in the instruction, particularly whether the jury “may” or “must” consider that the missing evidence would have been unfavorable to the spoliator. The dissent in Brookshire Bros. interpreted the majority as requiring the use of the term must. Brookshire Bros., 438 S.W.3d at 34. The overarching guideline, as with any sanction, remains proportionality. ‘Upon a finding of spoliation, the trial court has broad discretion to impose a remedy that, as with any discovery sanction, must be proportionate; that is, it must relate directly to the conduct giving rise to the sanction and may not be excessive. Brookshire Bros., 438 S.W.3d at 14. Whether may or must is used should be based on the facts applied to the standards articulated above.

PJC 50.1 Physician's Degree of Care; Proximate Cause

"Negligence," when used with respect to the conduct of Dr. Davis, means failure to use ordinary care, that is, failing to do that which a physician of ordinary prudence would have done under the same or similar circumstances or doing that which a physician of ordinary prudence would not have done under the same or similar circumstances.

"Ordinary care," when used with respect to the conduct of Dr. Davis, means that degree of care that a physician of ordinary prudence would use under the same or similar circumstances.

"Proximate cause," when used with respect to the conduct of Dr. Davis, means a cause that was a substantial factor in bringing about an [injury] [occurrence], and without which cause such [injury] [occurrence] would not have occurred. In order to be a proximate cause, the act or omission complained of must be such that a physician using ordinary care would have foreseen that the [injury] [occurrence], or some similar [injury] [occurrence], might reasonably result therefrom. There may be more than one proximate cause of an [injury] [occurrence].

COMMENT

When to use. These definitions should usually be included in the court's charge in a medical malpractice case involving one or more physicians. See, e.g., PJC 51.3. If the evidence raises "new and independent cause," the definitions in PJC 50.4 should be used in lieu of the definition of "proximate cause" above.

Source of definitions. The definitions include the standard and accepted elements of medical malpractice on the part of a physician. See, e.g. Hood v. Phillips, 554 S.W.2d 160, 164–66 (Tex. 1977); Webb v. Jorns, 488 S.W.2d 407, 411 (Tex. 1972); Snow v. Bond, 438 S.W.2d 549, 550–51 (Tex. 1969). The definition of "proximate cause" is based on language from Transcontinental Insurance Co. v. Crump:

[W]e first examine the causation standards for proximate cause and producing cause. "The two elements of proximate cause are cause in fact (or substantial factor) and foreseeability. Cause in fact is established when the act or omission was a substantial factor in bringing about the injuries, and without it, the harm would not have occurred." IHS Cedars Treatment Ctr. v. Mason, 143 S.W.3d 794, 798–99 (Tex. 2004). "The approved definition of 'proximate cause' in negligence cases and the approved definition of 'producing cause' in compensation cases are in substance the same, except that there is added to the definition of proximate cause the element of foreseeableness.” [Texas Indemnity Insurance Co. v. Staggs, 134 S.W.2d 1026, 1028–29 (Tex. 1940).] In other words, the producing cause inquiry is conceptually identical to that of cause in fact.

Transcontinental Insurance Co. v. Crump, 330 S.W.3d 211, 222–23 (Tex. 2010). See also Ford Motor Co. v. Ledesma, 242 S.W.3d 32, 46 (Tex. 2007).

The Crump and Ledesma opinions address the definitions of “producing cause” and “cause in fact.” As of the publication date of this edition, there is no decision that expressly overrules the traditional definition of “proximate cause” below:

“Proximate cause,” when used with respect to the conduct of Dr. Davis, means that cause which, in a natural and continuous sequence, produces an event, and without which cause such event would not have occurred. In order to be a proximate cause, the act or omission complained of must be such that a physician using ordinary care would have foreseen that the event, or some similar event, might reasonably result therefrom. There may be more than one proximate cause of an event.

Former PJC 50.1. This definition was based on the definition approved by the court in Rudes v. Gottschalk, 324 S.W.2d 201, 207 (Tex. 1959), and has been cited in many cases.

Lost chance of survival. An instruction for lost chance of survival should be submitted only if the plaintiff suffers from a particular medical condition, such as cancer, that places the proximate cause of the plaintiff’s death or impending death into question. If evidence demonstrates that such a medical condition preexists the alleged negligence of the defendant, and, at the time of the alleged negligence, the medical condition resulted in the plaintiff’s having a 50 percent or less chance of survival, the following additional instruction is proper:

You are instructed that Paul Payne must have had a greater than fifty percent (50%) chance of survival if reasonable medical care had been provided on or around [the time of the alleged negligence] for the negligence of Dr. Davis to be a proximate cause of the [injury to Paul Payne].

Columbia Rio Grande Healthcare v. Hawley, 284 S.W.3d 851, 860–61 (Tex. 2009). In an appropriate case, the words death of may be substituted for injury to.

Evidence of bad result. For earlier cases it may be appropriate, and for all actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, it will be necessary, to add an instruction about evidence of a bad result to the definition of “negligence.” See PJC 50.7.

Substitute appropriate term for specialist. The term designating the particular medical specialist involved (e.g., an orthopedic surgeon) should be substituted for the words a physician.

Limit definition to areas in issue. The negligence of the physician should be limited to those areas of practice placed in issue by the pleadings and evidence. For example, if the physician's conduct during surgery is in issue, the definition of negligence should focus on that conduct.

Modify definition of "ordinary care." Because multiple specialists perform surgery or treat the same area of the body (e.g., a neurosurgeon and an orthopedic surgeon both perform lumbar laminectomies), it may be appropriate to use the following definition of "ordinary care"

When used with respect to the conduct of Dr. Davis, "ordinary care" means that degree of care that a physician of ordinary prudence, possessing and exercising a reasonable degree of skill and learning in back surgery, would use under the same or similar circumstances.

For a general surgeon and a plastic surgeon who both perform breast surgery, the standard should be that of a breast surgeon. Similarly, for an orthopedic surgeon and a podiatrist who both perform foot surgery, the standard should be that of a foot surgeon. See King v. Flamm, 442 S.W.2d 679, 681 (Tex. 1969).

Evidence of customary practice and standard of care. In Hood, 554 S.W.2d 160, the supreme court rejected standards of care that would in any way embody the concept that negligence should be determined by what a given number of physicians do. Hence, the standards of "reasonable surgeons would disagree," "respectable minority," "considerable number," "any variance," and "consensus" were expressly rejected as legal standards for the medical profession. Hood, 554 S.W.2d at 165. An instruction or definition to the jury on any of these rejected standards would be improper. Henderson v. Heyer-Schulte Corp., 600 S.W.2d 844 (Tex. Civ. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1980, writ ref'd n.r.e.).

A proper analysis of the ultimate issue of the standard of care may involve a consideration of the role of custom. In typical negligence cases, custom is some evidence of the standard of care; however, it is never conclusive. Leadon v. Kimbrough Bros. Lumber Co., 484 S.W.2d 567, 569 (Tex. 1972); Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe Railway v. Evansich, 61 Tex. 3, 6 (1884). The ultimate inquiry for the jury is whether the defendant failed to act as a reasonably prudent person would have acted. The parties are not entitled to jury questions inquiring whether a defendant has complied with custom. Brown v. Lundell, 344 S.W.2d 863, 867 (Tex. 1961). Texas courts have held that medical custom or usual or routine practice is admissible as some evidence of the medical standard of care in a given case. Kissinger v. Turner, 727 S.W.2d 750, 755 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 1987, writ ref'd n.r.e.); Golden Villa Nursing Home v. Smith, 674 S.W.2d 343, 348 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1984, writ ref'd n.r.e.); see also Tex. R. Evid. 406 (habit; routine practice).

Locality rule. The supreme court has held that the purpose of the locality rule is served if the definitions of “negligence” and “ordinary care” refer to conduct “under the same or similar circumstances.” Thus, it is not necessary to include language such as “this or similar communities” in the charge to the jury. Birchfield v. Texarkana Memorial Hospital, 747 S.W.2d 361, 366 (Tex. 1987); Peterson v. Shields, 652 S.W.2d 929 (Tex. 1983); see also Hickson v. Martinez, 707 S.W.2d 919, 925 (Tex. App.—Dallas 1985), writ ref’d n.r.e. per curiam, 716 S.W.2d 499 (Tex. 1986) (locality rule is predicate to admit expert testimony and is therefore question of law, not fact, and need not be submitted in charge). There are certain minimum standards universally regarded as ordinary medical standards. See Webb, 488 S.W.2d at 411.

Using “reasonable care” instead of “ordinary care.” In Hiroms v. Scheffey, 76 S.W.3d 486, 488–89 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2002, no pet.), the court noted that there was merit to the appellant’s contention that the standard of care in medical malpractice cases should turn on whether the defendant exercised reasonable care rather than ordinary care. But the court ultimately did not resolve the issue because the appellant had failed to preserve error. The Committee raises the issue, however, because in some cases “reasonable” may be substituted for “ordinary,” depending on the facts and circumstances. See, e.g. Dennis v. Allison, 698 S.W.2d 94, 95 (Tex. 1985) (describing actionable negligence as breach of duty of reasonable care); Helms v. Day, 215 S.W.2d 356, 358 (Tex. Civ. App.—Fort Worth 1948, writ dism’d) (absent special contract to either cure or not charge for services, a physician warrants only that he “possesses a reasonable degree of skill, such as ordinarily possessed by a profession generally, and to exercise that skill with reasonable care and diligence”) (citing Graham v. Gautier, 21 Tex. 111 (1858)); Magnolia Paper Co. v. Duffy, 176 S.W. 89, 92 (Tex. Civ. App.—San Antonio 1915, no writ) (“The final test of negligence is not usage or custom, but the inflexible rule which fixes reasonable care as the standard by which the conduct of the master to the servant is measured.”).

PJC 50.2 Hospital’s Degree of Care; Proximate Cause

“Negligence,” when used with respect to the conduct of Dixon Hospital, means failure to use ordinary care, that is, failing to do that which a hospital of ordinary prudence would have done under the same or similar circumstances or doing that which a hospital of ordinary prudence would not have done under the same or similar circumstances.

“Ordinary care,” when used with respect to the conduct of Dixon Hospital, means that degree of care that a hospital of ordinary prudence would use under the same or similar circumstances.

“Proximate cause,” when used with respect to the conduct of Dixon Hospital, means a cause that was a substantial factor in bringing about an [injury] [occurrence], and without which cause such [injury] [occurrence] would not have occurred. In order to be a proximate cause, the act or omission complained of must be such that a hospital using ordinary care would have foreseen that the [injury] [occurrence], or some similar [injury] [occurrence], might reasonably result therefrom. There may be more than one proximate cause of an [injury] [occurrence].

COMMENT

Source of definitions. These definitions reflect the standards imposed on a hospital. See Harris v. Harris County Hospital District, 557 S.W.2d 353 (Tex. Civ. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1977, no writ). The definition of “proximate cause” is based on language from Transcontinental Insurance Co. v. Crump:

[W]e first examine the causation standards for proximate cause and producing cause. The two elements of proximate cause are cause in fact (or substantial factor) and foreseeability. Cause in fact is established when the act or omission was a substantial factor in bringing about the injuries, and without it, the harm would not have occurred. IHS Cedars Treatment Ctr. v. Mason, 143 S.W.3d 794, 798–99 (Tex. 2004). The approved definition of ‘proximate cause’ in negligence cases and the approved definition of ‘producing cause’ in compensation cases are in substance the same, except that there is added to the definition of proximate cause the element of foreseeableness. [Texas Indemnity Insurance Co. v. Staggs, 134 S.W.2d 1026, 1028–29 (Tex. 1940).] In other words, the producing cause inquiry is conceptually identical to that of cause in fact.

Transcontinental Insurance Co. v. Crump, 330 S.W.3d 211, 222–23 (Tex. 2010). See also Ford Motor Co. v. Ledesma, 242 S.W.3d 32, 46 (Tex. 2007).

The Crump and Ledesma opinions address the definitions of “producing cause” and ‘cause in fact. As of the publication date of this edition, there is no decision that expressly overrules the traditional definition of ‘proximate cause’ below:

‘Proximate cause, when used with respect to the conduct of Dixon Hospital, means that cause which, in a natural and continuous sequence, produces an event, and without which cause such event would not have occurred. In order to be a proximate cause, the act or omission complained of must be such that a hospital using ordinary care would have foreseen that the event, or some similar event, might reasonably result therefrom. There may be more than one proximate cause of an event.

Former PJC 50.2. This definition was based on the definition approved by the court in Rudes v. Gottschalk, 324 S.W.2d 201, 207 (Tex. 1959), and has been cited in many cases.

When to use. These definitions should usually be included in the court’s charge in a negligence case involving a hospital. See, e.g. PJC 51.3. If the evidence raises “new and independent cause,” the definitions in PJC 50.4 should be used in lieu of the definition of ‘proximate cause’ above.

Hospital liability for conduct of agents and employees. An instruction defining how a hospital acts can be used when the claim is for the hospital’s vicarious liability based on conduct of a hospital’s agents or employees. In those circumstances, the following instruction is proper:

A hospital acts through its agents, employees, officers, and representatives, and those acts are the acts of the hospital.

However, when this instruction is used and there is no claim that the hospital is liable for the acts of the independent contractor physician, Columbia Rio Grande Healthcare v. Hawley, 284 S.W.3d 851 (Tex. 2009), indicates that the following instruction also should be given, substituting the name of the independent contractor physician:

In considering the negligence of Dixon Hospital, do not consider the acts or omissions of the independent contractor physician.

In addition, if the claim against the hospital is for vicarious liability based on the conduct of a hospital employee, such as a nurse, the definitions may be modified to substitute the particular employee in lieu of the hospital:

“Negligence,” when used with respect to the conduct of Dixon Hospital, means failure to use ordinary care, that is, failing to do that which a nurse of ordinary prudence would have done under the same or similar circumstances or doing that which a nurse of ordinary prudence would not have done under the same or similar circumstances.

“Ordinary care,” when used with respect to the conduct of Dixon Hospital, means that degree of care that a nurse of ordinary prudence would use under the same or similar circumstances.

“Proximate cause,” when used with respect to the conduct of Dixon Hospital, means a cause that was a substantial factor in bringing about an [injury] [occurrence], and without which cause such [injury] [occurrence] would not have occurred. In order to be a proximate cause, the act or omission complained of must be such that a nurse using ordinary care would have foreseen that the [injury] [occurrence], or some similar [injury] [occurrence], might reasonably result therefrom. There may be more than one proximate cause of an [injury] [occurrence].

Hospital liability relating to policies and procedures. An instruction defining how a hospital acts also can be used when a hospital’s policies or procedures are called into question or when ‘business as usual’ at a hospital is conducted outside of its written policies and procedures. Hospitals have a duty to use reasonable care in formulating the policies and procedures that govern their medical staff and nonphysician personnel and have a duty to ensure the medical staff and nonphysician personnel follow hospital policies and procedures when those policies and procedures reflect the standard of care to be provided to patients. See, e.g. Denton Regional Medical Center v. LaCroix, 947 S.W.2d 941, 950 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 1997, writ dism’d by agr.) (citing Air Shields, Inc. v. Spears, 590 S.W.2d 574, 576–81 (Tex. Civ. App.—Waco 1979, writ ref’d n.r.e.)). In appropriate circumstances, the court may consider submitting the following instruction:

A hospital acts in the manner in which it [formulates] [follows] [formulates and follows] its policies, procedures, rules, bylaws, and other governing protocols, whether express or implied.

Lost chance of survival. An instruction for lost chance of survival should be submitted only if the plaintiff suffers from a particular medical condition, such as cancer, that places the proximate cause of the plaintiff’s death or impending death into question. If evidence demonstrates that such a medical condition preexists the alleged negligence of the defendant, and, at the time of the alleged negligence, the medical condition resulted in the plaintiff’s having a 50 percent or less chance of survival, the following additional instruction is proper:

You are instructed that Paul Payne must have had a greater than fifty percent (50%) chance of survival if reasonable medical care had been provided on or around [the time of the alleged negligence] for the negligence of Dixon Hospital to be a proximate cause of the [injury to] Paul Payne.

Columbia Rio Grande Healthcare, 284 S.W.3d at 860–61. In an appropriate case, the words death of may be substituted for injury to.

Evidence of bad result. For earlier cases it may be appropriate, and for all actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, it will be necessary, to add an instruction about evidence of a bad result to the definition of “negligence. See PJC 50.7.

Limit definition to areas in issue. The negligence of the hospital should be limited to those areas of practice placed in issue by the pleadings and evidence. For example, if only the adequacy of the hospital’s equipment is in issue, the definition of negligence should focus on the conduct of the hospital with regard to the equipment. Medical & Surgical Memorial Hospital v. Cauthorn, 229 S.W.2d 932 (Tex. Civ. App.—El Paso 1949, writ ref’d n.r.e.).

Substitute particular health care provider. The appropriate term to describe the particular health care facility should be substituted for the word hospital.

Locality rule. The supreme court has held that the purpose of the locality rule is served if the definitions of “negligence” and “ordinary care” refer to conduct ‘under the same or similar circumstances. Thus, it is not necessary to include language such as “this or similar communities” in the charge to the jury. Birchfield v. Texarkana Memorial Hospital, 747 S.W.2d 361, 366 (Tex. 1987); Peterson v. Shields, 652 S.W.2d 929 (Tex. 1983); see also Hickson v. Martinez, 707 S.W.2d 919, 925 (Tex. App.—Dallas 1985), writ ref’d n.r.e. per curiam, 716 S.W.2d 499 (Tex. 1986) (locality rule is predicate to admit expert testimony and is therefore question of law, not fact, and need not be submitted in charge). There are certain minimum standards universally regarded as ordinary medical standards. See Webb v. Jorns, 488 S.W.2d 407, 411 (Tex. 1972).

Caveat. If the evidence shows that the patient’s known condition creates a known or possible danger to the patient, by the patient’s own conduct, arising from a physical or mental incapacity, the following definition of “ordinary care” may be substituted for that above:

“Ordinary care,” with respect to the conduct of Dixon Hospital, means that degree of care that a hospital of ordinary prudence would use under the same or similar circumstances, as the patient’s condition, as it is known to be, may require, including safeguarding and protecting the patient from any known or reasonably apparent danger from himself that may arise from his known mental or physical incapacity.

See Harris, 557 S.W.2d 353; Harris Hospital v. Pope, 520 S.W.2d 813 (Tex. Civ. App.—Fort Worth 1975, writ ref’d n.r.e.).

Evidence of customary practice and standard of care. The standard of care as applied to a hospital should not be determined by resort to customary, usual, or ordinary practices. See PJC 50.1 comment, ‘Evidence of customary practice and standard of care.’ The role of custom in negligence cases has been stated to be merely “evidence to be considered along with other circumstances in determining what the ordinary reasonable man would do under the circumstances. Stanley v. Southern Pacific Co., 466 S.W.2d 548, 551 (Tex. 1971). Thus, the ultimate inquiry for the jury is whether the hospital failed to act as a reasonably prudent hospital would have acted. The parties are not entitled to jury questions inquiring whether a hospital has complied with custom. See Golden Villa Nursing Home v. Smith, 674 S.W.2d 343, 348 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1984, writ ref’d n.r.e.).

Malicious credentialing claim against a hospital. See PJC 51.19.

Using “reasonable care” instead of “ordinary care.” In Hiroms v. Scheffey, 76 S.W.3d 486, 488–89 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2002, no pet.), the court noted that there was merit to the appellant’s contention that the standard of care in medical malpractice cases should turn on whether the defendant exercised reasonable care rather than ordinary care. But the court ultimately did not resolve the issue because the appellant had failed to preserve error. The Committee raises the issue, however, because in some cases “reasonable” may be substituted for “ordinary,” depending on the facts and circumstances. See, e.g. Dennis v. Allison, 698 S.W.2d 94, 95 (Tex. 1985) (describing actionable negligence as breach of duty of reasonable care); Helms v. Day, 215 S.W.2d 356, 358 (Tex. Civ. App.—Fort Worth 1948, writ dismiss’d) (absent special contract to either cure or not charge for services, a physician warrants only that he ‘possesses a reasonable degree of skill, such as ordinarily possessed by a profession generally, and to exercise that skill with reasonable care and diligence’) (citing Graham v. Gautier, 21 Tex. 111 (1858)); Magnolia Paper Co. v. Duffy, 176 S.W. 89, 92 (Tex. Civ. App.—San Antonio 1915, no writ) (“The final test of negligence is not usage or custom, but the inflexible rule which fixes reasonable care as the standard by which the conduct of the master to the servant is measured.”).

PJC 50.3 Health Care Personnel’s Degree of Care; Proximate Cause

“Negligence,” when used with respect to the conduct of Don Donaldson, means failure to use ordinary care, that is, failing to do that which a person of ordinary prudence would have done under the same or similar circumstances or doing that which a person of ordinary prudence would not have done under the same or similar circumstances.

“Ordinary care,” when used with respect to the conduct of Don Donaldson, means that degree of care that a person of ordinary prudence would use under the same or similar circumstances.

“Proximate cause,” when used with respect to the conduct of Don Donaldson, means a cause that was a substantial factor in bringing about an [injury] [occurrence], and without which cause such [injury] [occurrence] would not have occurred. In order to be a proximate cause, the act or omission complained of must be such that a person using ordinary care would have foreseen that the [injury] [occurrence], or some similar [injury] [occurrence], might reasonably result therefrom. There may be more than one proximate cause of an [injury] [occurrence].

App.—El Paso 2001, pet. denied) (occupational therapist employed by health care provider is within ambit of article 4590i).

Substitute appropriate term for particular personnel—actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. See the definition of “health care provider” in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.001(a)(12).

Using “reasonable care” instead of “ordinary care.” In Hirons v. Scheffey, 76 S.W.3d 486, 488–89 (Tex. PJC 50.4 New and Independent Cause—Medical “Proximate cause,” when used with respect to the conduct of Dr. Davis, means a cause, unbroken by any new and independent cause, that was a substantial factor in bringing about an [injury] [occurrence], and without which cause such [injury] [occurrence] would not have occurred. In order to be a proximate cause, the act or omission complained of must be such that a physician exercising ordinary care would have foreseen that the [injury] [occurrence], or some similar [injury] [occurrence], might reasonably result therefrom. There may be more than one proximate cause of an [injury] [occurrence].

“New and independent cause” means the act or omission of a separate and independent agency, not reasonably foreseeable by a physician exercising ordinary care, that destroys the causal connection, if any, between the act or omission inquired about and the occurrence in question and thereby becomes the immediate cause of such occurrence.

COMMENT

When to use—given in lieu of PJC 50.1–50.3. PJC 50.4 should be used in lieu of the usual definitions of “proximate cause” (see PJC 50.1–50.3) if there is evidence of a new and independent cause. See Tarry Warehouse & Storage Co. v. Duvall, 115 S.W.2d 401, 405 (Tex. 1938); Phoenix Refining Co. v. Tips, 81 S.W.2d 60, 61 (Tex. 1935). Submission if there is no such evidence is improper and may be reversible error. Galvan v. Fedder, 678 S.W.2d 596, 598–99 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1984, no writ). See also James v. Kloos, 75 S.W.3d 153, 162–63 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2002, no pet.).

Because a new and independent cause is in the nature of an inferential rebuttal, it should be submitted by instruction only. Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. For elements to consider when determining whether a new and independent cause exists, see Columbia Rio Grande Healthcare v. Hawley, 284 S.W.3d 851, 857–59 (Tex. 2009). The “new and independent cause” instruction is not used when the intervening forces are foreseeable and within the scope of risk created by the actor’s conduct. Dew v. Crown Derrick Erectors, Inc., 208 S.W.3d 448, 450–53 (Tex. 2006).

Substitute a person or appropriate term for specialist. The term a person or an appropriate term describing the specialist or health care provider involved should be substituted for the words a physician.

Caveat. The Texas Supreme Court has acknowledged that inferential rebuttals “serve a legitimate purpose. The court also cautioned, however, that multiple inferential rebuttal instructions have “the potential to skew the jury’s analysis.” Dillard v. Texas Electric Cooperative, 157 S.W.3d 429, 433 (Tex. 2005).

PJC 50.5 Sole Proximate Cause—Medical

There may be more than one proximate cause of an [injury] [occurrence], but if an act or omission of any person not a party to the suit was the “sole proximate cause” of an [injury] [occurrence], then no act or omission of any party could have been a proximate cause.

COMMENT

When to use—given in lieu of last sentence of proximate cause definition. PJC 50.5 should be used in lieu of the last sentence of the definition of “proximate cause” (see PJC 50.1–50.3) if there is evidence that a person’s conduct that is not submitted to the jury is the sole proximate cause of the occurrence. See American Jet, Inc. v. Leyendecker, 683 S.W.2d 121, 126 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1984, no writ); Herrera v. Balmorhea Feeders, Inc., 539 S.W.2d 84, 86 (Tex. Civ. App.—El Paso 1976, writ ref’d n.r.e.). Submission if there is no such evidence is improper and may be reversible error. See Huerta v. Hotel Dieu Hospital, 636 S.W.2d 208, 211 (Tex. App.—El Paso), rev’d on other grounds, 639 S.W.2d 462 (Tex. 1982). “Sole proximate cause” is an inferential rebuttal and should be submitted by instruction. Jackson v. Fontaine’s Clinics, 499 S.W.2d 87, 90–91 (Tex. 1973).

Definition. In Dillard v. Texas Electric Cooperative, 157 S.W.3d 429, 432 (Tex. 2005), the court recognized the following definition of “sole proximate cause”

There may be more than one proximate cause of an event, but if an act or omission of any person not a party to the suit was the ‘sole proximate cause’ of an occurrence, then no act or omission of any other persons could have been a proximate cause.

Conduct need not be negligence to be sole proximate cause. A person’s conduct need not be negligence to be a sole proximate cause. Plemmons v. Gary, 321 S.W.2d 625, 626 (Tex. Civ. App.—Beaumont 1959, orig. proceeding); Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe Railway v. Jones, 221 S.W.2d 1010, 1014 (Tex. Civ. App.—Eastland 1949, writ ref’d n.r.e.); Fort Worth & Denver City Railway v. Bozeman, 135 S.W.2d 275, 281 (Tex. Civ. App.—Amarillo 1939, writ dism’d judgm’t cor.).

Caveat. The Texas Supreme Court has acknowledged that inferential rebuttals “serve a legitimate purpose.” The court also cautioned, however, that multiple inferential rebuttal instructions have “the potential to skew the jury’s analysis. Dillard, 157 S.W.3d at 433.

PJC 50.6 Physician-Patient Relationship

QUESTION _____

At the time in question, was Paul Payne the patient of Dr. Davis with respect to Paul Payne's stomach ulcer?

A physician-patient relationship exists only if the physician has agreed, expressly or impliedly, to render medical services of a specified or general nature to the person claiming such relationship.

Answer "Yes" or "No."

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 50.6 may be given if the existence of a physician-patient relationship between the defendant-physician and the plaintiff is in dispute.

Relationship arises out of contract. Except for cases arising under the "Good Samaritan" law (see PJC 51.18), a physician is liable only if there is a physician-patient relationship arising out of a contract, express or implied, that the physician will treat the patient with proper professional skill and there is a negligent breach of that duty proximately causing damages. St. John v. Pope, 901 S.W.2d 420 (Tex. 1995); see also Lecton v. Dyll, 65 S.W.3d 696 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2001, pet. denied).

Particular medical condition. The appropriate term for the plaintiff's particular medical condition should be substituted for the words stomach ulcer.

Caveat. There are certain circumstances under which the existence of a physician-patient relationship is not required to impose the duty of ordinary care on a physician. See Gooden v. Tips, 651 S.W.2d 364 (Tex. App.—Tyler 1983, no writ) (physician can owe duty to use reasonable care to protect public when physician's negligence in diagnosis or treatment of patient contributes to plaintiff's injuries); Lunsford v. Board of Nurse Examiners, 648 S.W.2d 391, 394–95 (Tex. App.—Austin 1983, no writ) (nurse had legal duty to care for patient). But see Bird v. W.C.W., 868 S.W.2d 767, 768 (Tex. 1994) (limiting Gooden and holding that as a matter of law no professional duty runs from psychologist to third party to not negligently misdiagnose condition of patient).

Physician employed by third party to examine another. A physician who is employed by a third party to make a physical examination of another person (e.g., an employee or an applicant) and to report the results to the third party cannot be held liable for failure to diagnose an existing condition but may be held liable under certain circumstances. Wilson v. Winsett, 828 S.W.2d 231, 233 (Tex. App.—Amarillo 1992, writ denied); Johnston v. Sibley, 558 S.W.2d 135, 137–38 (Tex. Civ. App.—Tyler 1977, writ ref'd n.r.e.); Lotspeich v. Chance Vought Aircraft, 369 S.W.2d 705, 710 (Tex. Civ. App.—Dallas 1963, writ ref'd n.r.e.).

Consultants retained by attending physician. The third-party employment situation should be distinguished from the retention of the defendant-physician by the patient's attending physician. The attending physician may be empowered by the patient to act as his agent in the formation of the physician-patient relationship. See Weiser v. Hampton, 445 S.W.2d 224, 230–31 (Tex. Civ. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1969, writ ref'd n.r.e.).

Termination. If there is evidence of termination of a physician-patient relationship, the following instruction may be added to PJC 50.6:

A physician-patient relationship does not exist when either the physician or the patient has terminated the relationship. A patient may terminate the relationship at any time. The physician may terminate the relationship at any time if reasonable provision for adequate medical care is made or if the patient is not in need of continuing medical care.

If the need for continuing medical care is an issue in the case and a claim of abandonment is made, see PJC 51.7.

PJC 50.7 Evidence of Bad Result

A finding of negligence may not be based solely on evidence of a bad result to the claimant in question, but a bad result may be considered by you, along with other evidence, in determining the issue of negligence. You are the sole judges of the weight, if any, to be given to this kind of evidence.

COMMENT

When to use.

Actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. The above instruction should be added to the definition of ‘negligence’ for any action on a health care liability claim filed on or after September 1, 2003. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.303(e)(2).

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. For causes of action accruing on or after September 1, 1989, and filed before September 1, 2003, it may be appropriate to add the following instruction to the definition of ‘negligence’

A finding of negligence may not be based solely on evidence of a bad result to the patient in question, but such a bad result may be considered by you, along with other evidence, in determining the issue of negligence; you shall be the sole judges of the weight, if any, to be given to any such evidence.

Former Tex. Rev. Civ. Stat. art. 4590i, § 7.02(a) (Acts 1989, 71st Leg., R.S., ch. 1027, § 28 (H.B. 18), eff. Sept. 1, 1989).

PJC 50.8 Open Courts Challenge

QUESTION _____

Do you find that Paul Payne, Jr., did not [actually discover or] have a reasonable opportunity to discover the negligence you found in response to Question[s] _____ [applicable liability question(s)] on or before [statutory two-year limitations expiration date]?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

If you answered the above question “Yes,” then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

QUESTION _____

Do you find that Paul Payne, Jr., filed suit within a reasonable time against those you found negligent in response to Question[s] _____ [applicable liability question(s)] after Paul Payne, Jr., [actually discovered or] reasonably should have discovered the negligent act or acts in issue?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENTS

When to use. PJC 50.8 may be submitted if the suit was not filed within the limitations period of Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.251(a) (or § 74.051(c), if applicable) but the plaintiff has challenged the application of the limitations period under a claim that it violates his right to reasonable access to the courts under the Open Courts provision of the Texas Constitution, Tex. Const. art I, § 13.

If there is more than one defendant and the “actually discovered” or “should have discovered” date may be different as to two or more of those defendants, separate questions may be required for each defendant and the questions should be modified accordingly.

Common-law claims only. The Open Courts defense to limitations is limited to well-established common-law causes of action, such as claims for personal injury, but is inapplicable as a matter of law when the plaintiff is pursuing any purely statutory claim, such as a wrongful death or survival claim. Bala v. Maxwell, 909 S.W.2d 889, 893 (Tex. 1995). Accordingly, PJC 50.8 should not be submitted in connection with any statutory cause of action.

Actual discovery within limitations period. The bracketed language in the questions above should be used only when the actual discovery of the wrong within the limitations period is raised by the evidence but is disputed by the plaintiff.

Caveat. A number of Texas cases have held that the Open Courts provision was or was not implicated as a matter of law because the summary judgment evidence conclusively demonstrated that (1) the plaintiff either actually discovered or had a reasonable cause to suspect, investigate, and discover the fact of the injury and its cause before the limitations period expired (see, e.g. Tenet Hospitals, Ltd. v. Rivera, 445 S.W.3d 698, 704 (Tex. 2014), and Jennings v. Burgess, 917 S.W.2d 790, 794 (Tex. 1996)); or (2) the plaintiff did not and could not reasonably have discovered the injury before the limitations period passed (see, e.g. Stone v. Coronado, No. 03-11-00243-CV, 2012 WL 2076831 (Tex. App.—Austin June 6, 2012, no pet.), and DeRuy v. Garza, 995 S.W.2d 748, 752 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1999, no pet.)).

Other cases have made it clear, though, that when the evidence is disputed about whether the plaintiff actually discovered or reasonably should have discovered the injury and its cause before limitations expired, a fact issue is presented. For example, in Shah v. Moss, the Texas Supreme Court held that it was the plaintiff's "burden to raise a fact issue demonstrating that he did not have a reasonable opportunity to discover the alleged wrong before the limitations period expired. Shah v. Moss, 67 S.W.3d 836, 846–47 (Tex. 2001). Accord Walters v. Cleveland Regional Medical Center, 307 S.W.3d 292, 295–96 (Tex. 2010); Yancy v. United Surgical Partners International, Inc., 236 S.W.3d 778, 784–85 (Tex. 2007); Morrison v. Chan, 699 S.W.2d 205, 207 (Tex. 1985); Gagnier v. Wichelhaus, 17 S.W.3d 739, 744 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 2000, pet. denied); Boyd v. Kallam, 152 S.W.3d 670, 676–78 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2004), pet. denied, 232 S.W.3d 774 (Tex. 2007); and DeRuy, 995 S.W.2d at 752–53.

The courts have also held that when there is a fact issue about whether a plaintiff actually discovered or reasonably should have discovered the injury and its cause before the limitations period expired, the jury can consider whether during that period of time the plaintiff received conflicting medical advice or relied on statements from health care providers that the continuing problem had some cause other than the negligence of the prior health care provider. Walters, 307 S.W.3d at 296; Gagnier, 17 S.W.3d at 744-45; Boyd, 152 S.W.3d at 684–85; Melendez v. Beal, 683 S.W.2d 869, 872 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1984, no writ).

If it is determined, either as a matter of law or as found by the jury, that the plaintiff did not discover and reasonably should not have discovered the injury and its cause within the limitations period, a plaintiff still has only a "reasonable time to investigate, prepare, and file suit after discovering her injury. Moroles v. Doctor's Hospital at Renaissance, Ltd., No. 13-09-00425-CV, 2010 WL 596855 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi Feb. 8, 2010, no pet.) (citing Pech v. Estate of Tavaréz, 112 S.W.3d 282, 285–86 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi 2003, no pet.)); DeRuy, 995 S.W.2d at 752; LaGessee v. PrimaCare, Inc. 899 S.W.2d 43, 46–47 (Tex. App.—Eastland 1995, writ denied).

Unfortunately, the courts have not been consistent in defining a “reasonable time” in this circumstance. At times, unexplained delays of varying lengths constitute an absence of due diligence in filing suit as a matter of law. See Shah, 67 S.W.3d at 847 (seventeen months); Erickson v. Heim-Hall, 172 S.W.3d 664, 666 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2005, no pet.) (nineteen months); Pech, 112 S.W.3d at 287 (fourteen months); Yancy, 236 S.W.3d at 785 (twenty-two months).

In other cases, though, the courts have held that an explained delay creates a fact issue about the reasonableness of the time between when the negligence was or should have been discovered and when suit was filed. For example, in Gagnier, the court held there was an issue of fact presented, despite a delay of ten months, because the plaintiff presented evidence that she was hindered by the defendants’ refusal to provide medical records and by “other circumstances,” including time required for medical recovery, consultation with an attorney, and investigation. Gagnier, 17 S.W.3d at 745–46. In DeRuy, the court held that an issue of fact was presented despite a one-year delay because the plaintiff recuperated for three months after the surgery that gave rise to the discovery of the negligence, went to an attorney six months thereafter, and sued within three months of consulting with that attorney. DeRuy, 995 S.W.2d at 752–53. It is clear from these cases that explanations sufficient to raise an issue of fact in this regard vary on a case-by-case analysis. The Committee expresses no opinion about the type or degree of evidence that may be required to raise an issue of fact for jury submission in this regard in any particular case.

PJC 51.1 Use of “Injury” or “Occurrence” (Comment)

“Injury” should be used if the issue of the responsibility of more than one person is submitted to the jury under the proportionate responsibility statute. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.001–.017. For suits filed after September 1, 1987, section 33.003 requires a finding of “percentage of responsibility” in pure negligence cases as well as in “mixed” cases involving claims of negligence and strict liability and/or warranty. The statute defines “percentage of responsibility” in terms of “causing or contributing to cause in any way the personal injury, property damage, death, or other harm for which recovery of damages is sought.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.011(4) (emphasis added); Nabors Well Services, Ltd. v. Romero, 456 S.W.3d 553, 563 (Tex. 2015) (holding that the proportionate responsibility statute requires fact finders to consider relevant evidence of a plaintiff’s preoccurrence, injury-causing conduct, overruling prior case law prohibiting evidence of plaintiff’s failure to wear a seatbelt).

A plaintiff’s preoccurrence, injury-causing conduct is distinct from the plaintiff’s postoccurrence failure to mitigate damages, which is submitted as an exclusionary instruction to the damages questions. See PJC 80.9; Nabors, 456 S.W.3d at 564. If a failure-to-mitigate instruction is given in the damages question (see PJC 80.9), and “injury” is used in the liability question, then the jury should be instructed in the liability and the proportionate responsibility questions as follows:

In answering this question, do not consider Paul Payne’s failure, if any, to exercise reasonable care in caring for or treating his injury, if any.

In a case involving a death, the word “death” may be used instead of “injury.”

In cases with no allegations of injury-causing negligence by a plaintiff, it may be appropriate to use “occurrence” in the questions in this chapter. However, the concerns expressed in Nabors should be considered carefully.

PJC 51.2 Submission of Settling Persons, Contribution Defendants, and Responsible Third Parties (Comment)

Settling persons. The proportionate responsibility statute requires the responsibility of a settling person (Sam Settlor) to be determined by the trier of fact. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.003, 33.011. Thus, if the case includes a settling person, that person's name must be included in the basic liability question as well as in the proportionate responsibility question.

Contribution defendants. If there is a contribution defendant (Connie Contributor), that person's name should be included in the basic liability question. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.003, 33.011. "Contribution defendant" is defined in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.016.

However, a contribution defendant should not be included in the question comparing the responsibility of the plaintiff with that of the other defendants. A separate comparative question is necessary. See PJC 51.5.

Responsible third parties—causes of action accruing on or after September 1, 1995, and causes of action accruing before September 1, 1995, on which suit is filed on or after September 1, 1996, and before July 1, 2003. A "responsible third party" (Responsible Ray) should be included in the basic liability question only if joined under former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.004 (Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 136, § 1 (S.B. 28), eff. Sept. 1, 1995). A "responsible third party" is defined in former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.011(6) (Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 136, § 1 (S.B. 28), eff. Sept. 1, 1995). If submitted in the basic liability question, a responsible third party should also be submitted in the proportionate responsibility question. Former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.003 (Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 136, § 1 (S.B. 28), eff. Sept. 1, 1995). See PJC 51.4.

Responsible third parties—actions filed on or after July 1, 2003. In 2003 the legislature changed responsible third party practice from one of joinder to one of designation. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.004. At least one Texas court has held that it is "only upon the trial court's granting of a motion for leave to designate a person as a responsible third party that the designation becomes effective." Valverde v. Biela's Glass & Aluminum Products, Inc., 293 S.W.3d 751, 754–55 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2009, pet. denied); see also Ruiz v. Guerra, 293 S.W.3d 706, 714–15 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2009, no pet.). The legislature also expanded the category of responsible third parties. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.004, 33.011(6). "Responsible third party" means any person who is alleged to have caused or contributed to causing in any way the harm for which recovery of damages is sought, whether by negligent act or omission, by any defective or unreasonably dangerous product, by other conduct or activity that violates an applicable legal standard, or by any combination of these. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.011(6). Section 33.003(b) provides that a question regarding conduct by any person may not be submitted to the jury without evidence to support the submission. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.003(b).

6. Connie Contributor _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 51.3 is a broad-form question that should be appropriate in most medical malpractice cases.

Broad form to be used when feasible. Rule 277 of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure provides that “the court shall, whenever feasible, submit the cause upon broad-form questions.” Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. In Texas Department of Human Services v. E.B., 802 S.W.2d 647, 649 (Tex. 1990), the supreme court interpreted the phrase “whenever feasible” as mandating broad-form submission “in any or every instance in which it is capable of being accomplished. The court has described the reasons for broad-form questions as follows: “Broad-form questions reduce conflicting jury answers, thus reducing appeals and avoiding retrials. Rule 277 expedites trials by simplifying the charge conference and making questions easier for the jury to comprehend and answer.” E.B., 802 S.W.2d at 649; see also Lemos v. Montez, 680 S.W.2d 798, 801 (Tex. 1984). The court further stated, “The rule unequivocally requires broad-form submission whenever feasible. Unless extraordinary circumstances exist, a court must submit such broad-form questions. E.B., 802 S.W.2d at 649.

When broad-form questions not feasible. Broad-form questions must be used unless extraordinary circumstances exist making such questions not feasible. The term “extraordinary circumstances” would seem to contemplate only a situation in which the policies underlying broad-form questions would not be served. See E.B., 802 S.W.2d at 649; Lemos, 680 S.W.2d at 801. More recent cases on proportionate responsibility, damages, and liability, however, indicate that broad-form submission may not be feasible in a variety of circumstances depending on the law, the theories, and the evidence in a given case. See Romero v. KPH Consolidation, Inc., 166 S.W.3d 212 (Tex. 2005) (single broad-form proportionate responsibility question may not be feasible if one theory is legally invalid or not supported by sufficient evidence); Harris County v. Smith, 96 S.W.3d 230 (Tex. 2002) (broad-form submission of multiple elements of damage may cause harmful error if one or more of the elements is not supported by sufficient evidence); Crown Life Insurance Co. v. Casteel, 22 S.W.3d 378 (Tex. 2000) (broad-form submission combining valid and invalid theories of liability was cause of harmful error). As a result, although some modifications to the pattern jury charges have been made where a lack of feasibility appears to be the rule rather than the exception, the court and parties should evaluate all submissions to determine whether broad-form submission is feasible.

Accompanying definitions and instructions. The broad-form questions required by rule 277 contemplate the use of appropriate accompanying instructions ‘as shall be proper to enable the jury to render a verdict.’ Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. In E.B., 802 S.W.2d at 648, for example, the broad-form question was accompanied by instructions tracking the statutory grounds for the relief sought. PJC 51.3 is designed to be accompanied by the appropriate definitions of “negligence,” “ordinary care,” and “proximate cause” in PJC 50.1–50.3. If the evidence raises ‘new and independent cause,’ the definitions in PJC 50.4 should be used in lieu of the definition of “proximate cause” in PJC 50.1–50.3.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 51.1.

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant’s liability may be predicated only on “an injury that causes an individual’s death. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospital, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word ‘death’ may be substituted for the word “injury” in the negligence question.

Plaintiff’s negligence. If the plaintiff’s negligence is not in issue, the plaintiff’s name (Paul Payne) should not be included in the above question. In a case in which the plaintiff’s negligence is in issue, or in any case including more than one defendant, a proportionate responsibility question should follow PJC 51.3. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.001–.017. See PJC 51.4 and 51.6.

Professional associations. In most cases, the jury should be asked only whether a physician or health care provider was negligent, and the consequences to the professional association follow as a matter of law. For a discussion of when it might be appropriate to submit the negligence of both a physician and a physician’s professional association, see Battaglia v. Alexander, 177 S.W.3d 893 (Tex. 2005).

Exceptions to the limitations on joint and several liability. The limitations on joint and several liability set forth in chapter 33 of the Civil Practice and Remedies Code do not apply in certain instances:

Actions filed before July 1, 2003. See former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.002, 33.013(c)(1), (2) (Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 136, § 1 (S.B. 28), eff. Sept. 1, 1995).

Actions filed on or after July 1, 2003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.013. See also chapter 72 in this volume.

Settling person, contribution defendant, or responsible third party. See PJC 51.2.

PJC 51.4 Proportionate Responsibility—Medical

If you answered “Yes” to Question[s] _____ [applicable liability question(s)] for more than one of those named below, then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

Assign percentages of responsibility only to those you found caused or contributed to cause the [injury] [occurrence]. The percentages you find must total 100 percent. The percentages must be expressed in whole numbers. The percentage of responsibility attributable to any one is not necessarily measured by the number of acts or omissions found. The percentage attributable to any one need not be the same percentage attributed to that one in answering another question.

When to use. Rule 277 requires a percentage question “[i]n any cause in which the jury is required to apportion the loss among the parties.” Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. Thus, PJC 51.4 should be given if the issue of the responsibility of more than one party is submitted to the jury under Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code ch. 33. For cases in which there is a derivative claimant, see PJC 51.6.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 51.1. The term used in PJC 51.4 should match that used in PJC 51.3.

Blanks for question numbers. The question number to be inserted in the blank space in the conditioning instruction should coincide with that of the underlying liability question.

Compare claimants separately. Each claimant should be submitted separately within the proportionate responsibility question. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.003, 33.011(1). For claimants seeking derivative damages, see PJC 51.6.

Use of “responsibility” or “negligence.” Chapter 33 of the Civil Practice and Remedies Code applies not only to negligence but also to any cause of action based on tort or any action brought under the DTPA. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.002(a)(1), (2). For this reason, and because section 33.011 expressly calls for the comparison of ‘responsibility,’ that is the term the Committee suggests. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.011(4). However, when negligence is the only theory by which any of the submitted persons could be found liable, an alternative submission might be as follows:

For each of those named below that you found caused or contributed to cause the [injury] [occurrence], find the percentage of negligence attributable to each.

Settling person, contribution defendant, or responsible third party. See PJC 51.2.

PJC 51.5 Proportionate Responsibility If Contribution Defendant Is Joined—Medical

If you answered “Yes” to Question[s] _____ [applicable liability question(s)] for more than one of those named below, then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

Assign percentages of responsibility only to those you found caused or contributed to cause the [injury] [occurrence]. The percentages you find must total 100 percent. The percentages must be expressed in whole numbers. The percentage of responsibility attributable to any one is not necessarily measured by the number of acts or omissions found. The percentage attributable to any one need not be the same percentage attributed to that one in answering another question.

When to use. PJC 51.5 is an additional comparative question designed to follow the comparative question in PJC 51.4 or 51.6. It submits the proportionate responsibility between the defendant and a contribution defendant under Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.016. Section 33.016 specifically requires this second comparative question. This question should not inquire about the responsibility of the claimant.

If there is more than one defendant. If the responsibility of more than one defendant is submitted, separate percentage answers should not be sought for each defendant in PJC 51.5; rather, the names of all defendants should be grouped on one answer line.

The ratio of responsibility between or among the defendants is fixed by the answer to PJC 51.4 or 51.6, in which a separate answer is obtained for each defendant; seeking a second set of separate answers in PJC 51.5 might result in jury confusion or conflicting answers. The contribution responsibility of each defendant is determined by allocating the percentage attributed to all defendants in answer to PJC 51.5 in proportion to the relative percentages found for each defendant in answer to PJC 51.4 or 51.6.

If there is more than one contribution defendant. If the responsibility of more than one contribution defendant is submitted, a separate percentage answer should be sought for each such contribution defendant.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 51.1. The term used in PJC 51.5 should match that used in PJC 51.3.

PJC 51.6 Proportionate Responsibility—Medical—Derivative Claimant

If you answered “Yes” to Question[s] _____ [applicable liability question(s)] for more than one of those named below, then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

Assign percentages of responsibility only to those you found caused or contributed to cause the [injury] [occurrence]. The percentages you find must total 100 percent. The percentages must be expressed in whole numbers. The percentage of responsibility attributable to any one is not necessarily measured by the number of acts or omissions found. The percentage attributable to any one need not be the same percentage attributed to that one in answering another question.

COMMENT

When to use. Rule 277 requires a percentage question “[i]n any cause in which the jury is required to apportion the loss among the parties.” Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. PJC 51.6 is designed to apportion loss in cases in which there is a derivative claimant—that is, a claimant suing for damages caused by injuries to another. In the example above, Fred Father is the derivative claimant and Mary Minor is the injured child. For PJC 51.6 to apply, the child must not be suing the parent. A separate comparative submission is required for the derivative claim. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.003, 33.011(1). PJC 51.6 applies to the derivative claim. For submission of the underlying claim against the defendant, see PJC 51.4.

Separate questions (such as PJC 51.6 and 51.4) are submitted because the responsibility of a derivative claimant (Fred Father) will not bar or diminish the recovery of the primary claimant (Mary Minor). On the other hand, the responsibility of Mary Minor will bar or diminish the recovery of both Mary Minor and Fred Father. For this reason, the percentage of responsibility of both Mary Minor and Fred Father must be considered in determining whether the recovery of Fred Father is barred or diminished.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 51.1. The term used in PJC 51.6 should match that used in PJC 51.3.

Liability question must also include name of derivative claimant. In cases involving a derivative claimant, the basic liability question must also include the name of the derivative claimant along with that of the primary claimant.

Blanks for question numbers. The question number to be inserted in the blank space in the conditioning instruction should coincide with that of the underlying liability question.

Settling person, contribution defendant, or responsible third party. See PJC 51.2.

PJC 51.7 Abandonment of Patient by Physician

QUESTION _____

Was the abandonment, if any, by Dr. Davis of Paul Payne a proximate cause of the [injury] [occurrence]?

“Abandonment” means the termination of the physician-patient relationship without reasonable notice of the physician’s intent to sever such relationship at a time when there is a necessity for continuing medical care. “Reasonable notice” means such notice as would normally give the patient reasonable time to secure other medical attention if desired. There can be no abandonment of a patient by a physician if the patient has voluntarily chosen not to return to the physician or has discharged or dismissed the physician.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 51.7 may be used if there is evidence that the plaintiff was abandoned by the defendant-physician. A physician has a duty not to abandon a patient. See Williams v. Bennett, 582 S.W.2d 577, 579 (Tex. Civ. App.—Beaumont 1979), rev’d on other grounds, 610 S.W.2d 144 (Tex. 1980); Lee v. Dewbre, 362 S.W.2d 900, 902–03 (Tex. Civ. App.—Amarillo 1962, no writ); Urrutia v. Patino, 297 S.W. 512, 516 (Tex. Civ. App.—San Antonio 1927, no writ); Jim M. Perdue, The Law of Texas Medical Malpractice, 22 Hous. L. Rev. 1, 17 (2d ed. 1985).

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 51.1.

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant’s liability may be predicated only on ‘an injury that causes an individual’s death.’ Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospital, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word “death” may be substituted for the word “injury” in the negligence question.

Modify for justified abandonment. If a legal justification for the abandonment is raised (see Urrutia, 297 S.W. at 516), PJC 51.7 should be modified accordingly.

Caveat. The Committee has omitted from the definition of abandonment the language “or the failure to make reasonable provision for adequate medical attention in the event of the physician’s absence at a time when there is a necessity for continuing medical care.” The Committee believes that the failure to make adequate provision for care in the physician's absence is a negligence theory embodied in the broad-form submission at PJC 51.3.

PJC 51.8 Res Ipsa Loquitur—Medical (Comment)Res ipsa loquitur under Medical Liability Act.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. The Medical Liability and Insurance Improvement Act provides as follows: “The common-law doctrine of res ipsa loquitur shall only apply to health care liability claims against health care providers or physicians in those cases to which it has been applied by the appellate courts of this state as of the effective date of this subchapter.” Former Tex. Rev. Civ. Stat. art. 4590i, § 7.01 (Acts 1977, 65th Leg., R.S., ch. 817, § 7.01 (H.B. 1048), eff. Aug. 29, 1977). As noted in Haddock v. Arnspiger, 793 S.W.2d 948 (Tex. 1990), “[A]ppellate courts before August 29, 1977 overwhelmingly recognized that res ipsa loquitur was inapplicable in medical malpractice cases subject to certain exceptions.” Haddock, 793 S.W.2d at 951.

Actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.201, which restates the above article 4590i application.

Exceptions to general inapplicability. “[A]n exception is recognized when the nature of the alleged malpractice and injuries are plainly within the common knowledge of laymen, requiring no expert testimony. Examples of this exception include negligence in the use of mechanical instruments, operating on the wrong portion of the body, or leaving surgical instruments or sponges within the body.” Haddock, 793 S.W.2d at 951.

Expert testimony may not establish predicate. In Haddock the plaintiff sought to establish by expert testimony that an injury involving a mechanical instrument could not have occurred without negligence. The court held that this predicate of res ipsa loquitur could not be established by expert testimony and that, in the case of mechanical instruments, the doctrine may not be applied when the use of the instrument is not a matter within the common knowledge of laymen. Haddock, 793 S.W.2d at 954.

Rule of evidence only—negligence and proximate cause still required. “Res ipsa loquitur is simply a rule of evidence by which negligence may be inferred by the jury; it is not a separate cause of action from negligence.” Haddock, 793 S.W.2d at 950. Although medical testimony of negligence is not required when the doctrine is properly invoked, negligence and proximate cause still must be proved. For example, in Martin v. Petta, 694 S.W.2d 233, 240 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 1985, writ ref’d n.r.e.), the trial court was held not to have erred in rendering summary judgment for the physician, because the evidence was uncontroverted that he exercised no control over the instrumentality alleged to have caused the injury.

Sample instruction. For cases in which the doctrine is held to apply, the following instruction is suggested as a model:

In answering this question, you may infer negligence by a party but are not compelled to do so if you find that (1) the character of the occurrence is such that it would ordinarily not happen in the absence of negligence and (2) the instrumentality causing the occurrence was under the management and control of the party at the time that the negligence, if any, probably occurred.

See Haddock, 793 S.W.2d at 954.

PJC 51.9 Informed Consent (Common Law)

QUESTION _____

Did Darla Dean fail to obtain informed consent from Paul Payne for treatment by physical therapy?

“Informed consent” means consent given by a patient to whom such risks incident to treatment by physical therapy have been disclosed as would be disclosed to the patient by a physician of ordinary prudence under the same or similar circumstances.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

If you answered the above question “Yes,” then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

QUESTION _____

If those risks had been so disclosed, would a person of ordinary prudence have refused such treatment under the same or similar circumstances?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

If you answered the above question “Yes,” then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

QUESTION _____

Was Paul Payne injured by the occurrence of the risk or hazard of which he was not informed?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 51.9 submits the doctrine of informed consent under the common law. It should be used only in cases in which the provider of medical-related services does not fall within the definition of “health care provider” in the Medical Liability Act.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. See former Tex. Rev. Civ. Stat. art. 4590i (Acts 1977, 65th Leg., R.S., ch. 817 (H.B. 1048), eff. Aug. 29, 1977).

Actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.001(a)(12).

For a discussion of “health care provider,” see PJC 50.3.

Caveat. PJC 51.9 as written should apply only in rare instances. See PJC 51.10–51.14 for submission of informed consent under the Medical Liability and Insurance Improvement Act, which will apply in most cases filed before September 1, 2003, and the Medical Liability Act (Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code ch. 74), which will apply to most actions filed on or after September 1, 2003.

Particular treatment and provider. Terms describing the medical treatment in question and the particular provider should be substituted for the italicized words in the charge.

Person authorized to consent for patient. If appropriate, the phrase a person authorized to consent for Paul Payne may be substituted for Paul Payne.

Accompanying definitions and instructions. PJC 51.9 is designed to be accompanied by the appropriate definitions of “ordinary care” and “proximate cause” in PJC 50.1–50.3. If the evidence raises “new and independent cause,” the definitions in PJC 50.4, rather than the definition of “proximate cause” in PJC 50.1–50.3, should be submitted. As part of proximate cause, the patient must establish that he was injured by the occurrence of the risk of which he was not informed. Greene v. Thiet, 846 S.W.2d 26, 31 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1992, writ denied).

Reason for Nondisclosure—Disclosure in Issue

QUESTION _____

Did Dr. Davis fail to disclose to Paul Payne such risks and hazards inherent in the treatment by radiation therapy that could have influenced a reasonable person in making a decision to give or withhold consent to such treatment?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

If you answered the above question “Yes,” then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

QUESTION _____

Would a reasonable person have refused such treatment if those risks and hazards had been disclosed?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

If you answered the above question “Yes,” then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

QUESTION _____

Was Paul Payne injured by the occurrence of the risk or hazard of which he was not informed?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 51.10 may be used to submit a claim of breach of the duty of informed consent in a case in which the procedure is not on list A or B, there is no emergency or other medically feasible reason for nondisclosure, and there is a dispute over whether adequate disclosure (oral or written) was made. For submission of statutory informed consent under other states of the evidence, see PJC 51.11–51.14.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. See former Tex. Rev. Civ. Stat. art. 4590i, § 6.07(b) (Acts 1977, 65th Leg., R.S., ch. 817, § 6.07(b) (H.B. 1048), eff. Aug. 29, 1977); McKinley v. Stripling, 763 S.W.2d 407 (Tex. 1989); Barclay v. Campbell, 704 S.W.2d 8 (Tex. 1986); Peterson v. Shields, 652 S.W.2d 929 (Tex. 1983).

Actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.106(b).

Particular treatment or procedure. An appropriate term for the medical treatment or surgical procedure in question should be substituted for the phrase the treatment by radiation therapy.

Person authorized to consent for patient. If appropriate, the phrase a person authorized to consent for Paul Payne may be substituted for Paul Payne.

Proximate cause. The objective form of causation (reasonable-person standard) should be used to submit proximate cause. McKinley, 763 S.W.2d at 410; see also Melissinos v. Phamanivong, 823 S.W.2d 339 (Tex. App.—Texarkana 1991, writ denied), in which the court allowed the submission of proximate cause in a form different from that set out in PJC 51.10. As part of proximate cause, the patient must establish that he was injured by the occurrence of the risk of which he was not informed. Greene v. Thiet, 846 S.W.2d 26, 31 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1992, writ denied).

Medical Liability Act. The Medical Liability Act applies to causes of action based on “health care liability claims. For cases filed before September 1, 2003, see former Tex. Rev. Civ. Stat. art. 4590i, § 1.03(a)(4) (Acts 1977, 65th Leg., R.S., ch. 817, § 1.03(a)(4) (H.B. 1048), eff. Aug. 29, 1977). For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, see Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.001(a)(13).

Under the Act, the Texas Medical Disclosure Panel has the duty to prepare lists of medical treatments and surgical procedures that do and do not require disclosure of risks and hazards to the patient. See former Tex. Rev. Civ. Stat. art. 4590i, § 6.03, and Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.103. These lists and the degree and form of disclosure required are found at 25 Tex. Admin. Code §§ 601.1–9.

If the medical care or surgical procedure is on list A, the health care provider is required to disclose such risks and hazards. Former Tex. Rev. Civ. Stat. art. 4590i, § 6.05, and Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.104. If disclosure is made as provided in former section 6.06 or section 74.105, the provider shall be considered to have complied with former section 6.05 or section 74.104.

Duty of disclosure. The duty of disclosure for procedures not on list A or B is to disclose all risks and hazards that could influence a reasonable person in making a decision to consent to the procedure. Peterson, 652 S.W.2d at 931, see also Hartfiel v. Owen, 618 S.W.2d 902, 905 (Tex. App.—El Paso 1981, writ ref’d n.r.e.) (plaintiff must prove injury resulted from undisclosed risk). The medical condition complained of must be shown by expert testimony to be a risk inherent in the medical procedure performed. Peterson, 652 S.W.2d at 931.

No-disclosure list. If the evidence shows that the care or procedure involved is on the list for which no disclosure is required under section 6.04 or 74.103, the Committee believes that no question on informed consent should be submitted.

No panel determination on procedure. For treatments or procedures on which the panel has made no determination regarding a duty of disclosure, section 6.07(b) or 74.106(b) expressly retains the same duty otherwise imposed by law. Former Tex. Rev. Civ. Stat. art. 4590i, § 6.07(b), and Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.106(b).

Locality rule in informed consent cases. The Medical Liability Act has replaced the common-law locality rule with a ‘reasonable person’ rule. Former Tex. Rev. Civ. Stat. art. 4590i, § 6.02, and Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.101, Barclay, 704 S.W.2d at 9 (Act changed locality rule “concerning physician’s duty of disclosure”); Peterson, 652 S.W.2d at 931. For a discussion of the locality rule, see PJC 50.1.

Implied informed consent. Informed consent is implied as a matter of law if a patient is unconscious or otherwise unable to give express consent and immediate surgery or other medical care or procedure is necessary to preserve the patient’s life or health. If there is a dispute concerning implied informed consent, a question should be submitted. See PJC 51.12. See Gravis v. Physicians & Surgeons Hospital, 427 S.W.2d 310, 311 (Tex. 1968).

QUESTION _____

The law requires Dr. Davis to disclose to Paul Payne the risks and hazards of retinal surgery.

The risks and hazards of retinal surgery required to be disclosed are—

1. complications requiring additional treatment and/or surgery, and
2. recurrence or spread of disease, and
3. partial or total loss of vision.

Would a reasonable person have refused such treatment if the above risks and hazards had been disclosed?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

If you answered the above question “Yes,” then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

QUESTION _____

Was Paul Payne injured by the occurrence of the risk or hazard of which he was not informed?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 51.11 submits statutory informed consent if the evidence shows that the procedure was on the list requiring disclosure (list A) but there is neither evidence reflecting disclosure nor evidence of emergency or other reason it was not medically feasible to make a disclosure. For submission of statutory informed consent under other states of the evidence, see PJC 51.10 and 51.12–51.14.

Person authorized to consent for patient. If appropriate, the phrase a person authorized to consent for Paul Payne may be substituted for Paul Payne.

Proximate cause. The objective form of causation (reasonable-person standard) should be used to submit proximate cause. McKinley v. Stripling, 763 S.W.2d 407, 410 (Tex. 1989); see also Melissinos v. Phamanivong, 823 S.W.2d 339 (Tex. App.—Texarkana 1991, writ denied), in which the court allowed the submission of proximate cause in a form different from that set out in PJC 51.11. As part of proximate cause, the patient must establish that he was injured by the occurrence of the risk of which he was not informed. Greene v. Thiet, 846 S.W.2d 26, 31 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1992, writ denied).

Particular risks and treatment. The particular risks required to be disclosed are found on list A and should be substituted for those above. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.103. An appropriate term for the medical treatment or surgical procedure in question should be substituted for the words retinal surgery. For a compilation of the medical procedures for which the medical disclosure panel has enumerated risks required to be disclosed, see 25 Tex. Admin. Code §§ 601.1–3.

Existence of presumption. Failure to disclose the risks and hazards involved in any medical care or surgical procedure required to be disclosed creates a rebuttable presumption of a negligent failure to conform to the duty of disclosure. This presumption must be included in the charge to the jury.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. See former Tex. Rev. Civ. Stat. art. 4590i, § 6.07(a)(2) (Acts 1977, 65th Leg., R.S., ch. 817, § 6.07(a)(2) (H.B. 1048), eff. Aug. 29, 1977).

Actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.106(a)(2).

Implied informed consent. Informed consent is implied as a matter of law if a patient is unconscious or otherwise unable to give express consent and immediate surgery or other medical care or procedure is necessary to preserve the patient's life or health. If there is a dispute concerning implied informed consent, a question should be submitted. See PJC 51.12. See Gravis v. Physicians & Surgeons Hospital, 427 S.W.2d 310, 311 (Tex. 1968).

Nondisclosure—Disclosure Not in Statutory Form

QUESTION _____

The law requires Dr. Davis to disclose to Paul Payne the following risks and hazards of retinal surgery:

1. complications requiring additional treatment and/or surgery, and
2. recurrence or spread of disease, and
3. partial or total loss of vision.

The failure of a physician to disclose those risks and hazards on a written form, signed by the patient or a person authorized to consent for the patient and a competent witness, is presumed to constitute a negligent failure to disclose such risks. This presumption may be overcome if the physician adequately disclosed such risks and hazards in some other manner.

Did Dr. Davis fail to adequately disclose such risks and hazards in some other manner to Paul Payne?

When to use. PJC 51.12 submits statutory informed consent if the evidence shows that the medical procedure was on the list requiring disclosure (list A) and disclosure is not made in statutory form but there is evidence of disclosure, such as evidence of oral disclosure. For submission of informed consent under other states of the evidence, see PJC 51.10–51.11 and 51.13–51.14.

Particular risks and treatment. The particular risks required to be disclosed are found on list A and should be substituted for those above. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.103. Actions filed before September 1, 2003. See former Tex. Rev. Civ. Stat. art. 4590i, § 6.07(a)(2) (Acts 1977, 65th Leg., R.S., ch. 817, § 6.07(a)(2) (H.B. 1048), eff. Aug. 29, 1977).

Actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.106(a)(2).

Implied informed consent. Informed consent is implied as a matter of law if a patient is unconscious or otherwise unable to give express consent and immediate surgery or other medical care or procedure is necessary to preserve the patient’s life or health. See Gravis v. Physicians & Surgeons Hospital, 427 S.W.2d 310, 311 (Tex. 1968).

PJC 51.13 Informed Consent (Statutory)—Procedure on List A—
No Disclosure—Emergency or Other Medically Feasible Reason for Nondisclosure in Issue

QUESTION _____

The law requires Dr. Davis to disclose to Paul Payne the following risks and hazards of a transfusion:

1. fever; and
2. transfusion reaction, which may include kidney failure or anemia; and
3. heart failure; and
4. hepatitis; and
5. AIDS (acquired immunodeficiency syndrome); and
6. other infections.

The failure of a physician to disclose those risks and hazards on a written form, signed by the patient or a person authorized to consent for the patient and by a competent witness, creates a presumption of a negligent failure to conform to the duty of disclosure. This presumption is overcome if there was an emergency or some other reason disclosure was not medically feasible.

Was Dr. Davis's failure to disclose the risks and hazards of a transfusion negligence?

Answer "Yes" or "No."

Answer: _____

If you answered the above question "Yes," then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

QUESTION _____

Would a reasonable person have refused such treatment if those risks had been disclosed?

Answer "Yes" or "No."

Answer: _____

If you answered the above question “Yes,” then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

QUESTION _____

Was Paul Payne injured by the occurrence of the risk or hazard of which he was not informed?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 51.13 submits statutory informed consent if the evidence shows that the medical procedure was on the list requiring disclosure (list A) and disclosure was not made but there is evidence that would excuse the failure to disclose, such as an emergency or other medically feasible reason.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. See former Tex. Rev. Civ. Stat. art. 4590i, § 6.07(a)(2) (Acts 1977, 65th Leg., R.S., ch. 817, § 6.07(a)(2) (H.B. 1048), eff. Aug. 29, 1977); see also Gravis v. Physicians & Surgeons Hospital, 427 S.W.2d 310, 311 (Tex. 1968).

Actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.106(a)(2).

For submission of statutory informed consent under other states of the evidence, see PJC 51.10–51.12 and 51.14.

Person authorized to consent for patient. If appropriate, the phrase a person authorized to consent for Paul Payne may be substituted for Paul Payne.

Proximate cause. The objective form of causation (reasonable-person standard) should be used to submit proximate cause. McKinley v. Stripling, 763 S.W.2d 407, 410 (Tex. 1989); see also Melissinos v. Phamanivong, 823 S.W.2d 339 (Tex. App.—Texarkana 1991, writ denied), in which the court allowed the submission of proximate cause in a form different from that set out in PJC 51.13. As part of proximate cause, the patient must establish that he was injured by the occurrence of the risk of which he was not informed. Greene v. Thiet, 846 S.W.2d 26, 31 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1992, writ denied).

Particular risks and treatment. The particular risks required to be disclosed are found on list A and should be substituted for those above. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.103. An appropriate term for the medical treatment or surgical procedure in question should be substituted for the words a transfusion. For a compilation of the medical procedures for which the medical disclosure panel has enumerated risks required to be disclosed, see 25 Tex. Admin. Code §§ 601.1–3.

PJC 51.14 Informed Consent (Statutory)—Procedure on List A—Validity of Disclosure Instrument in Issue

QUESTION _____

At the time Paul Payne signed the consent form, was he without mental capacity?

It is presumed that Paul Payne had the required mental capacity, which presumption may be overcome if he was without mental capacity.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 51.14 submits the validity of the disclosure instrument if the evidence shows that the surgical procedure was on the list requiring disclosure (list A) and an instrument exists reflecting the required disclosure but there is also evidence that the instrument is invalid.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. See former Tex. Rev. Civ. Stat. art. 4590i, §§ 6.05–.07 (Acts. 1977, 65th Leg., R.S., ch. 817, §§ 6.05–.07 (H.B. 1048), eff. Aug. 29, 1977).

Actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 74.104–.106.

If the physician has obtained the patient’s signature on a consent form conforming with the panel’s requirements and containing the risks enumerated on list A, the only means by which the patient may recover for failure to obtain informed consent is to prove the invalidity of the form and that the risks had not otherwise been disclosed to him.

Person authorized to consent for patient. If appropriate, the phrase a person authorized to consent for Paul Payne may be substituted for Paul Payne.

Particular circumstances. Appropriate words describing the particular circumstances alleged to invalidate the disclosure instrument should be substituted for the words without mental capacity if there is evidence that the instrument reflecting such disclosure may be invalid because of forgery or the incompetence or illiteracy of the person apparently consenting or of the subscribing witness.

Effect of answer. If the jury answers the question “No,” the invalidity of the form has not been proved and the cause of action for failure to obtain informed consent fails. If the jury answers “Yes,” the plaintiff must then prove that the physician otherwise failed to disclose the risks and hazards required to be disclosed and must prove proximate cause. Such issues should be conditionally submitted under PJC 51.10–51.12, as appropriate under the evidence.

PJC 51.15 Battery—Medical

QUESTION _____

Did Dr. Davis, without Paul Payne's consent, perform an intestinal bypass on Paul Payne?

Consent is implied by law if the patient is unconscious or otherwise unable to give express consent and an immediate surgical procedure is necessary to preserve his life or health.

Answer "Yes" or "No."

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 51.15 may be used to submit a claim of battery. Earlier Texas cases recognized the tort of battery when a physician, with no justification or excuse, performed an operation without the express or implied consent of the patient or someone authorized to consent for the patient. Gravis v. Physicians & Surgeons Hospital, 427 S.W.2d 310, 311 (Tex. 1968); see also Moss v. Rishworth, 222 S.W. 225, 226 (Tex. Comm'n App. 1920, judgm't adopted); Thaxton v. Reed, 339 S.W.2d 241, 246 (Tex. Civ. App.—Dallas 1960, writ ref'd n.r.e.).

When not to use.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. A cause of action for battery is no longer available if the basis of the patient's claim is that the physician failed to disclose adequately the risks involved in the surgery and thus failed to obtain informed consent, as distinguished from any consent. See former Tex. Rev. Civ. Stat. art. 4590i, § 6.02 (Acts 1977, 65th Leg., R.S., ch. 817, § 6.02 (H.B. 1048), eff. Aug. 29, 1977), which provides as follows:

In a suit against a health care provider involving a health care liability claim that is based on the failure of the provider to disclose or adequately to disclose the risks and hazards involved in the medical care or surgical procedure rendered by the provider, the only theory on which recovery may be obtained is that of negligence in failing to disclose the risks or hazards that could have influenced a reasonable person in making a decision to give or withhold consent.

Actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.101, which contains the same language as that in former article 4590i.

The status or viability of the cause of action for battery after the enactment of the statutory provision has not been expressly determined.

Particular treatment or procedure. An appropriate term for the medical treatment or surgical procedure in question should be substituted for the words intestinal bypass.

Person legally authorized to consent for patient. If there is an issue whether consent was obtained from a person legally authorized to give consent for the patient, that person's name should be substituted for (or stated disjunctively with) the patient's name in the first line of the question. The trial court must be satisfied that, as a matter of law, the person giving consent has authority to do so. Gravis, 427 S.W.2d 310 (husband had no authority to consent for wife without prior authorization).

PJC 51.16 Express Warranty—Medical

QUESTION _____

Did Dr. Davis promise Paul Payne in writing to cure Paul Payne's arthritis?

Answer "Yes" or "No."

Answer: _____

If you answered the above question "Yes," then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

QUESTION _____

Was Dr. Davis's failure, if any, to cure Paul Payne's arthritis a proximate cause of the [injury] [occurrence]?

Answer "Yes" or "No."

Answer: _____

COMMENT

Use of "injury" or "occurrence." See PJC 51.1.

When to use. PJC 51.16 may be used to submit a cause of action for breach of an express warranty.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. See former Tex. Rev. Civ. Stat. art. 4590i, § 1.03(a)(4) (Acts 1977, 65th Leg., R.S., ch. 817, § 1.03(a)(4) (H.B. 1048), eff. Aug. 29, 1977).

Actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.001(a)(13).

Both the above statutory provisions apply to causes of action based on "health care liability claim[s]," whether sounding "in tort or contract" (emphasis added); see also Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 26.01(b)(8) (agreements not enforceable unless in writing include agreements relating to medical care).

Omit first question if no dispute. If there is no dispute about whether there was a promise in writing, the first question should not be submitted.

Particular warranty. Appropriate words describing the particular promise or warranty claimed to be breached should be substituted for the phrase to cure Paul Payne's arthritis.

Caveat. The Texas Business and Commerce Code requires a finding of “proximate cause” rather than “producing cause” for consequential damages (injury to person or property) arising from any breach of warranty. Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 2.715(b)(2); see Signal Oil & Gas Co. v. Universal Oil Products, 572 S.W.2d 320, 329 (Tex. 1978). The same result is obtained for breach of express warranty under Tex. UCC § 2.313. General Supply & Equipment Co. v. Phillips, 490 S.W.2d 913, 917 (Tex. Civ. App.—Tyler 1972, writ ref’d n.r.e.). Both these cases, however, dealt with goods rather than services. If the sale of services is not governed by the Business and Commerce Code, “producing cause” may have to be substituted for “proximate cause” in the second question. No Texas cases on this point have been found. But see Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. v. FDP Corp., 811 S.W.2d 572 (Tex. 1991).

PJC 51.17 Implied Warranty—Medical (Comment)

The Supreme Court of Texas first recognized an implied warranty of good and workmanlike performance of services in Humber v. Morton, 426 S.W.2d 554 (Tex. 1968). See also Centex Homes v. Buecher, 95 S.W.3d 266 (Tex. 2002) (explaining warranty created in Humber). The court has also recognized an implied warranty of good and workmanlike performance of services rendered in connection with the repair or modification of existing tangible goods. Melody Home Manufacturing Co. v. Barnes, 741 S.W.2d 349 (Tex. 1987); see also Buecher, 95 S.W.3d at 270; Archibald v. Act III Arabians, 755 S.W.2d 84 (Tex. 1988). In Dennis v. Allison, 698 S.W.2d 94 (Tex. 1985), however, the court held that there is no implied warranty that a psychiatrist will follow the canons of ethics of his profession. These decisions leave a number of questions regarding implied warranties for service providers unanswered.

An implied warranty for professional health care services has not been recognized by the supreme court. Unless Dennis v. Allison is expressly overruled or distinguished by the court, the submission of questions pertaining to implied warranties of professional-service providers is not recommended.

When to use.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. See former Tex. Rev. Civ. Stat. art. 4590i, § 12.01 (Acts 1977, 65th Leg., R.S., ch. 817, § 12.01 (H.B. 1048), eff. Aug. 29, 1977) (inapplicability of Deceptive Trade Practices–Consumer Protection Act to claims grounded in negligence); Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 26.01 (statute of frauds).

Actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.004 (inapplicability of Deceptive Trade Practices–Consumer Protection Act to claims grounded in negligence); Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 26.01 (statute of frauds).

PJC 51.18 Emergency Care (Statutory)PJC 51.18A Emergency Care (Statutory)—Emergency Scene Outside a Hospital, Health Care Facility, or Medical Transport*QUESTION 1

Did Dr. Davis perform the tracheotomy on Paul Payne without remuneration or the expectation of remuneration?

*[For actions filed before September 1, 2003,
use the following instruction.]*

A person who would ordinarily receive or be entitled to receive a salary, fee, or other remuneration for administering emergency care to the patient in question shall be deemed to be acting for or in expectation of remuneration even if the person waives or elects not to charge or receive remuneration on the occasion in question.

*[For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003,
use the following instruction.]*

Being legally entitled to receive remuneration for the emergency care rendered shall not determine whether or not the care was administered for or in anticipation of remuneration.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

If you answered “Yes” to Question 1, then answer Question 2. Otherwise, do not answer Question 2.

QUESTION 2

Was such emergency care rendered by Dr. Davis with willful or wanton negligence?

“Willful or wanton negligence” means an act or omission by Dr. Davis,

1. which when viewed objectively from the standpoint of Dr. Davis at the time of its occurrence involves an extreme degree of risk, considering the probability and magnitude of the potential harm to others; and

2. of which Dr. Davis has actual, subjective awareness of the risk involved, but nevertheless proceeds with conscious indifference to the rights, safety, or welfare of others.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

If you answered “Yes” to Question 2, then answer Question 3. Otherwise, do not answer Question 3.

QUESTION 3

Was such negligence a proximate cause of the [injury] [occurrence]?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. PJC 51.18A should be used if the evidence shows the scene of the emergency is outside a hospital, health care facility, or means of medical transport. The “Good Samaritan” statute provides that there is no liability for civil damages for administering the care in good faith “unless the act is wilfully or wantonly negligent.” See former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code ch. 74 (Acts 1985, 69th Leg., R.S., ch. 959, § 1 (S.B. 797), eff. Sept. 1, 1985, amended by Acts 1993, 73d Leg., R.S., ch. 960, § 1 (S.B. 386), eff. Aug. 30, 1993).

Actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. PJC 51.18A should be used regardless of where the emergency in question occurred if such care was not provided for or in expectation of remuneration. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.151(b)(1).

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 51.1.

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant’s liability may be predicated only on “an injury that causes an individual’s death. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospital, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word “death” may be substituted for the word “injury” in the negligence question.

Remuneration. In McIntyre v. Ramirez, 109 S.W.3d 741 (Tex. 2003), the supreme court rejected the argument that a person will be immune only if the person can prove that he is not ‘legally’ entitled to receive payment.

If emergency is in issue. If performance of the emergency care at the scene of an emergency is in issue, a preliminary question would need to be submitted, such as—

Did Dr. Davis perform the tracheotomy on Paul Payne during an emergency?

Words describing the particular care rendered should be substituted for the phrase perform the tracheotomy.

When to omit Question 3. In the usual case, Question 2 will be pleaded and argued as an affirmative defense. Thus, the plaintiff will have requested and the court will have submitted questions on and definitions of ordinary negligence and proximate cause. In such a case, Question 3 should be omitted.

Source of definition. The definition of “willful or wanton negligence” is based on that of “gross negligence” in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.001(11). See Hernandez v. Lukefahr, 879 S.W.2d 137, 141–42 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1994, no writ) (based on predecessor to section 74.151).

COMMENT

When to use.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. PJC 51.18B should be used if the evidence shows the scene of the emergency is inside a hospital, health care facility, or means of medical transport. The ‘Good Samaritan’ statute provides that there is no liability for civil damages for administering the care in good faith ‘unless the act is wilfully or wantonly negligent. See former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code ch. 74 (Acts 1985, 69th Leg., R.S., ch. 959, § 1 (S.B. 797), eff. Sept. 1, 1985, amended by Acts 1993, 73d Leg., R.S., ch. 960, § 1 (S.B. 386), eff. Aug. 30, 1993).

Actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. PJC 51.18B should be used regardless of where the emergency in question occurred if such care was not provided for or in expectation of remuneration. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.151(b)(1).

PJC 51.18C Emergency Care (Statutory)—Emergency Care Administered in a Hospital Emergency Department or Obstetrical Unit or in a Surgical Suite Immediately Following the Evaluation or Treatment of a Patient in a Hospital Emergency Department

QUESTION _____

Did the willful and wanton negligence, if any, of those named below proximately cause the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

“Willful and wanton negligence” means act or omission—

1. which when viewed objectively from the standpoint of the actor at the time of its occurrence involves an extreme degree of risk, considering the probability and magnitude of the potential harm to others; and
2. of which the actor has actual, subjective awareness of the risk involved, but nevertheless proceeds with conscious indifference to the rights, safety, or welfare of others.

In answering this question, you shall consider, together with all relevant factors—

1. whether the person providing care did or did not have the patient’s medical history or was able or unable to obtain a full medical history, including the knowledge of preexisting medical conditions, allergies, and medications;
2. the presence or lack of a preexisting physician-patient relationship or health care provider-patient relationship;
3. the circumstances constituting the emergency; and
4. the circumstances surrounding the delivery of the emergency medical care.

Answer “Yes” or “No” for each of the following:

1. Dr. Davis _____
2. Dixon Hospital _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 51.18C should be used in actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, if the evidence shows that the injury or death complained of arose out of the provision of “emergency medical care” in a hospital emergency department or obstetrical unit or in a surgical suite immediately following the evaluation or treatment of a patient in a hospital emergency department. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 74.153–154.

When to omit. For cases in which both “emergency medical care” and “nonemergency medical care” are at issue with the same defendant, use PJC 51.18D for that defendant. For cases in which both “emergency medical care” and “nonemergency medical care” are at issue in the same location, use PJC 51.18E.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 51.1.

Source of definition. Willful and wanton negligence found in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.153 means gross negligence for trial purposes. Turner v. Franklin, 325 S.W.3d 771, 780–81 & n.12 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2010, pet. denied) (concluding that the willful and wanton standard required at trial is a gross negligence standard even when the trial is in the form of a summary judgment hearing); see also Christus Health Southeast Texas v. Licatino, 352 S.W.3d 556, 557, 562 (Tex. App.—Beaumont 2011, no pet.). But cf. Benish v. Grottie, 281 S.W.3d 184, 192 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2009, pet. denied) (declining to equate willful and wanton negligence with gross negligence when evaluating the sufficiency of chapter 74 preliminary expert reports).

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant’s liability may be predicated only on “an injury that causes an individual’s death.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospital, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word “death” may be substituted for the word “injury” in the negligence question.

If emergency is in issue. If performance of the “emergency medical care” in a hospital emergency department or obstetrical unit or in a surgical suite immediately following the evaluation or treatment of a patient in a hospital emergency department is in issue, including whether the medical care or treatment occurred after the patient was stabilized and capable of receiving medical treatment as a nonemergency patient, a preliminary question would need to be submitted, such as—

Was the care provided by Dr. Davis “emergency medical care” administered in the emergency department or obstetrical unit or in a surgical suite immediately following the evaluation or treatment of a patient in a hospital emergency department?

“Emergency medical care” means bona fide emergency services provided after the sudden onset of a medical or traumatic condition manifesting itself by acute symptoms of sufficient severity, including severe pain, such that the absence of immediate medical attention could reasonably be expected to result in placing the patient's health in serious jeopardy, serious impairment to bodily functions, or serious dysfunction of any bodily organ or part. The term does not include medical care or treatment that occurs after the patient is stabilized and is capable of receiving medical treatment as a nonemergency patient or that is unrelated to the original medical emergency.

See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.001(a)(7). An ordinary negligence question and definition should be submitted after the emergency care question. It should include a predicate question similar to the following for when the jury answered "No" to the emergency care question:

If you answered "No" to Question _____ [question establishing the provision of 'emergency medical care'], then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

When to omit jury instructions. Jury instructions 1–4 should not be used if the medical care or treatment is related to an emergency caused in whole or in part by the negligence of the defendant. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.154(b)(3).

PJC 51.18D Emergency Care (Statutory) and Nonemergency
Care by Same Defendant*QUESTION 1

Did the negligence, if any, of Dixon Hospital, outside of the [emergency department] [obstetrical unit] [surgical suite immediately following the evaluation or treatment in the hospital emergency department] proximately cause the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

QUESTION 2

Did the willful and wanton negligence, if any, of Dixon Hospital, inside of the [emergency department] [obstetrical unit] [surgical suite immediately following the evaluation or treatment in the hospital emergency department] proximately cause the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

“Willful and wanton negligence” means an act or omission—

1. which when viewed objectively from the standpoint of the actor at the time of its occurrence involves an extreme degree of risk, considering the probability and magnitude of the potential harm to others; and
2. of which the actor has actual, subjective awareness of the risk involved, but nevertheless proceeds with conscious indifference to the rights, safety, or welfare of others.

In answering this question, you shall consider, together with all relevant factors—

1. whether the person providing care did or did not have the patient’s medical history or was able or unable to obtain a full medical history, including the knowledge of preexisting medical conditions, allergies, and medications;
2. the presence or lack of a preexisting physician-patient relationship or health care provider-patient relationship;
3. the circumstances constituting the emergency; and
4. the circumstances surrounding the delivery of the emergency medical care.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 51.18D is not appropriate when the care rendered in the hospital emergency department or obstetrical unit or in a surgical suite immediately following the evaluation or treatment of a patient in a hospital emergency department was not “emergency medical care.” In those situations, PJC 51.3 should be used.

PJC 51.18D should be used in actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, if the evidence shows that for the same defendant an ordinary negligence standard applies to certain acts or omissions and a willful and wanton negligence standard applies to other acts or omissions of “emergency medical care.

This situation often arises when there are allegations that the hospital’s provision of ‘emergency medical care’ in a hospital emergency department or obstetrical unit or in a surgical suite immediately following the evaluation or treatment of a patient in a hospital emergency department falls below the standard of care and there are also allegations that the hospital’s treatment falls below the standard of care after the patient is transferred out of the emergency department or obstetrical unit or surgical suite immediately following the evaluation or treatment in a hospital emergency department.

Gross negligence. If gross negligence will be charged to the jury, it must be ensured, through predicate instructions or separate questions, that the jury answers any gross negligence question only as to those questions for which the jury unanimously answered “Yes” regarding negligence or willful and wanton negligence.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 51.1.

Source of definition. Willful and wanton negligence found in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.153 means gross negligence for trial purposes. Turner v. Franklin, 325 S.W.3d 771, 780–81 & n.12 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2010, pet. denied) (concluding that the willful and wanton standard required at trial is a gross negligence standard even when the trial is in the form of a summary judgment hearing); see also Christus Health Southeast Texas v. Licatino, 352 S.W.3d 556, 557, 562 (Tex. App.—Beaumont 2011, no pet.). But cf. Benish v. Grottie, 281 S.W.3d 184, 192 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2009, pet. denied) (declining to equate willful and wanton negligence with gross negligence when evaluating the sufficiency of chapter 74 preliminary expert reports).

If emergency is in issue. If performance of the ‘emergency medical care’ in a hospital emergency department or obstetrical unit or in a surgical suite immediately following the evaluation or treatment of a patient in a hospital emergency department is in issue, including whether the medical care or treatment occurred after the patient was stabilized and capable of receiving medical treatment as a nonemergency patient, a preliminary question before Question 2 would need to be submitted, such as—

Was the care provided by Dr. Davis “emergency medical care” administered in the emergency department or obstetrical unit or in a surgical suite immediately following the evaluation or treatment of a patient in a hospital emergency department?

“Emergency medical care” means bona fide emergency services provided after the sudden onset of a medical or traumatic condition manifesting itself by acute symptoms of sufficient severity, including severe pain, such that the absence of immediate medical attention could reasonably be expected to result in placing the patient’s health in serious jeopardy, serious impairment to bodily functions, or serious dysfunction of any bodily organ or part. The term does not include medical care or treatment that occurs after the patient is stabilized and is capable of receiving medical treatment as a nonemergency patient or that is unrelated to the original medical emergency.

See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.001(a)(7). An ordinary negligence question and definition should be submitted after the emergency care question. It should include a predicate question similar to the following for when the jury answered ‘No’ to the emergency care question:

If you answered “No” to Question ____ [question establishing the provision of ‘emergency medical care’], then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

When to omit jury instructions. Jury instructions 1–4 in Question 2 should not be used if the medical care or treatment is related to an emergency caused in whole or in part by the negligence of the defendant. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.154(b)(3).

PJC 51.18E When Both Nonemergency Care and Emergency Care (Statutory) Occur in a Hospital Emergency Department or Obstetrical Unit or in a Surgical Suite Immediately Following the Evaluation or Treatment of a Patient in a Hospital Emergency Department

Was “nonemergency medical care” provided by Dixon Hospital in the [emergency department] [obstetrical unit] [surgical suite immediately following the evaluation or treatment in the hospital emergency department]?

“Nonemergency medical care” is medical care or treatment that is not “emergency medical care.”

“Emergency medical care” means bona fide emergency services provided after the sudden onset of a medical or traumatic condition manifesting itself by acute symptoms of sufficient severity, including severe pain, such that the absence of immediate medical attention could reasonably be expected to result in placing the patient’s health in serious jeopardy, serious impairment to bodily functions, or serious dysfunction of any bodily organ or part. The term does not include medical care or treatment that occurs after the patient is stabilized and is capable of receiving medical treatment as a nonemergency patient or that is unrelated to the original medical emergency.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

QUESTION 2

Was “emergency medical care” provided by Dixon Hospital in the [emergency department] [obstetrical unit] [surgical suite immediately following the evaluation or treatment in the hospital emergency department]?

“Emergency medical care” means bona fide emergency services provided after the sudden onset of a medical or traumatic condition manifesting itself by acute symptoms of sufficient severity, including severe pain, such that the absence of immediate medical attention could reasonably be expected to result in placing the patient’s health in serious jeopardy, serious impairment to bodily functions, or serious dysfunction of any bodily organ or part. The term does not include medical care or treatment that occurs after the patient is stabilized and is capable of receiving medical treatment as a nonemergency patient or that is unrelated to the original medical emergency.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

If you answered “Yes” to Question 1 [question establishing the provision of ‘nonemergency medical care’], then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

QUESTION 3

Did the negligence, if any, involving “nonemergency medical care” of Dixon Hospital proximately cause the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

If you answered “Yes” to Question 2 [question establishing the provision of ‘emergency medical care’], then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

QUESTION 4

Did the willful and wanton negligence, if any, involving “emergency medical care” of Dixon Hospital proximately cause the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

“Willful and wanton negligence” means an act or omission—

1. which when viewed objectively from the standpoint of the actor at the time of its occurrence involves an extreme degree of risk, considering the probability and magnitude of the potential harm to others; and

2. of which the actor has actual, subjective awareness of the risk involved, but nevertheless proceeds with conscious indifference to the rights, safety, or welfare of others.

In answering this question, you shall consider, together with all relevant factors—

1. whether the person providing care did or did not have the patient’s medical history or was able or unable to obtain a full medical history, including the knowledge of preexisting medical conditions, allergies, and medications;

2. the presence or lack of a preexisting physician-patient relationship or health care provider-patient relationship;
3. the circumstances constituting the emergency; and
4. the circumstances surrounding the delivery of the emergency medical care.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 51.18E is not appropriate when the care rendered in the hospital emergency department or obstetrical unit or in a surgical suite immediately following the evaluation or treatment of a patient in a hospital emergency department was not “emergency medical care.” In those situations, PJC 51.3 should be used.

PJC 51.18E should be used in actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, if the evidence shows that both an ordinary negligence standard applies to acts or omissions of a defendant in a certain location and a willful and wanton negligence standard applies to other acts or omissions of “emergency medical care” in that same location.

This situation often arises when there are allegations that the hospital’s provision of “emergency medical care” in a hospital emergency department or obstetrical unit or in a surgical suite immediately following the evaluation or treatment of a patient in a hospital emergency department falls below the standard of care and there are also allegations that the hospital’s provision of “nonemergency medical care” in a hospital emergency department or obstetrical unit or in a surgical suite immediately following the evaluation or treatment of a patient in a hospital emergency department falls below the standard of care.

Gross negligence. If gross negligence will be charged to the jury, it must be ensured, through predicate instructions or separate questions, that the jury answers any gross negligence question only as to those questions for which the jury unanimously answered ‘Yes’ regarding negligence or willful and wanton negligence.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 51.1.

Source of definition. Willful and wanton negligence found in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.153 means gross negligence for trial purposes. Turner v. Franklin, 325 S.W.3d 771, 780–81 & n.12 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2010, pet. denied) (concluding that the willful and wanton standard required at trial is a gross negligence standard even when the trial is in the form of a summary judgment hearing); *see also Christus Health Southeast Texas v. 2009, pet. denied) (declining to equate willful and wanton negligence with gross negligence when evaluating the sufficiency of chapter 74 preliminary expert reports).

If emergency is not in issue. PJC 51.18E assumes the parties will not agree on whether both “nonemergency medical care” and “emergency medical care” have been provided in the hospital emergency department or obstetrical unit or in a surgical suite immediately following the evaluation or treatment of a patient in a hospital emergency department. If, however, the parties agree that both types of medical care have been provided, then only Questions 3 and 4, without the accompanying predicate instructions, should be submitted.

When to omit jury instructions. Jury instructions 1–4 in Question 4 should not be used if the medical care or treatment is related to an emergency caused in whole or in part by the negligence of the defendant. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.154(b)(3).

PJC 51.19 Malicious Credentialing Claim against a HospitalPJC 51.19A Malicious Credentialing Claim against a Hospital—
Causes of Action Filed before September 1, 2003

QUESTION _____

Do you find that Dixon Hospital acted with malice in the granting or retaining of Dr. Davis's active surgical credentials and that such conduct was a proximate cause of the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

“Malice” means—

1. a specific intent by Dixon Hospital to cause substantial injury to Paul Payne; or
2. an act or omission by Dixon Hospital,
 - a. which when viewed objectively from the standpoint of Dixon Hospital at the time of its occurrence involves an extreme degree of risk, considering the probability and magnitude of the potential harm to others; and
 - b. of which Dixon Hospital has actual, subjective awareness of the risk involved, but nevertheless proceeds with conscious indifference to the rights, safety, or welfare of others.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

PJC 51.19B Malicious Credentialing Claim against a Hospital—

QUESTION _____

Do you find that Dixon Hospital acted with malice in the granting or retaining of Dr. Davis's active surgical credentials and that such conduct was a proximate cause of the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

“Malice” means a specific intent by Dixon Hospital to cause substantial injury or harm to Paul Payne.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 51.19 should be used if the plaintiff seeks recovery for injuries resulting from the malicious credentialing of a physician. A hospital's alleged malicious credentialing can be the proximate cause of the plaintiff's injuries only if the jury finds that the physician was negligent and the negligence injured the plaintiff. See Garland Community Hospital v. Rose, 156 S.W.3d 541, 546 (Tex. 2004).

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 51.1.

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant's liability may be predicated only on ‘an injury that causes an individual's death.’ Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospital, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word “death” may be substituted for the word “injury” in the negligence question.

Source of definitions.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. See former Tex Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.001(7)(B) (Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 19, § 1 (S.B. 25), eff. Sept. 1, 1995). In actions filed before September 1, 2003, malice in the credentialing process need not be directed toward a specific patient. St. Luke's Episcopal Hospital v. Agbor, 952 S.W.2d 503, 506 (Tex. 1997). The definition of malice under former section 41.001(7)(B) consists of two components—one objective and one subjective. KPH Consolidation, Inc. v. Romero, 102 S.W.3d 135, 143 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2003), aff'd, 166 S.W.3d 212 (Tex. 2005). Actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.001(7).

Proximate cause. PJC 51.19 is designed to be used with the definition of ‘proximate cause’ in PJC 50.2. If the evidence raises ‘new and independent cause,’ the definitions in PJC 50.4 should be used in lieu of the definition of ‘proximate cause’ in PJC 50.2.

Exemplary damages. Malice must be proved by clear and convincing evidence to recover exemplary damages. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(a)–(c); Romero v. KPH Consolidation, Inc., 166 S.W.3d 212, 220 (Tex. 2005). PJC 51.20 The Emergency Medical Treatment and Active Labor Act (EMTALA)—Medical Screening Examinations and/or Stabilization before Transfer When a Patient Comes to a Hospital with an Emergency Medical Condition

Did Dixon Hospital fail to provide an appropriate medical screening examination after Paul Payne came to the hospital's emergency department?

Paul Payne "came to the hospital's emergency department" if he presented to the hospital's emergency department seeking an examination of, or treatment for, a medical condition.

A "medical screening examination" means an examination within the capability of the hospital's emergency department, including ancillary services routinely available to the emergency department, to determine whether or not an emergency medical condition exists.

An "appropriate medical screening examination" means a screening examination that—

1. is reasonably calculated to identify critical medical conditions that may be afflicting symptomatic patients; and
2. provides that level of screening uniformly to all those who present substantially similar complaints.

Answer "Yes" or "No."

Answer: _____

If you answered "Yes" to Question 1, then answer Question _____ [applicable damages question] and do not answer Question 2 or 3.

If you answered "No" to Question 1, then answer Question 2.

QUESTION 2

Did Dixon Hospital determine that Paul Payne had an emergency medical condition?

An "emergency medical condition" means a medical condition manifesting itself by acute symptoms of sufficient severity (including severe pain) such that the absence of immediate medical attention could reasonably be expected to result in—

1. placing the health of the individual (or, with respect to a pregnant woman, the health of the woman or her unborn child) in serious jeopardy; or
2. serious impairment to bodily functions; or
3. serious dysfunction of any bodily organ or part.

An “emergency medical condition” with respect to a pregnant woman who is having contractions means—

1. that there is inadequate time to effect a safe transfer to another hospital before delivery; or
2. that transfer may pose a threat to the health or safety of the woman or the unborn child.

Dixon Hospital “determined there was an emergency medical condition” if it had actual knowledge that an emergency medical condition existed or actually detected an emergency medical condition.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

If you answered “Yes” to Question 2, then answer Question 3. Otherwise, do not answer Question 3.

QUESTION 3A (Transfer)

Did Dixon Hospital inappropriately transfer Paul Payne to another medical facility before the patient’s emergency medical condition was stabilized?

An “emergency medical condition was stabilized” if no material deterioration of the condition was likely, within reasonable medical probability, to result from or occur during the transfer of the individual from a facility, or, with respect to a woman in inactive labor, the woman had delivered (including the placenta).

A hospital may not transfer a patient with an emergency medical condition that has not been stabilized unless—

1. the patient (or a legally responsible person acting on the patient’s behalf) is informed of the hospital’s stabilization obligations and of the risk of transfer, and the patient requests transfer to another medical facility in writing; or
2. a physician signs a certification indicating that based on the information available at the time of transfer, the medical benefits reasonably expected from appropriate medical treatment at another medical facility outweigh the increased risks of transferring the individual and, in the case of labor, the unborn child; or

3. if a physician is not physically present in the emergency department at the time an individual is transferred, a qualified medical person in consultation with a physician signs a certification and the consulting physician that determined the medical benefits reasonably expected from appropriate medical treatment at another medical facility outweigh the increased risks of transfer subsequently countersigns the certification; and

4. the transfer is an appropriate transfer to the facility.

An appropriate transfer means—

1. the transferring hospital provided the medical treatment within its capacity to minimize the risks to the individual's health and, in the case of a woman in labor, the health of the unborn child; and

2. the receiving facility had available space and qualified personnel for the treatment of the individual and agreed to accept transfer of the individual and to provide appropriate medical treatment; and

3. the transferring hospital sent to the receiving facility all medical records related to the emergency condition that were available at the time of the transfer, including records related to the individual's emergency medical condition, observations of signs or symptoms, preliminary diagnosis, treatment provided, and the results of any tests of the patient; and

4. the transferring hospital sent to the receiving facility the informed written consent or certification permitting transfer, and the name and address of any on-call physician who has refused or failed to appear within a reasonable time to provide necessary stabilizing treatment; and

5. the transfer was effected through qualified personnel and transportation equipment, as required, including the use of necessary and medically appropriate life support measures during the transfer.

Answer "Yes" or "No."

Answer: _____

QUESTION 3B (Discharge)

Did Dixon Hospital inappropriately discharge Paul Payne before Paul Payne's emergency medical condition was stabilized?

An “emergency medical condition was stabilized” if no material deterioration of the condition was likely, within reasonable medical probability, to result from or occur during the transfer of the individual from a facility, or, with respect to a woman in inactive labor, the woman had delivered (including the placenta).

Dixon Hospital’s discharge of Paul Payne before the emergency medical condition was stabilized was inappropriate unless—

1. Paul Payne (or a legally responsible person acting on Paul Payne’s behalf) was informed of the hospital’s stabilization obligations and of the risk of discharge; and
2. Paul Payne requested a discharge in writing; or
3. Paul Payne left Dixon Hospital’s facilities without the permission of any person employed by the hospital.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 51.20 should be used in actions brought under the civil enforcement clause of 42 U.S.C. § 1395dd(d)(2)(A) if the evidence shows the hospital is a Medicare participating hospital with an emergency department and the patient suffered personal harm as a direct result of the participating hospital’s violation of the Emergency Medical Treatment and Active Labor Act (EMTALA). See 42 U.S.C. § 1395dd(d)(2)(A), (e)(2). The EMTALA creates a cause of action for individuals who are purportedly harmed either by a participating hospital’s failure to (1) provide them with an “appropriate medical screening” to establish if an emergency medical condition exists or (2) “stabilize” the patient before transfer or discharge if a statutorily defined emergency medical condition has been detected. Tenet Hospitals, Ltd. v. Boada, 304 S.W.3d 528, 533 (Tex. App.—El Paso 2009, pet. denied). Because the civil enforcement clause of the EMTALA permits damages for personal injury under the law of the state in which the hospital is located, PJC 51.20 is to be used with the appropriate damages questions in chapters 80, 81, and 82 in this volume upon a ‘Yes’ answer to Question 1 or a ‘Yes’ answer to Question 3A or 3B.

While the EMTALA defines transfers as including a discharge from a participating hospital, to reduce confusion between questions, Question 3A should be used if the evidence shows the participating hospital transferred the patient to another facility, whereas Question 3B should be used if the evidence shows the patient was discharged from the participating hospital. See 42 U.S.C. § 1395dd(c)(1), (2), (e)(4).

Source of definitions. The definitions for when a patient comes to the hospital and for a medical screening examination can be found at 42 U.S.C. § 1395dd(a). See also C.M. v. Tomball Regional Hospital, 961 S.W.2d 236, 241 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1997, no writ) (The “EMTALA requires a medicare provider hospital with an emergency room to accept any individual who comes to the emergency department and requests an examination or treatment for a medical condition.”). A medical screening examination is appropriate if it is ‘reasonably calculated to identify critical medical conditions that may be afflicting symptomatic patients and provides that level of screening uniformly to all those who present substantially similar complaints.’ Guzman v. Memorial Hermann Hospital System, 637 F. Supp. 2d 464, 491 (S.D. Tex. 2009) aff’d, 409 F. App’x 769 (5th Cir. 2011); Tomball Regional Hospital, 961 S.W.2d at 241 (holding that a hospital is required “to provide each patient with a medical screening similar to one that it would provide to any other patient”).

The definition of an emergency medical condition can be found at 42 U.S.C. § 1395dd(e)(1). See also Tenet Hospitals Ltd., 304 S.W.3d at 534. A hospital’s duty to stabilize does not arise unless the hospital has actual knowledge or actually detects an emergency medical condition. See Rios v. Baptist Memorial Hospital System, 935 S.W.2d 799, 804 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1996, writ denied) (“An additional duty arises if an emergency medical condition is discovered during the screening process.”); Guzman, 637 F. Supp. 2d at 507 (“Courts require ‘actual detection’ or ‘actual knowledge’ to trigger the duty to stabilize because a hospital cannot be held liable for failing to stabilize a condition of which it was unaware.”). It is necessary to include this clarification because failure to diagnose an emergency medical condition is not actionable under the EMTALA. See Tenet Hospitals Ltd., 304 S.W.3d at 534 (holding that there is no liability for failure to diagnose); Marshall on Behalf of Marshall v. E. Carroll Parish Hospital Service District, 134 F.3d 319, 323 (5th Cir. 1998) (“Failure to appreciate the extent of the patient’s injury or illness, as well as a subsequent failure to order an additional diagnostic procedure, may constitute negligence or malpractice, but cannot support an EMTALA claim for inappropriate screening.”).

The definition of “stabilized” can be found at 42 U.S.C. § 1395dd(e)(3)(A), (B). See Corpus Christi Day Cruise, LLC v. Christus Spohn Health System Corp., 398 S.W.3d 303, 313 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi 2012, pet. denied). The definitions of an appropriate and inappropriate transfer or discharge can be found at 42 U.S.C. § 1395dd(c).

PJC 52.1 Borrowed Employee—Medical—Liability of Borrowing Employer

QUESTION _____

On the occasion in question, was Don Donaldson acting as a borrowed employee of Dixon Hospital?

If Don Donaldson was generally employed by Dr. Davis, he was a “borrowed employee” of Dixon Hospital if Dixon Hospital or its agents had the right to direct and control the details of the particular work inquired about.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 52.1 submits the “borrowed employee” (sometimes called “borrowed servant,” “loaned employee,” or “special employee”) theory if vicarious liability is sought against the borrowing employer (such as the hospital) only. The right of control over the details of the work is the determinative test of whether responsibility for the injury rests with the general employer or the borrowing employer. See St. Joseph Hospital v. Wolff, 94 S.W.3d 513, 537 (Tex. 2002); J.A. Robinson Sons, Inc. v. Wigart, 431 S.W.2d 327, 330–34 (Tex. 1968), overruled on other grounds by Sanchez v. Schindler, 651 S.W.2d 249, 251 (Tex. 1983); Shell Oil Co. v. Reinhart, 375 S.W.2d 717, 718–19 (Tex. 1964); Producers Chemical Co. v. McKay, 366 S.W.2d 220, 225–26 (Tex. 1963). An additional factor to be considered is any contract language between the two parties addressing the right of control. Exxon Corp. v. Perez, 842 S.W.2d 629, 630 (Tex. 1992). The “captain of the ship” doctrine has been disapproved in Texas. Sparger v. Worley Hospital, Inc., 547 S.W.2d 582, 583–85 (Tex. 1977); Ramon v. Mani, 550 S.W.2d 270, 271 (Tex. 1977).

When not to use.

Imposing liability versus avoiding liability. PJC 52.1 should be used only to impose vicarious liability on the alleged borrowing employer (such as the hospital). If, instead, the general employer (such as the physician) asserts the “borrowed employee” doctrine to avoid liability, it should be submitted as in PJC 52.2. See Tex. R. Civ. P. 277; Select Insurance Co. v. Boucher, 561 S.W.2d 474 (Tex. 1978).

Not appropriate for independent contractor or joint control. PJC 52.1 is not appropriate to submit the concept of independent contractor. Nor should it be used if the issue of joint control by the hospital and physician is raised by the facts.

PJC 52.2 Borrowed Employee—Medical—Lending Employer’s Rebuttal Instruction

QUESTION _____

On the occasion in question, was Don Donaldson acting as an employee of Dixon Hospital?

An “employee” is a person in the service of another with the understanding, express or implied, that such other person has the right to direct the details of the work and not merely the result to be accomplished.

An employee ceases to be an employee of his general employer if he becomes the “borrowed employee” of another. One who would otherwise be in the general employment of one employer is a borrowed employee of another employer if such other employer or his agents have the right to direct and control the details of the particular work inquired about.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 52.2 may be used if a general employer (such as the physician) claimed to be vicariously liable seeks to rebut the employment relationship with evidence that the employee was the borrowed employee of another (such as the hospital) on the occasion in question. This contention is an inferential rebuttal and is to be submitted as an instruction rather than disjunctively. See Tex. R. Civ. P. 277; Select Insurance Co. v. Boucher, 561 S.W.2d 474 (Tex. 1978).

When not to use. PJC 52.2 is not appropriate to submit the concept of independent contractor. Nor should it be used if the issue of joint control by the hospital and physician is raised by the facts.

There may be situations in which a physician’s status as a borrowed employee is established as a matter of law. See St. Joseph Hospital v. Wolff, 94 S.W.3d 513 (Tex. 2002) (plurality opinion).

Disjunctive submission. For a disjunctive submission, see PJC 52.3. If the doctrine of borrowed employee is the proper subject of a question seeking to impose liability on the borrowing employer only, see PJC 52.1.

PJC 52.3 Borrowed Employee—Medical—Disjunctive Submission of Lending or Borrowing Employer

QUESTION _____

On the occasion in question, was Don Donaldson acting as an employee of Dixon Hospital or of Dr. Davis?

An “employee” is a person in the service of another with the understanding, express or implied, that such other person has the right to direct the details of the work and not merely the result to be accomplished.

An employee ceases to be an employee of his general employer if he becomes the “borrowed employee” of another. One who would otherwise be in the general employment of one employer is a borrowed employee of another employer if such other employer or his agents have the right to direct and control the details of the particular work inquired about.

For purposes of this question, the term “employee” includes “borrowed employee.” On the occasion in question, Don Donaldson could not have been the employee of both Dixon Hospital and Dr. Davis.

Answer “Dixon Hospital” or “Dr. Davis.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. The disjunctive submission above properly submits “borrowed employee” only if the plaintiff alleges and it is apparent from the evidence that the alleged tortfeasor is necessarily the employee of either the hospital or the physician. See Tex. R. Civ. P. 277; Archuleta v. International Insurance Co., 667 S.W.2d 120 (Tex. 1984) (proper to ask about total and partial incapacity as alternate theories; inquiry about partial incapacity is improper inferential rebuttal if only total incapacity is claimed); see also Burns v. Union Standard Insurance Co., 593 S.W.2d 309 (Tex. 1980).

When not to use. PJC 52.3 should not be used to submit “borrowed employee” as an inferential rebuttal. Select Insurance Co. v. Boucher, 561 S.W.2d 474 (Tex. 1978). In such a case, see PJC 52.2. Nor would the above charge be appropriate if the concept of joint control by the hospital and the physician or that of the independent contractor were raised by the evidence.

PJC 52.4 Ostensible Agency—Question and Instruction

QUESTION _____

Was there an ostensible agency relationship between Dr. Davis and Dixon Hospital with respect to Dr. Davis's treatment of Paul Payne at Dixon Hospital?

An ostensible agency relationship existed if (1) Paul Payne had a reasonable belief that Dr. Davis was the agent or employee of Dixon Hospital; (2) such belief was generated by Dixon Hospital's affirmatively holding out Dr. Davis as its agent or employee, or by Dixon Hospital's knowingly permitting Dr. Davis to hold himself out as its agent or employee; and (3) Paul Payne justifiably relied on the representation of authority.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 52.4 submits the ‘ostensible agency’ theory for imposing vicarious liability on a hospital for the conduct of an independent contractor physician. There is no practical distinction among the theories of ostensible agency, apparent agency, apparent authority, and agency by estoppel, and this question should be used for all such theories. See Baptist Memorial Hospital System v. Sampson, 969 S.W.2d 945 (Tex. 1998). Ostensible agency is a form of estoppel, Sampson, 969 S.W.2d at 948, and must be pleaded in accordance with Tex. R. Civ. P. 94. Nicholson v. Memorial Hospital System, 722 S.W.2d 746, 749 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1986, writ ref’d n.r.e.). In cases in which the patient was at the time not capable of making, and therefore did not make, his or her own medical treatment decision and the decision of whether, where, and from whom treatment would be obtained was made by someone lawfully authorized to act on the patient’s behalf, the Committee recommends that the phrase or someone lawfully acting on his behalf be inserted after the patient’s name in the definition.

Source of definition and elements. The doctrine was first adopted by the Supreme Court of Texas for use in medical malpractice cases in Sampson, 969 S.W.2d 945.

Statutory prohibition of corporation’s practice of medicine. The supreme court has rejected the argument that vicarious liability may not be imposed on a corporation for the acts of its employees based on statutory prohibitions of a hospital or other entity from practicing medicine. St. Joseph Hospital v. Wolff, 94 S.W.3d 513, 539–40 (Tex. 2002) (citing Tex. Health & Safety Code ch. 241 (hospital-licensing law); Tex. Occ. Code § 165.156 (prohibiting corporations and other business entities from indicating they are entitled to practice medicine if they are not licensed to do so); Tex. Bus. Orgs. Code § 2.007 (prohibiting incorporation for purpose of activity that cannot lawfully be engaged in without license, and license cannot lawfully be granted to corporation)).

Note

Certain professions consist of members who hold themselves out as having superior knowledge, training, and skill. Such persons are held to a standard embodying this concept, a violation of which is called professional negligence or malpractice, which is expressed in terms of a similar professional acting or failing to act under the same or similar circumstances. Other types of professionals are held to the standard of reasonably prudent persons. Whether a particular profession falls within one standard or the other is a question of substantive law. When this book was prepared, the professions treated in chapters 60 and 61—law, accounting, and architecture—had been judicially recognized to be within the higher professional standard.

PJC 60.1 Nonmedical Professional’s Degree of Care; Proximate Cause

“Negligence,” when used with respect to the conduct of Dora Dotson, means failure to use ordinary care, that is, failing to do that which an accountant of ordinary prudence would have done under the same or similar circumstances or doing that which an accountant of ordinary prudence would not have done under the same or similar circumstances.

“Ordinary care,” when used with respect to the conduct of Dora Dotson, means that degree of care that an accountant of ordinary prudence would use under the same or similar circumstances.

“Proximate cause,” when used with respect to the conduct of Dora Dotson, means a cause that was a substantial factor in bringing about an [injury] [occurrence], and without which cause such [injury] [occurrence] would not have occurred. In order to be a proximate cause, the act or omission complained of must be such that an accountant using ordinary care would have foreseen that the [injury] [occurrence], or some similar [injury] [occurrence], might reasonably result therefrom. There may be more than one proximate cause of an [injury] [occurrence].

COMMENT

Source of definitions. The definitions include the standard and accepted elements of nonmedical professional malpractice. See Fireman’s Fund American Insurance Co. v. Patterson & Lamberty, Inc., 528 S.W.2d 67 (Tex. Civ. App.—Tyler 1975, writ ref’d n.r.e.) (attorney); Atkins v. Crosland, 406 S.W.2d 263 (Tex. Civ. App.—Fort Worth 1966), rev’d on other grounds, 417 S.W.2d 150 (Tex. 1967) (accountant); Ryan v. Morgan Spear Associates, Inc., 546 S.W.2d 678 (Tex. Civ. App.—Corpus Christi 1977, writ ref’d n.r.e.) (architect). The definition of “proximate cause” is based on language from Transcontinental Insurance Co. v. Crump:

[W]e first examine the causation standards for proximate cause and producing cause. ‘The two elements of proximate cause are cause in fact (or substantial factor) and foreseeability. Cause in fact is established when the act or omission was a substantial factor in bringing about the injuries, and without it, the harm would not have occurred. IHS Cedars Treatment Ctr. v. Mason, 143 S.W.3d 794, 798–99 (Tex. 2004). ‘The approved definition of ‘proximate cause’ in negligence cases and the approved definition of ‘producing cause’ in compensation cases are in substance the same, except that there is added to the definition of proximate cause the element of fore-

seeableness. [Texas Indemnity Insurance Co. v. Staggs, 134 S.W.2d 1026, 1028–29 (Tex. 1940).] In other words, the producing cause inquiry is conceptually identical to that of cause in fact.

Transcontinental Insurance Co. v. Crump, 330 S.W.3d 211, 222–23 (Tex. 2010). See also Ford Motor Co. v. Ledesma, 242 S.W.3d 32, 46 (Tex. 2007).

The Crump and Ledesma opinions address the definitions of “producing cause” and “cause in fact.” As of the publication date of this edition, there is no decision that expressly overrules the traditional definition of “proximate cause” below:

“Proximate cause,” when used with respect to the conduct of Dora Dotson, means that cause which, in a natural and continuous sequence, produces an event, and without which cause such event would not have occurred. In order to be a proximate cause, the act or omission complained of must be such that an accountant using ordinary care would have foreseen that the event, or some similar event, might reasonably result therefrom. There may be more than one proximate cause of an event.

Former PJC 60.1. This definition was based on the definition approved by the court in Rudes v. Gottschalk, 324 S.W.2d 201, 207 (Tex. 1959), and has been cited in many cases.

When to use. These definitions should usually be included in the court’s charge in a nonmedical professional malpractice case. If the evidence raises ‘new and independent cause,’ the definitions in PJC 60.2 should be used in lieu of the definition of “proximate cause” above.

Substitute particular professional. A term describing the professional involved (e.g., attorney, architect) should be substituted as appropriate for the word accountant.

Attorneys.

Evidence of bad result. A finding of negligence may not be based solely on evidence of a bad result to the claimant. If an attorney makes a decision that a reasonably prudent attorney could make in the same or similar circumstances, it is not an act of negligence even if the results are undesirable. See Cosgrove v. Grimes, 774 S.W.2d 662, 665 (Tex. 1989). Whether an attorney has breached his duty of care is an objective standard of professional judgment, not the subjective belief that his acts are in good faith. Cosgrove, 774 S.W.2d at 665. The so-called good-faith excuse doctrine has been abandoned. Bobbitt v. Weeks, 774 S.W.2d 638 (Tex. 1989).

Loss of right of appeal—proximate cause for the court. In legal malpractice claims involving the loss of a right of appeal, the supreme court has determined that the question of proximate cause of a claimant’s damages is a matter of law for the court. Millhouse v. Wiesenthal, 775 S.W.2d 626 (Tex. 1989). Thus the jury should not be instructed on proximate cause issues involving the loss of a right of appeal.

Caveat—legal specialists. Whether a legal specialist is to be held to a higher standard than that of an ordinary attorney, as set forth above, has not been decided. If a higher standard is applicable, the appropriate term to describe a specialist in the particular specialty (e.g., a legal specialist in Estate Planning and Probate) should be substituted for the term an accountant in the definitions of “negligence” and “proximate cause”; in the definition of “ordinary care, the words an accountant of ordinary prudence should be replaced with the phrase a legal specialist of ordinary prudence in Estate Planning and Probate.

Areas of specialization. The Supreme Court of Texas, by order, has recognized certain areas of legal specialization. To be certified as a specialist in these areas, the attorney must satisfy a number of requirements, including satisfactorily completing a course in the area and passing a written examination. The areas of specialization now certified are Administrative; Business Bankruptcy; Civil Appellate; Civil Trial; Construction; Consumer and Commercial; Consumer Bankruptcy; Criminal; Criminal Appellate; Estate Planning and Probate; Family; Health; Immigration and Nationality; Juvenile; Labor and Employment; Oil, Gas, and Mineral; Personal Injury Trial; Real Estate—Commercial; Real Estate—Residential; Real Estate—Farm and Ranch; Tax; and Workers’ Compensation. Also recognized as specialists are patent lawyers licensed to practice before the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office; this license is based on educational credentials in a technical field and an examination administered by the Patent Office. The concept of legal specialization may also be associated with an attorney’s holding himself out as specially qualified in a particular area.

Accountants.

Accountant’s standard of care. As members of a skilled professional class, accountants are subject generally to the same rules of liability for negligence in practicing their profession as are members of other skilled professions and are liable to their clients for professional negligence. The standard of care of auditors and public accountants is the same as that applied to lawyers, physicians, and members of other skilled professions who furnish their professional services for compensation. See Greenstein, Logan & Co. v. Burgess Marketing, Inc., 744 S.W.2d 170, 185 (Tex. App.—Waco 1987, writ denied); Atkins v. Crosland, 406 S.W.2d 263 (Tex. Civ. App.—Fort Worth 1966), rev’d on other grounds, 417 S.W.2d 150 (Tex. 1967).

Public Accountancy Act. Accountants are subject to Tex. Occ. Code ch. 901, the Public Accountancy Act, which is administered by the Texas State Board of Public Accountancy. The board is authorized to promulgate rules of professional conduct, the violation of which may form the basis for a cause of action against an accountant. See Shatterproof Glass Corp. v. James, 466 S.W.2d 873 (Tex. Civ. App.—Fort Worth 1971, writ ref’d n.r.e.).

Registration statements subject to federal securities statute. An accountant participating in the preparation of a registration statement is governed by the federal securities statute and is liable to anyone acquiring a security whose registration statement contains an untrue statement of fact or omits a required one. 15 U.S.C. § 77k(a)(4).

Architects.

Implied possession, use of skill. The architect's undertaking implies only that he possesses the skill and ability sufficient to draw and prepare the plans and specifications in an ordinary, reasonable manner and will exercise and apply that skill and ability with ordinary care. See Ryan v. Morgan Spear Associates, Inc., 546 S.W.2d 678 (Tex. Civ. App.—Corpus Christi 1977, writ ref'd n.r.e.); Capitol Hotel Co. v. Rittenberry, 41 S.W.2d 697 (Tex. Civ. App.—Amarillo 1931, writ dism'd); American Surety Co. v. San Antonio Loan & Trust Co., 98 S.W. 387 (Tex. Civ. App. 1906), rev'd in part on other grounds sub. nom. Lonergan v. San Antonio Loan & Trust Co., 104 S.W. 1061 (Tex. 1907).

Board of Architectural Examiners. The practice of architecture is regulated by the Texas Board of Architectural Examiners, which is responsible for both examination and licensing. Tex. Occ. Code ch. 1051.

Basis of liability. The liability of an architect may be based on breach of contract, fraud, misrepresentation, or negligence. See Cobb v. Thomas, 565 S.W.2d 281 (Tex. Civ. App.—Tyler 1978, writ ref'd n.r.e.). Such cases may also involve the interpretation of written contracts and are consequently beyond the scope of this volume.

Using “reasonable care” instead of “ordinary care.” In Hiroms v. Scheffey, 76 S.W.3d 486, 488–89 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2002, no pet.), the court noted that there was merit to the appellant's contention that the standard of care in medical malpractice cases should turn on whether the defendant exercised reasonable care rather than ordinary care. But the court ultimately did not resolve the issue because the appellant had failed to preserve error. The Committee raises the issue, however, because in some cases ‘reasonable’ may be substituted for ‘ordinary,’ depending on the facts and circumstances. See, e.g. Dennis v. Allison, 698 S.W.2d 94, 95 (Tex. 1985) (describing actionable negligence as breach of duty of reasonable care); Helms v. Day, 215 S.W.2d 356, 358 (Tex. Civ. App.—Fort Worth 1948, writ dism'd) (absent special contract to either cure or not charge for services, a physician warrants only that he “possesses a reasonable degree of skill, such as ordinarily possessed by a profession generally, and to exercise that skill with reasonable care and diligence”) (citing Graham v. Gautier, 21 Tex. 111 (1858)); Magnolia Paper Co. v. Duffy, 176 S.W. 89, 92 (Tex. Civ. App.—San Antonio 1915, no writ) (“The final test of negligence is not usage or custom, but the inflexible rule which fixes reasonable care as the standard by which the conduct of the master to the servant is measured.”).

PJC 60.2 New and Independent Cause—Nonmedical Professional

“Proximate cause,” when used with respect to the conduct of Dora Dotson, means a cause, unbroken by any new and independent cause, that was a substantial factor in bringing about an [injury] [occurrence], and without which cause such [injury] [occurrence] would not have occurred. In order to be a proximate cause, the act or omission complained of must be such that an accountant exercising ordinary care would have foreseen that the [injury] [occurrence], or some similar [injury] [occurrence], might reasonably result therefrom. There may be more than one proximate cause of an [injury] [occurrence].

“New and independent cause” means the act or omission of a separate and independent agency, not reasonably foreseeable by an accountant exercising ordinary care, that destroys the causal connection, if any, between the act or omission inquired about and the occurrence in question and thereby becomes the immediate cause of such occurrence.

COMMENT

When to use—given in lieu of PJC 60.1. PJC 60.2 should be used in lieu of the usual definition of “proximate cause” (see PJC 60.1) if there is evidence of a new and independent cause. See Tarry Warehouse & Storage Co. v. Duvall, 115 S.W.2d 401, 405 (Tex. 1938); Phoenix Refining Co. v. Tips, 81 S.W.2d 60, 61 (Tex. 1935). Submission if there is no such evidence is improper and may be reversible error. Galvan v. Fedder, 678 S.W.2d 596, 598–99 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1984, no writ). See also James v. Kloos, 75 S.W.3d 153, 162–63 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2002, no pet.).

Because a new and independent cause is in the nature of an inferential rebuttal, it should be submitted by instruction only. Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. For elements to consider when determining whether a new and independent cause exists, see Columbia Rio Grande Healthcare v. Hawley, 284 S.W.3d 851, 857–59 (Tex. 2009). The ‘new and independent cause’ instruction is not used when the intervening forces are foreseeable and within the scope of risk created by the actor’s conduct. Dew v. Crown Derrick Erectors, Inc., 208 S.W.3d 448, 450–53 (Tex. 2006).

Substitute particular professional. A term describing the professional involved (e.g. attorney, architect) should be substituted as appropriate for the term accountant.

Caveat. The Texas Supreme Court has acknowledged that inferential rebuttals ‘serve a legitimate purpose. The court also cautioned, however, that multiple inferential rebuttal instructions have “the potential to skew the jury’s analysis.” Dillard v. Texas Electric Cooperative, 157 S.W.3d 429, 433 (Tex. 2005).

PJC 60.3 Sole Proximate Cause—Nonmedical Professional

There may be more than one proximate cause of an [injury] [occurrence], but if an act or omission of any person not a party to the suit was the “sole proximate cause” of an [injury] [occurrence], then no act or omission of any party could have been a proximate cause.

COMMENT

When to use—given in lieu of last sentence of proximate cause definition. PJC 60.3 should be used in lieu of the last sentence of the definition of “proximate cause” (see PJC 60.1) if there is evidence that a person’s conduct that is not submitted to the jury is the sole proximate cause of the occurrence. See American Jet, Inc. v. Leyendecker, 683 S.W.2d 121, 126 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1984, no writ); Herrera v. Balmorhea Feeders, Inc., 539 S.W.2d 84, 86 (Tex. Civ. App.—El Paso 1976, writ ref’d n.r.e.). Submission if there is no such evidence is improper and may be reversible error. See Huerta v. Hotel Dieu Hospital, 636 S.W.2d 208, 211 (Tex. App.—El Paso), rev’d on other grounds, 639 S.W.2d 462 (Tex. 1982). “Sole proximate cause” is an inferential rebuttal and should be submitted by instruction. Jackson v. Fontaine’s Clinics, 499 S.W.2d 87, 90–91 (Tex. 1973).

Definition. In Dillard v. Texas Electric Cooperative, 157 S.W.3d 429, 432 (Tex. 2005), the court recognized the following definition of “sole proximate cause”:

There may be more than one proximate cause of an event, but if an act or omission of any person not a party to the suit was the ‘sole proximate cause’ of an occurrence, then no act or omission of any other persons could have been a proximate cause.

Conduct need not be negligence to be sole proximate cause. A person’s conduct need not be negligence to be a sole proximate cause. Plemmons v. Gary, 321 S.W.2d 625, 626 (Tex. Civ. App.—Beaumont 1959, orig. proceeding); Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe Railway v. Jones, 221 S.W.2d 1010, 1014 (Tex. Civ. App.—Eastland 1949, writ ref’d n.r.e.); Fort Worth & Denver City Railway v. Bozeman, 135 S.W.2d 275, 281 (Tex. Civ. App.—Amarillo 1939, writ dism’d judgm’t cor.).

Caveat. The Texas Supreme Court has acknowledged that inferential rebuttals “serve a legitimate purpose.” The court also cautioned, however, that multiple inferential rebuttal instructions have “the potential to skew the jury’s analysis. Dillard, 157 S.W.3d at 433.

PJC 61.1 Use of “Injury” or “Occurrence” (Comment)

“Injury” should be used if the issue of the responsibility of more than one person is submitted to the jury under the proportionate responsibility statute. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.001–.017. For suits filed after September 1, 1987, section 33.003 requires a finding of “percentage of responsibility” in pure negligence cases as well as in “mixed” cases involving claims of negligence and strict liability and/or warranty. The statute defines “percentage of responsibility” in terms of “causing or contributing to cause in any way the personal injury, property damage, death, or other harm for which recovery of damages is sought.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.011(4) (emphasis added); Nabors Well Services, Ltd. v. Romero, 456 S.W.3d 553, 563 (Tex. 2015) (holding that the proportionate responsibility statute requires fact finders to consider relevant evidence of a plaintiff’s preoccurrence, injury-causing conduct, overruling prior case law prohibiting evidence of plaintiff’s failure to wear a seatbelt).

A plaintiff’s preoccurrence, injury-causing conduct is distinct from the plaintiff’s postoccurrence failure to mitigate damages, which is submitted as an exclusionary instruction to the damages questions. See PJC 80.9; Nabors, 456 S.W.3d at 564. If a failure-to-mitigate instruction is given in the damages question (see PJC 80.9), and “injury” is used in the liability question, then the jury should be instructed in the liability and the proportionate responsibility questions as follows:

In answering this question, do not consider Paul Payne’s failure, if any, to exercise reasonable care in caring for or treating his injury, if any.

In a case involving a death, the word “death” may be used instead of “injury.”

In cases with no allegations of injury-causing negligence by a plaintiff, it may be appropriate to use “occurrence” in the questions in this chapter. However, the concerns expressed in Nabors should be considered carefully.

PJC 61.2 Submission of Settling Persons, Contribution Defendants, and Responsible Third Parties (Comment)

Settling persons. The proportionate responsibility statute requires the responsibility of a settling person (Sam Settlor) to be determined by the trier of fact. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.003, 33.011. Thus, if the case includes a settling person, that person's name must be included in the basic liability question as well as in the proportionate responsibility question.

Contribution defendants. If there is a contribution defendant (Connie Contributor), that person's name should be included in the basic liability question. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.003, 33.011. "Contribution defendant" is defined in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.016.

However, a contribution defendant should not be included in the question comparing the responsibility of the plaintiff with that of the other defendants. A separate comparative question is necessary. See PJC 61.8.

Responsible third parties—causes of action accruing on or after September 1, 1995, and causes of action accruing before September 1, 1995, on which suit is filed on or after September 1, 1996, and before July 1, 2003. A 'responsible third party' (Responsible Ray) should be included in the basic liability question only if joined under former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.004 (Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 136, § 1 (S.B. 28), eff. Sept. 1, 1995). A 'responsible third party' is defined in former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.011(6) (Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 136, § 1 (S.B. 28), eff. Sept. 1, 1995). If submitted in the basic liability question, a responsible third party should also be submitted in the proportionate responsibility question. Former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.003 (Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 136, § 1 (S.B. 28), eff. Sept. 1, 1995). See PJC 61.7.

Responsible third parties—actions filed on or after July 1, 2003. In 2003 the legislature changed responsible third party practice from one of joinder to one of designation. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.004. At least one Texas court has held that it is 'only upon the trial court's granting of a motion for leave to designate a person as a responsible third party that the designation becomes effective.' Valverde v. Biela's Glass & Aluminum Products, Inc., 293 S.W.3d 751, 754–55 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2009, pet. denied); see also Ruiz v. Guerra, 293 S.W.3d 706, 714–15 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2009, no pet.). The legislature also expanded the category of responsible third parties. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.004, 33.011(6). 'Responsible third party' means any person who is alleged to have caused or contributed to causing in any way the harm for which recovery of damages is sought, whether by negligent act or omission, by any defective or unreasonably dangerous product, by other conduct or activity that violates an applicable legal standard, or by any combination of these. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.011(6). Section 33.003(b) provides that a question regarding conduct by any person may not be submitted to the jury without evidence to support the submission. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.003(b).

PJC 61.3 Nonmedical Professional Relationship—Existence in Dispute

QUESTION _____

At the time in question, was Paul Payne a client of Dora Dotson's with respect to the matter in dispute?

An accountant-client relationship exists only if the accountant has agreed, expressly or impliedly, to render accounting services of a specified or general nature to the person claiming such relationship.

Answer "Yes" or "No."

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 61.3 may be used if the existence of a professional relationship between the plaintiff and the defendant-professional is in dispute.

Substitute terms as appropriate. Appropriate terms to describe the particular professional (e.g., attorney, architect) and services (e.g., legal, architectural) should be substituted for the terms accountant and accounting.

Relationship arises out of contract. A professional is liable to the client only if there is a professional relationship arising out of a contract, express or implied, that the professional will represent the client with proper professional skill and there is a negligent breach of that duty proximately causing damages. See Dickey v. Jansen, 731 S.W.2d 581 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1987, writ ref'd n.r.e.) (attorney-client relationship); Bell v. Manning, 613 S.W.2d 335 (Tex. Civ. App.—Tyler 1981, writ ref'd n.r.e.). Cf. Parker v. Carnahan, 772 S.W.2d 151 (Tex. App.—Texarkana 1989, writ denied), in which the court held that while the evidence showed the nonexistence of an attorney-client relationship, an attorney might still be negligent for failing to advise a party of the fact that he was not representing such party, if the circumstances led the party to believe that the attorney was representing her. See also PJC 61.4 on negligent misrepresentation.

Termination. If there is evidence of termination of the relationship, the following instruction may be added to PJC 61.3:

An accountant-client relationship does not exist if either the client or the accountant has terminated the relationship. The client may terminate the relationship at any time by communicating the termination to the accountant. The accountant may terminate the relationship after taking reasonable steps to avoid foreseeable prejudice to his client.

Note that an attorney's withdrawal from employment is governed by Tex. Disciplinary Rules Prof'l Conduct R. 1.15, reprinted in Tex. Gov't Code Ann., tit. 2, subtit. G, app. A (West 2005 & Supp. 2016) (Tex. State Bar R. art. X, § 9), and the above instruction should be modified to comport with its requirements.

Abandonment. The concept of abandonment as reflected in PJC 51.7 may apply to an attorney-client relationship. For relative protection of the parties in a termination case, see Mandell & Wright v. Thomas, 441 S.W.2d 841 (Tex. 1969).

PJC 61.4 Question and Instruction on Negligent Misrepresentation

QUESTION _____

Did Dora Dotson make a negligent misrepresentation on which Paul Payne justifiably relied?

Negligent misrepresentation occurs when—

1. a party makes a representation in the course of his business, profession, or employment, or in a transaction in which he has a pecuniary interest; and
2. the representation supplies false information for the guidance of others in their business; and
3. the party making the representation does not exercise reasonable care or competence in obtaining or communicating the information.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 61.4 is a broad-form question that should be appropriate in most cases involving a claim of negligent misrepresentation if the court, as a matter of law, or the jury, as a matter of fact, has found that the plaintiff is within the class of persons allowed to bring this cause of action. See Federal Land Bank Ass’n of Tyler v. Sloane, 825 S.W.2d 439, 442 (Tex. 1991) (adopting Restatement (Second) of Torts § 552 (1977), tort of negligent misrepresentation); see also McCamish, Martin, Brown & Loeffler v. F.E. Appling Interests, 991 S.W.2d 787, 791 (Tex. 1999). A defendant is liable only for pecuniary loss caused to the plaintiff by the plaintiff’s justifiable reliance on the representation. Sloane, 825 S.W.2d at 442.

Source of question and instruction. The question and instruction are from the supreme court’s opinion in Sloane, 825 S.W.2d at 442.

Damages. Economic damages for negligent misrepresentation are limited to those necessary to compensate the party for the pecuniary loss caused by the misrepresentation. Benefit-of-the-bargain and lost-profit damages are not available. Sloane, 825 S.W.2d at 442–43 (adopting Restatement (Second) of Torts § 552B (1977)); see also D.S.A. Inc. v. Hillsboro Independent School District, 973 S.W.2d 662, 663–64 (Tex. 1998). In D.S.A. Inc., the court also recognized that under Restatement (Second) of Torts § 311 (1965), “[a] party may recover for negligent misrepresentation involving a risk of physical harm only if actual physical harm results.” D.S.A. Inc., 973

PJC 61.5 Negligence of Nonmedical Professional

QUESTION _____

Did the negligence, if any, of those named below proximately cause the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

Answer “Yes” or “No” for each of the following:

1. Dora Dotson _____
2. Paul Payne _____
3. Sam Settlor _____
4. Responsible Ray _____
5. Connie Contributor _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 61.5 is a broad-form question that should be appropriate in most nonmedical professional malpractice cases.

Broad form to be used when feasible. Rule 277 of the Texas Rules of Civil Procedure provides that “the court shall, whenever feasible, submit the cause upon broad-form questions. Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. In Texas Department of Human Services v. E.B., 802 S.W.2d 647, 649 (Tex. 1990), the supreme court interpreted the phrase “whenever feasible” as mandating broad-form submission “in any or every instance in which it is capable of being accomplished.” The court has described the reasons for broad-form questions as follows: “Broad-form questions reduce conflicting jury answers, thus reducing appeals and avoiding retrials. Rule 277 expedites trials by simplifying the charge conference and making questions easier for the jury to comprehend and answer.” E.B., 802 S.W.2d at 649; see also Lemos v. Montez, 680 S.W.2d 798, 801 (Tex. 1984). The court further stated, “The rule unequivocally requires broad-form submission whenever feasible. Unless extraordinary circumstances exist, a court must submit such broad-form questions.” E.B., 802 S.W.2d at 649.

When broad-form questions not feasible. Broad-form questions must be used unless extraordinary circumstances exist making such questions not feasible. The term “extraordinary circumstances” would seem to contemplate only a situation in which the policies underlying broad-form questions would not be served. See E.B., 802 S.W.2d at 649; Lemos, 680 S.W.2d at 801. More recent cases on proportionate responsibility, damages, and liability, however, indicate that broad-form submission may not be feasible in a variety of circumstances depending on the law, the theories, and the evidence in a given case. See Romero v. KPH Consolidation, Inc., 166 S.W.3d 212

(Tex. 2005) (single broad-form proportionate responsibility question may not be feasible if one theory is legally invalid or not supported by sufficient evidence); Harris County v. Smith, 96 S.W.3d 230 (Tex. 2002) (broad-form submission of multiple elements of damage may cause harmful error if one or more of the elements is not supported by sufficient evidence); Crown Life Insurance Co. v. Casteel, 22 S.W.3d 378 (Tex. 2000) (broad-form submission combining valid and invalid theories of liability was cause of harmful error). As a result, although some modifications to the pattern jury charges have been made where a lack of feasibility appears to be the rule rather than the exception, the court and parties should evaluate all submissions to determine whether broad-form submission is feasible.

Accompanying definitions and instructions. The broad-form questions required by rule 277 contemplate the use of appropriate accompanying instructions ‘as shall be proper to enable the jury to render a verdict. Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. In E.B., 802 S.W.2d at 648, for example, the broad-form question was accompanied by instructions tracking the statutory grounds for the relief sought. PJC 61.5 is designed to be accompanied by the appropriate definitions of “negligence,” “ordinary care,” and “proximate cause” in PJC 60.1. If the evidence raises ‘new and independent cause,” the definitions in PJC 60.2 should be used in lieu of the definition of “proximate cause” in PJC 60.1.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 61.1.

Plaintiff’s negligence. If the plaintiff’s negligence is not in issue, the plaintiff’s name (Paul Payne) should not be included in the above question. In a case in which the plaintiff’s negligence is in issue, or in any case including more than one defendant, a proportionate responsibility question should follow PJC 61.5. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.001–.017. See PJC 61.7 and 61.9.

Plaintiff must prove defendant’s negligence caused loss. In a claim of legal malpractice, the plaintiff must prove that the defendant’s negligence caused the loss. Cosgrove v. Grimes, 774 S.W.2d 662 (Tex. 1989); Fireman’s Fund American Insurance Co. v. Patterson & Lamberty, Inc., 528 S.W.2d 67 (Tex. Civ. App.—Tyler 1975, writ ref’d n.r.e.). Therefore, a client suing an attorney on the ground that the latter caused the former to lose a cause of action has the burden of proving that the original action would have been successful and the amount that would have been collected if a favorable judgment had been rendered. Jackson v. Urban, Coolidge, Pennington & Scott, 516 S.W.2d 948 (Tex. Civ. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1974, writ ref’d n.r.e.); see also Schlosser v. Tropoli, 609 S.W.2d 255 (Tex. Civ. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1980, writ ref’d n.r.e.); Patterson & Wallace v. Frazer, 79 S.W. 1077 (Tex. Civ. App. 1904, no writ). Thus, the plaintiff, in effect, is required to try two suits in one—a ‘suit within a suit. Because the plaintiff has not yet proved the essential elements of the underlying cause of action, no additional burden is imposed by this requirement. In similar instances, a plaintiff is required to plead and prove the underlying basis of the claim. See Baker v. Goldsmith, 582 S.W.2d 404, 409 (Tex. 1979) (burden of persuasion on original plaintiff to prove underlying cause of action in bill-of-review hearing arising from default judgment). For the appropriate damages question and accompanying instruction, see PJC 84.3 and 84.4.

Evidence of bad result. A finding of negligence may not be based solely on evidence of a bad result to the claimant. If an attorney makes a decision that a reasonably prudent attorney could make in the same or similar circumstances, it is not an act of negligence even if the results are undesirable. See Cosgrove v. Grimes, 774 S.W.2d 662, 665 (Tex. 1989). Whether an attorney has breached his duty of care is an objective standard of professional judgment, not the subjective belief that his acts are in good faith. Cosgrove, 774 S.W.2d at 665. The so-called good-faith excuse doctrine has been abandoned. Bobbitt v. Weeks, 774 S.W.2d 638 (Tex. 1989).

Exceptions to the limitations on joint and several liability. The limitations on joint and several liability set forth in chapter 33 of the Civil Practice and Remedies Code do not apply in certain instances:

Actions filed before July 1, 2003. See former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.002, 33.013(c)(1), (2) (Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 136, § 1 (S.B. 28), eff. Sept. 1, 1995).

Actions filed on or after July 1, 2003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.013. See also chapter 72 in this volume.

Settling person, contribution defendant, or responsible third party. See PJC 61.2.

PJC 61.6 Breach of Fiduciary Duty of Nonmedical Professional (Comment)

Breach of fiduciary duty distinguished from professional negligence. Whereas all attorney-client relationships involve a recognized fiduciary relationship, not all claims by the client against his attorney involve a breach of a fiduciary duty. See Won Pak v. Harris, 313 S.W.3d 454, 458 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2010, pet. denied) (“Even if a complaint implicates a lawyer’s fiduciary duties, it does not necessarily follow that such a complaint is actionable apart from a negligence claim.”). As both a fiduciary and a lawyer, an attorney owes his or her client a duty to act in good faith, with absolute candor, openness, honesty, and loyalty to the client. Won Pak, 313 S.W.3d at 458 (“[T]he standard of care in attorney negligence cases often refers to and is defined by the characteristics inherent in the fiduciary duty between the lawyer and the client.”).

A breach of fiduciary duty can involve a failure by the attorney to disclose conflicts of interest, failure to deliver funds belonging to the client, improper use of client confidences, or self-dealing. Aiken v. Hancock, 115 S.W.3d 26, 28 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2003, pet. denied); Goffney v. Rabson, 56 S.W.3d 186, 193 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2001, pet. denied). The crux of a claim for breach of a fiduciary duty is whether the attorney improperly benefited from the attorney-client relationship by engaging in self-dealing or conduct that subordinates the client’s interests to those of the attorney. Kemp v. Jensen, 329 S.W.3d 866, 871–72 (Tex. App.—Eastland 2010, pet. denied); Gibson v. Ellis, 126 S.W.3d 324, 330 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2004, no pet.); Aiken, 115 S.W.3d at 28; Kimleco Petroleum, Inc. v. Morrison & Shelton, 91 S.W.3d 921, 923–24 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2002, pet. denied). The benefit need not be monetary. In contrast, a professional negligence claim involves the failure by the attorney to exercise that degree of care, skill, and diligence in representing the client’s interests as attorneys of ordinary skill and knowledge commonly possess and exercise. Kimleco Petroleum, Inc., 91 S.W.3d at 923–24; Sullivan v. Bickel & Brewer, 943 S.W.2d 477, 481 (Tex. App.—Dallas 1995, writ denied). The crux of a professional negligence complaint is whether the attorney adequately represented the client. Greathouse v. McConnell, 982 S.W.2d 165, 172 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1998, pet. denied).

Pattern questions submitting a breach of fiduciary duty are found in the current edition of State Bar of Texas, Texas Pattern Jury Charges—Business, Consumer, Insurance & Employment ch. 104, although modification may be required based on the attorney-client relationship. The pattern question for a professional negligence claim against an attorney is found at PJC 61.5.

Improper fracturing. Pleading a claim for breach of a fiduciary duty that is actually a claim of professional negligence is referred to as ‘fracturing’ and is improper. See Won Pak, 313 S.W.3d at 457; Duerr v. Brown, 262 S.W.3d 63, 70 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2008, no pet.); Trousdale v. Henry, 261 S.W.3d 221, 227 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2008, pet. denied). Generally, a plaintiff may not convert negligence claims into claims for fraud, breach of contract, breach of fiduciary duty, or a violation of the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act. Murphy v. Gruber, 241 S.W.3d 689, 693 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2007, pet. denied); Kimleco Petroleum, Inc., 91 S.W.3d at 924 (quoting Averitt v. PriceWaterhouseCoopers L.L.P., 89 S.W.3d 330, 333 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2002, no pet.)). Whether allegations against an attorney labeled as breach of a fiduciary duty are actually claims for professional negligence is a question of law for the court. Won Pak, 313 S.W.3d at 457; see also Murphy, 241 S.W.3d at 697 (“[W]e are not bound by the labels the parties place on their claims.”).

PJC 61.7 Proportionate Responsibility—Nonmedical Professional

If you answered “Yes” to Question[s] _____ [applicable liability question(s)] for more than one of those named below, then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

Assign percentages of responsibility only to those you found caused or contributed to cause the [injury] [occurrence]. The percentages you find must total 100 percent. The percentages must be expressed in whole numbers. The percentage of responsibility attributable to any one is not necessarily measured by the number of acts or omissions found. The percentage attributable to any one need not be the same percentage attributed to that one in answering another question.

QUESTION _____

For each person you found caused or contributed to cause the [injury] [occurrence], find the percentage of responsibility attributable to each:

- | | | |
|---------------------------|-------|-------|
| 1. Dora Dotson | _____ | % |
| 2. Paul Payne | _____ | % |
| 3. Sam Settlor | _____ | % |
| 4. Responsible Ray | _____ | % |
| Total | _____ | 100 % |

COMMENT

When to use. Rule 277 requires a percentage question “[i]n any cause in which the jury is required to apportion the loss among the parties.” Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. Thus, PJC 61.7 should be used if the issue of the responsibility of more than one party is submitted to the jury under Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code ch. 33. For cases in which there is a derivative claimant, see PJC 61.9.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 61.1. The term used in PJC 61.7 should match that used in PJC 61.5.

Blanks for question numbers. The question number to be inserted in the blank space in the conditioning instruction should coincide with that of the underlying liability question.

Compare claimants separately. Each claimant should be submitted separately within the proportionate responsibility question. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.003, 33.011(1). For claimants seeking derivative damages, see PJC 61.9.

Negligent misrepresentation. Section 552A of the Restatement (Second) of Torts (1977) recognizes contributory negligence as a defense in an action based on negligent misrepresentation to the recipient. While the Restatement recognizes it as a complete bar to recovery, the existing statutory scheme requires that contributory negligence be submitted on a comparative basis in actions founded on negligence. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code ch. 33.

Use of “responsibility” or “negligence.” Chapter 33 of the Civil Practice and Remedies Code applies not only to negligence but also to any cause of action based on tort or any action brought under the DTPA. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.002(a)(1), (2). For this reason, and because section 33.011 expressly calls for the comparison of “responsibility,” that is the term the Committee suggests. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.011(4). However, when negligence is the only theory by which any of the submitted persons could be found liable, an alternative submission might be as follows:

For each person you found caused or contributed to cause the [injury] [occurrence], find the percentage of negligence attributable to each:

Settling person, contribution defendant, or responsible third party. See PJC 61.2.

PJC 61.8 Proportionate Responsibility If Contribution Defendant Is Joined—Nonmedical Professional

If you answered “Yes” to Question[s] _____ [applicable liability question(s)] for more than one of the persons named below, then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

Assign percentages of responsibility only to those you found caused or contributed to cause the [injury] [occurrence]. The percentages you find must total 100 percent. The percentages must be expressed in whole numbers. The percentage of responsibility attributable to any one is not necessarily measured by the number of acts or omissions found. The percentage attributable to any one need not be the same percentage attributed to that one in answering another question.

QUESTION _____

With respect to causing or contributing to cause in any way the [injury] [occurrence] to Paul Payne, find the percentage of responsibility, if any, attributable as between or among—

1. Dora Dotson	_____	%
2. Connie Contributor	_____	%
Total	_____	100 %

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 61.8 is an additional comparative question designed to follow the comparative question in PJC 61.7 or 61.9. It submits the proportionate responsibility between the defendant and a contribution defendant under Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.016. Section 33.016 specifically requires this second comparative question. This question should not inquire about the responsibility of the claimant.

If there is more than one defendant. If the responsibility of more than one defendant is submitted, separate percentage answers should not be sought for each defendant in PJC 61.8; rather, the names of all defendants should be grouped on one answer line.

The ratio of responsibility between or among the defendants is fixed by the answer to PJC 61.7 or 61.9, in which a separate answer is obtained for each defendant; seeking a second set of separate answers in PJC 61.8 might result in jury confusion or conflicting answers. The contribution responsibility of each defendant is determined by allocating the percentage attributed to all defendants in answer to PJC 61.8 in proportion to the relative percentages found for each defendant in answer to PJC 61.7 or 61.9.

If there is more than one contribution defendant. If the responsibility of more than one contribution defendant is submitted, a separate percentage answer should be sought for each such contribution defendant.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 61.1. The term used in PJC 61.8 should match that used in PJC 61.5.

PJC 61.9 Proportionate Responsibility—Nonmedical Professional—Derivative Claimant

If you answered “Yes” to Question[s] _____ [applicable liability question(s)] for more than one of the persons named below, then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

Assign percentages of responsibility only to those you found caused or contributed to cause the [injury] [occurrence]. The percentages you find must total 100 percent. The percentages must be expressed in whole numbers. The percentage of responsibility attributable to any one is not necessarily measured by the number of acts or omissions found. The percentage attributable to any one need not be the same percentage attributed to that one in answering another question.

QUESTION _____

For each person you found caused or contributed to cause the [injury] [occurrence], find the percentage of responsibility attributable to each:

1. Dora Dotson	_____	%
2. Mary Minor	_____	%
3. Fred Father	_____	%
4. Sam Settlor	_____	%
5. Responsible Ray	_____	%
Total	100	%

COMMENT

When to use. Rule 277 requires a percentage question “[i]n any cause in which the jury is required to apportion the loss among the parties.” Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. PJC 61.9 is designed to apportion loss in cases in which there is a derivative claimant—that is, a claimant suing for damages caused by injuries to another. In the example above, Fred Father is the derivative claimant and Mary Minor is the injured child. For PJC 61.9 to apply, the child must not be suing the parent. A separate comparative submission is required for the derivative claim. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.003, 33.011(1). PJC 61.9 applies to the derivative claim. For submission of the underlying claim against the defendant, see PJC 61.7.

Separate questions (such as PJC 61.9 and 61.7) are submitted because the responsibility of a derivative claimant (Fred Father) will not bar or diminish the recovery of the primary claimant (Mary Minor). On the other hand, the responsibility of Mary Minor will bar or diminish the recovery of both Mary Minor and Fred Father. For this reason, the percentage of responsibility of both Mary Minor and Fred Father must be considered in determining whether the recovery of Fred Father is barred or diminished.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 61.1. The term used in PJC 61.9 should match that used in PJC 61.5.

Liability question must also include name of derivative claimant. In cases involving a derivative claimant, the basic liability question must also include the name of the derivative claimant as well as that of the primary claimant.

Blanks for question numbers. The question number to be inserted in the blank space in the conditioning instruction should coincide with that of the underlying liability question.

Settling person, contribution defendant, or responsible third party. See PJC 61.2.

PJC 61.10 Liability of Attorneys under Deceptive Trade Practices Act (Comment)

Attorneys may incur liability under the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices–Consumer Protection Act, Tex. Bus. & Com. Code §§ 17.41–.63 (“DTPA”). See Latham v. Castillo, 972 S.W.2d 66 (Tex. 1998); DeBakey v. Staggs, 605 S.W.2d 631 (Tex. Civ. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1980), writ ref’d n.r.e. per curiam, 612 S.W.2d 924 (Tex. 1981).

The 1995 amendments to the DTPA exempted certain professional services (“the essence of which is the providing of advice, judgment, opinion, or similar professional skill”) from DTPA coverage. The exemption does not shield attorneys from liability for acts that cannot be characterized as advice, judgment, or opinion and are (1) express misrepresentations of material facts, (2) failures to disclose information known at the time of the transaction if the failure to disclose was intended to induce the consumer into a transaction the consumer otherwise would not have entered, (3) unconscionable actions or courses of action, or (4) breaches of an express warranty. Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 17.49(c). The “professional services” exemption applies to causes of action accruing after September 1, 1995, or causes of action accruing before that date but on which suit is not filed until on or after September 1, 1996.

See the current edition of State Bar of Texas, Texas Pattern Jury Charges—Business, Consumer, Insurance & Employment for questions, instructions, and comments to be used in a case applying the DTPA.

PJC 65.1	Application—Distinction between Premises Defect and Negligent Activity (Comment).	161
PJC 65.2	Negligence and Ordinary Care of Plaintiffs or of Defendants Other Than Owners or Occupiers of Premises	162
PJC 65.3	Child’s Degree of Care	163

PJC 65.5	New and Independent Cause—Premises	166
PJC 65.6	Sole Proximate Cause—Premises	167
PJC 65.7	Unavoidable Accident	168
PJC 65.8	Act of God	169
PJC 65.9	Emergency	170

PJC 65.1 Application—Distinction between Premises Defect and Negligent Activity (Comment)

There are two types of premises liability cases: (1) those arising from a premises defect and (2) those arising from a negligent activity on the premises. See Clayton W. Williams, Jr. Inc. v. Olivo, 952 S.W.2d 523, 527 (Tex. 1997). The first type, premises defect, involves a defective condition on the premises. Olivo, 952 S.W.2d 523 (where plaintiff fell and landed on one of several drill pipe thread protectors that had been left on the ground, case involved a premises defect rather than a negligent activity). The second type, negligent activity, requires a claimant to have been injured by, or as a contemporaneous result of, the activity itself—not by a condition the activity created. See Keetch v. Kroger Co., 845 S.W.2d 262, 264 (Tex. 1992) (plaintiff who slipped on floor may have been injured by a condition created by spraying but was not injured by the activity of spraying itself).

In Del Lago Partners, Inc. v. Smith, 307 S.W.3d 762, 776 (Tex. 2010), the court stated, “We have recognized that negligent activity encompasses a malfeasance theory based on affirmative, contemporaneous conduct by the owner that caused the injury, while premises liability encompasses a nonfeasance theory based on the owner’s failure to take measures to make the property safe. See also Del Lago Partners, Inc., 307 S.W.3d at 789–90 (Wainwright, J., dissenting) (listing cases of each type).

Because the elements of these two premises liability theories are different, it is important to submit the questions, instructions, and definitions that are applicable to the particular theory. See Saenz v. David & David Construction Co., 52 S.W.3d 807, 812 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2001, pet. denied) (because plaintiff’s claim involved a negligent activity, trial court did not err in denying plaintiff’s request to submit a premises-defect question). Therefore:

In negligent-activity cases, the questions, instructions, and definitions in the current edition of State Bar of Texas, Texas Pattern Jury Charges—General Negligence, Intentional Personal Torts & Workers’ Compensation should be used. If right-to-control issues are present in the case, PJC 66.3 in this volume should precede such questions.

In premises-defect cases, the questions, instructions, and definitions in chapters 65 and 66 in this volume should be used.

- In both negligent-activity and premises-defect cases governed by Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code chapter 95, PJC 66.14 in this volume should be used. See Abutahoun v. Dow Chemical Co., 463 S.W.3d 42 (Tex. 2015).

PJC 65.2 Negligence and Ordinary Care of Plaintiffs or of Defendants Other Than Owners or Occupiers of Premises

“Negligence,” when used with respect to the conduct of [Paul Payne] [Don Davis], means failure to use ordinary care, that is, failing to do that which a person of ordinary prudence would have done under the same or similar circumstances or doing that which a person of ordinary prudence would not have done under the same or similar circumstances.

“Ordinary care,” when used with respect to the conduct of [Paul Payne] [Don Davis], means that degree of care that would be used by a person of ordinary prudence under the same or similar circumstances.

COMMENT

When to use. The standard of care of a defendant who is an owner or occupier of a premises is included in the liability question. See, e.g., PJC 66.4. PJC 65.2 should be used to submit the conduct of other parties, such as a contributorily negligent plaintiff or a third-party defendant who is not an owner or occupier of a premises. See, e.g. Colvin v. Red Steel Co., 682 S.W.2d 243, 245 (Tex. 1984); Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. v. Evans, 175 S.W.2d 249, 250–51 (Tex. 1943). See also PJC 65.3 for a child’s standard of care. The Committee recommends that if more than one standard of care is submitted, the different standards should identify the appropriate party by name.

PJC 65.3 Child's Degree of Care

“Negligence,” when used with respect to the conduct of a child, means failing to do that which an ordinarily prudent child of the same age, experience, intelligence, and capacity would have done under the same or similar circumstances or doing that which such a child would not have done under the same or similar circumstances.

“Ordinary care,” when used with respect to the conduct of a child, means that degree of care that an ordinarily prudent child of the same age, experience, intelligence, and capacity would have used under the same or similar circumstances.

COMMENT

When to use. These definitions should be used if the standard of “child’s degree of care” is submitted to the jury. The conduct of a child “of tender years” is judged by the standard of a child and not by that of an adult. Dallas Railway & Terminal v. Rogers, 218 S.W.2d 456, 458 (Tex. 1949); see also Rudes v. Gottschalk, 324 S.W.2d 201, 204 (Tex. 1959). For the appropriate age when a child is considered to be of such immaturity that the above definitions should be submitted, see Rogers, 218 S.W.2d 456; City of Austin v. Hoffman, 379 S.W.2d 103, 107 (Tex. Civ. App.—Austin 1964, no writ).

Modify “proximate cause” definition if only “child’s degree” submitted. If the only standard of care submitted is ‘child’s degree,’ the phrase a child’s degree of care should replace the phrase ordinary care in the definition of “proximate cause” in PJC 65.4 or 65.5. See Rudes, 324 S.W.2d at 207; MacConnell v. Hill, 569 S.W.2d 524, 528 (Tex. Civ. App.—Corpus Christi 1978, no writ).

Additional instruction in comparative question if negligence of child and adult apportioned. In MacConnell, 569 S.W.2d at 528, the court recommended the following instruction in comparative negligence cases if the jury must apportion negligence between a child and an adult:

In answering this question, you should take into consideration that Don Davis was an adult and Paul Payne, Jr. was a child.

If given, this instruction should be placed immediately after the proportionate responsibility question.

Age when too young to be capable of negligence. For a discussion of the age beneath which a child is considered too young to be capable of negligence, see Yarborough v. Berner, 467 S.W.2d 188 (Tex. 1971).

PJC 65.4 Proximate Cause—Premises

“Proximate cause” means a cause that was a substantial factor in bringing about an [injury] [occurrence], and without which cause such [injury] [occurrence] would not have occurred. In order to be a proximate cause, the act or omission complained of must be such that a person using ordinary care would have foreseen that the [injury] [occurrence], or some similar [injury] [occurrence], might reasonably result therefrom. There may be more than one proximate cause of an [injury] [occurrence].

COMMENT

Source of definition. This definition of ‘proximate cause’ is based on language from Transcontinental Insurance Co. v. Crump:

[W]e first examine the causation standards for proximate cause and producing cause. “The two elements of proximate cause are cause in fact (or substantial factor) and foreseeability. Cause in fact is established when the act or omission was a substantial factor in bringing about the injuries, and without it, the harm would not have occurred. IHS Cedars Treatment Ctr. v. Mason, 143 S.W.3d 794, 798–99 (Tex. 2004). “The approved definition of ‘proximate cause’ in negligence cases and the approved definition of ‘producing cause’ in compensation cases are in substance the same, except that there is added to the definition of proximate cause the element of foreseeableness.” [Texas Indemnity Insurance Co. v. Staggs, 134 S.W.2d 1026, 1028–29 (Tex. 1940).] In other words, the producing cause inquiry is conceptually identical to that of cause in fact.

Transcontinental Insurance Co. v. Crump, 330 S.W.3d 211, 222–23 (Tex. 2010). See also Ford Motor Co. v. Ledesma, 242 S.W.3d 32, 46 (Tex. 2007).

The Crump and Ledesma opinions address the definitions of “producing cause” and “cause in fact.” As of the publication date of this edition, there is no decision that expressly overrules the traditional definition of “proximate cause’ below:

‘Proximate cause’ means that cause which, in a natural and continuous sequence, produces an event, and without which cause such event would not have occurred. In order to be a proximate cause, the act or omission complained of must be such that a person using ordinary care would have foreseen that the event, or some similar event, might reasonably result therefrom. There may be more than one proximate cause of an event.

Former PJC 65.4. This definition was based on the definition approved by the court in Rudes v. Gottschalk, 324 S.W.2d 201, 207 (Tex. 1959), and has been cited in many cases.

When to use. PJC 65.4 should be used in every premises case in which the cause of action requires that the negligence be a proximate cause of the occurrence or injury. For discussion of the element of “foreseeability,” see Doe v. Boys Clubs of Greater Dallas, Inc., 907 S.W.2d 472, 478 (Tex. 1995), and Carey v. Pure Distributing Corp., 124 S.W.2d 847, 849 (Tex. 1939). If there is evidence of a “new and independent cause,” the definitions in PJC 65.5 should be used in lieu of the definition above. If ‘sole proximate cause’ is raised by the evidence, see PJC 65.6.

Modify if “ordinary care” not applicable to all. In a case involving more than one standard of care (see PJC 65.2 and 65.3), the phrase the degree of care required of him should replace the phrase ordinary care. See Rudes, 324 S.W.2d at 206–07.

PJC 65.5 New and Independent Cause—Premises

“Proximate cause” means a cause, unbroken by any new and independent cause, that was a substantial factor in bringing about an [injury] [occurrence], and without which cause such [injury] [occurrence] would not have occurred. In order to be a proximate cause, the act or omission complained of must be such that a person using ordinary care would have foreseen that the [injury] [occurrence], or some similar [injury] [occurrence], might reasonably result therefrom. There may be more than one proximate cause of an [injury] [occurrence].

“New and independent cause” means the act or omission of a separate and independent agency, not reasonably foreseeable, that destroys the causal connection, if any, between the act or omission inquired about and the occurrence in question and thereby becomes the immediate cause of such occurrence.

COMMENT

When to use—given in lieu of PJC 65.4. PJC 65.5 should be used in lieu of PJC 65.4 if there is evidence that the occurrence was caused by a new and independent cause. See Tarry Warehouse & Storage Co. v. Duvall, 115 S.W.2d 401, 405 (Tex. 1938); Phoenix Refining Co. v. Tips, 81 S.W.2d 60, 61 (Tex. 1935). Submission if there is no such evidence is improper and may be reversible error. Galvan v. Fedder, 678 S.W.2d 596, 598–99 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1984, no writ). See also James v. Kloos, 75 S.W.3d 153, 162–63 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2002, no pet.).

Because a new and independent cause is in the nature of an inferential rebuttal, it should be submitted by instruction only. Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. For elements to consider when determining whether a new and independent cause exists, see Columbia Rio Grande Healthcare v. Hawley, 284 S.W.3d 851, 857–59 (Tex. 2009). The “new and independent cause” instruction is not used when the intervening forces are foreseeable and within the scope of risk created by the actor’s conduct. Dew v. Crown Derrick Erectors, Inc., 208 S.W.3d 448, 450–53 (Tex. 2006).

Modify if “ordinary care” not applicable to all. In a case involving more than one standard of care (see PJC 65.2 and 65.3), the phrase the degree of care required of him should replace the phrase ordinary care in the second sentence of this definition of “proximate cause.” See Rudes v. Gottschalk, 324 S.W.2d 201, 206–07 (Tex. 1959).

Caveat. The Texas Supreme Court has acknowledged that inferential rebuttals “serve a legitimate purpose.” The court also cautioned, however, that multiple inferential rebuttal instructions have “the potential to skew the jury’s analysis.” Dillard v. Texas Electric Cooperative, 157 S.W.3d 429, 433 (Tex. 2005).

PJC 65.6 Sole Proximate Cause—Premises

There may be more than one proximate cause of an [injury] [occurrence], but if an act or omission of any person not a party to the suit was the “sole proximate cause” of an [injury] [occurrence], then no act or omission of any party could have been a proximate cause.

COMMENT

When to use—given in lieu of last sentence of proximate cause definition. PJC 65.6 should be used in lieu of the last sentence of the definition of “proximate cause” (see PJC 65.4) if there is evidence that a person’s conduct that is not submitted to the jury is the sole proximate cause of the occurrence. See American Jet, Inc. v. Leyendecker, 683 S.W.2d 121, 126 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1984, no writ); Herrera v. Balmorhea Feeders, Inc., 539 S.W.2d 84, 86 (Tex. Civ. App.—El Paso 1976, writ ref’d n.r.e.). Submission if there is no such evidence is improper and may be reversible error. See Huerta v. Hotel Dieu Hospital, 636 S.W.2d 208, 211 (Tex. App.—El Paso), rev’d on other grounds, 639 S.W.2d 462 (Tex. 1982). “Sole proximate cause” is an inferential rebuttal and should be submitted by instruction. Jackson v. Fontaine’s Clinics, 499 S.W.2d 87, 90–91 (Tex. 1973).

Definition. In Dillard v. Texas Electric Cooperative, 157 S.W.3d 429, 432 (Tex. 2005), the court recognized the following definition of “sole proximate cause”:

There may be more than one proximate cause of an event, but if an act or omission of any person not a party to the suit was the “sole proximate cause” of an occurrence, then no act or omission of any other persons could have been a proximate cause.

Conduct need not be negligence to be sole proximate cause. A person’s conduct need not be negligence to be a sole proximate cause. Plemmons v. Gary, 321 S.W.2d 625, 626 (Tex. Civ. App.—Beaumont 1959, orig. proceeding); Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe Railway v. Jones, 221 S.W.2d 1010, 1014 (Tex. Civ. App.—Eastland 1949, writ ref’d n.r.e.); Fort Worth & Denver City Railway v. Bozeman, 135 S.W.2d 275, 281 (Tex. Civ. App.—Amarillo 1939, writ dism’d judgm’t cor.).

Caveat. The Texas Supreme Court has acknowledged that inferential rebuttals “serve a legitimate purpose. The court also cautioned, however, that multiple inferential rebuttal instructions have ‘the potential to skew the jury’s analysis. Dillard, 157 S.W.3d at 433.

PJC 65.7 Unavoidable Accident

An occurrence may be an “unavoidable accident,” that is, an occurrence not proximately caused by the negligence of any party to the occurrence.

COMMENT

When to use—given immediately after definition of “proximate cause.” PJC 65.7 should be given immediately after the definition of ‘proximate cause’ in PJC 65.4 if there is evidence that the occurrence was caused by unforeseeable nonhuman conditions. “Unavoidable accident’ is an inferential rebuttal and should be submitted by instruction. Yarborough v. Berner, 467 S.W.2d 188, 192 (Tex. 1971).

Definition. The above definition of ‘unavoidable accident’ was recognized by the Texas Supreme Court in Dillard v. Texas Electric Cooperative, 157 S.W.3d 429, 432 (Tex. 2005). See also Dallas Railway & Terminal v. Bailey, 250 S.W.2d 379, 385 (Tex. 1952) (approving definition); Yarborough, 467 S.W.2d at 191 (darting out by child too young to be negligent was in nature of “physical condition or circumstance’ constituting unavoidable accident).

Caveat. The Texas Supreme Court has acknowledged that inferential rebuttals “serve a legitimate purpose.” The court also cautioned, however, that multiple inferential rebuttal instructions have “the potential to skew the jury’s analysis. Dillard, 157 S.W.3d at 433.

PJC 65.8 Act of God

If an occurrence is caused solely by an “act of God,” it is not caused by the negligence of any person. An occurrence is caused by an act of God if it is caused directly and exclusively by the violence of nature, without human intervention or cause, and could not have been prevented by reasonable foresight or care.

COMMENT

When to use—given immediately after definition of “proximate cause.” PJC 65.8 should be given immediately after the definition of “proximate cause” in PJC 65.4 if there is evidence that the occurrence was caused by an act of God. “Act of God” is a variation of “unavoidable accident.” It requires, in addition, that the occurrence be caused directly and exclusively by the violence of nature. It should be given in lieu of (and not in addition to) PJC 65.7 when it refers to the same condition. “Act of God” is an inferential rebuttal and should be submitted by instruction. Scott v. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway, 572 S.W.2d 273, 279 (Tex. 1978).

Definition. PJC 65.8 is based on the definition given by the trial court and approved in Scott, 572 S.W.2d at 280. See also Dillard v. Texas Electric Cooperative, 157 S.W.3d 429, 432 (Tex. 2005).

Caveat. The Texas Supreme Court has acknowledged that inferential rebuttals “serve a legitimate purpose. The court also cautioned, however, that multiple inferential rebuttal instructions have ‘the potential to skew the jury’s analysis.’” Dillard, 157 S.W.3d at 433.

PJC 65.9 Emergency

If a person is confronted by an “emergency” arising suddenly and unexpectedly, which was not proximately caused by any negligence on his part and which, to a reasonable person, requires immediate action without time for deliberation, his conduct in such an emergency is not negligence or failure to use ordinary care, if, after such emergency arises, he acts as a person of ordinary prudence would have acted under the same or similar circumstances.

COMMENT

When to use—given immediately after definition of “negligence.” PJC 65.9 should be given immediately after the definition of ‘negligence’ if there is evidence that a person whose conduct is inquired about was confronted by an emergency. “Emergency” is an inferential rebuttal and should be submitted by instruction. McDonald Transit, Inc. v. Moore, 565 S.W.2d 43 (Tex. 1978); Yarborough v. Berner, 467 S.W.2d 188 (Tex. 1971). See generally Thomas v. Oldham, 895 S.W.2d 352, 360 (Tex. 1995) (evidence insufficient to support submission of “sudden emergency”).

Definition. The above definition of “emergency” was recognized by the Texas Supreme Court in Dillard v. Texas Electric Cooperative, 157 S.W.3d 429, 432 (Tex. 2005).

Caveat. The Texas Supreme Court has acknowledged that inferential rebuttals “serve a legitimate purpose.” The court also cautioned, however, that multiple inferential rebuttal instructions have “the potential to skew the jury’s analysis. Dillard, 157 S.W.3d at 433.

PJC 66.1 Use of “Injury” or “Occurrence” (Comment)

“Injury” should be used if the issue of the responsibility of more than one person is submitted to the jury under the proportionate responsibility statute. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.001–.017. For suits filed after September 1, 1987, section 33.003 requires a finding of “percentage of responsibility” in pure negligence cases as well as in “mixed” cases involving claims of negligence and strict liability and/or warranty. The statute defines “percentage of responsibility” in terms of “causing or contributing to cause in any way the personal injury, property damage, death, or other harm for which recovery of damages is sought. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.011(4) (emphasis added); Nabors Well Services, Ltd. v. Romero, 456 S.W.3d 553, 563 (Tex. 2015) (holding that the proportionate responsibility statute requires fact finders to consider relevant evidence of a plaintiff’s preoccurrence, injury-causing conduct, overruling prior case law prohibiting evidence of plaintiff’s failure to wear a seatbelt).

A plaintiff’s preoccurrence, injury-causing conduct is distinct from the plaintiff’s postoccurrence failure to mitigate damages, which is submitted as an exclusionary instruction to the damages questions. See PJC 80.9; Nabors, 456 S.W.3d at 564. If a failure-to-mitigate instruction is given in the damages question (see PJC 80.9), and “injury” is used in the liability question, then the jury should be instructed in the liability and the proportionate responsibility questions as follows:

In answering this question, do not consider Paul Payne’s failure, if any, to exercise reasonable care in caring for or treating his injury, if any.

In a case involving a death, the word “death” may be used instead of “injury.”

In cases with no allegations of injury-causing negligence by a plaintiff, it may be appropriate to use “occurrence” in the questions in this chapter. However, the concerns expressed in Nabors should be considered carefully.

PJC 66.2 Submission of Settling Persons, Contribution Defendants, and Responsible Third Parties (Comment)

Settling persons. The proportionate responsibility statute requires the responsibility of a settling person (Sam Settlor) to be determined by the trier of fact. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.003, 33.011. Thus, if the case includes a settling person, that person's name must be included in the basic liability question as well as in the proportionate responsibility question.

Contribution defendants. If there is a contribution defendant (Connie Contributor), that person's name should be included in the basic liability question. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.003, 33.011. "Contribution defendant" is defined in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.016.

However, a contribution defendant should not be included in the question comparing the responsibility of the plaintiff with that of the other defendants. A separate comparative question is necessary. See PJC 66.12.

Responsible third parties—causes of action accruing on or after September 1, 1995, and causes of action accruing before September 1, 1995, on which suit is filed on or after September 1, 1996, and before July 1, 2003. A "responsible third party" (Responsible Ray) should be included in the basic liability question only if joined under former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.004 (Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 136, § 1 (S.B. 28), eff. Sept. 1, 1995). A "responsible third party" is defined in former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.011(6) (Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 136, § 1 (S.B. 28), eff. Sept. 1, 1995). If submitted in the basic liability question, a responsible third party should also be submitted in the proportionate responsibility question. Former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.003 (Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 136, § 1 (S.B. 28), eff. Sept. 1, 1995). See PJC 66.11.

Responsible third parties—actions filed on or after July 1, 2003. In 2003 the legislature changed responsible third party practice from one of joinder to one of designation. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.004. At least one Texas court has held that it is "only upon the trial court's granting of a motion for leave to designate a person as a responsible third party that the designation becomes effective. Valverde v. Biela's Glass & Aluminum Products, Inc., 293 S.W.3d 751, 754–55 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2009, pet. denied); see also Ruiz v. Guerra, 293 S.W.3d 706, 714–15 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2009, no pet.). The legislature also expanded the category of responsible third parties. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.004, 33.011(6). "'Responsible third party' means any person who is alleged to have caused or contributed to causing in any way the harm for which recovery of damages is sought, whether by negligent act or omission, by any defective or unreasonably dangerous product, by other conduct or activity that violates an applicable legal standard, or by any combination of these. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.011(6). Section 33.003(b) provides that a question regarding conduct by any person may not be submitted to the jury without evidence to support the submission. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.003(b).

PJC 66.3 Premises Liability Based on Negligent Activity or Premises Defect—Right to Control

QUESTION _____

Did [the general contractor] [the property owner] exercise or retain some control over the manner in which [the injury-causing activity] [the defect-producing work] was performed, other than the right to order the work to start or stop or to inspect progress or receive reports?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 66.3 is a predicate to the appropriate liability question in common-law cases brought against a general contractor or property owner for (1) the negligent activity of an independent contractor or (2) a premises defect created by an independent contractor’s work. See Dow Chemical Co. v. Bright, 89 S.W.3d 602 (Tex. 2002); Lee Lewis Construction, Inc. v. Harrison, 70 S.W.3d 778 (Tex. 2001); Clayton W. Williams, Jr. Inc. v. Olivo, 952 S.W.2d 523 (Tex. 1997). In such cases, the injured plaintiff must establish both the general contractor or property owner’s right of control over the injury-causing activity or defect-producing work that gives rise to a duty to ensure that the independent contractor performs its work safely, and a breach of that duty. In cases involving property owners that qualify for the protections available under chapter 95 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code, PJC 66.14 should be used. In premises defect cases not governed by chapter 95, the above question should immediately precede PJC 66.4.

Substitute name of general contractor or property owner. The name of the general contractor or property owner should be substituted for the italicized phrase in the charge.

Substitute particular activity or work. Terms describing the particular activity alleged to have caused the injury or work alleged to have produced the defect should be substituted for the italicized phrase in the charge.

Caveat. A general contractor can retain the right to control an aspect of an independent contractor’s work or project so as to give rise to a duty of care to that independent contractor’s employees in two ways: by contract or by actual exercise of control. Lee Lewis Construction, Inc., 70 S.W.3d at 783. The court acknowledged that it had used the phrases ‘right of control’ or ‘retained control’ interchangeably. ‘The distinction remains important, however, because determining what a contract says is generally a question of law for the court, while determining whether someone exercised actual control is generally a question of fact for the jury.” Lee Lewis Construction, Inc., 70 S.W.3d at 783; see also Shell Oil Co. v. Khan, 138 S.W.3d 288, 292 (Tex. 2004). Therefore, if the case does not involve a contractual retention of the right of control or if the trial court rules as a matter of law that the general contractor or premises owner did not retain a contractual right to control, the parties should omit the phrase “or retain” from the question and submit to the jury only the issue of actual exercise of control. If the trial court rules as a matter of law that the general contractor or owner did retain a contractual right of control, this question may not need to be submitted unless a fact issue exists with respect to actual exercise of control. See, e.g. Elliott-Williams Co. v. Diaz, 9 S.W.3d 801, 804 (Tex. 1999) (if right of control has contractual basis, circumstance of no actual exercise of control will not absolve contractor of liability).

Source of question. PJC 66.3 is based on section 95.003 of the Civil Practice and Remedies Code (“Liability for Acts of Independent Contractors”).

PJC 66.4 Premises Liability—Plaintiff Is Invitee

QUESTION _____

Did the negligence, if any, of those named below proximately cause the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

With respect to the condition of the premises, Don Davis was negligent if—

1. the condition posed an unreasonable risk of harm, and
2. Don Davis knew or reasonably should have known of the danger, and
3. Don Davis failed to exercise ordinary care to protect Paul Payne from the danger, by both failing to adequately warn Paul Payne of the condition and failing to make that condition reasonably safe.

“Ordinary care,” when used with respect to the conduct of Don Davis as an owner or occupier of a premises, means that degree of care that would be used by an owner or occupier of ordinary prudence under the same or similar circumstances.

Answer “Yes” or “No” for each of the following:

1. Don Davis _____
2. Paul Payne _____
3. Sam Settlor _____
4. Responsible Ray _____
5. Connie Contributor _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 66.4 is a broad-form question that should be appropriate in most premises liability cases in which it is undisputed that the plaintiff was an invitee. See Dallas Market Center Development Co. v. Liedeker, 958 S.W.2d 382, 385 (Tex. 1997), overruled in part on other grounds by Torrington Co. v. Stutzman, 46 S.W.3d 829, 840 (Tex. 2000); State v. Williams, 940 S.W.2d 583, 584–85 (Tex. 1996).

Warning as inadequate substitute. In Del Lago Partners, Inc. v. Smith, 307 S.W.3d 762, 771 n.32 (Tex. 2010), the Texas Supreme Court observed that “in some circumstances no warning can adequately substitute for taking reasonably prudent steps to make the premises safe.” The jury charge in Del Lago used the PJC language in element 3, and the court noted that “[t]he jury could have construed the charge to mean, and could have made the factual finding, that ordinary care under the circumstances required something other than a warning.” Del Lago Partners, Inc., 307 S.W.3d at 771 n.32. The court, however, did not offer guidance on whether a trial court may modify element 3 or the definition of “ordinary care” in cases where the evidence shows that no warning can adequately substitute for making the condition of the premises safe.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 66.1.

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant’s liability may be predicated only on “an injury that causes an individual’s death.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospital, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word “death” may be substituted for the word “injury” in the negligence question.

Accompanying question. In cases against a general contractor for premises defects created by an independent contractor’s work activity, PJC 66.3 should immediately precede this question if there is a dispute about the general contractor’s right to control the manner in which the work was performed. See Saenz v. David & David Construction Co., 52 S.W.3d 807, 813 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2001, pet. denied).

Accompanying definitions and instructions. PJC 66.4 is designed to be accompanied by the appropriate definitions of the standard of care and “proximate cause” set out in PJC 65.2–65.4. PJC 65.2 should be used when the conduct of a contributorily negligent plaintiff or a defendant who is not an owner or occupier of a premises is also to be considered by the jury. PJC 65.3 should be used for a child’s standard of care. If the evidence raises “new and independent cause,” the definitions in PJC 65.5 should be used in lieu of the definition of “proximate cause” in PJC 65.4.

Plaintiff’s negligence. If the plaintiff’s negligence is not in issue, the plaintiff’s name (Paul Payne) should not be included in the above question. In a case in which the plaintiff’s negligence is in issue, or in any case including more than one defendant, a proportionate responsibility question should follow PJC 66.4. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.001–.017. See PJC 66.11 and 66.13.

Plaintiff’s status as to easement holder defendant. The plaintiff’s status as to an easement holder defendant depends on whether the easement is exclusive or nonexclusive. An exclusive easement gives the holder the right to exclusive possession; conversely, a nonexclusive easement does not convey the right to exclude others from the easement. If a plaintiff sues a nonexclusive easement holder, his status as to the landowner is determinative—that is, if the plaintiff is an invitee as to the landowner, then he will be an invitee as to the easement holder. If a plaintiff sues an exclusive easement holder, then his status depends on his relationship to the easement holder, not to the landowner. Hernandez v. Heldenfels, 374 S.W.2d 196 (Tex. 1963); Roberts v. Friendswood Development Co., 886 S.W.2d 363 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.]

1994, no writ); Phillips Pipe Line Co. v. Razo, 409 S.W.2d 565 (Tex. Civ. App.—Tyler 1966), rev'd on other grounds, 420 S.W.2d 691 (Tex. 1967); Denton County Electric Co-operative v. Burkholder, 354 S.W.2d 639 (Tex. Civ. App.—Fort Worth 1962, writ ref'd n.r.e.).

Derivative claimant. In cases involving a derivative claimant (see PJC 66.13), the above question must also include the name of the derivative claimant along with that of the primary claimant.

Condition must create unreasonable risk resulting in physical harm. Only a condition creating an unreasonable risk that results in physical harm will impose liability on the possessor of a premises. Some conditions have been held, as a matter of law, not to create unreasonable risks. See, e.g. Scott & White Memorial Hospital v. Fair, 310 S.W.3d 411, 419 (Tex. 2010) (accumulation of mud or ice); Brinson Ford, Inc. v. Alger, 228 S.W.3d 161 (Tex. 2007) (ramp at auto dealership); H.E. Butt Grocery Co. v. Resendez, 988 S.W.2d 218 (Tex. 1999) (per curiam) (customer sampling display); Seideneck v. Cal Bayreuther Associates, 451 S.W.2d 752 (Tex. 1970) (throw rug).

Substitute particular condition. If it is agreed that the case involves only one condition, the Committee recommends that the particular condition (e.g., a grape on the floor) be substituted for the phrase the condition.

Exceptions to the limitations on joint and several liability. The limitations on joint and several liability set forth in chapter 33 of the Civil Practice and Remedies Code do not apply in certain instances:

Actions filed before July 1, 2003. See former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.002, 33.013(c)(1), (2) (Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 136, § 1 (S.B. 28), eff. Sept. 1, 1995).

PJC 66.5 Premises Liability—Plaintiff Is Licensee

QUESTION _____

Did the negligence, if any, of those named below proximately cause the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

With respect to the condition of the premises, Don Davis was negligent if—

1. the condition posed an unreasonable risk of harm, and
2. Don Davis had actual knowledge of the danger, and
3. Paul Payne did not have actual knowledge of the danger, and
4. Don Davis failed to exercise ordinary care to protect Paul Payne from the danger, by both failing to adequately warn Paul Payne of the condition and failing to make that condition reasonably safe.

“Ordinary care,” when used with respect to the conduct of Don Davis as an owner or occupier of a premises, means that degree of care that would be used by an owner or occupier of ordinary prudence under the same or similar circumstances.

Answer “Yes” or “No” for each of the following:

1. Don Davis _____
2. Paul Payne _____
3. Sam Settlor _____
4. Responsible Ray _____
5. Connie Contributor _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 66.5 is a broad-form question that should be appropriate in most premises liability cases in which it is undisputed that the plaintiff was a licensee. See State v. Williams, 940 S.W.2d 583, 584–85 (Tex. 1996).

Warning as inadequate substitute. In Del Lago Partners, Inc. v. Smith, 307 S.W.3d 762, 771 n.32 (Tex. 2010), the Texas Supreme Court observed that “in some circumstances no warning can adequately substitute for taking reasonably prudent steps to make the premises safe. The jury charge in Del Lago used the PJC language in element 3, and the court noted that “[t]he jury could have construed the charge to mean, and could have made the factual finding, that ordinary care under the circumstances required something other than a warning.” Del Lago Partners, Inc., 307 S.W.3d at 771 n.32. The court, however, did not offer guidance on whether a trial court may modify element 3 or the definition of “ordinary care” in cases where the evidence shows that no warning can adequately substitute for making the condition of the premises safe.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 66.1.

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant’s liability may be predicated only on “an injury that causes an individual’s death.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospital, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word “death” may be substituted for the word ‘injury’ in the negligence question.

Accompanying definitions and instructions. The standard of care of a defendant owner or occupier of a premises is set out in the above instruction. Williams, 940 S.W.2d at 584. PJC 65.2 should be used when the conduct of a contributorily negligent plaintiff or a defendant who is not an owner or occupier of a premises is also to be considered by the jury. PJC 65.3 should be used for a child’s standard of care. The definition of ‘proximate cause’ is set out in PJC 65.4. If the evidence raises ‘new and independent cause,’ the definitions in PJC 65.5 should be used in lieu of the definition of “proximate cause” in PJC 65.4.

Plaintiff’s negligence. If the plaintiff’s negligence is not in issue, the plaintiff’s name (Paul Payne) should not be included in the above question. In a case in which the plaintiff’s negligence is in issue, or in any case including more than one defendant, a proportionate responsibility question should follow PJC 66.5. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.001–.017. See PJC 66.11 and 66.13.

Plaintiff’s status as to easement holder defendant. The plaintiff’s status as to an easement holder defendant depends on whether the easement is exclusive or nonexclusive. An exclusive easement gives the holder the right to exclusive possession; conversely, a nonexclusive easement does not convey the right to exclude others from the easement. If a plaintiff sues a nonexclusive easement holder, his status as to the landowner is determinative—that is, if the plaintiff is an invitee as to the landowner, then he will be an invitee as to the easement holder. If a plaintiff sues an exclusive easement holder, then his status depends on his relationship to the easement holder, not to the landowner. Hernandez v. Heldenfels, 374 S.W.2d 196 (Tex. 1963); Roberts v. Friendswood Development Co., 886 S.W.2d 363 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1994, no writ); Phillips Pipe Line Co. v. Razo, 409 S.W.2d 565 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 1962, writ ref’d n.r.e.).

Derivative claimant. In cases involving a derivative claimant (see PJC 66.13), the above question must also include the name of the derivative claimant along with that of the primary claimant.

Condition must create unreasonable risk resulting in physical harm. Only a condition creating an unreasonable risk that results in physical harm will impose liability on the possessor of a premises. Some conditions have been held, as a matter of law, not to create unreasonable risks. *See, e.g. Scott & White Memorial Hospital v. PJC 66.6 Premises Liability—Plaintiff’s Status in Dispute

QUESTION _____

On the occasion in question, was Paul Payne an invitee on that part of Don Davis’s premises under consideration?

An “invitee” is a person who is on the premises at the express or implied invitation of the possessor of the premises and who has entered thereon either as a member of the public for a purpose for which the premises are held open to the public or for a purpose connected with the business of the possessor that does or may result in their mutual economic benefit.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. If there is no dispute about the plaintiff’s status, PJC 66.6 is unnecessary. See PJC 66.4 or 66.5. However, if the plaintiff claims only invitee status but the defendant argues that the plaintiff was not an invitee, PJC 66.6 should be submitted followed by PJC 66.4, conditioned on the answer to PJC 66.6.

Plaintiff’s status as to easement holder defendant. The plaintiff’s status as to an easement holder defendant depends on whether the easement is exclusive or nonexclusive. An exclusive easement gives the holder the right to exclusive possession; conversely, a nonexclusive easement does not convey the right to exclude others from the easement. If a plaintiff sues a nonexclusive easement holder, his status as to the landowner is determinative—that is, if the plaintiff is an invitee as to the landowner, then he will be an invitee as to the easement holder. If a plaintiff sues an exclusive easement holder, then his status depends on his relationship to the easement holder, not to the landowner. Hernandez v. Heldenfels, 374 S.W.2d 196 (Tex. 1963); Roberts v. Friendswood Development Co., 886 S.W.2d 363 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1994, no writ); Phillips Pipe Line Co. v. Razo, 409 S.W.2d 565 (Tex. Civ. App.—Tyler 1966), rev’d on other grounds, 420 S.W.2d 691 (Tex. 1967); Denton County Electric Co-operative v. Burkholder, 354 S.W.2d 639 (Tex. Civ. App.—Fort Worth 1962, writ ref’d n.r.e.).

Modify if claimed licensee status in dispute. If the plaintiff claims only that he was a licensee but the defendant argues that the plaintiff was a trespasser, PJC 66.6 may be modified by substituting the phrase a licensee for an invitee in the question and the following definition for that given above:

A “licensee” is a person on the premises of another with the express or implied permission of the possessor but without an express or implied invitation.

Invitee on one part of premises; licensee on another. A person may be an invitee on one part of the premises and a licensee on another or a licensee on one part and a trespasser on another. Burton Construction & Shipbuilding Co. v. Broussard, 273 S.W.2d 598, 602–03 (Tex. 1954). If the plaintiff’s status on a particular part of the premises is not in dispute, the phrases “that part of” and “under consideration” in the above question should be deleted.

PJC 66.7 Premises Liability—Disjunctive Submission of Invitee-Licensee for Alternate Theories of Recovery

QUESTION _____

On the occasion in question, was Paul Payne an invitee or a licensee on that part of Don Davis's premises under consideration?

An “invitee” is a person who is on the premises at the express or implied invitation of the possessor of the premises and who has entered thereon either as a member of the public for a purpose for which the premises are held open to the public or for a purpose connected with the business of the possessor that does or may result in their mutual economic benefit. One who is an invitee cannot be a licensee at the same time.

A “licensee” is a person on the premises of another with the express or implied permission of the possessor but without an express or implied invitation.

Answer “invitee” or “licensee.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 66.7 is appropriate if the plaintiff seeks to recover on alternate theories of liability—that is, that he was either an invitee or a licensee. In such event, licensee status is not in the nature of an inferential rebuttal, and disjunctive submission is proper under Tex. R. Civ. P. 277 if the evidence shows that the plaintiff must be either an invitee or a licensee. Cf. Archuleta v. International Insurance Co., 667 S.W.2d 120 (Tex. 1984) (in worker’s compensation suit, proper to ask about total and partial incapacity as alternate theories; inquiry about partial incapacity improper inferential rebuttal if only total incapacity claimed).

Modify if claimed licensee status in dispute. If the plaintiff claims he was a licensee but the defendant argues that the plaintiff was a trespasser, PJC 66.7 may be modified by substituting the words a licensee for an invitee and trespasser for licensee in the question, licensee for invitee and trespasser for licensee in the answer instruction, and the following definitions for those given above:

A “licensee” is a person on the premises of another with the express or implied permission of the possessor but without an express or implied invitation.

A “trespasser” is a person who enters on property of another without consent of the owner, express or implied.

The above definitions are based on those in Environmental Processing Systems, L.C. v. FPL Farming, Ltd., 457 S.W.3d 414, 424 (Tex. 2015) (trespasser); State v. Shumake, 199 S.W.3d 279, 285 (Tex. 2006) (trespasser); Texas-Louisiana Power Co. v. Webster, 91 S.W.2d 302, 306 (Tex. 1936) (licensee).

Invitee on one part of premises; licensee on another. A person may be an invitee on one part of the premises and a licensee on another or a licensee on one part and a trespasser on another. Burton Construction & Shipbuilding Co. v. Broussard, 273 S.W.2d 598, 602–03 (Tex. 1954). If the plaintiff’s status on a particular part of the premises is not in dispute, the phrases “that part of” and “under consideration” in the above question should be deleted.

Answer determines which liability question follows. PJC 66.7 is designed to function as a predicate to the appropriate liability question. Therefore, after answering the above question, the jury should be directed to answer either PJC 66.4 (plaintiff is invitee) or PJC 66.5 (plaintiff is licensee), whichever is appropriate.

PJC 66.8 Premises Liability—Plaintiff-Licensee Injured by Gross Negligence

QUESTION _____

Was Don Davis's gross negligence, if any, a proximate cause of the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

Don Davis was grossly negligent with respect to the condition of the premises if—

1. the condition posed an unreasonable risk of harm, and
2. Don Davis both failed to adequately warn Paul Payne of the danger and failed to make that condition reasonably safe, and
3. Don Davis's conduct was an act or omission—
 - a. which, when viewed objectively from the standpoint of Don Davis at the time of its occurrence, involved an extreme degree of risk, considering the probability and magnitude of the potential harm to others; and
 - b. of which Don Davis had actual, subjective awareness of the risk involved, but nevertheless proceeded with conscious indifference to the rights, safety, or welfare of others.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 66.8 presents a ground of recovery independent of that found in PJC 66.4 or 66.5. It may be used as a basis for recovery of actual damages in a case in which the plaintiff-licensee claims to have been injured as a result of the defendant's gross negligence. The possessor of premises owes to the licensee the duty not to injure him by willful or wanton conduct or gross negligence. State v. Tennison, 509 S.W.2d 560, 562 (Tex. 1974); Carlisle v. J. Weingarten, Inc., 152 S.W.2d 1073, 1074 (Tex. 1941); see also Jannette v. Deprez, 701 S.W.2d 56, 59 (Tex. App.—Dallas 1985, writ ref'd n.r.e.) (in premises case, defendant's gross negligence may be compared with plaintiff's ordinary negligence). This position differs from that found in Restatement (Second) of Torts §§ 341, 342 (1965).

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 66.1.

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant’s liability may be predicated only on “an injury that causes an individual’s death. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospital, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word ‘death’ may be substituted for the word ‘injury’ in the negligence question.

Substitute particular condition. If it is agreed that the case involves only one condition, the Committee recommends that the particular condition (e.g., a grape on the floor) be substituted for the phrase the condition.

Warning as inadequate substitute. In Del Lago Partners, Inc. v. Smith, 307 S.W.3d 762, 771 n.32 (Tex. 2010), the Texas Supreme Court observed that “in some circumstances no warning can adequately substitute for taking reasonably prudent steps to make the premises safe. The jury charge in Del Lago used the PJC language in element 3, and the court noted that “[t]he jury could have construed the charge to mean, and could have made the factual finding, that ordinary care under the circumstances required something other than a warning.” Del Lago Partners, Inc., 307 S.W.3d at 771 n.32. The court, however, did not offer guidance on whether a trial court may modify element 3 or the definition of “ordinary care” in cases where the evidence shows that no warning can adequately substitute for making the condition of the premises safe.

Source of instruction. That portion of the above instruction relating to gross negligence (element 3) is taken from section 41.001(11) of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code (definition of “gross negligence”). An affirmative answer by the jury to the above question provides a basis for recovering only actual damages. If a plaintiff seeks both actual and exemplary damages in a case arising after September 1, 1995, then both PJC 66.8 and PJC 85.3B or 85.3C would be required. The jury must unanimously answer “Yes” to PJC 66.8 as a condition to submitting the exemplary damages question, and the jury must be unanimous in its award of exemplary damages. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d).

PJC 66.9 Premises Liability—Plaintiff Is Trespasser

QUESTION _____

Was Don Davis's gross negligence, if any, a proximate cause of the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

Don Davis was grossly negligent with respect to the condition of the premises if—

1. the condition posed an unreasonable risk of harm, and
2. Don Davis both failed to adequately warn Paul Payne of the danger and failed to make that condition reasonably safe, and
3. Don Davis's conduct was an act or omission—
 - a. which, when viewed objectively from the standpoint of Don Davis at the time of its occurrence, involved an extreme degree of risk, considering the probability and magnitude of the potential harm to others; and
 - b. of which Don Davis had actual, subjective awareness of the risk involved, but nevertheless proceeded with conscious indifference to the rights, safety, or welfare of others.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 66.9 may be used in a suit in which the plaintiff-trespasser sues a premises defendant for gross negligence. See Jannette v. Deprez, 701 S.W.2d 56, 59 (Tex. App.—Dallas 1985, writ ref'd n.r.e.) (in premises case, defendant's gross negligence may be compared with plaintiff's ordinary negligence).

PJC 66.9 also may be adapted for use in suits under the Texas recreational use statute, Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code ch. 75, which elevates the plaintiff's status to that of a trespasser. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 75.002. For a discussion of the standard of care owed to recreational users of property asserting premises liability claims under chapter 75, see State v. Shumake, 199 S.W.3d 279 (Tex., 2006) (holding that Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code ch. 41 gross negligence standard, rather than common-law trespasser standard, applies under ch. 75). Predicate questions submitting other conditions necessary to incur liability under the recreational use statute may also be required.

Plaintiff's status as to easement holder defendant. The plaintiff's status as to an easement holder defendant depends on whether the easement is exclusive or nonexclusive. An exclusive easement gives the holder the right to exclusive possession; conversely, a nonexclusive easement does not convey the right to exclude others from the easement. If a plaintiff sues a nonexclusive easement holder, his status as to the landowner is determinative—that is, if the plaintiff is an invitee as to the landowner, then he will be an invitee as to the easement holder. If a plaintiff sues an exclusive easement holder, then his status depends on his relationship to the easement holder, not to the landowner. Hernandez v. Heldenfels, 374 S.W.2d 196 (Tex. 1963); Roberts v. Friendswood Development Co., 886 S.W.2d 363 (Tex. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1994, no writ); Phillips Pipe Line Co. v. Razo, 409 S.W.2d 565 (Tex. Civ. App.—Tyler 1966), rev'd on other grounds, 420 S.W.2d 691 (Tex. 1967); Denton County Electric Cooperative v. Burkholder, 354 S.W.2d 639 (Tex. Civ. App.—Fort Worth 1962, writ ref'd n.r.e.).

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 66.1.

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant's liability may be predicated only on “an injury that causes an individual's death.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospital, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word “death” may be substituted for the word “injury” in the negligence question.

Substitute particular condition. If it is agreed that the case involves only one condition, the Committee recommends that the particular condition (e.g., a grape on the floor) be substituted for the phrase the condition.

Accompanying definitions and instructions. The standard of care of a defendant owner or occupier of a premises is set out in the above instruction. PJC 65.2 should be used when the conduct of a contributorily negligent plaintiff or a defendant who is not an owner or occupier of a premises is also to be considered by the jury. PJC 65.3 should be used for a child's standard of care. The definition of “proximate cause” is set out in PJC 65.4. If the evidence raises ‘new and independent cause,’ the definitions in PJC 65.5 should be used in lieu of the definition of “proximate cause” in PJC 65.4.

Warning as inadequate substitute. In Del Lago Partners, Inc. v. Smith, 307 S.W.3d 762, 771 n.32 (Tex. 2010), the Texas Supreme Court observed that “in some circumstances no warning can adequately substitute for taking reasonably prudent steps to make the premises safe.” The jury charge in Del Lago used the PJC language in element 3, and the court noted that “[t]he jury could have construed the charge to mean, and could have made the factual finding, that ordinary care under the circumstances required something other than a warning.” Del Lago Partners, Inc., 307 S.W.3d at 771 n.32. The court, however, did not offer guidance on whether a trial court may modify element 3 or the definition of “ordinary care” in cases where the evidence shows that no warning can adequately substitute for making the condition of the premises safe.

Source of instruction. That portion of the above instruction relating to gross negligence (element 3) is taken from section 41.001(11) of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code (definition of “gross negligence”). An affirmative answer by the jury to the above question provides a basis for recovering only actual damages. If a plaintiff seeks both actual and exemplary damages in a case arising after September 1, 1995, then both PJC 66.8 and PJC 85.3B or 85.3C would be required. The jury must unanimously answer “Yes” to PJC 66.8 as a condition to submitting the exemplary damages question, and the jury must be unanimous in its award of exemplary damages. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d).

PJC 66.10 Premises Liability—Attractive Nuisance

QUESTION 1

On the occasion in question, did Don Davis know or should he have known that children were likely to be present on or about the oil derrick?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

If you answered “Yes” to Question 1, then answer Question 2. Otherwise, do not answer Question 2.

QUESTION 2

Did the negligence, if any, of those named below proximately cause the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

With respect to the condition of the premises, Don Davis was negligent if—

1. the condition posed an unreasonable risk of harm, and
2. Don Davis knew or reasonably should have known of the danger, and
3. Don Davis failed to exercise ordinary care to protect Paul Payne, Jr. from the danger, by both failing to adequately warn Paul Payne, Jr. of the condition and failing to make that condition reasonably safe.

“Ordinary care,” when used with respect to the conduct of Don Davis as an owner or occupier of a premises, means that degree of care that would be used by an owner or occupier of ordinary prudence under the same or similar circumstances.

Answer “Yes” or “No” for each of the following:

1. Don Davis _____
2. Paul Payne, Jr. _____
3. Sam Settlor _____
4. Responsible Ray _____
5. Connie Contributor _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 66.10 may be used if the plaintiff seeks to impose liability on the owner or occupier for harm caused to trespassing children by structures or other artificial conditions on the premises. It is immaterial whether the child was attracted to the premises by the structure or artificial condition as long as the presence of the child should have been reasonably anticipated. Eaton v. R.B. George Investments, Inc., 260 S.W.2d 587, 590 (Tex. 1953); Banker v. McLaughlin, 208 S.W.2d 843, 847 (Tex. 1948).

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 66.1.

Substitute particular attractive nuisance. The alleged attractive nuisance should be substituted for the phrase the oil derrick in Question 1.

Accompanying definitions and instructions. PJC 66.10 is designed to be accompanied by the appropriate definitions of the standard of care and “proximate cause” set out in PJC 65.2–65.4. PJC 65.2 should be used when the conduct of a contributorily negligent plaintiff or a defendant who is not an owner or occupier of a premises is also to be considered by the jury. PJC 65.3 should be used for a child’s standard of care. If the evidence raises “new and independent cause,” the definitions in PJC 65.5 should be used in lieu of the definition of “proximate cause” in PJC 65.4.

Derivative claimant. In cases involving a derivative claimant (see PJC 66.13), the above question must also include the name of the derivative claimant along with that of the primary claimant.

Warning as inadequate substitute. In Del Lago Partners, Inc. v. Smith, 307 S.W.3d 762, 771 n.32 (Tex. 2010), the Texas Supreme Court observed that “in some circumstances no warning can adequately substitute for taking reasonably prudent steps to make the premises safe.” The jury charge in Del Lago used the PJC language in element 3, and the court noted that “[t]he jury could have construed the charge to mean, and could have made the factual finding, that ordinary care under the circumstances required something other than a warning.” Del Lago Partners, Inc., 307 S.W.3d at 771 n.32. The court, however, did not offer guidance on whether a trial court may modify element 3 or the definition of “ordinary care” in cases where the evidence shows that no warning can adequately substitute for making the condition of the premises safe.

Age of child. Whether the child is within the age bracket to be protected by the doctrine is a law question. Children under fourteen or fifteen years of age, depending on the type of dangerous condition, normally are included. Massie v. Copeland, 233 S.W.2d 449 (Tex. 1950); McCoy v. Texas Power & Light Co., 239 S.W. 1105 (Tex. Comm’n App. 1922, judgment adopted); Johns v. Fort Worth Power & Light Co., 30 S.W.2d 549 (Tex. Civ. App.—Fort Worth 1930, writ ref’d). But see Texas Utilities

Electric Co. v. Timmons, 947 S.W.2d 191, 193–96 (Tex. 1997) (doctrine did not apply to fourteen-year-old electrocuted on electrical tower).

Whether the contributory negligence of a child should be submitted to the jury depends on the age of the child. As a matter of law, a child four years and ten months of age is not contributorily negligent. Yarborough v. Berner, 467 S.W.2d 188 (Tex. 1971). If the child is five years old, a jury issue is presented. Gulf Production Co. v. Quisenberry, 97 S.W.2d 166 (Tex. 1936). If the contributory negligence of a child of “tender years” is submitted, the definitions of “ordinary care” and “negligence” used with regard to the child should conform to PJC 65.3.

Condition or location in dispute. The foregoing questions assume that there is no dispute that the condition giving rise to the event was in fact located on premises for which the defendant is legally responsible. If this matter is controverted, an appropriate question may be submitted.

Caveat. In Eaton, 260 S.W.2d 587, the court relied heavily on Restatement of Torts § 339 subpara. (c) (1934) (carried forward in Restatement (Second) of Torts (1965)), which requires for liability that “the children because of their youth do not discover the condition or realize the risk involved in intermeddling in it or in coming within the area made dangerous by it.” Eaton, 260 S.W.2d at 589–90; see also Texas Utilities Electric Co., 947 S.W.2d 191.

Exceptions to the limitations on joint and several liability. The limitations on joint and several liability set forth in chapter 33 of the Civil Practice and Remedies Code do not apply in certain instances:

PJC 66.11 Premises Liability—Proportionate Responsibility

If you answered “Yes” to Question[s] _____ [applicable liability question(s)] for more than one of those named below, then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

Assign percentages of responsibility only to those you found caused or contributed to cause the [injury] [occurrence]. The percentages you find must total 100 percent. The percentages must be expressed in whole numbers. The percentage of responsibility attributable to any one is not necessarily measured by the number of acts or omissions found. The percentage attributable to any one need not be the same percentage attributed to that one in answering another question.

QUESTION _____

For each person you found caused or contributed to cause the [injury] [occurrence], find the percentage of responsibility attributable to each:

1. Don Davis	_____	%
2. Paul Payne	_____	%
3. Sam Settlor	_____	%
4. Responsible Ray	_____	%

COMMENT

When to use. Rule 277 requires a percentage question “[i]n any cause in which the jury is required to apportion the loss among the parties.” Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. Thus, PJC 66.11 should be used in a premises case if the issue of the responsibility of more than one party is submitted to the jury under Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code ch. 33. For cases in which there is a derivative claimant, see PJC 66.13.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 66.1. The term used in PJC 66.11 should match that used in the liability question.

Blanks for question numbers. The question number to be inserted in the blank space in the conditioning instruction should coincide with that of the underlying liability question.

Compare claimants separately. Each claimant should be submitted separately within the proportionate responsibility question. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code

Use of “responsibility” or “negligence.” Chapter 33 of the Civil Practice and Remedies Code applies not only to negligence but also to any cause of action based on tort or any action brought under the DTPA. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.002(a)(1), (2). For this reason, and because section 33.011 expressly calls for the comparison of “responsibility,” that is the term the Committee suggests. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.011(4). However, when negligence is the only theory by which any of the submitted persons could be found liable, an alternative submission might be as follows:

For each person you found caused or contributed to cause the [injury] [occurrence], find the percentage of negligence attributable to each:

Settling person, contribution defendant, or responsible third party. See PJC 66.2.

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 66.12 is an additional comparative question designed to follow the comparative question in PJC 66.11 or 66.13. It submits the proportionate responsibility between the defendant and a contribution defendant under Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.016. Section 33.016 specifically requires this second comparative question. This question should not inquire about the responsibility of the claimant.

If there is more than one defendant. If the responsibility of more than one defendant is submitted, separate percentage answers should not be sought for each defendant in PJC 66.12. Rather, the names of all defendants should be grouped on one answer line.

The ratio of responsibility between or among the defendants is fixed by the answer to PJC 66.11 or 66.13, in which a separate answer is obtained for each defendant; seeking a second set of separate answers in PJC 66.12 might result in jury confusion or conflicting answers. The contribution responsibility of each defendant is determined by allocating the percentage attributed to all defendants in answer to PJC 66.12 in proportion to the relative percentages found for each defendant in answer to PJC 66.11 or 66.13.

If there is more than one contribution defendant. If the responsibility of more than one contribution defendant is submitted, a separate percentage answer should be sought for each such contribution defendant.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 66.1. The term used in PJC 66.12 should match that used in the liability question.

COMMENT

When to use. Rule 277 requires a percentage question “[i]n any cause in which the jury is required to apportion the loss among the parties.” Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. PJC 66.13 is designed to apportion loss in cases in which there is a derivative claimant—that is, a claimant suing for damages caused by injuries to another. In the example above, Fred Father is the derivative claimant and Mary Minor is the injured child. For PJC 66.13 to apply, the child must not be suing the parent. A separate comparative submission is required for the derivative claim. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.003, 33.011(1). PJC 66.13 applies to the derivative claim. For submission of the underlying claim against the defendant, see PJC 66.11.

Separate questions (such as PJC 66.11 and 66.13) are submitted because the responsibility of a derivative claimant (Fred Father) will not bar or diminish the recovery of the primary claimant (Mary Minor). On the other hand, the responsibility of Mary Minor will bar or diminish the recovery of both Mary Minor and Fred Father. For this reason, the percentage of responsibility of both Mary Minor and Fred Father must be considered in determining whether the recovery of Fred Father is barred or diminished.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 66.1. The term used in PJC 66.13 should match that used in the liability question.

Blanks for question numbers. The question number to be inserted in the blank space in the conditioning instruction should coincide with that of the underlying liability question.

Liability questions must also include derivative claimant. In cases involving a derivative claimant, the basic liability questions must also include the name of the derivative claimant along with that of the primary claimant.

Settling person, contribution defendant, or responsible third party. See PJC 66.2.

Subcontractors, or Their Employees
(Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code ch. 95)

QUESTION _____

Did Olivia Owner exercise or retain some control over the manner in which [the injury-causing] [the defect-producing] work was performed, other than the right to order the work to start or stop or to inspect progress or receive reports?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

If you answered “Yes” to the above question, then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

QUESTION _____

Did the negligence, if any, of Olivia Owner proximately cause the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

With respect to the condition of the premises, Olivia Owner was negligent if—

1. the condition posed an unreasonable risk of harm, and
2. Olivia Owner had actual knowledge of the danger, and
3. Olivia Owner failed to exercise ordinary care to protect Paul Payne from the danger, by both failing to adequately warn Paul Payne of the condition and failing to make that condition reasonably safe.

“Ordinary care,” when used with respect to the conduct of Olivia Owner as an owner of a premises, means that degree of care that would be used by an owner of ordinary prudence under the same or similar circumstances.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 66.14 should be used in cases governed by chapter 95 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code, which applies when a property owner is claimed to be liable for personal injury, death, or property damage to a contractor, a subcontractor, or an employee of a contractor or subcontractor arising from the condition or use of an improvement to real property where the contractor or subcontractor constructs, repairs, renovates, or modifies the improvement. Under the statute, the property owner is not liable unless he controlled the manner in which the work was performed and knew of the harm and failed to adequately warn of it. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 95.003. For discussion of the scope of chapter 95, see Ineos USA, L.L.C. v. Elmgren, No. 14-0507, 2016 WL 3382144 (Tex. Jan. 12, 2016) (chapter 95 does not apply to claims against property owner’s employee acting as owner’s agent, but does apply to claims against property owner based on theory of respondeat superior for negligence of property owner’s employee); and Abutahoun v. Dow Chemical Co., 463 S.W.3d 42 (Tex. 2015) (chapter 95 applies to all negligence claims that arise from either premises defect or negligent activity of a property owner or its employees).

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 66.1.

Accompanying question. Predicate questions submitting other conditions necessary to incur liability under the statute may also be required. For example, fact questions may exist about whether the real property was used primarily for commercial or business purposes or whether the occurrence or injury arose from an improvement to the property that was constructed, repaired, renovated, or modified by the contractor.

Substitute particular work. Terms describing the particular work alleged to have caused the injury or produced the defect should be substituted for the italicized phrase in the charge.

Substitute particular condition. If it is agreed that the case involves only one condition, the Committee recommends that the particular condition (e.g., a hole in the roof) be substituted for the phrase the condition.

PJC 70.1 Producing Cause

“Producing cause” means a cause that was a substantial factor in bringing about the [injury] [occurrence], and without which the [injury] [occurrence] would not have occurred. There may be more than one producing cause.

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 70.1 provides a definition of “producing cause, which is generally the proper causation standard for a strict liability submission. See Rourke v. Garza, 530 S.W.2d 794, 801 (Tex. 1975).

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 71.1.

Source of definition. See Ford Motor Co. v. Ledesma, 242 S.W.3d 32, 46 (Tex. 2007).

Causation in toxic tort cases. If the evidence shows that exposure to a toxic product was a cause of the injury or death in question, the plaintiff must prove that the exposure was a substantial factor in causing the injury or death but is not required to prove that the injury or death would not have occurred but for such exposure. See Bostic v. Georgia-Pacific Corp., 439 S.W.3d 332 (Tex. 2014); Borg-Warner Corp. v. Flores, 232 S.W.3d 765 (Tex. 2007). In such cases, the following definition of ‘producing cause’ should be submitted:

“Producing cause” means a cause that was a substantial factor in bringing about the [injury] [occurrence]. There may be more than one producing cause.

Deletion of “contributing” and “in a natural sequence.” Both ‘contributing’ and ‘in a natural sequence’ are omitted from the definition of “producing cause” above. The supreme court did not retain those words in its analysis. See Ledesma, 242 S.W.3d at 46. However, the court did not criticize either of those concepts, and it may be appropriate to retain one or both of those concepts in an appropriate case.

Caveat—“unavoidably unsafe” products. The Committee expresses no opinion on the applicability of the producing-cause standard to ‘unavoidably unsafe’ products involving a foreseeability element. Courts have recognized that certain products, though manufactured as designed and intended, are “unavoidably unsafe. Manufacturers of such products—e.g. prescription drugs—are generally not liable for resulting harm absent proof that the manufacturer knew or reasonably should have known of the risk of harm at the time of marketing. Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A cmts. j, k; Restatement (Third) of Torts ch. 1 topic 2—Liability Rules Applicable to Special Products, § 6 (“reasonable instructions or warnings regarding foreseeable risks of harm”); cf. Crocker v. Winthrop Laboratories, 514 S.W.2d 429, 433 (Tex. 1974) (drug manufacturer is liable for misrepresentation, regardless of state of medical knowledge, when it ‘positively and specifically represents its product to be free and safe from all dangers and when the treating physician relies upon that representation”); see also Alm v. Aluminum Co. of America, 717 S.W.2d 588, 596 (Tex. 1986) (adequate warning to physician relieves manufacturer of duty to warn consumer-patient of hazards associated with product).

PJC 70.2 Proximate Cause—Products Liability

“Proximate cause” means a cause that was a substantial factor in bringing about an [injury] [occurrence], and without which cause such [injury] [occurrence] would not have occurred. In order to be a proximate cause, the act or omission complained of must be such that a person using ordinary care would have foreseen that the [injury] [occurrence], or some similar [injury] [occurrence], might reasonably result therefrom. There may be more than one proximate cause of an [injury] [occurrence].

COMMENT

Source of definition. This definition of “proximate cause” is based on language from Transcontinental Insurance Co. v. Crump:

[W]e first examine the causation standards for proximate cause and producing cause. The two elements of proximate cause are cause in fact (or substantial factor) and foreseeability. Cause in fact is established when the act or omission was a substantial factor in bringing about the injuries, and without it, the harm would not have occurred. IHS Cedars Treatment Ctr. v. Mason, 143 S.W.3d 794, 798–99 (Tex. 2004). “The approved definition of ‘proximate cause’ in negligence cases and the approved definition of ‘producing cause’ in compensation cases are in substance the same, except that there is added to the definition of proximate cause the element of foreseeableness.” [Texas Indemnity Insurance Co. v. Staggs, 134 S.W.2d 1026, 1028–29 (Tex. 1940).] In other words, the producing cause inquiry is conceptually identical to that of cause in fact.

Transcontinental Insurance Co. v. Crump, 330 S.W.3d 211, 222–23 (Tex. 2010). See also Ford Motor Co. v. Ledesma, 242 S.W.3d 32, 46 (Tex. 2007).

The Crump and Ledesma opinions address the definitions of “producing cause” and “cause in fact.” As of the publication date of this edition, there is no decision that expressly overrules the traditional definition of “proximate cause” below:

“Proximate cause” means that cause which, in a natural and continuous sequence, produces an event, and without which cause such event would not have occurred. In order to be a proximate cause, the act or omission complained of must be such that a person using ordinary care would have foreseen that the event, or some similar event, might reasonably result therefrom. There may be more than one proximate cause of an event.

Former PJC 70.2. This definition was based on the definition approved by the court in Rudes v. Gottschalk, 324 S.W.2d 201, 207 (Tex. 1959), and has been cited in many cases.

When to use. PJC 70.2 should be used in submitting claims for breach of express or implied warranty (see PJC 71.9–71.12).

Causation in toxic tort cases. If the evidence shows that exposure to a toxic product was a cause of the injury or death in question, the plaintiff must prove that the exposure was a substantial factor in causing the injury or death but is not required to prove that the injury or death would not have occurred but for such exposure. See Bostic v. Georgia-Pacific Corp., 439 S.W.3d 332 (Tex. 2014); Borg-Warner Corp. v. Flores, 232 S.W.3d 765 (Tex. 2007). In such cases, the following definition of “proximate cause” should be submitted:

“Proximate cause” means a cause that was a substantial factor in bringing about an [injury] [occurrence]. In order to be a proximate cause, the act or omission complained of must be such that a person using ordinary care would have foreseen that the [injury] [occurrence], or some similar [injury] [occurrence], might reasonably result therefrom. There may be more than one proximate cause of an [injury] [occurrence].

“New and independent cause” or “sole proximate cause.” In an appropriate case, the definition of “new and independent cause” or “sole proximate cause” may be submitted instead of or in addition to PJC 70.2. For definitions of “new and independent cause” and “sole proximate cause,” see PJC 70.3 and 50.5, which may be modified as necessary.

PJC 70.3 New and Independent Cause—Products Liability

“New and independent cause” means the act or omission of a separate and independent agency, not reasonably foreseeable, that destroys the causal connection, if any, between the act or omission inquired about and the occurrence in question and thereby becomes the immediate cause of such occurrence.

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 70.3 should be used in addition to PJC 70.2 if there is evidence that the occurrence was caused by a new and independent cause. See Tarry Warehouse & Storage Co. v. Duvall, 115 S.W.2d 401, 405 (Tex. 1938); Phoenix Refining Co. v. Tips, 81 S.W.2d 60, 61 (Tex. 1935). If there is evidence of a new and independent cause, a refusal to submit this instruction may be reversible error. Bell-Ton Electric Service, Inc. v. Pickle, 915 S.W.2d 480, 481 (Tex. 1996). Conversely, if there is no such evidence, this submission is improper and may be reversible error. Galvan v. Fedder, 678 S.W.2d 596, 598 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1984, no writ).

The Committee expresses no opinion on whether “new and independent cause” applies in a strict tort liability submission involving a producing-cause standard. Compare V. Mueller & Co. v. Corley, 570 S.W.2d 140, 144–45 (Tex. Civ. App.—Houston [1st Dist.] 1978, writ ref’d n.r.e.), with Dover Corp. v. Perez, 587 S.W.2d 761, 765 (Tex. Civ. App.—Corpus Christi 1979, writ ref’d n.r.e.).

Because a new and independent cause is in the nature of an inferential rebuttal, it should be submitted by instruction only. Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. For elements to consider when determining whether a new and independent cause exists, see Columbia Rio Grande Healthcare v. Hawley, 284 S.W.3d 851, 857–59 (Tex. 2009). The “new and independent cause” instruction is not used when the intervening forces are foreseeable and within the scope of risk created by the actor’s conduct. Dew v. Crown Derrick Erectors, Inc., 208 S.W.3d 448, 450–53 (Tex. 2006).

Caveat. The Texas Supreme Court has acknowledged that inferential rebuttals “serve a legitimate purpose. The court also cautioned, however, that multiple inferential rebuttal instructions have “the potential to skew the jury’s analysis.” Dillard v. Texas Electric Cooperative, 157 S.W.3d 429, 433 (Tex. 2005).

PJC 70.4 Sole Cause—Products Liability

There may be more than one cause of an [injury] [occurrence], but if an act or omission of any person not a party to the suit was the “sole cause” of the [injury] [occurrence], then no act, omission, or product of any party could have been a cause of the [injury] [occurrence].

COMMENT

When to use. If “sole cause” is raised by the evidence, PJC 70.4 should be used in lieu of the last sentence of the definition in PJC 70.1. See Dresser Industries v. Lee, 880 S.W.2d 750 (Tex. 1993).

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 71.1.

Caveat. The Texas Supreme Court has acknowledged that inferential rebuttals “serve a legitimate purpose. The court also cautioned, however, that multiple inferential rebuttal instructions have ‘the potential to skew the jury’s analysis. Dillard v. Texas Electric Cooperative, 157 S.W.3d 429, 433 (Tex. 2005).

PJC 70.5 Seller of a Product

QUESTION _____

Was ABC Company engaged in the business of selling table saws?

The “business of selling” means involvement, as a part of its business, in selling, leasing, or otherwise placing in the course of commerce products similar to the product in question by transactions that are essentially commercial in character.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 70.5 provides a preliminary question to establish whether the defendant is one to whom strict liability may apply. Strict tort liability applies to designers, manufacturers, and some sellers of products. McKisson v. Sales Affiliates, Inc., 416 S.W.2d 787 (Tex. 1967); Shamrock Fuel & Oil Sales Co. v. Tunks, 416 S.W.2d 779 (Tex. 1967); Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A (1965). The doctrine also applies to the constructors and some sellers of mass-produced homes and used products. See Humber v. Morton, 426 S.W.2d 554 (Tex. 1968); Hovenden v. Tenbush, 529 S.W.2d 302 (Tex. Civ. App.—San Antonio 1975, no writ). It is not necessary, however, that the seller be engaged solely in the business of selling such products. Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A cmt. f.

Liability of nonmanufacturing product sellers. Section 82.003 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code provides that a nonmanufacturing seller of a product is not liable for harm caused by the product unless the claimant proves one or more of the elements set forth in the statute. When a disputed fact question arises about the existence of one or more of these elements, the Committee recommends that the question be submitted to the jury. For example—

Did Sidney Seller participate in the design of [the product]?

Note that this section does not apply to claims arising under chapter 2301 (Sale or Lease of Motor Vehicles) of the Texas Occupations Code. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 82.003.

PJC 70.6 Substantial Change in Condition or Subsequent Alteration by Affirmative Conduct—Instruction

A product is not in a defective condition, thus not unreasonably dangerous when sold, if the unreasonably dangerous condition is solely caused by a substantial change or alteration of the product after it is sold, and but for which unreasonably dangerous condition the [injury] [occurrence] would not have occurred. “Substantial change or alteration” means that the configuration or operational characteristics of the product are changed or altered by affirmative conduct of some person in a manner that the defendant could not have reasonably foreseen would occur in the intended or foreseeable use of the product. Substantial change or alteration does not include reasonably foreseeable wear and tear or deterioration.

COMMENT

When to use. If the elements of substantial change or alteration are raised by the evidence, PJC 70.6 should be included in the charge immediately following the definition of “unreasonably dangerous” (see PJC 71.3 and 71.5). See Federal Pacific Electric Co. v. Woodend, 735 S.W.2d 887, 892 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 1987, no writ). See Woods v. Crane Carrier Co., 693 S.W.2d 377, 380 (Tex. 1985), for a case in which the above instruction was allowed.

Source of instruction. Liability applies only when the product is expected to and does reach the user or consumer without substantial change in the condition in which it was sold. Armstrong Rubber Co. v. Urquidez, 570 S.W.2d 374 (Tex. 1978). An unforeseeable change or alteration in the original condition of the product that makes an otherwise safe product unreasonably dangerous relieves the supplier of liability. Restatement (Third) of Torts: Products Liability § 15 cmt. b (1998); see Ford Motor Co. v. Russell & Smith Ford Co., 474 S.W.2d 549 (Tex. Civ. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1971, no writ). Substantial change or alteration does not include reasonably foreseeable wear and tear or deterioration. See Miller v. Bock Laundry Machine Co., 568 S.W.2d 648 (Tex. 1977).

PJC 70.7 Statute of Repose (Comment)

The Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code establishes a fifteen-year statute of repose for products liability claims, exempting personal injury and wrongful death claims in which the claimant could not have reasonably discovered the injury within the fifteen-year period. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 16.012. If there is a dispute about the date of sale of the product by the defendant, the Committee recommends that the dispute be submitted to the jury.

PJC 71.1 Use of “Injury” or “Occurrence” (Comment)

“Injury” should be used if the issue of the responsibility of more than one person is submitted to the jury under the proportionate responsibility statute. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.001–.017. For suits filed after September 1, 1987, section 33.003 requires a finding of “percentage of responsibility” in pure negligence cases as well as in “mixed” cases involving claims of negligence and strict liability and/or warranty. The statute defines “percentage of responsibility” in terms of “causing or contributing to cause in any way the personal injury, property damage, death, or other harm for which recovery of damages is sought.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.011(4) (emphasis added); Nabors Well Services, Ltd. v. Romero, 456 S.W.3d 553, 563 (Tex. 2015) (holding that the proportionate responsibility statute requires fact finders to consider relevant evidence of a plaintiff’s preoccurrence, injury-causing conduct, overruling prior case law prohibiting evidence of plaintiff’s failure to wear a seatbelt).

A plaintiff’s preoccurrence, injury-causing conduct is distinct from the plaintiff’s postoccurrence failure to mitigate damages, which is submitted as an exclusionary instruction to the damages questions. See PJC 80.9; Nabors, 456 S.W.3d at 564. If a failure-to-mitigate instruction is given in the damages question (see PJC 80.9), and “injury” is used in the liability question, then the jury should be instructed in the liability and the proportionate responsibility questions as follows:

In answering this question, do not consider Paul Payne’s failure, if any, to exercise reasonable care in caring for or treating his injury, if any.

In a case involving a death, the word “death” may be used instead of “injury.”

In cases with no allegations of injury-causing negligence by a plaintiff, it may be appropriate to use ‘occurrence’ in the questions in this chapter. However, the concerns expressed in Nabors should be considered carefully.

PJC 71.2 Submission of Settling Persons, Contribution Defendants, and Responsible Third Parties (Comment)

Settling persons. The proportionate responsibility statute requires the responsibility of a settling person (Sam Settlor) to be determined by the trier of fact. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.003, 33.011. Thus, if the case includes a settling person, that person's name must be included in the basic liability question as well as in the proportionate responsibility question.

Contribution defendants. If there is a contribution defendant (Connie Contributor), that person's name should be included in the basic liability question. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.003, 33.011. 'Contribution defendant' is defined in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.016.

However, a contribution defendant should not be included in the question comparing the responsibility of the plaintiff with that of the other defendants. A separate comparative question is necessary. See PJC 71.14.

Responsible third parties—causes of action accruing on or after September 1, 1995, and causes of action accruing before September 1, 1995, on which suit is filed on or after September 1, 1996, and before July 1, 2003. A 'responsible third party' (Responsible Ray) should be included in the basic liability question only if joined under former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.004 (Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 136, § 1 (S.B. 28), eff. Sept. 1, 1995). A "responsible third party" is defined in former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.011(6) (Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 136, § 1 (S.B. 28), eff. Sept. 1, 1995). If submitted in the basic liability question, a responsible third party should also be submitted in the proportionate responsibility question. Former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.003 (Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 136, § 1 (S.B. 28), eff. Sept. 1, 1995). See PJC 71.13.

Responsible third parties—actions filed on or after July 1, 2003. In 2003 the legislature changed responsible third party practice from one of joinder to one of designation. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.004. At least one Texas court has held that it is "only upon the trial court's granting of a motion for leave to designate a person as a responsible third party that the designation becomes effective. Valverde v. Biela's Glass & Aluminum Products, Inc., 293 S.W.3d 751, 754–55 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2009, pet. denied); see also Ruiz v. Guerra, 293 S.W.3d 706, 714–15 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2009, no pet.). The legislature also expanded the category of responsible third parties. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.004, 33.011(6). 'Responsible third party' means any person who is alleged to have caused or contributed to causing in any way the harm for which recovery of damages is sought, whether by negligent act or omission, by any defective or unreasonably dangerous product, by other conduct or activity that violates an applicable legal standard, or by any combination of these." Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.011(6). Section 33.003(b) provides that a question regarding conduct by any person may not be submitted to the jury without evidence to support the submission. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.003(b).

PJC 71.3 Manufacturing Defect

QUESTION _____

Was there a manufacturing defect in the automobile at the time it left the possession of ABC Company that was a producing cause of the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

A “manufacturing defect” means that the product deviated in its construction or quality from its specifications or planned output in a manner that renders it unreasonably dangerous. An “unreasonably dangerous” product is one that is dangerous to an extent beyond that which would be contemplated by the ordinary user of the product, with the ordinary knowledge common to the community as to the product’s characteristics.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 71.3 is designed to submit a claim that a defective condition in a product rendered it unreasonably dangerous at the time it left the seller’s possession. See Ford Motor Co. v. Ledesma, 242 S.W.3d 32 (Tex. 2007); Lucas v. Texas Industries, 696 S.W.2d 372 (Tex. 1984); Armstrong Rubber Co. v. Urquidez, 570 S.W.2d 374 (Tex. 1978); Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A (1965).

Liability of nonmanufacturing product sellers for actions filed on or after July 1, 2003. For a discussion of the liability of a nonmanufacturing product seller in actions filed on or after July 1, 2003, see PJC 70.5.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 71.1.

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant’s liability may be predicated only on ‘an injury that causes an individual’s death.’ Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospital, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word ‘death’ may be substituted for the word ‘injury’ in the negligence question.

Definition of “producing cause.” The appropriate definition of ‘producing cause’ should accompany PJC 71.3. See PJC 70.1, including the caveat about unavoidably unsafe products.

Proof of defect. The plaintiff must establish that the product was in a defective condition at the time it left the hands of the particular seller. Armstrong Rubber, 570

S.W.2d 374; Otis Elevator Co. v. Bedre, 758 S.W.2d 953, 956 (Tex. App.—Beaumont 1988), rev'd on other grounds, 776 S.W.2d 152 (Tex. 1989); Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A cmt. g. This requirement applies to each person or legal entity in the distributive chain. Duncan v. Cessna Aircraft Co., 665 S.W.2d 414, 432 (Tex. 1984). A manufacturing defect requires proof that the product deviated in its construction or quality from the specifications or planned output in a manner that renders it unreasonably dangerous. See Ledesma, 242 S.W.3d at 41–42.

PJC 71.4 Design Defect

QUESTION _____

Was there a design defect in the automobile at the time it left the possession of ABC Company that was a producing cause of the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

A “design defect” is a condition of the product that renders it unreasonably dangerous as designed, taking into consideration the utility of the product and the risk involved in its use. For a design defect to exist there must have been a safer alternative design.

“Safer alternative design” means a product design other than the one actually used that in reasonable probability—

1. would have prevented or significantly reduced the risk of the [injury] [occurrence] in question without substantially impairing the product’s utility and
2. was economically and technologically feasible at the time the product left the control of ABC Company by the application of existing or reasonably achievable scientific knowledge.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 71.4 may be used in a case in which recovery for a design defect is sought. See Hernandez v. Tokai Corp., 2 S.W.3d 251, 256 n.8 (Tex. 1999).

Proof of defect and “safer alternative design.” In 1993 the legislature amended the Civil Practice and Remedies Code by adding chapter 82, ‘Products Liability.’ PJC 71.4 is based on Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 82.005. In addition to proving the existence of a design defect, applying the risk-versus-utility balancing test adopted in Turner v. General Motors Corp., 584 S.W.2d 844, 851 (Tex. 1979), the claimant must also prove the existence of a ‘safer alternative design,’ as defined in section 82.005. For a discussion of the current design defect proof requirements, see Genie Industries, Inc. v. Matak, 462 S.W.3d 1, 6 (Tex. 2015), and Timpte Industries, Inc. v. Gish, 286 S.W.3d 306, 311 (Tex. 2009).

The plaintiff must establish that the product was in a defective condition at the time it left the hands of the particular defendant. Armstrong Rubber Co. v. Urquidez, 570

S.W.2d 374 (Tex. 1978); Otis Elevator Co. v. Bedre, 758 S.W.2d 953, 956 (Tex. App.—Beaumont 1988), rev'd on other grounds, 776 S.W.2d 152 (Tex. 1989); Restatement (Third) of Torts: Products Liability § 2 cmt. c (1998). This requirement applies to each person or legal entity in the distributive chain. Duncan v. Cessna Aircraft Co., 665 S.W.2d 414, 432 (Tex. 1984).

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 71.1.

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant’s liability may be predicated only on ‘an injury that causes an individual’s death. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospital, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word “death” may be substituted for the word “injury” in the negligence question.

Definition of “producing cause.” The appropriate definition of “producing cause” (see PJC 70.1) should accompany PJC 71.4.

Liability of nonmanufacturing product sellers for actions filed on or after July 1, 2003. For a discussion of the liability of a nonmanufacturing product seller in actions filed on or after July 1, 2003, see PJC 70.5.

Safer alternative design. The duty of a manufacturer respecting safer alternative design was discussed in Uniroyal Goodrich Tire Co. v. Martinez, 977 S.W.2d 328 (Tex. 1998).

Note on submitting strict liability, negligence, and implied warranty theories in same case. When the controlling issues regarding the existence of defect for strict liability, negligence, or implied warranty are functionally identical, ‘a trial court is not required to, and should not, confuse the jury by submitting differently worded questions that call for the same factual finding.’ Hyundai Motor Co. v. Rodriguez, 995 S.W.2d 661, 665–66 (Tex. 1999) (affirming refusal in crashworthiness case to submit question on breach of implied warranty in addition to strict products liability question). Because of the overlapping elements of proof, there is a risk of conflicting answers that will necessitate a new trial. See Ford Motor Co. v. Miles, 141 S.W.3d 309, 315–19 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2004, pet. denied); Otis Spunkmeyer, Inc. v. Blakely, 30 S.W.3d 678, 690 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2000, no pet.); see also Hamus v. Texas Utilities Co., 71 S.W.3d 874, 881 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2002, no pet.) (“Commentators and other courts have also recognized that the duty-to-warn analyses of marketing defect and negligence claims are so similar as to be duplicative.”).

Caveat—government contractors. The U.S. Supreme Court has held that states may not impose liability for design defects in military equipment if (1) the United States has approved ‘reasonably precise specifications, (2) the equipment conformed to those specifications, and (3) the government contractor supplying the equipment warned the United States about dangers in the use of the equipment that were known to the supplier but not to the United States. Boyle v. United Technologies Corp., 487 U.S. 500 (1987).

Rebuttable presumptions for products complying with government standards and products receiving premarket licensing or approval—actions filed on or after July 1, 2003. The Code provides, in certain circumstances, rebuttable presumptions of nonliability for manufacturers and sellers of products complying with government standards and products receiving premarket licensing or approval. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 82.008. Note that the statute sets forth what the plaintiff must establish to rebut the presumption. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 82.008(b). For a discussion of rebuttable presumptions generally, see Combined American Insurance Co. v. Blanton, 353 S.W.2d 847, 849 (Tex. 1962); see also Wright v. Ford Motor Co., 508 F.3d 263, 270–74 (5th Cir. 2007); Texas A&M University v. Chambers, 31 S.W.3d 780, 783–85 (Tex. App.—Austin 2000, pet. denied).

PJC 71.5 Defect in Warnings or Instructions (Marketing Defect)

QUESTION _____

Was there a defect in the [warnings] [instructions] at the time the automobile left the possession of ABC Company that was a producing cause of the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

A “defect in the warnings” means the failure to give adequate warnings of the product’s dangers that were known or by the application of reasonably developed human skill and foresight should have been known and which failure rendered the product unreasonably dangerous as marketed.

A “defect in the instructions” means the failure to give adequate instructions to avoid the product’s dangers that were known or by the application of reasonably developed human skill and foresight should have been known and which failure rendered the product unreasonably dangerous as marketed.

“Adequate” [warnings] [instructions] means [warnings] [instructions] given in a form that could reasonably be expected to catch the attention of a reasonably prudent person in the circumstances of the product’s use; and the content of the [warnings] [instructions] must be comprehensible to the average user and must convey a fair indication of the nature and extent of the danger and how to avoid it to the mind of a reasonably prudent person.

An “unreasonably dangerous” product is one that is dangerous to an extent beyond that which would be contemplated by the ordinary user of the product with the ordinary knowledge common to the community as to the product’s characteristics.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 71.5 should be used if the plaintiff seeks to recover on the theory of marketing defect for the defendant’s failure to warn or failure to adequately warn or instruct for safe use of the product. The duty to warn and instruct for safe use in connection with marketing a product is determined by the dangers inherent in the product or associated with its foreseeable use. Bristol-Myers Co. v. Gonzales, 561 S.W.2d 801, 804 (Tex. 1978); Technical Chemical Co. v. Jacobs, 480 S.W.2d 602, 605

(Tex. 1972). This duty extends beyond the purchaser to the ultimate user. See Coleman v. Cintas Sales Corp., 40 S.W.3d 544, 549 (Tex. App.—San Antonio, 2001, pet. denied). The duty is limited to dangers that are either known or by the application of reasonably developed human skill and foresight should have been known by the defendant when the product was marketed and to uses that are either intended or reasonably foreseeable. See, e.g. Bristol-Myers Co. 561 S.W.2d at 804; Simms v. South-west Texas Methodist Hospital, 535 S.W.2d 192, 198 (Tex. Civ. App.—San Antonio 1976, writ ref'd n.r.e.); Ethicon, Inc. v. Parten, 520 S.W.2d 527, 533 (Tex. Civ. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1975, no writ).

Caveat—“unavoidably unsafe” products. The Committee expresses no opinion on the applicability of the producing-cause standard to ‘unavoidably unsafe’ products involving a foreseeability element. Courts have recognized that certain products, though manufactured as designed and intended, are ‘unavoidably unsafe. Manufacturers of such products—e.g., prescription drugs—are generally not liable for resulting harm absent proof that the manufacturer knew or reasonably should have known of the risk of harm at the time of marketing. Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A cmts. j, k; Restatement (Third) of Torts ch. 1 topic 2—Liability Rules Applicable to Special Products, § 6 (“reasonable instructions or warnings regarding foreseeable risks of harm”); cf. Crocker v. Winthrop Laboratories, 514 S.W.2d 429, 433 (Tex. 1974) (drug manufacturer is liable for misrepresentation, regardless of state of medical knowledge, when it ‘positively and specifically represents its product to be free and safe from all dangers and when the treating physician relies upon that representation’); see also Alm v. Aluminum Co. of America, 717 S.W.2d 588, 596 (Tex. 1986) (adequate warning to physician relieves manufacturer of duty to warn consumer-patient of hazards associated with product).

Liability of a nonmanufacturing product seller for actions filed on or after July 1, 2003. For a discussion of the liability of a nonmanufacturing product seller in actions filed on or after July 1, 2003, see PJC 70.5.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 71.1.

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant’s liability may be predicated only on ‘an injury that causes an individual’s death.’ Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospital, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word ‘death’ may be substituted for the word ‘injury’ in the negligence question.

Definition of “adequate.” A definition of the term ‘adequate’ as applied to warnings or instructions for safe use is appropriate. Regarding that term, see Shop Rite Foods, Inc. v. Upjohn Co., 619 S.W.2d 574 (Tex. Civ. App.—Amarillo 1981, writ ref’d n.r.e.), and Bituminous Casualty Corp. v. Black & Decker Manufacturing Corp., 518 S.W.2d 868 (Tex. Civ. App.—Dallas 1974, writ ref’d n.r.e.). Implicit in the duty to warn and to instruct for proper and safe use is the obligation to keep abreast of scientific knowledge and advances and to provide an adequate warning of dangers that were known or should have been known, based on the latest knowledge and available information. See Bristol-Myers Co. 561 S.W.2d at 804. If the risks and dangers are commonly known, warning generally is not required. Sauder Custom Fabrication, Inc. v. Boyd, 967 S.W.2d 349 (Tex. 1998); Caterpillar, Inc. v. Shears, 911 S.W.2d 379 (Tex. 1995).

Definition of “producing cause.” The appropriate definition of “producing cause” should accompany PJC 71.5. See PJC 70.1, including the caveat about unavoidably unsafe products.

Rebuttable presumption. When a defendant fails to give adequate warnings or instructions, a rebuttable presumption arises that the user would have read and heeded such warnings or instructions. Magro v. Ragsdale Bros., 721 S.W.2d 832, 834 (Tex. 1986). See Dresser Industries v. Lee, 880 S.W.2d 750 (Tex. 1993), for the type of evidence that can overcome the presumption where no warning is given. In General Motors Corp. v. Saenz, 873 S.W.2d 353 (Tex. 1993), the court held that the presumption operates differently in an inadequate-warning case than it does in a failure-to-warn case. In Saenz, the court held that when such warnings or instructions are sufficiently conspicuous, no such presumption arises in the absence of evidence that the plaintiff read the warnings or instructions, even though such warnings or instructions may have been legally inadequate.

Rebuttable presumptions for pharmaceutical products, products complying with government standards, and products receiving premarket licensing or approval—actions filed on or after July 1, 2003. The Code provides, in certain circumstances, a rebuttable presumption of nonliability for manufacturers and sellers of pharmaceutical products, products complying with government standards, and products receiving premarket licensing or approval. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 82.002–.008. Note that the statutes set forth what the plaintiff must establish to rebut the presumption. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 82.007(b), 82.008(b). For a discussion of rebuttable presumptions generally, see Combined American Insurance Co. v. Blanton, 353 S.W.2d 847, 849 (Tex. 1962); see also Wright v. Ford Motor Co., 508 F.3d 263, 270–74 (5th Cir. 2007); Texas A&M University v. Chambers, 31 S.W.3d 780, 783–85 (Tex. App.—Austin 2000, pet. denied).

Learned intermediary. Prescription drugs and certain prescribed medical appliances constitute an exception to the duty to warn the ultimate user. See Air Shields, Inc. v. Spears, 590 S.W.2d 574, 582 (Tex. Civ. App.—Waco 1979, writ ref’d n.r.e.). Generally, a defendant satisfies the duty to adequately warn of dangers and instruct for safe use by furnishing the warnings and instructions to the prescribing physician. The physician, as a learned intermediary, is the person best qualified to make an informed choice after evaluating the benefits of a particular drug against the risk of harm from its use. Gravis v. Parke-Davis & Co. 502 S.W.2d 863, 870 (Tex. Civ. App.—Corpus Christi 1973, writ ref'd n.r.e.). However, if the defendant anticipates that a prescription drug will be dispensed without a physician's intermediate evaluation of the utility of the drug against its potential risk of harm, the warnings or instructions must be calculated to reach the ultimate user or consumer.

PJC 71.6 Misrepresentation (§ 402B)

QUESTION _____

Was there a misrepresentation by ABC Company that was a producing cause of the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

There was a misrepresentation if—

1. ABC Company represented to the public that the Panther automobile possessed the most stable suspension system on the market; and
2. the automobile in question failed to possess the most stable suspension system on the market; and
3. the representation about the stability of the suspension system involved a material fact concerning the character or quality of the automobile in question; and
4. Paul Payne relied on the representation made by ABC Company in purchasing the automobile in question.

A “material fact” is a fact that is important to a normal purchaser by which the purchaser may justifiably be expected to be influenced in making the decision to buy the product.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 71.6 should be used if the plaintiff seeks recovery for personal injuries resulting from misrepresentations made by the seller. See Crocker v. Winthrop Laboratories, 514 S.W.2d 429 (Tex. 1974); Jack Roach-Bissonnet, Inc. v. Puskar, 417 S.W.2d 262, 278 (Tex. 1967); Bristol-Myers Co. v. Gonzales, 548 S.W.2d 416 (Tex. Civ. App.—Corpus Christi 1976), rev'd on other grounds, 561 S.W.2d 801 (Tex. 1978); Ford Motor Co. v. Russell & Smith Ford Co., 474 S.W.2d 549 (Tex. Civ. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1971, no writ); Restatement (Third) of Torts: Products Liability § 9 (1998).

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 71.1.

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant’s liability may be predicated only on ‘an injury that causes an individual’s death. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospi- tal, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word “death” may be substituted for the word ‘injury’ in the negligence question.

If plaintiff is not purchaser. If the plaintiff is not the purchaser, instruction 4 above should be modified to establish whether the purchaser relied on the representation. A finding that either the purchaser relied on the representation in purchasing the product or the plaintiff-user relied on the representation in using the product would support recovery.

Reasonable implication of express representation. If the reasonable implication of an express representation is in issue, instruction 1 should be modified as follows:

1. ABC Company’s representation that the Panther automobile had the most stable suspension system on the market reasonably implied to the ordinary user that the automobile could safely turn a corner at 35 miles per hour; and Learned intermediary. If the product falls within the learned intermediary doctrine, so that the defendant’s duty is only to represent the product correctly to the physician, or if the materiality of the representation has been established as a matter of law, instruction 1 should be modified as follows:

1. ABC Company represented to the medical profession that the drug ‘Good for All Seasons’ would not cause physical dependence; and

Instruction 4 should also be modified:

4. Dr. Jones relied on such representation in prescribing ‘Good for All Seasons’ for use by Paul Payne.

PJC 71.7 Negligence in Products Cases

QUESTION _____

Was ABC Company negligent in [manufacturing] [designing] [warning or instructing regarding use of] the automobile at the time it left ABC Company, and was that negligence, if any, a proximate cause of the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

For ABC Company to have been negligent, there must have been a defect in the [manufacturing] [designing] [warnings or instructions].

“Negligence,” when used with respect to the conduct of ABC Company, means failure to use ordinary care, that is, failing to do that which a company of ordinary prudence would have done under the same or similar circumstances or doing that which a company of ordinary prudence would not have done under the same or similar circumstances.

“Ordinary care” means that degree of care that a company of ordinary prudence would use under the same or similar circumstances.

“Proximate cause” means a cause that was a substantial factor in bringing about an [injury] [occurrence], and without which cause such [injury] [occurrence] would not have occurred. In order to be a proximate cause, the act or omission complained of must be such that a company using ordinary care would have foreseen that the [injury] [occurrence], or some similar [injury] [occurrence], might reasonably result therefrom. There may be more than one proximate cause of an [injury] [occurrence].

[Insert appropriate defect theory—manufacturing, design, or warnings/instructions.]

A “manufacturing defect” means that the product deviated in its construction or quality from its specifications or planned output in a manner that renders it unreasonably dangerous. An “unreasonably dangerous” product is one that is dangerous to an extent beyond that which would be contemplated by the ordinary user of the product, with the ordinary knowledge common to the community as to the product’s characteristics.

[or]

A “design defect” is a condition of the product that renders it unreasonably dangerous as designed, taking into consideration the utility of the product and the risk involved in its use. For a design defect to exist there must have been a safer alternative design.

“Safer alternative design” means a product design other than the one actually used that in reasonable probability—

1. would have prevented or significantly reduced the risk of the [injury] [occurrence] in question without substantially impairing the product’s utility and
2. was economically and technologically feasible at the time the product left the control of ABC Company by the application of existing or reasonably achievable scientific knowledge.

[or]

[or]

A “defect in the instructions” means the failure to give adequate instructions to avoid the product’s dangers that were known or by the application of reasonably developed human skill and foresight should have been known and which failure rendered the product unreasonably dangerous as marketed.

“Adequate” [warnings] [instructions] mean [warnings] [instructions] given in a form that could reasonably be expected to catch the attention of a reasonably prudent person in the circumstances of the product’s use; and the content of the [warnings] [instructions] must be comprehensible to the average user and must convey a fair indication of the nature and extent of the danger and how to avoid it to the mind of a reasonably prudent person.

An “unreasonably dangerous” product is one that is dangerous to an extent beyond that which would be contemplated by the ordinary user of the product with the ordinary knowledge common to the community as to the product’s characteristics.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 71.7 may be used to submit a negligence theory to the jury in a products liability case. A negligence theory may be premised on negligent manufacturing, negligent design, or negligent marketing (i.e., warnings or instructions). See, e.g. Humble Sand & Gravel, Inc. v. Gomez, 146 S.W.3d 170, 181 (Tex. 2004) (negligent marketing); American Tobacco Co. Inc. v. Grinnell, 951 S.W.2d 420, 437 (Tex. 1997) (negligent manufacture); Gonzales v. Caterpillar Tractor Co., 571 S.W.2d 867, 871 (Tex. 1978) (negligent design). Although the care taken by the manufacturer of a product is not a consideration in strict liability, it is “the ultimate question in a negligence action.” Gonzales, 571 S.W.2d at 871. Both strict liability and negligence require proof that the injury resulted from a defect in the product. See Toshiba International Corp. v. Henry, 152 S.W.3d 774, 784–85 (Tex. App.—Texarkana 2004, no pet.) (before negligence theory can be used in products case, there must be proof of defect in product); Ford Motor Co. v. Miles, 141 S.W.3d 309, 315 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2004, pet. denied) (whether plaintiff seeks recovery because of negligence or strict liability, he must prove injury resulted from product defect); Simms v. Southwest Texas Methodist Hospital, 535 S.W.2d 192, 197 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1976, writ ref’d n.r.e.) (whether plaintiff sought recovery because of negligence, breach of warranty, or strict liability, she had to prove injury resulted from defect in product). The definitions of manufacturing, design, and marketing defect in PJC 71.3, 71.4, and 71.5 should be incorporated in the submission depending on the defect theory. In a negligent design case, the instruction and definition of “safer alternative design” should also be submitted as shown in PJC 71.4. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 82.001, 82.005.

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant’s liability may be predicated only on “an injury that causes an individual’s death.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospital, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word ‘death’ may be substituted for the word “injury” in the negligence question.

Caveat—“unavoidably unsafe” products. The Committee expresses no opinion on the applicability of the producing-cause standard to “unavoidably unsafe” products involving a foreseeability element. Courts have recognized that certain products, though manufactured as designed and intended, are ‘unavoidably unsafe. Manufacturers of such products—e.g., prescription drugs—are generally not liable for resulting harm absent proof that the manufacturer knew or reasonably should have known of the risk of harm at the time of marketing. Restatement (Second) of Torts § 402A cmts. j, k; Restatement (Third) of Torts ch. 1 topic 2—Liability Rules Applicable to Special Products, § 6 (“reasonable instructions or warnings regarding foreseeable risks of harm”); cf. Crocker v. Winthrop Laboratories, 514 S.W.2d 429, 433 (Tex. 1974) (drug manufacturer is liable for misrepresentation, regardless of state of medical knowledge, when it “positively and specifically represents its product to be free and safe from all dangers and when the treating physician relies upon that representation”); see also Alm v. Aluminum Co. of America, 717 S.W.2d 588, 596 (Tex. 1986) (adequate warning to physician relieves manufacturer of duty to warn consumer-patient of hazards associated with product).

Note on submitting strict liability, negligence, and implied warranty theories in same case. When the controlling issues regarding the existence of defect for strict liability, negligence, or implied warranty are functionally identical, ‘a trial court is not required to, and should not, confuse the jury by submitting differently worded questions that call for the same factual finding.’ Hyundai Motor Co. v. Rodriguez, 995 S.W.2d 661, 665–66 (Tex. 1999) (affirming refusal in crashworthiness case to submit question on breach of implied warranty in addition to strict products liability question). Because of the overlapping elements of proof, there is a risk of conflicting answers that will necessitate a new trial. See Miles, 141 S.W.3d at 315–19; Otis Spunkmeyer, Inc. v. Blakely, 30 S.W.3d 678, 690 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2000, no pet.); see also Hanus v. Texas Utilities Co. 71 S.W.3d 874, 881 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2002, no pet.) (“Commentators and other courts have also recognized that the duty-to-warn analyses of marketing defect and negligence claims are so similar as to be duplicative.”).

PJC 71.8 Negligent Undertaking

QUESTION _____

Did the negligence, if any, of those named below proximately cause the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

Don Davis was negligent if—

1. Don Davis undertook to perform services that he knew or should have known were necessary for Paul Payne's protection, and
2. Don Davis failed to exercise reasonable care in performing those services, and
3. either [Paul Payne] relied on Don Davis's performance or Don Davis's performance increased Paul Payne's risk of harm.

Answer “Yes” or “No” for each of the following:

1. Don Davis _____
2. Paul Payne _____
3. Sam Settlor _____
4. Responsible Ray _____
5. Connie Contributor _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 71.8 should be used if the plaintiff seeks recovery for damages resulting from a negligent undertaking. See Nall v. Plunkett, 404 S.W.3d 552, 555–56 (Tex. 2013); Torrington Co. v. Stutzman, 46 S.W.3d 829, 838 (Tex. 2000); Restatement (Second) of Torts §§ 323, 324A (1965). The Committee expresses no opinion about how the elements above should be modified if the negligent undertaking does not involve safety-related services.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 71.1.

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant’s liability may be predicated only on ‘an injury that causes an individual’s death. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospital, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word ‘death’ may be substituted for the word ‘injury’ in the negligence question.

Caveat to element 3. There are two types of negligent undertaking, which will dictate whether to use the name of the plaintiff or of someone else in element 3. The first type is the rendition of services to the plaintiff, in which event an element of the tort is reliance by (or alternatively increased risk to) the plaintiff to whom services are rendered, as set forth in Restatement (Second) of Torts § 323. See Colonial Savings Ass'n v. Taylor, 544 S.W.2d 116, 120 (Tex. 1976) (lienholder not liable in its undertaking unless plaintiff learned of and relied on the undertaking); Entex v. Gonzalez, 94 S.W.3d 1, 9–10 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 2002, pet. denied) (requiring proof of actual reliance in § 323 case). The second type is the rendition of services to another, which the defendant should recognize as necessary for the protection of a third person, as in Restatement (Second) of Torts § 324A. See Johnson v. Abbe Engineering Co., 749 F.2d 1131, 1133 (5th Cir. 1984) (applying Texas law and holding that both subsidiary to whom undertaking duty owed and its employees who would benefit by the safety checks relied on the undertaking). This is the situation in Torrington, 46 S.W.3d 829. Torrington agreed to render the services to Bell. The third party to be protected included the U.S. Navy as a whole and any passengers in the helicopters, such as the plaintiffs:

Thus, the jury should have been instructed that Torrington was negligent only if (1) Torrington undertook to perform services that it knew or should have known were necessary for the plaintiffs' protection, (2) Torrington failed to exercise reasonable care in performing those services, and either (3) the Navy relied upon Torrington's performance, or (4) Torrington's performance increased the plaintiffs' risk of harm.

Torrington, 46 S.W.3d at 838. As made clear by § 324A, an element of that tort is reliance by either the party to whom services were rendered or the third party to be protected. Depending on the undertaking, element 3 of the above instruction should either refer to the plaintiff, Paul Payne (§ 323 undertaking), or to the third party (§ 324A undertaking).

QUESTION _____

Was the [good or product] supplied by ABC Company unfit for the ordinary purposes for which such [goods or products] are used because of a defect, and, if so, was such unfit condition a proximate cause of the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

A “defect” means a condition of the [good or product] that renders it unfit for the ordinary purposes for which such [goods or products] are used because of a lack of something necessary for adequacy.

For a defect in the design of the [good or product] to exist, there must have been a safer alternative design.

“Safer alternative design” means a design other than the one actually used that in reasonable probability—

1. would have prevented or significantly reduced the risk of the [injury] [occurrence] in question without substantially impairing the utility of the [good or product] and

2. was economically and technologically feasible at the time the [good or product] left the control of ABC Company by the application of existing or reasonably achievable scientific knowledge.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 71.9 may be used to submit a claim of a breach of implied warranty of merchantability in a products liability case under Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 2.314(b)(3) when the defect alleged is a design defect. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 82.001, 82.005; Hyundai Motor Co. v. Rodriguez, 995 S.W.2d 661, 664 n.14 (Tex. 1999). Except for the additional instruction on and definition of safer alternative design (see Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 82.005), this question is based on the approved question in Plas-Tex, Inc. v. U.S. Steel Corp. 772 S.W.2d 442, 444 n.4 (Tex. 1989) (proof of defect required in action for breach of warranty of merchantability under section 2.314(b)(3)).

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 71.1.

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant’s liability may be predicated only on ‘an injury that causes an individual’s death.’ Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospital, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word “death” may be substituted for the word “injury” in the negligence question.

Caveat. Note that PJC 71.9 is applicable only to cases brought under Tex. UCC § 2.314(b)(3). See Plas-Tex, Inc., 772 S.W.2d at 445 n.4. For cases involving other types of breach of implied warranty, including other types of breach of warranty of merchantability (see Tex. UCC § 2.314(b)(1), (2), (4), (6)), see PJC 71.10 and 71.11. The Committee expresses no opinion on the applicability of the above definition in a case in which the goods are claimed to be unfit, not because of a lack of something, but because they contain more than is desired—for example, a one-ounce weight that actually is two ounces.

Personal injury claims may be brought under Texas UCC. Claims for personal injury are recoverable under the Texas UCC. Garcia v. Texas Instruments, 610 S.W.2d 456, 462–63 (Tex. 1980). Personal injury cases may also be brought under the Deceptive Trade Practices–Consumer Protection Act, Tex. Bus. & Com. Code §§ 17.41–.63. For sample questions in a DTPA case, see the current edition of State Bar of Texas, Texas Pattern Jury Charges—Business, Consumer, Insurance & Employment.

Proximate cause standard. Unlike a cause of action based on strict tort liability, an action based on breach of implied warranty under the Texas UCC requires a finding of “proximate” rather than “producing” cause. See Tex. UCC § 2.715 (consequential damages include ‘injury to person or property proximately resulting from any breach of warranty’) (emphasis added); Signal Oil & Gas Co. v. Universal Oil Products, 572 S.W.2d 320, 328 (Tex. 1978). For a definition of “proximate cause,” see PJC 70.2.

Limitations. A cause of action for personal injury based on a breach of implied warranty has been held to be governed by Tex. UCC § 2.725. Weeks v. J.I. Case Co., 694 S.W.2d 634 (Tex. App.—Texarkana 1985, writ ref’d n.r.e.); Fitzgerald v. Caterpillar Tractor Co., 683 S.W.2d 162 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 1985, writ ref’d n.r.e.). Section 2.725 sets out a four-year statute of limitations and states that ‘a cause of action accrues when the breach occurs, regardless of the aggrieved party’s lack of knowledge of the breach.’ Tex. UCC § 2.725(b); see also Garcia, 610 S.W.2d 456, 463 (cause of action for breach of warranty accrues on date of tender of delivery of product).

Other defenses. Other defenses may also apply in breach-of-warranty cases. See Tex. UCC § 2.605 (waiver of buyer’s objections by failure to particularize), § 2.607 (effect of acceptance, notice of breach), § 2.719 (contractual modification or limitation of remedy). The seller must also be a ‘merchant’ as defined in Tex. UCC § 2.104(a). See Nelson v. Union Equity Co-operative Exchange, 536 S.W.2d 635, 641 (Tex. Civ.

App.—Fort Worth 1976), aff'd on other grounds, 548 S.W.2d 352 (Tex. 1977) (whether seller is “merchant” is jury question).

Implied warranties may be disclaimed. Both the implied warranty of merchantability, Tex. UCC § 2.314, and the implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose, Tex. UCC § 2.315, may be excluded or modified under certain conditions. See Tex. UCC § 2.316; Nobility Homes of Texas, Inc. v. Shivers, 557 S.W.2d 77, 82–83 (Tex. 1977).

Note on submitting strict liability, negligence, and implied warranty theories in same case. When the controlling issues regarding the existence of defect for strict liability, negligence, or implied warranty are functionally identical, ‘a trial court is not required to, and should not, confuse the jury by submitting differently worded questions that call for the same factual finding. Hyundai, 995 S.W.2d at 665–66 (affirming refusal in crashworthiness case to submit question on breach of implied warranty in addition to strict products liability question). Because of the overlapping elements of proof, there is a risk of conflicting answers that will necessitate a new trial. See Ford Motor Co. v. Miles, 141 S.W.3d 309, 315–19 (Tex. PJC 71.10 Breach of Implied Warranty of Merchantability
(Tex. UCC § 2.314(b)(1), (2), (4), (6))

QUESTION _____

Was there a breach of the implied warranty of merchantability, and, if so, was such breach a proximate cause of the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

A warranty that the goods shall be merchantable is implied in a contract for their sale if the seller is a merchant with respect to goods of that kind.

There is a breach of an implied warranty of merchantability if the goods in question fail to at least—

1. pass without objection in the trade under the contract description; and
2. in the case of fungible goods, be of a fair average quality within the description; and
3. run, within the variations permitted by agreement, of even kind, quality, and quantity within each unit and among all units involved; and
4. conform to the promises or affirmations of fact made on the container or label, if any.

PJC 71.11 Breach of Implied Warranty of Fitness for a Particular Purpose (Tex. UCC § 2.315)

QUESTION _____

Was there a breach of an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose, and, if so, was such breach a proximate cause of the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

A warranty that the goods are fit for a particular purpose is implied if at the time of contracting—

1. the seller had reason to know the particular purpose for which the goods are required; and
2. the seller had reason to know that the buyer was relying on the seller's skill and judgment to select or furnish suitable goods.

There is a breach of an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose if at the time of sale the goods supplied by the seller are unfit for the particular purpose for which the goods were purchased.

Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 82.005; see also Hyundai Motor Co. v. Rodriguez, 995 S.W.2d 661, 664 n.14 (Tex. 1999).

Use of "injury" or "occurrence." See PJC 71.1.

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant’s liability may be predicated only on ‘an injury that causes an individual’s death. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospital, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word “death” may be substituted for the word “injury” in the negligence question.

“Of fitness for a particular purpose.” If desired, the phrase ‘of fitness for a particular purpose’ may be deleted.

Proximate cause standard. Unlike a cause of action based on strict tort liability, an action based on breach of implied warranty under the Texas UCC requires a finding of “proximate” rather than “producing” cause. See Tex. UCC § 2.715 (consequential damages include “injury to person or property proximately resulting from any breach of warranty”) (emphasis added); Signal Oil & Gas Co. v. Universal Oil Products, 572 S.W.2d 320, 328 (Tex. 1978). For a definition of “proximate cause,” see PJC 70.2.

Limitations. A cause of action for personal injury based on a breach of implied warranty has been held to be governed by Tex. UCC § 2.725. Weeks v. J.I. Case Co., 694 S.W.2d 634 (Tex. App.—Texarkana 1985, writ ref’d n.r.e.); Fitzgerald v. Caterpillar Tractor Co., 683 S.W.2d 162 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 1985, writ ref’d n.r.e.). Section 2.725 sets out a four-year statute of limitations and states that “a cause of action accrues when the breach occurs, regardless of the aggrieved party’s lack of knowledge of the breach.” Tex. UCC § 2.725(b); see also Garcia, 610 S.W.2d 456, 463 (cause of action for breach of warranty accrues on date of tender of delivery of product).

Other defenses. Other defenses may also apply in breach-of-warranty cases. See Tex. UCC § 2.605 (waiver of buyer’s objections by failure to particularize), § 2.607 (effect of acceptance, notice of breach), § 2.719 (contractual modification or limitation of remedy). The seller must also be a ‘merchant’ as defined in Tex. UCC § 2.604(a). See Nelson v. Union Equity Co-operative Exchange, 536 S.W.2d 635, 641 (Tex. Civ. App.—Fort Worth 1976), aff’d on other grounds, 548 S.W.2d 352 (Tex. 1977) (whether seller is ‘merchant’ is jury question).

Implied warranties may be disclaimed. Both the implied warranty of merchantability, Tex. UCC § 2.314, and the implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose, Tex. UCC § 2.315, may be excluded or modified under certain conditions. See Tex. UCC § 2.316; Nobility Homes of Texas, Inc. v. Shivers, 557 S.W.2d 77, 82 (Tex. 1977).

Note on submitting strict liability, negligence, and implied warranty theories in same case. When the controlling issues regarding the existence of defect for strict liability, negligence, or implied warranty are functionally identical, ‘a trial court is not required to, and should not, confuse the jury by submitting differently worded questions that call for the same factual finding. Hyundai, 995 S.W.2d at 665–66 (affirming refusal in crashworthiness case to submit question on breach of implied warranty in addition to strict products liability question). Because of the overlapping elements of proof, there is a risk of conflicting answers that will necessitate a new trial. See Ford Motor Co. v. Miles, 141 S.W.3d 309, 315–19 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2004, pet. denied); Otis Spunkmeyer, Inc. v. Blakely, 30 S.W.3d 678, 690 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2000, no pet.); see also Hanus v. Texas Utilities Co., 71 S.W.3d 874, 881 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 2002, no pet.) (“Commentators and other courts have also recognized that the duty-to-warn analyses of marketing defect and negligence claims are so similar as to be duplicative.”).

PJC 71.12 Breach of Express Warranty (Tex. UCC § 2.313)

QUESTION _____

Did the power brakes fail to function normally with the engine not running, and, if so, was such failure a proximate cause of the [injury] [occurrence] in question?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 71.12 may be used to submit a claim for breach of express warranty based on the provisions of Tex. Bus. & Com. Code § 2.313. Claims for personal injury are recoverable under the Texas Business and Commerce Code. Garcia v. Texas Instruments, 610 S.W.2d 456 (Tex. 1980). Personal injury cases may also be brought under the Deceptive Trade Practices—Consumer Protection Act, Tex. Bus. & Com. Code §§ 17.41–.63. For sample questions in a DTPA case, see the current edition of State Bar of Texas, Texas Pattern Jury Charges—Business, Consumer, Insurance & Employment.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 71.1.

Substitution of “death.” Under the Texas wrongful death statute, a defendant’s liability may be predicated only on “an injury that causes an individual’s death.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.002(b); see also Kramer v. Lewisville Memorial Hospital, 858 S.W.2d 397, 404 (Tex. 1993). Therefore, in a case involving a claim for wrongful death, the word “death” may be substituted for the word “injury” in the negligence question.

Modify if dispute about scope or status. PJC 71.12 assumes there is no fact dispute about the existence and scope of the warranty or its status as a part of the basis of the bargain. If there is such a dispute, one or both of the following questions should be submitted first, and the above question would then follow as Question 2 or 3.

QUESTION _____

Did Panther Manufacturing Company represent to Paul Payne that the power brakes of the Panther automobile would function normally with the engine not running?

QUESTION _____

Did the representation that the power brakes of the Panther automobile would function normally with the engine not running become part of the basis of the bargain between Panther Manufacturing Company and Paul Payne for the sale of the automobile?

Requirements to create express warranty. Creation of an express warranty requires that a seller make an affirmation of fact or promise that relates to the goods and becomes a part of the basis of the bargain. Tex. UCC § 2.313(a)(1). The “basis of the bargain” question may be a fact issue constituting an essential element of the express warranty. Indust-Ri-Chem Laboratory v. Par-Pak Co., 602 S.W.2d 282, 289 (Tex. Civ. App.—Dallas 1980, no writ); General Supply & Equipment Co. v. Phillips, 490 S.W.2d 913, 917 (Tex. Civ. App.—Tyler 1972, writ ref’d n.r.e.).

An affirmation merely of the value of the goods or a statement purporting to be merely the seller’s opinion or commendation of the goods does not create an express warranty. Tex. UCC § 2.313(b).

Caveat. If the express warranty arises from a sale by sample under Tex. UCC § 2.313(a)(3) and the seller has introduced proof of the buyer’s lack of reliance on the sample, the seller may be entitled to an instruction that the warranty was not a part of the basis of the bargain if the buyer did not rely on it. See Indust-Ri-Chem Laboratory, 602 S.W.2d at 289 (lack of reliance may inferentially rebut ‘basis of bargain’ element of plaintiff’s recovery).

Proximate cause standard. Unlike a cause of action based on strict tort liability, an action based on breach of express warranty under the Texas UCC requires a finding of ‘proximate’ rather than ‘producing’ cause. See Tex. UCC § 2.715 (consequential damages include ‘injury to person or property proximately resulting from any breach of warranty’) (emphasis added); Signal Oil & Gas Co. v. Universal Oil Products, 572 S.W.2d 320, 328 (Tex. 1978). For a definition of “proximate cause,” see PJC 70.2.

PJC 71.13 Products Liability—Proportionate Responsibility

If you answered “Yes” to Question[s] _____ [applicable liability question(s)] for more than one of those named below, then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

Assign percentages of responsibility only to those you found caused or contributed to cause the [injury] [occurrence]. The percentages you find must total 100 percent. The percentages must be expressed in whole numbers. The percentage of responsibility attributable to a person or product is not necessarily measured by the number of acts, omissions, or product defects found. The percentage attributable to any one need not be the same percentage attributed to that one in answering another question.

QUESTION _____

For each person or product you found caused or contributed to cause the [injury] [occurrence], find the percentage of responsibility attributable to each:

- | | |
|---|-------------|
| 1. Don Davis | _____ % |
| 2. The Panther automobile
[and Panther
Manufacturing Co.] | _____ % |
| 3. Paul Payne | _____ % |
| 4. Sam Settlor | _____ % |
| 5. Responsible Ray | _____ % |
| Total | _____ 100 % |

COMMENT

When to use. Rule 277 requires a percentage question “[i]n any cause in which the jury is required to apportion the loss among the parties.” Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. Thus, PJC 71.13 should be used if the responsibility of more than one person (or product) is submitted to the jury under Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code ch. 33.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 71.1. The term used in PJC 71.13 should match that used in the liability questions.

Product and product defendant submitted jointly. The Committee suggests that the names of both the product and the product defendant be submitted jointly in the comparative question if the charge also submits a question about the product defendant's responsibility, unless the circumstances of the case warrant separate submission. See, e.g. Duncan v. Cessna Aircraft Co., 665 S.W.2d 414, 427 n.8 (Tex. 1984) (separate submission is warranted under prior law regarding cases involving both products liability and negligence).

Blanks for question numbers. The question number to be inserted in the blank space in the conditioning instruction should coincide with that of the underlying liability question.

Compare claimants separately. Each claimant should be submitted separately within the proportionate responsibility question. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.003, 33.011(1). For claimants seeking derivative damages, see PJC 71.15.

Liability of downstream parties. PJC 71.13 does not include questions concerning persons downstream from the product defendant in the distribution of the product, because they are normally treated as one. If the evidence raises independent liability facts against downstream parties, an independent submission concerning each of them is appropriate, accompanied by instructions to limit the percentage finding to such independent liability.

Settling person, contribution defendant, or responsible third party. See PJC 71.2.

Instruction about contribution defendant. If there is a contribution defendant, the following sentence should be added at the end of the instructional paragraph beginning "Assign percentages "

If you answered "Yes" as to Connie Contributor in Question[s] _____ [the liability question(s)], you will be asked to attribute the percentage of responsibility as to Connie Contributor in Question _____ [the proportionate responsibility question].

If there is a dispute about plaintiff's conduct. If the evidence raises questions about the plaintiff's conduct, including some conduct that constituted the mere failure to discover or guard against a product defect, the Committee suggests the addition of the following instruction, if requested, before the paragraph beginning "Assign percentages

With respect to Paul Payne, do not consider any act or omission of Paul Payne that constitutes a mere failure to discover or guard against a product defect.

In such a case, the above instruction should also be added to the general negligence question. See General Motors Corp. v. Sanchez, 997 S.W.2d 584, 587 (Tex. 1999). See also Dresser Industries v. Lee, 880 S.W.2d 750, 755 (Tex. 1993) (failure to request instruction waives error on appeal).

PJC 71.14 Products Liability—Proportionate Responsibility
If Contribution Defendant Is Joined

If you answered “Yes” to Question[s] _____ [applicable liability question(s)] for more than one of the persons named below, then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

Assign percentages of responsibility only to those you found caused or contributed to cause the [injury] [occurrence]. The percentages you find must total 100 percent. The percentages must be expressed in whole numbers. The percentage of responsibility attributable to a party or product is not necessarily measured by the number of acts, omissions, or product defects found. The percentage attributable to any one need not be the same percentage attributed to that one in answering another question.

QUESTION _____

With respect to causing or contributing to cause in any way the [injury] [occurrence] to Paul Payne, find the percentage of responsibility, if any, attributable as between or among—

1. Don Davis	_____	%
2. Connie Contributor	_____	%
Total	_____	100 %

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 71.14 is an additional comparative question designed to follow the comparative question in PJC 71.13 or 71.15. It submits the proportionate responsibility between the defendant and a contribution defendant under Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.016. Section 33.016 specifically requires this second comparative question. This question should not inquire about the responsibility of the claimant.

If there is more than one defendant. If the responsibility of more than one defendant is submitted, separate percentage answers should not be sought for each defendant in PJC 71.14. Rather, the names of all defendants should be grouped on one answer line.

The ratio of responsibility between or among the defendants is fixed by the answer to PJC 71.13 or 71.15, in which a separate answer is obtained for each defendant; seeking a second set of separate answers in PJC 71.14 might result in jury confusion or conflicting answers. The contribution responsibility of each defendant is determined by allocating the percentage attributed to all defendants in answer to PJC 71.14 in proportion to the relative percentages found for each defendant in answer to PJC 71.13 or 71.15.

If there is more than one contribution defendant. If the responsibility of more than one contribution defendant is submitted, a separate percentage answer should be sought for each such contribution defendant.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 71.1. The term used in PJC 71.14 should match that used in the liability questions.

PJC 71.15 Products Liability—Proportionate Responsibility—
Derivative Claimant

If you answered “Yes” to Question[s] _____ [applicable liability question(s)] for more than one of those named below, then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

Assign percentages of responsibility only to those you found caused or contributed to cause the [injury] [occurrence]. The percentages you find must total 100 percent. The percentages must be expressed in whole numbers. The percentage of responsibility attributable to a party or product is not necessarily measured by the number of acts, omissions, or product defects found. The percentage attributable to any one need not be the same percentage attributed to that one in answering another question.

QUESTION _____

For each party or product found by you in your answer[s] to Question[s] _____ [applicable liability question(s)] to have caused the [injury] [occurrence], find the percentage caused by—

- | | |

| 1. Don Davis | _____ % |

COMMENT

When to use. Rule 277 requires a percentage question “[i]n any cause in which the jury is required to apportion the loss among the parties. Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. PJC 71.15 is designed to apportion loss in cases in which there is a derivative claimant—that is, a claimant suing for damages caused by injuries to another. In the example above, Fred Father is the derivative claimant and Mary Minor is the injured child. For PJC 71.15 to apply, the child must not be suing the parent. A separate comparative submission is required for the derivative claim. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 33.003, 33.011(1). PJC 71.15 applies to the derivative claim. For submission of the underlying claim against the defendant, see PJC 71.13.

Separate questions (such as PJC 71.15 and 71.13) are submitted because the responsibility of a derivative claimant (Fred Father) will not bar or diminish the recovery of the primary claimant (Mary Minor). On the other hand, the responsibility of Mary Minor will bar or diminish the recovery of both Mary Minor and Fred Father. For this reason, the percentage of responsibility of both Mary Minor and Fred Father must be considered in determining whether the recovery of Fred Father is barred or diminished.

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 71.1. The term used in PJC 71.15 should match that used in the liability questions.

Liability questions must also include name of derivative claimant. In cases involving a derivative claimant, the basic liability questions must also include the name of the derivative claimant along with that of the primary claimant.

Blanks for question numbers. The question number to be inserted in the blank space in the conditioning instruction should coincide with that of the underlying liability question.

Product and product defendant submitted jointly. The Committee suggests that the names of both the product and the product defendant be submitted jointly in the comparative question if the charge also submits a question about the product defendant’s responsibility, unless the circumstances of the case warrant separate submission. See, e.g. Duncan v. Cessna Aircraft Co., 665 S.W.2d 414, 427 n.8 (Tex. 1984) (separate submission is warranted under prior law regarding cases involving both products liability and negligence).

Liability of downstream parties. PJC 71.15 does not include questions concerning persons downstream from the product defendant in the distribution of the product, because they are normally treated as one. If the evidence raises independent liability facts against downstream parties, an independent submission concerning each of them is appropriate, accompanied by instructions to limit the percentage finding to such independent liability.

Settling person, contribution defendant, or responsible third party. See PJC 71.2.

PJC 72.1 Application—Joint and Several Liability as a Consequence of Certain Penal Code Violations
(Comment)

The Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code provides that if “the defendant, with the specific intent to do harm to others, acted in concert with another person to engage in the conduct described in the following provisions of the Penal Code and in doing so proximately caused the damages legally recoverable by the claimant,” that defendant is jointly and severally liable. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.013(b)(2).

Because there are several different sections of the Penal Code listed in section 33.013(b), it is important to submit questions, instructions, and definitions that are applicable to the particular Penal Code section on which the claimant relies to establish joint and several liability.

Questions under this chapter should come after the proportionate liability question. Moreover, as “proximate cause” is used in all questions under this chapter, that term should be defined in the charge.

PJC 72.2 Question and Instructions—Murder
as a Ground for Joint and Several Liability (Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.013(b)(2)(A))

QUESTION _____

Did Don Davis, with the specific intent to do harm to others, act in concert with [name(s) of person(s) or entity(ies) with whom or with which Don Davis acted in concert] to commit murder that was a proximate cause of the damages, if any, to Paul Payne?

Don Davis acts with specific intent to do harm with respect to the nature of Don Davis's conduct and the result of [name(s) of person(s) or entity(ies) with whom or with which Don Davis acted in concert]'s conduct when it is [name(s) of person(s) or entity(ies) with whom or with which Don Davis acted in concert]'s conscious effort or desire to engage in the conduct for the purpose of doing substantial harm to others.

“Murder” means that a person—

1. intentionally or knowingly causes the death of an individual; or
2. intends to cause serious bodily injury and commits an act clearly dangerous to human life that causes the death of an individual; or
3. commits or attempts to commit a felony, other than manslaughter, and in the course of and in furtherance of the commission or attempt, or in immediate flight from the commission or attempt, he commits or attempts to commit an act clearly dangerous to human life that causes the death of an individual.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 72.2 tracks a provision of the Texas Penal Code (Tex. Penal Code § 19.02), as provided for in the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.013(b)(2)(A).

Name of person or entity. Because the statute requires that Don Davis act in concert with another, the name of each person or entity with whom or with which Don Davis acted in concert must be inserted as set forth in the bracketed portions above.

Accompanying definitions and instructions. Proximate cause should be defined in the charge, as it is incorporated into all questions in this chapter. See PJC 50.1–50.3, 60.1, 65.4, and 70.2. “Person” means an individual, corporation, or association. Tex. Penal Code § 1.07.

In an appropriate case, submit only the specific definitions for the offense that are supported by the evidence.

PJC 72.3 Question and Instructions—Capital Murder
as a Ground for Joint and Several Liability (Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.013(b)(2)(B))

QUESTION _____

Did Don Davis, with the specific intent to do harm to others, act in concert with [name(s) of person(s) or entity(ies) with whom or with which Don Davis acted in concert] to commit capital murder that was a proximate cause of the damages, if any, to Paul Payne?

Don Davis acts with specific intent to do harm with respect to the nature of Don Davis's conduct and the result of [name(s) of person(s) or entity(ies) with whom or with which Don Davis acted in concert]'s conduct when it is [name(s) of person(s) or entity(ies) with whom or with which Don Davis acted in concert]'s conscious effort or desire to engage in the conduct for the purpose of doing substantial harm to others.

“Murder” means that a person—

1. intentionally or knowingly causes the death of an individual; or
2. intends to cause serious bodily injury and commits an act clearly dangerous to human life that causes the death of an individual; or
3. commits or attempts to commit a felony, other than manslaughter, and in the course of and in furtherance of the commission or attempt, or in immediate flight from the commission or attempt, he commits or attempts to commit an act clearly dangerous to human life that causes the death of an individual.

“Capital murder” means—

1. the person murders a peace officer or firefighter who is acting in the lawful discharge of an official duty and who the person knows is a peace officer or firefighter; or
2. the person intentionally commits the murder in the course of committing or attempting to commit kidnapping, burglary, robbery, aggravated sexual assault, arson, obstruction or retaliation, or terroristic threat; or
3. the person commits the murder for remuneration or the promise of remuneration or employs another to commit the murder for remuneration or the promise of remuneration; or

4. the person commits the murder while escaping or attempting to escape from a penal institution; or
5. the person, while incarcerated in a penal institution, murders another—
 - a. who is employed in the operation of the penal institution; or
 - b. with the intent to establish, maintain, or participate in a combination or in the profits of a combination; or
6. the person—
 - a. while incarcerated for an offense under this section or for murder, murders another; or
 - b. while serving a sentence of life imprisonment or a term of ninety-nine years for aggravated kidnapping, aggravated sexual assault, or aggravated robbery, murders another; or
7. the person murders more than one person—
 - a. during the same criminal transaction; or
 - b. during different criminal transactions but the murders are committed pursuant to the same scheme or course of conduct; or
8. the person murders an individual under ten years of age; or
9. the person murders another person in retaliation for or on account of the service or status of the other person as a judge or justice of the supreme court, the court of criminal appeals, a court of appeals, a district court, a criminal district court, a constitutional county court, a statutory county court, a justice court, or a municipal court.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

When to use. PJC 72.3 tracks a provision of the Texas Penal Code (Tex. Penal Code § 19.03), as provided for in the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.013(b)(2)(B).

Name of person or entity. Because the statute requires that Don Davis act in concert with another, the name of each person or entity with whom or with which Don Davis acted in concert must be inserted as set forth in the bracketed portions above.

as a Ground for Joint and Several Liability (Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.013(b)(2)(C))

QUESTION _____

Did Don Davis, with the specific intent to do harm to others, act in concert with [name(s) of person(s) or entity(ies) with whom or with which Don Davis acted in concert] to commit aggravated kidnapping that was a proximate cause of the damages, if any, to Paul Payne?

Don Davis acts with specific intent to do harm with respect to the nature of Don Davis's conduct and the result of [name(s) of person(s) or entity(ies) with whom or with which Don Davis acted in concert]'s conduct when it is [name(s) of person(s) or entity(ies) with whom or with which Don Davis acted in concert]'s conscious effort or desire to engage in the conduct for the purpose of doing substantial harm to others.

“Aggravated kidnapping” means—

1. a person intentionally or knowingly abducts another person with the intent to—

Answer Question _____ [the damages question] if you answered “Yes” for Don Davis to Question _____ [the liability question] and answered:

1. “No” for Paul Payne to Question _____ [the liability question], or
2. 50 percent or less for Paul Payne to Question _____ [the percentage causation question].

Otherwise, do not answer Question _____ [the damages question].

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 80.1 may be used to condition answers to personal injury damages questions on a finding of liability as permitted by Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. See H.E. Butt Grocery Co. v. Bilotto, 985 S.W.2d 22 (Tex. 1998).

Multiple plaintiffs. For multiple plaintiffs, the instruction should precede the cluster of damages questions for each plaintiff.

Multiple defendants. For multiple defendants, Don Davis should be replaced with any of the defendants.

Products liability cases. In products liability causes of action accruing before September 1, 1995, the phrase 50 percent should be replaced with 60 percent.

Compensatory Damages Are Subject to Income Taxes—
Actions Filed on or after September 1, 2003

You are instructed that any monetary recovery for [list each element of economic or noneconomic damages that is subject to taxation] is subject to [federal or state] income taxes. Any recovery for [list each element of economic or noneconomic damages that is not subject to taxation] is not subject to [federal or state] income taxes.

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 80.2 should be submitted with the damages question in any action filed on or after September 1, 2003, in which a claimant seeks recovery for loss of earnings, loss of earning capacity, loss of contributions of a pecuniary value, or loss of inheritance. Whether an element of damages is taxable depends on the substantive tax law pertaining to each cause of action.

PJC 80.3 Personal Injury Damages—Basic Question

QUESTION _____

What sum of money, if paid now in cash, would fairly and reasonably compensate Paul Payne for his injuries, if any, that resulted from the occurrence in question?

Consider the elements of damages listed below and none other. Consider each element separately. Do not award any sum of money on any element if you have otherwise, under some other element, awarded a sum of money for the same loss. That is, do not compensate twice for the same loss, if any. Do not include interest on any amount of damages you find.

Answer separately, in dollars and cents, for damages, if any. Do not reduce the amounts, if any, in your answers because of the negligence, if any, of Paul Payne. Any recovery will be determined by the court when it applies the law to your answers at the time of judgment.

1. Physical pain and mental anguish sustained in the past.

Answer: _____

2. Physical pain and mental anguish that, in reasonable probability, Paul Payne will sustain in the future.

Answer: _____

3. Loss of earning capacity sustained in the past.

Answer: _____

4. Loss of earning capacity that, in reasonable probability, Paul Payne will sustain in the future.

Answer: _____

5. Disfigurement sustained in the past.

6. Disfigurement that, in reasonable probability, Paul Payne will sustain in the future.

Answer: _____

7. Physical impairment sustained in the past.

Answer: _____

8. Physical impairment that, in reasonable probability, Paul Payne will sustain in the future.

Answer: _____

9. Medical care expenses in the past.

Answer: _____

10. Medical care expenses that, in reasonable probability, Paul Payne will incur in the future.

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 80.3 is the basic general damages question to be used in the usual personal injury case. The above question separately submits past and future damages. See Tex. Fin. Code § 304.1045. The “do not compensate twice” instruction is adapted from Golden Eagle Archery, Inc. v. Jackson, 116 S.W.3d 757, 770 (Tex. 2003).

Separate answer for each element. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, the Code requires economic damages to be determined “separately from the amount of other compensatory damages.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(a). Also, separate submission of the damages elements may be called for in the following instances.

Insufficient evidence. Broad-form submission of multiple elements of damages may lead to harmful error if there is a proper objection raising insufficiency of the evidence to support one or more of the elements submitted. Harris County v. Smith, 96 S.W.3d 230 (Tex. 2002). If there is any question about the sufficiency of the evidence to support one or more of the elements, the Committee recommends that the elements of damages be separately submitted to the jury as above.

Community property. Separate answers may also be required if someone other than the injured party is entitled to part of the recovery. For example, certain elements of personal injury damages are community property. Tex. Fam. Code § 3.001(3); see also Graham v. Franco, 488 S.W.2d 390 (Tex. 1972).

Exemplary damages. For actions accruing on or after September 1, 1995, and filed before September 1, 2003, if exemplary damages are sought in addition to compensatory damages, it is necessary to obtain separate answers for economic and non-economic damages. "Economic damages" means "compensatory damages for pecuniary loss; the term does not include exemplary damages or damages for physical pain and mental anguish, loss of consortium, disfigurement, physical impairment, or loss of companionship and society." See Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 19, § 1 (S.B. 25), eff. Sept. 1, 1995.

Broad-form submission of elements. Where separate answers are not required, the following broad-form submission may be appropriate.

QUESTION _____

What sum of money, if paid now in cash, would fairly and reasonably compensate Paul Payne for his injuries, if any, that resulted from the occurrence in question?

Consider the elements of damages listed below and none other. Consider each element separately. Do not award any sum of money on any element if you have otherwise, under some other element, awarded a sum of money for the same loss. That is, do not compensate twice for the same loss, if any. Do not include interest on any amount of damages you find.

1. Physical pain and mental anguish.
2. Loss of earning capacity.
3. Disfigurement.
4. Physical impairment.
5. Medical care expenses.

Do not reduce the amounts, if any, in your answers because of the negligence, if any, of Paul Payne. Any recovery will be determined by the court when it applies the law to your answers at the time of judgment.

Answer in dollars and cents for damages, if any, that—were sustained in the past;

Answer: _____

in reasonable probability will be sustained in the future.

Answer: _____

One element only. Only those elements for which evidence is introduced should be submitted. If only one element is submitted, the question should read—

What sum of money, if paid now in cash, would fairly and reasonably compensate Paul Payne for medical care expenses, if any, resulting from the occurrence in question?

The phrase medical care expenses may be replaced by any applicable element.

No evidence of physical pain. If there is no evidence of physical pain but there is evidence of compensable mental anguish, element 1 should submit only “mental anguish.” See St. Elizabeth Hospital v. Garrard, 730 S.W.2d 649 (Tex. 1987), overruled on other grounds by Boyles v. Kerr, 855 S.W.2d 593, 595–96 (Tex. 1993).

Medical care expenses in actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, recovery of medical or health care expenses is governed by section 41.0105 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code. This statute provides, “In addition to any other limitation under law, recovery of medical or health care expenses incurred is limited to the amount actually paid or incurred by or on behalf of the claimant.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.0105. See also Haygood v. De Escabedo, 356 S.W.3d 390 (Tex. 2011) (interpreting section 41.0105).

Reasonable expenses and necessary medical care. If there is a question whether medical expenses are reasonable or medical care is necessary, the following should be substituted for elements 9 and 10:

9. Reasonable expenses of necessary medical care in the past.

Answer: _____

10. Reasonable expenses of necessary medical care that, in reasonable probability, Paul Payne will incur in the future.

Answer: _____

Medical care expenses may also be replaced by the specific items (e.g., physicians' fees, dental fees, chiropractic fees, hospital bills, medicine expenses, nursing services' fees) raised by the evidence. In an appropriate case, the phrase health care expenses may replace medical care expenses.

Existence of injury. Under Texas & Pacific Railway v. Van Zandt, 317 S.W.2d 528 (Tex. 1958), a separate question was required on the existence of injury if a genuine dispute was raised by the evidence. Now, given the preference for broad-form submission, Lemos v. Montez, 680 S.W.2d 798 (Tex. 1984), the Committee believes that a separate question is no longer necessary. The issue, if raised, would be subsumed under the damages question, which includes the phrase “if any.” Further, if there is doubt whether the injury resulted from the occurrence in question or from another cause, an exclusionary instruction may be appropriate. See PJC 80.7 (for other condition), 80.8 (for preexisting condition), and 80.9 (for failure to mitigate).

Bystander injury. This question may be used to submit a bystander's injury in appropriate cases. But see Edinburg Hospital Authority v. Trevino, 941 S.W.2d 76 (Tex. 1997).

Physical impairment and lost earning capacity. If both physical impairment and lost earning capacity are included, the instruction in the second paragraph of the question will avoid a possible double recovery. See French v. Grigsby, 567 S.W.2d 604, 608 (Tex. Civ. App.—Beaumont), writ ref'd n.r.e. per curiam, 571 S.W.2d 867 (Tex. 1978).

Physical impairment and disfigurement. For the difference between physical impairment and cosmetic disfigurement, see Texas Farm Products v. Leva, 535 S.W.2d 953 (Tex. Civ. App.—Tyler 1976, no writ). See also Golden Eagle Archery, Inc., 116 S.W.3d at 772, for a discussion of physical impairment.

Loss of earning capacity. The proper measure of damages in a personal injury case is loss of earning capacity, rather than loss of earnings in the past. Dallas Railway & Terminal v. Guthrie, 210 S.W.2d 550 (Tex. 1948); T.J. Allen Distributing Co. v. Leatherwood, 648 S.W.2d 773 (Tex. App.—Beaumont 1983, writ ref'd n.r.e.). However, loss of earnings has been allowed in some cases. See Home Interiors & Gifts v. Veliz, 695 S.W.2d 35 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi 1985, writ ref'd n.r.e.); Carr v. Galvan, 650 S.W.2d 864 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1983, writ ref'd n.r.e.). For loss of earning capacity if the plaintiff is self-employed, see King v. Skelly, 452 S.W.2d 691 (Tex. 1970), and Bonney v. San Antonio Transit Co., 325 S.W.2d 117 (Tex. 1959).

Future medical care. If the need for future medical care is established by the evidence, it may be considered even if there is no evidence of the exact dollar amount of the future care. Hughett v. Dwyre, 624 S.W.2d 401 (Tex. App.—Amarillo 1981, writ ref'd n.r.e.); City of Houston v. Moore, 389 S.W.2d 545 (Tex. Civ. App.—Houston 1965, writ ref'd n.r.e.).

Instruction not to reduce amounts because of plaintiff's negligence. If the plaintiff's negligence is also in question, the exclusionary instruction given in this PJC immediately before the answer blanks is proper. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.001, Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. This instruction should be omitted if there is no claim of the plaintiff's negligence. Also, if an exclusionary instruction for failure to mitigate damages is required, this instruction should be modified. See PJC 80.9.

PJC 80.4 Personal Injury Damages—Injury of Spouse

QUESTION _____

What sum of money, if paid now in cash, would fairly and reasonably compensate Mary Payne for injuries, if any, to her husband, Paul Payne, that resulted from the occurrence in question?

Consider the elements of damages listed below and none other. Consider each element separately. Do not award any sum of money on any element if you have otherwise, under some other element, awarded a sum of money for the same loss. That is, do not compensate twice for the same loss, if any. Do not include interest on any amount of damages you find.

Answer separately, in dollars and cents, for damages, if any. Do not reduce the amounts, if any, in your answers because of the negligence, if any, of Paul Payne. Any recovery will be determined by the court when it applies the law to your answers at the time of judgment.

1. Loss of household services sustained in the past.

“Household services” means the performance of household and domestic duties by a spouse to the marriage.

Answer: _____

2. Loss of household services that, in reasonable probability, Mary Payne will sustain in the future.

Answer: _____

3. Loss of consortium sustained in the past.

“Consortium” means the mutual right of the husband and wife to that affection, solace, comfort, companionship, society, assistance, sexual relations, emotional support, love, and felicity necessary to a successful marriage.

Answer: _____

4. Loss of consortium that, in reasonable probability, Mary Payne will sustain in the future.

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 80.4 should be used to submit questions on damages arising out of injury to a party's spouse. The above question separately submits past and future damages. See Tex. Fin. Code § 304.1045. The "do not compensate twice" instruction is adapted from Golden Eagle Archery, Inc. v. Jackson, 116 S.W.3d 757, 770 (Tex. 2003).

Loss of consortium. A spouse has a cause of action for loss of consortium as a result of physical injuries caused to the other spouse by the negligence of a third party. Browning-Ferris Industries, Inc. v. Lieck, 881 S.W.2d 288 (Tex. 1994); Whittlesey v. Miller, 572 S.W.2d 665 (Tex. 1978); see also Reed Tool Co. v. Copelin, 610 S.W.2d 736 (Tex. 1980). An action for loss of consortium in favor of the deprived spouse against an intentional tortfeasor-employer of the impaired spouse has been recognized. Copelin, 610 S.W.2d 736.

Loss of household services. A spouse has a cause of action for loss of services of the other spouse, which is separate from any cause of action for loss of consortium. Whittlesey, 572 S.W.2d at 666 & n.2. 'Services' generally means the performance by a spouse of household and domestic duties. Whittlesey, 572 S.W.2d at 666 n.2. These damages result from a physical injury to the spouse caused by the negligence of a third party. See, e.g. EDCO Production, Inc. v. Hernandez, 794 S.W.2d 69, 77 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1990, writ denied).

Separate property. A recovery for loss of services and loss of consortium is the separate property of the spouse claiming the loss. Whittlesey, 572 S.W.2d at 669.

Derivative damages subject to reduction because of negligence of injured spouse. Because a claim for loss of services and consortium is derived from the injured spouse's claim, the recovery by the noninjured spouse will be reduced by the percentage of contributory negligence that caused the occurrence attributable to the injured spouse. See Copelin, 610 S.W.2d at 738–39.

Separate answer for each element. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, the Code requires economic damages to be determined "separately from the amount of other compensatory damages." Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(a). Also, separate submission of elements may be called for in the following instances.

Insufficient evidence. Broad-form submission of multiple elements of damages may lead to harmful error if there is a proper objection raising insufficiency of the evidence to support one or more of the elements submitted. Harris County v. Smith, 96 S.W.3d 230 (Tex. 2002). If there is any question about the sufficiency of the evidence to support one or more of the elements, the Committee recommends that the elements of damages be separately submitted to the jury as above.

Exemplary damages. For actions accruing on or after September 1, 1995, and filed before September 1, 2003, if exemplary damages are sought in addition to compensatory damages, it is necessary to obtain separate answers for economic and non-economic damages. “Economic damages” means ‘compensatory damages for pecuniary loss; the term does not include exemplary damages or damages for physical pain and mental anguish, loss of consortium, disfigurement, physical impairment, or loss of companionship and society.’ See Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 19, § 1 (S.B. 25), eff. Sept. 1, 1995.

Broad-form submission of elements. For an example of a broad-form submission of damages elements, see PJC 80.3 comment, ‘Broad-form submission of elements.’

Instruction not to reduce amounts because of negligence of injured spouse. If the negligence of the injured spouse is also in question, the exclusionary instruction given in this PJC immediately before the answer blanks is proper. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.001, Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. This instruction should be omitted if there is no claim of the injured spouse’s negligence. Also, if an exclusionary instruction for failure to mitigate damages is required, this instruction should be modified. See PJC 80.9.

When to use. PJC 80.5 should be used to submit questions on damages arising out of injuries to a minor child. The above question separately submits past and future damages. See Tex. Fin. Code § 304.1045. The “do not compensate twice” instruction is adapted from Golden Eagle Archery, Inc. v. Jackson, 116 S.W.3d 757, 770 (Tex. 2003).

Notice of change to prior versions. This question differs from prior versions as well as from most other damages questions in that it does not ask the jury to determine the amount that would ‘compensate Paul Payne, Jr. for his injuries, if any.’ Because PJC 80.5 includes elements of damages (e.g., loss of earning capacity and medical care expenses incurred before the age of majority) that reflect injuries to the minor, but that are not recoverable by the minor, the Committee felt that a revision was necessary to remove any reference to the person being compensated. Rather, a more accurate question, given the potentially differing rights to recovery, is one that asks the jury to value the injuries themselves without regard to who is to be compensated for those injuries.

Question assumes child under eighteen. The form of PJC 80.5 assumes the minor has not reached the age of eighteen years by the time of trial. If he has, elements 4, 5, 11, and 12 must be changed to inquire about (1) damages in the past up to the age of eighteen, (2) damages from the time the minor reaches the age of eighteen to the time of trial, and (3) damages from trial into the future.

Medical care expenses in actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, recovery of medical or health care expenses is governed by section 41.0105 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code. This statute provides, "In addition to any other limitation under law, recovery of medical or health care expenses incurred is limited to the amount actually paid or incurred by or on behalf of the claimant." Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.0105. See also Haygood v. De Escabedo, 356 S.W.3d 390 (Tex. 2011) (interpreting section 41.0105).

Medical expenses, lost earnings recoverable only by parents. Because the right to recover medical costs incurred on behalf of an unemancipated minor and loss of an unemancipated minor's earnings belong to the parents or the minor's estate, the elements of future loss of earning capacity and future medical expenses should be separated further to distinguish between those damages incurred before and after the child reaches the age of eighteen. Tex. Fam. Code § 151.001(5); Sax v. Votteler, 648 S.W.2d 661, 666 (Tex. 1983). See PJC 80.6 for submission of the parents' loss of services of a minor child. There may be times when the minor may recover medical expenses up to age eighteen. See Sax, 648 S.W.2d at 666.

Separate answer for each element. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, the Code requires economic damages to be determined "separately from the amount of other compensatory damages." Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(a). Also, separate submissions of elements may be called for in the following instances.

Insufficient evidence. Broad-form submission of multiple elements of damages may lead to harmful error if there is a proper objection raising insufficiency of the evidence to support one or more of the elements submitted. Harris County v. Smith, 96 S.W.3d 230 (Tex. 2002). If there is any question about the sufficiency of the evidence to support one or more of the elements, the Committee recommends that the elements of damages be separately submitted to the jury as above.

Exemplary damages. For actions accruing on or after September 1, 1995, and filed before September 1, 2003, if exemplary damages are sought in addition to compensatory damages, it is necessary to obtain separate answers for economic and non-economic damages. "Economic damages" means "compensatory damages for pecuniary loss; the term does not include exemplary damages or damages for physical pain and mental anguish, loss of consortium, disfigurement, physical impairment, or loss of companionship and society.” See Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 19, § 1 (S.B. 25), eff. Sept. 1, 1995.

Broad-form submission of elements. For an example of a broad-form submission of damages elements, see PJC 80.3 comment, “Broad-form submission of elements.”

Instruction not to reduce amounts because of plaintiff’s negligence. If the plaintiff’s negligence is also in question, the exclusionary instruction given in this PJC immediately before the elements of damages is proper. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.001, Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. This instruction should be omitted if there is no claim of the plaintiff’s negligence. Also, if an exclusionary instruction for failure to mitigate damages is required, this instruction should be modified. See PJC 80.9.

Scope of comments to PJC 80.5. The comments to PJC 80.5 address only those issues particular to the submission of personal injury damages of a minor child. For additional issues that may arise with respect to the submission of personal injury damages generally, see PJC 80.3.

Minor Child

QUESTION _____

What sum of money, if paid now in cash, would fairly and reasonably compensate Paul Payne and Mary Payne for their loss, if any, of Paul Payne, Jr.’s services, as a result of the occurrence in question?

Do not include interest on any amount of damages you find.

Answer in dollars and cents for damages, if any, that—were sustained in the past;

Answer: _____

in reasonable probability will be sustained in the future until age eighteen.

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 80.6 submits the question for damages for the parents’ loss of services of a minor child. The parents’ right to the child’s services and earnings is codified in Tex. Fam. Code § 151.001(5).

Texas law permits a parent to recover damages for the loss of services of a minor child. The following types of services are examples from the case law: running errands, doing yard work, washing dishes, sweeping floors, mopping, dusting, washing windows, making minor repairs, cutting hay, feeding animals, washing laundry, performing farmwork, shining shoes, ironing clothes, caddying, harvesting watermelons, and generally helping around the house. See, e.g. Green v. Hale, 590 S.W.2d 231, 235–36 (Tex. Civ. App.—Tyler 1979, no writ); Gonzalez v. Hansen, 505 S.W.2d 613, 615 (Tex. Civ. App.—San Antonio 1974, no writ).

‘The monetary value of a child’s lost services is not akin to and cannot be measured with the mathematical precision of lost wages. Pojar v. Cifre, 199 S.W.3d 317, 347 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi 2006, pet. denied). But the plaintiff must present some evidence of the performance and value of lost services and must also establish that the injury at issue precludes performance of such services. Pojar, 199 S.W.3d at 347; Gonzalez, 505 S.W.2d at 615.

See PJC 80.5 for the elements of personal injury damages to a minor child. The above question separately submits past and future damages. See Tex. Fin. Code § 304.1045.

No parents' recovery of "consortium-type" damages in injury cases. The supreme court has declined to recognize a claim for "consortium-type" damages from injury not resulting in death to a minor child. See Roberts v. Williamson, 111 S.W.3d 113, 120 (Tex. 2003).

PJC 80.7 Personal Injury Damages—Exclusionary Instruction for Other Condition

Do not include any amount for any condition that did not result from the occurrence in question.

COMMENT

When to use—after question, before elements of damages. PJC 80.7 should be given if there is evidence that the plaintiff suffers from another physical infirmity not caused or aggravated by the occurrence in question and if the injuries flowing from the prior existing infirmity and those flowing from the defendant's negligence are closely connected and intermingled to the extent that the jury might become confused. See Yellow Cab & Baggage Co. v. Green, 277 S.W.2d 92 (Tex. 1955); Dallas Railway & Terminal v. Ector, 116 S.W.2d 683 (Tex. 1938). A tortfeasor is not liable for damages not of such general character as might reasonably have been anticipated. See Hoke v. Poser, 384 S.W.2d 335 (Tex. 1964); Carey v. Pure Distributing Corp., 124 S.W.2d 847 (Tex. 1939). If applicable, this instruction should be given after the question and before the elements of damages.

When not to use—if liability question uses “injury.” If the liability question is submitted with the term “injury,” PJC 80.7 should not be submitted.

Aggravation of preexisting condition. If there is evidence that the occurrence in question aggravated a preexisting condition, PJC 80.8 should be given in lieu of PJC 80.7.

Substitution of existing before. The phrase existing before may be substituted for the phrase that did not result from if it would add clarity in the individual case.

Addition of “arising after the occurrence in question.” If there is evidence that a condition arose after the original occurrence, the phrase ‘arising after the occurrence in question’ may be added after the words ‘for any condition’ for added clarity.

Alternative exclusionary instruction for specific condition. If it would add clarity in the individual case, an instruction not to consider specific, named, preexisting bodily conditions would be proper, if requested, in lieu of the above instruction. Tyler Mirror & Glass Co. v. Simpkins, 407 S.W.2d 807 (Tex. Civ. App.—Tyler 1966, writ ref'd n.r.e.). Such an instruction should specify all preexisting conditions raised by the evidence.

PJC 80.8 Personal Injury Damages—Exclusionary Instruction for Preexisting Condition That Is Aggravated

Do not include any amount for any condition existing before the occurrence in question, except to the extent, if any, that such other condition was aggravated by any injuries that resulted from the occurrence in question.

COMMENT

When to use—after question, before elements of damages. PJC 80.8 should be given if there is evidence that the plaintiff was suffering from a prior physical infirmity that was aggravated by the occurrence in question. See Dallas Railway & Terminal v. Ector, 116 S.W.2d 683 (Tex. 1938); Armellini Express Lines of Florida v. Ansley, 605 S.W.2d 297 (Tex. Civ. App.—Corpus Christi 1980, writ ref'd n.r.e.), disapproved on other grounds by Pope v. Moore, 711 S.W.2d 622 (Tex. 1986); see also Yellow Cab & Baggage Co. v. Green, 277 S.W.2d 92 (Tex. 1955). If applicable, this instruction should be given after the question and before the elements of damages.

When not to use—if liability question uses “injury.” If the liability question is submitted with the term “injury,” PJC 80.8 should not be submitted.

Discussion of standards. For discussion of the standards governing submission of this instruction, see James B. Sales, Limitations on Recovery of Damages in Personal Injury Actions, 18 S. Tex. L.J. 217, 238–46 (1977).

PJC 80.9 Personal Injury Damages—Exclusionary Instruction for Failure to Mitigate

Do not include any amount for any condition resulting from the failure, if any, of Paul Payne to have acted as a person of ordinary prudence would have done under the same or similar circumstances in caring for and treating his injuries, if any, that resulted from the occurrence in question.

COMMENT

When to use—after question, before elements of damages. PJC 80.9 should be used if there is evidence that the plaintiff, through want of care, aggravated or failed to mitigate the effects of his injuries resulting from the occurrence in question. Moulton v. Alamo Ambulance Service, 414 S.W.2d 444 (Tex. 1967); City of Fort Worth v. Satterwhite, 329 S.W.2d 899 (Tex. Civ. App.—Fort Worth 1959, no writ); cf. Armellini Express Lines of Florida v. Ansley, 605 S.W.2d 297, 309 (Tex. Civ. App.—Corpus Christi 1980, writ ref'd n.r.e.) (evidence failed to show plaintiff was negligent in gaining weight after car accident and did not support submission of instruction for failure to mitigate), disapproved on other grounds by Pope v. Moore, 711 S.W.2d 622 (Tex. 1986).

PJC 80.9 may be used under circumstances such as those described in Moulton— in which there is evidence of negligence on the part of the plaintiff in failing to consult a doctor, in failing to consult a doctor as soon as a reasonable prudent person would, in failing to follow a doctor's advice, or simply in failing properly to care for and treat injuries which do not require the attention of a doctor.

Moulton, 414 S.W.2d at 450. If applicable, the instruction should be given after the question and before the elements of damages.

If liability question uses “injury.” If the liability question is submitted with the term “injury,” the proportionate responsibility question (see, e.g., PJC 51.5) should be modified to instruct the jury not to include failure to mitigate in the percentage of the injury attributable to the plaintiff.

Modify instruction not to reduce amounts because of plaintiff's negligence. If PJC 80.9 is given, the instruction not to reduce amounts because of the negligence of the plaintiff, injured spouse, or decedent, which appears in PJC 80.3–80.5, 80.12, 81.3–81.6, 82.3, 83.3, 83.4, and 84.3, should be modified to read—

Do not reduce the amounts in your answers because of the negligence, if any, that you have attributed to Paul Payne in Questions _____ [the negligence question] and _____ [the percentage causation question]. Any recovery will be determined by the court when it applies the law to your answers at the time of judgment.

Discussion of standards. For discussion of the standards governing submission of this instruction, see James B. Sales, Limitations on Recovery of Damages in Personal Injury Actions, 18 S. Tex. L.J. 217, 246–53 (1977).

PJC 80.10 Personal Injury Damages—Cautionary Instruction
Concerning Damages Limit in Health Care Suit

Do not consider, discuss, or speculate whether any party is or is not subject to any damages limit under applicable law.

COMMENT

When to use. The above instruction is derived from the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code, which requires the following instruction to be given in any action on a health care liability claim: “Do not consider, discuss, nor speculate whether or not liability, if any, on the part of any party is or is not subject to any limit under applicable law.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.303(e). If applicable, this instruction should be given after the question and before the elements of damages. Although PJC 80.10 varies from the statutory language, the Committee believes the former more fully effectuates the intent of the legislation. Moreover, the parties can agree to waive its submission. Tex. R. Civ. P. 279.

Definition of “health care liability claim.” As defined in the Code—

“Health care liability claim” means a cause of action against a health care provider or physician for treatment, lack of treatment, or other claimed departure from accepted standards of medical care or health care or safety or professional or administrative services directly related to health care, which proximately resulted in injury to or death of a claimant, whether the claimant’s claim or cause of action sounds in tort or contract.

Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.001(a)(13).

PJC 80.11 Personal Injury Damages—Child’s Loss of Consortium—Question about Parent’s Injury

If you answered “Yes” to Question[s] _____ [question(s) establishing the liability of one or more defendants], then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

QUESTION _____

Was the physical injury to Paul Payne a serious, permanent, and disabling injury?

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 80.11 is to be used in conjunction with PJC 80.12 to submit a cause of action for loss of parental consortium. See Reagan v. Vaughn, 804 S.W.2d 463 (Tex. 1991). On rehearing, the court addressed the question whether there must be a separate finding on the nature of the injury or whether an instruction would suffice. It held that when the facts are disputed “there must be a threshold finding by the finder of fact that the injury to the parent was a serious, permanent, and disabling injury before the finder of fact determines the consortium damage issue.” Reagan, 804 S.W.2d at 468.

Use of “physical injury.” The term “physical injury” is used because ‘the plaintiff must show that the defendant physically injured the child’s parent in a manner that would subject the defendant to liability.’ Reagan, 804 S.W.2d at 467. The Committee expresses no opinion on whether a nonphysical injury could be “serious, permanent, and disabling.

PJC 80.12 Personal Injury Damages—Child’s Loss of Consortium—Damages Question

If you answered “Yes” to Question _____ [80.11], then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

QUESTION _____

What sum of money, if paid now in cash, would fairly and reasonably compensate Polly Payne for the loss, if any, of parental consortium that resulted from the physical injury to Paul Payne?

“Parental consortium” means the positive benefits flowing from the parent’s love, affection, protection, emotional support, services, companionship, care, and society.

In considering your answer to this question, you may consider only the following factors: the severity of the injury to the parent and its actual effect on the parent-child relationship, the child’s age, the nature of the child’s relationship with the parent, the child’s emotional and physical characteristics, and whether other consortium-giving relationships are available to the child.

Do not include interest on any amount of damages you find. Do not reduce the amounts, if any, in your answer because of the negligence, if any, of Paul Payne. Any recovery will be determined by the court when it applies the law to your answers at the time of judgment.

Answer in dollars and cents for damages, if any, that—were sustained in the past;

Answer: _____

in reasonable probability will be sustained in the future.

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 80.12 should be used in conjunction with PJC 80.11 to submit a cause of action for loss of parental consortium. See Reagan v. Vaughn, 804 S.W.2d 463 (Tex. 1991). The above question separately submits past and future damages. See Tex. Fin. Code § 304.1045.

Definition of “consortium”; factors to consider. The definition of “parental consortium” and the instruction on what factors the jury may consider are from Reagan, 804 S.W.2d at 467. Although the Committee has suggested a limiting instruction, the court left open the possibility of other factors. Depending on the facts of the case, other factors may be added to those listed above, and some of those listed above may be deleted.

Derivative damages subject to reduction because of negligence of injured parent. Because a claim for loss of parental consortium, like that for loss of spousal consortium, is derivative, any percentage of contributory negligence attributable to the parent will reduce the amount of the child’s recovery. Reagan, 804 S.W.2d at 468.

Instruction not to reduce amounts because of negligence of injured parent. If the negligence of the injured parent is also in question, the exclusionary instruction given in this PJC before the answer blanks is proper. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.001, Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. This instruction should be omitted if there is no claim of the injured parent’s negligence. Also, if an exclusionary instruction for failure to mitigate damages is required, this instruction should be modified. See PJC 80.9.

Mental anguish damages not included. A claim for loss of consortium does not include a claim for negligent infliction of mental anguish. In Reagan the court specifically noted that recovery for mental anguish that is not based on the wrongful death statute requires proof that the plaintiff was “among other things, located at or near the scene of the accident, and that the mental anguish resulted from a direct emotional impact upon the plaintiff from the sensory and contemporaneous observance of the incident, as contrasted with learning of the accident from others after the occurrence.” Reagan, 804 S.W.2d at 467. See PJC 80.3 comment, “Bystander injury.”

PJC 81.1 Wrongful Death Damages—Instruction Conditioning Damages Questions on Liability

Answer Question _____ [the damages question] if you answered “Yes” for Don Davis to Question _____ [the liability question] and answered:

1. “No” for Paul Payne to Question _____ [the liability question], or
2. 50 percent or less for Paul Payne to Question _____ [the percentage causation question].

Otherwise, do not answer Question _____ [the damages question].

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 81.1 may be used to condition answers to wrongful death damages questions on a finding of liability as permitted by Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. See H.E. Butt Grocery Co. v. Bilotto, 985 S.W.2d 22 (Tex. 1998).

Multiple plaintiffs. For multiple plaintiffs, the instruction should precede the cluster of damages questions for each plaintiff.

Multiple defendants. For multiple defendants, Don Davis should be replaced with any of the defendants.

Products liability cases. In products liability causes of action accruing before September 1, 1995, the phrase 50 percent should be replaced with 60 percent.

PJC 81.2 Wrongful Death Damages—Instruction on Whether Compensatory Damages Are Subject to Income Taxes—Actions Filed on or after September 1, 2003

You are instructed that any monetary recovery for [list each element of economic or noneconomic damages that is subject to taxation] is subject to [federal or state] income taxes. Any recovery for [list each element of economic or noneconomic damages that is not subject to taxation] is not subject to [federal or state] income taxes.

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 81.2 should be submitted with the damages question in any action filed on or after September 1, 2003, in which a claimant seeks recovery for loss of earnings, loss of earning capacity, loss of contributions of a pecuniary value, or loss of inheritance. Whether an element of damages is taxable depends on the substantive tax law pertaining to each cause of action.

Source of instruction. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 18.091(b).

PJC 81.3 Wrongful Death Damages—Claim of Surviving Spouse

QUESTION _____

What sum of money, if paid now in cash, would fairly and reasonably compensate Mary Payne for her damages, if any, resulting from the death of Paul Payne?

Consider the elements of damages listed below and none other. Consider each element separately. Do not award any sum of money on any element if you have otherwise, under some other element, awarded a sum of money for the same loss. That is, do not compensate twice for the same loss, if any. Do not include interest on any amount of damages you find.

Answer separately, in dollars and cents, for damages, if any. Do not reduce the amounts, if any, in your answers because of the negligence, if any, of Paul Payne. Any recovery will be determined by the court when it applies the law to your answers at the time of judgment.

1. Pecuniary loss sustained in the past.

“Pecuniary loss” means the loss of the care, maintenance, support, services, advice, counsel, and reasonable contributions of a pecuniary value, excluding loss of inheritance, that Mary Payne, in reasonable probability, would have received from Paul Payne had he lived.

Answer: _____

2. Pecuniary loss that, in reasonable probability, will be sustained in the future.

Answer: _____

3. Loss of companionship and society sustained in the past.

“Loss of companionship and society” means the loss of the positive benefits flowing from the love, comfort, companionship, and society that Mary Payne, in reasonable probability, would have received from Paul Payne had he lived.

Answer: _____

4. Loss of companionship and society that, in reasonable probability, will be sustained in the future.

Answer: _____

5. Mental anguish sustained in the past.

“Mental anguish” means the emotional pain, torment, and suffering experienced by Mary Payne because of the death of Paul Payne.

Answer: _____

6. Mental anguish that, in reasonable probability, will be sustained in the future.

Answer: _____

In determining damages for elements 3, 4, 5, and 6, you may consider the relationship between Mary Payne and Paul Payne, their living arrangements, any extended absences from one another, the harmony of their family relations, and their common interests and activities.

7. Loss of inheritance.

“Loss of inheritance” means the loss of the present value of the assets that the deceased, in reasonable probability, would have added to the estate and left at natural death to Mary Payne.

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 81.3 submits the claim of the surviving spouse for the death of his or her spouse in a wrongful death action under Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 71.001–.012. Estate of Clifton v. Southern Pacific Transportation Co., 709 S.W.2d 636 (Tex. 1986); see also Moore v. Lillebo, 722 S.W.2d 683 (Tex. 1986) (definition of “mental anguish” and instruction on mental anguish and loss of companionship and society). The above question separately submits past and future damages. See Tex. Fin. Code § 304.1045. The “do not compensate twice” instruction is adapted from Golden Eagle Archery, Inc. v. Jackson, 116 S.W.3d 757, 770 (Tex. 2003).

Loss of inheritance. Element 7 should be included in the question if there is a claim for loss of inheritance. Yowell v. Piper Aircraft Corp., 703 S.W.2d 630 (Tex. 1986). The definition is substantially as it was stated in Yowell at 633. There may be instances in which additional definitions and instructions are appropriate because, under the laws of intestacy, whether property is left to a surviving spouse could depend on whether the property is separate or community, on whether the property is real or personal, and on which other family members survive the decedent. See comments below.

Loss of community estate. The Committee believes that the rationale of Yowell also supports a recovery for loss of what would have been a surviving spouse's enhanced community estate. Because the survivor's enhanced community-half technically would not have been an inheritance, there is a question whether it is covered by the definition of loss of inheritance. As a practical matter, the Yowell definition of loss of inheritance may adequately embrace loss of an enhanced community-half if it is undisputed that the surviving spouse would have been the beneficiary of all additions to the estate either through inheritance or an enhanced community-half, in which event the dispute would be limited to the amount of the additions.

If there is a dispute whether the surviving spouse would have inherited all the decedent's estate, the Yowell definition may not be adequate to protect the surviving spouse's absolute right to recover for the loss of his or her enhanced community-half. In that event the Committee recommends that the following instruction be inserted between the definition of loss of inheritance and the instruction to answer in dollars and cents:

By operation of law, one-half of a decedent's community-property additions to the estate would be left to a surviving spouse as the surviving spouse's own share of community property. Property that a decedent would have acquired during marriage would be community property except for items acquired by gift or inheritance.

The descriptions of community property are taken from the Family Code. Tex. Fam. Code § 3.002. Of course, appropriate instructions and definitions of this kind may vary depending on the facts of the case.

The roles of a will and the law of intestacy. It would seem that in certain cases the jury could not properly answer the loss-of-inheritance question without information concerning the law of wills and intestate succession. The number of variables makes it virtually impossible to arrive at a standard instruction that takes every aspect of this problem into account.

Alternative terminology. Problems with a complicated submission of the loss-of-inheritance damages element might be avoided by using other terminology. For example, if there is no factual dispute regarding to whom additions to the estate would pass from the deceased, the jury inquiry could be limited to the amount of the additions. If necessary, the laws of inheritance then could be applied to determine the amount of a particular claimant's recovery, with the following definition substituted for element 7:

7. Loss of addition to the estate.

"Loss of addition to the estate" means the loss of the present value of assets that Paul Payne, in reasonable probability, would have added to the estate existing at the end of his natural life.

Prejudgment interest not recoverable on loss of inheritance. Prejudgment interest is not recoverable for element 7, loss of inheritance. Yowell, 703 S.W.2d at 636.

Loss of inheritance and pecuniary loss. If element 7 is not submitted, the phrase excluding loss of inheritance should be omitted from the definition following element 1. See Moore, 722 S.W.2d 683.

Remarriage does not diminish recovery. Evidence of a spouse's ceremonial remarriage is admissible. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.005. However, the economic circumstances of a new marriage are not admissible to diminish damages that are recoverable. See Richardson v. Holmes, 525 S.W.2d 293 (Tex. Civ. App.—Beaumont 1975, writ ref'd n.r.e.). The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit has held that a person is entitled to an instruction that remarriage is not a factor to consider in assessing damages. Conway v. Chemical Leaman Tank Lines, Inc., 525 F.2d 927 (5th Cir. 1976); see also Bailey v. Southern Pacific Transportation Co., 613 F.2d 1385 (5th Cir. 1980).

Separate answer for each element. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, the Code requires economic damages to be determined “separately from the amount of other compensatory damages. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(a). Also, separate submission of the elements may be called for in the following instances.

Insufficient evidence. Broad-form submission of multiple elements of damages may lead to harmful error if there is a proper objection raising insufficiency of the evidence to support one or more of the elements submitted. Harris County v. Smith, 96 S.W.3d 230 (Tex. 2002). If there is any question about the sufficiency of the evidence to support one or more of the elements, the Committee recommends that the elements of damages be separately submitted to the jury as above.

Exemplary damages. For actions accruing on or after September 1, 1995, and filed before September 1, 2003, if exemplary damages are sought in addition to compensatory damages, it is necessary to obtain separate answers for economic and non-economic damages. “Economic damages” means “compensatory damages for pecuniary loss; the term does not include exemplary damages or damages for physical pain and mental anguish, loss of consortium, disfigurement, physical impairment, or loss of companionship and society.” See Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 19, § 1 (S.B. 25), eff. Sept. 1, 1995.

Broad-form submission of elements. When separate answers are not required, the following broad-form question may be appropriate.

QUESTION _____

What sum of money, if paid now in cash, would fairly and reasonably compensate Mary Payne for her damages, if any, resulting from the death of Paul Payne?

Consider the elements of damages listed below and none other. Consider each element separately. Do not award any sum of money on any element if you have otherwise, under some other element, awarded a sum of money for the same loss. That is, do not compensate twice for the same loss, if any. Do not include interest on any amount of damages you find.

Do not reduce the amounts, if any, in your answers because of the negligence, if any, of Paul Payne. Any recovery will be determined by the court when it applies the law to your answers at the time of judgment.

1. Pecuniary loss.

“Pecuniary loss” means the loss of the care, maintenance, support, services, advice, counsel, and reasonable contributions of a pecuniary value, excluding loss of inheritance, that Mary Payne, in reasonable probability, would have received from Paul Payne had he lived.

2. Loss of companionship and society.

“Loss of companionship and society” means the loss of the positive benefits flowing from the love, comfort, companionship, and society that Mary Payne, in reasonable probability, would have received from Paul Payne had he lived.

3. Mental anguish.

“Mental anguish” means the emotional pain, torment, and suffering experienced by Mary Payne because of the death of Paul Payne.

In determining damages for elements 2 and 3, you may consider the relationship between Mary Payne and Paul Payne, their living arrangements, any extended absences from one another, the harmony of their family relations, and their common interests and activities. You are reminded that elements 2 and 3, like the other elements of damages, are separate, and, in awarding damages for one element, you shall not include damages for the other.

Answer, with respect to the elements listed above, in dollars and cents for damages, if any, that—were sustained in the past;

Answer: _____

in reasonable probability will be sustained in the future.

Answer: _____

4. Loss of inheritance.

“Loss of inheritance” means the loss of the present value of the assets that the deceased, in reasonable probability, would have added to the estate and left at natural death to Mary Payne. Answer in dollars and cents for damages, if any.

Answer: _____

Instruction not to reduce amounts because of decedent’s negligence. If the decedent’s negligence is also in question, the exclusionary instruction given in this PJC immediately before the elements of damages is proper. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.001, Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. This instruction should be omitted if there is no claim of the decedent’s negligence. Also, if an exclusionary instruction for failure to mitigate damages is required, this instruction should be modified. See PJC 80.9.

PJC 81.4 Wrongful Death Damages—Claim of Surviving Child

Answer: _____

3. Loss of companionship and society sustained in the past.

Answer: _____

4. Loss of companionship and society that, in reasonable probability, Paul Payne, Jr. will sustain in the future.

Answer: _____

5. Mental anguish sustained in the past.

“Mental anguish” means the emotional pain, torment, and suffering experienced by Paul Payne, Jr. because of the death of Mary Payne.

Answer: _____

6. Mental anguish that, in reasonable probability, Paul Payne, Jr. will sustain in the future.

Answer: _____

In determining damages for elements 3, 4, 5, and 6, you may consider the relationship between Paul Payne, Jr. and Mary Payne, their living arrangements, any extended absences from one another, the harmony of their family relations, and their common interests and activities.

7. Loss of inheritance.

“Loss of inheritance” means the loss of the present value of the assets that the deceased, in reasonable probability, would have added to the estate and left at natural death to Paul Payne, Jr.

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 81.4 submits the claim of a surviving child (adult or minor) for the death of a parent in a wrongful death action under Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 71.001–.012. Moore v. Lillebo, 722 S.W.2d 683 (Tex. 1986); Sanchez v. Schindler, 651 S.W.2d 249 (Tex. 1983). The above question separately submits past and future damages. See Tex. Fin. Code § 304.1045. The ‘do not compensate twice’ instruction is adapted from Golden Eagle Archery, Inc. v. Jackson, 116 S.W.3d 757, 770 (Tex. 2003).

If surviving child born after parent’s death. If the surviving child is born after the parent’s death, the instruction following element 5 should not be given. Also in that case, the phrase ‘for the period of time from his birth to today’ should be added at the end of the phrase ‘sustained in the past’ in the answer form.

Loss of inheritance. Element 7 should be included in the question if there is a claim for loss of inheritance. Yowell v. Piper Aircraft Corp., 703 S.W.2d 630 (Tex. 1986). The definition is substantially as it was stated in Yowell at 633. There may be instances in which additional definitions and instructions are appropriate because, under the laws of intestacy, whether property is left to a surviving child could depend on whether the property is separate or community, on whether the property is real or personal, and on which other family members survive the decedent. See comments below.

Claim of surviving spouse and community property. The Committee believes that the rationale of Yowell may support a recovery for loss of what would have been a surviving spouse's enhanced community estate. Thus, claims by both a child and a surviving spouse may require an instruction to protect the surviving spouse's absolute right to recover for the loss of his or her enhanced community-half. See PJC 81.3 comment, "Loss of community estate."

The roles of a will and the law of intestacy. It would seem that in certain cases the jury could not properly answer the loss-of-inheritance question without information concerning the law of wills and intestate succession. The number of variables makes it virtually impossible to arrive at a standard instruction that takes every aspect of this problem into account.

Alternative terminology. Problems with a complicated submission of the loss-of-inheritance damages element might be avoided by using other terminology. For example, if there is no factual dispute regarding to whom additions to the estate would pass from the deceased, the jury inquiry could be limited to the amount of the additions. If necessary, the laws of inheritance then could be applied to determine the amount of a particular claimant's recovery, with the following definition substituted for element 7:

7. Loss of addition to the estate.

"Loss of addition to the estate" means the loss of the present value of assets that Mary Payne, in reasonable probability, would have added to the estate existing at the end of her natural life.

Prejudgment interest not recoverable on loss of inheritance. Prejudgment interest is not recoverable for element 7, loss of inheritance. Yowell, 703 S.W.2d at 636.

Loss of inheritance and pecuniary loss. If element 7 is not submitted, the phrase excluding loss of inheritance should be omitted from the definition following element 1. See Moore, 722 S.W.2d 683.

Separate answer for each element. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, the Code requires economic damages to be determined 'separately from the amount of other compensatory damages. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(a). Also, separate submission of the damages elements may be called for in the following instances.

Insufficient evidence. Broad-form submission of multiple elements of damages may lead to harmful error if there is a proper objection raising insufficiency of the evidence to support one or more of the elements submitted. Harris County v. Smith, 96 S.W.3d 230 (Tex. 2002). If there is any question about the sufficiency of the evidence to support one or more of the elements, the Committee recommends that the elements of damages be separately submitted to the jury as above.

Exemplary damages. For actions accruing on or after September 1, 1995, and filed before September 1, 2003, if exemplary damages are sought in addition to compensatory damages, it is necessary to obtain separate answers for economic and non-economic damages. “Economic damages” means “compensatory damages for pecuniary loss; the term does not include exemplary damages or damages for physical pain and mental anguish, loss of consortium, disfigurement, physical impairment, or loss of companionship and society.” See Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 19, § 1 (S.B. 25), eff. Sept. 1, 1995.

Broad-form submission of elements. For an example of a broad-form submission of damages elements, see PJC 81.3 comment, ‘Broad-form submission of elements.’

Instruction not to reduce amounts because of decedent’s negligence. If the decedent’s negligence is also in question, the instruction not to reduce amounts because of the decedent’s negligence is proper. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.001, Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. This instruction should be omitted if there is no claim of the decedent’s negligence. Also, if an exclusionary instruction for failure to mitigate damages is required, this instruction should be modified. See PJC 80.9.

PJC 81.7 Wrongful Death Damages—Cautionary Instruction
Concerning Damages Limit in Health Care Suit

Do not consider, discuss, or speculate whether any party is or is not subject to any damages limit under applicable law.

COMMENT

When to use. The above instruction is derived from the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code, which requires the following instruction to be given in any action on a health care liability claim: ‘Do not consider, discuss, nor speculate whether or not liability, if any, on the part of any party is or is not subject to any limit under applicable law.’ Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.303(e). If applicable, this instruction should be given after the question and before the elements of damages. Although PJC 81.7 varies from the statutory language, the Committee believes the former more fully effectuates the intent of the legislation. Moreover, the parties can agree to waive its submission. Tex. R. Civ. P. 279.

Definition of “health care liability claim.” As defined in the Code—

‘Health care liability claim’ means a cause of action against a health care provider or physician for treatment, lack of treatment, or other claimed departure from accepted standards of medical care or health care or safety or professional or administrative services directly related to health care, which proximately results in injury to or death of a claimant, whether the claimant’s claim or cause of action sounds in tort or contract.

PJC 82.1 Survival Damages—Instruction Conditioning Damages Questions on Liability

Answer Question _____ [the damages question] if you answered “Yes” for Don Davis to Question _____ [the liability question] and answered:

1. “No” for Paul Payne to Question _____ [the liability question], or
2. 50 percent or less for Paul Payne to Question _____ [the percentage causation question].

Otherwise, do not answer Question _____ [the damages question].

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 82.1 may be used to condition answers to survival damages questions on a finding of liability as permitted by Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. See H.E. Butt Grocery Co. v. Bilotto, 985 S.W.2d 22 (Tex. 1998).

Multiple plaintiffs. For multiple plaintiffs, the instruction should precede the cluster of damages questions for each plaintiff.

Multiple defendants. For multiple defendants, Don Davis should be replaced with any of the defendants.

Products liability cases. In products liability causes of action accruing before September 1, 1995, the phrase 50 percent should be replaced with 60 percent.

PJC 82.2 Survival Damages—Instruction on Whether Compensatory Damages Are Subject to Income Taxes—
Actions Filed on or after September 1, 2003

You are instructed that any monetary recovery for [list each element of economic or noneconomic damages that is subject to taxation] is subject to [federal or state] income taxes. Any recovery for [list each element of economic or noneconomic damages that is not subject to taxation] is not subject to [federal or state] income taxes.

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 82.2 should be submitted with the damages question in any action filed on or after September 1, 2003, in which a claimant seeks recovery for loss of earnings, loss of earning capacity, loss of contributions of a pecuniary value, or loss of inheritance. Whether an element of damages is taxable depends on the substantive tax law pertaining to each cause of action.

Answer in dollars and cents for damages, if any.

Answer: _____

3. Funeral and burial expenses.

“Funeral and burial expenses” means the reasonable amount of expenses for funeral and burial for Paul Payne reasonably suitable to his station in life.

Answer in dollars and cents for damages, if any.

Answer: _____

Do not reduce the amount, if any, in your answers because of the negligence, if any, of Paul Payne. Any recovery will be determined by the court when it applies the law to your answers at the time of judgment.

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 82.3 submits the damages question for the decedent’s conscious pain and suffering, medical expenses, and/or funeral and burial expenses in a survival action brought under Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.021. See Bedgood v.

Madalin, 600 S.W.2d 773 (Tex. 1980); Missouri Pacific Railroad v. Dawson, 662 S.W.2d 740 (Tex. App.—Corpus Christi 1983, writ ref'd n.r.e.); Mitchell v. Akers, 401 S.W.2d 907 (Tex. Civ. App.—Dallas 1966, writ ref'd n.r.e.).

Elements may be included or omitted. PJC 82.3 is intended to include all elements of damages that accrued to the decedent from the time of injury until death. If there is evidence of any other element, it should be included, and if there is no evidence of any stated element, it should be omitted.

Nature of medical, funeral, and burial claims allowed. Damages claimed for the decedent's medical, funeral, and burial expenses are properly the subject of a survival action brought by the personal representative under Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.021. See Austin Nursing Center, Inc v. Lovato, 171 S.W.3d 845, 849–50 (Tex. 2005); Tarrant County Hospital District v. Jones, 664 S.W.2d 191 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 1984, no writ). However, these damages have also been permitted in a suit for wrongful death under Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 71.001–.012, provided that double recovery is not allowed. Landers, 369 S.W.2d at 35; Murray v. Templeton, 576 S.W.2d 138 (Tex. Civ. App.—Texarkana 1978, no writ). In such instances, element 2 should be reworded to cover only those expenses actually paid or incurred. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.0105. If expenses are contested, the reasonableness of the medical, funeral, and burial expenses must be proved. Folsom Investments, Inc. v. Troutz, 632 S.W.2d 872 (Tex. App.—Fort Worth 1982, writ ref'd n.r.e.). Also, funeral and burial expenses must be “reasonably suitable” to the decedent's ‘station in life.’ See Texas & New Orleans Railroad v. Landrum, 264 S.W.2d 530, 539 (Tex. Civ. App.—Beaumont 1954, writ ref'd n.r.e.).

Medical care expenses in actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, recovery of medical or health care expenses is governed by section 41.0105 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code. This statute provides, ‘In addition to any other limitation under law, recovery of medical or health care expenses incurred is limited to the amount actually paid or incurred by or on behalf of the claimant. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.0105. See also Haygood v. De Escabedo, 356 S.W.3d 390 (Tex. 2011) (interpreting section 41.0105).

Medical care—specific terms. The phrase medical and hospital care in element 2 may be replaced with a list of specific items (e.g., physicians' fees, hospital bills, medicines, nursing services) raised by the evidence.

Separate answer for each element. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, the Code requires economic damages to be determined “separately from the amount of other compensatory damages. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(a). Also, separate submission of the elements may be called for in the following instances.

Insufficient evidence. Broad-form submission of multiple elements of damages may lead to harmful error if there is a proper objection raising insufficiency of the evidence to support one or more of the elements submitted. Harris County v. Smith, 96 S.W.3d 230 (Tex. 2002). If there is any question about the sufficiency of the evidence to support one or more of the elements, the Committee recommends that the elements of damages be separately submitted to the jury as above.

Exemplary damages. For actions accruing on or after September 1, 1995, and filed before September 1, 2003, if exemplary damages are sought in addition to compensatory damages, it is necessary to obtain separate answers for economic and non-economic damages. “Economic damages” means “compensatory damages for pecuniary loss; the term does not include exemplary damages or damages for physical pain and mental anguish, loss of consortium, disfigurement, physical impairment, or loss of companionship and society.” See Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 19, § 1 (S.B. 25), eff. Sept. 1, 1995.

Broad-form submission of elements. When separate answers are not required, the following broad-form submission may be appropriate.

QUESTION _____

What sum of money would have fairly and reasonably compensated Paul Payne for—

1. Pain and mental anguish.

“Pain and mental anguish” means the conscious physical pain and emotional pain, torment, and suffering experienced by Paul Payne before his death as a result of the occurrence in question.

2. Medical expenses.

“Medical expenses” means the reasonable expense of the necessary medical and hospital care received by Paul Payne for treatment of injuries sustained by him as a result of the occurrence in question.

3. Funeral and burial expenses.

“Funeral and burial expenses” means the reasonable amount of expenses for funeral and burial for Paul Payne reasonably suitable to his station in life.

Do not reduce the amount, if any, in your answer because of the negligence, if any, of Paul Payne. Any recovery will be determined by the court when it applies the law to your answers at the time of judgment.

Answer in dollars and cents for damages, if any.

Answer: _____

Instruction not to reduce amounts because of decedent's negligence. If the decedent's negligence is also in question, the exclusionary instruction given in this PJC is proper. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.001, Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. This instruction should be omitted if there is no claim of the decedent's negligence. Also, if an exclusionary instruction for failure to mitigate damages is required, this instruction should be modified. See PJC 80.9.

Prejudgment interest. Prejudgment interest is recoverable on survival damages. Tex. Fin. Code § 304.102.

PJC 82.4 Survival Damages—Cautionary Instruction Concerning Damages Limit in Health Care Suit

Do not consider, discuss, or speculate whether any party is or is not subject to any damages limit under applicable law.

COMMENT

When to use. The above instruction is derived from the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code, which requires the following instruction to be given in any action on a health care liability claim: “Do not consider, discuss, nor speculate whether or not liability, if any, on the part of any party is or is not subject to any limit under applicable law.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.303(e). If applicable, this instruction should be given after the question and before the elements of damages. Although PJC 82.4 varies from the statutory language, the Committee believes the former more fully effectuates the intent of the legislation. Moreover, the parties can agree to waive its submission. Tex. R. Civ. P. 279.

Definition of “health care liability claim.” As defined in the Code—

“Health care liability claim” means a cause of action against a health care provider or physician for treatment, lack of treatment, or other claimed departure from accepted standards of medical care or health care or safety or professional or administrative services directly related to health care, which proximately results in injury to or death of a claimant, whether the claimant’s claim or cause of action sounds in tort or contract.

Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 74.001(a)(13).

PJC 83.1 Property Damages—Instruction Conditioning Damages Questions on Liability

Answer Question _____ [the damages question] if you answered “Yes” for Don Davis to Question _____ [the liability question] and answered:

1. “No” for Paul Payne to Question _____ [the liability question], or
2. 50 percent or less for Paul Payne to Question _____ [the percentage causation question].

Otherwise, do not answer Question _____ [the damages question].

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 83.1 may be used to condition answers to property damages questions on a finding of liability as permitted by Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. See H.E. Butt Grocery Co. v. Bilotto, 985 S.W.2d 22 (Tex. 1998).

Multiple plaintiffs. For multiple plaintiffs, the instruction should precede the cluster of damages questions for each plaintiff.

Multiple defendants. For multiple defendants, Don Davis should be replaced with any of the defendants.

Products liability cases. In products liability causes of action accruing before September 1, 1995, the phrase 50 percent should be replaced with 60 percent.

PJC 83.2 Property Damages—Instruction on Whether Compensatory Damages Are Subject to Income Taxes—
Actions Filed on or after September 1, 2003

You are instructed that any monetary recovery for [list each element of economic or noneconomic damages that is subject to taxation] is subject to [federal or state] income taxes. Any recovery for [list each element of economic or noneconomic damages that is not subject to taxation] is not subject to [federal or state] income taxes.

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 83.2 should be submitted with the damages question in any action filed on or after September 1, 2003, in which a claimant seeks recovery for loss of earnings, loss of earning capacity, loss of contributions of a pecuniary value, or loss of inheritance. Whether an element of damages is taxable depends on the substantive tax law pertaining to each cause of action.

Source of instruction. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 18.091(b).

PJC 83.3 Property Damages—Market Value before and after Occurrence

QUESTION _____

What is the difference in the market value in Clay County, Texas, of the vehicle driven by Paul Payne immediately before and immediately after the occurrence in question?

“Market value” means the amount that would be paid in cash by a willing buyer who desires to buy, but is not required to buy, to a willing seller who desires to sell, but is under no necessity of selling.

Do not reduce the amount, if any, in your answer because of the negligence, if any, of Paul Payne. Any recovery will be determined by the court when it applies the law to your answers at the time of judgment.

Answer in dollars and cents for damages, if any.

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 83.3 submits the measure of damages to personal property based on the difference in market value before and after the occurrence. This is the usual measure for damages to personal property. See Pasadena State Bank v. Isaac, 228 S.W.2d 127 (Tex. 1950).

Name of county. The county referred to should be the county in which the damage occurred. Thomas v. Oldham, 895 S.W.2d 352, 359 (Tex. 1995).

Alternate submission in PJC 83.4. When damaged personal property is susceptible of repair, the owner may elect to recover the reasonable cost of such repairs as are necessary to restore the property to its condition immediately before the accident. Isaac, 228 S.W.2d 127; Merrill v. Tropoli, 414 S.W.2d 474 (Tex. Civ. App.—Waco 1967, no writ). He may also recover the value of the use of the property during the time reasonably required to effect repairs or restoration. Chicago, Rock Island & Gulf Railway v. Zumwalt, 239 S.W. 912 (Tex. Comm’n App. 1922, judgment adopted). See PJC 83.4.

Instruction not to reduce amounts because of plaintiff’s negligence. If the plaintiff’s negligence is also in question, the exclusionary instruction given in this PJC immediately before the answer blank is proper. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.001; Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. This instruction should be omitted if there is no claim of the plaintiff’s negligence.

Prejudgment interest recoverable. Prejudgment interest is recoverable on property damages. Tex. Fin. Code § 304.102.

PJC 83.4 Property Damages—Cost of Repairs and Loss of Use of Vehicle

QUESTION _____

What sum of money, if paid now in cash, would fairly and reasonably compensate Paul Payne for his damages, if any, for the repairs to and loss of use of his vehicle resulting from the occurrence in question?

Consider the elements of damages listed below and none other. Consider each element separately. Do not award any sum of money on any element if you have otherwise, under some other element, awarded a sum of money for the same loss. That is, do not compensate twice for the same loss, if any. Do not include interest on any amount of damages you find.

Do not reduce the amounts, if any, in your answers because of the negligence, if any, of Paul Payne. Any recovery will be determined by the court when it applies the law to your answers at the time of judgment.

1. Cost of repairs.

Consider the reasonable cost in Clay County, Texas, to restore the vehicle to the condition it was in immediately before the occurrence in question.

Answer in dollars and cents for damages, if any.

Answer: _____

2. Loss of use of vehicle.

Consider the reasonable value of the use of a vehicle in the same class as the vehicle in question for the period of time required to repair the damage, if any, caused by the occurrence in question.

Answer in dollars and cents for damages, if any.

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 83.4 is an alternative to PJC 83.3. It submits a measure of personal property damages based on the cost of repairs and the value of the lost use. When damaged personal property is susceptible of repair, the owner may elect to recover the reasonable cost of such repairs as are necessary to restore the property to its condition immediately before the accident. Pasadena State Bank v. Isaac, 228

S.W.2d 127 (Tex. 1950); Merrill v. Tropoli, 414 S.W.2d 474 (Tex. Civ. App.—Waco 1967, no writ). He may also recover the value of the use of the property during the time reasonably required to effect repairs or restoration. Chicago, Rock Island & Gulf Railway v. Zumwalt, 239 S.W. 912 (Tex. Comm’n App. 1922, judgment adopted). To prove loss of use, it is not necessary to rent a replacement vehicle or show any amount actually expended for alternate transportation. Luna v. North Star Dodge Sales, Inc., 667 S.W.2d 115 (Tex. 1984).

If the repairs do not completely restore the former value of the property, the plaintiff may also recover the difference between the value before the occurrence and the value after repairs. See Hodges v. Alford, 194 S.W.2d 293 (Tex. Civ. App.—Eastland 1946, no writ). PJC 83.4 may then be submitted with an additional element as follows:

3. Difference in market value.

Consider the difference, if any, in the market value in Clay County, Texas, of the vehicle in question immediately before the occurrence in question and immediately after the necessary repairs were made to the vehicle.

“Market value” means the amount that would be paid in cash by a willing buyer who desires to buy, but is not required to buy, to a willing seller who desires to sell, but is under no necessity of selling.

Name of county. The county referred to should be the county in which the damage occurred. Determination of the reasonable cost of repairs in the county where the damage occurred would not require that repairs actually be made in that county if such repairs would be unavailable there.

Instruction not to reduce amounts because of plaintiff’s negligence. If the plaintiff’s negligence is also in question, the exclusionary instruction given in this PJC immediately before the answer blanks is proper. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.001, Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. This instruction should be omitted if there is no claim of the plaintiff’s negligence.

Separate answer for each element. Broad-form submission of multiple elements of damages may lead to harmful error if there is a proper objection raising insufficiency of the evidence to support one or more of the elements submitted. Harris County v. Smith, 96 S.W.3d 230 (Tex. 2002). If there is any question about the sufficiency of the evidence to support one or more of the elements, the Committee recommends that the elements of damages be separately submitted as above.

Prejudgment interest recoverable. Prejudgment interest is recoverable on property damages. Tex. Fin. Code § 304.102.

1. “No” for Paul Payne to Question _____ [the liability question], or
2. 50 percent or less for Paul Payne to Question _____ [the percentage causation question].

When to use. PJC 84.1 may be used to condition answers to economic damages questions on a finding of liability as permitted by Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. See H.E. Butt Grocery Co. v. Bilotto, 985 S.W.2d 22 (Tex. 1998).

Multiple plaintiffs. For multiple plaintiffs, the instruction should precede the cluster of damages questions for each plaintiff.

PJC 84.2 Economic Damages—Instruction on Whether Compensatory Damages Are Subject to Income Taxes—
Actions Filed on or after September 1, 2003

You are instructed that any monetary recovery for [list each element of economic or noneconomic damages that is subject to taxation] is subject to [federal or state] income taxes. Any recovery for [list each element of economic or noneconomic damages that is not subject to taxation] is not subject to [federal or state] income taxes.

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 84.2 should be submitted with the damages question in any action filed on or after September 1, 2003, in which a claimant seeks recovery for loss of earnings, loss of earning capacity, loss of contributions of a pecuniary value, or loss of inheritance. Whether an element of damages is taxable depends on the substantive tax law pertaining to each cause of action.

PJC 84.3 Economic Damages—Nonmedical Professional Malpractice

QUESTION _____

What sum of money, if paid now in cash, would fairly and reasonably compensate Paul Payne for his loss, if any, resulting from the occurrence in question?

Consider the elements of damages listed below and none other. Consider each element separately. Do not award any sum of money on any element if you have otherwise, under some other element, awarded a sum of money for the same loss. That is, do not compensate twice for the same loss, if any. Do not include interest on any amount of damages you find.

Answer separately, in dollars and cents, for damages, if any. Do not reduce the amounts, if any, in your answers because of the negligence, if any, of Paul Payne. Any recovery will be determined by the court when it applies the law to your answers at the time of judgment.

[Insert appropriate elements of damages below.]

1. [Element 1] sustained in the past.

Answer: _____

2. [Element 2] that, in reasonable probability, will be sustained in the future.

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 84.3 may be used, along with appropriate instructions, to submit economic damages in a negligence action against an attorney, accountant, or architect. Substantive law, including the statutes, will determine the proper elements of damages in the particular professional malpractice action. The trial court must inform the jury of the proper elements and limit the jury's consideration to those elements. Compliance with this requirement may be accomplished either by adding an explanatory instruction or by listing the proper elements as is done in a personal injury action.

Instruction required. PJC 84.3 should not be submitted without an instruction on the appropriate measures of damages. See PJC 84.4 for sample instructions in a legal malpractice case and PJC 84.5 for sample instructions in an accounting malpractice case.

Instruction not to reduce amounts because of plaintiff's negligence. If the plaintiff's negligence is also in question, the exclusionary instruction given in this PJC that begins "Do not reduce " is proper. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 33.001, Tex. R. Civ. P. 277. This instruction should be omitted if there is no claim of the plaintiff's negligence. Also, if an exclusionary instruction for failure to mitigate damages is required, this instruction should be modified. See PJC 80.9.

PJC 84.4 Sample Instructions for Economic Damages—Legal Malpractice

Explanatory note: Damages instructions in legal malpractice cases are often necessarily fact-specific. The following instructions are illustrative only, using a hypothetical situation to give a few examples of how instructions may be worded to submit various legal measures of damages.

Sample A—Value of the original suit

The amount, if any, that Paul Payne would have recovered and collected if his original suit against Tom Taylor had been properly prosecuted by Andy Attorney.

Sample B—Loss to the value of the original suit

The difference, if any, between the amount that Paul Payne [recovered] [settled for] and collected in his original suit against Tom Taylor and the amount he would have [recovered] [settled for] and collected if the original suit had been properly prosecuted by Andy Attorney.

Sample C—The increase in damages assessed against Paul Payne in the original suit

The increase, if any, in damages assessed against Paul Payne in the original suit brought by Tom Taylor caused by the failure of Andy Attorney to properly defend the lawsuit.

Sample D—Additional attorney’s fees incurred

Reasonable and necessary attorney’s fees incurred by Paul Payne for legal services proximately caused by the negligence of Andy Attorney. Do not include any attorney’s fees incurred for the prosecution of this claim against Andy Attorney.

COMMENT

When to use. See explanatory note above. Because damages instructions in legal malpractice cases are necessarily fact-specific, no true “pattern” instructions are given—only samples of some measures of general damages available in such cases. This list is not exhaustive. The samples are illustrative only, adapted to a hypothetical fact situation, and must be rewritten to fit the particular damages raised by the pleadings and proof and recoverable under a legally accepted theory. The instructions should be drafted in an attempt to make the plaintiff whole but not to put him in a better position than he would have been in had the defendant not been negligent. Substantive law will determine the proper elements of damages for legal malpractice. This question does not address any damages for breach of fiduciary duty. See chapters 60–63 in this volume.

Measures generally alternative. The measures outlined above are generally alternative, although some may be in addition to one of the other measures.

Value of the original suit. This measure may be appropriate for the failure to file or properly prosecute a lawsuit. The client must show that he would have made a recovery that would have been collectible on or after the date a judgment in the underlying case was or would have been rendered. See Akin, Gump, Strauss, Hauer & Feld, L.L.P. v. National Development & Research Corp., 299 S.W.3d 106, 113–14 (Tex. 2009). It is unnecessary to submit a separate question on whether the recovery would have been collectible. See Schlosser v. Tropoli, 609 S.W.2d 255, 258–59 (Tex. Civ. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1980, writ ref'd n.r.e.). One Texas appellate court has held that damages measured by the value of the original suit need not be reduced by the amount of the contingent fee that the client would have owed to the attorney if the underlying suit had been successfully prosecuted. See Akin, Gump, Strauss, Hauer & Feld, L.L.P. v. National Development & Research Corp., 232 S.W.3d 883, 897–99 (Tex. App.—Dallas 2007), rev'd on other grounds, 299 S.W.3d 106 (Tex. 2009).

Loss to the value of the original suit. This measure may be appropriate for negligent handling of a lawsuit, leading to a poor result either by verdict, settlement, or appeal. Again, the jury must be instructed on the element of collectibility. See Balleteseros v. Jones, 985 S.W.2d 485, 500 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1998, pet. denied); Smith v. Heard, 980 S.W.2d 693, 693–96 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1998, pet. denied).

The increase in damages assessed against Paul Payne in the original suit. This measure may be appropriate for the negligent defense of a case. Similarly, if a defense attorney's malpractice inflated the settlement value of a case, the client may be able to recover as damages the difference between the settlement amount and the actual value of the case if handled properly, less any expenses avoided or saved as a result of the settlement. See Keck, Mahin & Cate v. National Union Fire Insurance Co. of Pittsburgh, 20 S.W.3d 692, 703 (Tex. 2000); Heath v. Herron, 732 S.W.2d 748, 753 (Tex. App.—Houston [14th Dist.] 1987, writ denied). A lawyer is not responsible for a loss to a client who would have lost the case without the negligence of the lawyer. For example, even if a lawyer failed to answer for a client, the client must still establish that he had a defense to the case or that the negligence of the lawyer made his loss greater. See Haynes & Boone v. Bowser Bouldin, Ltd., 864 S.W.2d 662, 672 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1993), rev'd in part on other grounds, 896 S.W.2d 179 (Tex. 1995).

Special rules for clients convicted of a crime. In the case of the defense of a criminal case, the client must get his conviction reversed before he can sue his criminal defense lawyer for malpractice; otherwise, there is no causation as a matter of law. Peeler v. Hughes & Luce, 909 S.W.2d 494 (Tex. 1995).

Additional attorney's fees incurred. This measure may be appropriate when a client had to hire an additional attorney to correct the negligence of the first attorney in the underlying case or when the negligence of an attorney in drafting a document caused the client to incur additional attorney's fees. See Akin, 299 S.W.3d at 122; Estate of Arlitt v. Paterson, 995 S.W.2d 713 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 1999, pet. denied). The measure does not include any fees incurred for the prosecution of the malpractice action itself.

PJC 84.5 Sample Instructions for Economic Damages—Accounting Malpractice

Explanatory note: Damages instructions in accounting malpractice cases are often necessarily fact-specific. The following instructions are illustrative only, using a hypothetical situation to give a few examples of how instructions may be worded to submit various legal measures of damages.

Sample A—IRS penalties

The amount, if any, of penalties [assessed by] [paid to] the IRS proximately caused by the negligence of Dora Dotson.

Sample B—Taxes

The excess tax paid by Paul Payne, proximately caused by the negligence of Dora Dotson, that cannot be recovered through an amended tax return.

Sample C—The undiscovered malfeasance/fraud/risky investment

The amount of loss from the [malfeasance] [fraud] [risky investment] in question from the time that it should have been discovered by Dora Dotson to the time it was discovered.

Sample D—Additional accounting fees incurred

Reasonable and necessary accounting fees incurred by Paul Payne for additional accountant services proximately caused by the negligence of Dora Dotson.

Sample E—Value of the services

The difference, if any, between the amount paid for the accountant services of Dora Dotson and the [value of] [benefit conferred by] the services rendered by Dora Dotson.

Sample F—Damage to the business

The [lost profits] [unwarranted expenses], if any, to the business proximately caused by the negligence of Dora Dotson.

COMMENT

When to use. See explanatory note above. Because damages instructions in accounting malpractice cases are necessarily fact-specific, no true ‘pattern’ instructions are given—only samples of some measures of general damages available in such cases. This list is not exhaustive. The samples are illustrative only, adapted to a hypothetical fact situation, and must be rewritten to fit the particular damages raised by the pleadings and proof and recoverable under a legally accepted theory. The instructions should be drafted in an attempt to make the plaintiff whole but not to put him in a better position than he would have been in had the defendant not been negligent. Substantive law will determine the proper elements of damages for accounting malpractice. This question does not address any damages for breach of fiduciary duty. See the current edition of State Bar of Texas, Texas Pattern Jury Charges—Business, Consumer, Insurance & Employment PJC 115.18 for that issue.

Measures generally alternative. The measures outlined above are generally alternative, although some may be in addition to one of the other measures.

PJC 84.6 Economic Damages—Question and Instruction on Monetary Loss Caused by Negligent Misrepresentation

If you answered “Yes” to Question _____ [appropriate liability question], then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

QUESTION _____

What sum of money, if any, if paid now in cash, would fairly and reasonably compensate Paul Payne for his damages, if any, that were proximately caused by such negligent misrepresentation?

[Insert definition of proximate cause, PJC 60.1.]

Consider the following elements of damages, if any, and none other. Do not add any amount for interest on past damages, if any.

Answer separately, in dollars and cents, for damages, if any.

The difference, if any, between the value of what Paul Payne has received in the transaction and the purchase price or value given.

Answer: _____

The economic loss, if any, otherwise suffered in the past as a consequence of Paul Payne’s reliance on the misrepresentation.

Answer: _____

The economic loss, if any, that in reasonable probability will be sustained in the future as a consequence of Paul Payne’s reliance on the misrepresentation.

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 84.6 should be predicated on a “Yes” answer to PJC 61.4. If only one measure of damages is supported by the pleadings and proof, the measure may be incorporated into the question.

Instruction required. PJC 84.6 may not be submitted without an instruction on the appropriate measure of damages. See Jackson v. Fontaine’s Clinics, 499 S.W.2d 87, 90 (Tex. 1973).

Source of instructions. The measures of damages set forth in the instructions are prescribed by Restatement (Second) of Torts § 552B (1977) and have been adopted by the Supreme Court of Texas. Federal Land Bank Ass'n of Tyler v. Sloane, 825 S.W.2d 439, 442–43 (Tex. 1991); see also D.S.A. Inc. v. Hillsboro Independent School District, 973 S.W.2d 662, 663–64 (Tex. 1998). In D.S.A. Inc., the court also recognized that under Restatement (Second) of Torts § 311 (1965) a party could recover damages for risk of physical harm if actual physical harm had resulted from negligent misrepresentation. D.S.A. Inc., 973 S.W.2d at 664; but see Sloane, 825 S.W.2d at 443 n.4.

Separating elements of damages. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, the Code requires economic damages to be determined ‘separately from the amount of other compensatory damages.’ Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(a).

In addition, broad-form submission of multiple elements of damages may lead to harmful error if there is a proper objection raising insufficiency of the evidence to support one or more of the elements submitted. Harris County v. Smith, 96 S.W.3d 230 (Tex. 2002). See also Romero v. KPH Consolidation, Inc., 166 S.W.3d 212, 215 (Tex. 2005) (harmful error in submitting broad-form question incorporating both valid and invalid theories of liability).

Elements considered separately. Golden Eagle Archery, Inc. v. Jackson, 116 S.W.3d 757, 770 (Tex. 2003), provides an alternative instruction that may be appropriate in certain cases involving undefined or potentially overlapping categories of damages. The following language should be substituted for the instruction to consider each element separately:

Consider the following elements of damages, if any, and none other. You shall not award any sum of money on any element if you have otherwise, under some other element, awarded a sum of money for the same loss. That is, do not compensate twice for the same loss, if any.

Parallel theories. If the negligent misrepresentation cause of action is only one of several theories of recovery submitted in the charge and any theory has a different legal measure of damages to be applied to a factually similar claim for damages, a separate damages question for each theory may be submitted and the following additional instruction may be included earlier in the charge:

In answering questions about damages, answer each question separately. Do not increase or reduce the amount in one answer because of your answer to any other question about damages. Do not speculate about what any party’s ultimate recovery may or may not be. Any recovery will be determined by the court when it applies the law to your answers at the time of judgment.

Prejudgment interest. Instructing the jury not to add interest is suggested because prejudgment interest, if recoverable, will be calculated by the court at the time of judgment. If interest paid on an obligation is claimed as an element of damages, it may be necessary to modify the instruction on interest. "Prejudgment interest may not be assessed or recovered on an award of future damages." Tex. Fin. Code § 304.1045 (wrongful death, personal injury, or property damage cases); see also Cavnar v. Quality Control Parking, Inc., 696 S.W.2d 549, 555–56 (Tex. 1985) (other types of cases). Therefore, separation of past and future damages is required.

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 85.1A should be used if exemplary damages for gross negligence are sought in a cause of action accruing before September 1, 1995. For causes of action accruing on or after September 1, 1995, and filed before September 1, 2003, PJC 85.1B should be used. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, PJC 85.1C should be used. See the comments below for the sources of these definitions and instructions. For submission of the question for exemplary damages, see PJC 85.3.

Fraud. In addition to gross negligence, gross neglect, and malice, fraud is a ground for recovery of exemplary damages. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003. Fraud is defined as “fraud other than constructive fraud. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.001(6). Constructive fraud is defined as “the breach of some legal or equitable duty which, irrespective of moral guilt, the law declares fraudulent because of its tendency to deceive others, to violate confidence, or to injure public interests.” Archer v. Griffith, 390 S.W.2d 735, 740 (Tex. 1964). The Committee expresses no opinion on the elements that may be required to establish fraud in the context of a case involving a claim for exemplary damages against a nonmedical professional. The burden of proof for causes of action accruing on or after September 1, 1995, is clear and convincing evidence. All other cases must be proved by a preponderance of the evidence. For questions, instructions, and definitions for fraud as a predicate for actual damages, see the current edition of State Bar of Texas, Texas Pattern Jury Charges—Business, Consumer, Insurance & Employment PJC 105.1–105.11.

Exceptions to the limitation on exemplary damages. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c); Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S. ch. 19, § 1 (S.B. 25), eff. Sept. 1, 1995. Note that the 2003 amendments to the statute added an exception to one of the exceptions in subsection (7). See PJC 85.12–85.21 for questions and instructions on these exceptions.

[The following paragraphs apply only to PJC 85.1A.]

Use of “injury” or “occurrence.” See PJC 51.1, 61.1, 66.1, and 71.1. The term used in PJC 85.1A should match that used in PJC 51.3, 61.5, 66.4, and 71.13.

Source of definition. The definition in PJC 85.1A is from Acts 1987, 70th Leg., 1st C.S., ch. 2, § 2.12 (S.B. 5), eff. Sept. 2, 1987, amended by Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 19, § 1 (S.B. 25), eff. Sept. 1, 1995. In Transportation Insurance Co. v. Moriel, 879 S.W.2d 10, 21 (Tex. 1994), the court stated:

The entire definition of “gross negligence” is “such an entire want of care as to establish that the act or omission was the result of actual conscious indifference to the rights, safety, or welfare of the person affected. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code Ann. § 41.001(5) (Vernon Supp. 1994) (emphasis added).

The court also stated:

[T]he definition of gross negligence includes two elements: (1) viewed objectively from the standpoint of the actor, the act or omission must involve an extreme degree of risk, considering the probability and magnitude of the potential harm to others, and (2) the actor must have actual, subjective awareness of the risk involved, but nevertheless proceed in conscious indifference to the rights, safety, or welfare of others.

Moriel, 879 S.W.2d at 23. The opinion is silent on whether these two elements are to be submitted.

[The following paragraphs apply only to PJC 85.1B.]

Wrongful death actions. In wrongful death actions arising on or after September 1, 1995, brought by or on behalf of a surviving spouse or heirs of the decedent’s body, under a statute enacted under article XVI, section 26, of the Texas Constitution, “gross neglect” remains the standard of recovery. The definition of “gross neglect” is the same as alternative 2 in the definition of malice in PJC 85.1B above. Former Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(a)(3) (Acts 1987, 70th Leg., 1st C.S., ch. 2, § 2.12 (S.B. 5), eff. Sept. 2, 1987, amended by Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 19, § 1 (S.B. 25), eff. Sept. 1, 1995).

Source of question and instructions. Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 19, § 1 (S.B. 25), eff. Sept. 1, 1995; Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 260, § 9 (S.B. 1), eff. May 30, 1995; Acts 1997, 75th Leg., R.S., ch. 165, § 4.01 (S.B. 898), eff. Sept. 1, 1997.

[The following paragraphs apply only to PJC 85.1C.]

Malice as a ground for exemplary damages. Malice is also a ground for recovery of exemplary damages. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(a)(2). As a predicate for recovery of exemplary damages, the following instruction should be given:

See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.001(7).

Source of question and instructions. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 41.001(7), (11), 41.003(a), (d), 41.004(a). The unanimity instructions come from the supreme court’s March 15, 2011, effective April 1, 2011, and April 13, 2011, effective April 13, 2011, orders under Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a, in all cases filed on or after September 1, 2003.

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 85.2 may be used if a plaintiff seeks to impute the gross negligence or malice of a defendant employee to his corporate employer. The grounds listed in this instruction are alternatives, and any of the listed grounds that are not applicable to or supported by sufficient evidence in the case should be omitted. Regarding broad-form submission, see Introduction 4(a). If imputation is not required, see PJC 85.1 and substitute ABC Corporation for Don Davis.

Source of instruction. The supreme court adopted the doctrine set out in Restatement of Torts § 909 (1979) in King v. McGuff, 234 S.W.2d 403 (Tex. 1950); see also Fisher v. Carrousel Motor Hotel, Inc., 424 S.W.2d 627 (Tex. 1967). Section 909 sets out four distinct reasons to impute the gross negligence or malice of an employee to a corporate employer. As the court in Fisher set out:

The rule in Texas is that a principal or master is liable for exemplary or punitive damages because of the acts of his agent, but only if:

- (a) the principal authorized the doing and the manner of the act, or
- (b) the agent was unfit and the principal was reckless in employing him, or
- (c) the agent was employed in a managerial capacity and was acting in the scope of employment, or
- (d) the employer or a manager of the employer ratified or approved the act.

Fisher, 424 S.W.2d at 630; see also Bennett v. Reynolds, 315 S.W.3d 867, 883–84 (Tex. 2010); Hammerly Oaks, Inc. v. Edwards, 958 S.W.2d 387, 391 (Tex. 1997); Ramos v. Frito-Lay, Inc. 784 S.W.2d 667, 668–69 (Tex. 1990); Fort Worth Elevators Co. v. Russell, 70 S.W.2d 397, 406 (Tex. 1934), disapproved on other grounds by Wright v. Gifford-Hill & Co., 725 S.W.2d 712, 714 (Tex. 1987). In Fort Worth Elevators Co., the court held that the gross negligence of a ‘vice-principal’ could be imputed to a corporation and listed the elements of “vice-principal” as set out in the definitions in PJC 85.2C. Fort Worth Elevators Co., 70 S.W.2d at 406. The court also discussed ‘absolute or nondelegable duties’ for which ‘the corporation itself remains responsible for the manner of their performance.’ Fort Worth Elevators Co., 70 S.W.2d at 401.

Definition of nondelegable or absolute duties. If the evidence on vice-principal requires the submission of the element that includes the term “nondelegable or absolute duties,” further definitions may be necessary.

Nondelegable and absolute duties of a corporation are (1) the duty to provide rules and regulations for the safety of employees and to warn them as to the hazards of their positions or employment, (2) the duty to furnish reasonably safe machinery or instrumentalities with which its employees are to labor, (3) the duty to furnish its employees with a reasonably safe place to work, and (4) the duty to exercise ordinary care to select careful and competent coemployees. See Fort Worth Elevators Co., 70 S.W.2d at 401.

Caveat. The decision to define nondelegable or absolute duties may need to be balanced against the consideration that this definition may constitute an impermissible comment on the weight of the evidence. In any event, only those elements of the definition raised by the evidence should be submitted.

Punitive damages based on criminal act by another person. Subject to certain exceptions, a court may not award exemplary damages against a defendant because of the harmful criminal act of another. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.005(a), (b).

For causes of action accruing on or after September 1, 1995, an employer may be liable for punitive damages arising out of a criminal act by an employee but only if—

- (1) the principal authorized the doing and the manner of the act;
- (2) the agent was unfit and the principal acted with malice in employing or retaining him;
- (3) the agent was employed in a managerial capacity and was acting in the scope of employment; or
- (4) the employer or a manager of the employer ratified or approved the act.

Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.005(c). See also Bennett v. Reynolds, 315 S.W.3d 867, 883–84 (Tex. 2010).

Malice as a ground for exemplary damages in actions filed on or after September 1, 2003. Malice is also a ground for recovery of exemplary damages. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(a)(3).

Definitions of “gross negligence” and “malice.” See PJC 85.1.

Unanimity instructions. The unanimity instructions in PJC 85.2C come from the supreme court’s March 15, 2011, effective April 1, 2011, and April 13, 2011, effective April 13, 2011, orders under Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a, effective in all cases filed on or after September 1, 2003.

When to use. PJC 85.3A should be used to submit the question of exemplary damages for causes of action accruing before September 1, 1995. PJC 85.3B submits the question for causes of action accruing on or after September 1, 1995, and filed before September 1, 2003. Conditioned on finding of gross negligence or malice. PJC 85.3 must be conditioned on an affirmative finding to a question on gross negligence, malice, or other finding justifying exemplary damages. See Acts 1987, 70th Leg., 1st C.S., ch. 2, § 2.12 (S.B. 5), eff. Sept. 2, 1987, amended by Acts 1995, 74th Leg., R.S., ch. 19, § 1 (S.B. 25), eff. Sept. 1, 1995; Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 41.001(7), (11), 41.003(a), (d).

Bifurcation. No predicated instruction is necessary if the court has granted a timely motion to bifurcate trial of the amount of punitive damages. See Transportation Insurance Co. v. Moriel, 879 S.W.2d 10, 29–30 (Tex. 1994); Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.009. If in the first phase of the trial the jury finds facts establishing a predicate for an award of exemplary damages, then a separate phase two jury charge should be prepared. In such a phase two jury charge, PJC 85.3A, 85.3B, or 85.3C (as appropriate) should be submitted with both PJC 40.3 and 40.4 instructions.

Exemplary damages for wrongful death under Texas Constitution. Exemplary damages in cases of “homicide, through wilful act, or omission, or gross neglect” are authorized by article XVI, section 26, of the Texas Constitution. Only the survivors enumerated in the constitutional provision (“surviving husband, widow, heirs of his or her body”) may recover. General Chemical Corp. v. De La Lastra, 852 S.W.2d 916, 923 (Tex. 1993) (parents of deceased child may not recover exemplary damages), disapproved of on other grounds by Vogler v. Blackmore, 352 F.3d 150 (5th Cir. 2003). A separate answer is recommended with respect to each constitutionally designated survivor. For the pattern question for apportionment of exemplary damages, see PJC 85.4.

Actual damages in suit against employer covered by Workers’ Compensation Act no longer required. Formerly, in a suit maintained by a survivor for exemplary damages against an employer covered by the Workers’ Compensation Act, Tex. Lab. Code § 408.001, an additional question on the amount of actual damages was advisable. To recover exemplary damages, the plaintiff had to show himself entitled to recover actual damages, which he would have recovered but for the Act. Fort Worth Elevators Co. v. Russell, 70 S.W.2d 397, 409 (Tex. 1934), disapproved by Wright v. Gifford-Hill & Co., 725 S.W.2d 712, 714 (Tex. 1987). An additional rationale was to permit an evaluation of the reasonableness of the ratio between the actual and exemplary damages. Tony Gullo Motors I, L.P. v. Chapa, 212 S.W.3d 299, 308 (Tex. 2006); see Alamo National Bank v. Kraus, 616 S.W.2d 908 (Tex. 1981). Under Wright, 725 S.W.2d 712, a plaintiff no longer needs to secure a finding on actual damages in this situation. But see Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.002 (after 1995 and 1997 amendments, death actions against worker’s compensation subscribers no longer specifically excluded from application of chapter 41); Hall v. Diamond Shamrock Refining Co., 82 S.W.3d 5 (Tex. App.—San Antonio 2001), rev’d on other grounds, 168 S.W.3d 164 (Tex. 2005).

Exemplary damages under survival statute. Exemplary damages on behalf of a decedent are recoverable by the estate under the survival statute. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.021, Hofer v. Lavender, 679 S.W.2d 470 (Tex. 1984); Castleberry v. Goolsby Building Corp., 617 S.W.2d 665 (Tex. 1981). See PJC 82.3.

Multiple defendants. There should be a separate question and answer blank for each defendant against whom exemplary damages are sought. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.006.

Multiple plaintiffs. For multiple plaintiffs, a separate finding on the amount of exemplary damages awarded to each is appropriate. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 71.010. For an example of submission of apportionment in a single question, see PJC 85.4.

Prejudgment interest not recoverable. Prejudgment interest on exemplary damages is not recoverable. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.007.

Limits on conduct to be considered. A defendant's lawful out-of-state conduct may be probative on some issues in a punitive damages case in certain circumstances. State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co. v. Campbell, 538 U.S. 408, 422 (2003). When such evidence is admitted, "[a] jury must be instructed that it may not use evidence of out-of-state conduct to punish a defendant for action that was lawful in the jurisdiction where it occurred. Campbell, 538 U.S. at 422.

Evidence that the defendant's conduct caused harm to persons who are not before the court may also be probative of the reprehensibility of the defendant's conduct. Philip Morris USA v. Williams, 549 U.S. 346, 355–57 (2007). But when this type of evidence is admitted, the jury should be instructed that it may not punish a defendant for the harm the defendant's conduct allegedly caused to other persons who are not parties to the litigation. Williams, 549 U.S. at 357.

Neither Campbell nor Williams specifies whether the requirement of an instruction means a limiting instruction at the time the evidence is offered, an instruction in the jury charge, or both.

[The following paragraphs apply only to PJC 85.3A.]

Source of definition and instructions. The definition of exemplary damages in PJC 85.3A is derived from Carnation Co. v. Borner, 610 S.W.2d 450, 454 (Tex. 1980). The "factors to consider" instructions are derived from Kraus, 616 S.W.2d at 910, and approved in a note in Moriel, 879 S.W.2d at 29 n.26. Additional factors that have been considered by Texas courts in reviewing the propriety of an exemplary damages award include (1) compensation for inconvenience and attorney's fees, Hofer, 679 S.W.2d at 474; (2) the net worth of the wrongdoer, Moriel, 879 S.W.2d at 29–30; Lunsford v. Morris, 746 S.W.2d 471 (Tex. 1988), disapproved of by Walker v. Packer, 827 S.W.2d 833 (Tex. 1992); (3) the frequency of the wrongs committed, State Farm Mutual Automobile Insurance Co. v. Zubiate, 808 S.W.2d 590, 604 (Tex. App.—El Paso 1991, writ denied), disapproved on other grounds by Saenz v. Fidelity & Guaranty Insurance Underwriters, 925 S.W.2d 607 (Tex. 1996); see also Moriel, 879 S.W.2d at 27 n.22; and (4) the size of the award needed to deter similar wrongs in the future, Zubiate, 808 S.W.2d at 604; see also Moriel, 879 S.W.2d at 27 n.22. If attorney's fees are sought under another theory of recovery, they should not be included in the "factors to consider" instruction; otherwise, there exists the potential of a double recovery on this element.

These factors are included in response to Texas and U.S. Supreme Court decisions establishing that the discretion of the trier of fact to award punitive damages must be exercised within reasonable constraints. TXO Production Corp. v. Alliance Resources Corp., 509 U.S. 443 (1993); Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co. v. Haslip, 499 U.S. 1 (1991); see also Moriel, 879 S.W.2d at 27 n.22 (multifactor jury instruction meets constitutional requirements).

[The following paragraphs apply only to PJC 85.3B and 85.3C.]

Source of definitions and instructions. The definitions of exemplary damages in PJC 85.3B and 85.3C are derived from Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 41.001(5), 41.011(a). The factors to consider are from Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.011(a). The unanimity instructions in PJC 85.3C come from the supreme court's March 15, 2011, effective April 1, 2011, and April 13, 2011, effective April 13, 2011, orders under Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a, in all cases filed on or after September 1, 2003.

Limitation on amount of recovery. For causes of action accruing on or after September 1, 1995, exemplary damages awarded against a defendant ordinarily may not exceed an amount equal to the greater of—

- (1)(A) two times the amount of economic damages; plus
- (B) an amount equal to any noneconomic damages found by the jury, not to exceed $750,000; or
- (2) $200,000.

Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(b). These limitations will not apply in favor of a defendant found to have “knowingly” or “intentionally” committed conduct described as a felony in specified sections of the Texas Penal Code. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c), (d).

Penal Code § 19.02, and (3) the jury has previously found that the defendant committed conduct authorizing recovery of exemplary damages as set out in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(1). This statute applies to causes of action accruing on or after September

Source of instruction and definition. The question and instructions are derived from Tex. Penal Code §§ 6.03(a), 22.04; Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008.

Unanimity. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, “[e]xemplary damages may be awarded only if the jury was unanimous in regard to finding liability for and the amount of exemplary damages.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d). The jury must be instructed that its answer regarding the amount of exemplary damages must be unanimous. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(e). By the supreme court’s March 15, 2011, effective April 1, 2011, and April 13, 2011, effective April 13, 2011, orders under Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a, the supreme court requires unanimity on the applicable liability question as well as the exemplary damages question in cases governed by Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d). Section 41.008 of the Civil Practice and Remedies Code limits the amount of exemplary damages and then lists exceptions that remove these limitations or caps. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008. The Committee considers these exceptions to be findings that establish ‘liability for and the amount of exemplary damages’; therefore, these questions are conditioned on, and require, unanimous findings. See PJC 85.5–85.10, 85.12–85.21.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. A unanimous decision on liability for and the amount of exemplary damages is not required for actions filed before September 1, 2003. In such cases, substitute the following conditioning instruction:

If you answered “Yes” to Question _____ [85.1], then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

PJC 85.12 Question and Instructions—Forgery as a Ground for Removing Limitation on Exemplary Damages

Answer the following question only if you unanimously answered “Yes” to Question _____ [85.1]. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

To answer “Yes” to [any part of] the following question, your answer must be unanimous. You may answer “No” to [any part of] the following question only upon a vote of ten or more jurors. Otherwise, you must not answer [that part of] the following question.

QUESTION _____

Did Don Davis commit forgery with the intent to defraud or harm another?

“Forgery” means that a person alters, makes, completes, executes, or authenticates a writing so that it purports to be the act of another who did not authorize that act.

A person acts with intent with respect to the nature of his conduct or to a result of his conduct when it is the conscious objective or desire to engage in the conduct or cause the result.

When to use. PJC 85.12 should be used in a case in which (1) exemplary damages are sought, (2) the harm to the plaintiff is alleged to have resulted from conduct described as a felony in Tex. Penal Code § 32.21, and (3) the jury has previously found that the defendant committed conduct authorizing recovery of exemplary damages as set out in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(8). This statute applies to causes of action accruing on or after September 1, 1995. If the jury finds conduct that violates Tex. Penal Code § 32.21, and that conduct rises to the level of a felony, the limitations on exemplary damages awards set out in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(b) do not apply. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(8). See comment below, “Felonious conduct,” for a discussion of the requirements needed to establish that the conduct in question was felonious. If the conduct occurred while providing health care as defined by section 74.001 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code, there is no exception to the limitation on the amount of recovery as set forth in section 41.008(b). See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(7).

Bifurcation. If a defendant has requested a bifurcated trial pursuant to Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.009, PJC 85.12 should be answered in the first phase of the trial.

Caveat—burden of proof. The Committee expresses no opinion on whether the burden of proof is a preponderance of the evidence or clear and convincing evidence. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 41.003(c), 41.008(c).

Alternative language for issuance or possession of a forged writing. Tex. Penal Code § 32.21(a)(1)(B) defines “forgery” alternatively as occurring when a person issues, transfers, registers the transfer of, passes, publishes, or otherwise utters a forged writing as defined in Tex. Penal Code § 32.21(a)(1)(A). Also, Tex. Penal Code § 32.21(a)(1)(C) gives another alternative definition of “forgery” as occurring when a person possesses a forged writing (as defined in Tex. Penal Code § 32.21(a)(1)(A)) with the intent to utter it (as defined in Tex. Penal Code § 32.21(a)(1)(B)). In an appropriate case, an alternative definition of “forgery” may be substituted.

Definition of “writing.” In an appropriate case, use an applicable definition of “writing” as found in Tex. Penal Code § 32.21(a)(2).

Alternative language for “be the act of another who did not authorize that act.” In an appropriate case, the language have been executed at a time (at a place) (in a numbered sequence) other than was in fact the case, or be a copy of an original when no such original existed may be substituted for the original language of the charge. Tex. Penal Code § 32.21(a)(1)(A).

Felonious conduct. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c) provides that the limitation or cap on exemplary damages may be lifted only if the plaintiff’s damages are based on conduct “described as a felony” in Tex. Penal Code § 32.21. The criminal conduct described in Tex. Penal Code § 32.21 rises to felonious conduct only when the writing—

1. is or purports to be a will, codicil, deed, deed of trust, mortgage, security instrument, security agreement, credit card, check, authorization to debit an account at a financial institution, or similar sight order for payment of money, contract, release, or other commercial instrument;
2. is part of an issue of money, securities, postage, or revenue stamps;
3. is a license, certificate, permit, seal, title, letter of patent, or similar document issued by a government; or
4. is another instrument issued by a state or national government or by a subdivision of either, or part of an issue of stock, bonds, or other instruments representing interests in or claims against another person.

Tex. Penal Code § 32.21(d), (e).

Source of instruction and definition. The question and instructions are derived from Tex. Penal Code §§ 6.03(a), 32.21(a), (b); Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008.

Unanimity. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, “[e]xemplary damages may be awarded only if the jury was unanimous in regard to finding liability for and the amount of exemplary damages. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d). The jury must be instructed that its answer regarding the amount of exemplary damages must be unanimous. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(e). By the supreme court’s March 15, 2011, effective April 1, 2011, and April 13, 2011, effective April 13, 2011, orders under Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a, the supreme court requires unanimity on the applicable liability question as well as the exemplary damages question in cases governed by Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d). Section 41.008 of the Civil Practice and Remedies Code limits the amount of exemplary damages and then lists exceptions that remove these limitations or caps. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008. The Committee considers these exceptions to be findings that establish “liability for and the amount of exemplary damages”, therefore, these questions are conditioned on, and require, unanimous findings. See PJC 85.5–85.11, 85.13–85.21.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. A unanimous decision on liability for and the amount of exemplary damages is not required for actions filed before September 1, 2003. In such cases, substitute the following conditioning instruction:

If you answered “Yes” to Question _____ [85.1], then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

When to use. PJC 85.13 should be used in a case in which (1) exemplary damages are sought, (2) the harm to the plaintiff is alleged to have resulted from conduct described in Tex. Penal Code § 32.43, and (3) the jury has previously found that the defendant committed conduct authorizing recovery of exemplary damages as set out in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(9). This statute applies to causes of action accruing on or after September 1, 1995. If the jury finds conduct that violates Tex. Penal Code § 32.43, the limitations on exemplary damages awards set out in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(b) do not apply. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(9). If the conduct occurred while providing health care as defined by section 74.001 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code, there is no exception to the limitation on the amount of recovery as set forth in section 41.008(b). See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(7).

Bifurcation. If a defendant has requested a bifurcated trial pursuant to Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.009, PJC 85.13 should be answered in the first phase of the trial.

Caveat—burden of proof. The Committee expresses no opinion on whether the burden of proof is a preponderance of the evidence or clear and convincing evidence. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 41.003(c), 41.008(c).

Consent. If a definition of “consent” is required, use the following:

Tex. Penal Code § 1.07(a)(11).

Benefit. If a definition of “benefit” is required, use the following:

“Benefit” means anything reasonably regarded as economic gain or advantage, including benefit to any other person in whose welfare the beneficiary is interested.

Tex. Penal Code § 1.07(a)(7).

Knowing standard of conduct. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c) authorizes elimination of the limitation on exemplary damages awards if the conduct described in the applicable Penal Code section was committed either knowingly or intentionally. If knowing instead of intentional conduct is alleged, use the following definition:

A person acts knowingly with respect to the nature of his conduct or to circumstances surrounding his conduct when he is aware of the nature of his conduct or that the circumstances exist. A person acts knowingly with respect to a result of his conduct when he is aware that his conduct is reasonably certain to cause the result.

Tex. Penal Code § 6.03(b).

Offering bribe also criminal conduct. A person who, for an improper purpose, intentionally offers, confers, or agrees to confer a benefit to a fiduciary also commits commercial bribery. Tex. Penal Code § 32.43(c). In an appropriate case, the question should read:

Did Don Davis intentionally offer, confer, or agree to confer a benefit on Fred Fiduciary on the agreement that the benefit would influence Fred Fiduciary’s conduct in relation to the affairs of Paul Payne?

Fiduciary. The defendant must be a fiduciary for the conduct described in Tex. Penal Code § 32.43 to apply. “Fiduciary” is defined there as (1) an agent or employee; (2) a trustee, guardian, custodian, administrator, executor, conservator, receiver, or similar fiduciary: (3) a lawyer, physician, accountant, appraiser, or other professional advisor; or (4) an officer, director, partner, manager, or other participant in the direction of the affairs of a corporation or association. Tex. Penal Code § 32.43(a)(2). If the existence of such a fiduciary relationship is disputed, a preliminary question should be submitted, and PJC 85.13 should be made conditional on a ‘Yes’ answer to that question. See Schiller v. Elick, 240 S.W.2d 997, 999 (Tex. 1951) (dispute whether defendant was plaintiff’s agent).

Beneficiary. For purposes of the commercial bribery statute, a ‘beneficiary’ is the person for whom a fiduciary acts. Tex. Penal Code § 32.43(a)(1). PJC 85.13 assumes that the plaintiff is the beneficiary.

Source of instruction and definition. Tex. Penal Code § 32.43; Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008.

Unanimity. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, “[e]xemplary damages may be awarded only if the jury was unanimous in regard to finding liability for and the amount of exemplary damages.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d). The jury must be instructed that its answer regarding the amount of exemplary damages must be unanimous. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(e). By the supreme court’s March 15, 2011, effective April 1, 2011, and April 13, 2011, effective April 13, 2011, orders under Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a, the supreme court requires unanimity on the applicable liability question as well as the exemplary damages question in cases governed by Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d). Section 41.008 of the Civil Practice and Remedies Code limits the amount of exemplary damages and then lists exceptions that remove these limitations or caps. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008. The Committee considers these exceptions to be findings that establish ‘liability for and the amount of exemplary damages’, therefore, these questions are conditioned on, and require, unanimous findings. See PJC 85.5–85.12, 85.14–85.21.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. A unanimous decision on liability for and the amount of exemplary damages is not required for actions filed before September 1, 2003. In such cases, substitute the following conditioning instruction:

If you answered “Yes” to Question _____ [85.1], then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

PJC 85.14 Question and Instructions—Misapplication of Fiduciary Property as a Ground for Removing Limitation on Exemplary Damages
(Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(10))

Answer the following question only if you unanimously answered “Yes” to Question _____ [85.1]. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

To answer “Yes” to [any part of] the following question, your answer must be unanimous. You may answer “No” to [any part of] the following question only upon a vote of ten or more jurors. Otherwise, you must not answer [that part of] the following question.

QUESTION _____

Did Don Davis intentionally misapply [identify property defendant held as a fiduciary] in a manner that involved substantial risk of loss to Paul Payne [and was the value of the property $1,500 or greater]?

“Misapply” means a person deals with property [or money] contrary to an agreement under which the person holds the property [or money].

A person acts with intent with respect to the nature of his conduct or to a result of his conduct when it is the conscious objective or desire to engage in the conduct or cause the result.

When to use. PJC 85.14 should be used in a case in which (1) exemplary damages are sought, (2) the harm to the plaintiff is alleged to have resulted from conduct described in Tex. Penal Code § 32.45, and (3) the jury has previously found that the defendant committed conduct authorizing recovery of exemplary damages as set out in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(10). This statute applies to causes of action accruing on or after September 1, 1995. If the jury finds conduct that violates Tex. Penal Code § 32.45, the limitations on exemplary damages awards set out in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(b) do not apply. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(10). If the conduct occurred while providing health care as defined by section 74.001 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code, there is no exception to the limitation on the amount of recovery as set forth in section 41.008(b). See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(7).

Bifurcation. If a defendant has requested a bifurcated trial pursuant to Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.009, PJC 85.14 should be answered in the first phase of the trial.

Caveat—burden of proof. The Committee expresses no opinion on whether the burden of proof is a preponderance of the evidence or clear and convincing evidence. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 41.003(c), 41.008(c).

Knowing standard of conduct. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c) authorizes elimination of the limitation on exemplary damages awards if the conduct described in the applicable Penal Code section was committed either knowingly or intentionally. If knowing instead of intentional conduct is alleged, use the following definition:

A person acts knowingly with respect to the nature of his conduct or to circumstances surrounding his conduct when he is aware of the nature of his conduct or that the circumstances exist. A person acts knowingly with respect to a result of his conduct when he is aware that his conduct is reasonably certain to cause the result.

Tex. Penal Code § 6.03(b).

Agreement. If a definition of “agreement” is required, use the following:

“Agreement” means the act of agreement or coming to an agreement; a harmonious understanding; or an arrangement as to a course of action.

Bynum v. State, 711 S.W.2d 321, 323 (Tex. App.—Amarillo 1986), aff’d, 767 S.W.2d 769 (Tex. Crim. App. 1989) (applying ordinary, dictionary definition of “agreement”).

Property. Tex. Penal Code § 32.01(2) defines “property” broadly to include tangible or intangible property as well as money. Because the jury may not understand money to be “property,” the word “money” should be used if money is involved in the case.

Acting contrary to a law governing disposition of property. In an appropriate case, the phrase a law prescribing the custody or disposition of the property may be substituted for, or added to, the phrase an agreement under which the person holds the property. See Tex. Penal Code § 32.45(a)(2).

Fiduciary. The defendant must be a fiduciary for the conduct described in Tex. Penal Code § 32.45 to apply. “Fiduciary” is defined there as including (1) “a trustee, guardian, administrator, executor, conservator, and receiver”, (2) ‘an attorney in fact or agent appointed under a durable power of attorney’ as provided by chapter 12 of the Texas Probate Code (now title 2, subtitle P, of the Texas Estates Code); (3) ‘any other person acting in a fiduciary capacity, but not a commercial bailee unless the commercial bailee is a party in a motor fuel sales agreement with a distributor or supplier, as those terms are defined in Tex. Tax Code § 162.001, and (4) ‘an officer, manager, employee, or agent carrying on fiduciary functions on behalf of a fiduciary.’ Tex. Penal Code § 32.45(a)(1). “[A]ny other person acting in a fiduciary capacity” embraces all fiduciaries, not just the categories of fiduciaries enumerated in Tex. Penal Code § 32.45(a)(1). Coplin v. State, 585 S.W.2d 734, 735 (Tex. Crim. App. 1979); Showery v. State, 678 S.W.2d 103, 107–08 (Tex. App.—El Paso 1984, pet. ref’d).

If the existence of such a fiduciary relationship is disputed, a preliminary question should be submitted, and PJC 85.14 should be made conditional on a “Yes” answer to that question. See Schiller v. Elick, 240 S.W.2d 997, 999 (Tex. 1951) (dispute whether defendant was plaintiff’s agent).

Substantial risk of loss. The definition of ‘substantial risk of loss’ is derived from Bynum v. State, 767 S.W.2d 769, 774–75 (Tex. Crim. App. 1989); and Casillas v. State, 733 S.W.2d 158, 163–64 (Tex. Crim. App. 1986), appeal dismissed, 484 U.S. 918 (1987).

Misapplication of property of financial institution. If the defendant is alleged to have misapplied property of a financial institution instead of fiduciary property, the question should be amended to read as follows:

QUESTION _____

Did Don Davis intentionally misapply property of ABC Bank in a manner that involved substantial risk of loss to ABC Bank [and was the value of the misapplied property $1,500 or greater]?

“Misapply” means to deal with property contrary to a law prescribing the custody or disposition of the property.

A person acts with intent with respect to the nature of his conduct or to a result of his conduct when it is the conscious objective or desire to engage in the conduct or cause the result.

“Value” and requirement that conduct be described as a felony. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c) provides that the limitation or cap on exemplary damages may be lifted only if the plaintiff’s damages are based on conduct ‘described as a felony’ in Tex. Penal Code § 32.45. The criminal conduct described in Tex. Penal Code § 32.45 rises to felonious conduct only when the value of the property misapplied is $1,500 or higher. Tex. Penal Code § 32.45(c). The optional language in the basic question in PJC 85.14 establishes whether the defendant’s conduct rises to the status of a felony, if there is a dispute about the value of the misapplied property.

Source of instruction and definition. Tex. Penal Code §§ 31.08, 32.45; Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008.

Unanimity. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, “[e]xemplary damages may be awarded only if the jury was unanimous in regard to finding liability for and the amount of exemplary damages.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d). The jury must be instructed that its answer regarding the amount of exemplary damages must be unanimous. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(e). By the supreme court’s March 15, 2011, effective April 1, 2011, and April 13, 2011, effective April 13, 2011, orders under Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a, the supreme court requires unanimity on the applicable liability question as well as the exemplary damages question in cases governed by Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d). Section 41.008 of the Civil Practice and Remedies Code limits the amount of exemplary damages and then lists exceptions that remove these limitations or caps. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008. The Committee considers these exceptions to be findings that establish ‘liability for and the amount of exemplary damages’, therefore, these questions are conditioned on, and require, unanimous findings. See PJC 85.5–85.13, 85.15–85.21.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. A unanimous decision on liability for and the amount of exemplary damages is not required for actions filed before September 1, 2003. In such cases, substitute the following conditioning instruction:

If you answered “Yes” to Question _____ [85.1], then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

(Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(11))

Answer the following question only if you unanimously answered “Yes” to Question _____ [85.1]. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

To answer “Yes” to [any part of] the following question, your answer must be unanimous. You may answer “No” to [any part of] the following question only upon a vote of ten or more jurors. Otherwise, you must not answer [that part of] the following question.

QUESTION _____

Did Don Davis secure the execution of a document by deception [and was the value of the property affected $1,500 or more]?

“Securing the execution of a document by deception” occurs when a person causes another person to sign any document affecting property, and does so by deception, with the intent to defraud or harm any person.

A person acts with intent with respect to the nature of his conduct or to a result of his conduct when it is the conscious objective or desire to engage in the conduct or cause the result.

“Deception” means creating or confirming by words or conduct a false impression of law or fact that is likely to affect the judgment of another in the transaction, and that the actor does not believe to be true.

“Property” means: (a) real property; (b) tangible or intangible personal property, including anything severed from land; or (c) a document, including money, that represents or embodies anything of value.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

When to use. PJC 85.15 should be used in a case in which (1) exemplary damages are sought, (2) the harm to the plaintiff is alleged to have resulted from conduct described as a felony in Tex. Penal Code § 32.46, and (3) the jury has previously found that the defendant committed conduct authorizing recovery of exemplary damages as set out in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(11). This statute applies to causes of action accruing on or after September 1, 1995. If the jury finds conduct that violates Tex. Penal Code § 32.46, and the conduct rises to the level of a felony, the limitations on exemplary damages awards set out in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(b) do not apply. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(11). If the conduct occurred while providing health care as defined by section 74.001 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code, there is no exception to the limitation on the amount of recovery as set forth in section 41.008(b). See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(7).

Bifurcation. If a defendant has requested a bifurcated trial pursuant to Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.009, PJC 85.15 should be answered in the first phase of the trial.

Caveat—burden of proof. The Committee expresses no opinion on whether the burden of proof is a preponderance of the evidence or clear and convincing evidence. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 41.003(c), 41.008(c).

Alternative language for “sign.” In an appropriate case, the word execute may be substituted for the word sign. See Tex. Penal Code § 32.46(a).

Alternative language for “property.” In an appropriate case, the term service or the pecuniary interest of any person may be substituted for the word property. See Tex. Penal Code § 32.46(a)(1). If service is substituted for property, the following definition should be substituted:

“Service” includes: (a) labor and professional service; (b) telecommunication, public utility, and transportation service; (c) lodging, restaurant service, and entertainment; and (d) the supply of a motor vehicle or other property for use.

Tex. Penal Code § 32.01(3).

“Deception.” The definition of “deception” in PJC 85.15 is taken from Tex. Penal Code § 31.01(1)(A); accord Goldstein v. State, 803 S.W.2d 777, 790 (Tex. App.—Dallas 1991, writ denied) (applying the same definition from a prior statute). Tex. Penal Code § 31.01(1)(B)–(E) provides alternative definitions of “deception,” which may be substituted as appropriate.

“Value” and requirement that conduct be described as a felony. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c) requires that the limitation or cap on exemplary damages may be lifted only if the plaintiff’s damages are based on conduct “described as a felony” in Tex. Penal Code § 32.46. The criterion for felony status is that the property or service have a value of $1,500 or higher. Tex. Penal Code § 32.46(b)(4). The optional language in the basic question in PJC 85.15 establishes whether the defendant’s conduct rises to the status of a felony, if there is a dispute about the value of the property in question.

Source of instruction and definition. The question and instructions are derived from Tex. Penal Code §§ 31.01(1), 31.08, 32.01(2), (3), 32.46; Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008.

Unanimity. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, “[e]xemplary damages may be awarded only if the jury was unanimous in regard to finding liability for and the amount of exemplary damages.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d). The jury must be instructed that its answer regarding the amount of exemplary damages must be unanimous. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(e). By the supreme court’s March 15, 2011, effective April 1, 2011, and April 13, 2011, effective April 13, 2011, orders under Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a, the supreme court requires unanimity on the applicable liability question as well as the exemplary damages question in cases governed by Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d). Section 41.008 of the Civil Practice and Remedies Code limits the amount of exemplary damages and then lists exceptions that remove these limitations or caps. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008. The Committee considers these exceptions to be findings that establish “liability for and the amount of exemplary damages”, therefore, these questions are conditioned on, and require, unanimous findings. See PJC 85.5–85.14, 85.16–85.21.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. A unanimous decision on liability for and the amount of exemplary damages is not required for actions filed before September 1, 2003. In such cases, substitute the following conditioning instruction:

If you answered “Yes” to Question _____ [85.1], then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

PJC 85.16 Question and Instructions—Fraudulent Destruction, Removal, Alteration, or Concealment of Writing as a Ground for Removing Limitation on Exemplary Damages (Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(12))

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 85.16 should be used in a case in which (1) exemplary damages are sought, (2) the harm to the plaintiff is alleged to have resulted from conduct described as a felony in Tex. Penal Code § 32.47, and (3) the jury has previously found that the defendant committed conduct authorizing recovery of exemplary damages as set out in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(12). This statute applies to causes of action accruing on or after September 1, 1995. If the jury finds conduct that violates Tex. Penal Code § 32.47, and that conduct rises to the level of a felony, the limitations on exemplary damages awards set out in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(b) do not apply. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(12). See comment below, “Felonious conduct, for a discussion of the requirements needed to establish that the conduct in question was felonious. If the conduct occurred while providing health care as defined by section 74.001 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code, there is no exception to the limitation on the amount of recovery as set forth in section 41.008(b). See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(7).

Bifurcation. If a defendant has requested a bifurcated trial pursuant to Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.009, PJC 85.16 should be answered in the first phase of the trial.

Caveat—burden of proof. The Committee expresses no opinion on whether the burden of proof is a preponderance of the evidence or clear and convincing evidence. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 41.003(c), 41.008(c).

Alternative language for “alter.” In an appropriate case, the terms remove, conceal, destroy, substitute, or impair the verity (legibility) (availability) of may be substituted for the word alter. See Tex. Penal Code § 32.47(a).

Not applicable to governmental records. Because Tex. Penal Code § 32.47 does not apply to writings that are “governmental records,” PJC 85.16 is not applicable in a case in which the writing in question is such a record. See Tex. Penal Code § 32.47(a). See Tex. Penal Code § 37.01(2) for a definition of “governmental record.”

Definition of “writing.” In an appropriate case, use a definition of ‘writing’ as provided in Tex. Penal Code § 32.47(b).

Felonious conduct. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c) provides that the limitation or cap on exemplary damages may be lifted only if the plaintiff’s damages are based on conduct “described as a felony” in Tex. Penal Code § 32.47. The criminal conduct described in Tex. Penal Code § 32.47 rises to felonious conduct only in the following situations:

1. the writing is a will or codicil of another, whether or not the maker is alive or dead and whether or not it has been admitted to probate; or
2. the writing is a deed, mortgage, deed of trust, security instrument, security agreement, or other writing for which the law provides public recording or filing, whether or not the writing has been acknowledged.

Tex. Penal Code § 32.47(d).

Source of instruction and definition. The question and instructions are derived from Tex. Penal Code §§ 6.03(a), 32.47; Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008.

Unanimity. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, “[e]xemplary damages may be awarded only if the jury was unanimous in regard to finding liability for and the amount of exemplary damages. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d). The jury must be instructed that its answer regarding the amount of exemplary damages must be unanimous. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(e). By the supreme court’s March 15, 2011, effective April 1, 2011, and April 13, 2011, effective April 13, 2011, orders under Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a, the supreme court requires unanimity on the applicable liability question as well as the exemplary damages question in cases governed by Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d). Section 41.008 of the Civil Practice and Remedies Code limits the amount of exemplary damages and then lists exceptions that remove these limitations or caps. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008. The Committee considers these exceptions to be findings that establish ‘liability for and the amount of exemplary damages’; therefore, these questions are conditioned on, and require, unanimous findings. See PJC 85.5–85.15, 85.17–85.21.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. A unanimous decision on liability for and the amount of exemplary damages is not required for actions filed before September 1, 2003. In such cases, substitute the following conditioning instruction:

If you answered “Yes” to Question _____ [85.1], then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

PJC 85.17 Question and Instructions—Theft as a Ground
for Removing Limitation on Exemplary Damages

To answer “Yes” to [any part of] the following question, your answer must be unanimous. You may answer “No” to [any part of] the following question only upon a vote of ten or more jurors. Otherwise, you must not answer [that part of] the following question.

QUESTION _____

Did Don Davis commit theft [and was the value of the stolen property $20,000 or greater]?

“Theft” means that a person unlawfully appropriates property with the intent to deprive the owner of property. Appropriating property is unlawful if it is without the owner’s effective consent.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

When to use. PJC 85.17 should be used in a case in which (1) exemplary damages are sought, (2) the harm to the plaintiff is alleged to have resulted from conduct described as a third-degree felony in Tex. Penal Code § 31.03, and (3) the jury has previously found that the defendant committed conduct authorizing recovery of exemplary damages as set out in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(13). This statute applies to causes of action accruing on or after September 1, 1995. If the jury finds conduct that violates Tex. Penal Code ch. 31, and that conduct rises to the level of a third-degree felony, the limitations on exemplary damages awards set out in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(b) do not apply. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(13). See comment below, “‘Value’ and requirement that conduct be described as a third-degree felony,” for a discussion of the requirements needed to establish that the conduct in question was felonious. If the conduct occurred while providing health care as defined by section 74.001 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code, there is no exception to the limitation on the amount of recovery as set forth in section 41.008(b). See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(7).

Bifurcation. If a defendant has requested a bifurcated trial pursuant to Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.009, PJC 85.17 should be answered in the first phase of the trial.

Caveat—burden of proof. The Committee expresses no opinion on whether the burden of proof is a preponderance of the evidence or clear and convincing evidence. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 41.003(c), 41.008(c).

Alternative definition for “unlawful appropriation of property.” “Unlawful appropriation of property” also occurs when the property is stolen and the actor appropriates the property knowing it was stolen by another. Tex. Penal Code § 31.03(b)(2). In an appropriate case, this definition should be substituted for the one shown above, and the Penal Code’s definition of “knowing conduct,” found at Tex. Penal Code § 6.03(b), should be given as well.

to restore property only upon payment of reward or other compensation.

or—

to dispose of property in a manner that makes recovery of the property by the owner unlikely.

Tex. Penal Code § 31.01(2)(B), (C).

Effective consent. In an appropriate case, the language Consent is not effective if induced by deception or coercion may be replaced with any of the following alternatives:

[Consent is not effective if]

1. given by a person Don Davis knows is not legally authorized to act for the owner;
2. given by a person who by reason of youth, mental disease or defect, or intoxication is known by Don Davis to be unable to make reasonable property dispositions; or
3. given solely to detect the commission of an offense.

See Tex. Penal Code § 31.01(3)(B), (C), (D). If the defendant's knowledge of a fact is in issue (as in option 1 above), the definition of 'knowing conduct' found at Tex. Penal Code § 6.03(b) should be given.

Theft of services and trade secrets. Tex. Penal Code § 31.04 should be consulted if the alleged theft was of services rather than of property, and Tex. Penal Code § 31.05 should be consulted if the alleged theft was of a trade secret.

"Value" and requirement that conduct be described as a third-degree felony. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(13) requires that the theft be at a level of a third-degree felony or higher in order to lift the limitation or cap on exemplary damages awards. The general criterion for a third-degree felony is that the property or service have a value of $20,000 or higher but less than $100,000. Tex. Penal Code § 31.03(e)(5). The optional language in the basic question in PJC 85.17 makes this inquiry, if there is a dispute about the value of what was stolen. Tex. Penal Code § 31.08 contains additional criteria for ascertaining value to determine the level of the offense, and Tex. Penal Code § 31.03 contains additional, nonmonetary criteria for ascertaining the level of punishment.

Source of instruction and definition. The question and instructions are derived from Tex. Penal Code §§ 1.07(a)(11), (35), 6.03, 31.01(2), (3), (4), (5), 31.03, 31.08; Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008.

Unanimity. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, "[e]xemplary damages may be awarded only if the jury was unanimous in regard to finding liability for and the amount of exemplary damages." Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d). The jury must be instructed that its answer regarding the amount of exemplary damages must be unanimous. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(e). By the supreme court's March 15, 2011, effective April 1, 2011, and April 13, 2011, effective April 13, 2011, orders under Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a, the supreme court requires unanimity on the applicable liability question as well as the exemplary damages question in cases governed by Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d). Section 41.008 of the Civil Practice and Remedies Code limits the amount of exemplary damages and then lists exceptions that remove these limitations or caps. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008. The Committee considers these exceptions to be findings that establish “liability for and the amount of exemplary damages”, therefore, these questions are conditioned on, and require, unanimous findings. See PJC 85.5–85.16, 85.18–85.21.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. A unanimous decision on liability for and the amount of exemplary damages is not required for actions filed before September 1, 2003. In such cases, substitute the following conditioning instruction:

By the supreme court’s March 15, 2011, effective April 1, 2011, and April 13, 2011, effective April 13, 2011, orders under Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a, the supreme court requires unanimity on the applicable liability question as well as the exemplary damages question in cases governed by Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d). Section 41.008 of the Civil Practice and Remedies Code limits the amount of exemplary damages and then lists exceptions that remove these limitations or caps. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008. The Committee considers these exceptions to be findings that establish “liability for and the amount of exemplary damages”, therefore, these questions are conditioned on, and require, unanimous findings. See PJC 85.5–85.19, 85.21.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. A unanimous decision on liability for and the amount of exemplary damages is not required for actions filed before September 1, 2003. In such cases, substitute the following conditioning instruction:

If you answered “Yes” to Question _____ [85.1], then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

PJC 85.21 Question and Instructions—Trafficking of Persons as a Ground for Removing Limitation on Exemplary Damages (Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(17))

Answer the following question only if you unanimously answered “Yes” to Question _____ [85.1]. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

To answer “Yes” to [any part of] the following question, your answer must be unanimous. You may answer “No” to [any part of] the following question only upon a vote of ten or more jurors. Otherwise, you must not answer [that part of] the following question.

QUESTION _____

Did Don Davis committed trafficking of persons?

A person commits an offense if the person knowingly—

[See comment below to insert one or more of the subparts under section 20A.02 of the Texas Penal Code.]

A person acts with intent with respect to the nature of his conduct or to a result of his conduct when it is the conscious objective or desire to engage in the conduct or cause the result.

Answer “Yes” or “No.”

Answer: _____

COMMENT

When to use. PJC 85.21 should be used in a case in which (1) exemplary damages are sought, (2) the harm to the plaintiff is alleged to have resulted from conduct described as a felony in Tex. Penal Code ch. 20A, and (3) the jury has previously found that the defendant committed conduct authorizing recovery of exemplary damages as set out in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(17). This statute applies to causes of action accruing on or after September 1, 1995. If the jury finds conduct that violates Tex. Penal Code ch. 20A, and that conduct rises to the level of a felony, the limitations on exemplary damages awards set out in Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(b) do not apply. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(17). If the conduct occurred while providing health care as defined by section 74.001 of the Texas Civil Practice and Remedies Code, there is no exception to the limitation on the amount of recovery as set forth in section 41.008(b). See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008(c)(7).

Bifurcation. If a defendant has requested a bifurcated trial pursuant to Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.009, PJC 85.21 should be answered in the first phase of the trial.

Caveat—burden of proof. The Committee expresses no opinion on whether the burden of proof is a preponderance of the evidence or clear and convincing evidence. See Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code §§ 41.003(c), 41.008(c).

Various conduct that satisfies the definition of trafficking of persons under chapter 20A of the Texas Penal Code. In an appropriate case, the question should include one or more of the following subparts:

1. traffics another person with the intent that the trafficked person engage in forced labor or services; or
2. receives a benefit from participating in a venture that involves an activity described by element 1, including by receiving labor or services the person knows are forced labor or services; or
3. traffics another person and, through force, fraud, or coercion, causes the trafficked person to engage in conduct prohibited by—
 - a. prostitution; or
 - b. promotion of prostitution, or
 - c. aggravated promotion of prostitution; or
 - d. compelling prostitution; or
4. receives a benefit from participating in a venture that involves an activity described by element 3 or engages in sexual conduct with a person trafficked in the manner described in element 3; or
5. traffics a child with the intent that the trafficked child engage in forced labor or services; or
6. receives a benefit from participating in a venture that involves an activity described by element 5, including by receiving labor or services the person knows are forced labor or services; or
7. traffics a child and by any means causes the trafficked child to engage in, or become the victim of, conduct prohibited by—
 - a. continuous sexual abuse of a young child or children; or

- b. indecency with a child; or
- c. sexual assault; or
- d. aggravated sexual assault; or
- e. prostitution; or
- f. promotion of prostitution; or
- g. aggravated promotion of prostitution; or
- h. compelling prostitution; or
- i. sexual performance by a child; or
- j. employment harmful to children; or
- k. possession or promotion of child pornography; or

8. receives a benefit from participating in a venture that involves an activity described by element 7 or engages in sexual conduct with a child trafficked in the manner described in element 7.

See Tex. Penal Code § 20A.02.

Source of instruction and definition. The question and instruction are derived from Tex. Penal Code §§ 6.03(a), 20A.01, 20A.02; Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008.

Unanimity. For actions filed on or after September 1, 2003, “[e]xemplary damages may be awarded only if the jury was unanimous in regard to finding liability for and the amount of exemplary damages.” Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d). The jury must be instructed that its answer regarding the amount of exemplary damages must be unanimous. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(e). By the supreme court’s March 15, 2011, effective April 1, 2011, and April 13, 2011, effective April 13, 2011, orders under Tex. R. Civ. P. 226a, the supreme court requires unanimity on the applicable liability question as well as the exemplary damages question in cases governed by Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.003(d). Section 41.008 of the Civil Practice and Remedies Code limits the amount of exemplary damages and then lists exceptions that remove these limitations or caps. Tex. Civ. Prac. & Rem. Code § 41.008. The Committee considers these exceptions to be findings that establish “liability for and the amount of exemplary damages”, therefore, these questions are conditioned on, and require, unanimous findings. See PJC 85.5–85.20.

Actions filed before September 1, 2003. A unanimous decision on liability for and the amount of exemplary damages is not required for actions filed before September 1, 2003. In such cases, substitute the following conditioning instruction:

If you answered “Yes” to Question _____ [85.1], then answer the following question. Otherwise, do not answer the following question.

CHAPTER 86

PRESERVATION OF CHARGE ERROR

PJC 86.1

Preservation of Charge Error (Comment).

PJC 86.1 Preservation of Charge Error (Comment)

The purpose of this Comment is to make practitioners aware of the need to preserve their complaints about the jury charge for appellate review and to inform them of general considerations when attempting to perfect those complaints. It is not intended as an in-depth analysis of the topic.

Basic rules for preserving charge error.

Objections and requests. Errors in the charge consist of (1) defective questions, instructions, and definitions actually submitted (that is, definitions, instructions, and questions that, while included in the charge, are nevertheless incorrectly submitted); and (2) questions, instructions, and definitions that are omitted entirely. Objections are required to preserve error as to any defect in the charge. In addition, a written request for a substantially correct question, instruction, or definition is required to preserve error for certain omissions.

- Defective question, definition, or instruction: Objection

Affirmative errors in the jury charge must be preserved by objection, regardless of which party has the burden of proof for the submission. Tex. R. Civ. P. 274. Therefore, if the jury charge contains a defective question, definition, or instruction, an objection pointing out the error will preserve error for review.

- Omitted definition or instruction: Objection and request

If the omission concerns a definition or an instruction, error must be preserved by an objection and a request for a substantially correct definition or instruction. Tex. R. Civ. P. 274, 278. For this type of omission, it does not matter which party has the burden of proof. Therefore, a request must be tendered even if the erroneously omitted definition or instruction is in the opponent's claim or defense.

Omitted question, Party's burden: Objection and request;
Opponent's burden: Objection

If the omission concerns a question relied on by the party complaining of the judgment, error must be preserved by an objection and a request for a substantially correct question. Tex. R. Civ. P. 274, 278. If the omission concerns a question relied on by the opponent, an objection alone will preserve error for review. Tex. R. Civ. P. 278. To determine whether error preservation is required for an opponent's omission, consider that, if no element of an independent ground of recovery or defense is submitted in the charge or is requested, the ground is waived. Tex. R. Civ. P. 279.

- Uncertainty about whether the error constitutes an omission or a defect:
Objection and request

If there is uncertainty whether an error in the charge constitutes an affirmative error or an omission, the practitioner should both request and object to ensure the error is preserved. See State Department of Highways & Public Transportation v. Payne, 838 S.W.2d 235, 239–40 (Tex. 1992).

Timing and form of objections and requests.

- Objections, requests, and rulings must be made—
 1. before the reading of the charge to the jury, Tex. R. Civ. P. 272; or
 2. by an earlier deadline set by the trial court, King Fisher Marine Service, L.P. v. Tamez, 443 S.W.3d 838, 843 (Tex. 2014) (providing that such a deadline must “afford[] the parties a ‘reasonable time’ to inspect and object to the charge”).
- Objections must—
 1. be made in writing or dictated to the court reporter in the presence of the court and opposing counsel, Tex. R. Civ. P. 272; and
 2. specifically point out the error and the grounds of complaint, Tex. R. Civ. P. 274.
- Requests must—
 1. be made separate and apart from any objections to the charge, Tex. R. Civ. P. 273;
 2. be in writing and tendered to the court, Tex. R. Civ. P. 278; and
 3. be in substantially correct wording, Tex. R. Civ. P. 278, which does not mean that the request be absolutely correct, nor does it mean that the request be merely sufficient to call the matter to the attention of the court, but instead means that the request is substantively correct and not affirmatively incorrect. Placencio v. Allied Industrial International, Inc., 724 S.W.2d 20, 21 (Tex. 1987).

Rulings on objections and requests.

- Rulings on objections may be oral or in writing. Tex. R. Civ. P. 272.

Rulings on requests must be in writing and must indicate whether the court refused, granted, or granted but modified the request. Tex. R. Civ. P. 276.

Common mistakes that may result in waiver of charge error.

Failing to submit requests in writing (oral or dictated requests will not preserve error).

Failing to make requests separately from objections to the charge (generally it is safe to present a party's requests at the beginning of the formal charge conference, but separate from a party's objections).

- Offering requests "en masse," that is, tendering a complete charge or obscuring a proper request among unfounded or meritless requests (submit each question, definition, or instruction separately, and submit only those important to the outcome of the trial).
- Failing to file with the clerk all requests that the court has marked "refused" (a prudent practice is to also keep a copy for one's own file).
- Failing to make objections to the court's charge on the record.
- Failing to make objections to the court's charge before the reading of the charge to the jury or by an earlier deadline set by the trial court.

Making objections on the record while the jury is deliberating even if by agreement and with court approval.

Adopting by reference objections to other portions of the court's charge.

- Dictating objections to the court reporter in the judge's absence (the judge and opposing counsel should be present).

Relying on or adopting another party's objections to the court's charge without obtaining court approval to do so beforehand (as a general rule, each party must make its own objections).

Relying on a pretrial ruling. See Wackenhut Corp. v. Gutierrez, 453 S.W.3d 917, 919–20, 920 n.3 (Tex. 2015) (per curiam).

Failing to assert at trial the same grounds for charge error urged on appeal (grounds not distinctly pointed out to the trial court cannot be raised for the first time on appeal).

- Failing to obtain a ruling on an objection or request.

Principle of error preservation. In State Department of Highways & Public Transportation v. Payne, the supreme court stated:

There should be but one test for determining if a party has preserved error in the jury charge, and that is whether the party made the trial court aware of the complaint, timely and plainly, and obtained a ruling. The more specific requirements of the rules should be applied, while they remain, to serve rather than defeat this principle.

Payne, 838 S.W.2d at 241. The goal is to apply the charge rules “in a common sense manner to serve the purposes of the rules, rather than in a technical manner which defeats them.” Alaniz v. Jones & Neuse, Inc., 907 S.W.2d 450, 452 (Tex. 1995) (per curiam). The keys to error preservation are (1) when in doubt about how to preserve, both object and request; and (2) in either case, clarity is essential: make your arguments timely and plainly enough that the trial court is aware of the claimed error, and get a ruling on the record. See, e.g. Wackenhut, 453 S.W.3d at 919–20.

Broad-form issues. In Crown Life Insurance Co. v. Casteel, 22 S.W.3d 378 (Tex. 2000), the supreme court held that inclusion of a legally invalid theory in a broad-form liability question taints the question and requires a new trial. Casteel, 22 S.W.3d at 388–89. The court has since extended this rule to legal sufficiency challenges to an element of a broad-form damages question, see Harris County v. Smith, 96 S.W.3d 230, 235–36 (Tex. 2002), and to complaints about inclusion of an invalid liability theory in a comparative responsibility finding, see Romero v. KPH Consolidation, Inc., 166 S.W.3d 212, 226–28 (Tex. 2005).

When a broad-form submission is infeasible under the Casteel doctrine and a granulated submission would cure the alleged charge defect, a specific objection to the broad-form nature of the charge question is necessary to preserve error. Thota v. Young, 366 S.W.3d 678, 690–91 (Tex. 2012) (citing In re A.V., 113 S.W.3d 355, 363 (Tex. 2003); In re B.L.D., 113 S.W.3d 340, 349–50 (Tex. 2003)). But when a broad-form submission is infeasible under the Casteel doctrine and a granulated submission would still be erroneous because there is no evidence to support the submission of a separate question, a specific and timely no-evidence objection is sufficient to preserve error without a further objection to the broad-form nature of the charge. Thota, 366 S.W.3d at 690–91.
